CALL FIRST VENIRE FROM WHICH TO PICK M'NAMARA JURORS

One Hundred and Twenty-Five Men Summoned Into Court.

John J. McNamara Tells of His "Uneventful Life."

Alleged Anarchist's Connection With Dynamiting Looked Into.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—One hundred and twenty-five citizens of Los Angeles, from whom may be called a jury of twelve to pass on the guilt or innocence of John J. and James B. McNamara in the Los Angeles Times dynamiting case, gathered today in the new court room of Judge Walter Bordwell.

The men constituted the first venire in the McNamara trial, which is set to begin next Wednesday.

The names of the veniremen were kept secret when drawn, and the calling of each juror was attended by a hasty scratching of pencils as representatives of the opposing counsel in the coming trial jotted the names down for future reference.

Tells of His Life.

Sitting in a corridor just outside his cell in the county jail, John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, briefly sketched what he termed the uneventful lives of himself and his brother, James B. McNamara.

"I was born in Cincinnati Dec. 23, 1876," he said, "and I am the oldest of six children living, although there were ten children originally. I attended the common schools in Cincinnati until I was 12 years old and then took a 3-year course in a business college.

"Nothing of any importance happened to me until the panic began in 1892, when I turned my hand to any-

ST. PAUL FAMILY POISONED BY GAS

Jet Left Burning at Night Is Blown Out and Fumes Fill Place.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to the Herald.)—Gas escaping from a jet in the store kept by Louis Grossman, 542 Rice street, came very near killing the six members of the Grossmann family this morning. Police Surgeon Rutherford, called by neighbors of the Grossmans, administered first aid and it was not necessary to send any of them to the hospital.

Grossman, his wife, their children, Goldie, aged 9; Rose, aged 8; Meyer, aged 13, and Morris, a baby of 2 years, slept in a room in the rear of the store. A gas jet is kept burning all night and it is supposed that it was blown out in some manner during the night. The room filled with the fumes, which gradually crept into the sleeping quarters. One of the children is said to have waked and given the alarm before all had lapsed into unconsciousness, and neighbors were called and the police surgeon notified.

IS SWELLING MISSISSIPPI

Black River Flood Doing Damage at La Crosse and Onalaska.

Black River Falls May Not Be Rebuilt, It Is Said.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 9.—The flood from the Hatfield dam in the Black river today is sweeping the country just north of La Crosse and is increasing the height of the Mississippi river here at the rate of an inch an hour. This morning at 8 o'clock the Mississippi here stood at 8.8 feet above zero, a rise of almost four feet since Saturday morning. The river is today higher here than it has been previously in three years.

The Northwestern railway tracks just above La Crosse and Onalaska are under water, there having been in some places a rise of fifteen feet since the water began to go up.

Traffic is completely cut off. Considerable damage is reported to farm property in the lowlands, and there are some heavy losses to stock. The farmers themselves had plenty of warning and those who were obliged to leave their homes got out safely.

May Not Rebuild City.

That Black River Falls may not be rebuilt at all, is the opinion of many. With the manufacturing plants destroyed, there is little left to maintain the little town. If the city were the

PLAN ALIBI FOR WEBSTER

Attorneys Claim Doctor Did Not Murder Bigamous Wife.

Say He Was Following Her to Get Divorce Suit Evidence.

Oregon, Ill., Oct. 9.—When Dr. Harry Elgin Webster, accused of murdering his wife, Bessie Kent Webster, is arraigned in court today, it is said he will refuse to plead. The court will then be required to enter a plea of not guilty for the prisoner.

Attorneys for the defense say they expect to prove that Bessie Kent Webster was murdered by a mysterious person with a black mustache, while Webster and a woman detective were following the couple in pursuit of evidence which the alleged murderer expected to use in reopening his divorce case.

At Dixon rivalry has sprung up between two liverymen, according to

PRIESTS LEADING PORTUGAL REVOLT

Carry Crucifixes in Front of Bands of Guerillas.

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 9.—The Royalists, after their defeat at Vinhaes, where they lost fifty men, entrenched themselves in the rough country and are awaiting the arrival of another column under Capt. Couciere. It is reported they have eight field pieces and four Maxim guns.

A party of monarchists commanded by a priest attacked an express train which was carrying troops to the north, near Monsanto. They placed an obstruction on the tracks, which was discovered by the engineer, who stopped his train when it was within fifty yards of the pile of stones and railroad ties. As the train halted it was fired upon. The troops responded and drove off the Royalists.

Priests Lead Guerillas.

Four hundred Royalists attacked Macedo de Cavalleires, which has been reinforced, but withdrew after a fight that continued for two hours.

Priests are taking an active part in the organization of guerilla bands and leading them in the combat with uplifted crucifixes. The monarchist flags are flying over the churches at Castello Branco and Santo Thyrso.

The government is finding difficulty in handling the cavalry and infantry in the mountainous districts.

TAFT HAS HARD PULL

President Nearly Has to Spend Night on Mountain Side.

Goes Up Mount Rainier as Far as the Snow Line.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 9.—Despite his narrow escape from spending a night in the mountain fastness on Mount Rainier because of heavy roads, President Taft declared just before leaving here for Seattle that he had thoroughly enjoyed his trip to the foot of glaciers.

The presidential party, conveyed by several automobiles, started yesterday afternoon on the 72-mile trip to the base of the glaciers. The first sixty miles were made over smooth roads. Once inside Mount Rainier National park, however, the party found the roads wet and heavy. And as they proceeded the highway became almost a quagmire. Finally, several automobiles became mired and could go no further with their own power.

Up to Snow Line.

The president's car was in advance of these, and managed to pass through even the worst part of the road. The president passed on up to the snow line. In the meantime forest rangers had pulled several of the stalled automobiles from the mire and they were turned back for the return trip before the president's car reached them on its downward trip. Four cars, however, were left temporarily stranded in the mountains.

The president's car sank deep in the muddy ruts and skidded badly at times, despite the safety chains that had been thrown over the car tires.

Got Some Road Ideas.

The president completed the journey as planned, and it is said that he declared later that he had been impressed with the necessity of additional government appropriations for road building in the national parks.

Governor Hay, Congressmen Warburton and Humphrey and S. A. Perkins, Republican national committeeman, and a delegation from Tacoma accompanied the president.

RODGERS FLYING TOWARD ST. LOUIS

Aviator Continues His Trans-Continental Aerial Voyage.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 9.—C. P. Rodgers, the aviator who is attempting to fly from New York to San Francisco, left here at 8:25 this morning, headed for St. Louis. He started from a field one mile north of this city and circled over the Joliet penitentiary several times before resuming his journey southward.

He passed over this city at an altitude of 1,500 feet, going nearly a mile a minute. He is being followed by a special train over the Chicago & Alton railroad and expects to arrive in St. Louis before dark. His first stop is expected to be Springfield, Ill.

FIGHT AFTER WEDDING MAY PROVE FATAL

Victor Matel Has Skull Fractured By Rock Thrown at Him.

Peter Kopechinski Charged With Having Committed the Assault.

Matel Was Defendant in Murder Trial Two Years Ago.

Following a wedding celebration at 2710½ West Michigan street last evening, in which beer was the chief article of refreshment, Victor Matel, one of two cousins acquitted of murder two years ago, was probably fatally wounded when he was struck on the head with a rock hurled by Peter Kopechinski.

Matel was taken to St. Mary's hospital with a fractured skull and may die.

The fight occurred shortly before midnight. Matel was attended by Dr. Oredson, who states that he has a chance to recover, although it is rather slim. The rock crushed in the skull over his eye, and two slivers of bone

FOUR KILLED IN NEW YORK TUNNEL

Dynamite Explodes in Works Sixty Feet Underground.

New York, Oct. 9.—Four men were killed and six injured today by an explosion of dynamite sixty feet under ground in a shaft under Central park, where they were working in an aqueduct for the Catskill water system.

FRUIT JAR BLOWS UP; WOMAN NEARLY KILLED.

Marinette, Wis., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Caspar Schwartz of the town of Porterfield, narrowly escaped death as the result of the explosion of a jar of preserves yesterday. While opening the jar the explosion occurred, severing the arteries of the wrist. Mrs. Schwartz lives about twelve miles in the country, and before she reached here nearly died from the loss of blood. She was brought to a hospital in this city.

UNION MEN SEE MARKHAM

President of Illinois Central Goes to Jackson, Miss.

Conference With State Officials May End the Strike.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 9.—Arriving here early today for a conference with state and municipal officials of Mississippi over conditions growing out of the strike of Illinois Central railroad employes, President Markham of the road first had a meeting with strike leaders gathered here. The formal conference will begin later this forenoon.

Pay Men Outside.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Signs notifying striking shopmen that they would be paid their September wages Wednesday outside the fence surrounding the Burnside shops, were posted today by the Illinois Central Railroad company.

Instead of paying the men in the shops as customary, the strikers will be paid at one of the city fire department buildings, a quarter of a mile from the Burnside shops.

This precaution has been taken to avoid the possibility of trouble.

Nearly 1,000 men, or about one-third of the regular force, reported for duty at the Burnside shops this morning and there was no disorder. Strike leaders are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the conference scheduled today between President Markham of the Illinois Central railroad and Governor Noel of Mississippi at Jackson, Miss.

Revolver Shots Fired.

A half dozen revolver shots, fired into the air, from a crowd of men who gathered two blocks from the shops resulted in a riot call and a rush of 100 policemen. No one had been injured and most of the men disappeared before the police arrived.

The theory of the police is that the crowd was of both strikers and strike-breakers and that someone had drawn the revolver to prevent the strike-breakers' continuing to work.

GAS IN CATCH BASIN EXPLODES

Partly Wrecks Plant of Chicago Elevated Railroad.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Gas in a catch basin is believed to have caused an explosion which today partly wrecked the plant of the Metropolitan West side elevated road and caused a panic among 100 passengers in a train which was within a few feet of the place when the accident occurred.

The explosion tore a hole thirty feet in diameter in the side of the building, and a piece of the third rail of the elevated structure was hurled several hundred feet. Five men were at work in the boiler room at the time. All escaped injury.

FISHER CONFESSES THAT HE MURDERED U. S. FOREST RANGER

Indian Mail Carrier Says He Killed Brown in Self Defense.

Calls Sheriff Meining and Makes Clean Breast of Killing.

Says Conscience Is Troubling Him and He Wants Affair "Cleared Up."

Coming as a climax to a maze of conflicting charges, arrests and circumstantial evidence, Tom Fisher, the Indian United States mail carrier has cleared up the murder of William A. Brown, government forest ranger, on the Nett Lake reservation, Aug. 8 by a complete confession of the killing.

Pleading self-defense, Fisher has given the authorities the true version of the affair, admitting that he killed the ranger with a blow from his rifle and with a knife with which he slashed the body in a dozen places.

While Sheriff Meining was walking through the county jail last night, where Fisher was being held pending his preliminary examination this morning, he heard a man calling him. Walking to the cell he found Fisher.

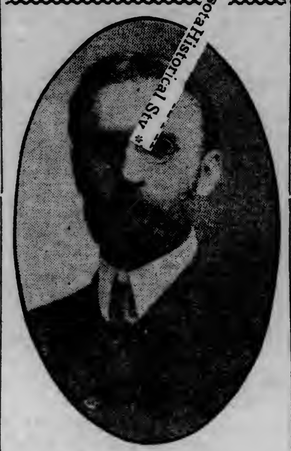

"My conscience has been troubling me," he said in an agitated voice. "This trouble has been bothering me for a long time, and it is getting worse. I want to tell the whole thing and get it cleared up." With which explanation he related to Sheriff Meining the complete details of the reservation killing. This morning he repeated his confession to County Attorney John Norton, Indian Agent A. B. Reagan and the sheriff. It was transcribed by a stenographer and signed by Fisher, who waived examination when he was brought before Judge Cutting in police court later. He was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury for murder in the first degree.

Complicated Case.

The case is one of the most complicated with which the authorities have had to deal in a long time. No

SEES ILLEGALITY IN STEPHENSON CAMPAIGN

GEORGE SUTHERLAND, United States Senator From Utah and Member of Investigating Committee.

FUNDS GIVEN CANDIDATES

Sackett Tells More About Where Stephenson's Money Went.

Sutherland Says State Law Was Violated By Managers.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9.—Numerous candidates for the Wisconsin legislature which was to elect a United States senator, received money out of the $107,793 campaign funds of Senator Isaac Stephenson, according to testimony today before the senatorial investigation committee.

Rodney Sackett, one of Stephenson's campaign managers, testified that Thomas Reynolds received several hundred dollars; Levi H. Bancroft received $250; C. C. Wellensgard received $250 and four others received similar amounts.

The men named were all candidates for the legislature at the primaries of 1908. Reynolds, Bancroft and Wellensgard were elected, and in joint session they voted for Stephenson for the senatorship. It was declared by the witness, however, that the money was given to the men to promote not their own campaigns, but that of Senator Stephenson.

Says Law Was Violated.

That the giving of money to candidates for office by another candidate was a violation of the state law, was

LIKES FRIDAY THE THIRTEENTH

Aviator Robinson Will Start Flight on That Date.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aviator Hugh Robinson believes Friday, Oct. 13, the luckiest day in the year for him. It's his birthday. Last night it was announced here Robinson would start his trans-Mississippi flight, Minneapolis to New Orleans, that day and date.

The time for starting the flight had been officially set for Wednesday, Oct. 11. At a conference yesterday between H. F. Garvie of St. Louis, a representative of the flight association, and President H. A. Tuttle and others, Robinson's desires were made known by Mr. Garvie and the change in the date made.

Robinson will arrive in Minneapolis tomorrow with his hydroplane. With him will be Albert Bond Lambert, president of the Aero club of St. Louis, and Spearman Lewis, also of the St. Louis Aero club.

Wednesday Robinson will give an exhibition flight here as a testimonial of his appreciation of the change in plans which will permit him to indulge his innocent superstition. The trans-Mississippi journey will begin at Lake Calhoun.

Carries U. S. Mail.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—Hugh Robinson, who is to start Friday on a Minneapolis-St. Paul-to-New Orleans flight in a hydro-aeroplane, did a spectacular stunt here in a hydro-aeroplane yesterday, starting from the water five times, landing six times and carrying United States mail from Missouri to Illinois.

In his flight Robinson went under three bridges. At the aviation field Horace Kearney, who was injured recently, flew with his crutch beside him. His flight covered the major portion of the West end. Other aviators made short flights.

HEAVY DOCKET IN SUPREME COURT

Over 800 Cases Await Hearing in Highest Tribunal.

Washington, Oct. 9.—More than 800 cases awaited the consideration of the supreme court of the United States today, the time set by law for that tribunal to resume its labors. This was the largest number that had faced the court on the beginning of a term in about twenty years. With cases being brought the state courts, from the district, circuit and other courts of appeals, from the customs and the commerce court, the supreme tribunal is hardly able to dispose of the cases as fast as they are docketed, to say nothing of the hundreds already on the docket.

All the members of the court, except Associate Justice Day, returned to the city for the opening day. Justice Day's absence was due to the continued illness of his wife at Canton, Ohio.

Usually the court adjourns immediately after convening on the first day of the term to pay its respects to the president. The absence of President Taft from Washington led many attorneys to prepare motions in cases on the docket for presentation to the court today.

ARGUING THE DUMAS CASE

Jury May Be Charged By Judge Within Few Hours.

Janes and Lane Make Closing Talks to the Twelve Men.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to the Herald.)—The Dumas arson case will undoubtedly go to the jury before evening.

Alexander Janes, assistant attorney general, consumed the forenoon from about ten o'clock with his address to the jury on behalf of the state, and will use probably an hour after dinner. He has reviewed the case in a masterly manner and gone into every angle of the evidence, his address being eloquent and forceful.

He will be followed by Freeman P. Lane of Minneapolis, who will give the defendant's closing address and will possibly occupy nearly the whole of the remaining time of the afternoon.

Whether Judge McClenahan will charge the jury before supper or not depends on circumstances, but at present it looks as if the jury would have the case before evening.

ALIGHTED ON BACK FENCE

"Jimmie" Myron Knocks Down Partridge for Sunday Morning Breakfast.

Another Lakeside Resident Has Dog That "Gets 'Em Alive."

One doesn't need to go outside the city limits to shoot partridges. "Jimmie" Myron had a nice, plump bird for breakfast yesterday morning, and he didn't need to leave his own backyard, except to invade W. E. Magner's backyard to pick up the partridge after it had died. Walter Harris' dog caught a partridge on the lake shore a few days ago, and many Duluth people have reported seeing birds inside the city limits.

Mr. Magner says that the partridge Mr. Myron picked off Mr. Magner's fence yesterday was no common bird.

"That partridge came from my farm north of Duluth," he said this morning. "I've got a number of partridges up there, and I know the bird Myron killed was one of them. The partridge had flown down to my house to act as my breakfast. His flight wasn't timed correctly and he arrived before I had awakened. He was sitting on the back fence, calmly waiting for me to come out and kill him, when Myron spied him from his house next door, took his shotgun and killed him. I don't think it a neighborly act to kill and eat another man's breakfast."

Walter Harris, who takes in money at the American Exchange National bank, says he doesn't have to kill birds for his dog to get them. He and the dog were down on the lake shore a few days ago. The dog was out of sight for a few minutes and came back with a partridge in his mouth. He had caught it on the shore.

Warren E. Greene, assistant county attorney, caught a partridge alive yesterday. He didn't intend to get him alive, but since the partridge fell into his hands, he didn't object. Mr. Greene had tried to kill the bird, but only one small shot from the shell had hit him. Mr. Greene says it was the only shot that went where he aimed. It was enough to bring him down, and Mr. Greene picked him up. The bird was only stunned for a minute, recovered rapidly and regained his full strength before an end was put to his existence.

WEATHER: Fair tonight and Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

SUIT AGAINST MINING COMPANY

Matt Korpi Sues for Injuries to His 9-Year-Old Son.

Before Judge Dibell of the district court Matt Korpi, father of Nicolai Verneri Korpi, a 9-year-old boy, is suing the Oliver Iron Mining company for $15,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the lad when he fell into a vat of boiling water maintained by the company on a street in Hibbing, Minn.

The plaintiff claims that the child was standing around watching the men work and that after being frightened he fell into the vat. He claims that the boy was badly burned.

Negligence on the part of the company in that sufficient care was not exercised in guarding against accident, is claimed by the plaintiff.

One of the best little manufacturing institutions in the city without a cent of indebtedness and that has always paid good salaries and a good interest upon the amount invested in the plant, desires to add some new machinery to further develop its business. A small amount of its preferred stock, bearing seven per cent semi-annually is therefore offered for sale or will give good, clean, first-class mortgage on the entire plant worth five times the loan asked. Address, W. H. T., care Herald.

BLAMES DULUTH POSTOFFICE

State Auditor Has Knotty Case Over Mailed Notice to Official.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—If a county surveyor mails a card to himself asking that he meet a representative from the state auditor's office on a certain date at a certain town, shall the state pay the expense of the trip?

This is the question which is facing Auditor Iverson today. Aug. 22, a card was mailed by Mr. Iverson to Axel Berglund of Grand Marais, county surveyor, asking him to meet S. E. Atkins of the auditor's office at Duluth Aug. 29. The two met.

In some manner the postal card got into the mail again, passed through the Duluth postoffice, was delivered to Mr. Berglund again at Grand Marais, and he, believing that a mistake had been made in saying "Aug. 29" instead of Sept. 29, went to Duluth in Sept. 29 to meet Atkins the second time.

"He has just discovered his mistake," Mr. Iverson said. "It appears to me the Duluth postoffice made the error in transmitting the card a second time, after the stamp had once been cancelled."

MUCH OPPOSITION TO TOBACCO TRUST

Every Branch of Industry Represented at Reorganization Hearing.

New York, Oct. 9.—Every branch of the tobacco industry will be represented in the opposition which the American Tobacco company must face this week in striving to gain the approval of the United States circuit court for its plan of reorganization. After several delays the tobacco trust attorneys expected to submit this plan to the court this afternoon, and the position of the independents will not be fully revealed until they find just what they must face.

The cigarette manufacturers are the latest recruits to the opposition, which the independents say includes also the cigar manufacturers, leaf dealers, cigar box manufacturers and the organizations of the union and non-union cigar makers. Until the reorganization matter came definitely before the court the independents seemed uncertain of their position. They did not know just how much voice the circuit court judges would allow them in settling the question.

KILLS HIMSELF TO AVOID LYNCHING

Forget, Sask., Wife-Murderer Pursued By Enraged Citizens.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 9.—Pursued by an enraged mob of citizens of Forget, Sask., who were intent on lynching him, Charles W. Luke last night entered a vacant house and fired a bullet into his heart.

A few hours previous to his death he had shot and killed his wife and it was for that crime that the mob was pursuing him.

HAS DECIDED HE DID NOT HOLD UP TRAIN.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Young, alleged self-confessed Northern Pacific train bandit, now contends that he is innocent and that the confession he made at Neenah, Wis., and later at St. Paul, was made while he was under the influence of "dope." He will be tried at the November term of district court and it is said that he can prove an alibi.

AUTOMOBILE IS BURNED

Leak in Gasoline Pipes Is Supposed to Be the Cause.

Occupants of the Car Succeed in Escaping Uninjured.

An automobile, the property of the Mutual Automobile company, burned on the Pike lake road last night about half way between the boulevard and Duluth Heights.

A leak in the gasoline connection pipes is supposed to be responsible for the fire which broke out so quickly that the occupants had hardly a chance to get out of the machine before it was a mass of flames.

The car was being driven by L. H. Fillatrault of the Mutual Automobile company. With a friend he started out about 9:30 for a short run into the country. They had reached a joint about half way between the boulevard and Duluth Heights when the fire broke out.

The men jumped from the car and watched it burn. There was nothing else to do as in a second's time the entire car was in flames. The car was totally destroyed.

The machine was what is known as a model L. Thomas flyer. It was formerly the property of A. N. Russell.

It was fully covered by insurance.

LORIMER PROBERS ARE IN CHICAGO

Members of Illinois Legislature Will Be Called to Testify.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Senator Dillingham, chairman of the Lorimer investigating committee of the United States senate, has called an executive session of the committee which will be held late today. A majority of the eight members of the committee are expected to reach Chicago before night.

Hopkins, probably will be one of the first witnesses called when the committee resumes its hearings tomorrow morning. Former State Senator George M. McCormick of Alton and State Senator Frank A. Landee of Moline are slated to follow Pfeffers.

N. F. Webber, deputy sergeant at arms of the committee, yesterday subpoenaed a number of the citizens of Mount Vernon, Ill., including Former State Representative William C. Blair.

A bright, keen, alert young man of pleasing personality who believes he could make good in hustling business for a well established manufacturing institution that is already doing a nice business, and having no indebtedness and with unlimited possibilities for increasing its volume of output with profit, is invited to take some stock or go into partnership and also secure an assured position at a good salary. The fullest inquiry is invited. Address at once, J. S. S., care Herald.

CATCH ALLEGED COUNTERFEITER

Albert Leon, Pursued Across Continent, Is Arrested.

Washington, Oct. 9.—After a search across the continent and up into British Columbia, the secret service operatives today captured Albert Leon, a Russian Jew and political refugee as he was about to leave New York for South America. Leon is alleged to be at the head of an extensive counterfeiting gang which flooded the Pacific coast with spurious ten dollar bank notes during the last year.

LEARN HOW TO PREVENT FIRES

School Children Are Taught Lessons of Caution.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—To ask for matches that "strike only on the box," not to drop matches near gasoline or coal oil, and to watch bonfires carefully, are among the pledges school children were asked to take today during observation of fire prevention day throughout Indiana.

All school teachers had been provided with a printed address on the prevention, causes of, and means of extinguishing fires, and on the immense store of energy and wealth that goes up in smoke each year. This address was read to the children.

The same subjects will be discussed more extensively by the older folks at meetings in most of the larger cities of the state today. Franklin H. Wentworth of Boston, secretary of the National Fire Protection association, will deliver an address in this city. Fire Prevention day was designated by a proclamation of Governor Thomas R. Marshall.

Anniversary in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Today, the fortieth anniversary of the Chicago fire of 1871, is being observed throughout the West as Fire Prevention day. The subject of fire waste, which last year was $234,470,650 in the United States, is being given consideration by commercial bodies, schools and individuals. The governors of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Montana and Utah issued proclamations formally setting aside Oct. 9 as Fire Prevention day. The governors of Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Michigan issued similar proclamations but have set aside other dates. Mayors and councils of many cities and towns followed the action of the governors with similar proclamations.

WISCONSIN AFTER GAME WARDENS

Federal Expert Will Help Examine the Applicants.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—"If you can't tell a prairie chicken from a mallard, please don't be a candidate for a game warden's job."

This advice is being handed out by some of the applicants who took the last civil service examination and failed. Between 350 and 400 men in Wisconsin believe, however, in their ability to hold this position and will be formally examined by the civil service commission in different parts of the state next Saturday.

Secretary F. E. Doty intends to make the tests practical and has secured the services of L. S. Palmer of Washington, D. C., who is in charge of the federal game preserves, to conduct the examinations. In his own field Palmer is said to be a second Pinchot, and comes here on invitation of the civil service commission without expense, to conduct this part of the examinations.

The candidates will be given an opportunity to select from a table various kinds of fish and game. Then they will be taken to the fields to test their ability to shoot, and to open water to test their oarsmanship.

"PAY 2,000 OR LOSE DAUGHTER"

Chicago Alderman's Wife Gets Letter Signed "Black Hand."

Chicago, Oct. 9.—A threat that her 14-year-old daughter, Theresa, would be kidnaped unless $2,000 was forthcoming was received today by the wife of Alderman Bernard Snow, in a letter from Dubuque, Iowa, signed "Black Hand." The girl at present is at Mount St. Joseph's college in Dubuque, and the letter said a plan had been made to steal her unless the money was sent at once.

The letter was received by Mrs. Snow, her husband having been in Europe for the last month. It ordered that the package of money be thrown from an elevated train.

The communication was turned over to Chief of Police McSweeney, who took personal charge of the case. Instructions were sent to Dubuque at once to place a special guard around the school.

GERMAN WINS THE GORDON BENNETT CUP.

New York, Oct. 9.—The German balloon Berlin II unofficially is announced as winner of the James Gordon Bennett cup of the Aeroclub of America. Speaking for his associates in the club, Alan R. Hawley, winner of last year's international race, praised the plucky men who brought victory.

"While we regret that the trophy does not remain in this country," said Mr. Hawley, "we have nothing but praise for Lieut. Gericke, the Berlin's pilot, to whom we extend our heartiest congratulations. With the trophy going to Germany, added zest will be given to the race next year."

Gericke landed at Ladysmith, Wis., 468 miles from his starting point in Kansas City, Mo.

"THE SPOILERS" AT THE LYCEUM

Forbes Stock Company Gives Good Production of Alaskan Drama.

Where gold is king, where each man has the law in his own hands, and where life and action are combined, is the scene chosen by Rex Beach for his famous novel, "The Spoilers," now being presented by the Gus A. Forbes Stock company at the Lyceum theater. Alaska, the country where a man's past is forgotten and where only the present is known, is the haven for men from all parts of the globe. It is these men who are starting fresh who make this country far north tingle with motion, excitement and romance. Rex Beach alone seems to understand the Far North, and his previous works, together with "The Spoilers," are a pen picture of the frontier life.

The play is well presented and is one of the most artistic productions that has ever been played here by a stock company. The fight scenes, made realistic by Mr. Forbes' acting, and the many little artistic touches give the performance the real northern atmosphere. The work of Mr. Forbes as Glennister, presented in his own inimitable way, was well done, especially the handling of the various fights during the action of the play. He makes both a splendid lover and a realistic fighter. His performance is ably supported by Miss Corinne Cantwell as Helen Chester, the young girl who did not understand the ways of the North and its men. She handles her part well and is a great contrast to the hardened and primitive men of that region. She appeared at her best in the various climaxes and was well received by the large audience. Jilleen Errol as Cherry Malotte, the other woman, proved a worthy opponent to Helen Chester in the winning of Glennister. Her portrayal of the hardened woman of the North, with her undying love for the man who once saved her life, is deserving of commendation.

Frederick Van Renselear as Joe Dextry, dressed and played his part well. He looked the typical Alaskan adventurer, and with his rough voice, was able to present his part to satisfaction. Horace Noble as the wily McNamara, Richardson Cotton as the crafty lawyer, and Claude Neilson as Helen's lost brother are all well portrayed and ably support the leading characters of the play. Jane Hampton as "the duchess" is a real life portrayal of the stage celebrity found all over the globe. Her slang was well handled throughout.

The first act of the play is placed aboard the Santa Maria, the ship on which Glennister and his partner, Dextry, and the girl, Helen Chester, are bound for the North. In the second act takes place the wonderful fight between Glennister and McNamara, the inevitable struggle between the man who has found his fortune and the spoiler who would cheat him out of it. The third act takes place in the dance hall and the last act in the Sign of the Sled roadhouse.

The type of Glennister is interesting, as he also has left a home of refinement and culture for the Far North, where the gun is the law and it is each man for himself. The story of the play deals with the attempt of Glennister to obtain his claim from a gang of politicians who come into the North with a new code of laws, and who obtain everything in sight with the courts back of them. To add to the hero's struggles, the girl he loves is a niece of the unjust judge, and apparently approves of the path of the lawmakers, not knowing the ways of crafty men when fighting for gold and fortune.

The play will be given the entire week excepting Friday evening, with the regular Wednesday and Saturday Matinees.

COMEDY BILL AT THE ORPHEUM

Two Knockabout Turns and Clever Banjoist Are Best Features.

Down at the Orpheum this week they have a successor to "Casey Jones." The story of the "brave engineer" is known by almost every American man, woman and child, and "Steamboat Bill" as sung by two clever blackface comedians, is a good successor to it, although hardly up to the mark of the original song.

"Steamboat Bill" threatened to halt the show last evening, the audience insisted on so many encores. Kenny, Nobody and Platt are the performers who give it. They have a good blackface turn, in which the comedy dialogue revolves around the person of Mr. Nobody.

There are two other features on this week's bill that are just as popular with the audiences as "Steamboat Bill," and his blackface sponsors.

One is the nondescript comedy turn of Brown, Haris & Brown. It is impossible to describe the act, which is simply a crazy melange of singing, dancing, comedy dialogue, and the antics of the elder Brown, one of the verterans of the vaudeville stage. Brown is funny in a very broad way. There is nothing coarse about his comedy, but it certainly could not be classed as subtle. It is sheer nonsense and horseplay, but it seemed to get last night's audience from the start, and the team was kept answering curtain calls until they seemed to have exhausted their supply of encores.

The third popular feature was the act of Brent Hayes, banjo player. Hayes is one of the best banjo artists ever heard at the Orpheum. The feature of his act is the manner in which he makes his banjo sound like two instruments. He plays an air and its accompaniment, and is not satisfied to play merely popular music, but essays several very difficult selections. In one number his banjo sounded like several different instruments playing at once. He was forced to play about four additional numbers by last evening's audience, and even then he was allowed to go with reluctance.

Mazie King makes a chubby little nymph in her spectacular dance "The Legend of Spring. The curtain discloses Mazie reclining on a bank beside a spring of real water which trickles down between some stage property stones. The nymph awakens and walking down the stones on the tips of her toes, proceeds to give an exhibition of toe dancing. She then climbs back and the prince enters. The prince has a tenor voice with plenty of power behind it, and he warbles a roundelay. Then he discovers Mazie. They flirt and he kisses her. For some symbolic reason the gods get angry, and the stage carpenter turns loose a violent storm. Then the prince deserts his nymph, and starts keeping company with a real girl. More toe dancing, weeps from the nymph, and curtain. One thing is proven conclusively. Mazie can pivot about on one toe with the other pointing to five minutes of 6. The dancing and singing and the electrical effects are all good, but the symbolism is overstrained.

"What Happened in Room 44," a comedy dramatic sketch by the late Victor Smalley, has a most surprising climax. It would be unfair to disclose the plot, for the surprise at the finish makes it a most enjoyable sketch. It is well played by a capable little company of three people, Miss Ruth Raynor having the most important role, that of "The Woman."

The opening act is a combination of club juggling, comedy and cornet playing, presented by Alburtus the First, Jessie Millar and Miss Dollie Millar. A comedy feature of the act is the accurate throwing at the "nigger babies" by the man in the act. The scene represents an incident at a county fair.

Mlle. De Fallieres closes the bill with an act that ought to be popular with the children this week. She has a troupe of cleverly trained dogs, that perform a number of entertaining tricks, the act closing with a revolving swing feature.

The pictures this week show the latest styles in fall suits and gowns from Paris.

PIANIST HEADS EMPRESS BILL

Westony Is Wizard of Key-Board—Other Good Acts Presented.

Three audiences sat entranced yesterday while Vilmos Westony, protege of Richard Wagner and musical sensation of the Old World, poured forth his facile art through the medium of the piano. Unless all signs fail and Duluth people prove unappreciative of musical ability, the Empress, where Westony heads the bill this week, will be crowded at each performance given this week.

Westony is a wizard of the key-board and he puts his art into his music so as to almost give soul to the popular instrument. He plays classical and popular selections with equal ability and equal attention to requirements. He brings out the best there is in each selection and when he wound up with a composition of the national airs of four countries, his audience burst out with wildly enthusiastic applause that was a certain indication of appreciation. The act is one of the best type of vaudeville performances. Duluth has never had anything like it and Duluth people who fail to visit the Empress this week will miss an opportunity that does not come often.

Although Westony heads the bill, he is not compelled to carry the full burden of making a visit to the Empress this week worth while. The other acts are not as greatly out of the ordinary as is that of the pianist, but they are well up to the front in quality and drew their share of the applause from the Sunday audiences. In fact the bill as a whole is up to the standard of the Empress which is a standard that draws crowds in Duluth.

Art Adar, whose act is billed as "matchlessly mirthful, musical nonsense," comes up to the requirements of the billing. He is a good comedian, has worked his act together well and there is not a dull moment while he is on the stage. He jumped into instant popularity with yesterday's audiences and his act should win him favor with Duluth crowds.

Nat Phillips and Daisy Merritt, who come from London with an act that has an English air, devote themselves to comedy. They succeed in their mission of making people laugh and they drew round after round of applause yesterday. They are clever comedians with a cleverly devised line of comedy and they make it go from the start.

One of the best sketches the Empress has had in some time is "C. O. D. Package," which is being put on this week by William J. Sullivan and Clarice Pasquelana. The sketch, which is by Edward Weitzel, is a satire on stage life and it is so clearly put before the audience that the humor of the piece is readily accepted. Mr. Sullivan and Miss Pasquelana are not new to vaudeville and they have a firm grasp on the art of making the most out of their material. They threatened to get a corner on laughs yesterday, but Duluth people have abundant appreciation of good comedy and there is more left for other performances this week. The playlet will be popular with Duluth audiences, for it has all the requisites for winning popularity.

Jugglers are numerous in vaudeville but the juggler with a good line of ability will always be popular. Kara is counted in a class by himself as a juggler and his feats lead one to believe that he deserves the distinction. He holds the attention of his audience every second and his rapidly executed maneuvers won their tribute of applause.

The moving pictures are interesting. The bill all through is a good one and should attract crowds. Three performances will be given daily, one each afternoon and two each evening.

Whence These Beautiful Suits?

Is a frequent question from those not acquainted with us. They are so "different" in style, lines and general effect than the average suit seen elsewhere. The secret lies in the fact that they are "confined" styles—that is, sold to this store alone in Duluth, which insures exclusiveness to the customer. And this "exclusiveness" does not cost her one penny more than the ordinary suit seen in the ordinary store. For instance, our $25 and $29.50 models are as foreign to ordinary $25 and $29.50 suits, as labor and brains can make them. At $35 and $45, truly beautiful suits that give class and distinction to the wearer. At $50 to $65 come our famous "Custom Made" line, to be had only here; all hand made and hand finished. And at $65 up to $125, elegant 3-piece costumes that bespeak elegance and refinement in every line.

Madame's Hat May either mar an otherwise perfect appearance or add immeasurably to it. To ensure the latter, it must be absolutely correct, becoming and properly adjusted by an artist in such things, such as our milliners are now noted for, and also there must be a wide assortment of chic, smart and artistic hats to select from.

It is with no boastfulness or vainglory that we point to the hundreds of fashionable women of Duluth who have already made their selections here, but they testify visibly to the superiority, style, taste and exclusiveness of our hats.

New ideas are being evolved daily and frequent trips to the East are keeping us in touch with Fashion's latest quips as they come out.

AVIATOR McGOEY MAKES TWO SUCCESSFUL FLIGHTS AT SUPERIOR

McGOEY AND HIS MACHINE.

A crowd of 5,000 to 6,000 people saw Thomas McGoey, the "bird man," make two successful aeroplane flights at the Superior driving park yesterday.

McGoey has had some bad luck in Northern Minnesota, but it didn't follow him to Superior. The weather conditions were ideal, the machine was in good condition and the two flights gave the people of the Head of the Lakes a fine demonstration of flying in a heavier-than-air machine.

The apparatus, when 2,000 or more feet above the ground, looked like a bird. The huge planes, spread out to right and left, and the rudder behind, looked like the wings and tail of a giant bird, which, having acquired considerable velocity, ceases to propel itself with its wings, and merely uses them to sail. The machine, however, kept its motive power constantly in operation, as was evident from the unceasing buzz of the aerial paddle wheel. This wheel, when motionless, as the machine stood on the driving track, just before ascending, resembled a double canoe paddle, not more than seven feet long.

The crowd of men and boys that lined up back of the maching, before it started, was literally blown back several feet, when the wheel was set in motion. The machine, after running along the track about 400 feet, in front of the grand-stand and bleachers, on rubber-tired wheels, suddenly turned its planes upward, and rose from the ground, pursued by the exultant shouts of the applauding spectators.

Two Flights Made.

There were two flights. The first was begun shortly before 4 o'clock. This time he went up only a few hundred feet, circling round and round over the grounds, and giving the crowd the best possible chance to view the flying operation in detail. Those who were thoughtful enough to bring opera glasses had an excellent opportunity of seeing just how the machine worked. In this respect they were much favored by the weather conditions. There was an abundance of sunshine, rendering the machine clearly visible, except when directly between the spectator and the sun, and there was not enough breeze to cause any annoyance. Several times he made dips toward the ground and darted upward again, when within a few feet of touching. Later he made a long, easy descent, and landed out in the field, the machine running along over the grass for a short distance before coming to a halt.

The second flight was commenced shortly before 5 o'clock. He rose 2,000 feet or more, describing vast circles over the city, and remaining up in the air about half an hour.

The occasion was nearly marred by an accident. Just as the machine started the second time, one of the men who had been helping to put it up, happened to be in front of it. He had not time to get out of the way, but he grasped one of the beams, and thus saved himself from being struck by another part of the framework. He was dragged along the ground about twenty feet before the apparatus could be brought to a halt.

To Plead Self-Defense.

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Self-defense will be the plea of Vincenzo Genardi, the Italian, who is accused of murdering Tonia Ferrarra in a gun fight here two weeks ago, when he is arraigned in court today for a preliminary examination. He has been positively identified as the man who killed the local Italian.

HOW TO TREAT OLD SORES

The proper way—the only successful way—to treat an old sore is to destroy its source. Not by dangerous surgical operations or irritating "drawing" plasters, but by Nature's true method of purifying the blood and filling the circulation with rich, nourishing properties; then the cure will be natural and lasting. We can easily understand how impurities in the blood will infect some weak point on our bodies, and by continually discharging impurities into it keep the place open and inflamed until a chronic ulcer is formed. Nothing then is so sure to produce a cure of these old sores as S. S. S. This medicine is Nature's perfect blood remedy, composed of the most healing and at the same time the most penetrating and blood-purifying properties. It removes every particle of impurity or morbid matter from the circulation, and assists nature in the increasing of healthful, nutritious corpuscles in the blood. S. S. S. makes pure blood and pure blood is Nature's unfailing cure for old sores. We want every sufferer with an old sore to commence the use of S. S. S., because we know it is the remedy they most need. # TAME-WILD DUCKS ARE AID TO WILLIAM ORR, HUNTER

This isn't one of the annual fall fairy stories that come creeping out of the rushes and slimy swamp bottoms that constitutes the duck hunter's paradise. It is true; in fact, honest, and can be vouched for by a lot of people who know the man who tells it.

William Orr of Orr, Minn., not so very far from here, is the man who has invented the best means of getting the feathered fowl, so far devised, though hunters in these parts have been familiar with rush-covered canoes, with wild ducks tied with string and anchored, with canoes covered with mirrors and with a patent squawker that was supposed to give the siren call that would draw the ducks to the range of the lurking hunter—but didn't.

Hunters around these productive parts have been familiar with all of these devices. None of 'em prove successful.

Tame-Wild Ducks.

But listen to what Mr. Orr has done and you will not wonder why he is the most successful hunter of the tender bird in this vicinity of the duck paths.

Not so long ago he got some eggs of the wild duck. Out of these eggs were hatched fifteen of the prettiest little ducklings that ever broke out of a shell. With the appearance of these fledglings came the inspiration to the man for whom the town of Orr is named.

He decided to make living decoys out of these innocent little ducks. That is just what he has done. He has taken these wild-tame ducks and made the very best decoys in the world out of them.

These ducks have been raised in the yard of Mr. Orr. They became so fat and generally logey that they are unable to fly. But they still retain what Jack London might call the primordial instinct, and just here is where they come into very excellent use as the decoys.

Every time Mr. Orr goes hunting, or takes some of his friends out to show them the excellent means of getting ducks around his part of the state, he takes several of these tame-wild ducks. The method, like eating olives, is very simple. The ducks are simply put on the water and allowed to swim around. That primordial stuff bubbles to the surfaces of their simple natures and they begin to quack out of pure love of company, for the duck is a sociable being.

Wild Ducks Attracted.

Hearing this friendly advance upon the part of the tame-wild ducks floating around in the placid waters, the foolish wild ducks come down, fraternizing with their brethren that were. This is where they make a very grave mistake, but experience is something that even ducks must learn.

How do the hunters shoot the wild ducks without hitting, without ruthlessly sacrificing the tame-wild ducks to the quest of game, you may ask. That is simply answered. The tame-wild ducks, as has been stated before, cannot fly. All the hunters have to do is to lie in wait and watch for the rise of the ultra pure, or simon pure wild ducks, and then let 'er go.

These live decoys have worked with consistent regularity. Any ambitious amateur hunter who wants to come home with something beside a ravenous appetite, should go up and get Billy Orr to take him out behind his team of tame-wild duck decoys.

WANT TREATY WITH GERMANY FRAMED

German Americans Favor Arbitration—Take Hand in Politics.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The Germans of the United States, as represented by the German-American National alliance, now in convention here, have signified their wish that Germany enter into negotiations with the United States for a general arbitration treaty similar to those with Great Britain and France now pending ratification by the United States senate. The delegates yesterday passed a resolution asking the senate to ratify the two treaties without amendment, but stipulated that it should be done only after Germany officially had declared its willingness to negotiate a similar treaty.

The attacks upon Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson for acting as honorary president of the International Brewers' congress were considered by the delegates as an insult to the cabinet officer, who they considered, had every right to accept the honor.

Commissioner of Immigration Williams of New York was condemned for what the convention considered an abuse of discretion in the administration of the immigration law at Ellis Island. The delegates voted by states, and by a vote of 45 to 4 adopted a report of Henry Weismann of Brooklyn on the subject.

Aid Red River Valley Boosters.

Grafton, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Substantial support for the Red river valley boosters comes from this county, the board of county commissioners making an appropriation for that association's fund to promote the exhibit that will be made in St. Paul this winter. By making this appropriation the Walsh county share of the apportionment of the expense is taken care of.

FOLKS PAST FIFTY MUST USE CASCARETS

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—a 10-cent box will truly amaze you.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much so as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

New Soo Time Table Shows Stops on Twin City Line.

Construction Work Will Be Completed Within Four Months.

Construction work on the new "short line," which the Soo railroad is building between the Twin Cities and Duluth will be completed within four months, according to information which has reached this city. The grade has been completed and it is expected that the steel will be laid before the cold weather is over.

In a Soo Line folder, just issued, a map is published showing the country which this line opens up. # RAILROAD FOR PRESQUE ISLE

Logging Line May Be Constructed on One of the Apostle Islands.

A railroad may be built within the next two years on Presque Isle, the second largest of the Apostle islands, Chequamegon bay on the south shore of Lake Superior.

The railroad will be built for the Schroeder Lumber company, which at the present time owns all of the timber on Presque Isle, or as it is sometimes called, Stockton island. The island is the largest in the group of twenty-two, next to Madeline.

The new line is planned for the purpose of handling logs and to transport men, teams and supplies to the interior. The company is planning to do some extensive logging on this island and to remove all the timber will require several years. It is planned to have the railroad ready for operation in 1913.

At the present time, it means a long haul to get to the interior of the island and the lumber company is now making arrangements for the transportation of engines and cars and the equipment of a full fledged railway from the mainland to the island.

TRACK INSPECTION AN EXACT SCIENCE.

Track inspection has been reduced to an exact science on some of the Eastern railroads. A patrolman registers in the tower at the end of his beat the hour and minute of his arrival; departs on his journey and registers similarly in the tower at the other end. He carries a registering clock, by which his trips can be checked to the minute. His route usually covers about four miles, but is less than half this on stretches where special watchfulness is needed. At night the inspector has only the light of his lantern to work by, but he must see that every frog, switch and signal is in good order.

If a nearby tree looks dangerous, he must report, so that it can be chopped down. An overhanging rock may become loose—the track-walker must know about it in time to avert a possible accident. The wash of waters must be looked after. Road crossings must be examined for danger to teams as well as to trains.

Other things that demand his vigil are outlying water stations, overhead wires and even the cattle loose in the fields. Some of these pedestrians are on the job every hour in the twenty-four to smooth the path for the hurrying millions gliding over the rails.

Pennsylvania Orders Cars.

The Pennsylvania has ordered 1,100 all-steel freight cars from the Cambria Steel company at a cost of about $1,000,000. Inquiries for 14,000 tons of pig iron for delivery this year at its Altoona shops have been put out by the Pennsylvania.

ROBBERS FAILED TO STEAL WHEAT MONEY.

Fergus Fall, Minn., Oct. 9.—Gust Stein says while leaving the city Saturday night three men jumped into his wagon, threw him down and robbed him of what silver he carried. He had just sold his wheat, but the men failed to find the money. He was then thrown out of the wagon and the men drove away, but soon left the team and disappeared.

RATE CUT MAY BE GREATER

Duluth Property Owners Will Probably Pay Only 36.9 Mills.

Reduction in City Levy Takes Rate Down—Valuation, $43,603,000.

The reduction of the city tax levy from $751,000, the amount fixed by the conference committee, to $716,000 by the city council, makes a further reduction in the tax rate to be paid on Duluth property next year.

From figures at hand today, and the announcement from the county auditor's office that the valuation of the city of Duluth will be $43,603,000, it is estimated that the total rate to be paid by Duluth property owners next year will be 36.9 mills, or a decrease of 2.4 mills from 39.3 mills, the rate paid this year.

The reduction in the city levy reduces the tax rate for city purposes from 17.1 mills, the estimate made Saturday, to 16.43 mills. The estimate of 17.1 mills was made on an estimated valuation of $43,780,000, while the rate of 16.43 mills is based on an estimated valuation of $43,600,000.

Based on an estimated valuation of $43,600,000 the tax rate for the school district will be 13.04 mills. The county rate which is estimated at 3.55 mills may be further reduced by an increase in the valuation of the county. The state rate is 3.88 mills, the highest in nearly forty years.

CLOQUET'S MAYOR IS NOT CANDIDATE AGAIN.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor C. I. McNair declines to run for the office of mayor of Cloquet a second time, having held office two years, and feeling that private business demands too much of his time to allow him to do justice to the city's business. He has been a very satisfactory officer, carrying on the city's affairs in a strictly business-like manner. He is the president of the Northwest Paper company and a member of the state highway commission.

The city council has passed a resolution authorizing the nominating of city officers this year by petition instead of in caucus, as formerly. City officers will be elected Nov. 7, and it is believed that in this way the public generally will be better pleased with the result.

RAPS WOMEN CHEERING.

Member of Sex Says They Cannot Inspire Football Team.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—"Women should not cheer at football games; it is unwomanly. They should confine themselves to the singing of college songs and waving of their college banners," says Miss Ida Comstock, dean of women at the University of Minnesota.

According to Miss Comstock, there is nothing more dispiriting than the attempt on the part of a lot of women to cheer or yell in concert. They do not inspire the charge, but rather panic stricken flight, intimates Miss Comstock. The noise resembles nothing so much as the moanings of one in the throes of a nightmare. Women can shriek, but they are unable to sound warlike notes.

"I should like to see a girls' rooting team at the university," said Earl Pickering, captain and star of the university eleven. "For myself I would say that I distinguish the cheers of the co-eds above the deep intonations of the rooting club and they inspire me. I believe that women's cheers have won as many games of football for Minnesota university as any bunch of warriors that ever dug up the turf on the gridiron."

Miss Comstock says that she would consider it a misfortune if any organization were formed for feminine rooters.

CARLTON COUNTY TUBERS REPORTED VERY FINE.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the past week potatoes have raised in price from 35 cents to 40 cents per bushel, and A. Peterson, who opened a potato market in the city a week ago, is doing a good business, buying and shipping for E. C. Best & Co. Mr. Peterson says he has never seen finer potatoes. They are mostly Early Ohios, Carmens and Burbanks. Several farmers, who are not satisfied with present prices are holding their crop until in the winter, when they expect to dispose of it at more profit. B. S. Whitman, who has several acres of potatoes, is building a side hill root cellar for storage purposes. At Atkinson, G. A. Anderson is building a warehouse that will hold 5,000 bushels.

Skunks Invade Florence, Wis.

Florence, Wis., Oct. 9.—This town for two or three weeks has been infested with skunks.

The operations of the pestiferous creatures has not been limited to contaminating the atmosphere, but they have raided the hen coops of fancy poultry breeders and killed all of the feathered occupants.

In some instances the skunks have been so bold as to enter basement windows and prowl about the cellars, nosing into the refrigerators and cupboards of the householders.

Has Two Stomachs.

The bee has two stomachs, one in which to store the honey it gathers, and the other, totally distinct, for digestive purposes. The honey it can keep intact indefinitely until such time as it returns to the hive. Thus the bee views with the camel, in having storage place, and with the cow, which has a cud sack. Man has no such provision, and when enjoying his golden grain belt beers, must cautiously use just what is good for an aid to digestion. He has no place to store a reserve supply. Next Saturday the athletes of the town will engage in a football contest, the proceeds of which they will devote to a fund to provide the couple with a furnished apartment.

BOY'S JAW IS BLOWN AWAY

Victor Berg Victim of First Serious Hunting Accident of Season.

Shotgun Accidently Discharged While Boys Were Hunting.

Victor Berg, 17 years of age, the son of Charles J. Berg of 401 Mygatt avenue, is lying between life and death at St. Luke's hospital as the result of the first serious local hunting accident of the season.

With the lower part of his jaw shot away and suffering great agony, he has a faint chance of recovery. At the hospital today it was reported that he came through the night well. The manner in which the accident occurred is not definitely known, further than that it is believed that he discharged the gun himself.

He and Carl Sjoberg, another boy about his age, went out hunting together after dinner yesterday afternoon, each carrying a shot gun. They went through the woods to Thirty-second avenue east, and about 3 o'clock they laid their guns over a log to take a drink from the creek which flows to the lake in that vicinity. Sjoberg was ahead and states that the first he knew he heard the report of Berg's gun. Turning around he found that Berg had been badly shot and that the blood was streaming from his head.

Hurrying with his companion to the home of J. H. Ezard, which was near by, Berg was given temporary treatment, following which he was hurried to St. Luke's hospital in a buggy called from the Totman livery. He was treated by Dr. Lyman and Dr. Weston. It is believed that in raising himself from the edge of the stream Berg pushed the trigger of the gun against the log or some other obstruction, discharging it.

center of a good agricultural country and had attained prominence as a market center, a new center might be found for the business district and might be rebuilt. But the surrounding country consists mainly of wild, unbroken land covered with a dense growth of jackpines, scrub oak and brush.

Merchants Hard Hit.

It is conceded today that one of the distressing results of the flood will be the filing of petitions in bankruptcy by many merchants. Losses of from $20,000 to $50,000 are numerous. Along this line the fate of the La Crosse Water Power company, the $5,000,000 property of which is located at Hatfield, is in considerable doubt. Because Black river has run almost dry the past two years, the company has met difficulties and is now in the hands of a receiver. A heavy burden of repairing its dam and restoring its other property now placed upon it, and bondholders' meetings are being held to discuss the financing of the corporation under these conditions.

The possibility of extensive litigation between the company and the injured merchants at Black River Falls, as well as the Green Bay & Western railway, which will be out of business for a month on its main line, is also being taken into account.

Oil Saved Machinery.

A peculiar incident of the flood at the Hatfield power house is attested by D. G. MacMillan, president of the La Crosse Gas & Electric company, who has returned from Hatfield. On the floor of the power house was a large barrel of oil which was tipped over when the flood struck it. The oil floated on top of the water, and oiled the machinery as the flood rose, and oiled it again as the waters receded. Mr. MacMillan says that the work could not have been done better by hand and that the machinery in the power plant is in perfect condition.

Two companies of militia men, from Mauston and Eau Claire, arrived at Black River Falls today. Maj. Charles R. Williams of Camp Douglas is in command. Dr. John B. Edwards of Mauston, also representing the National Guard, is on hand to supervise the sanitary situation. The arrival of the militia men put an end to the looting which has been going on, under cover of darkness, the last three nights.

In Need of Food.

Supplies of food which arrived from La Crosse Saturday night are practically exhausted today and more are needed. Not many families are homeless, but with their incomes from business or employment cut off, a great many have no money with which to buy food, and the leading men of the community being in many cases ruined, there is none at home to whom the needy can turn for relief.

thing and everything to keep the pot boiling as they say.

"I did my first bridgework at Cincinnati in 1893, joining the union the next year. Between 1898 and 1904, I visited various sections of the Middle West, following my trade and working on steel bridges, viaducts and similar structures.

Held Many Offices.

"I have held all of the offices in local unions, particularly in those of Cleveland, and have attended all the conventions of the international associations since 1902. I was elected second vice president at the convention at Kansas City in 1903 and was chosen secretary-treasurer at Toronto in 1904. I have held that office ever since.

"The last building I worked on was the Rockefeller structure in Cleveland. I left that job to go to Toronto, and it was held open for me if I wanted to go back, but I didn't, as I had been made secretary-treasurer and had my time fully taken up with the duties of that office.

"The offices of the international association were in New York when I was first elected. Later, for sentimental reasons, I was instrumental in having them moved to Cleveland. Two years after the offices were removed there, another change was made to Indianapolis, for the reason that so many labor organizations had their international headquarters there.

"I never planned my life far ahead. The work of an ironworker probably precludes such planning, for such a man does not know when he leaves home in the morning that he will return at night. It probably tends towards fatalism.

"I wanted to learn of the organization in which I held office, particularly the legal end of it, and so I attended the Indianapolis College of Law and was admitted to practice in 1900.

An Inveterate Reader.

"There is little else about my life except my arrest. I am an inveterate reader, and always have been, of books treating with economics and industrial matters."

James B. McNamara, who sat quietly by while his brother talked, also was born in Cincinnati. His birthday was June 2, 1882. He attended the common schools and then learned the printer's trade, which he has followed almost continuously ever since, working in job offices in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities.

"Unlike me," said John J. McNamara, "my brother has never been especially active in trades union affairs."

Anarchist Is Accused.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 9.—Closely following the charge by representatives of William J. Burns that members of Home Colony, an alleged anarchistic settlement on Lake Day, had been implicated in the explosion that wrecked the Los Angeles Times, came an announcement by Deputy Prosecutor G. C. Nolte of Tacoma that he had evidence to connect Jay Fox of the settlement, with the case. Fox is the editor of a small paper printed at the Home Colony called "The Agitator." He is now under $2,000 bonds on a charge of sedition.

Letter By Divorced Wife.

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Zoe Varney Webster, who was granted a divorce from Harry Elgin Webster, confessed wife murderer, has not lost all faith in her former husband in spite of his affairs. A letter written to Mrs. George W. Webster, mother of her former husband, has been made public. It said in part:

"My dear broken hearted dear ones: Your loving and comforting letter came to me this morning and I feel that I must tell you that our grief is all the same. Our lives all are blighted. I cannot understand even yet, I was so innocent of the whole affair and I know you were too.

"We must bear this great burden together. I cannot believe that the would deceive me all these years and I shall believe just what I have to. I have asked to be relieved and to take my maiden name again and now my only hope is in God.

"My broken hearted mother, I shall always want to be in your circle. Believe me to be the most innocent little girl. Your broken hearted, ZOE."

From Thin to Plump—Girls.

The expressions of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed, the recently successful flesh forming product, known as three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, is related by a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary layman to learn the heart throbs of distress which seems to effect so many young people who are abnormally thin. Also to know that the weight can be so readily increased by the use, regularly for several months, of this peculiarly named preparation, now obtainable of the best physicians and apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

Indian summer has arrived in all the glory of its bright sunshine and bracing autumn air. He who is able to get out into the brilliantly colored woods for a few days is indeed fortunate, but he who must stay in town may still rejoice over the change from the weather furnished last week.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 6:18 and it will set at 5:33 this evening, giving eleven hours and fifteen minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours fair weather has been the general rule. Some rain fell in the meantime aver Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf states. The principal result of the northwestern low pressure is a tendency towards warmer temperature throughout central and northern districts. The outlook favors a continuance of generally fine weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer Tuesday.

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Tuesday; slightly warmer in east portion.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer in south and west portions tonight.

Iowa—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer tonight and in east portion Tuesday.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and probably Tuesday; warmer tonight.

Montana—Generally fair weather, except probably rain in northwest portion tonight or Tuesday.

FISHER CONFESES THAT HE MURDERED U. S. FOREST RANGER

one saw the killing. After several days Fisher was suspected and placed under arrest. Later he was released, and made a purported confession in which he accused seven Austrians who were working on a nearby farm, of the murder. He claimed that he and Brown had stolen their whisky and that the Austrians had killed Brown for revenge. The Austrians were arrested but later released, largely through the efforts of Agent Reagan, who during the entire time felt that Fisher was the guilty man. Fisher was again arrested, and brought to Duluth. The case seemed most difficult. Fisher had always borne an excellent reputation and there was no conclusive evidence against him.

As told by Agent Reagan this morning, the substance of Fisher's confession is that the two got drunk on alcohol which Brown had stolen from a case of drugs sent to the reservation by the government and began fighting on their way back to the reservation while crossing a corduroy road leading through a swamp.

For days Fisher went about with a stolid demeanor, making inquiries for the dead man, as though he were ignorant of his fate. From his appearance one would never have thought that he had Brown's blood on his hands.

Drink Alcohol.

"Fisher said that the government shipped a box of drugs to the reservation containing two bottles of alcohol," explained Mr. Reagan this morning. "Brown found the box at Farmer John's landing and discovered the alcohol. He poured out about half of one of the bottles and got drunk on it, Fisher joining him later and also imbibing. After he had his supply on hand Brown replaced the bottle in the box.

"Late in the afternoon or early in the evening the two started home together. When they reached the swamp they started across on the corduroy road and had gone but a little distance when they had a tussle. Fisher says that he got Brown down, but let him up when he begged. They continued to the middle of the swamp and drank more alcohol.

"Then the second and fatal fight started. Fisher claims that Brown hit him across the head with the butt of his gun, and that he still has a mark on his head from the blow. I do not know as to that as I did not look to see. Fisher claims that Brown then made threats and said that he would cut his sack open. The fight was renewed and Fisher hit Brown over the head with his gun, knocking his right eye out. He then went after him with a knife, stabbing him in a dozen places, and again struck him over the head. Fisher left the body and made his way into the reservation about 1 o'clock in the morning."

After Fisher had appeared he was asked how it happened that he was so late. He answered that he had had trouble with his launch and couldn't get across the lake any sooner. Another time he answered that he was late because he had had to look for his ponies. He was asked if he had seen Brown and stated that he had not.

Fisher's Arrest.

Agent Reagan was not satisfied with his story. Aug. 15, eight days after the killing he made a thorough search of the upper part of the country. He visited all towns between Cook and the boundary and inquired at all lumber camps. He returned two days later and caused Fisher's arrest after a general search by the Indians of the reservation had resulted in the finding of Brown's mutilated body.

Fisher was taken to Virginia in the custody of several deputy sheriffs. That night the agent states that he slept in the home of the deputy sheriff, instead of being locked up. The following days he went to a baseball game and was released after he had told the story about the Austrians. There was no evidence to connect the Austrians with the killing, further than Fisher's unsupported statement. They were turned loose and Fisher re-arrested. He was brought to Duluth and has been in the county jail for several weeks.

the position taken by Senator George Sutherland. Sackett declared that in some instances it was not known that the men were candidates for the assembly, and in no instance were they to use the money for themselves. No promise was exacted from the men that they would vote for Stephenson, witness said.

Under sharp cross-examination by Senator Atlee Pomerene, Sackett admitted that from $10,000 to $15,000 out of the Stephenson fund was given to persons of whose names no record was kept. It was all given out in small amounts to campaign workers, he said.

"During Senator Stephenson's campaign there were made repeatedly charges of bribery and corruption, and Senator Stephenson himself was complaining of the great amount of money the campaign was costing him. Now, under this condition did it not occur to you that you were not keeping faith with the people in your failure to record in detail the money spent? Didn't it seem to you that you were likely to face charges of bribery?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"Wholly Within Law."

"The campaign managers were confident that they were wholly within the law," replied Sackett. "Not a cent was used corruptly."

The primary at which Senator Stephenson was nominated occurred in 1908. His election was by the legislature followed early in 1909. The charges of bribery upon which the present investigation by the United States were being made while Senator Stephenson's election was in progress.

In filing the Stephenson campaign expense account, without going into all the details as to whom the money was paid, Sackett said the same plan was adopted as was followed by other candidates, including Francis E. McGovern, now governor of Wisconsin. No other prosecutions, based on alleged violation of the state law, had resulted and no investigations other than the present one had been asked for.

This testimony was in line with the contentions of Stephenson's managers that the present investigation is the result of political factions represented by two sections of the Republican party in Wisconsin, one headed by Senator Stephenson and the other headed by the followers of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Only "Small" Expense.

Senator Stephenson's expenditure of $107,793 for the nomination was small, according to Sackett.

"How much, then, do you think a man would have to spend to make a proper campaign?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"To conduct a campaign for the senatorship in Wisconsin properly would cost from $150,000 to $200,000," replied Sackett.

"One hundred and fifty thousand to two hundred thousand dollars to get a salary of $7,500?" persisted Senator Pomerene.

"It is not supposed that a man goes to the senate for $7,500 alone," declared Sackett.

were driven into the edge of his brain.

All the details of the affair cannot be ascertained, as Matel is unable to talk much and is rather delirious, while Kopechinski, who was arrested at his home shortly after the affair and taken to police headquarters, can talk but little English.

As nearly as can be learned Matel and Kopechinski, accompanied by several others, left the house together. Kopechinski claims that Matel asked him who was going to pay the car fare. It seems that Kopechinski answered that he had the money but was not going with the crowd. Whereupon he claims that Matel pushed him. The prisoner claims that he turned around and asked Matel to pardon him if he were in his way. Thereupon he alleges that Matel struck him a heavy blow back of his ear.

Kopechinski then ran between the houses, picked up a large, sharp rock, and rushed back, hurling it against Matel's forehead.

Both men had been drinking quite heavily. At the hospital this morning Matel was asked how much he had drunk. He said that he did not know. "Did you drink a keg?" he was asker. "No, I guess not that much," was his answer.

Matel was in court a short time ago as the defendant in an action brought against him by Attorney M. Bronzkala to recover $120 alleged to be still due for services rendered at the time he was tried on the murder charge. The court directed a verdict for the full amount in the plaintiff's favor.

Adolph, the cousin who was tried with Victor on the murder charge, is said not to be in this part of the country. It is claimed that his whereabouts is unknown. The killing for which they were indicted was a sequel to a wedding celebration, similar to that of last night. It took place on Garfield avenue.

Kopechiniski was arraigned in municipal court this morning and asked for an examination. The date was set for Oct. 17 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

COPPERS GAIN NEAR THE CLOSE

Final Figures of Day Show Most Red Metal Shares Higher.

A day that seemed destined to prove neither a bearish nor a bullish one in the copper market closed with the odds a little in favor of the bulls. The gains, however, were neither large nor sensational, nor can it be said that all the coppers shared in them.

Up to noon today there was little in the copper situation to give encouragement to the bull side of the market. While there was no indication of further sagging, along the stock list of coppers, signs of rallies were equally lacking. Such hammering as the copper stocks have had would under ordinary conditions naturally lead one to expect a reaction and a general rise. The main trouble seems to be that there is too much copper on the market and too little demand for it, and it is not bringing the price that it should. Among today's copper movements were the following:

Amalgamated, Saturday's close, $49; today, $49, $48.75, $49.37½, $49.12½, $49.25. Butte-Ballaklava, Saturday, $4 bid, $4.12½ asked; today, $4, $4.12½, $4.25. Butte Coalition, Saturday, $15 bid, $15.50 asked; today, $15, $14.75, $15. Calumet & Arizona, Saturday, $48.75 bid, $49 asked; today, $49, $49.12½, $48.75, $49.12½, $48.75, $49. Greene Cananea, Saturday, $5.75 bid, $5.81¼ asked; today, $5.75, $5.68¾, $5.75, $5.81¼. North Butte, Saturday, $24 bid, $24.50 asked; today, $24, $23.50, $23.75, $24. Butte & Superior, Saturday, $8.50 bid; today, $8.50@$9. Keating, Saturday, $2.25 asked; today, $2.25 asked.

The general stock list of New York, up to noon today, gave no encouragement to the copper bulls. While there were some rallies, the general tendency was downward.

Walker's Weekly Copper Letter, Boston, says:

"Copper is dull and steady. Lake is quoted at 12¾ to 12⅞ cents and electrolytic at 12¾ to 12⅞ cents a pound. Consumers are making no purchases for future deliveries, except to protect themselves on their contracts. They find new reason almost every day to be bearish on the metal. Just now they are anticipating that a big increase in the American surplus will be shown by the forthcoming Copper Producers' statement, and they expect this to cause a slump in prices.

"Production is now beginning to showed a marked increase, due to the new porphyries and the treatment of more ore by the Utah Copper company. The world's surplus has been reduced 116,566,595 pounds in the past fifteen months, however, and with a foreign war in progress and all Europe and Asia preparing for possible hostilities, consumption should show a further sharp increase in the coming few months.

"The greatest growth of production to be recorded in the present decade will begin in December and extend through the first five or six months of next year. During that period the new output of Ray Consolidated, Miami, Braden, Mason Valley and Alaska, and the increased production of Utah Copper, will be refined and figure in the monthly statistics. Unless there is a further falling off in the volume of general business in the United States, however, consumption should increase as rapidly as production, and there should be no considerable growth of surplus supplies."

WOMAN MAY DIE FROM ATTACK BY A NEGRO.

Brownsville, Tenn., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Scrap Wilson, wife of a local painter, is dying with her head crushed from a blow inflicted with an ax by a negro said to be Tom Kinnon, after the woman had engaged in a desperate struggle with the negro.

Mrs. Wilson was with her two children at her home when the negro, who had been seen prowling around the house, grasped her. She broke from his clutches and ran into the yard, wher he struck her with an ax and then escaped to the woods. The eldest child ran to the town, two miles away, and spread the alarm. A posse was organized and Kinnon was captured three miles from the scene of the crime. Citizens who aided in capturing the negro are demanding vengeance.

MORE LAND FOR THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Condemnation proceedings will be started by the city within a few days to acquire title to a total of twenty-three and perhaps twenty-six lots in blocks occupied by school buildings. Every building will then have an entire block of land for use as the board may direct. Some owners have refused to sell at a price considered reasonable and the proceedings are therefore necessary.

TWENTY OF INJURED MEN HAVE RECOVERED.

The purpose of the visit is to look over the field as to the advisability of establishing a girls' boarding school in Wisconsin.

SCHOOLS SHOULD NOT CLOSE DURING EPIDEMICS.

According to Dr. P. G. McGill, city health commissioner, who returned yesterday from the congress of municipalities held in Chicago last week, new light was thrown on many health problems and conditions. It was one of the most beneficial meetings he has ever attended, said Dr. McGill. New devices and apparatus for use in the various phases of health work were exhibited by the makers during the convention, and new ideas were thus gained by those present.

"The question of whether schools should be closed during times of epidemics came in for much discussion, and the idea seemed to be," said Dr. McGill yesterday, "that greater good would be accomplished in the majority of cases by leaving them open with proper inspection and restrictions, since the children would be where they could be watched better. This would not apply in every instance."

New System in Schools.

Much will be accomplished this year in the grade schools, is the opinion of W. E. Maddock, superintendent of schools, and President McCaskill of the Normal school who have just returned from the annual convention of school superintendents held at Madison, Wis. A new method of teaching geography, history and civics is to be adopted, which will include the application of local color not included in text books. ## WILL WORK FOR FARGO

Commercial Club to Give Booster's Banquet Tuesday Night.

Knocking to Quit and All Factions to Boost Their City.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo's big booster banquet is scheduled for tomorrow night. It will be a combination of boosts, its primary object being to boost the city and secondarily the Commercial club. The affair is to be under the auspices of the club in a get-together spirit to combine all the interests working to assist in the upbuilding of the city. During the somewhat extended period of inactivity by the Commercial club other organizations have inaugurated movements to assist in the development of the city. At this meeting it is proposed to get all these together, working under one central committee, while each retains to a large degree its own individuality.

To Forget Differences.

Every effort will be made to lay aside personal differences and for once to unite all interests in the movement for a bigger and a better Fargo.

One of the promised features of the meeting will be the announcement of a new club secretary.

Hugh Chalmers of Detroit will be the chief speaker tomorrow night. Several others will be heard in brief addresses. Twin City, Duluth and North Dakota municipal delegations will be in attendance and 700 guests are expected at the feast tomorrow night.

TWO NORTH DAKOTA PEOPLE ARE KILLED

Man Crushed Under Traction Engine—Boy Fatally Injured By Grain Load.

Marmath, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Abeln, a farmer living fifteen miles north of Bessie, was crushed to death under the wheels of a traction engine on the Nogle farm, near Bad Land, N. D.

Abeln was standing on a grain stack awaiting the placing of a thrashing machine when sparks started a fire in the stubble. In his excitement he fell to the ground directly in the path of the big drive wheel; the engine having been started suddenly in order to get away from the fire.

The big wheel caught his feet and dragged over half of his body, crushing the trunk and one side of the head in a horrible manner.

His nearest relatives reside in South St. Paul and they ordered his remains interred here because of the condition of the body as a result of the accident.

WIFE BRINGS SUIT

To Recover Property Insane Husband Had Sold.

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Her husband was insane when he sold a section of land in Dunn county, and he also was insane at the time he proved up on the homestead, is the claim made by Mrs. H. L. Blachley of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in an action which she has started to regain possession of the property. The sale was made in 1901 by Mr. Blachley without any mention being made of Mrs. Blachley, from whom he had been separated since 1894, when he left her at a hotel in Bowdle, S. D. His death occurred in the Iowa asylum for the insane in 1910 and he had been confined there since 1902, just a short time after the sale of the property here.

Mrs. Blachley claims that after his disappearance in 1894 that she had been unable to secure any definite trace of him, except that on one occasion she learned that he was in Texas, and that later he was in North Dakota.

TWO YOUNG YEGGS CAUGHT REDHANDED

Surprised Looting Store in Nessen, N. D., and Taken After Flight.

Williston, N. D., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Ellis, aged 19, and Karman Kenner, aged 16, were caught in the act of robbing the McKay store at Nessen and are lodged in the Williams county jail. It is expected they will plead guilty without waiting the usual formalities and soon be sent to the penitentiary, as they have confessed.

Ellis fired upon a posse that tried to capture him and fled but was afterwards retaken. He fired upon the posse with a .22 rifle. His companion surrendered.

Betrayed By Matches.

The boys were discovered while looting the store in the dead of night by the light of matches they struck. Hastily gathering a posse of about ten men and surrounding the store building, Deputy Sheriff Kelly gave the command to the mauraurders to come out and surrender.

Hardly had the command been given before a small form dashed through the rear door, and in the darkness several members of the posse fired. Turning, as he ran, Ellis returned the fire, his bullets, five in number, going wide of their mark. Once the fleeing boy yegg was heard to give a cry of pain and at the same time seemed ready to fall to the ground, but he quickly recovered and was soon lost in darkness to be taken later.

Ellis comes from Toronto, Ont., and Kenner is from Banks, McKenzie county, N. D. Both left home without the consent of their parents, and Ellis admits being mixed up in several shady Canadian deals.

DORMITORY MEN MAY GIVE IDEAS

Y. M. C. A. Roomers Will Have Opportunity to Air "Hotel" Matter.

A "get acquainted" meeting, somewhat novel in its nature, will take place Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. for the dormitory men.

The recent agitation in which the institution has been placed in the light of a competitor to Duluth hotels by some, is, in a way, responsible for this meeting.

One of the objects of the gathering is to ascertain the prevailing sentiment among the young men who make their "home" at the dormitory, in regard to the talk about the Y. M. C. A. being a "mere hotel."

The meeting will be the first one of the year, at which only dormitory men will attend. The committee on arrangements will make arrangements for the affair, tomorrow evening at lunch at the Y. rooms.

APPEALS TO SPORTSMEN

State Forester Asks Co-Operation in Protection of Forests.

Says Every Hunter and Fisherman Should Be Volunteer Ranger.

William T. Cox, state forester is asking the co-operation of all sportsmen in his work in the preservation of the woods. He states that with the disappearance of the forests, the game and many of the game fish will disappear with them. For that reason he believes that every sportsman should constitute himself a volunteer ranger and game warden.

The state forester is making his appeal through a neatly printed circular that is passed to each hunter to whom a license is issued, together with a synopsis of the game laws. The circular reads as follows:

"All sportsmen are interested in the protection of our forests. This could not be otherwise, since the forests constitute the natural home of all big game within the state. With the disappearance of the woods the game will disappear also. Many of our game fish can live only in our wooded lakes and streams; the protection afforded by the forest and the character of run-off resulting from a forest cover appears essential to their existence and propagation.

"The sportsman, before all others, appreciates the forest for its own sake. The lure of the woods is one of the greatest incentives to the camper, hunter or fisherman. Who would care to go on a lengthy canoe trip or camp in the northern wilderness were it not for the call of the woods?

"The forests of this state have been steadily reduced in area and impoverished in character by fires, and this is an appeal to you to do all in your power to prevent forest fires by exercising care in camp and by putting out small fires when you find them.

"Under the new forest law any person leaving a fire unextinguished is liable for the damage it does and is subject to prosecution as well.

"The state has over a hundred rangers and patrolmen on duty, but every sportsman should be a volunteer ranger and game warden and help protect the forests and the game."

Up to date over 430 licenses have been issued from the auditor's office at the courthouse. Some of them have gone to women hunters.

CHURCH MEN HAVE DAWDLED

Speaker Says They Have Neglected Duty in Spreading Gospel.

Dr. Edgar P. Hill of McCormick Theological Seminary in addressing the men's meeting in the interest of the Men and Religion Forward Movement at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, declared that when business men really labor for the Lord with the same earnestness and energy that they give their business that the world will take a long step in advance.

The mission before the churches today, he declared, is "message" and "ministery." The message is to proclaim Christ, the savior, and the ministery, to make the world better. He urged that the message of the church be more widely circulated and that the business man, himself, take an interest in helping to make the church a social factor of the community.

"My friends," he said, "we of the church, have dawdled over our tasks and we might as well face the facts and admit them. How many men have you looked in the eye and asked about their religious life? How many have you even invited to church?"

As yet, no speaker for next Sunday's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. has been secured.

NORMAL WEATHER FOR WEEK IS PREDICTED

Washington, Oct. 9.—Normal weather conditions generally throughout the country are predicted for this week by Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau. In the weather bulletin he says:

"Indications are that unusual atmospheric activity in the United States prevailing during the last two weeks will be succeeded the coming week by a normal progression of high and low pressure areas across the country. The disturbances will in all probability move on the high latitudes and hence the rainfall during the week will be generally light except in the Pacific states where rains will be frequent.

"The temperature during the week will be normal for the season. The disturbance to cross the country will appear in the Northwest Monday or Tuesday, cross the Middle West Tuesday or Wednesday and reach the St. Lawrence valley about Thursday; it will be preceded by a general rise in temperature, attended by a short period of local rains, and be followed by a change to colder weather with probable frosts in the northern half of the country."

PROMINENT MEN AT W. E. CURTIS' FUNERAL.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Noted men paid final tribute yesterday to William E. Curtis, the writer who died in Philadelphia Thursday, at simple services held in his home here, after which the body was borne to a grave in Rock Creek cemetery.

Many of Mr. Curtis' veteran associates in the newspaper world, besides officials of the government service and the diplomatic corps, attended the services. At the request of Mrs. Curtis, the Gridiron club quartet sang Mr. Curtis' favorite song, "Naomi," during the services.

URGE VACCINATION AGAINST TYPHOID.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The prevalence of typhoid fever in practically every section of the United States has inspired the public health and marine hospital service to express publicly its belief in the artificial immunity, with certain limitations, afforded by anti-typhoid vaccination, already compulsory in the American army for soldiers under 45 years of age. In the judgment of the commission, the vaccination should be practiced only upon healthy subjects.

SWEEPING INSPECTION OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Two State Officials Will Begin Work in Duluth.

All Yard Sticks and Bushel Measures Must Pass Muster.

Within the next few days, probably this week, two state inspectors, fully armed with all needed legal authority, will descend on Duluth and begin a thorough measure of every scale, measure, and weight used by wholesale or retail merchants in the Zenith City.

Grocers will be forced to prove that their bushel measures are full size; drygoods merchants that their yard sticks are full length; wholesalers that their scales are correct.

St. Paul has been given a wholesale inspection by the state officials, acting under the new law passed at the last session of the legislature, and it has almost revolutionized the system of doing business in the Capitol City.

For example a bushel of potatoes that does not run sixty pounds, is short measure. A quart of beans should run two pounds. In St. Paul, customers are being trained to buy such articles by the pound instead of by the measure, for the state law prescribes the weight that a bushel of these articles should be.

Such articles are sold by the wholesale men by the pound, it is claimed, and the inspectors have found that the retailers were making a profit by giving the customer short measure.

Peddlers in all parts of the state are using peck measures that contain but six quarts instead of eight. Such measures will be destroyed by the inspectors, whenever found, whether in wholesale houses, or in the hands of peddlers.

Use Liquid Measure.

It is claimed that merchants as a rule are using the liquid measure instead of the dry measure.

Yard sticks used in many of the stores are claimed to be an inch or two short of the standard.

The inspectors have been at work in the Twin Cities but a short time, but they have been turning things upside down, and have created somewhat of a furore by the wholesale manner in which they have condemned short measures and weights. Whether they will find a similar condition in Duluth remains to be seen, but it is known that they will be in Duluth within a few days to begin their work.

The law is a sweeping one, and gives the inspectors power to arrest without warrant, if necessary. They are empowered to collect fees from the owners of the weights and measures inspected, and the fee is tripled if the weight or measure is found incorrect and adjusted. There is provision for a fine in case the owner refuses to have the correction made.

The section of the law which is of chief importance follows:

"Sec. 5. The department or any of its employes shall have power to inspect and test all weights, scales, beams and measures of every kind, instruments and mechanical devices for measurement, and tools, appliances or accessories connected with any or all instruments for measurement that are kept, offered or employed within this state by any person in determining the size, quantity, extent, area or measurement of quantities, things, produce, articles for distribution or consumption, offered or submitted by any person for sale, hire or reward; and it shall, at least once in each year, and as much oftener as may be deemed necessary, see that the weights, measures and all apparatus used in the state are correct. In the general performance of this duty the department, or any of its employes, may enter or go into any stand, place, building or premises to stop vendor, peddler junk dealer, coal wagon, ice wagon, delivery wagon or any dealer whatsoever and require him, if necessary, to proceed to some place which the sealer may specify for the purpose of making proper tests. Scales, weights, measures or weighing or measuring instruments that are found, upon inspection, to correspond with the standards in the possession of the department shall be sealed with proper devices to be approved by the commission. Any employe shall condemn, seize and may destroy incorrect weights, measures or weighing or measuring devices which, in the judgement of the department cannot be satisfactorily repaired, and such as are incorrect and yet may be repaired, shall be marked as 'Condemned for repair,' in the manner to be prescribed by the department. The owners or users of any scales, weights, measures, or weighing or measuring instrument which have been so disposed of shall have the same repaired or corrected within thirty (30) days and the same shall not be used or disposed of in any way without the consent of the department."

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl." —Mrs. Dema Bethune, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

SETTLES DEATH CLAIMS.

Northwestern Railroad Has Paid for Neenah Fatalities.

Neenah, Wis., Oct. 9.—All death claims resulting from the grade crossing horror of Sept. 24 have been settled by the Northwestern road. It is learned that nearly $28,000 has been paid for eleven men and four women who were killed or died in hospitals. An average of $2,000 was paid for men and $1,500 for women. The claims of the injured are not yet settled. Six are still in the hospital, one hovering between life and death.

FIREMAN SLASHED IN SALOON BRAWL.

John Tronich, a laborer, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of having slashed Joseph J. Berry, a marine fireman, with a knife in a fracas at Charles Carlson's saloon at 509 West Superior street.

Tronich tried to make his escape but was followed from the saloon by Berry, and was caught by a pedestrian, who held him until he was placed under arrest by Patrolmen Jesse and Fallon. Berry was also taken to headquarters, where his wound was dressed by Police Surgeon Murphy.

Berry was later removed to St. Mary's hospital, but did not want to stay there. When the nurse was temporarily absent from the ward he dressed and made his way downtown. He was considerably under the influence of liquor. Berry was picked up by the police several hours later and after he had become sober he was again taken to the hospital, where it was stated today that his wound is not serious. He was cut in the side.

It appears that Tronich had ordered several drinks, and had thrown a glass at the bartender when they got into an argument over the payment. When he threw the glass Berry is said to have struck him with his fist, whereupon Tronich brought his knife into play. Berry was in a hospital in Superior last week, having injured his right hand while working on the steamer Maruba.

NEW CHURCH IS HOME OF "FAITH OF REASON."

"The house a man builds for himself to no small degree tells us what the man is," said Rev. Geo. R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday. "So this church, as it stands on this broad hillside, tells the world of our aspirations, of our character, of our faith. This building speaks of a faith which does not soar on wings of speculation, of heaven-given dogma or miraculous revelation, but of a faith which has grown out of the experiences of life, and it humbly points upward.

"It seems to say to mankind, 'the kingdom of heaven is here among you; the kingdom of God is down on earth.' It tells of a religion which is not warlike in spirit and never goes out on highway and hedges to force salvation upon the world. It simply opens wide its doors to the wayfaring man, who has left the garish light of mediaeval doctrine and now wanders about without light in darkness and in fog.

"We do not care to proselyte, not because we have not faith in our gospel, but because our faith in God is so strong, that we believe that even in the crudest creed there may be truth and light for some one, and that a reasonable belief is after all only for such as long for the calm light of reason in religion. Our business here is simply to keep trimmed and lighted the lamp in the tower of our faith so as to become a beacon light to him that seeks for a higher faith. Our mission is not to disclaim the faith of others, but rather to proclaim our own and leave the rest to Him who gave us this faith. If others deny us, if they call us names or even hate us, the burden is with them. It would be foolish to argue, silly to discuss with them, for to fanatical men our truth can have no meaning and worth. Let us show them by our life, by our faith, by our kindliness, that the divine spirit of love dwelleth in us, and some day they will learn to love our faith for the fruits of love we show them."

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, Oct. 9.—Returns to the steel companies indicate that the partial trade paralysis the latter part of September was more severe than anticipated and the keener competition for business brought out lower prices in a more extended territory. Specifications for finished products on contracts suffered less than the volume of new orders and in consequence most of the steel mills continued to operate last week, at an average rate of 75 per cent of capacity.

Shipments were below specifications. Consequently it is estimated that the September statement of the steel corporation will show a decrease of about 200,000 tons in unfilled orders.

The railroads are beginning to show more interest in equipment purchases for next year because of the tempting prices being made by car shops and the locomotive works, but the September orders for equipment were discouraging. Last week there was an increase in bridge contracts, the railroads placing more than one-third of the fabricated structural contracts, the total being 21,000 tons. The Pennsylvania railroad placed an order for 5,000 tons for grade crossing elimination at Cleveland with the Fort Pitt Bridge company.

The principal building order was for 4,500 tons for the L. C. Smith building at Seattle, which went to the American Bridge company.

Export included 40,000 tons of steel pipe for Calgary, Canada, 3,500 tons of structural steel for the Selkirk hotel at Winnipeg and 5,000 tons of rails for Japan. Rail contracts pending for foreign shipment call for about 40,000 tons and domestic roads are negotiating for 60,000 tons of nails and twenty cars.

THERE WILL BE AN EXTRA SESSION.

The Minneapolis Journal, which like all the other Twin City newspapers has been opposed to the idea of an extra session of the legislature and has avoided the subject as much as it could, says that if the Sanborn decision is upheld there will probably be an extra session.

Of course there will be an extra session. The governor does not want it, his political associates do not want it, the Twin Cities do not want it, the railroads and other special interests do not want it; but there will be an extra session just the same.

In urging it The Herald has had little hope of converting Governor Eberhart to a belief in the plan. It has had no hope whatever of converting his political associates, no hope of converting the Twin Cities, no hope of converting the railroads or any other special interests. It has not banked on the governor or on any of these. It has banked on the public spirit and independence of the people of Minnesota, and it has been backed effectively in its campaign for an extra session by the country press of the state, which truly reflects the views of the people.

There should be an extra session to increase railroad taxes no matter how the supreme court decides the rate cases. Railroads are grossly under-taxed, and that means that owners of other property are grossly over-taxed. If there is no extra session the people cannot vote on the increase until 1914, and if there is an extra session they can vote on it next year, thus saving two years' increase, amounting to $2,000,000 if the tax rate is increased from 4 per cent to 5 per cent and to $4,000,000 if it is raised to 6 per cent.

But if the supreme court sustains the railroads in restoring the 3-cent passenger rate and the higher commodity freight rates when every state around Minnesota is still enjoying the lower rates fixed by their own laws, the governor will have to call an extra session. If the supreme court holds that the Minnesota rate laws are defective but that the state has power to regulate them, there must be an extra session or the people of this state will have to rest for another year under the burden of the increased rates; and there will be an extra session in that event.

The Journal, like some other opponents of an extra session who like to disguise their opposition under plausible pretexts, says that unless there is an agreement to restrict the work of the special session, "a call for an extra session would be a signal for one of the wildest and most chaotic scrambles ever witnessed in Minnesota."

Why would there be such a wild and chaotic scramble? If the legislature, appalled by the present attitude of the public toward it, should "scramble" to enact the legislation it failed to enact last winter, where would be the harm? If the legislature had remained in session an hour longer several of the most important measures, like the statewide primary and the recall, would have passed. That fact alone was enough to warrant the governor in calling the legislature together again the next day after it adjourned; and if Minnesota had had a real governor it would have been called together again then.

But there is no fear of a chaotic scramble, nor of a prolonged session. It is true that there is no way of limiting the length of the session or the measures it might take up. But the legislature has drawn all of its pay for the present term. Its members must serve at their own expense; and that fact in itself is enough to warrant the belief that there will be no unduly protracted session.

Furthermore, in its canvass of the legislature on the extra session The Herald developed the fact that a large majority of its members thought that the length of the session and the measures to be taken up could be limited by agreement, and they expressed a willingness to take part in such an agreement.

When the session is to be held makes little difference to the state at large, so long as it is held early enough to allow the law increasing railroad taxes to be submitted to the people at next year's election. The only advantage in having it in January or February is that the members could attend at that time more conveniently. Perhaps if it were not called until March or April the fact that it would then be less convenient for the members would help to shorten the session and to confine it to necessary measures.

The Minnesota rate cases will be argued before the supreme court in a few days. The court will render its decision as speedily as it can. That decision may be handed down before the first of the year, and it will not be delayed much after that time. It is certain that it will come early enough so that there will be time for an extra session to submit the increase in the railroad tax to the people in November, 1912. Whatever that decision may be, there should be an increase in railroad taxes at an extra session. If that decision takes any one of three or four possible forms, there will be an extra session, whether the governor, the Twin Cities, the railroads or the political machine that governs Minnesota want it or not.

THE PRICE OF LUMBER.

It is a good thing indeed that the government is bent on finding out whether or not there is a lumber trust. That isn't putting it quite accurately, though. The government, apparently, has determined to its own satisfaction that there is a lumber trust, and is bent on breaking it up and punishing it.

And there is more chance here that it will afford real relief to the people than there is when it attacks an incorporated monopoly. The lumber trust—assuming that there is one because of the obvious facts on the surface of the lumber business and in spite of the fact that everybody in the lumber business denies heatedly that there is—is on a different basis from the oil trust, for instance. The oil trust is one concern, capable of doing real public service by supplying oil and its by-products more cheaply than a hundred concerns could do it. The lumber trust is many concerns—manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers—combined to restrain trade; at least the government charges that. When the oil trust is broken up the benefits are problematical at best. When the lumber combine is destroyed the practices that have made for unduly high lumber prices may be stopped.

By a curious coincidence, nowhere is there any competition in the sale of lumber. Prices in one yard are the same as the prices in another yard. Prices in one town are about the same as prices in another town, when you figure out difference made by freight costs; though there are some curious anomalies about this, too. For instance, it is said that some towns close to the lumber supply pay more for lumber than towns farther away. This is a mystery that the government's investigations may unravel.

Some of the offenses charged against the lumber combine are enumerated in the following from the Chicago Tribune: "There are some things which every man who has been in the lumber business since the anti-trust law was enacted ought to know. One is that it is illegal to combine in restraint of trade. Another is that it is unlawful to destroy through boycotts and black lists the business of men who refuse to join their combines and be bound by their illegal agreements. Another is that it is contrary to law to divide up territory among the different combines and post as 'poachers' dealers who invade—for the good of the consumers—territory not alloted to them.

"Yes, the lumbermen ought to have known all these things. More than that, they must have known them. And yet the government has brought suit against a number of them to enjoin them from continuing those illegal practices. They should count themselves fortunate to be able to escape so easily after years of deliberate lawbreaking."

FROM THE GHETTO TO THE FARM.

Rabbi Lefkovits gave his congregation of Temple Emanuel good advice Friday evening when he urged the Jewish people to turn their thoughts from the city to the country, and to abandon their congested ghettos for the free, wholesome life of the farm. The Jews used to be farmers, and they can be farmers again, if they will. Bringing to agriculture the same penetration, intelligence and energy which has won them success in commerce, they are bound to win. And in emerging from the ghetto to breathe the abundant air of the open fields they will be benefiting themselves as well as helping society to solve the dreadful problem of congested city centers. The ghetto, like other centers populated by other races, comes only from the natural desire of the Jews to enjoy Jewish associations; but these can be had in Jewish farm colonies. Men of money among the Jews could form no higher purpose than to help the less fortunate members of their race to get a footing on the soil. It is, as Rabbi Lofkovits said, a blot on Christendom that Christian oppression has prevented the Jews in many lands from owning land, and it is this policy, beyond doubt, that has led the Jew away from agriculture. To lead him back to it is to benefit him and society as well.

DULUTH'S INDUSTRIAL CENTER.

The Herald tonight gives an exhaustive and timely review of the work on the new steel plant, together with an interesting inventory of the thriving industries now employing large numbers of men in the western part of the city.

The review of the steel plant work, which is abundantly illustrated, is accurate and up to the minute. It will give those who have not followed that work a new idea of the rapid progress that is being made.

The western part of Duluth, with West Duluth as its commercial center, is bound always to be the industrial section in the life of this city, and it takes no great stretch of the imagination to picture the time when every available foot of the St. Louis valley will be crowded with prosperous industries, and when the encircling slopes will be picturesquely packed with the homes of the workers.

THE WILEY CASE NOT ENDED.

Nothing is to be gained by praising the president for what he has yet to do. Time enough for that when he does it; and when he does it it will be narrow churlishness to withhold full credit. But the Wiley case is by no means ended. Solicitor McCabe has not been dismissed, nor has he "quit." He has simply been removed from the food and drug board. He is still solicitor of the department. He is still the official whose duty it is to prosecute crooked food manufacturers when the board points out the need of prosecution; and he declares that he proposes to retain that office. He is expected to prosecute, it must be remembered, the same offenders that he has protected as a member of the board.

LEGISLATORS ARE MUCH ALIKE.

There is talk of an extra session of the legislature in Ohio, as there is in Minnesota. There is one curious similarity in the situation in the two states, and one striking difference.

The striking difference is this: Governor Harmon will not hesitate a minute to call the extra session if the situation calls for it, while the only thing that will induce the governor of Minnesota to call one is a pressure of public demand that he cannot possibly evade.

The similarity lies in the fact that many members of the Ohio legislature are protesting against the extra session, and the reason for it is contained in this paragraph from the Toledo Blade: "Governor Harmon is bombarded by protests against the plan to call the legislature into extra session. The Democratic members of the general assembly are violently opposed. They are said to be demanding that the governor give his word, once and for all, that no extraordinary session will be called. The members of the legislature, Democrats and Republicans alike, are not friendly to the proposition. And for a very practical reason. They have received their pay in advance for the discharge of all duties through their terms of office."

There is the similarity between Minnesota and Ohio: in both states the legislators have paid themselves in full, and will have to serve without pay at an extra session.

But this similarity points out another striking difference, which is all to the credit of the Minnesota legislature. Though the members must serve without pay, only a handful have opposed the extra session. A large majority of those who replied to The Herald's inquiries went on record as favoring the extra session, and only a handful voted against it. As all of them must serve without pay in the event of an extra session, this is greatly to their credit.

The Minnesota legislature isn't so bad after all.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

HIGH FOOD PRICES AND CHEAP LAND.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Under the heading, "No more cheap food," The Herald quotes Prof. Edward Van Dyke Robinson, of the University of Minnesota, as claiming no more cheap food in sight because all the cheap land is gone. He also says that many farmers make cheap food for the city people, but that the farmer starves while so doing. Then The Herald says back to the soil is the only remedy for the high cost of living. Now, my understanding may be all wrong, but if all the good land is gone, the consumer cannot go back to the land, and if it means starvation to him to return to the farm, then he might as well starve in town and save the unnecessary expense. A few days ago, we read in the paper the following figures: The farmers raised potatoes, he sold his crop for $6,000,000, the consumer paid $36,000,000, which shows that the farmer is still starving some, but shows far clearer that the commercialist is the greatest robber of the present time. (That's the class of people that Jesus drove out of the temple.)

Prof. Robinson says that there is no second Mississippi valley to be exploited. I think there is, but it is in the hands of the railroad corporations, lumber trusts, and other land grabbers that are far worse to deal with than were the Indians that held the first valley. Give the second valley as free as the first to the people and we shall have the same cheap food and starving farmers as we did in the former time, because the people are not much different now than they ever were. We should not contend that the land is scarce when held by these men for they themselves would be far more benefited if they did not have it, to say nothing for the rest of us. So long as the farmer boy stands a show of coming to town and becoming a merchant prince, a railroad president, or a noted preacher, doctor, lawyer, etc., he will not stay on the farm and starve, continuing to make cheap food for the city dwellers. This idea holds good also along the industrial lines and the city worker. We may talk all we please about teaching the boys a trade, but so long as it pays better to become a commercialist, the boys shall continue to drift in that direction, and the high cost of living will continue to grow higher in proportion.

The moral, therefore, should be, full value for labor performed, whether farm or other productive labor. No more or no less. Unproductive labor should be eliminated, that is, as much as possible, but that practically means Socialism. Yours respectfully,

THOMAS G. LEE.

Duluth, Oct. 7.

A PROLETARIAT VIEW OF MR. TAFT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

"Our" country's president states that the courts typify the justice of God.

If that is so, considering the attitude of the courts toward labor, then Mr. Taft's sense of justice is certainly blasphemous.

About a year or so ago when the labor unions were seeking exemption from persecution under the Sherman anti-trust law, Mr. Taft classed that as vicious class legislation. Now, when the shopmen are on strike that law is about to be turned against labor. Who said class legislation?

The voting of the new wool schedule and the Arizona statehood bill, the signing of the Payne-Aldrich tariff and reciprocity bills and all the other bunk and junk, is what? Class legislation? Monopolized interests "resemble" restraint for trusts, injunctions and federal troops for labor. "Reasonable" profit for tariff-protected monopoly, Sherman anti-trust law and jails for labor. If the recall was in force today then would be a presidential election next month instead of a year from then. What has ex-Judge Taft done for labor? "God knows."

So, you see, when we get soaked 3 cents per mile for railroad fare in Minnesota, just stop and think of what kind of justice is typified by the court that ruled aside the will of the people. Then you'll know, poor, miserable, citizen-sinner of Minnesota, that Taft, Eberhart and the courts have a pull with the Almighty and that this great commonwealth has lost out. "Suffer and be strong."

Consequently the workers are organizing in a working class movement politically, paying their dues to an organization that now numbers over 100,000 each and every one a propagandist, wise to the crime and refusing to be fooled any longer.

Where do the funds come from for the old parties? From the profits of the interests and every dollar of profit is sweated from the toil and life of labor. So labor must not only support its own organization, but is the fundamental support of the parties that trim it. Any working man that can't see this and contributes one, single, solitary cent to the old parties of the master class, is certainly a mutt and deserves his trimming.

Deep in the sub-strata of society is an ever increasing unrest; soon it will upheave, and the masses will move forward a step in civilization, and the institution, judicial, legislative, political, Taft machine or Sherman law, that blocks the way, will go down to oblivion, evermore. Verily, verily, Victor Hugo was right. "The twentieth century will be a century for humanity."

WHO CAN ANSWER THIS?

To the Editor of The Herald:

Can any of your readers tell me of anything that can be burned in a furnace to loosen the heavy crust of rust and soot formation which gathers there and greatly interferes with the heating. There should be some chemical known to engineers that will do the work.

FATHER WHO FIRES THE FURNACE.

Duluth, Oct. 7.

The King's Example.

Once Sultan Nushirvan the just, hunting,
Stopped in an open field to take a lunch,
He wanted salt and to a servant said,
"Go, get some at the nearest house;
But pay the price the peasant asks."
"Great king," exclaimed
The servant, "thou art lord of all this realm;
Why take the pains to buy a little salt?"
"It is a little thing," said Nushirvan,
"And so, at first, was all the evil
Whose most monstrous load now presses so the world,
Were there no little wrongs, no great could be.
If I from a poor man's tree should Pluck a single apple, straight my slaves would rob
The whole tree to its roots; if I
Should seize five eggs, my ministers at once would snatch
A hundred hens. Therefore, strict justice must
I, even in unimportant acts, observe.
Bring salt, but pay the peasant what he asks."

—From "Poetry of the Orient," by W. R. Alger.

In a Nutshell.

New York Sun: The distinguishing characteristic of the most eminent members of that class in the community which dearly loves to be known as the "sporting element" is their complete and consistent devotion to the immediate dollar. For it they will sacrifice anything, and having done so, they invariably wonder why they can get no support in the day of reckoning that inevitably comes.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

True Enough.

Appleton Press: The chief value of reciprocity to the United States would have been to demonstrate to the farmers how they had been deceived by the party of protection.

Bad Swap.

Elk River Star-News: The movement to replace Lieutenant-Governor Gordon with Andy Stevens is too transparent for serious consideration.

But He Wasn't.

Sandstone Courier: Twenty-five state governors have put in an objection to the Sanborn decision in the Minnesota railroad rate cases and the Minnesota governor should have been among the number.

Serves 'Em Right.

Anoka Union: A falling off in passenger earnings is a condition that threatens the railroads since the 3-cent rate was adopted. Good.

Strange, Indeed.

Red Wing Republican: Governor Eberhart isn't saying a word about the Sanborn decision or the increase in railroad rates in Minnesota. Seems strange to observe that the governors of twenty-three other states are much more deeply concerned about the rights of the people of Minnesota than its own executive.

The Limit.

Eveleth News: A man usually gets along very smoothly in politics until he becomes conceited and gets out of his sphere. Witness Eberhart. He made a tolerable senator, but as governor, isn't he the limit?

Believe in Wilson.

Cass Lake Times: A friend in another state asks us what we think of the chances of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for the presidency, in Minnesota. Our opinion may be as worthless as the idle surmises of the truckling politician, but we do not hesitate to assert, that if Taft is nominated by the Republican machine and Wilson is the nominee of the Democrats the latter will carry Minnesota by 100,000 majority. Taft may have friends in our state who will support him by their votes, but there is not enough of them to cast much of a shadow. The farmers and the consumers will support Wilson because they believe in him.

Right Again.

St. Cloud Times: A quiet movement is on foot among some of the Democratic leaders in Minnesota to get an uninstructed delegation to the next national convention. They contend that such a delegation might have a big influence in naming the winner.—Pioneer Press.

We don't believe there is any such "quiet movement." The most effective way to "have a big influence in naming the winner" would be to declare in favor of the choice of the state's Democracy. To hang back and wait until a nomination is certain and then "jump onto the band wagon" is cowardly and unworthy.

What Would You Call It Now?

Fergus Falls Journal: It was a good thing for Governor Eberhart that he did not attend the conference of governors this year. When they jumped on to Judge Sanborn's rate decision it would have put him in an embarrassing position.

Prohibition.

Life: Prohibition has been on trial in Maine for fifty-four years. That is plenty long enough for it to have demonstrated its benefits and won the support of all intelligent people. It has not done so. It is not the best solution of the liquor problem. It has failed in Maine as it has failed in every other New England state, and as it will fail eventually wherever it is tried. It is time that Maine threw it out and got a better and a wiser law, more consistent with the reasonable liberties of responsible men and the needs of cities, and less conducive to law-breaking, secret drinking and the substitution of the worst possible beverages for others not so bad.

The interests of the liquor dealers and all the traffickers in drinks should not matter a rap, nor yet the loss of revenue from taxation of beer and spirits. State prohibition is not weak and should not be cast out because the liquor interests are strong or profitable. It is weak because it does not sufficiently improve the habits and morality of the people it aims to benefit. It is a form of treatment that is not suited to highly civilized communities and never will be. It is probably better than nothing in primitive communities, but it is sure, in the long run, to pass away in any state as civilization and luxury progress, and it will go just as soon as the public intelligence rises high enough to discern that its defects are incurable.

Cupid in a Diplomatic Role.

Frazer Kirkland, (Cyclopedia) of Anecdote): In 1882, M. Labouchere, then a clerk in the banking house of Hope & Co., Amsterdam, was sent by his parents to Mr. Baring, the London banker, to negotiate a loan. He displayed in the affair so much ability as to entirely win the confidence and esteem of the great English financier.

"Faith!" said Labouchere to Baring, "your daughter is a charming creature; I wish I could persuade you to give me her hand."

"Young man, you are joking, for seriously, you must allow that Miss Baring could never become the wife of a simple clerk."

"But," said Labouchere, "if I were in partnership with Mr. Hope?"

"Oh! that would be quite a different thing; that would entirely make up for all other deficiencies."

Returned to Amsterdam, Labouchere said to his patron, "You must take me into partnership."

"My young friend, how can you think of such a thing? It is impossible. You are without fortune, and—"

"But if I became the son-in-law of Mr. Baring?"

"In that case the affair would be soon settled and so you have my word."

Fortified with these two promises, M. Labouchere returned to England, and in two months after married Miss Baring, because Mr. Hope had promised to take him into partnership; and he thus became allied to the house of Hope & Co. His was a magnificent career.

The Socialist Congressman.

Columbian: Victor L. Berger, Socialist member of the Sixty-second congress, is not a native of the United States. He is 51 years old, and was born at Rebbuch, Austria-Hungary. His parents were well-to-do, and he was educated in the universities of Budapest and Vienna. A loss of fortune caused the family to emigrate to the United States before young Berger could graduate, and upon arriving here the future congressman worked for some time at any task that offered a living. He emerged at length from manual labor to be a teacher in the public schools. Then he became editor of the Milwaukee Vorwaerts, and afterward of the Wahrheit (German), and of the People's Herald, an English publication. His early struggles, as a highly educated man laboring under the handicap of poverty, probably had a strong bearing upon his attitude toward social and economic problems. He sympathized earnestly with Debs and from the first he has been prominent in the Socialist Democratic party of America. In 1904 he was Social Democratic candidate for mayor of Milwaukee, and he received five votes for United States senator the same year. Mr. Berger is not of the wild-eyed type, but a pleasant well-bred man, who shows the influence of the culture and refined associations of his early years.

Superstition.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "It is not well to make fun of the old superstitions," remarked Jimmie Dawson, gravely. "For instance, I had an old uncle, who, at the age of 73, committed the imprudence of making one of a dinner party of 13."

"He was a brave old gink, all right," shuddered Will Upton. "Did he die at the feed, or a few hours later?"

"Neither. Ha, it was worse than that! He died exactly thirteen years afterward!"

There must be something in this stuff, after all.

NO MONKEY BUSINESS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Just returned from the conference of governors, held two weeks ago at Spring Lake, New Jersey, Gov. Augustus E. Willson, of Kentucky, is reported to have said:

"Southern governors who attended the conference favored Judson Harmon, of Ohio, for the Democratic presidential nomination. The opinion at that conference was that the Democratic ticket will be Harmon and Wilson, and it was conceded that the latter, the governor of New Jersey, would accept the second place on the ticket. Governor Harmon was the choice of most of the Southern governors,' said Governor Willson. 'He seemed to loom up as the biggest figure at the conference. Wherever there was a crowd Harmon was the center of it, and at such times he showed the qualities that will make him the leader. Governor Woodrow Wilson is a great man and a learned one, but he does not size up as the vote-getter that Governor Harmon is.'"

Without accepting our Republican governor as authority on any aspect of the Democratic situation, we may yet take the foregoing for a pointer and consider it as casting a suggestive light upon the scene.

If a majority of the governors of the Southern states at Spring Lake expressed themselves in opposition to the presidential pretensions of the official colleague, their immediate host, they violated a well-established principle of civility, if not of propriety. But they also betrayed a lack of prudence. Such a conspicuous absence of an ear to the ground is not common among the professional politicians of the period.

Two things seem tolerably sure to the surmise of the Courier-Journal: If Woodrow Wilson is nominated for president it will be through the force of an irresistible pressure of public opinion; and, if he is defeated for the nomination, it will be by some organized agency, well backed with money.

No Democrat of modern times has come into the running, Samuel J. Tilden alone excepted, with half at once of the equipment and the claim of the eminent governor of New Jersey. He may be fairly described as the intellectual, not to say the moral, light of the Democracy of the new day which is dawning upon us. It was Tilden, another Wallenstein, who assembled the broken forces into the desolate camps of Democracy after the ruinous campaign of 1872. If we are to have a recrudescence, and not a mere revival, it will come at the hands of Woodrow Wilson. It will not be possible at the hands of some nondescript crossing the dead line of the two-thirds rule at the end of self-seeking dicker and barter. These have far too often discredited the national conventions of both our parties. Let us hope they will not cheat Democracy in 1912 of an actual leader and a great victory.

When the time arrives for action the Courier-Journal will insist that the South at least shall take high ground and refuse to submit itself to be debauched either by the money of Wall street, put up so lavishly to control the conventions of each party, or the ambition of local politicians, who may find it easiest to make terms with some unknown quantity, having everything to gain and nothing to lose.

"They That Walk in Darkness."

What chance had we? Come answer, you who scorn
To look upon us, wretched, outcast, lost,
Beyond the pale of your bright world forever!
What chance had we, who toiled night, day, and morn?
The time we counted not, only the cost
Of bread, our gauge for every day's endeavor.

Are we so wicked, then, who never knew
Your firelit homes, the doors of which are barred
To us who wander, longing, weary-eyed?
Are we so wicked, who despairing threw Ourselves away, to play the only card
Wherewith by fortune we were fortified?

O Sheltered Women, you whose hearts are warm,
How should you judge, why should you sympathize?
To you our misery contempt imparts.
You find protection on a husband's arm,
You know the kiss of love that purifies,
The hands of little children press your hearts.

Think you we love the life that now we lead?
We walk in darkness and our souls are dead.
Our hearts insensate, cold, are not our own.
Think you we chose the life that in our need
We caught, a straw, dark waters overhead?
Let those that sinless are first cast a stone!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: First a man wants to make money honestly, then any way.

All men need to begin an argument on a subject is to be entirely ignorant about it.

A man can give his wife a happy life by being able to delude herself about him.

Even a man who is too smart to invest his money wrong won't have sense enough not to eat green fruit and get the colic.

When a man had a tip on a horse that won and didn't bet on it, there's no way to convince him that he wasn't cheated.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: What is an anecdote? An anecdote is a story of extremely uncertain age that is founded on fiction and embellished by fancy. After lying dormant for years, it is dug up and credited to an entirely innocent and unsuspecting United States senator.

Puck: "When did you first become acquainted with your wife?"

"The first time I disagreed with her after we were married."

Boston Transcript: Binks—Confound it! I've gone and sat down on that chair I varnished this morning.

Mrs. Binks—Well, for once you've stuck to your work.

Sacred Heart Review: "You know James, who was reputed so rich? Well, he died the other day, and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."

"Well, there's one good thing about it. It won't be much trouble to wind up his estate."

Sydney Bulletin: Old Money (dying)—I'm afraid I've been a brute to you sometimes, dear.

Young Wife—Oh, never mind that, darling; I'll always remember how very kind you were when you left me.

Washington Star: "What has become of that man who said Mars is habitable?"

He made the mistake of convincing too many people. There wasn't enough skepticism to keep up a fairly interesting controversy."

Congregationalist: Vacation is a good time, not merely for the minister to pursue avocations, but for other folk to discover how human he is. We recently heard of a small boy who came home from a Sunday school picnic and reported to his mother what he had found out about the pastor.

"Oh, mamma," said the youngster, "he can run, and holler, and climb a tree, and eat!"

New York Press: "They always wanted more closet room, and now they have it," cried Bluebeard.

Thus the forbidden chamber was accounted for.

Toledo Blade: Inspector Dick—Did you discover any irregularities in the city hall?

Inspector Sharp—Yes; four of the employes were at work.

Courier-Journal: "The horse is a contrary brute."

"Yes; he will often go better for a man dressed in overalls than for a chap attired in the most correct driving togs."

Buffalo Express: "Why didn't you go to see the coronation, Bilbox?"

"Do the English flock over here to spend their money when there is a presidential inauguration?"

New York Times: Crawford—You say this contrivance is an entirely original invention?

Crabshaw—Why, man, it's something that wasn't even in use among the Chinese thousands of years ago.

Christian Register: Said an English clergyman: "Patriotism is the backbone of the British empire; and what we have to do is to train that backbone and bring it to the front."

WOMAN'S REALM.

District presidents of the Needlework Guild are busy this week with the collection of the garments for their annual round up to be held Tuesday of next week. The eighteen district presidents assisted by directors, are receeiving the donations daily now and all members are urged to send in their contributions as early as possible, at least some time this week that the district contributions may be arranged early.

The donors are asked to send woolen garments this year as far as possible. Mrs. Lee of the anti-tuberculosis society, urges this plan, saying that woolen underclothing, dresses, blankets, coats and hoods should be supplied for this climate and garments of this material will do the most good.

The object of the guild is to furnish new plain, suitable garments to meet the needs of hospitals, homes, and other charities and a membership in the guild consists of the pledge of the donation each year of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen, or a donation of money. Men, women, and children may become members.

Undergarments should be sent in pairs tacked together and donations from each president should be wrapped in one bundle as far as possible.

CHRISTMAS SEWING.

Fancy Work for the Holiday Claiming Attention.

Just eleven weeks from today is Christmas.

The industrious housewife now at the end of the canning season and with her fall house cleaning out of the way is commencing her Christmas gifts. The needlework departments of the stores are commencing to show their holiday lines and their rush season is starting.

Many delightfully simple little gifts may be made by the woman who is clever with her needle or crochet hook. They will cost very little money and still will be valuable for their time and work.

These departments offer the woman interested in this work such an array of useful as well as dainty pretty things that if she has time her gifts this year ought to be much less expensive than if she waits until the last week for ready made gifts.

Novelty sets for traveling come in packages all ready to be embroidered and made up. There are cases for shirts, shirt waists, night gowns, corset bags, cases for toilet articles which would be most acceptable to any traveler and there is a traveling apron which has proved a boon to the woman who travels. It is made of natural colored linen with pockets for every article for toilet use. There are the rubber or oilcloth lined pockets for washrag, towel and soap, the chamois lined pocket for powder, and the individual pockets for every other piece. The pockets are marked with braiding or flowers.

The basket embroidery done with a cross stitch is a very pretty finishing for towels and done in several light colors is very effective. These towels come stamped and may be worked to suit the fancy of the embroiderer or separate stamped patterns with each stitch marked and colored are also prepared which may be basted on the towel and worked over. This design gives a new note in the pretty little guest towels which have become so popular.

Annual Inspection of Duluth Corps.

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps which will be held Thursday afternoon at Memorial hall of the courthouse, the annual inspection will take place. Mrs. Helen Sloggy of the Garfield Corps in St. Paul will be the inspector.

JOSE MARDONES.

Singer With Nielsen-Martin Company.

Jose Mardones, who will open the concert Friday evening to be given at the Lyceum theater with Alice Nielsen and Riccardo Martin as the leading soloists, is also a singer of unusual ability and his numbers will come next in importance to the two great soloists who head the organization of talented players.

He was born at Fontecha, Province of Alaba, Spain, in 1874. He commenced his vocal studies at 16 with the organist of the cathedral in Bribiesca, a neighboring town, and when 19 was engaged as the first basso of the cathedral choir in Calancia. He occupied that position for four years, and then went to Madrid, where he entered the Conservatory of Music. Two years later he went with a Spanish troupe on a tour of South America, Spain and Portugal. He returned to Madrid in 1907, when the famous Vatican composer Abbe Perosi, invited him to take part in the performance of his new oratorio "Moses" that was to be given at the Theater Reale. He won an instantaneous success, and after a season in Buenos Ayres, he was engaged by the San Carlo Royal theater, Lisbon, the Reggio theater, Turin, and the Costanzi theater, Rome. Then came the engagement for the Boston Opera house, where he is about to begin his third season. His roles are many and he sings with equal ease in both French and Italian operas.

THE EVENING STORY

THE DUCHESS' DILEMMA.

By Jane Harris.

"Dear me," murmured the duchess plaintively, "those dreadful young men appear to have followed us here," her large blue eyes resting with distinct annoyance on the tweed clad stalwart figures of the two bronze faced, good looking males who had just alighted before the portico of the big new hotel which seemed to fill the whole landscape of the primitive little Welsh watering place that nestled on this wild bit of rocky Anglesey coast.

The duchess looked not only annoyed but displeased as the pair entered the hotel, followed by a somewhat meager amount of luggage, but a multiplicity of golf clubs, and she turned her gaze in expectation of a sympathetic response, to her daughter, a younger and even lovelier replica of herself. But Lady Daphne had hastily bent her face with its sudden flame of telltale color over the curly coat of the spaniel that lay at her feet, and perhaps it was as well the duchess did not see.

Presently the latter rose and ascended the hotel steps, while Lady Daphne left alone, called her dog and made her way to the beach, a dreamy look of pensive pleasure in her eyes.

She wondered had "he" really followed them there, this good looking young soldier with the thin, bronzed face and eloquent—perhaps too eloquent—dark eyes, whom she had first seen at the Llandudno hydro, where she and her mother had been staying. This young man who had gazed at her with such respectful yet unmistakable homage. And she blushed again as she recalled how on the occasions of the many and various excursions she and her mother had taken to Bettws-y-Coed, Snowdon, Llanberis, they had always encountered—been haunted with, as the duchess said—Capt. Smith and his friend, Maj. Armstrong.

Then the duchess, with who knows what perspicuity, had whisked her daughter away from a possibly dangerous propinquity to this remotely unfashionable, newly born watering place. Lady Daphne suddenly sighed now with a strange agitation, as she remembered that she was not free to let her fancy weave romances around good looking young soldiers, for she was already betrothed—bequeathed like a mere chattel by a clause in her father's will—to a certain Robert Fitz Clarence Orminstow, in payment of a heavy financial obligation to the latter's father, a self-made man, who had considered he was spending his money wisely when he elected to prop up the late duke's tottering credit to gain in return a beautiful, highly born, titled wife for his son and only child. But of the financial part of the transaction, Lady Daphne was happily ignorant. All she knew was that she was pledged to a young man she had never seen, and who was still serving with his regiment in India.

"I must become acquainted with the duchess of Deerswater, or I shall go clean crazy," exclaimed Capt. Smith, swinging his driver with a terrific energy at a neatly tee'd and unoffending ball, and missing it clean. "Look at that. I'm fooling my golf. I can't sleep for thinking of Lady Daphne. I can't eat—look how thin I'm getting," holding out a muscular arm and a strong brown hand that somehow belied the latter part of his speech. "We've been here a week today, and I'm no nearer knowing her than I was six weeks ago."

"Produce your credentials, then," laughed the friend.

"I'm hanged if I do," energetically. Then he laughed. "It must seem awfully silly to you, old man; but I've been in love with her madly ever since I saw her first, standing at Llandudno Junction. And since then—"

"We've been hunting her and the duchess over the best part of North Wales," dryly interpolated the other.

"If only something would happen," groaned the young man. "I shall pine away and die if this goes on much longer." But happily for Capt. Smith's peace of mind, something did happen, something which loaded the duchess with gratitude, and placed her under the deepest obligations to the handsome young soldier, placing her also into an almost painful dilemma.

Lady Daphne, who was fond of sketching and wandering off alone, got caught one wild and gusty day by a particularly high and tempestuous tide when seated on her favorite perch, a high and lonely bit of rock only accessible at low water, and she found herself completely cut off and surrounded by a swift and foaming current before she realized her danger.

Luckily, she was seen and rescued by Capt. Smith, after being nearly washed off her perilous perch twice. He had been sea fishing, but had put back earlier than he intended owing to the roughness of the sea, and had seen her wild signals for help. And drenched, shivering, somewhat hysterical, he had brought her back to the hotel, where the duchess was already becoming much alarmed at her daughter's prolonged absence.

The former's gratitude was frankly unbounded, and she became as cordial as she had before been icy to her child's rescuer. But with Lady Daphne it was different. She retired behind a wall of absolute aloofness and cold reserve that reduced him to utter despair. A miserable fortnight dragged itself away, and the last day but one of the duchesses' stay at Brynhyfryd came.

Capt. Smith went for a lonely walk over the slippery rocks, now uncovered for quite half a mile, until he reached that high one at the end from whence he had taken the dripping figure of Lady Daphne, and a thrill quivered through all his pulses as he recalled those never to be forgotten moments when he had held her in his arms, had tenderly chafed the little cold hands before wrapping his coat about her. He had been absurdly happy then. Now—

Suddenly a small object lying in the hollow of the rock caught his attention. It was Lady Daphne's sketch book, wrapped in its oilskin cover. She must have lost it that day. He picked it up and kissed it miserably. It was something belonging to her. Then he undid the wrapping and turned the pages idly.

Lady Daphne was not quite successful as regards landscape. Her clouds were too woolly, her coloring too crude; but she certainly excelled in the gift of portraying faces—or rather one face. The young man found himself, with a madly beating heart, gazing at several pages covered with his own image, all "deucedly flattering, idealised," as he told himself breathlessly for he was quite healthily without vanity. Then, closing the book and replacing the cover almost reverently, he looked up and saw her some distance away coming over the rocks towards him.

The wavelets no longer seemed to laugh at him as he went to meet her. Life had suddenly grown very beautiful to the young man. A look of terror seemed to leap into her blue eyes as they fell on the telltale little book in his hand. "Oh," she gasped.

"Your sketch book, Lady Daphne," he said quietly, and she almost snatched it from him. "I trust it isn't spoiled. I did not open it to see," he continued, lying nobly, feeling well repaid for his mendacity by the sudden immense relief that swept over her lovely face. Then suddenly he put his arms about her, barring her further progress. "Daphne, I love you," he said breathlessly. "Oh, you must have known that I have loved you for all these weeks past. My darling, is there any hope?" But she strove to push him from her.

"Oh, no, no, don't say it," she wailed, "there—there is—someone else."

"Some one else," he echoed, growing rather white. "Some one you—care for?"

"No, no; I hate him," she sobbed. "But I've got to marry him some day. And I haven't even seen him," she wound up wretchedly.

"If it wasn't for him could you—would you marry me, Daphne?"

"Oh," she murmured brokenly; but he saw her answer in her lovely eyes and was satisfied. Half an hour later Capt. Smith marched into the duchess's room and demanded Lady Daphne's hand in marriage. She was in a dilemma. "Oh, dear," the duchess sighed more plaintively than ever. "This is very unexpected, Capt. Smith."

"Not at all," he responded promptly. "I've loved Daphne ever since I first saw her and—and I think she loves me. Don't you, darling?" turning an appealing glance at her.

"Yes, oh, yes mother, indeed I do," she answered fervently.

"Then," said Capt. Smith triumphantly, "it is time this farce ended, and I introduce myself under my real name—Smith was only borrowed for the occasion. I am Robert Orminstow, and I only got home on long leave about two months ago. I am sure I was quite as much averse to the idea of marrying Daphne as she must have been to the thought of marrying me, for I hated the odious bargain; to me it savored of actual brutality—forgive me, duchess, on my father's part. I mean of course—to barter away a young girl's heart and probable happiness by such an arrangement. But to once see Daphne was to adore her, and I determined to win her, if I could, on my own merits, such as they were. And—"

"You have succeeded," softly interrupted the duchess kissing him very sweetly on one cheek. Her eyes were shining, and she felt absolutely gay at such a happy ending to her dilemma.

Desirable Carpets and Rugs

By EVELYN MARIE STUART

(Copyrighted, 1911, by I. J. Robinson.)

IN PURCHASING rugs and floor coverings, generally, even perhaps more than in any other article of domestic utility, should quality be borne in mind, for to nothing does time apply a more severe test. This is why, whenever possible, it is best to buy good Oriental rugs, which have to recommend them not only their surpassing beauty and value as works of art, but qualities of endurance as well, far beyond those of almost any other floor covering. Of course the price exceeds that of other rugs and yet not so greatly as not to prove an economy in the long run.

A good rug should, and will, with the proper care, last at least a lifetime, even under the hard conditions of wear in this country. In the Orient, where the custom of removing one's street shoes, or sandals, upon entering a house prevails, these rugs last for generations and improve in color and surface finish as they gather age.

The dyes, which impart the beautiful hues to the yarn used in these rugs, are all of a vegetable nature and the colors therefore tone perfectly with the passage of time. Contact with the heavy woolen stockings, worn the year round by Oriental people, causes the yarn of the nap of the rug to unravel and polishes the surface, thus imparting a wonderful silken sheen. So much admired by collectors is this velvety appearance that rug dealers have resorted to various means to produce this gloss artificially. Dampening the surface with a solution of glycerine and pressing with very hot irons imparts something the same effect but does not improve the rug. One should therefore favor a rug which does not exhibit this characteristic too strongly, as, unless the price be very high, one may be sure that the gloss is not natural.

A still more damaging practice, resorted to both in the Orient and here, is the so-called washing process. New rugs, in the vivid hues of freshly dyed wools, are stretched on inclined boards over which chlorine water is permitted to flow. This fades the surfaces in soft tones, but so weakens the fiber of the rug as to cut its lifetime in two. A washed rug can easily be detected, as upon examination it will be found that only the surface of the nap is in dull tones, very bright colors appearing deeper in the fiber and upon the back of the rug. Rugs which for any reason have been exposed to sea water will fall to pieces quickly under every day wear, as the chlorine from the salt in the water rots the yarn.

Good rugs, especially Orientals, should never be shaken or beaten, the old-fashioned mauling with a stick, cane or wire implement being particularly injurious. The carpet sweeper and vacuum cleaner for every day and the steam or naptha process twice yearly will keep rugs and carpets in good condition—and in what they add to the life of the fabric will more than make up for the cost. In the Orient, soiled rugs are scrubbed with a heavy lather of pure castile soap, rubbed in with the grain of the rug, never against it. They are rinsed with slightly warm water, the same temperature as the first lather, until the water runs clear, then hung in a shady place to dry.

Many of the handsomest of hand-wrought Oriental patterns are now duplicated in machine-made domestic velvets and brussels, affording really tasteful floor coverings. There are even those who prefer the domestic rug, as it is more regular, more perfect and lies flatter upon the floor.

Plain toned, or two-toned hand tufted rugs, are also much favored by decorators. They equal the Orientals in wearing qualities and in price—but they are exceedingly difficult to care for and keep clean.

Even the least expensive of rugs and carpets produced nowadays are in excellent taste as to pattern and colorings, and wearing qualities have also improved with modern methods of manufacture.

LOVERLESS GIRL ATTEMPTS LIFE

Chicago, Oct. 9.—" I never had a sweetheart and I was alone and moody," said Miss Cecile Estey, 22 years of age, of Fort Wayne, Ind., when questioned in court today as to why she had attempted suicide by throwing herself into Lake Michigan yesterday. Miss Estey was rescued by two firemen. She said her father was a wealthy resident of Fort Wayne, and that for several years she had been a member of the White Cross mission.

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS ON THE STEEL PLANT

More Steel Erectors Added On the Open-Hearth Furnace Building.

Foundations in for Blast Furnaces and Contract Has Been Let.

Work Begun on the Coke Ovens and Other Parts of the Mammoth Plant.

BY GEORGE REID.

So many people who are interested will not be able to visit Spirit Lake this fall to inspect the progress of work on Duluth's great steel plant that I have spent a day there in their interest and will describe briefly conditions as I found them and as they are pictured herewith.

As nearly as I was able to ascertain from the men themselves, close to 800 men are now employed in construction work nearly 150 of these being structural steel workers employed by the American Bridge company in the erection of steel on the mammoth open hearth furnace buildings and the merchants' mill. More than a score of these steel erectors were added last week, having been brought from Two Harbors, where the bridge company has just completed an additional ore dock.

All the men it is possible to use to advantage are engaged in putting together the fabricated steel which forms the skeleton for the furnace plant. This will house seven open heart steel furnaces, each of which has a concrete and steel smokestack a dozen feet feet through at the base and rising 175 feet in the air. The steel on the furnace plant proper is up and, as seen in the picture of this building, nearly all of the steel for the roof is on. The rest of the walls will be of concrete blocks, already made, and only waiting for the steel men to get out of the way to be put into place.

The open hearth furnace building is 567 by 360 feet in size. In one corner a foundation of cement nine feet in thickness has been laid in the bottom of a pit fifty-two feet below the surface for the 400-ton elevator which will move great masses of material in the stockhouse, which is a part of the open hearth structure. This elevator will be operated in connection with cranes.

Work has just been begun on the thirteen gigantic coke ovens of concrete and steel, which will have a concrete and steel smoke-stack 212 feet in height. Steel is up for the walls of the merchants' mill, one-fifth of a mile, or to be exact, 1,040 feet in length, and part of the steel for the roof is on. Alongside, the concrete foundations are in for the blooming mill, 400 feet wide and 200 feet long. This mill forms a "T" from the merchants' mill. In this same group will be the rail mill, the longest of the fifty buildings of the steel plant, stretching majestically a third of a mile—1,700 feet to be specific. Steel erection on this group of buildings is awaiting completion of the open hearth furnace building, the steel work on which is nearly six weeks behind the schedule. The men are catching up rapidly, however, using heavier cranes, which were brought down from Two Harbors.

Much work has been done at the steel plant which is not visible to the casual visitor. Concrete foundations reaching far down into the earth have been completed for several of the principal buildings that the passer-by scarcely sees and appreciates even less. Foundations are ready for the blast furnaces, the first of their kind to be constructed. Each will be equipped for either coke or electrical smelting. Contracts for the blast furnaces have been let at a price approximating $2,300,000, and the engineers are at work.

One great group of buildings has been entirely completed and much of their machinery is in place. They constitute the machine and forge shops of the plant. This group is to be seen in the pictures on this page. Temporary offices of the Minnesota Steel company are in the warehouse for brick and other building materials, which is another one of the buildings which has been completed. In a small building near the machine shops is an automobile ambulance and just back of it is the emergency hospital, which is always in readiness in case of accident to the workmen.

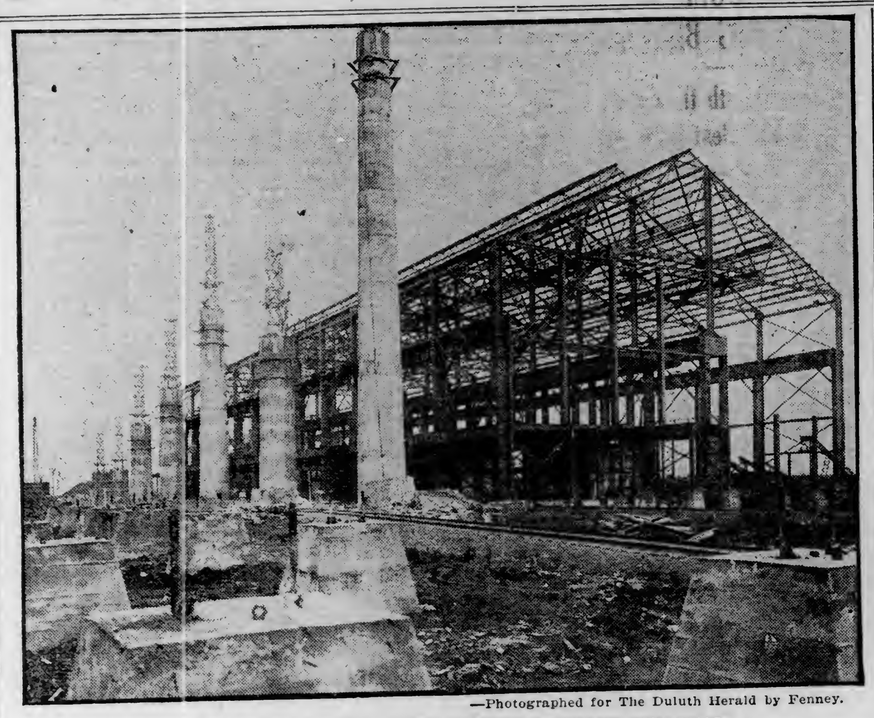

Most readers know that there is a great concrete works at Spirit Lake. This plant has a capacity of 1,600 bags of cement daily and can turn out any shape or size of concrete block. All of the buildings of this most modern of steel plants are being constructed of concrete and steel, which will last for ages. The only wood in the machine shops, for instance, is in the doors.

A network of railroads covers the 1,640 acres comprising the site of the Minnesota steel plant. All steel for construction work is unloaded right where it is to be erected. Tracks run through all the buildings. Several locomotives inscribed "Minnesota Steel Company" are in use and more will be needed with the completion of the plant.

Excavations go down to a depth of fifty feet for the foundations of the water works and reservoir, just west of the blast furnaces. Another of the completed buildings is the power house, with its electrical machinery, which moves almost noiselessly. The concrete work for the huge ore bins sunk deep in the earth is being completed.

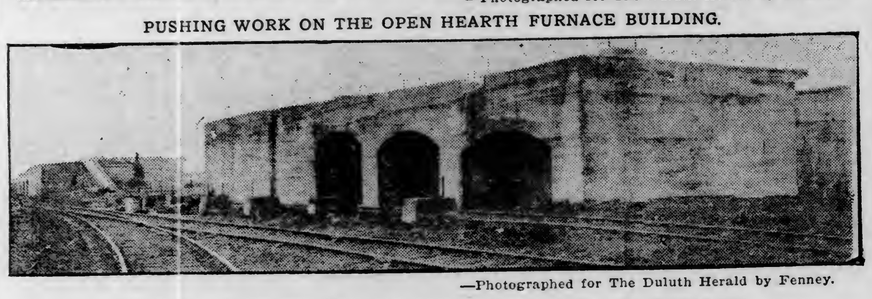

Large as the site of the steel plant is it is not large enough to include the terminal yards, which are located across the belt line bridge in Wisconsin, about two miles from the plant. Opposite the steel plant and also across the river is the Harding purchase, comprising a large tract. It is reported that this tract is to be occupied by a $2,000,000 steel car works, which will be ready for operation by the time the steel plant is completed. This big tract was purchased five years ago by J. Horace Harding of New York city, who repeatedly has refused to sub-divide it, saying he was holding it for such an industry as is now planned.

It will not be amiss to recall that James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, in his memorable speech recently in Duluth, said that the estimated expenditures for the first unit of the Minnesota Steel company, exclusive of land values, administrative expenses and taxes, is $20,170,000. This did not include the cement plant, which will cost $1,250,000. Including the belt line railroad, the bridge over the St. Louis river and the cost of the land for the steel plant and terminal yards, President Farrell stated that the corporation's investment, when the first unit is completed, will be between $16,000,000 and $17,000,000.

PROVIDING HOMES FOR THE WORKERS

New Steel City Is Rising on High, Level Ground Opposite the Plant.

On the lower deck of the belt line bridge, pictured herewith, the rails are laid for street cars connecting the new steel city which is rising on the Wisconsin side with the steel plant and terminal yards.

The new steel city occupies a level plateau overlooking the steel plant, intersected by the belt line railroad and the txtension of the street car line planned from Superior, and adjoining the Harding purchase.

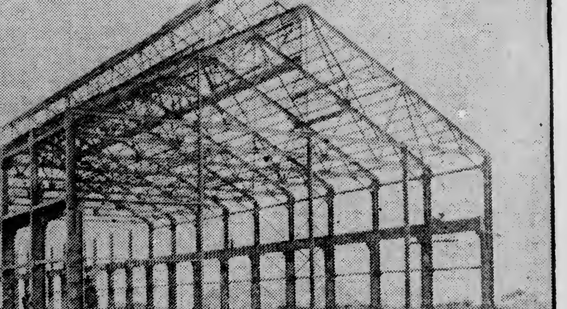

All of the lots in the first addition have been sold, and most of those in the second. These two additions form the nucleus of a series of townsites which have been platted on all sides without regard to gullies and water courses. The original townsite of Carnegie, however, is large enough to provide homes for a city of considerable size and for the business that goes with a city.

During this summer a sawmill has been in operation and has cut 400,000 feet. A lumber yard has been established and quotations made to property owners at wholesale prices.

Quick to appreciate the advantages of the new city and the possibilities of its rapid growth, Duluth capitalists have organized the Carnegie Home Building company to help workmen to build and own their own homes. These men consider lots in Carnegie as being good security. They will loan money at 6 per cent for the erection of buildings to house the thousands of employes at the steel plant and other industries which are allied to it. This company will erect model homes, built upon the applicant's own plans and specifications if desired, and turn the buildings over when completed.

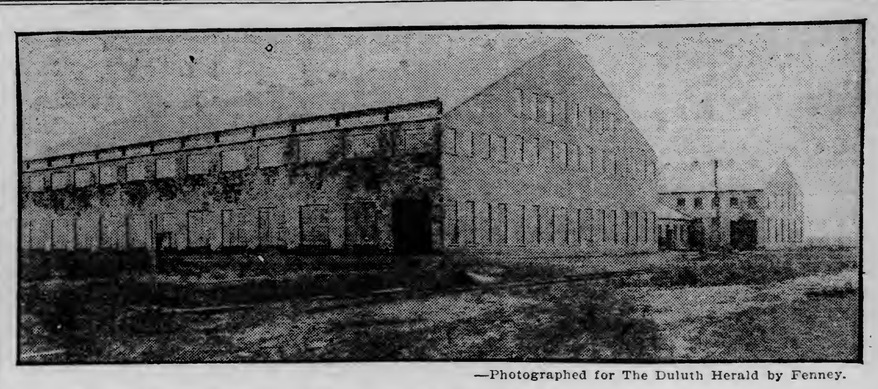

The company figures that Carnegie will lead all other similar locations in growth, being close enough to the steel plant to suit any workman and far enough away to escape the noise, dust and fumes that are inevitable in modern steel making.

Buildings and homes are springing up in the new city, with its graded streets and sidewalks, where a year ago men were felling trees and burning brush. People desirous of securing their own homes close to steady work the year round, or who desire to go into business and prosper in a new steel city which is expected to rival Gary, Ind., in its phenomenal growth are visiting Carnegie in ever increasing numbers.

WEST DULUTH IS BOUND TO GROW RAPIDLY WITH THE STEEL PLANT

Even Now It Is the Most Important Industrial District of Duluth.

Has Big Iron Furnace, Iron Works, Match Factory and Carbolite Plant.

Sawmills Still Employ Hundreds and There Are Minor Industries.

With the building of the steel plant progressing steadily and satisfactorily, West Duluth, the most important manufacturing district of the city, has taken on new life and is preparing for the vast growth that must come to that section along with the steel industry. West Duluth and the street railway extend now to within three and a half miles of the steel plant and the city council has ordered the railroad company to extend its line to the plant.

This section of the city offers a splendid field for real estate investment. Values here are not inflated. In the last five years they have increased only about 30 per cent West of Oneota, this ratio of increase being far below that justified by the increase in industries and population. Values in Oneota, right alongside, have almost doubled, and in the West end, still closer in toward the heart of Duluth, they have doubled.

Besides its railroad facilities and level lands for manufacturing and residence, West Duluth—all of Duluth for that matter—has cheap power to offer manufacturers, the price for which is not bettered anywhere in the United States except at Niagara Falls. The dam of the Great Northern Power company on the St. Louis river, above Duluth, is in full development of 80,000-horse power. Equipment is in for 50,000-horse power. Of this great force, 28,000-horse power is in use, leaving 22,000 cheap horse power immediately available for factories of all kinds. At this time the maximum demand for power at any one time is 28,000-horse power, although individual consumers use nearly twice that amount at different times of the day and night.

West Duluth has the Northern Pacific and Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroads, and the city council has taken action to compel the Soo Line, which now comes into Duluth over the Interstate bridge, to comply with the terms of its franchise, and give service over the Grassy Point bridge, joining West Duluth with the completed Soo Line on the Wisconsin side, and a line to be constructed from West Duluth to the Soo Line union station. Two lines of the Duluth street railway connect West Duluth with all other parts of the city and give frequent and satisfactory service. From the heart of West Duluth to the heart of the Superior street business district by street car the time is less than half an hour.

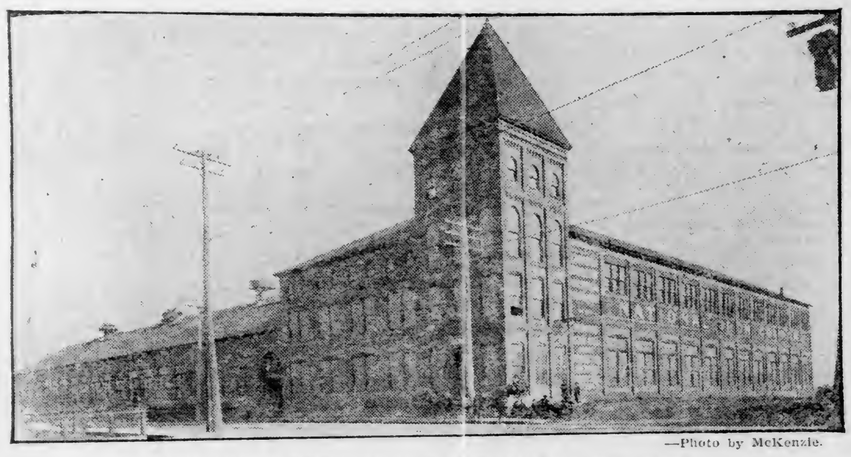

While Central avenue is the main business street of West Duluth it has a worthy rival in Grand avenue, the principal part of which, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-ninth avenues west, is being paved with brick. Central avenue has the advantage of several years start, but during the last few years Grand avenue has come to the front with a spurt. It has several fine brick blocks and like Central avenue is traversed by a street car line.

What is locally known as West Duluth may be said to extend from Oneota at about Forty-eighth avenue west to Fairmount park, at Eighty-fourth avenue west and to within three and a half miles of the steel plant. Oneota covers the district eastward from Forty-eighth avenue west to about Thirty-fifth avenue west and here the West end begins and runs down to about Fourteenth avenue west, where it encounters the Point of Rocks, which crowds its way out toward the harbor and cuts the city in two. Westward from the Point of Rocks is the largest area of level and gently rolling land in the city, extending nearly a mile from the harbor all three of these subdivisions of Duluth are going ahead together. Community lines are fast being obliterated and it is time for all Duluth people to wipe out the names of the West end, Oneota and West Duluth and to refer to this great part of the city as the western district—the district of industries that preceded the steel plant and which, now that that industrial giant is here, is destined to go forward in its growth by strides heretofore undreamed of by the most enthusiastic students of the city's growth.

Foremost of West Duluth's industries is the Zenith iron furnace, employing 350 men the year around. The Union match factory keeps 180 persons busy all the time. The National Iron company employs 200 men when running full, and the Imperial Iron Works nearly half that number. The Carbolite plant furnishes work to 100 men at good wages. The Alger-Smith company has several hundred men in its great sawmills and in the sawmills of the Virginia & Rainy Lake company about 200 men are at work. The Duluth Tar factory utilizes one of the by-products of the coke ovens at the Zenith Furnace plant and employs a score of men. The Duluth Brass works has about thirty employes. E. G. Wallinder's sash and door plant keeps fifty men busy and the Purity Bottle and Box factory, about forty men. West Duluth has a number of other small industries, including three plants for the manufacture of cement blocks.

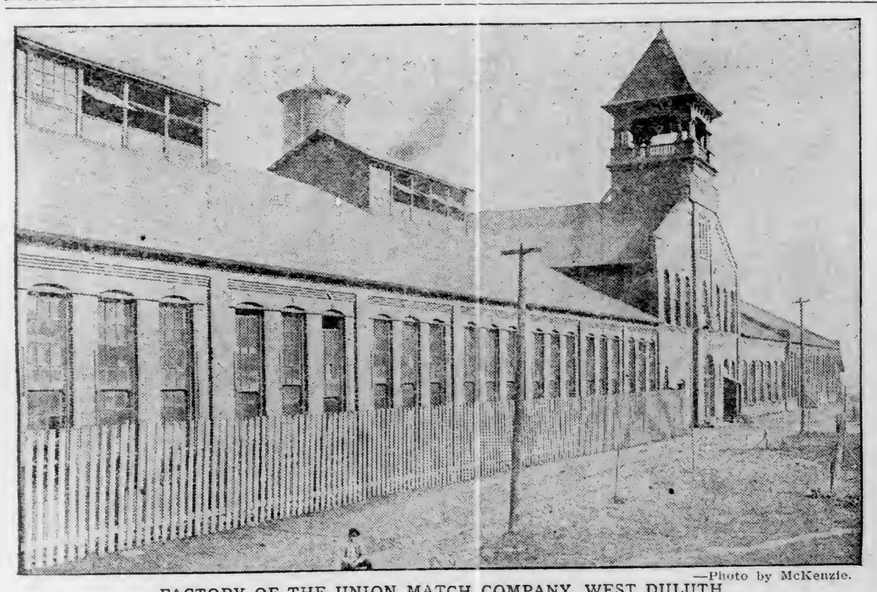

Foremost in every movement for improvements and for the betterment of conditions in West Duluth is the West Duluth Commercial club, which has its own hall and meets every week. L. A. Barnes, banker, real estate man and alderman, is president of the club; A. G. Macaulay, vice president; M. J. Murray, secretary, and George M. Cruikshank, treasurer. Manufacturers or others at a distance desiring more detailed information concerning West Duluth can obtain all necessary facts by addressing the West Duluth Commercial club.

FACTORY OF THE UNION MATCH COMPANY, WEST DULUTH.

UNION MATCH FACTORY

Keeps 180 People Busy and Makes the Best Matches.

The Union match factory in West Duluth was established ten years ago and has had a constant growth. It employs 180 people the year around and adds considerably to the pay-roll which is spent in this city.

No better matches are made than are turned out by the Union company and everybody in this section should demand these home-made matches. "Do It For Duluth."

FURNACE COMPANY A BIG BENEFIT

Helps Give Duluth the Cheapest Gas and Best Service in the Country.

The blast furnace in West Duluth was the forerunner of Duluth's great steel plant, which is rising at Spirit Lake and the latest pictures of which are reproduced on the preceding page. Here it was demonstrated by the Zenith Furnace company that pig iron could be made at a profit at the head of the Lakes, and if pig iron, why not steel? That set the heads of the United States Steel Corporation to thinking, with the Minnesota steel plant as the result.

The Zenith furnace is West Duluth's most important industry, employing about 350 men the year around and paying out about $300,000 yearly in wages. The first pig iron was made here twenty years ago, but the plant was not firmly established until it was taken over by the Zenith Furnace company about ten years ago. This company has developed the coal branch of the business from nothing, starting in 1903, when the company erected a complete by-product coking plant, together with a large coal dock.

The uniform excellence of the Zenith lump and steam coals brought them into big demand and in 1905 the capacity of the coal dock was doubled to 400,000 tons. Further improvements, including a steam plant of latest design, were added and an addition made to the furnace in 1908, and this was followed in 1910 by an increase of 50 per cent in the capacity of the coal dock, so that it can handle 600,000 tons a year.

Establishment of the by-product coking plant has benefited everybody in Duluth, since it has resulted in materially reducing the cost of gas. This plant has a capacity of 250 tons of coke per day, which supplies the demands of the furnace and leaves a small amount for sale which is sought after eagerly for house heating, being an ideal fuel because of the high grade of coal used in making the coke.

The city of Duluth pays a low price for its gas to the furnace company and sells the gas to consumers for 75 cents per thousand feet for general uses, the lowest price of any city in this country except those having natural gas, and for only 50 cents per thousand for heating and power. The sales of gas in Duluth have grown from 72,462,700 feet in 1903 to 264,442,700 feet in 1910. This year the consumption of gas will reach 300,000,000 feet.

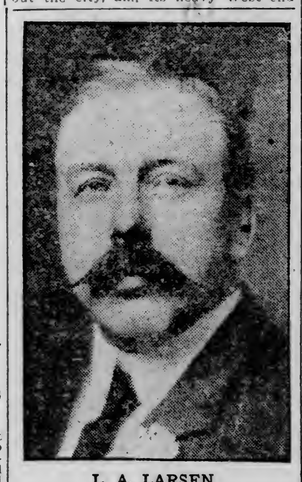

The Zenith Furnace company maintains a gas appliance department at 312 West First street. This department not only takes care of lamps and appliances but sees to it that consumers obtain the best gas ranges, working in conjunction with hardware and furniture stores and the water and light department of the city, and is thus enabled to give consumers the best service possible for the least money.

"ALL EYES ARE NOW ON DULUTH"

The Up-to-Date Methods Employed By the L. A. Larsen Company.

During the last few years L. A. Larsen of the L. A. Larsen company has probably sold more property in the West end than any other real estate man. Mr. Larsen is a firm believer in the great future of the western end of the city and as far back as five years ago he began to advertise its advantages and to point out the certainty of profits to investors. He was persistent, and the tide of investors and homeseekers turned to the West end. In five years lots there have trebled in price. What Mr. Larsen prophesied has come true. West end property is going up in price all the time.

The Larsen company has advertised the West end broadcast as "The Heart of the Greater Duluth," which it is, the city stretching all the way from New Duluth, above the steel plant, on the St. Louis river, to Lakeside, a distance of 20 miles. This company is in close touch with realty movements throughout the city, and its heavy West end dealings has made it an authority on values in that section. The Larsen company's latest slogan is, "All Eyes Are Now on Duluth." It goes on to add, "Looking after other people's property is our specialty." The Larsen company has been in the real estate business for ten years, with offices in the Providence building.

PLANT OF THE AMERICAN CARBOLITE COMPANY IN WEST DULUTH.

THE CARBOLITE PLANT

Employs 100 Men and Its Product Is Sold All Over the Country.

The plant of the American Carbolite company covers nine acres adjoining the Zenith furnace plant, with a railroad into the works and ample land upon which to expand. The company employs 100 men steadily at good wages and manufactures a superior quality of calcium carbide for town and house-lighting plants and automobile and bicycle lamps.

The American Carbolite Sales company, which has exclusive charge of the sales of the product, has thirty-six warehouses in the principal cities of the United States.

FINE HOSPITAL IN WEST DULUTH

Large, Pleasant Rooms, Best of Nurses and Modern in Every Way.

The Duluth hospital, which was established seven years ago, is now in its own handsome brick building, Central avenue and Bristol street. The hospital is 50 by 125 feet, two stories in height, and modern in every respect. Every room is large, airy and cheerful, and the best of trained nurses are in attendance. The hospital can care for twenty-four patients.

The operating room has strong light from a skylight in the daytime, and at night is brilliantly illuminated by electricity. The hospital has all of the appliances and conveniences of larger institutions of its kind. Dr. David Graham, the head, has been engaged in general practice in West Duluth for eighteen years, and is one of the most capable physicians and surgeons in the city.

One of the features of the hospital is an X-ray room, which is a great help in modern medicine and surgery. The Duluth hospital is only a block and a half from the West Duluth station of the Northern Pacific railroad, and street cars pass the door.

IMPERIAL IRON WORKS, WEST DULUTH.

NATIONAL IRON WORKS.

An Important Plant Which Specializes on Logging Machinery.

The National Iron company has added much to the prosperity of West Duluth, employing 200 men in its large plant when running full. The company makes a specialty of logging machinery and manufactures Forest log loaders, many of which are in use.

It also makes sawmill and mining machinery, builds hoisting engines and does much structural iron work.

CLYDE IRON WORKS.

It Covers Ten Acres and Employs 300 to 400 Men.

One of the two largest industries of the West end is the Clyde Iron works, whose plant covers ten acres approximately and enplays 300 to 400 men. The heaviest machines turned out are large four-line log-skidding machines, which are used throughout the timber sections of the United States, Mexico, and Southern Brazil. These machines weigh from 160,000 to 180,000 pounds.

The Clyde Iron works makes nearly 800 different types of log loaders and skidders. It also manufactures a stump-pulling and land-clearing machine which is operated by steam and is intended for clearing on a large scale. This machine promises to be the largest factor entering into the solution of final development of cut-over lands, not only in Northern Minnesota, but in all other timber sections where the soil and location are suitable for agriculture.

PAVING GRAND AVENUE WITH BRICK.

The people of West Duluth are delighted with the splendid paving job that Paddy McDonnell is doing on Grand avenue. Most of the work is finished and all of it will be done before cold weather will have a chance to interfere with a first-class job. While Grand avenue is being paved with brick, the brick are being laid on a foundation of Donnelite paving No. 1, which is an improvement on the celebrated Donnelite No. 2, which is giving the best of service wherever it has been laid.

The improvement in Donnelite consists is using asphalt with Donnelite instead of tar. While the asphalt increases the cost it results in a pavement less subject to changes of temperature and consequently adds to the life of the paving and to the smoothness of the street. Mr. McDonnell believes that he has devised the ideal material for street paving and everybody who has gone carefully into the matter is inclined to agree with him. The thorough manner in which Grand avenue is being paved will add to Mr. McDonnell's prestige as a paving contractor.

TO THE AUTOMOBILE OWNERS AND DRIVERS OF THE CITY OF DULUTH

Since the automobile has come Duluth has been distressed by a number of accidents all involving financial loss, many resulting in much suffering, and a few causing loss of human life. To ward against further accidents and with the hope of preventing them the Duluth Street Railway company bespeaks your intelligent co-operation. We courteously beg to call your attention to the few rules following, the observance of which will greatly lessen the danger of disasters:

RULE NO. 1 Remember that a street car weighing 25 tons cannot be stopped instantly even when moving slowly. Therefore do not dash upon the track ahead of a moving car. You may have miscalculated its speed, or that of your own car, and thus come into collision. The moment of time you save is not worth taking such risk.

RULE NO. 2 Remember in rounding corners into a street that has car tracks on it that there may be a car approaching. The motorman may not have been able to see you and street cars cannot dodge. They must go straight ahead along the track. You should be able to control your machine and its movements easily and yet automobiles frequently run into street cars that are standing still. Take corners at moderate speed and keep your eyes open in rounding them.

RULE NO 3. Remember that though a motorman, if given time, can control the speed of his car he cannot control its direction, therefore, do not run up from behind a car and race across the track ahead of it. If your way is blocked and your power dies while you are in the path of the car a mishap will surely follow.

Do not get on the track in front of a street car and make a sudden stop there to take a friend from the sidewalk. The motorman may not be able to stop before striking you and even if he is it is hardly fair to delay a car load of passengers in that way. A street car cannot go out of its course to strike you, nor to avoid being struck by your car. You have that great advantage over the motorman, besides having a lighter vehicle which is easier to stop. If you will consider these things thoughtfully and fairly you will be forced to the conclusion that in any collision between a heavy body confined to a fixed course and a lighter body free to take any course the presumption of negligence is strongly against the latter. In other words, if you will think fairly you will conclude that in most such collisions the motorman is really not to blame.

The above applies to collisions between street cars and all kinds of vehicles and pedestrians as well as automobiles.

Another thought—When a collision results from one or both parties being in a hurry which, to be perfectly fair again, has the most reason to hurry, the street car carrying 50 people to business, including physicians on urgent calls and persons going to trains, or the automobile carrying only one or two persons on similar business, or more likely a party out for pleasure?

RULE NO. 4 And lastly help the folks who do not look around when they dismount from a street car. Your approach may not be seen by them nor the noise of your machine heard. Have your machine thoroughly under control at such times. Someone may step from the exit directly into your path, or you may run upon someone who is coming around the end of the car to get to the opposite side of the street. Co-operate with us in helping to protect the pedestrian who often does not take reasonable precaution to protect himself.

If you have a chauffeur please school him in these precautions.

If you are your own driver think them over carefully.

If your wife or daughter drives your car ask her to take a reasonable view of them.

We assume that you live up to the city ordinance and do not allow children to drive your car.

If we all do our best the chances of sorrow to yourself, your family and the community will be appreciably lessened.

With the sole view of preventing accidents the above is submitted with the best of good feeling and the most courteous intentions.

HER STYLISH HATS ALL OVER TOWN

Miss Lindgren's Growing Trade Also Extends to the Mesaba Range.

A large millinery business has been built up in the store next to the corner in the fine brick block pictured alongside, at Central avenue and Bristol street, by Miss Lindgren, who has been in the same location for the past six years. Her patrons come from all parts of Duluth and from cities and towns on the Mesaba iron range.

Miss Lindgren occupies a large place, with a splendid display of trimmed and untrimmed hats of the latest styles, which her force of expert milliners make up in the large, comfortable workroom back of the shop. Two years ago she went to Europe and visited Paris, Berlin, London and other continental cities famous for their milliners, and has since had European connections which give her advance knowledge of the latest styles in European fashion centers.

Everything about the Lindgren establishment is at top-notch except the prices, which are made to fit the popular purse. The Lindgren shop can be reached by street car from all parts of the city for a single fare.

In filling teeth our dentists use pure gold. But in bridge work coin gold is employed. Coin gold is nine parts pure and one part copper by weight.

AN EXPERT JEWELER.

W. F. Hurst Makes a Specialty of Repairing Watches and Jewelry.

A first-class jewelry store, the best in West Duluth, shares the corner store in the Duluth Hospital building, pictured above, at Central avenue and Bristol street, with the Reliance pharmacy. This jewelry store has been on the same corner for seven years and is known to everybody in the western section of the city.

W. F. Hurst is the proprietor. He started in a small way and has built up a good business by his clean-cut methods and reasonable prices. He carries a fine stock of watches, clocks, jewelry, silverware, cut glass and china.

An expert jeweler himself, Mr. Hurst makes a specialty of repairing watches and jewelry of all kinds and gives such general satisfaction that he is always busy in this branch of his business.

THE RELIANCE PHARMACY CENTRAL

Adjoins the Postoffice and Library and Is Noted for Accuracy.

For more than seven years a drug store has occupied the corner of Central avenue and Bristol street, and this has become one of the most popular corner drug stores in the city. The Reliance Pharmacy occupies the corner of the ground floor of the Duluth Hospital building, pictured above, and adjoining it on Bristol street, in the same building, are the West Duluth postoffice and the West Duluth branch of the Duluth Public library.

Much of the fame of the Reliance Pharmacy rests upon its reputation for accuracy in the compounding of prescriptions. Patrons always get exactly what the prescriptions call for. The prescription department is in charge of C. J. Fosson, a graduate pharmacist, fully registered. In case of urgency, the pharmacy can be reached any hour of the night by telephone.

The Reliance Pharmacy keeps a full stock of fresh drugs and druggists' sundries, which it sells at popular prices. A. E. Swanson is the proprietor, and under his direction it has had a constant growth.

DULUTH'S BEER NOW GOES TO ALBERTA

Moose and Rex Brands Are in Big Demand in Northwestern Canada.

Beer helped to make Milwaukee and St. Louis famous and bids fair to do the same for Duluth. The purity of Lake Superior water and the purity and excellence of the beer as a whole has created a demand for Duluth beer in Western Canada. Somehow our Canadian friends cannot brew good beer. Anyhow, American beer has the call throughout Western Canada, although, having to pay duty, it is much higher in price.

The Duluth Brewing & Malting company is now sending its beer into Western Canada in large quantities. Only the other day it filled an order for a carload from Alberta, Canada, 1,300 miles away. Moose and Rex beer have an ever increasing sale and are popular wherever introduced because of their excellence and purity.

At the plant of the Duluth Brewing & Malting company, in the West end, 115 men are constantly employed. The plant covers two square blocks. The utmost cleanliness is observed in brewing and handling the product, which is noted for its splendid keeping qualities. A large bottling plant is required to supply the constantly increasing demand.

This big brewery is right on the railroad and docks. It ships as far west as Montana, as far northwest as Alberta and as far east as Eau Claire, Wis. It malts 250,000 bushels of barley each year, most of which is raised in Minnesota, giving growers of barley a high priced home market. The business of the Duluth Brewing & Malting company is increasing all the time.

Reiner Hoch is president of the company. One of his sons, Frank W. Hoch, is secretary, and another son, Walter J. Hoch, is treasurer.

A CHURCH-GOING DOG.

Kennebec Journal: And here is a dog story which comes from the Journal's Skowhegan correspondent. The story is of a fine young Shepherd dog which has strong religious tendencies. He is the dog of Elmer Decker of Hinckley. Shep is persistent in his attempts to attend Sunday services.

A late scheme of his is to get up very early Sunday morning and call upon a neighbor who takes him to church in his carriage. On arriving Shep makes a practice of walking straight up the aisle to the platform, where he takes his place in the shadow of the pulpit. There, with his nose protruding by the corner, he can see what is going on at the same time he is listening.

The other day during the minister's long prayer an automobile came chugging and tooting along, much to the disturbance of Shep's idea of the nicety of things. He rushed through the open door, with loud barking and scared the intruder away, but his manner of quieting the disturbance had a reviving effect upon the audience and our correspondent thinks the prayer must have been shortened.

WEST END REAL ESTATE HAS DOUBLED IN VALUE IN LAST FIVE YEARS

That Is the Average, Some Choice Property Having Trebled in Price.

Much Home Building Under Way in This Fine Industrial Section.

Offers Water Front, Level Sites aud Cheap Power for Factories.

So much is happening in the way of real estate movements, now that one of the greatest steel plants in the world is being erected in Duluth, that it is hard to keep track of them all, but the rapid rise of realty values in the West end, including Oneota, during the last five years, or since the Minnesota steel plant became a certainty, equals if it does not outstrip the rise of values in any other section of the city.

Real estate transfers during that period of time will show that the average increase has been 100 per cent, and in exceptional cases as high as 200 per cent. The biggest increase is in property for home building, although business property has easily doubled in price. Probably more building of homes is under way between the Point of Rocks and the Missabe ore docks than ever before in the history of the West end and Oneota.

You probably read last week that the Modern Woodmen had let the contract for a building at West First street and Twenty-first avenue west, to cost nearly $17,000. The Woodmen bought that lot four years ago for $4,000, and a year ago, or three years after the purchase, they refused an offer of $9,000. Two years ago a business corner at West Superior street and Twentieth avenue west sold for $22,000 and was sold again a year later for $27,500. Recently $30,000 was refused for 100 feet at West Superior street and Twenty-first avenue west.

Oneota, lying between the West end and West Duluth, the oldest of the three, lay neglected by home-seekers for years. During the past few years its desirability for residence close to the manufacturing plants that dot the water front all the way from the Point of Rocks to the Zenith furnace plant became evident, and in no other part of the western district has the advance in prices been more marked. Oneota rivals any section of the city today in its home building operations.

The West end has many important industrial plants, but has room for many more and all the population they will bring. Besides the best of railroad and dock facilities, like the rest of the city, it has cheap power to offer, which is told about in detail in the article about West Duluth on a preceding page. The center of the West end business district is only fifteen minutes by street car from the whole city's business center on Superior street. The West end has a score of churches of all denominations, splendid public schools and all the other many blessings which are the heritage of Duluth.

Liver merchants you never met than they have in the West end, dealers in all lines. They are felicitating themselves at this time because the council has ordered the street car company to run a spur or cut-off from West Third street down Twenty-first avenue west to connect with the Superior street line. This will connect the West end with the Grand avenue line, which is to be extended to the steal plant. The city has made an extension of the dock on Twenty-first avenue west, thus giving deep water and enabling all boats to land there. Rents in the West end are reasonable, and every man of moderate earning capacity can afford to own his own home.

The West end manufacturing plants give work to a large number of men. The Clyde Iron works employs 300 to 400. The Scott-Graff Lumber company keeps 350 to 400 busy in its big plant and has nearly as many more at work in winter in the woods. The Mullery-McDonald lumber mills employ almost as many more. On the ore docks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad 700 men are usually employed during the ore shipping season. The Duluth Street Railway company has its car barns, car shops and headquarters in the West end, and most of the men in its employ reside there. The Baxter sash and door factory employs a large number of men. The Duluth Brewing & Malting campany keeps 115 men busy. The transforming plant of the Great Northern Power company, which employs fifty men, is in the West end. An equal number of people are employed in Nelson Bros.' knitting mill. Two large candy factories, a showcase factory, a bottling works and other smaller industries furnish employment to quite a number of people.

The West End Commercial club is a body of live business men. S. W. Hill is president. Inquiries from people out of town who desire more detailed information about this section of the city, if addressed to the president of the West End Commercial club, will receive immediate attention and answers.

THE HORSE.

Chicago News: "I am informed," remarked the polite stranger, "that you keep a family horse and I congratulate you upon your wisdom. Let the insolent plutocrats ride in their motor cars, spurning the dust of the king's highway, as the poet says, but give me a horse every time."

"I don't intend to give you a horse or anything else, except a piece of my mind," said Mrs. Curfew, resentfully. "The idea of a perfect stranger with red chin whiskers coming to my door just when I'm busy cutting up the meat for a stew and asking me to give him a horse!"

"I didn't mean that you should give me a horse, madam," explained the polite stranger. "I was speaking figuratively. I have been informed that you own a horse and that it is weak and emaciated, and scarcely the thing for a refined and cultured lady like yourself. A woman must hold her head up in society and meet her friends upon an equal footing, and she can't do that if she drives an old plug with bones sticking out of it in every direction. And it is unnecessary.

"One of our greatest scientists, Dr. Swinglow, formerly veterinarian to the royal family of Denmark, has compounded a condition powder that will make the most woebegone old skate of a horse look like the charger on which Alexander rode to crimson victory. This powder—"

"I wouldn't buy any of your powder if you sold it for 5 cents a barrel and threw in a picture of George Washington crossing the ice pursued by imported Siberian bloodhounds and a troupe of jubilee singers," cried Mrs. Curfew, impatiently. "My daughter, who teaches school in the country, was in town on Sunday to visit me and she told me what happened to Mr. Sparks, and that's all I want to know about condition powders. My daughter boards with Mr. Sparks, who is a prominent farmer and a fine man.

"Mr. Sparks keeps a buggy horse and a two seated buggy for his wife and daughters when they want to go to town. They drove that animal for ten years and never had a bit of trouble with him. He was so gentle that Mrs. Sparks could tie the lines to the dashboard and go to sleep and he would take her home safe. But he had a few bones here and there and his hair stood the wrong way, and so, when an agent came along with a long rigmarole about some condition powder he was selling, Mr. Sparks listened to him and finally bought several dollars' worth of the remedy.

"He fed the powder to the horse and a few days after beginning the treatment he hitched Dobbin up for the woman and they started off for town, never dreaming of trouble. But the way Dobbin acted was a sin and a shame. My daughter says he pranced down the road like a dancing master and seemed to have the idea that he was a circus acrobat and could climb trees. After a while Dobbin got tired of fooling and got down to a dead run, and the buggy whirled along on one wheel and those unfortunate woman screamed so that all the farmers in the township ran to the rescue.

"But what could they do? What can any person do in the presence of a horse that has been eating brimstone and gun cotton for several days? The poor women saw death staring them in the face and they jumped from the buggy, and there was a steep embankment beside the road and my daughter says it would have melted a heart of stone to see them rolling down that embankment into the creek. All that was left of the buggy was put into a

BEET SUGAR IN MICHIGAN.

Michigan will harvest this year the greatest crop of sugar beets ever gathered in any state in the Union. Approximately 150,000 acres are planted and farmers will receive more than $8,000,000 for their beets. The crop prospects were never better, says the Michigan Manufacturer, the dry, hot weather advancing the beets in sugar percentage.

About 15,000 weeders are caring for the crop, the daily wage ranging from $1 to $1.50. It costs Michigan farmers about $35 an acre to harvest their beets. The usual return from an acre doubles the tilling cost.

As a beet sugar producing state Michigan now ranks first. Up to 1910 California occupied the first round of the ladder, but last year Michigan jumped far ahead of the Southern district. California and Colorado each produce two crops of beets yearly.

Factories in various parts of Michigan are now being overhauled for manufacturing the heavy yield. Additions are being constructed to practically every one of the sixteen plants.

The growing of sugar beets has become the great farm industry of the state. More acreage was offered manufacturers last spring than they would accept and the probabilities are that next year a still greater acreage than planted this year will be devoted to the crop. Farmers grow beets because they get greater profits on their investment. It costs more to grow beets than it does wheat or any of the coarse grains, but the returns are five and six times what is received for the other staples.

The average wheat yield to an acre in Michigan is about seventeen bushels. If a farmer gets $1 a bushel for his grain he considers he is making a fair profit. The beet grower averages $70 an acre for his crop, and the farmer can take out his crop even after the frost is in the ground. He does not have to put it in storage waiting for a favorable market and he knows what his returns will be when he plants the crop.

The seed from which Michigan farmers grow beets is furnished by the sugar manufacturers. It is imported from Germany and is of the finest quality. It is sold to the farmers for what it costs the manufacturers. The reason for this is that the manufacturers are desirous of bringing the sugar precentage to as high a point as possible, and if they permitted the farmers to buy their own seed there would be many growers who would purchase a cheap grade and take chances on its producing heavy.

The manufacturers are doing everything possible to assist the farmers. The grower does not have to pay out a cent for the cultivation of his crop if he so desires. That is, the money doesn't go directly from his pocket while the work is going on. The companies will pay it and take the cost from the returns of the beets when they are turned over in the fall.

JOKE OF PROUD GRANDPA.

There probably has never been a more surprised string of long distance telephone operators than those from here to Milwaukee the other day when they got through handling a call put by a man who loves to do unusual things, says the New York Sun. Mr. Stillwell, as he may be called, woke up one morning in New York to find a telegram from his son-in-law in Milwaukee saying that a granddaughter had just arrived. The son-in-law's name may be given as McLaughlin.

Mr. Stillwell went to the telephone and asked for long distance.

"I want to put in a call for Milwaukee," said he when the operator had responded. "I want to speak to Mrs. McLaughlin at 2342 —— street."

The operator repeated the name and address and then asked for the first name of the person called.

"I can't give you that," said Mr. Stillwell, "but if you call for Miss McLaughlin that will be enough. But do not forget, I don't want to speak to any one but Miss McLaughlin." He hung up the receiver and went back to his breakfast.

In a few minutes the bell whirred and Mr. Stillwell went to the 'phone in some excitement.

"Miss McLaughlin can't speak," was the message that came from the operator. "I can get Mr. McLaughlin if he will do."

"No, he won't do at all," said Mr. Stillwell with every evidence of exasperation. "Please be kind enough to find out when Miss McLaughlin will be able to speak."

He held the receiver to his ear this time and heard a wrangling afar off, a clicking of instruments and a murmur of indistinct voices. At last the answer came. It was:

"Two years!"

Meanwhile, as Mr. Stillwell found out later, his son-in-law had been having a terrible time. There was enough going on that house in Milwaukee anyway that morning, and when the 'phone bell rang the head of the household wasn't any too gentle about the way he growled. "Well, what is it?" Then he heard that New York was calling by long distance and thinking that his wife's family had chosen this way of sending its congratulations he calmed down a little. But when the operator said that Miss McLaughlin was wanted he hit the ceiling again.

"You mean Mrs. McLaughlin," said he. "Well, she can't come to the 'phone just now, but this is Mr. McLaughlin and—well, I guess somebody else will have to do since there isn't any Miss McLaugh—hold on there a minute, of course, there is a Miss McLaughlin," as a light dawned upon him.

"I guess the party in New York knew who he was calling," said the operator. "Get Miss McLaughlin to the 'phone and don't waste any time. The party is waiting."

"Tell that party in New York," said the son-in-law, who was enjoying himself by this time, "that Miss McLaughlin can't speak." Then he sat down beside the 'phone and waited. The next time the bell rang the operator repeated Mr. Stillwell's query on the subject of how soon Miss McLaughlin would be able to speak."

"Tell him two years," said the young father.

"Now, don't get fresh," snapped the operator. "There's a man waiting to get a sensible answer in New York and I ain't going to give him any such fool remark as that. Are you going to get Miss McLaughlin to the 'phone?"

"I certainly am not," said the son-in-law.

"Why not?"

"Because, my dear young lady," was the deliberate answer, "Miss McLaughlin is exactly three hours old!"

The operator's only retort was a crack in the receiver that nearly broke his ear drum.

THE POWER OF HUMAN VISION.

Harper's Weekly: A specialist has claimed that he can with the unaided eye distinguish lines ruled in glass that are only one fifty-thousandth of an inch apart, but Le Conte has limited the power of the eye to distinguish lines to one one-thousandth of an inch.

To show how immensely superior is the sense of sight in defining single things one can try it. The two points of a pair of compasses placed three inches apart on the least sensitive parts of the body will be felt as a single prick.

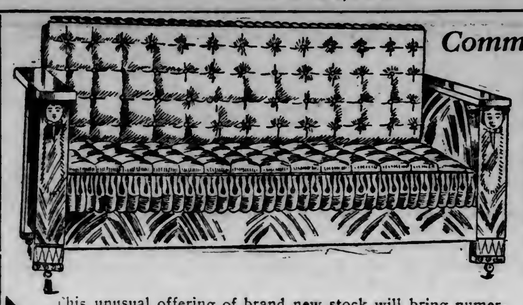

With the aid of the microscope the human eye can discern objects whose diameter is only about one one-hundred-and-eight-thousandth of an inch. It has been said that the eye of a fly can distinguish an object one five-millionth of an inch in diameter.

What we designate as the eye of a fly is really a compound eye made up of numerous lenses. Of these the common house fly has something like 4,000 in the two eyes. The structures of these lenses are well known, the optical part of each consisting of two lenses, which combined, form a double convex lens.

That each lens acts as a separate eye can be easily proved by detaching the whole of the front of the compound eye, and by manipulation with a microscope it is not difficult to examine a photograph or other object through it. When this is done a distinct image is seen in each lens.

Carpenter has shown that each lens reflects but a small portion of the image looked at and that it requires the combined action of the 4,000 lenses of the fly to produce the same effect as that seen by the one human eye. The human eye is therefore a more perfect optical instrument than the eye of the fly.

Scientists who have given considerable attention to the investigation of compound eyes have formed no opinion that would lead to the conclusion that their power of vision with respect to small objects exceeds that of the simple eyes of the higher animals. The images of objects formed in the separate lenses composing the compound eye are proportionally small, and the question whether insects can see smaller objects than animals furnished with single eyes is not a question of optics, but of the sensitiveness of the optic nerve and consequently a matter of mere conjecture.

CHASING THE PIGSKIN OVER THE WHITE LINES

Western Conference Teams Appear Evenly Matched at Present Time—Central Made Good Showing—Walker Is a Great Loss.

(BY BRUCE.)

AT LEAST two distinct surprises were sprung in the results of the Western football games of last Saturday. The sturdy foemen of South Dakota figured in the surprise at Northrup field, while Stagg's Maroons showed more strength than had generally been looked for.

We of Minnesota have been taught to look for big scores at the beginning of the season. Teams the like of South Dakota, or perhaps it would be better to say colleges the like of South Dakota, have in the past given the Gophers very little trouble. But from the accounts coming from Minneapolis, Minnesota only held her own after the first score of the game.

This does not mean that Dr. Williams is to have a weak team. It may be that the Gophers will not have the strength of the great machine of last season, and the most sanguine follower of the team could hardly expect it; but, nevertheless, low scores in the first two games are not an indication to be figured on for later accomplishments.

Men like little McGovern Lisle Johnson, big Jim Walker, Young and others, cannot be lost to any eleven and their absence not felt very keenly. But with the material at hand Doc Williams may yet develop a conference winner, for often these powerful teams gather strength at the latter part of the season. One of the most striking examples of this fact was the defeat of the University of Chicago, a team true and tried, by the green but heavy eleven of Michigan.

Minnesota has some good material at hand and should show faster development the present week. With the Nebraska game two weeks off there are two strenuous weeks of industrious drilling laid squarely at the door of the Minnesota coaches.

Chicago sprung surprise number two. It was expected by many that the contest between Papa Stagg's team and Jimmy Sheldon's Hoosiers would be a game in which a very close score would figure. But either the strength of the Maroons has been underrated, or the Indiana team is not as strong as it has been in the past.

Jimmy Sheldon is a pupil, one of the favorite students at the Stagg school, and it has been an ambition of his to beat the team of his old instructor. Jimmy realized this ambition last season, but fell woefully short of repetition in the struggle of Saturday.

Michigan showed flashes of power in the game with little Case. The Cleveland school has one of the scrappiest teams in the Middle West and in the past has held the Wolverines to a low score. Reports of the contest indicate that Michigan had trouble in making its distance at several stages of the game, and at other times showed a powerful and well concerted attack for so early in the season.

Little is known of the strength of Milliken, the team opposed to Illinois in last Saturday's contest. Therefore the score of 33 to 0 rolled up by the Illini has little value up this way, except to one witnessing the game, as an indication of the strength of one of the conference teams that is expected to give Minnesota perhaps its hardest game the present season.

At first glance the score of Wisconsin's victory over Lawrence looks impressive, this, too, in comparison with some of the scores, or lack of scores, the Badgers have made against some of their little opponents of these past lean years. But the reports of the game say that Richards' heavy men failed to make much ground in line plunging plays, the lighter forwards of the Methodist team breaking through frequently and spilling the Badger interference and spoiling the play.

But even the fact that the Badgers were able to defeat Lawrence by the score of 15 to 0 carries some weight, for in the past, during these dismal days of the ultra purity investigation and the faculty frown upon all things athletic, horseplay to hazing, Wisconsin has at times found it a monumental task to hold the small and despised opponents of former years on an even footing.

Taken on the whole though there should be the accompanying warning of the unreliability of early season scores, and we hark back to last season's early score of Minnesota and Michigan for proof, the results of Saturday would indicate a very even condition of affairs among the conference teams.

Chicago showed unexpected strength and Minnesota appears weaker than last season. The Badgers have at least the element of power, while Illinois is expected to have another strong team. That would indicate, so far at least, four of the teams running pretty even, and close competition is needed to keep the weak-kneed conference alive with Michigan out of the fold.

SPEAKING further of football, just a few words on the defeat of Central at the hands of the Normal team. All of the credit of the game should go to the losing team. In many departments of the contest Central outplayed its heavier opponents, but when you pit men, and the word is used in its literal meaning, who have played for years against mere kids, no other result is to be looked for.

The defeat of Saturday is in nowise a disgrace or even a blot on the record of the team, or the record the team expects and should make the present season.

It looked ridiculous at times to see fellows the size of some of the Normals opposed to players of the diminutive dimensions of young Crasswheller and McClaran. Central's team is light and fast, and is more than all, plucky. The boys didn't quit fighting once in the contest of Saturday, and twice in the third quarter, had the fortunes of war been more propitious to the cause of Duluth, the game would most likely have gone to the smaller team.

But excuses are not wanted in sport and are not intended here. It is merely to mention that the game was not one-sided, for at times the lighter team played its heavier opponents off their feet. The fact is that Central has been terribly outweighed in both of its contests this season. Against a high school team of somewhere near its own weight there is no reason to believe that the hill top boys will not win in decisive fashion.

Central has a team of fighters, and pluck is something that appeals to all of us. As far as football goes, the finest exhibition of the game in this part of the Head of the Lakes is being given in the high school games, and despite a defeat by an older and heavier team composed of veterans of several years standing, the high school eleven is deserving of the students of the big school and those others in Duluth who like their football unmarred and made unsportsmanlike by wrangling and a cheap display of muckerism.

AN IMPULSIVE writer on the St. Paul Dispatch rises in youthful wrath and indignation and remarks that big Jim Walker will not be missed from the Minnesota team the present season. That remark is so funny that it must have already created many a side ache in football circles.

Jim Walker, be it known, was Walter Camp's choice for All American tackle. He is probably the greatest tackle developed at Minnesota. Because Walker decided not to play the present season, no matter what the reason was, it sounds so doggone silly to say that he won't be missed, that one is inclined to believe that the writer penning that remark was real angry at Jim and just wanted to let the whole big world know, be gosh, that Minnesota could get along without him.

Minnesota will get along without Walker, someway, but the team won't be the same. Walker has been a human tower of strength and some of those who witnessed the contest with Michigan last season will not forget his playing for some time to come.

No, despite the real peeved statement of the St. Paul writer, Jim Walker will be missed, and missed pretty badly at that.

OSCAR SOLHEIM OUT FOR TEAM

Good news to the sturdy supporters of Central high school football team is contained in the statement that Oscar Solheim, one of the best centers who ever played for the hilltop institution, will be out for the team this afternoon.

Solheim did not finish school last year and is going back for more work. His presence on the team will be a tower of strength for the Central line, which has showed signs of weakness in both of the games played this season.

The coming of Solheim probably means a shift in the line. Just what players will be changed around, is not known at the present time. Osman may be shifted to guard, or "Swede" O'Brien might be moved into one of the guard positions.

But with a heavy and husky player of the stamp of Solheim in the pivotal line position, there should be a world of improvement in the work of the Central forwards, which should be shown in the next game that the hilltop boys play.

PEDERSEN BEGINS WORK.

Jess Pederson, the big Scandinavian wrestler who expects to figure in the world's championship wrestling contests the present season, and who is planning one of the greatest campaigns in the history of wrestling in this country, started his American invasion at the Harlem Casino, New York, last week, throwing three opponents in 22 minutes and 40 seconds.

Phil Krieg, Ernest Faust and Max Lehner were the men pinned to the mat by the gigantic Scandinavian. From the accounts of the work of Pedersen, he is one of the strongest men that has ever come to this country and also seems to have a pretty deep knowledge of the catch-as-catch-can style.

As Pedersen has scored victories over some of the greatest of the wrestlers on the other side of the pond, his showing against the American wrestlers will be watcher with interest. Negotiations are being carried on at the present time to have Pedersen wrestle Pilakoff a finish match in Duluth.

Northrop Field, Minneapolis, Oct. 9.—One of the largest crowds that ever witnessed an early season game on Northrop field was on hand Saturday when the University of Minnesota football team defeated South Dakota university, 5 to 0. It was the Gophers' second game of their 1911 schedule.

Consternation was thrown into the ranks of the Gopher rooters when it was announced just before the game started that "Biggy" Robinson, last year's powerful linesman, would not be allowed to play. Robinson took a condition examination Thursday and the professor in the subject told Dr. Williams shortly after noon that Robinson had failed to pass by a fraction of 1 per cent.

The discouraging news of Robinson's fate was partly counteracted by the news that Morrell, last year's center, had been declared eligible. The day was as near perfect as if it had been made to order. The cadet band was out in full force.

The South Dakota team appeared considerably lighter than the Gophers. The play in detail:

The Game.

Capt. Pickering won the toss from Capt. C. Coffey, and decided to kick off. South Dakota defended the east goal. Hanson kicked off to South Dakota on their five-yard line. Imlay received the ball and returned it ten yards. Thackaberry punted to Capron on Minnesota's sixty-yard line who returned it to South Dakota's forty-five yard line. Capron went around right for fifteen yards. Stevens failed to gain off right tackle.

Capron went around left end for eight yards. Rosenwald went through left tackle for three yards. Capron went around right end for two yards. The ball was on the Coyotes' three-yard line. Rosenwald went around right but was downed one yard from the goal. South Dakota was penalized one-half of the distance to the goal line for holding. Stevens went through the left side of the South Dakota line for the first touchdown of the game. The ball went under the goal posts and a kickout was unnecessary. Pickering failed to kick goal. Score: Minnesota 5, South Dakota 0.

Sheeks kicked off for South Dakota to Shaughnessy who returned the ball to the twenty-five yard line. Capron went around left for first down, putting the ball on Minnesota's thirty-seven yard line. Stevens failed to gain around rightend. Capron failed to gain around rightend.

Pickering punted to Thackaberry on his own thirty-yard line. He ran out of bounds on the forty-yard line. Sheeks went around Minnesota's right end for twenty yards. Thackaberry failed to gain arbund Minnesota's left end. Time was taken out, Wallender being injured. Thackaberry attempted an end run but was thrown for fifteen yards loss. Thackaberry punted to Ralph Capron who fumbled, but recovered the ball on Minnesota's thirty-three yard line.

Capron went through the line for a one-yard gain. Stevens failed to gain through the line. Pickering punted and the ball was fumbled by P. Coffey and Thackaberry received it on South Dakota's forty-three yard line. The ball was called back and the Coyotes were penalized five yards. Capron went around left end for three yards.

South Dakota was again penalized five points for being off side. Rosenwald was thrown for a one-yard loss trying to get through center. Capron went around right end for one yard. South Dakota was again penalized five yards for being off side, making first down for Minnesota. Capron failed to gain and fumbled the ball. Pat Coffey got the fumble, but was tackled in his tracks. South Dakota fumbled and Rosenwald got the ball on his own 45-yard line. Capron failed to gain through the line.

Rosenwald gained five yards through left tackle. Rosey was hurt in the play. He was taken out and Lawler took his place at left half. Stevens made three yards. Stevens made one yard through center. The first quarter ended with the ball in Minnesota's possession in the center of the field. Score: Minnesota 5, South Dakota 0.

Second Quarter.

Stevens went through center for three yards. Capron went around right end for first down. He put the ball on the Gophers' 43-yard line. Minnesota attempted a forward pass. Pickering threw the ball to Stevens, but it was intercepted by Potts. The play was called back. Pickering went through the line for three yards. Minnesota tried another pass, but it was again intercepted, this time by Thackaberry. South Dakota got the ball on their own 33-yard line. Hanson was injured, but resumed play.

Thackaberry made fifteen yards around Minnesota's left end. Sheeks was thrown for a three-yard loss around the other end. Thackaberry failed to gain around Minnesota's left end. Thackaberry punted to Capron, who fumbled the ball, but recovered and was tackled without a gain. It was Minnesota's ball on her own 37-yard line. Capron lost one yard attempting to get around South Dakota's right end. Minnesota was penalized fifteen yards for holding in the line.

Lawler made seven yards around left end. Capron failed to gain through center. Capron punted to the center of the field where Coffey fumbled and Smith of Minnesota got it. It was Minnesota's ball in the center of the field.

Third Quarter.

Wilkey went in at right guard in place of Goddard for the South Dakota team. There were no changes in the Gophers' line-up. Sheeks kicked off for South Dakota to Stevens on the 5-yard line who returned the ball to the 20-yard line. South Dakota was off-side on the kick-off and the ball was taken back to the 50-yard line where Sheeks again kicked off, the ball going to Lawler who returned the ball from the 10-yard line to the 30-yard line. He fumbled, but the ball was regained by Minnesota. Lawler gained three yards through the line.

Lawler fumbled and South Dakota got the ball. Sheeks made five yards around Minnesota's right end. Thackaberry went around Minnesota's left end for five yards. He ran out of bound, but the run gave the Coyotes first down. Fallender was again injured, but resumed play.

Capt. Pickering was disqualified for rough playing and the Gophers were penalized half of the distance to the goal. The penalty put the ball on Minnesota's 8-yard line. Paul Tobin replaced Pickering.

Hayward took Capron's place at quarterback. Hayward gained three yards through the line. Stevens made first down by carrying the ball to the 23-yard line. Lawler fumbled, but recovered and gained four yards. Hayward failed to gain through the line. Minnesota lost the ball on downs on the 30-yard line.

Thackaberry started around Minnesota's left end, and he fumbled, but recovered the ball on the 36-yard line. Sheeks lost five yards trying to get around right end. Thackaberry was thrown for a five-yard loss trying to circle left end. The ball was called back and South Dakota was penalized fifteen yards for holding. On a forward pass, Thackaberry to Sheeks, South Dakota gained ten yards.

PRESIDENT IS PLEASED

Chicago, Oct. 9.—With final games played on Eastern fields Saturday the closing games of the 1911 American league season were played in the West yesterday. Detroit losing two games to St. Louis and Chicago winning from Cleveland.

As in case of all preceding pennant races interest never lagged until the final games were played. Brilliant play throughout the season clinched the leading position for Philadelphia and Detroit leaving the award of minor berths to closely bunched teams representing New York, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston. By virtue of its victory over Cleveland yesterday, Chicago finished the season in fourth place, a fraction ahead of Boston. Cleveland was third, Boston fifth, New York sixth, Washington seventh and St. Louis eighth. President Johnson of the Americans issued the following last night:

"The close of the American league season marks the best and grandest year this association has even known. From a financial standpoint the year has been a success for all clubs. Not this alone contributes to the history-making year, however, for the opening of new parks and the allowing of Sunday ball in Cleveland were important factors.

"The race itself developed a few disappointments. The victory of the Philadelphia Athletics under Manager Mack was to be expected. Mack built up a team for this race that even exceeded his 1910 champions, but nevertheless the defeat of the Detroit club for the greater part of the season, made the race far from a one-sided affair. A victory such as I am anticipating for Philadelphia in the world's series will be a crowning achievement for the American league."

ADAMS DEFEAT BROADWAYS.

Duluth Team Runs Away With Superior Eleven at Football.

The Adams defeated the Broadways of Superior at Hislop park yesterday by the score of 25 to 6. The Adams did not meet with strenuous opposition upon the part of the Superior team, though the Broadways never quit and fought out an uneven contest gamely to the end.

The playing of Buchanan of Superior for the Adams, featured the contest. Stevens also put up a strong game at left half and Kriz at quarter ran his team well and showed good generalship. Quimby, the husky oarsman, at guard, was also a stout rock for the attack of the Broadways.

The contest was cleanly played and unmarred by disputes:

The lineup:

| Adams. | | Broadways. |
|---|---|---|
| Hanson | c. | Michie |

NORMAL WINS FIERCE GAME

Centrals Beaten By Heavier Opponents By Score of 8 to 0.

Superior Normal won from Duluth Central high Saturday in the second football game of the season, the score being 8 to 0 in favor of the pedigogues. Along the lines of general play there was little to choose between the two teams. Outweighed over ten pounds to the man and playing against a team of players who have, at least some of them, played for four and five seasons, Central loses no prestige by making so gallant a fight against odds so overwhelming.

There was one star in the game of Saturday whose playing stood out and stamped him as one of the best high school players in the state. This was Capt. Bob Mars of Central and never in the history of football at Athletic park has there been a greater exhibition of end playing than that given by the blonde leader of Central.

Time and time again the heavy normals tried the left wing, charging on Mars with heavy and compact interference. With that intuition of following the ball that marks the true football player, Mars spotted his man repeatedly and dived with smashing force and brilliant attack through the heavy wall of protection, invariably throwing the runner for a loss. Last season Mars was considered one of the best ends in this part of the state at least. If he continues to play in the form he has shown in the two games the present season he will make one of the greatest by third scholl wing men in the entire state and will prove a valuable man for some college team.

"Swede" O'Brien was a worthy second to the playing of Mars. O'Brien broke through again and again against his heavier opponent, and few were the gains registered on the left side of the line. O'Brien was full of fight and his playing was an inspiring example to the other players on the line.

McClaran played a heady and fighting game, the best game he has played with Central. He ran the team well, and had Kerns and Currie been able to hold the two perfect passes that landed squarely in their hands inside the enemy's 5-yard line, McClaran would have received credit for outgenerating Normal and calling for plays that came at precisely the right time.

But Currie and Kerns cannot be blamed, for this season seems one, so far at least, when forward passes are being dropped by every team. Cleanly executed forward passes have been the exception the present season.

Mat Brown worked like a Trojan, but found it awfully hard going against the heavy men that often swept away the light interference of Central and bore the runner back simply by brute force. Brown, simply through his strength and speed, made most af the gains for the high school.

The gains of neither team were consistent, and both resorted to punting frequently on the third down. In the first half neither Central nor the Normal seriously threatened to score, but in the third quarter Central twice worked the ball within about twenty yards of Normal's goal, and here a forward pass to Currie seemed for a moment sure of scoring a touchdown for the high school team.

Currie received the pass squarely in his hands and then allowed it to roll on the ground. Normal punted out from here, and on a formation play Central again brought the oval within striking distance of the enemy's goal. Dutch Jeronimus made one of the most accurate passes that a player could execute, right into the waiting arms of Johnny Kerns. Johnny was too anxious to get away, and the second chance for Central to score, a sure chance, was thrown away.

Normal scored through a forward pass to Peterson, the fast little end, who ran 60 yards for a touchdown, eluding the secondary defense of Central. Underhill booted the ball over the crossbars from the 25-yard line for the second score of the game.

The lineup:

| Duluth Central. | | Superior Normal. |
|---|---|---|
| Jeronimus | re. | Peterson |
| O'Brien, Hunter | rf. | Smith |
| St. Clair, Fr'mth | rg. | Susans |
| Currie | lt. | Daley |

| Goetz | lg. | May |
| McClaran | qb. | Twohy |
| Osman | c. | Welke |
| Crassweiler | l. | H. McGowan |
| Kerns | rh. | Hombeck |
| Brown | fb. | McQueen |

Officials—Furni, Coburn and Buchanan. Timekeeper—Phillips.

GREAT RUSH FOR TICKETS

New York, Oct. 9.—Despite the repeated announcements that only applications forwarded by mail would be given attention, hundreds of enthusiasts bubbling over with desire to see one or more games of the series for the world's championship baseball series besieged the offices of the commission. Special officers who stood guard, however, turned back everybody.

Inside the office a heavy clerical force kept at work assorting the mail orders. After a busy Sunday Secretary Gray was hardly able to see daylight through the great piles of applications and there is another day yet for the accumulation to increase. "The greatest rush on record for baseball tickets" is what those familiar with the history of worlds' series advance sales call it.

At Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Every reserved seat for the first two games in this city between the Philadelphia American league team and the New York team of the National league for the world's championship already has been disposed of and the management at Shibe park was engaged all of today returning checks and money orders to unsuccessful applicants.

All out-of-town requests for tickets were refused as there were not enough to supply the demands of local patrons of the club.

The seating capacity of Shibe park, grand stand and bleachers is nearly 25,000. It is expected that about 35,000 persons will witness the first game as standing room in the enclosure will accommodate between 5,000 and 10,000 spectators.

In circling bases Bescher defeated Hauser; Oakes, Wille, Harmon, Grant, Marsans and Balentine.

Gaspar won the pitchers' control event, defeating Harmon, Golden, Geyer and Laudermilk.

FAIRMONTS TIE WITH JEFFERSONS

Yesterday, at Athletic park, the Jeffersons of the East end and the champion Fairmont Tigers of West Duluth fought through a hard fought and cleanly played 0 to 0 football contest.

There was little to choose between the playing of the two teams. Near the close of the game the Jeffersons were going down the field for good gains, but at other times the Fairmonts showed the best ground gaining abilities, so that there was really no advantage that could be claimed by either of the teams that are in the running for the city championship.

There was no rough or dirty play on either side, the playing of both teams being fair and sportsmanlike all through the contest. Games like that of yesterday are a good thing for city football and show up in a bad light those contests marked and marred by fighting.

The ball was carried up and down the field, though neither team could gain first down with any degree of consistent regularity. Kicking was frequent and for the most part the punts were cleanly handled. The playing was good and the handling of the ball was clean.

The lineup:

| Fairmonts— | | Jeffersons— |
|---|---|---|
| Shoven | c. | Mather |
| Morgan | rg. | Melberg |

ON THE IRON RANGES

OLD FRIENDS HIS VICTIMS

Latest Reports of Eveleth Broker's Disappearance Swell Amount.

Mining Captains Are Said to Have Been Stung By Missing Man.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The disappearance of Broker Tredinnick after a spectacular career here when he became secretary of the commercial club and was otherwise honored, continues the reigning sensation. It is currently reported now that he got away with even more than first reported, the belief being that $50,000 would about represent the figure. He is said to have lost all his ill-gotten wealth, the report being that Duluth friends loaned him enough money to get out of the country.

Came From England.

As he was an Englishman by birth, coming originally to Ironwood, Mich., from Cornwall with his parents, he is said to have caught many English people among his victims, men who had known him on the Michigan ranges, especially mining captains, being his chief victims.

The missing man is believed to have gone to England where his parents, who recently left this country, are also believed to have gone. From England he is supposed to have taken ship for some South American country, where it would be easy to keep out of the clutches of Uncle Sam. If any local effort is being made to arrest the fugitive, it is not known here.

Some mining captains, who first interested Tredinnick in the mining industry on his arrival from England about six years ago, are said to have lost heavily. They brought him to Hibbing six years ago to work as timekeeper and after he had engaged in the mining industry for a couple of years and had also done some printing, with a capital of $2,000, he entered the brokerage business.

LEONIDAS' HOUSES ARE NOW OCCUPIED

Dwellings Erected at Eveleth Location Are Proving to Be Popular.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mine employes are moving into the twenty-five houses recently completed in the Leonidas location. The addition of the twenty-five dwellings gives the new location about forty homes.

The location adjoins the Leonidas shaft which has reached a depth of about 450 feet. The shaft is a two compartment one and will be sunk 620 feet eventually. Shipping operations from the new property will start next season. The dryhouse, machine and boiler shops which were recently completed are now being occupied. The new dwellings were erected by Contractor August Grande of Virginia.

It is reported ore has been found by the Cole & McDonald drill on the north end of Grant avenue the main business thoroughfare. Five holes have been sunk and it is likely more drills will be operated later. The land is being drilled for the fee owners, Murphy, Door & Flynn. The four drills that were installed near the Iron Range tracks last May are still being operated as are the drills near the Virginia stripping.

VIRGINIA POSTAL BANK IS POPULAR

Has 200 Depositors and About $10,000 Is on Deposit.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to the Herald.)—The deposits in the local postal savings bank have passed the $10,000 mark. There are nearly 200 depositors.

The patronage of the foreign born element is not as large as anticipated, but is growing and there are quite a number of that class of depositors. It is thought that the fact that European banks pay the depositors from American sources 4 per cent interest on deposits, whereas Uncle Sam pays only 2 per cent gives the European bankers the advantage. All classes here are patronizing the local institution.

McALPINE TO SETTLE.

Quoted as Saying He Would Pay Up Alleged Shortage.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city will lose nothing through the alleged shortage of Ex-City Clerk McAlpine, who is claimed to have failed to account for about $12,000 collected from users of water and light. He says he can personally make good $7,000, and he expects to secure the balance. He will make the settlement whether prosecuted or not, he says.

GUNMEN WILL APPEAL.

Pair Heavily Fined Will Carry Their Case Higher.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The district court will pass on the action of Judge Brady Friday in fining Fritzi Craic $100 and costs and Mike Thomas $50 and costs for making threats with pistols, as the pair have put up bonds and announced their intention to resist paying the fines.

New Carlton Township.

Clooquet, Minn., Oct. 9.—A new township, known as Perch Lake, is to be formed in Carlton county out of the east half of section 49-19 and all of 49-18. A special election for town officers will be held next Saturday at Old Camp mine in 24, 49-18. The territory is all unorganized land in Fond du Lac reservation, and with the exception of the west half of section 49-17 is the last of the unorganized territory in Carlton county. A petition is being circulated and will soon be presented to the county commissioners asking that this latter section be joined to the township of Knife Falls, now the smallest town in the county.

FARMERS HAVE LARGE YIELDS

Thrashing Reports in Itasca County Thus Far Are Very Good.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thrashing is pretty well along in this section, and good yields of grain are reported. Oats, barley, wheat and rye, ranking in quantity in the order named, are the chief grain crops raised in this section, and almost every farmer has a patch of at least two or more of the above named grains. Fred Ingersoll, who has done most of the thrashing in this vicinity, states that it is quite hard to arrive at an estimate of the amount of grain per acre, as the record of the amount of grain thrashed which he has covers the entire crop of grains of each farmer, and the average arrived at by dividing by the number of acres each has would not be a true average of production of the various different crops. However, he states that oats runs between 50 and 65 bushels per acre; rye, 13 to 15 bushels per acre; wheat, 25 bushels per acre, and barley, 35 bushels per acre.

ELY BLACKSMITH SHOT BY FRIEND

Gets Charge in Back as Companion Attempts to Shoot Rabbit.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Dorman, a blacksmith was accidentally shot Sunday while rabbit hunting by his hunting partner, John Crane. The two men were walking along a path in the woods near the Lucky Boy mine, Dorman in the lead. A rabbit jumped across the trail right ahead of the men, Crane pulled up his gun and fired at the rabbit but struck his partner instead. The charge of shot tore a hole in his side just above the hip. Dorman was taken to the Shipman hospital where his injuries were attended to. The wound is a bad one and his recovery is as yet uncertain. The shooting occurred about 5 o'clock and it required nearly two hours to bring the injured man to medical attention. He is very weak from loss of blood.

Kills Big Black Bear.

Alderman John Harri and Harry Homer who were out bird hunting Sunday, shot and killed a large black bear at an old logging camp on the north arm of Burnside lake. The bear was a particularly large one estimated to weigh in the neighborhood of 300 pounds. Harry Homer came face to face with the bear and shot him with a charge of fine shot striking the animal in the forehead killing it instantly.

TWO VIRGINIANS PLACED IN JAIL

Both Are Heads of Families and Face Non-Support Charges.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to the Herald.)—Two men are in the city jail charged with abusing their wives and failing to properly support them. Both have fairly large families.

Oscar Weldon has been working on the streets, but recently, according to his wife, has not only failed to provide the family with food and proper clothing, but has grossly abused her and the children ranging in ages from four months to eight years. There are four children. It is said that he has been drinking heavily for some time and outside interference was necessary to prevent further abuse.

Police Called In.

Erick Martin has been married seven years and there are three children in the family, aged three, five and six. The police were called to stop the alleged disorder in the home said to be due to the drunkenness of the husband and the abuse of his wife, who also alleges non-support.

The accused were arraigned before Judge Carey this morning and after hearing the evidence the court decided to release them on probation, telling them if they failed to support their families or indulged in any more abuse they would be sent to the county jail.

BOOKS ARE OFF OVER $3,000,000

Washington Navy Yard Bookkeeping Shows Up Badly.

Washington, Oct. 9.—A discrepancy of over $3,288,271 between the material on hand and that called for by the books of the Washington navy yard was shown by the inventory of that yard just completed, according to an announcement by Secretary of the Navy Meyer today.

This is the first inventory of record made at this yard within the last twenty-five years.

This discrepancy is attributed to loose bookkeeping methods, which Secretary Meyer set out some time ago to correct.

GOTCH AND MAHMOUT WILL TOUR THE WORLD

Advices from Chicago state that negotiations are being completed for the bringing together of the greatest wrestling card in the history of the game to tour the world with Frank A. Gotch. It is stated that Yussif Mahmout may be secured for the show, in which event it would be the greatest athletic combination since the halcyon days when Mouldoon and Whistler toured the world, meeting all comers.

According to the information, this big combination will start its world tour at Kansas City and the biggest cities of this country will be played. After touring the United States, both Gotch and Mahmout wrestling finish matches with all comers, the band of world famous athletes will strike out for England, where one of the highest prices ever paid for a combination of athletes has been offered for the troupe.

From England it is planned to go to Australia, Japan, India, and in fact every country of the civilized world. The tour may even take in South Africa.

It is also announced that with the end of the tour, unless Gotch concludes his career with one more big match with the best man in the field at the present time, which will be either Zbyszko, Mahmout or Pedersen, he will retire forever.

Gotch is rich, about that there cannot be the least doubt. He has met most of the big men before the public and he has won about all the honors an athlete can. He is recognized today as the greatest athlete in the world, and as such has won the admiration of the American people.

His tour with such a famous wrestler as Yussif Mahmout, will be a fitting climax to the career of perhaps the greatest wrestler since the first match was ever wrestled in any style, clear back in the dark ages. Frank Gotch combines strength, clearness of mind and wonderful speed with a knowledge of every trick of the game. He is a man in 10,000,000 and it is to be doubted if the American people will ever again look upon his equal.

GIANTS ARE LIONIZED

New York Is Baseball Mad at Present Time, Says Easterner.

McGraw, Mathewson and Marquard Are Heroes of the Hour.

George J. Hauser of New York, at the Spalding today, stated that New York was literally baseball mad. Never before in the history of the game in the little old town, according to Mr. Hauser, has there been the talk of the game and the general excitement there is now.

"The pictures of McGraw and his pennant winners are in the windows along Broadway, and the one topic of conversation in the cafes and on the street, is whether the Giants will be able to repeat the victory they won over the Athletics in 1905," said Mr. Hauser.

"New York has almost won the pennant a number of times since the year it defeated the Philadelphia team in the world's series. New York fans will never forget the time Merkle forgot to tag second base. We have always been up fighting for the lead, and now that we have gained our long cherished ambition, the big town can hardly contain itself for pure joy.

"McGraw can have anything in the city. Mathewson and Marquard are just about as popular. There is not a player on the team that isn't lionized when he goes to the theater or is seen on the streets. There is nothing too good for the boys who have brought the flag to Manhattan.

"I left New York before the pennant was absolutely cinched, but even then there was not the least doubt but that the Giants would land. Even then preparations were being made for the world's series, if not officially, then by the man on the street, who was figuring even then on the best way to obtain a ticket.

"It is estimated that ever 50,000 people can be crowded into the new Polo grounds, and if indications point clearly to the size of the crowd that will witness the first game in New York, it will be simply a matter of how many fanatical and wild-eyed fans can be packed into the huge enclosure.

"When Chicago and New York played off that post-season game in the fall of 1908, New York was baseball mad, and mad had a literal meaning. One of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a game of baseball in this country was crowded into the grounds that day. But if the interest in the coming series between the two pennant winners is any indication of the number of people who want to see the games, and are going to make an effort to witness them, all attendance records in the history of the game will be broken.

"Along in front of the big newspaper plants on Park Row, during the afternoons that the scores were coming in from the games the Giants were playing on this last Western trip, were vast mobs that at times blocked traffic. Along in front of stores that received special returns of the games, crowds gathered, intensely eager to know the result of the game.

"If you should walk along the street after the result of the game became known, you would hear men in twos and threes, or here and there a knot of fans, standing and discussing the chances of the Giants to win the flag, or their chances in the game of the next day. When a big city goes literally and happily baseball mad, and its inhabitants breathe and eat in the atmosphere of the national sport, you begin to realize what a hold that game has."

BERGDOLL WINS GREAT RACE

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—In one of the greatest road races ever seen in this section, Erwin Bergdoll, a Philadelphia amateur driver, won the Quaker City motor club 202½-mile automobile race with a ninety-horse-power Benz car in Fairmount park this afternoon. His time was 3 hours, 18 minutes and 41 35-100 seconds.

Wishart, in a Mercedes, was second, time 3 hours, 21 minutes, 52 78-100 seconds; Ralph Mulford was third in 3 hours, 21 minutes, 52 78-100 seconds. Len Zengel, who won the race last year in a Chadwick, finished fourth in a national. His time was 3 hours, 25 minutes, 59 36-100 seconds.

Bergdoll drove a wonderful race. He not only lowered the record course which was 3.29.07 88-100 made last year, but he twice lowered today the record for the lap.

Beavers and Maroons Tie.

In one of the cleanest, squarest and best-fought games ever played between two junior teams in this city, the Beavers and Maroons played to a 0 to 0 tie Sunday at the Athletic park. Despite the fact that the Maroons took the pick of the Tiger team to help them out and that the Beavers were minus their regular quarterback, the teams were evenly matched. The game was marked by the friendliness which existed on both sides, there not being the semblance of a quarrel during the entire game.

HISTORY OF THE PLAYERS

Some Facts About John McGraw's Great National League Team.

Mathewson Was Only Man on Nine When "Muggsy" Took Charge.

New York, Oct. 9.—Whence hail the New York Nationals?. The fourteen performers of New York's star baseball team, the men who are expected by the local enthusiasts to drive the world's championship pennant hard and fast to the flag pole at the Polo grounds—were born in nine states and come of many nationalities. The average age of the players is but a trifle over 25 years and their average term is service in New York uniforms runs a few months over four years.

One looks in vain among the galaxy of stars for a native of New York city. But two, in fact, were born within the boundaries of the Empire state. Four of the other eight states have contributed two of their best baseball peers to make a New York pennant winning team: Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, and California. The remaining four find their birthplaces in Maryland, Wisconsin, Indiana and the District of Columbus.

Christy Mathewson, one of McGraw's star twirlers, "the greatest of all," many say—is the veteran of the team with ten years service to his credit. He overtops the second man, Ames, by two years, while Wiltz and Devlin tie for third honors with seven years each. Meyers, the big Indian catcher, and heavy hitter and Murray have been but two years in continuous service with the Giants. Herzog rejoined the team this year, but McGraw brought him back in 1908 and exchanged him two years later for Becker of the Boston team.

Fletcher has been two and a half years with the team, while Josh Devore, smallest and fastest player in the big league, joined the pennant winners last year. The two previous seasons he spent with Utica and Newark.

Larry Doyle, captain of the National league leaders, is 24 years old. He was born in Caseyville, Ill., and has been four years with the New Yorks. Fletcher, 25 years old, was born in Collinsville, Ill. Herzog, 24, is a native of Baltimore, Md. Warren, Pa., contributed Ames. He is 27 years old. Wiltz hails from Hamilton, N. Y. He is 28. Merkle was born 23 years ago in Watertown, Wis. Devore, youngest of the fourteen, was born in Murray City, Ohio, less than 23 years ago.

Crandall, 23, is a native of Wadina, Ind. Devlin, who with Mathewson, claims seniority of age, is 31 years, was born in Washington, D. C. Marquard, "the $11,000 beauty," first saw the light in Cleveland, Ohio. He is 23. Meyers, whose father is a full-blooded Indian, was born 28 years ago in Riverside, Cal. "Matty" was born in Factoryville, Pa. Snodgrass is a "native son" of California, his birthplace being Ventura, and his age 23 years. Four of the players participated in the series of 1905 when the team last won the championship pennant. They are Mathewson, Ames, Devlin and Wiltze. Mathewson is the only man on the team, who was there when John McGraw took over the reins of management.

ALL READY FOR BIG ROAD RACE

Fifteen Cars Will Start in 200-Mile Run at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—Ideal autumn weather prevails for the 200-mile automobile road race in Fairmount park this afternoon, which was postponed from Saturday until today because of rain, and a great race is looked for.

The original entry list numbered eighteen cars, but it is probable that only fifteen will start. They will be piloted by some of the best known drivers in the country. Len Zengle, winner of last year's contest; Harry Grant, two-time Vanderbilt cup winner, Ralph Mulford and Ralph De Palma, are among the professionals who will start, and among the amateurs are Erwin Bergdoll and Fred Betz of this city.

The race will start at 12 o'clock and will be run over 8 1.10 miles of roads in Fairmount park. The cars will go twenty-five times around, making the exact distance 202½ miles. Twenty-eight hundred city policemen and park guards will be on duty to handle the crowds.

The big race is held under the auspices of the Quaker City Motor club in conjunction with the city of Philadelphia.

The entries: No. 1, withdrawn; No. 2, National, Len Zengle; No. 3, Lozier, Ralph Mulford; No. 4, Cole, Charles Basle; No. 5, Mercer, Ralph De Palma; No. 6, National, Donald Herr; No. 7, Case, Joseph Jagersberger; No. 8, Benz, Erwin Bergdoll; No. 9, Lozier, Harry Grant; No. 10, Stuz, G. Anderson; No. 11, Mercer, Hugh Hughes; No. 12, Ohio, George Parker; No. 14, Bergdoll, Grover Bergdoll; No. 15, Fiat, Fred Betz; No. 16, National, Louis Disbrow; No. 17, Mercedes, Spencer Wishart; No. 18, Mercedes, Willie Wallace.

No. 1 car was withdrawn because Lee Oldfield, its driver, whose car killed eleven persons at Syracuse, several weeks ago, took to heart the criticism aimed against him here for entering another race so soon after that accident.

RACE TRACK MEN WIN.

Butte, Mont., Judge Rules Against Betting Restriction.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 9.—Racing men won an important victory in the district court here when Judge Donlan sustained the demurrer to the complaint in the case against William Gemmell, charged with making and recording a bet on a horse race. The defendant was accused of violating the law in betting after more than thirty days of racing for the year in Silverbow county, fifteen days on the course of the Butte Driving club and fifteen on the track of the Butte Jockey club.

The court upheld the contention of the defense that there was no violation of the law and that betting on races could be conducted legally for thirty days each in as many racing enclosures as might be constructed in a county so long as the betting did not exceed thirty days in any one enclosure.

If this decision is upheld by the supreme court it will nullify the restrictive racing legislation of the last legislature.

Women's Golf Tourney.

Short Hills, N. J., Oct. 9.—The seventeenth annual woman's golf championship began on the links of the Baltusrol golf club today. The first to drive off were Mrs. C. G. Frazer of Cranford, and Miss Louisa Wells of Brookline. Miss Dorothy Campbell of Canada, champion of Great Britain, the United States and Canada, got away soon afterwards in company with Miss Georgiana Bishop of Bridgeport.

Western Season Closes.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The 1911 Western league season ended yesterday with games at Omaha, Lincoln Pueblo and Denver. Denver won the pennant, having retained it since the middle of the season. The other teams finished as follows: Denver, St. Joseph, Pueblo, Sioux City, Omaha, Lincoln, Topeka, Des Moines.

WOMEN MAY BE DEPORTED

First Cases Under Revised Law to Be Heard in Duluth.

Meraude DeBergerer and Josephine DeMerane, inmates of a disorderly house in the Superior red light district, may be deported to France.

Their cases have come before the local immigration authorities and they had a hearing Saturday.

They came to this country six years ago. The DeMerane woman claims that she was married to an American citizen and may fight the case.

The cases are the first to come before the immigration officials here under the amended act of congress of March 26, 1910, in which the three year statute limitation with reference to alien prostitutes was removed. According to the new law, the immigration officials are permitted to deport such women, regardless of the length of residence in this country.

The new law has been declared constitutional by a number of United States district court judges, but as yet the supreme court has not passed upon it. Several cases have been appealed to the higher tribunal and the constitutionality of the matter will soon be settled.

SMITH'S BOOKS IN FINE SHAPE

State Treasurer Given Clean Bill of Health By Examiners.

St Paul, Minn., Oct. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A "clean bill of health" is given Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, by J. O. Cederberg, assistant state public examiner, in a report filed with the governor this morning.

The examiner finds the books and records kept in a very systematic manner, the cash and securities are accounted for and every facility was furnished to make a prompt and thorough examination.

Mr. Smith had more than $2,000,000 cash on hand when the examination was made.

THE NOVELIST'S PROFESSION.

Francis Perry Elliott, author of "The Haunted Pajamas" and formerly editor of the Home Magazine, was searching for atmosphere at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn bridge a few evenings ago when he experienced two new sensations.

First, he was struck by an auto, his left foot was injured and his trousers were damaged.

Second, he found there are persons who cannot believe that novel writing is a regular method of earning a living. The auto was driven by its owner, a Brooklyn broker, who was driving his brothers and sisters home after a day's outing. One of the wheels passed over his left foot and he was knocked down.

Patrolman Gibney helped Elliott to a seat and sent for a surgeon from the Hudson street hospital, while the Salter party was detained until the extent of the injuries could be learned. The ambulance surgeon pronounced them slight and Mr. Elliott decided he would not make a criminal charge but would bring suit.

Salter asked for Elliott's business card. Of course Elliott had none, but he gave his personal card and said he lived at the Hermitage, Forty second street and Seventh avenue.

"And your business?" Salter inquired "Novelist," was the reply.

"What do you work at?" demanded Gibney, notebook in hand.

"I am a novelist; I write books.

Gibney looked incredulous, but wrote it down.

Came the ambulance surgeon with his report slip to be filled.

"What did you say you did for a living?" he asked.

"I am an author, a novelist, a writer of fiction. Oh, won't somebody call a cab?"

He limped to the cab and ordered the driver to take him home while he nursed the aching foot.

"And this is fame," he muttered.

Mr. Elliott says that there are three important events in connection with the popularity of the story, which originally appeared in novelette form in a magazine. The first, he says, was when a stranger on a train handed him a magazine remarking:

"That, sir, contains the funniest story I ever read and the best—perhaps you would like to read it. It's called "The Haunted Pajamas."

The second event was when a maid in a Boston hotel, pointing to his name on a parcel, asked if he were the man who wrote "The Haunted Pajamas" in the magazine.

"A lady gave me a copy," she declared, "and the whole push on this floor has read it."

The third and crowning occasion, he says, was when the news reached him that somebody, finding the magazine number sold out and unpurchasable in New York, had seized upon and stolen a thumbed and battered copy from a Turkish bath house.

GAME OF MINDORO.

Manila Times: "A paradise for hunters," is the way Judge Liddell describes the country in the vicinity of his home and plantation on the southeast coast of Mindoro. One game Mindoro excels in is the tamarao, rarest of animals and one which is found only in Mindoro. This fierce animal, much like an American buffalo, is held in universal dread by every native on the island, who looks on him as a far more formidable creature than the maddest of wild carabaos.

The tamarao is seldom seen in clearings because he sticks to his native wilds. When he does come near a clearing the natives in that vicinity make for the nearest shelter. For the tamarao does not wait to attack. He takes the initiative himself, charging every one and everything in sight.

Mrs. Liddell, wife of Judge Liddell, is perhaps the only white woman who has ever seen a tamarao. A few weeks ago one came within fifteen feet of the window of the Liddell kitchen, where she was instructing the cook, and peered in. The natives in the neighborhood took to their heels and then the tamarao quietly walked off.

But if the tamarao is the piece de resistance among the game of Mindora it is not the only game to be found on the island. There are myriads of deer, wild chickens and game birds of all sorts. There are also plenty of wild boars on the island, some of them of extraordinary size and none of them noted for docility. Judge Liddell has one tusk full eighteen inches long. This came from a monster boar, which charged the hunters repeatedly before he was shot down.

Wild carabao hunting is another pastime of the Mindoro planters and one that is not destined to soothe the nerves of weak hearted men. These animals are at all times dangerous, and when once wounded or angered charge the hunters with all the ferocity of an African buffalo.

James Liddell, a son of the Judge, had an experience with one of them reecntly that will not be forgotten in a hurry. He was hunting and shot the big fellow, knocking him off his feet. As the carabao lay still he approached him and when not a foot away the caramao leaped to his feet and charged.

There was no time for a shot, so young Liddell did the only thing open to him—grappled with the infuriated beast. Three times the animal gored him, and finally the boy made his escape. What the Filipinos in his party regarded as the miraculous feature of the accident was the fact that the carabao had permitted him to escape.

A Massachusetts inventor's horse feeding bag has a compartment to hold grain which permits only a small quantity to reach an animal's mouth at a time, thus preventing waste.

WHEAT DOWN HALF A CENT

Warm, Dry Weather and Large Receipts Favor the Bear Side.

Same Factors Bring Down Flax—Report of Large Argentine Crop.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 9.—This was a bearish day at Duluth in nearly all grains. December wheat closed at $1.07 , having declined half a cent below Saturday's close. There were declines also at Winnipeg and Minneapolis. All the declines were due to the same combination of causes, warm dry weather and large receipts. The railroads estimated the receipts of uninspected wheat at Duluth today to be be 385 cars. Chicago, however, made a close a little up from its Saturday figure. This was probably due to some local cause.

October flaxseed closed at $2.31 bid, having lost 2½c. November and December also lost. The railroads estimated that 26 cars of flax would arrive in Duluth before the day was over. Durum closed at a loss of ¾c and oats ¼c off. Rye closed unchanged.

There was not a great deal of trading in the wheat market up to noon today, as the government crop report for September was due to be out early in the afternoon. The brokers for the most part were merely "marking time" not knowing in which way they were to march. What trading there was, however was of a decidedly bearish nature. Rumor had it that the report would favor that side of the market. This view was substantiated by the favorable weather reports from over the Northwest and many parts of Canada, and the forecast of more of the same kind of weather, dry and warm.

The Duluth wheat receipts were heavy, being 779 cars for the two days, against 115 cars a year ago for one day. The railroads estimated the total cars of uninspected grain arriving today at 496, consisting mostly of wheat. Duluth December wheat, which closed Saturday at $1.07⅞, opened today at $1.07½ asked, and fluctuated during the morning between $1.07⅝ and $1.07. About noon it stood at $1.07⅜. The European cables had little influence over the North American wheat markets today, as these cables, taken together, meant little for either the bulls or the bears, some slightly favoring one side and some the other, while others were unchanged. There was a rumor in circulation to the effect that Turkey had declared wheat contraband of war and that Russian banks were refusing to permit wheat to be exported from that country. This if true, would be a very bullish factor, since it would compel Western Europe to look to this side of the Atlantic for an extraordinarily large portion of its supply of breadstuffs, but it seems that the story was generally regarded as a hoax. Many of the Duluth brokers laughed at it, when it was first ticked off the wire.

Today's flax market, up to noon, was in about the same condition as the wheat. Drying fields and dry roads gave the bears great encouragement. There were heavier receipts than have been coming of late, and offerings on the Duluth floor were correspondingly heavy. Another bearish factor was a wire from Buenos Ayres to the effect that flaxseed had taken quite a slump on that market, the January-February option being 10c below where it was at the opening on Saturday. This was due in large measure to the Argentine government flax crop report, which estimated the coming crop at 48,000,000 bu against 16,000,000 bu the year before. Such a telegram could not fail to have a depressing influence on the price of the Duluth flax. At noon today October was at $2.31, or 2½c below the closing figure of Saturday, which was itself rather bearish. November had gone down from $2.31½ asked to $2.27 asked, and December from $2.25½ bid to $2.24 bid.

caused higher prices. With any increase in receipts of flaxseed the tendency of prices will be lower and this will doubtless be helped along by an increased output of linseed oil. Demand for oil is rather slow, even for spot stuff. Buyers have not changed their policy regarding contracting for future shipment and very little is being done in the way of such contracts. The abnormally high prices, combined with general business depression throughout the country, are having an effect on the oil trade."

FLAXSEED.

Last week was a decidedly bullish one for flax. This was due in the main to wet weather, which kept the receipts down. Untold thousands of acres of flax have been lying wetted down in Minnesota and the Dakotas, waiting for a spell of warmer, dry weather to get it in condition to be harvested and thrashed. The receipts, both in cars and bushels, showed a large falling off last week, in comparison with the week before, whereas there should have been a great increase. At the same time there was a large increase in shipments, for the Eastern crushers must have some flax now, and if they cannot get it at the lower prices for which they have been waiting, they must buy at the higher prices. The average price of cash flax at Duluth during the week ending Oct. 8 was $2.38, whereas during the week before it was $2.30. There was thus an increase, when there would have been quite a decrease, if conditions had been normal. The clear, comparatively warm weather of the last two or three days, was a change exceedingly welcome to the flax bears, and if it continues, there will undoubtedly be a drop in the price of flax.

The following tables show in figures what the flax market of Duluth did last week:

| | Mon. | Tues. | Wed. | Thurs. | Fri. | Sat. |

"Liverpool — The wheat market showed an easy undertone at the opening with some realizing on weakness in Winnipeg on Saturday and the heavy American shipments and a large percentage to the United Kingdom and values were ¼d to ½d lower. Following the opening there was further realizing in December. Later there was heavy covering by shorts and prices quickly advanced gaining ⅝d from the opening on the poor local grading, unfavorable political news and heavy buying here by London. There was good demand from the continent with no cargoes off coast or awaiting orders and distant offers were firmly held. Just before mid-day there was some realizing and prices lost ¼d for the December and March with a quieter demand for parcels and the favorable weather here and freer Australian offers. At this time the market was nervous and firm with an ¼d decline to ⅜d advance from Saturday. Corn opened ¼d lower in sympathy with America. Following the opening the market was dull and neglected. World's shipments were larger with spot markets slightly lower. The larger American shipments this week are explained by heavy shipments from the Pacific coast. Russia and the Danube shipped more than was expected."

A Fargo man wires: "I drove all day in the country yesterday, about 2½ east of Argusville and ten miles north along the river. I went through field after field of wheat standing in shock and sprouting badly. I am told this is the case for miles north along the Red river."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Bulls Discouraged By Shipments and Weather.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Fulfillment of predictions of better weather in the Northwest tended to make the bulls in wheat lose heart. Then, too, world shipments were larger than expected. On the other hand, the selling side displayed caution because of reports that Russia was negotiating with Turkey regarding the other's alleged intention to declare grain contraband of war. Such action on the part of Ottoman's government would paralyze the Russian export business. Traders, however, gave their intention mainly to the probable general resumption of thrashing in Canada owing to the big change to clear skies and warm temperature. The opening was ⅛ lower to ¼c up. December started at 97½ to 97¾, the same difference from Saturday night as the market taken altogether. A decline of 97⅞ followed.

Purchasing on a somewhat liberal scale by a leading house brought about a recovery, but the effect did not last, the market sinking because of the big visible supply. The close, however, was firm with December at 97¾c, a net gain of ⅛c.

Corn turned easy on account of the fine weather. Pit scalpers were all on the bear side. December opened ¼@⅜c to ¼@⅜c down at 64@64¼c; touched 64¼@¼c and reacted to 64c.

Increasing offers from the country led to additional weakness. The close was steady though at 64¼c for December, a net loss of ⅛@¼c.

It was purely a local trade in oats. The market inclined to sag with wheat and corn. December started a shade off at 47½c and did not display much power to rally.

With the average weight of hogs the lighest since March, 1909, the market for provisions was firm. Initial sales were unchanged to 10c higher with January deliveries $15.45 for pork, $8.95 for lard and $8.05 for ribs.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade is without special feature, the demand being limited to retail orders for draft pairs and delivery horses. We understand that the unusual amount of rain has made roads in the logging districts almost impassable, and loggers will have to wait for a freeze-up before they can get to a lot of the camps. This has delayed the placing of orders for logging horses. Mules and common classes of horses are without call. Values rule about as follows:

| Drafters, extra | $185@240 |
| Drafters, choice | 120@180 |
| Drafters, common to good | 90@115 |

| Farm mares and horses, choice | 110@140 |
| Farm horses, common to good | 70@110 |

Union Pacific Is Firmer and Others Show Slight Gains.

Reading Closes With Substantial Loss—Steel Well Supported.

New York, Oct. 9.—Moderate gains were made by most of the active stocks at the opening of the market today. Northern Pacific was in good demand, and advanced ¾ on the opening transactions. Union Pacific gained ⅝ and Atchison ½.

The execution of some large selling orders in the coalers,, Union Pacific and United States Steel forced prices down sharply, Reading falling back 2¼ points, Union Pacific 1¾, Lehigh Valley 1⅜ and Atchison and United States Steel 1. American Beet Sugar which had rised a point to 57¼, receded to 56, and there was further liquidation in Allis-Chalmers preferred.

Following a brief period of fairly active trading, movement of stocks during the morning were unimportant. Reading did not recover with the general market. Its weakness was associated with the approach of the supreme court hearing in the anthracite case.

United States Steel was sold on the strength of a report that the department of justice was at once to file a suit for dissolution of the corporation, but the stock received effective support and made a full recovery. Bonds were easy. The usually active issues were slightly lower and there was a fall of 1¼ in Allis-Chalmers 5's.

The market closed steady. Publication of the government monthly report was of no influence on prices, as it was in line with expectations and displayed no essential change from last month's condition in either wheat or corn. Union Pacific showed increased firmness, and there was a resumption of pool operations in some of the minor specialties, under which American Can preferred gained nearly two points. The International Paper and International Pump stocks lost severely on light selling orders.

United States Steel encountered large blocks of stocks after crossing 59 and fell back slightly. Reading closed with a substantial net loss.

STORE COAL IN VESSEL

Duluth Docks Filled and Freighter Is Pressed Into Service.

Other Idle Boats May Be Used for the Same Purpose.

Ten thousand tons of coal was taken from the Carnegie coal dock this morning and loaded on the steamer Norway of the United States Transportation company for winter storage. The Norway did not fit out this season and has been anchored in the bay all summer.

Although Duluth coal docks have been crowded to capacity, this is the first instance this fall, where the docks have not been able to take care of the receipts. The interior movement is fairly brisk but the deliveries more than keep up with it. It is possible that more large freighters will hold coal during the winter in the harbor.

As far as the grain situation is concerned, it is not believed that there will be many bulk freighters pressed into service to hold grain during the winter. The number of storage grain boats will depend somewhat upon the rate and the volume of grain received. There is at the present time plenty of elevator room and unless the situation changes materially, storage boats will not be needed.

SUNKEN TUG CIRCLE RAISED FROM PORTAGE SHIP CANAL

THE VIDETTE OF DULUTH, RAISING GOVERNMENT TUG.

The government yacht, Vidette, which went to the rescue of the sunken tug, Circle, also a government boat, which went to the bottom after a collision with the steamer Martin Mullen on Sept. 15 in the Portage ship canal, has raised the Circle and the Vidette has returned to Duluth. She arrived in port yesterday morning.

G. Taylor, junior engineer under J. H. Darling of this city, and George H. Banks, superintendent of the Keweenaw waterway, were in charge of the wrecking operations. The government derrick scow was called in to help raise the submerged vessel.

When called to the Portage ship canal to the rescue of the Circle, the Vidette with her crew and a submarine diver, was engaged in repairing the outer end of the west pier of the Ontonagon harbor entry, which had been damaged by storms and ice below the water line.

VESSELS 1,200 FEET LONG POSSIBILITY OF THE FUTURE

Vessels measuring 1,200 feet in length and carrying 78 feet beam for the great lakes trade are more than a wild dream of the future. They are a possibility of the next decade, according to L. C. Sabin, superintendent of the locks and ship canals at Sault Ste. Marie. In fact, the new lock, the Davis, is being constructed with such conditions in mind.

Commenced, March 2, 1907, the lock work is now more than half completed and if present plans do not miscarry, the new lock will be finished shortly after the beginning of the year 1916. When ready for boats, the new locks will measure 1,350 feet between the inner gates and 80 feet in width.

The unusual dimensions of the lock are made necessary not alone by the ever increasing trade on the lakes, but also by improvements that have been found necessary in the operation of the two locks now installed there. The length of the new work will not only be used to handle the longer boats as they are built from year to year, but it also will make possible the entry of two of the longer boats in tandem style, a practice never yet indulged in.

Present Plan Perilous.

At present the two or more boats that are handled in the locks are locked through abreast of each other. Vessel owners and masters declare this is a dangerous proceeding. The boats, they say, not only take longer to take their positions in the locks in this way, but also that there is great danger from suction to the boat remaining in the lock when the first one steams away. On more than one occasion lines have snapped and boats have drifted temporarily in a helpless manner in the locks.

The present largest lock, the Poe, is 100 feet wide. The new one will measure but eighty feet, making it impossible to lock vessels through in any other way than tandem.

Probably the most distinctive feature of the new lock will be its depth. When opened for navigation it will present a loading depth of twenty-four and one-half feet, or six and one-half feet more than the present depth accorded the boats of the great lakes. While all channels on the lakes are now dredged to a depth of but twenty-one feet, experts declare it will prove of less expense to dredge the channels deeper than to construct or remodel other locks.

Trouble for Boats.

The practical value of the depth presented by the present locks, an average of eighteen feet, is displayed in the trouble the larger boats experience in locking through. Unnecessary delay is now experienced by the masters in locking through by the upheaval of water at the bow of the boat. Such conditions, engineers say, are due to the excess of water caused by the entrance of the boat in the lock being unable to escape fast enough at the sides of the boat. With the additional depth presented by the new lock this water, it is figured, will be forced under the boats to the escaping channels beneath the flooring. With such features at hand vessels will be able to lock through in less than half an hour, while it now takes many of the larger ones over an hour.

That the opening of the lock will be delayed is evidenced by its present condition. Originally it was the intention of the officials to open the gates for navigation early in 1915. Unforseen obstacles, labor scarcity and other hindrances, however, have held up the work noticeably.

Work Is Notable.

Next to Panama, the most important work now being done by the federal government is the new lock and canal. The two present locks already float the greatest commerce of any inland waters of the globe. In 1910 the total tonnage amounted to 62,363,218, which is two and one-half times greater than that passing through the Suez canal and seven times greater than that of the Kiel canal. What the traffic will amount to with the addition of another lock, the largest yet constructed, remains to be seen.

The present commerce exceeds that borne by all ships, British and foreign, entering the ports of Great Britain in one year, and is valued at an average of $64,040,844 annually. When completed the new lock will not only be by far the largest in the world, but will represent an expenditure of about $9,000,000.

DERELICT SIGHTED BY STEAMER BARTH.

James H. Darling, principal engineer to Major T. R. Shunk, this morning wired the Pope & Brower Transportation company of Cleveland, Ohio, that advices had been received in Duluth that the derelict steamer A. L. Hopkins, operated by them, had been sighted by the steamer Barth, downbound through the Soo.

He asked them to send a tug in search of the abandoned lumber carrier. Mr. Darling stated that the Hopkins was reported nearly in the course of vessels between Ashland and Keweenaw Point and a menace to navigation. If the owners do not take immediate action, the government tug Vidette will search for her. The wrecked steamer's bow, it is reported, was still out of water.

STEAMER WILL GO INTO WINTER QUARTERS.

The steamer Skater of Bayfield, which has been at the Grignon shipyards for the past few days for overhauling and painting, cleared Saturday for Stockton island, one of the Apostle group, where she will lay up for the winter. Capt. Murphy, in command of the Skater, says that the steamer's trips to and from Bayfield, La Pointe, Washburn, Ashland and among the islands has been both profitable and pleasant and without accidents. The boat is operated by the Chequamegon Bay Transportation company.

SHIP IRON TO CENTRAL DAM, MINN.

The Marine Iron company at the foot of Eleventh avenue west has made a large shipment of pipes and fittings to Central Dam, Minn., a station on the Soo. The consignment will be used in placing a pipe railing around a dam, which the government is building there.

STEAMER CORUNNA POUNDING ON REEF.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 9.—The Canadian package freight steamer Corunna is pounding on Welcome island reef, near Fort William, Ont., with a cargo of freight valued at $125,000 aboard. She is in such bad shape the Canadian Lake Transportation company of Toronto has abandoned her to the underwriters as a constructive total loss.

Should the cargo and boat turn out to be a total loss the underwriters will have to pay about $225,000 exclusive of wrecking fees. The Corunna was built in 1891. She is of steel construction, 220 feet keel length, 34 feet beam and 21 feet deep. Joseph Kidd of Duluth has been sent to the Corunna by the Salvage association and bids have been asked from the different wrecking companies for releasing the boat on the no-cure-no-pay basis.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

When the new City of Detroit III, launched Saturday, comes out for operation on the Buffalo-Detroit route, next May, she will probably be commanded by Capt. A. J. McKay. This will mean a corresponding advancement for other captains in the line.

The steamer Georgetown, loaded with pulpwood, is aground in Ogdensburg harbor.

The steamer Grayson, building for the Atlantic coast trade was launched at the shipyards of the Great Lakes Engineering works Saturday. The steamer will go to the coast before the close of navigation.

The Toledo Shipbuilding company has closed a contract for installing new boilers in the passenger steamer, Arrow, which will come to the plant for a general overhauling this winter.

More than 8,000 bushels of corn, a part of the cargo of the wrecked steamer, City of Genoa, has been taken from her hold and brought to Toledo. The damaged steamer will be repaired in Detroit.

The steamer Maywood of the Escanaba & Gladstone Transportation company, which was leased to the Hill Transportation company of Milwaukee has gone into winter quarters at Manitowoc. The boat was not sold, as reported.

TERMS OF SALE.

This sale is to be made pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 204 of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905 and of Chapter 342 of the General Laws of 1909.

Purchasers of timber at this sale must pay down in cash at the time of sale 25 per cent of the value of the timber purchased, based on the estimated quantity and appraised price of same.

"Permits" to cut and remove the timber from the land will be issued to purchasers, good for two logging seasons (to expire June 1st, 1913), and the timber must be cut and removed within that time, unless the State Timber Board, by unanimous vote, agrees to an extension of time for one additional logging season. In no event can more than one extension of time be granted.

None of the timber can be sold for less than the appraised price as given herein, and sales will be made to the party bidding the highest price per M. feet for all of the several kinds of timber advertised on the land in the different sections. Any bidding over and above the said appraised price shall be by "percentage," the per cent bid to be added to the appraised price of each kind of timber advertised on the land. No bids of less than 100 per cent will be entertained or accepted.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Dated at St. Paul, Minnesota, September 29, 1911.

State Auditor of Minnesota.

ACTUAL OCCUPATION OF TRIPOLI IS BEGUN BY AN ITALIAN ARMY

Advance Guard Lands at Tobruck on Northeast Coast.

Thousands of Soldiers Are on Transports Sailing South.

Turks Decide to Close All Italian Interests in Turkey.

The advance guard of the Italian army of occupation landed today at Tobruck, on the northeastern coast of Tripoli, 600 miles east of the city of Tripoli, and seventy-five miles west of the Egyptian frontier. Tobruck is one of the gateways to the richest and best part of the Turkish province, and that section of Tripoli which the Italians are said to particularly covet.

Thus is begun the occupation proper upon the accomplishment of which depends Italy's willingness to entertain peace propcsals.

The larger part of the Italian expedition still is at sea, closely guarded by warships. Many transports carrying thousands of soldiers sailed from Italy last night and early today and others will leave tonight.

Communication between Tripoli and the outside world has been restored.

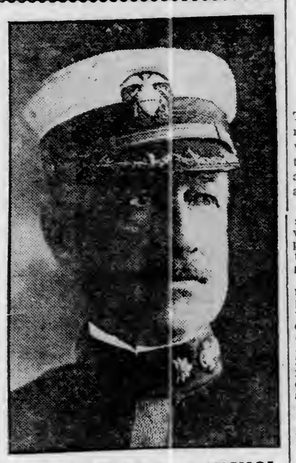

Assim Bey, Turkish minister at Sofia, today accepted the post of foreign affairs in the new Turkish cabinet. At a council of the ministry it was decided to close all Italian industrial, financial and scholastic institutions in Turkey and to seize Italian vessels.

IMPORTS MEN INTO CHICAGO

Illinois Central Brings Strikebreakers to Its Shops.

Noel Will Make Further Efforts to End the Trouble.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Two hundred nonunion machinists front Eastern cities arrived at the Burnside shops of the Illinois Central railroad today in a special train and immediately were assigned to work.

Strikers surrounded the plant and quietly watched the strike-breakers march into the shops, guarded by police and railroad detectives. There are now said to be more than 1,000 shopmen at work in the Burnside plant, or nearly one-third of the regular force.

Strike leaders expressed disappointment that no definite step toward peace resulted from the conference held by President Markham of the Illinois Central railway, Governor Noel of Mississippi and union shopmen at Jackson, Miss., yesterday.

Twenty more striking carbuilders returned to work today. A force of carpenters is busy building booths near the plant for use of paymasters in paying the strikers their September wages tomorrow.

Union Officers' Meet.

J. A. Franklin, international president of the Boilermakers, and M. F. Flynn, international president of Railway Carmen, are in the city conferring with the committee managing the strike in Chicago.

Forty men, who said they were brought from the South to act as strikebreakers in the Illinois Central shops, were sheltered at the municipal lodging house last night. The men said that they were afraid to go to work after they reached here, fearing they would be roughly handled.

Crowds of men who gathered on the streets at Burnside were asked to disperse this morning by members of the unions, who said that the strikers would receive the blame if any trouble should result.

Wants New Conference.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 10.—Governor Noel announces that he will ask the governor of fourteen states affected by the Illinois Central strike to meet in joint conference with representatives of the railroad and strikers in an effort to bring the dispute to an end. Yesterday's meeting was without definite results.

WOMEN ADMIRE DR. WEBSTER

Write Letters to Him and Some Send Him Money.

Oregon, Ill. Oct. 10.—Dr. Harry E. Webster, under indictment for the murder of his third wife, Bessie Kent Webster, has received a score of letters from women since his imprisonment here. All the letters express either sympathy or admiration for the physician, and several contained small sums of money. One anonymous letter in feminine handwriting contained a $20 bill.

Dr. Webster declares he has not answered any of the letters.

Dr. Webster smiled today when he read a published interview with Mabel Sexsmith, a trained nurse in Chicago who is quoted as saying:

"I love Dr. Webster with a deep, good affection and would have worked my fingers to the bone for him."

Letter From "Rose."

Webster also received a letter, signed only "Rose," bearing a message of cheer and encouragement, and swearing undying fidelity and love. Webster declared he did not know who "Rose" was. The letter was dated and mailed from Chicago, Oct. 7.

Action by the Ogle county authorities in the prosecution of Webster has been halted for at least a month. The accused man pleaded "not guilty" when arraigned yesterday, and his attorney asked that the indictment be quashed, on the grounds of insufficiency of the testimony upon which they were founded.

When this motion was overruled, a petition for a delay of thirty days was presented, that the attorneys for the defense might file a bill of exceptions to the court's ruling. This was granted. Websters attorneys asked for a change of venue, but Judge Heard indicated that it would not be granted.

Black River in Wisconsin Flowing in New Channel.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—The crest of the Mississippi river flood passed the Wisconsin-Illinois line today and now is between Keokuk and Davenport, Ia., according to the stages reported to the United States weather bureau here.

At La Crosse the river was 9 feet and falling; Dubuque reported 2.8 feet and falling. Keokuk was 5.8 feet and falling. At Davenport 5 feet was reported with the river rising slowly. At St. Paul it was at 4.4, a drop of one-tenth of a foot since yesterday.

The Missouri river was reported falling at Omaha.

At Burlington, Ia., the river was 4

TAFT GOES TO CHRISTENING

Also Visits the Puget Sound Navy Yard and Makes Speeches.

Says the Panama Canal Will Be Opened July 1, 1913.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 10.—President Taft spent the night here and arose refreshed for a hard day's work which was to include two speeches in Seattle and Tacoma before large audiences, a visit to the Puget Sound navy yard and a steamer ride to Tacoma.

His first two engagements were of a special nature, being a breakfast with Congressman William E. Humphrey and participation in the christening of the latter's 11-week-old grand-nephew, Charles Taft Snowden. At 11 o'clock the president, with a military escort, left the hotel for a parade through the business streets, which were gay with bunting. The escort was composed of the battalion of the Twenty-fifth infantry, a machine gun platoon of the Twenty-fifth infantry, two companies of sailors from the cruiser Philadelphia, two companies of marines, naval militia and national guard companies. The high schools and the state university dismissed their students, who mingled with the street throngs.

SERIOUS FLOODS IN SOUTHWEST

Parts of Colorado and New Mexico Report Loss of Lives.

Denver, Col., Oct. 10.—Only meager reports are being received today from the flood-swept district of Southwestern Colorado and Northwestern New Mexico, comprising an area approximately 100 by 75 miles.

There are rumors of heavy loss of life, but the verified death list so far is comparatively small. John Rice was drowned while aiding in the rescue of pupils at the Methodist school near Farmington, N. M., and near Blanca, Col., a Mexican family of seven are reported drowned. From various other points come reports of seeing persons swept away in the flood.

From Alamosa comes a report that twenty Indians at the Shipwreck agency of the Navajos were lost in the waters. All the buildings at the agency, erected by the government at a cost of $200,000, are reported to have been destroyed.

Damage Is $5,000,000.

Property loss is estimated at approximately $5,000,000. Praictically the entire narrow gauge system of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, known as the Rio Grande Southern, is out of commission and trains to a number of towns cannot move, it is said, under sixty days.

A stage service and freighting lines are being established, but the destruction of highways is a serious obstacle.

Confirmation of the entire destruction of the hamlet of Arboles has been received.

Later reports indicate that the flood waters are subsiding.

MINNESOTA RATE CASE IS SET FOR HEARING JAN. 8.

Washington, Oct. 10.—By its own initiative, the supreme court of the United States today reassigned all the state railroad rate cases involving conflicts between state and interstate rates, for hearing as one case on Jan. 8 next. This affects cases from Minnesota, Kentucky, West Virginia, Missouri and Oregon.

The Conservative premier presented the names of his cabinet to the governor-general last night and received his approval. Mr. Borden is premier, and like Sir. Wilfrid Laurier, will act as president of the council. The only other representative from the maritime provinces is Premier Hazen of New Brunswick, who will be minister of marine and fisheries.

Quebec is given four representatives with portfolios, and one without. Those holding portfolios are F. D. Monk, public works; L. P. Pelletier, postmaster general; C. J. Doherty, minister of justice, and W. B. Nantel, inland revenue. G. H. Perley, Mr.

TWO UNITED STATES SENATORS UNDERGO BRIBERY INVESTIGATIONS AT ONCE IN NEIGHBORING STATES

RESUME QUIZ ON ELECTION OF LORIMER

Committee Begins the Taking of Testimony in Chicago.

Landee Tells of Being Advised to Vote for Senator.

Says He Was Told It Would Be to His Advantage.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—No new evidence was expected at the first sessions of the reopening of the United States senate investigation to the election of William Lorimer here today. Eight witnesses, seven of them members of the Illinois general assembly by which Senator Lorimer was elected, were scheduled as the first witnesses. All of these have testified before, either before the Helm committee in Springfield or the first United States senate committee which investigated the corruption charges.

Frank A. Landee, the first witness to be called, a state senator from Moline, was expected to repeat his testimony regarding an offer of a federal job, said to have been made him by a business associate of Senator Lorimer.

Forget Rules of Testimony.

Senator Dillingham, chairman of the committee, announced that the rules of testimony would not be sacred in the coming sessions.

"We shall continue to allow all testimony bearing in any way upon the investigation to be admitted, regardless of legal technicalities," he said. "We are determined that there shall be no possible ground for criticism because of the exclusion of any evidence."

It was half an hour after the time set when members of the committee met in Judge Grossup's courtroom in the federal building. In addition to Senator Dillingham there were present all members of the committee with the exception of Senators Gamble, Kern and Lea.

State Senator Landee was the first witness. Attorney Healey interrogated him regarding the senatorial deadlock at Springfield.

Talked With Charles Luke.

"I would like to call your attention to an alleged conversation with Charles Luke," said Healey. "Did you have such a conversation?"

"Yes," replied Landee, "I met Mr.

DUMAS NOT SENTENCED

Will Appeal From Conviction of Attempt to Commit Arson.

Cass Lake Mayor Faces Two Other Charges of Lawbreaking.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to the Herald.)—Convicted on the charge of attempting arson in the third degree, but free under $10,000 bonds, and still facing two other charges under which he has been obliged to furnish bonds aggregating $1,100, Dr. D. F. Dumas of Cass Lake today, through his attorneys, asked and was granted the privilege of having his case certified to the supreme court on the ground that his indictment was faulty and that the evidence did not prove the charge made against him.

Sentence was not pronounced, Judge McClenahan explaining that if he sentenced the defendant, the office of mayor of Cass Lake would by that fact become vacant, and that there seemed to be no need of bringing about such a complication.

The verdict against the mayor was returned last night at 11 o'clock, the jury declaring him guilty of an attempt at arson in the third degree, as charged in the indictment.

WIDOWED TWICE IN TWO WEEKS

Death of Chicago Woman's Second Husband Is Investigated.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—The death today of Adolph Krogh from carbolic acid poisoning, three days after his marriage, is being investigated by the police. By his death, his bride of three days, formerly Mrs. Lillian Deerbrandt, was widowed for the second time within a fortnight. Deerbrandt died less than two weeks ago.

Krogh retired last night in his newly furnished flat. Mrs. Krogh said she awakened during the night and discovered that her husband had a vial of medicine in a pocket of his night clothes. When she returned to the room after having prepared breakfast she found her husband dead in bed. The bottle was empty.

CLAIM STONE 'COVERED UP' EXPENDITURE

False Reports on Campaign Funds Alleged Before Senators.

Game Warden Accused By Deputy of Lying About Work.

Stephenson's Money Not Given to Those Said to Have Had It.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—How $2,500 was paid to State Game Warden J. W. Stone out of the campaign fund of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, and how Stone, to "cover up" what was done with the money, got his deputies to "pretend" to having received portions of it, whereas in fact the money was paid to others, was told today before the United States senate committee which is investigating charges that bribery and corruption contributed to Senator Stephenson's election.

G. L. Kingsley, who was a deputy game warden during the Wisconsin primaries in 1908, when Senator Stephenson sought nomination, testified that in March, 1909, when the investigation by the state legislature was under way, he was called to Stone's home at Madison.

Met at Midnight.

The meeting was called at midnight and among those present were Deputy Game Wardens Kingsley, Johnson and Richtmann, Assemblymen Thomas and Stone.

"Stone said he had to account for $2,500 and he wanted us to pretend we had received part of it," said Kingsley. "Stone had to testify before the legislative committee what was done with the money and instead of telling what

MAINE MAY BE DRY AFTER ALL

Official Figures on Recent Election May Be Corrected.

Augusta, Me., Oct. 10.—The possibility of correction of the official figures of the state's vote of Sept. 11, on the repeal of the constitutional prohibitory amendment, rests upon the ability of the town clerks of Athens, Limestone, Matinicus Isle and Westfield and other interested persons to prove to the governor and council that their original returns were wrong.

The next step will be to hold a public hearing, when all persons interested for or against the acceptance of corrections will be heard. Governor Plaisted will then have until Dec. 1 to make his final announcement of the result.

If the corrections already filled are allowed it would mean the overthrow of the present official majority of 26 for repeal and the establishment of a substantial majority in favor of retaining constitutional prohibition.

WHERE MEN GET CURED

Of a Bad Heart, Stagnant Circulation, Varicose Veins and Other Diseases.

There are thousands of men walking around who are a picture of disease. They are all fagged out and dragged down by it. The cause of it may be a bad stomach, kidney trouble, or some secret suffering. Others, again, are the very picture of health, but they suffer nevertheless, from imperfect circulation, of which knotted veins are the result.

The veins are dark blue, because of the poisonous waste matter, while the arteries are bright red. When this vein-blood, heavy with poisons, again reaches the lungs, it exchanges its carbon-dioxide, a heavy and very poisonous gas, for pure oxygen and returns again through the arteries. When some part of the body is injured by abuse, excesses, kicks, blows, or overwork, the veins are injured and retard free circulation. The poison-loaded blood, instead of returning to the lungs for a fresh supply of life-giving oxygen, piles up against the injured part, poisons the walls of the veins, swells and dilates them, hardens them and sometimes expands them to an enormous extent. In men the legs and other vital parts are usually attacked by this self-generated poison, which, after first poisoning the veins, attacks the vital parts themselves, causing weakness and wasting. Walking becomes difficult, hard knots form which open easily and form "VARICOSE ULCERS," the patient is easily exhausted, becomes nervous and depressed, his memory weakens and all ambition leaves him. Later the poison will take an upward course, and, entering the pelvis, will poison the pelvic nerves. Stagnant circulation will result in nervous diseases, in diseases of the rectum, prostate and associated parts, and is not strictly local, because nerves, blood vessels and lymphatics are all connected. What affects one affects all, just as a broken wire or short circuit in any part of a serially connected electric system has an effect on any and every part of that system. We found in former years that cutting and dissecting out these veins did not cure the patient, the deep-seated nerves that control the functions and nutrition of the organs, still caused trouble and more pain than before. We therefore invented the "Dissolving Process," a method as superior to the old way of cutting and blood-letting as the modern electric light is superior to the tallow candle of bygone ages. We can explain the practical application of the dissolving process to any man if he will give us the necessary statements about his case, although we would much rather see, examine and demonstrate to him than talk or write about it. The specialists who can guarantee to cure this and all other diseases without cutting, without chloroform or any of the ordinary old-style hospital methods, will surely be wanted by any man who is suffering from it. That is what we can do, and guarantee to do! Consultation free from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays 10-1.

BAPTIST MINISTERS NOT PAID A FAIR LIVING WAGE

Average in Northern Minnesota Only $2.61 Per Day.

Convention Resolves That Minimum Wage Shall Be $700.

Earn Less Than Men in Any of the Trades.

REV. R. T. WILTBANK,
Chairman of the Committee on Salaries.

Baptist ministers are underpaid.

Those of the Northern Baptist convention average $2.61 a day.

They receive less and more is required to qualify for the pulpit, than for any one of the several general lines of labor.

Bakers receive $2.81; blacksmiths, $2.72; bricklayers, $5.47; painters, $3.45; plumbers, $4.43; stone iansons, 4.58; iron-moulders, $3.04; glass blowers, $7.04; linotype operators, $5.28; flour-millers, $2.77; hat-blockers, $3.38; steel-heaters, $5.69.

The average wages of men in these different trades is $4.35 or allowing 309 working days in the year, $1,295.

Allowing 10 per cent for non-employment, the amount is $1,084.50.

The latter figure is 50 per cent higher that the average salary of the ministers of the Northern Baptist convention.

At the meeting of the convention this morning at the Bethel Baptist church, it was decided to make the minimum salary $700 a year for unmarried men and $900 per year for married men.

Add to the small wages paid, the fact that the cost of living has increased in the last few years from 20 to 50 per cent, and some idea may be gained of what hardship the ministers contend with for the privilege of spreading the teachings of the Bible, say the delegates at the convention. The average gain on thirty staple common foods is 18.2 per cent.

There has been some slight increase in ministers' salaries during the past few years but not nearly enough to cope with the additional cost of living, let alone the matter of providing for the time when the ministers will be no longer able to preach.

Nearly 200 Baptist ministers were in attendance when the morning business meeting of the Fifty-second Minnesota Baptist State convention was called to order at the Bethel church, Ninth avenue east and Third street.

The ministers are from all parts of the state of Minnesota and the convention, which began with sessions at the First church Monday evening, will continue until Thursday evening.

The delegates began arriving in the city yesterday. Many were here in time for the opening service last evening which consisted of an address of welcome by Rev. R. E. Sayles of the First church and the annual sermon by Rev. J. G. Briggs.

The most important matter of discussion at the service this morning was salaries. Much interesting data concerning ministers' salaries as compared to the wages made by laboring men, was contained in the report of the committee which consisted of Rev. R. T. Wiltbank, pastor of the University church, Minneapolis, chairman; W. T. Milliken and C. W. Sawyer.

It was shown that the salaries are totally insufficient and that many find it very difficult to maintain a position of even average comfort under the present salaries paid.

Wants Country Job.

One minister stated that he would at any time accept a pastorate in the country that his cost of living might be cut down. He stated that in the country he found that he could raise his own vegetables and in other ways cut down his living expenses to within the amount paid. He said also that the scale of living in the community was also easier to keep pace with.

Another minister lamented the fact that ministers have a most annoying habit of getting married. He said that he supposed they had as much right to enjoy this blessing as any one, but that the salaries at the present time in vogue almost forbid it.

The matter was discussed at some length and partially solved by placing the minimum salary at $900 for married men and $700 for those unmarried.

A part of the report follows.

"The subject of ministerial support and relief is one of the most important claiming the attention of the church.

It is necessary that the ministry should be relieved of undue anxiety concerning the material welfare of themselves and those dependent upon them if they are to give their best thought and energy to their work. It is a matter of honor, affecting the churches that those who have given their lives to the Christian ministry should not suffer want when they are incapacitated by illness or old age. Closely connected with this subject is the problem of securing an adequate supply of properly qualified young men for the ministry. There are many such young men who would be content with the prospect of receiving a scanty remuneration all their lives if they were sure that they would be saved from want in days of illness and from poverty in old age, and that their family would be delivered from destitution in case of accident to themselves. After all, these young men are apt to accept the estimate of the ministry which is placed upon it by the churches, and the denomination that does not care enough for its ministers to provide them with a fair living and with some measure of protection against illness and old age need not be surprised if its best youth hesitate about offering themselves for its service.

Reasonable Comfort.

"The churches have agreed that their ministers should enjoy a reasonable degree of comfort, and should live somewhat in accord with the scale of living in the community round about them. The greater number of ministers find it difficult to maintain this position of average comfort with the salary at their command, and almost impossible, if not entirely so, both to maintain this position and provide an adequate income for their later years.

"According to the report of the bureau of the census for 1906, the average salary of ministers in the United States was $663 a year. Of the 6,027 Baptist churches connected with the Northern Baptist convention and reporting to the bureau, 4,095 were outside of cities of 25,000 or more inhabitants, and the average salary paid these ministers was $683.

"Returning to the figures for the Baptists, your committee wishes to focus attention upon the fact that the Baptist ministers within the territory of the Northern Baptist convention and outside of cities of 25,000 or more inhabitants, comprising about two-thirds of the entire number of ministers connected with the convention, receive an average salary of $683, and that the average throughout this territory, including all the cities, is $833. It might be instructive to institute certain comparisons: First, between these figures and the cost of maintaining a family in a state of physical efficiency. The Chapin investigation concluded that, to keep a family of father and mother and three children under 14 years of age up to a normal standard at least as far as the physical man is concerned, requires not less than $900 a year. It is not possible to make any rigid comparisons for the reason that the cost of living varies in different parts of the country, and this investigation was carried on in New York city. Still the fact that the average salary of the Baptist ministers in this country is below that figure is not without significance.

"It would be instructive, and pertinent to our present inquiry, if statistics were available concerning the increase, if any, of ministers' salaries in the United States during the last few decades. The bureau of census, however, never compiled ministers' salaries before the census of 1906. Your committee has endeavored to secure data of this sort with regard to Minnesota. In response to their inquiry, thirty-three churches representing every section of the state have sent information as to the salary they paid their pastor in 1890, and that which they pay him at present. While in one or two instances there has been a decrease, on the whole there has been an increase of 14.7 per cent. This percentage would be slightly larger if allowance were made for the six parsonages that have been erected by churches included in the thirty-three.

"Statistics of the retail prices are given in the bulletins of the department of labor. The last bulletin available, issued July, 1908, presents the retail prices of thirty staple articles of food as sold in sixty-eight localities by 1,014 dealers. According to these figures, the price of beef for roasting was 19.7 per cent higher in 1907 than in 1890, while steaks were 22.1 per cent higher; butter was 25.6 higher, cheese 24.7, coffee (which with sugar and prunes was the only article showing a fall in price) 39.9 lower, eggs 36.9 higher, fresh fish 21.5, wheat flour 7.3, mutton 29.2, fresh pork 46.9, potatoes 10.3, tea 5.3, and veal 26.5. The average for the entire list of thirty foods was 18.2 per cent.

Another important undertaking which was decided upon at the meeting this morning was to raise the sum of $200,000 before Christmas day, this year.

One man has pledged $50,000 on condition that the Northern convention raise $200,000. The total amount will be used to erect a home for ministers who have become old, have no means and no way of earning their living.

The undertaking is a large one but the Minnesota ministers believe that they can do their share. If a quarter of a million dollars is not pledged by Christmas, no pledge shall then be binding.

The sessions today were held at the Bethel church. Those of Wednesday will be held at the First church, Ninth avenue east and First street.

Conspicuous among the delegates to the convention is Rev. Robert Nelson, pastor of a Baptist church at Blooming Prairie, Minn.

"Bob" has lost nothing with the years that have passed since he used to plunge through center for the Pillsbury academy football team.

He played the center position on what was perhaps the best team ever turned out by the academy. It was the 1904-5 team and the championship rested at Owatonna that year. He was selected by a Minneapolis paper as all-state center.

This afternoon there was another session of the convention at the First church. Miss Thora Thompson and Mrs. J. H. Giffin, missionaries, told of their work across the waters. "A Pastor's View of Woman's Work" was the subject on which Dr. W. T. Milliken of Minneapolis, spoke.

The program for the rest of the sessions follows:

Tuesday evening, 7:30 — Service of song. Address "Constructive Co-operation," Rev. Howard Wayne Smith. Address, Dr. W. T. Stackhouse.

Wednesday morning, 9:30 — Reports of committees. Election of state convention officers and Pillsburg academy trustees. Welcome to new pastors, Rev. T. Broomfield. Response, Rev. F. E. Iams. Addresses, "Constructing a Christian Commonwealth," "The Principles," Dr. L. A. Crandall; "The Materials," Dr. Frank Peterson. Discussion. Devotions, Rev. J. O. Buswell.

Wednesday afternoon, 2 — Reports: Summer assembly, stewardship, apportionment. Discussion. Devotions, Rev. J. O. Buswell. Short address by state workers. Report of state convention board. Discussion.

Wednesday evening, 7:30—Service of song. Address, "The Method of Construction," Rev. W. A. Hill. Address, Dr. F. W. Padelford.

THEY CAN INTERVENE.

Wisconsin Paper Men to Participate in Rate Hearing.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—The Wisconsin Paper & Pulp Manufacturers' Freight association, an organization which shapes the traffic policy and handles the big issues of paper-makers of the Fox river valley and Wisconsin river valley, has asked the right of intervention on the protest of the Hennepin paper and Watab paper companies against rates to the Southwest, claimed to be discriminatory against Minneapolis.

George N. Brown, chief examiner for the interstate commerce commission, has advised Orren E. Safford, attorney for the complainants, that the right of intervention had been granted. It is probable that the paper rate case will be heard in November.

Mr. Safford's complaint on behalf of the Minneapolis companies has stirred up interest throughout the paper industry of the entire United States, since it involves rate changes on thirty-one Southwestern lines of road.

CANDIDATES ARE LINING UP FOR THE MUNICIPAL PRIMARIES

MAYOR M. B. CULLUM.

JUDGE W. L. WINDOM.

ALDERMAN J. A. WHARTON.

Prospective candidates for municipal offices are getting out their campaign steeds and carefully grooming them for the fray. They are quietly, but nevertheless effectively, jockeying about among their constituents and allies, choosing their positions for the primaries, which take place Dec. 19.

Some are already in the field, although they refuse to commit themselves publicly. Others are still in the "feeling" stage, sounding the sentiment of the voters to ascertain whether or not they are in demand as servants of the people. This is more particularly true of several men whose names have been mentioned in connection with the mayoralty, although it is also true or several who would like seats in the council.

The general election will be held in February, at which time a mayor, eight aldermen and the judge of the municipal court will be elected. There is no reason to doubt that Judge W. L. Windom will succeed himself.

Mayor Cullum a Candidate.

The Democrats are speculating as to the possibilities of a contest in the primaries for the nomination for mayor. Those who have been following the local situation concede that the present incumbent, Mayor Marcus B. Cullum, will be a candidate to succeed himself. Mayor Cullum has not yet announced himself, but there is little question of his candidacy. Known as one of the most successful "gum shoers" at the Head of the Lakes, he has not been letting any grass grow under his rubber boots. He has some lines out and is laying a foundation for his campaign. The principal feature just at the present, among the Democrats, seems to be an effort to avoid any fight at the primaries. At this time it is too early to foretell whether or not they will be successful in this.

The name of Joseph Shartel, president of the council, has been quite frequently mentioned by some prominent Democrats, who hold the opinion that he would make a strong run. Alderman Shartel, when asked last evening whether or not he will be a candidate, stated that he had nothing to say upon the subject at present. Several politicians have stated that he would not contest with Mayor Cullum in a primary fight, but that if, for some reason, the mayor should not again be a candidate, Mr. Shartel would get into the game. William E. McEwen has also been spoken of as a possible candidate for the chair of the city's chief executive.

Wharton Mentioned.

The Republicans have not as yet put forth any positive candidate, and they do not seem to be lined up as strongly or to be as well organized as the Democrats. James Wharton, alderman of the First ward, has been tentatively suggested, but he took the same position as Mr. Shartel, asserting that he has no statement to make at this time. Dr. J. A. McCuen, county coroner, has also been mentioned, as has William S. McCormick, city comptroller.

Among the aldermen the situation seems better defined. Those whose terms expire are Aldermen Wharton, first ward; Frank Makowski, Second ward; Frank Jordan, Third ward; H. P. Curren, Fourth ward; John Hogan, Fifth ward; J. D. Bergstrom, Sixth ward; William Bernard, Seventh ward, and L. A. Barnes, Eighth ward.

Situation in the Wards.

In the First ward there is a possibility of Wharton being a candidate for mayor on the Republican ticket. Alderman Makowski, Democrat, is being strongly urged to run again but is undecided, with the chances in favor of his not again becoming a candidate. Jordan, Curren, Hogan and Bernard, of the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Seventh wards are all Democrats. They are considered strong candidates and it is believed that all of them will be up for renomination. Each has made an excellent record in the council and it is not thought that they will have any opposition at the primaries. Alderman Bergstrom was elected from the Sixth ward as an independent and he may be a candidate, but the indications are that he will have opposition, the Sixth ward having a reputation for its aldermanic battles. In the Eighth Alderman Barnes states that he does not believe he will again be a candidate, his business requiring all of his attention.

RODGERS AGAIN FLYING WEST

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 10.—Aviator Rodgers resumed his coast-to-coast flight at 8:35 o'clock this morning, in weather conditions which promised a high mileage record today. He rose from the fair grounds here, circled a moment over the city and then departed toward Kansas City, changing the course from that originally planned, which included St. Louis.

Rodgers is within a few miles of the American long distance record made by Harry Atwood recently in his flight from St. Louis to New York.

Rodgers expected to reach the Missouri river by nightfall. He planned to make his first stop at Louisiana, Mo. From there he intended to fly to Independence, Mo., and thence to Kansas City.

This Is the Time

of year when the days are growing shorter; and it is a perfectly obvious physical fact that the shorter the days grow, the longer grows the evening-time when we need artificial light in our homes. Yet many people lose sight of this fact when they get their electric light bills and honestly wonder why the bills grow larger as autumn comes on.

Every year at this time people come in and say: "Why, our electric light bill this month is much larger than the one last month, although we didn't burn any more lights, and they were almost always turned off by 11 o'clock." Some of these good people blame the meter—it must be wrong; some think a mistake was made in the reading, or by the clerk who made out the bill.

They have simply overlooked the fact that their lights are TURNED ON EARLIER, because, as the days get shorter, darkness comes sooner in the evening.

In June and July the daily average amount of darkness between 6 a. m. and 10 p. m. is only two hours. In August it is 2 hours, 41 minutes; in September 3 hours, 36 minutes; in October 5 hours, 8 minutes; in November 6 hours, 22 minutes; in December 7 hours, 25 minutes. Thus, in October there are 2.5 times as many "electric light hours" as in June and July; and in December there are 3.7 times as many.

The Duluth-Edison Electric Company always welcomes complaints. When a mistake is made, or anything goes wrong with our service, we want to know it AT ONCE, in order that we may correct it promptly. Our supreme endeavor is to make and keep SATISFIED customers. We strive to treat all fairly and squarely and courteously.

But this company cannot justly be blamed because the evenings are longer in winter than in summer. The best we can do is to point out the facts, in order that, if you are minded to economize in the use of electric light, you may be watchful instead of wasteful in your own home. We do not want anybody to use any more electric light than he needs.

No more can this company be justly blamed for the facts that this City of Duluth is not big enough to support two electric light plants, that in competition with this company a municipal plant cannot succeed, that a municipal plant cannot be built without swelling the City debt enormously and making taxes enormously higher, and that this company's plant cannot be confiscated.

These facts are due to the working of laws just as natural and immutable as those which govern the procession of the seasons. And your knowledge and understanding of these facts should make impossible any such colossal folly as a municipal electric plant in Duluth.

FLOURISHING LOADED REVOLVER COSTS "DICK" CULLEN $100

"DICK" CULLEN.

Drawing a loaded revolver on Joseph Peters last Saturday evening proved an expensive experiment for "Dick" Cullen, one of Duluth's eccentric, well known characters.

He was convicted in police court this morning of carrying concealed weapons. Judge Cutting imposed a fine of $100, with the alternative of sixty days in the county jail and ordered the gun confiscated.

Peters testified that as he was hurrying along Superior street between Second and Third avenues west he accidentally bumped into Cullen. Turning around he stated that he begged his pardon and started on. It appears that Cullen followed him a few steps and kicked him. Then he said that Cullen raised his fist and that he knocked it down. At that he says Cullen drew the revolver from his hip pocket and leveled it in his face, with his finger on the trigger.

Randall Peck, a member of the naval militia, corroborated Peters' version of the affair. He asserted that he heard Peters apologize to Cullen and saw Cullen level the revolver at Peters' face. He did not think that Cullen had any provocation for drawing the gun.

Chief Troyer stated that some months ago Cullen had asked him for permission to carry a revolver and that he had explained that under the Minnesota statutes no one can give permission to carry a revolver.

Cullen claimed that Peters had assaulted him and that he drew the revolver in self defense. He claimed that he frequently carries large sums of money and valuable papers and that he had the revolver to protect himself in case he should be held-up. As in other cases, Cullen acted as his own attorney and examined the witnesses himself.

Henry Brown, more commonly known to the theatrical world as "Hank" Brown, of the team of Brown, Harris & Brown at the Orpheum this week, is a veteran of the theatrical business, and has a fund of amusing stories that have kept the other performers on this week's bill chuckling all week to date. Here is one he told last evening:

"Several years ago I was in stock for the late Col. John D. Hopkins. We were producing "Saved From the Storm" with Minnie Oscar Gray and William J. Stephens, both guests of the Actors' home now. I was playing Jack Blake the 'heavy.' We were supposed to tie the heroine, Miss Gray, to the railroad ties and the two large St. Bernard dogs come on and with their teeth release her just as the lightning express passed. Well the lady was on the track tied; the dogs were releasing her and the train was coming when Jack Black says, 'Now my revenge will be complete the express is coming and she will be ground to pieces,' but no train came. The orchestra was doing all the effects of a coming train, when I thought of a scheme. I gradually edged toward the entrance where the train was supposed to come and grabbing it from behind rushed it across the stage, thus saving the performance. Well the curtain came down and the audience was in an uproar. Col. Hopkins came on the stage 'cussing' all in sight and said 'who did that.' I thinking I had done a big thing said 'I did it John.' I only made one exit. I don't remember but I think it was from a window, for instead of running the fast train across the stage I had grabbed a set house and run that over the track."

Amusement Notes.

The matinee girl will be unable to appreciate the fine points of the fight that takes place in the third act of "The Spoilers" which is being presented this week at the Lyceum. Only the men of the audiences understand the science of the grip that results in hammerlock that ends in a broken arm for McNamara, the crooked politician, who came to Alaska to cheat the first comers out of their rich claims. Mr. Forbes and H. Y. Noles who appears as McNamara, have a strenuous rough and tumble and thus far this week it is the men of the audience who appreciate the splendid stage fight which they present. The matinee girl can however appreciate the thrill and excitement of the moment and be completely satisfied with the outcome.

The first matinee of the week will be given tomorrow afternoon at the Lyceum and "The Spoilers" will be repeated every evening except Friday with a special Saturday matinee. The play made from the great novel by Rex Beach is proving a popular one with the stock company patrons. The play follows the story of the book closely and the members of Mr. Forbes company are offering a fine production.

It is seldom that any artist equals the success that Wilmos Westony is meeting with at the Empress this week. It is not often that one can say a musical act brings down the house, including the gallery, but it can be said of Westony.

He has the audience, from pit to dome, with him from the time he appears on the stage until he has responded to half a dozen curtain calls which he is forced to do at each performance. Even the gallery, which often times remains quiet at the conclusion of a musical act, appreciates the fact that an artist has entertained them. Westony is different from most of the foreigners seen in vaudeville, in that he shows that he really enjoys pleasing his audience and he will play any tune from grand opera to rag time.

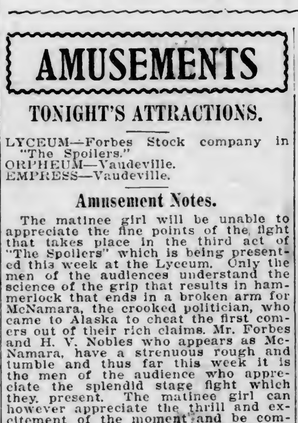

Mr. Westony's repertoire is a most extensive one and he varies his program at each performance so that at no two performances does he play the same selections. This he does for the sake of the music lovers who come to hear him the second time.

There are many jugglers who claim to be the greatest in the business, but it is safe to say that Duluth has seldom seen a juggler the equal of Kara. His work is far removed from that of other jugglers. He performs many of the old tricks, but he does them in such a manner that one would hardly recognize them. His turn includes a great many original feats and his pool rack trick is easily the most wonderful ever presented at the Empress. A description of this feat would be difficult, but Kara has nearly fifty pool balls in motion while performing this feat.

A big laugh-getter this week is "A C. O. D. Package," which is being presented by Sullivan & Pasquelena. Miss Pasquelena is seen as a typical East side girl and hands out a lot of slang in a manner that almost convulses her hearers. "A C. O. D. Package" is a opens with re-enforcements along all the remarkable lines offered last week. New shipments of Russian Pony Coats, Seal Coats, and Sets of Mink, Black Fox, Opossum and Raccoon are now here at remarkable savings over prices that will prevail later in the season. For example:

The Second Week of the Fur Sale

Russian Pony Goats at $39.50 and $50

The whole town is talking about these remarkable coats. Considering that these are not of calf skin or other usual imitations, but of genuine European dyed Russian pony skins, and furthermore, that they are beautifully marked and lined throughout with Skinner's guaranteed satin, the wonder grows that they can be retailed at these prices. Coats at $65 and $75 sold in previous seasons have not looked as good to us as these coats at $39.50 and $50.

Don't wait until the first blizzard comes along to decide upon your fur coat, because upon payment of a small deposit we will lay the coat aside until you need it.

Marabou Furs

Marabou used to be considered strictly a millinery adornment. Today it ranks with furs in importance as a protection against chilly evenings and for wear to evening affairs. Our Marabou Stoles, Shawls and Muffs this year come from abroad—which means finer Marabou and far more handsome effects. Some are combined with ostrich. Some are in two-tone effects, some in natural and others in evening shades of pink, light blue and white.

And they are not expensive either. A large Stole (2¼ yards long) and very large pillow muff in natural Marabou sells at $18.50 for the set. Novelty effects at $19.50, $25 and $29.50 per set.

New Evening Gowns and Wraps

There was never such a wealth of color or grace of draping or daintiness of trimming as these new gowns display. It seems as though Paris was getting nearer and nearer to perfection in all of these things.

Our lines of Evening Gowns and Wraps are now complete, and range in price from $19.50 for a simple little dancing dress of chiffon up to $135 for a magnificent crepe meteor model in black and white with real lace. The Wraps are of velvet and broadcloth, some trimmed with fur and others depending upon their graceful draping for their elegance.

These, too, are reasonably priced at $29.50 up to $125.00

Specials in Blankets and Comforters

11¼ Cotton Blanket, Woolnap finish, in small, dainty checks. Tan, gray and blue; regular $3.50 value, special $2.75.

HEAR REPORT ON MISSIONS

Board of Commissioners for Foreign Work Meets in Milwaukee.

Four Hundred Congregational Ministers and Laymen Attend.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10. — Missionaries, Congregational ministers and laymen to the number of about 400 are in attendance at the 102nd annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions which opened a four days' convention in Milwaukee today.

The ministers and laymen came all the way from Maine and Hawaii to hear reports of the year's work, to listen to twenty-five of the fifty or more missionaries home on furlough who are in attendance, and to address of leaders in the work at the home base.

Some Prominent Missionairies.

Among the prominent missionairies appearing are the veterans, Dr. J. K. Greene of Constantnople, who for nearly fifty years has watched the dramatic events of Turkish history, and Dr. Chauncey Goodrich, who has seen a like term at China's capital, Pekin.

Of the speakers from this country are Doctors A. J. Lyman of Brooklyn, A. Z. Conrad of Boston and H. A. Stimson of New York and President Edward D. Eaton of Beloit, the two last named being respectively recording secretary and vice president of the board.

Spent Over $1,000,000.

The report of the treasurer, Frank H. Wiggin, announced at the opening session, showed the total current expenditures of the board for the year to have been $1,030,604 against total receipts of $1,032,025.

The report mentions the receipt of a million dollar gift to the board as a memorial to D. Willis James by his family, the fund to be known as the D. Willis James foundation. Another gift amounting to $100,000 was received from Dr. D. K. Pearsons for the higher educational endowment fund.

The report of the home department showed that seventy-three new missionareis were sent abroad during the year.

LOOKING FOR HIS MOTHER MISSING EIGHT YEARS.

Francis Meyers, a member of the crew of the steamer Nebraska, has asked Clerk Johnson of the district court to assist him in a search for his mother, whom he has not seen in about eight years and whom he believes is living in Duluth.

The inquiry was made by letter. The woman's name is or was Mrs. A. F. Vassan. Meyers says that it may be possible that she secured a divorce in St. Louis county courts. So far as the clerk is able to find, no one by this name has had a case in the local courts in a number of years.

The letter follows:

"Dear Sir: Will you be kind enough to look over your books, and see if you have a party by the name of Mrs. A. F. Vassan on your records for divorce about five years ago (or more). Her name before marriage was Miss Rosie Valley. She is my mother, and I have not seen her or heard from her for over eight years. I have tried hard to find her. I know she is in Duluth, but I don't know where she lives. Now, if you will be kind enough to look her up. Don't forget she is now married and her name is—I don't know. Your friend, FRANCIS MEYERS.

"U. S. S. Nebraska."

SAYS MOST WIVES BOSS THEIR HUSBANDS.

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 10.—Declaring that the clause "love, honor and obey" in the wedding ritual compels perjury and is unjust, Magistrate George K. Thompson of Elgin has stricken it from his ceremonial, and in its stead has inserted the clause "cherish and protect."

"There was a time when women obeyed husbands in every wish, but not any more," the judge said. "Hence such a clause compels perjury, because the majority of wives boss their husbands."

NO QUARREL AT THE HOUSE

Matel and Kopechinski Were Friendly When They Left for Car.

Physician Holds Out Little Hope for Recovery of Injured Man.

The celebration held last Sunday evening at 2710½ West Michigan street, which was followed by the assault on Victor Matel, was not a wedding as first reported, but a friendly gathering, as stated by Mrs. Walter Kanoski, at whose home the event took place.

She said that the men had been drinking, but that there had not been any fighting at her house during the entire evening. All the men left in an orderly way. The occupants of the house did not even know of the accident until a Herald reporter called to ask a few questions concerning the men. John Riski, one of the boarders who took the men to the car, did not report any trouble at all upon returning home, as Mrs. Kanoski swears she did not know anything of the accident until told by the reporter. John Riski could not be reached up to a late hour last night. He is employed by the street car company as one of the laborers on the work cars.

The men who attended were not invited, said Mrs. Kanoski, but had come and found the other men drinking and then stayed the rest of the evening. Victor Matel was already drunk when he got to her home, said Mrs. Kanoski, and when asked to dance said that he did not think he could stand very well. There was no trouble or ill feeling during the entire evening between any of them.

Fought on Street.

The fight which resulted in the fracturing of Victor Matel's skull, occurred shortly before midnight after the men had left the Kanoski home and were waiting for the car.

Matel and Kopechinski, accompanied by several others, left the house together. Kopechinski claims that Matel asked him who was going to pay the car fare. It seems that Kopechinski answered that he had the money but was not going with the crowd. Whereupon he claims that Matel pushed him. The prisoner claims that he turned around and asked Matel to pardon him if he were in his way. Thereupon he alleges that Matel struck him a heavy blow back of his ear.

Matel May Die.

Matel was taken to St. Mary's hospital with a fractured skull and may die, according to the surgeon attending him. There is a possible chance for him to recover, said Dr. Oredson, but it is very slim. The rock crushed in the skull over his eye, and two silvers were driven into the edge of his brain.

Matel was in court a short time ago as the defendant in an action brought against him by Attorney M. Bronzkala to recover $120 alleged to be still due for services rendered at the time he was tried on the murder charge. The court directed a verdict for the full amount in the plaintiff's favor.

Adolph, the cousin who was tried with Victor on the murder charge, is said not to be in this part of the country. It is claimed that his whereabouts are unknown. The killing for which they were indicted was a sequel to a wedding celebration. It took place on Garfield avenue where Matel lives.

Kopechinski when arraigned in municipal court, asked for an examination. The date was set for Oct. 17, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Temperance Workers of West End Make Search for Leaks.

Plans will be completed in a few days at a meeting to be held by the United Temperance society, for an investigation of alleged violation of the Sunday closing law.

The meeting will be held at L. A. Simonson's home, 2102 West Superior street. Mr. Simonson is the chairman of the society which is comprised of a committee of three members from each of the five temperance societies in the West end. Those represented are the Lysglimt North Star and Morning Star lodges of the Independend Order of Good Templars, the Scandinavian Temperance society and the West end branch of the W. C. T. U.

The society proposes to employ detectives who will probably be imported from Minneapolis to do the investigating for the order. Each lodge has appropriated money to be expended to secure the conviction of any of the offenders. The society was organized several months ago because it was rumored at the time that a large number of saloon keepers and hotel proprietors were violating the Sunday closing law and the 11 o'clock closing order at night.

TWO MEN KILLED WHILE RIDING IN AUTOMOBILE.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 10.—Cleveland Mercer, aged 25 years, and R. Witquist, 35 years old, met death in a peculiar manner here last night while riding in an automobile with four companions.

It is believed the car in which they were riding struck a rough place in the road, causing the two occupants in the back seat to lurch forward and strike their heads against the back of the front seat, as both received a fracture of the skull directly over the right eye and died instantly.

Three members of the party declare that the car was running smoothly when the men were killed, while a fourth member insists that the machine was run into the curbing.

To Unclog The Pores Remove Stifling Skin

"Clogged pores are the cause of many complexion difficulties," according to Dr. Heman Ward. "This condition makes the skin coarse in texture. It interferes with elimination of waste matter, producing a muddy or blotchy complexion, eruptions and other defects.

"To open and cleanse the closed pores there is nothing more effective than ordinary mercolized wax, used as you would cold cream, but not rubbed in. It should be applied at night and washed off in the morning. Mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, will also remove the effects of the condition referred to. That is, it removes the undesirable complexion itself, with its disfiguring marks. Possessing a peculiar absorbent power, it flakes off the soiled skin in minute particles, but so gradually there is no irritation or inconvenience. It is recommended in preference to cosmetics, as the new complexion it reveals is a perfectly natural one."

FEAR CHILL FOR TAFT

Friends Predict Lack of Enthusiasm in the State Capitol.

President Will Make Address at St. Paul Auditorium.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.) — When President Taft visits St. Paul Oct. 25 he will be accorded every courtesy due the chief executive of the nation, be shown all the deference due him, be feted, wined and dined and his movements will be directed by friends. Every effort is to be made by them to make his stay pleasant. But undeniably there is a feeling extant that the president will not encounter waves of enthusiasm, and that a chill will sweep over the Auditorium when he touches on the subject of his tariff vetoes.

The president won more notoriety than fame in his memorable Winona speech defending the Payne-Aldrich bill, and coming now with another defense of his vetoes he appears in the light of a "defender of his defenses." In other words, he comes to the Gopher state on the defensive side the second time.

Auto Tour of Parks.

The entertainment committee will receive President Taft in Minneapolis at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, immediately at the close of the luncheon to be given him by the Young Men's Republican club. He will then be taken on an automobile ride over the Minneapolis park system, out to Fort Snelling, thence to Como park and on to the St. Paul hotel. An informal dinner will be served him there at 6 o'clock. At 8 he will speak at the Auditorium.

The committee is considering reserving the boxes for visitors from outside the city. Seats on the stage will be reserved for Twin City residents, and all the rest of the big Auditorium be thrown open to the public. C. L. Kluckholm, president of the Association of Commerce, will introduce the president.

Coming From Mankato.

President Taft will arrive in Minneapolis at 7:35 o'clock in the evening of Oct. 24, after he has spoken at Mankato. A public meeting will be held in the auditorium there that night.

Plans for entertaining the president are being directed in a general way from the office of Governor Eberhart. Committees from both cities have been conferring with him. Before he left last night for an inspection of the state ditches, he outlined his desires. Governor Eberhart is standing "pat" for the president and upholding his administration. It probably is true that way down deep in his heart he would prefer having the president skip Minnesota on his trip, but if this is true, he does not admit it. He declared recently that if there was any anti-Taft sentiment in Minnesota, he had not encountered it.

Women's 15-Button Tan Shoes.

A shipment of this latest style arrived at the Columbia Clothing Co.'s shoe shop this morning.

Hiestand to assist in getting the work of the orchestra started and selecting a pianist. There are already several candidates for that position.

A mock trial, open to the public, will be held by the Central High School Literary society on Thursday, Oct. 12. A charge of assault and battery will be tried under the name of Lewis vs. Hoopes.

THE VINDICATION OF PARK FALLS

Wherein an Erring Herald Reporter Grovels Before the Just Wrath of "The Thunderer" of Live Wisconsin Town.

The common every-day reporter, who was dignified by the title of staff correspondent of The Herald on the recent trade excursion through Wisconsin, figuratively descends to his knees to ask pardon of Park Falls, Wis. With his head bowed to the hard earth, he begs Park Falls to withhold its just wrath and promises that he will set Park Falls right before the world.

The population of Park Falls, Wis., is 1,972, according to the 1910 census. The population of Phillips, Wis., is 1,948.

There! The deed is done.

In an ungarded moment, the reporter, who was covering about nineteen towns a day and trying to get a line on each of them to herald their greatness to the world, said that Park Falls had 2,000 people and Phillips had 2,100. After many years of accurate reporting, he made that fatal mistake. The absurdity of it should have been patent to him when he wrote the figures, but it wasn't, and when his story was taken into the office of the Park Falls Herald by the United States mail, and the editor of the Park Falls paper saw the figures in cold type, he threw four fits on the floor in quick succession and immediately purchased a shotgun.

Cold-Blooded Insult.

That the reporter had credited Park Falls with twenty-eight more people than it really had, took none of the sting from the Machievellian disparagement of the metropolis of Price county. He had credited Phillips with 152 people more than it had and that was a direct, premeditated, cold-blooded insult to Park Falls. As long as the adding was good, he should have added to Park Falls just as generously as he added to Phillips. He should have made Park Falls stand for 2,124 people and Phillips, 2,100. That would have been more nearly the truth.

The reporter admits his mistake. He should not have dealt in round numbers. He should have carried a copy of the United States census reports with him in order to guard against injuring the civic pride of any town. Twenty-four people don't look like very many to him, but evidently they are an important number to Park Falls as constituting the edge that Park Falls has on Phillips. It is only another proof that one can always learn something new. Hereafter the reporter will go on no trade excursion without a copy of the census reports and a firm determination to stick to them.

The trouble with Park Falls is that it is too modest. If, when the trade excursionists were there, the people of Park Falls had claimed unblushingly that it had 2,200 people or 2,500 people or any number within reason, it might have impressed the Duluthians with its greatness in numbers. It did impress them with its greatness in hospitality and in live business men and a few people more or less don't make a town. If Park Falls had only 1,000 people, it would probably be able to back Phillips off the map.

No Flies on Park Falls.

There are no flies on Park Falls. It gave its visitors a royal welcome. It proved that it had big people, even if some of the visitors did carry away the impression that it didn't have more people than Phillips. Park Falls is a big little town and the erring reporter wishes it well.

Here is the unkind comment of the editor of the Park Falls Herald on the fallability of city reporters:

"City dailies have a stock in trade joke about Hiram Hayseed in the city and another they often dope out consists of satirical references to rural correspondence in the country weeklies. Country people and the country newspapers have their fields of activity and when the city guys come to the country we have an opportunity to return the laugh. Here comes the Duluth Trade Excursion, bringing along a few bright city repotahs and they endeavor to supply their newspapers with an account of the trip and brief comments on the towns visited. Most of the villages are of course lumbering towns so the work of the city writer is easy for him—he thinks. Futternut is reported in The Duluth Herald as manufacturing lumber and packages; Park Falls has a lumber mill and stave factory, and a population of 2,000, while Phillips has 2,100 population and manufactures lumber and knit goods. Well, well! And that is what we get after all we did for those fellows. Phillips bigger than Park Falls? Wow! Nasty! And what about our paper mill, two pulp mills, veneer mill, two shingle mills, lath mill, car door factory, soft drink brewery, creamery and dye works? When he was on the sawmill question it would have been easy to say that we had bigger sawmills and more sawmills to the square foot than any other place west of the Rockies. But the straw that breaks the camel's back is the inference that Phillips is bigger and liveller than Park Falls! Whell, that repotah is certainly no camel himself. If he doesn't say we are bigger and better and liveller than Phillips ever dared be we'll slap his little wrist."

It is equally beneficial for the very young and the middle aged, as it is always efficient and free from all harmful ingredients. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine, bearing the name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package.

Convicted One Loses Appeal.

La Moure, N. D., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Woodell must serve a year in the state penitentiary as a result of the action of the supreme court in refusing to grant him a new trial. He was convicted on a charge of assaulting Otto Skidmore.

NEVER ANY FALLING HAIR OR DANDRUFF IF YOU TRY THIS

Your hair looks soft, fluffy, lustrous and abundant after a Danderine hair cleanse

Immediate?—Yes. Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it; surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

GIVING OUT

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen of Duluth.

Around all day with an aching back;
Can't rest at night;
Enough to make any one "give out."

Doan's Kidney Pills are helping thousands.

They are for kidney backache;
They relieve kidney ills.

Here is Duluth proof that this is so:

J. H. Tomlin, 112 W. Palmetto St., Duluth Heights, Duluth, Minn., says: "When I worked on the street railway in 1908, I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. At that time I said that I had suffered for two years from kidney complaint. I finally became so bad that I had to quit work for days. My back was painful and at night I was nervous. When I got up in the morning, I felt tired and worn out and I was made miserable by a kidney weakness. I have no doubt that the constant jar received while riding caused my trouble. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and I have not had much trouble from my back or kidneys since. I always have a box of Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."

TWO IOWANS DIE AS RESULT OF FIGHTS.

Mason City, Iowa, Oct. 10.—Two murders for which four men are being held by the police, have developed from two fights which occurred here some time ago.

M. J. Severns, a grocer, shot Aug. 29 by Thomas Brewer, a boarding-house keeper, following a quarrel, is dead, and Brewer, who had been released, was rearrested.

O. J. Healy, whose skull was fractured in a fight Oct. 4, died yesterday, not having regained consciousness, and Charles Nichols, John Wilcox and Gus Muyveir are being held, charged with the assault.

THE HERPICIDE GIRL IS THANKFUL

I am always grateful for real blessings, and I know of nothing that I need to be more thankful for than Newbro's Herpicide. Thousands of ladies not only in the United States but all over the world feel the same way about it. To this wonderful scalp and hair remedy they owe their soft, long, beautiful hair.

Mary J. Terry, of Lovejoy, Ill., writes: "My hair came out until there was just a scanty cover for the scalp. I tried everything I ever heard of or read about until I finally used Herpicide. There is nothing like it. My head is now covered with new hair. I shall forever praise Herpicide."

Most hair troubles come from dandruff. Newbro's Herpicide removes this dandruff by killing the germ which causes it. It also stimulates a flow of blood which nourishes the follicles. The scalp being healthy, the hair does not come out and the new hair is allowed to grow.

There are other preparations which they say are "just as good" as Herpicide. It is not advisable to try them. Instead of doing any good they may do positive harm.

No one is ever disappointed in Newbro's Herpicide. The results are always the same, always satisfactory as is indicated by the fact that Herpicide has been sold for years and has thousands of satisfied friends. It is the only genuine, original dandruff germ destroyer. There is nothing "just as good"

One dollar size bottles are sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

DIES FROM HIS WOUNDS

Duluth Boy, Whose Jaw Was Shot Away, Fails to Recover.

Gun Accidentally Discharged While He Was Drinking From Stream.

Victor Berg, the 17-year-old son of Charles J. Berg of 401 Mygatt avenue, whose lower jaw was accidentally shot away Sunday afternoon in the woods near Thirty-second avenue east, died last night about 11:30 o'clock at St. Luke's hospital.

Death was due to the shock and loss of blood. The young man and a companion about his own age went hunting with shotguns Sunday afternoon. Both stopped at a brook to get a drink, laying their guns down near them. The boy with Berg says the first he knew of the accident was when he heard the report of Berg's gun and looked around to see blood streaming from his face. It is believed that in raising himself from the edge of the stream Berg accidentally caused the gun to be discharged. The body was removed to Stewart's undertaking rooms. This is the first fatality in Duluth of the present hunting season.

Luke in a Springfield hotel a month or three weeks before Mr. Lorimer's election. Luke told me he could deliver ten votes providing the conditions were right. I said to him, 'I thought you were going to vote for Hopkins?' He said, 'No, I am not. Hopkins won't come across.'"

Senator Landee was then questioned regarding a visit to his home at Moline in 1909 of John I. Hughes of Chicago a friend of Senator Lorimer.

The witness testified that Hughes urged the candidacy of William Lorimer.

To His "Advantage."

"'Hopkins is an impossibility,' Hughes said to me. 'Now, you vote for Lorimer, and it will be to your advantage. Lorimer's name will not be presented to the legislature until we have every vote we need to elect him.'

"Hughes said it would be to my interest to be with Mr. Lorimer in considering the matter of the appointment of a postmaster at Moline."

The witness said he introduced State Representative Thomas Campbell to Hughes.

Attorney Hanecy attacked the testimony of the witness regarding the alleged conversation with Charles Luke at the Springfield hotel

Assailed by Hanecy.

"Didn't you change the testimony you gave before the Helm committee because it will suit the purposes of the people who are making this attack upon Senator Lorimer, and because Charles Luke is dead and can't come here to deny what you are saying?" asked Attorney Hanecy.

"Why didn't you tell these things to the Helm committee at Springfield?"

Attorney Hanecy followed by inquiring regarding Senator Landee's vote for Foss and later for Hopkins for United States senator.

NEW CABINET IN DOMINION

Borden's chief lieutenant in the organization work of the campaign, is the man without a portfolio.

Seven From Ontario.

Seven places fall to the lot of Ontario. The new minister of finance is W. T. White of Toronto, until recently general manager of the National Trust company, one of the eighteen Liberals who led the protest against reciprocity.

John D. Reid of Grenville is minister of customs; T. W. Crothers of West Elgin, minister of labor; Col. Sam Hughes of Victoria, minister of militia; Frank Cochrane, present minister of mines in the Ontario government, minister of railways, and George E. Foster, minister of trade and commerce. A. E. Kemp of Toronto is taken in without portfolio.

Four From Northwest.

The Northwest is given four places. Dr. Roche of Marquette will represent Manitoba, and is to be secretary of state. Robert Rogers, now minister of public works in Manitoba, is to be minister of the interior and will sit for Prince Albert in Saskatchewan, the recently elected member retiring in his favor. Alberta will be represented by Senator Lougheed who will not have a portfolio, while the British Columbia representative will be Martin Burrell of Grand Forks, as minister of agriculture.

open air meeting on the vacant square at Fourth avenue and Jefferson street. He spoke for more than half an hour to a demonstrative and sympathetic crowd.

Immediately after the meeting the president went to the residence of the former secretary of the interior, Richard A. Ballinger, where he ate dinner, the other guests numbering less than a dozen.

From the home of Mr. Ballinger the president went direct to the harbor front, where a steamer was waiting to convey him across Puget Sound to the navy yard at Bremerton, and then to Tacoma.

A big public meeting will be held in Tacoma tonight.

Would Lease Alaska Land.

Last night President Taft faced here one of the largest and by far the most enthusiastic and responsive audiences he has met. The president discussed a variety of subjects, including the relation of government to business, tariff vetoes and Alaska. He declared that Alaska should have at least a semi-self-governing body. Two years ago Mr. Taft advocated here a straight commission form of government for the territory.

"That proposition has not met approval," said Mr. Taft last night, "I still think it the better way, but I am willing to make a concession for a partly elective and partly appointive form of government in Alaska.

"Congress cannot make the necessary laws for Alaska. Alaska must have a local body. In bringing this about, I hope there will be no politics played.

Not Government Ownership.

"I see no more reason for government ownership in Alaska, however, than elsewhere. We should introduce the same limitations as to the disposition of public domain in Alaska as apply elsewhere.

"As for myself, I favor the leasing system. It has proved a success in Australia, New Zealand and Canada. What you want is a condition of ownership that will attract capital."

Congressman Humphreys, who introduced the president, declared that the people of the Pacific coast "from British Columbia to Southern California are for Mr. Taft." There was a great outburst of cheering at this.

In discussing the Sherman anti-trust law, Mr. Taft said he was just as much bound by his oath to enforce that statute as he was the law

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

The air was crisp and fresh, the big moon shone out of a clear sky and last evening was one to be remembered. This Indian summer weather is the joy of the true Duluthian and anybody who cannot appreciate it is indeed lacking in love of nature at its best. The enjoyment may be short-lived, for the weather man promises rain for tonight or tomorrow.

Beautiful fall weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 6:19 and it will set at 5:31 this evening, giving eleven hours and twelve minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer is falling over the central states in connection with the depression centered over Montana and Arizona. During the last twenty-four hours rains have resulted in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Eastern Texas, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alberta. Somewhat warmer weather prevails in most of the states to the eastward of the Rocky mountains. In the extreme West, however, the temperature has become colder in connection with increasing barometric pressures over that section. The easterly advance of the Montana disturbance will be attended by more or less rain at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight in east portion.

Wisconsin—Mostly cloudy with probably showers late tonight or Wednesday; warmer in west portion tonight, and in south Wednesday.

CLAIM STONE "COVERED UP" EXPENDITURE

really was done with it, he wanted to say we got it. I was to pretend to having received $250, Johnson $250 and Richtmann $150. We agreed to do this on condition that we would not be called to testify at the legislative investigation."

Senator W. B. Heyburn, the chairman, then read the proceedings of the legislative investigation at which Stone had testified that he actually did give the money to Kingsley. Kingsley repudiated Stone's testimony, as read.

That Davidson Money.

In another part of the legislative proceedings it was brought out that $1,200 of the $2,500 which Stone received was paid to James O. Davidson, then governor of Wisconsin, as a "campaign fund." Davidson's testimony at the legislative inquiry was that the money was put on his desk in an envelope, and not knowing what it was for he put it aside for some months until finally it found its way into his bank account.

Charles E. Littlefield, counsel for against counterfeiting, and he added:

"I am not to be frightened by suggestions of disaster to business carried on against the law."

Following his address at the armory, the president was the guest of the Seattle Press club.

Spent Night "Ashore."

Last night was President Taft's fourth night "ashore" since he left Beverly, Sept. 15 to begin his "swing around the circle." In the twenty-four days he has been out, the president has granted himself "shore leave" over night from his private car only at Erie, Pa.; Marquette, Mich.; Omaha and Seattle. In spite of the hardships of the constant traveling, he has stood the trip well.

Mr. Taft spent the day traveling south from Bellingham, Wash., a little city twenty miles from the Canadian line, to Seattle. He stopped at Burlington, Mount Vernon and Everett, making brief speeches in each place. Large crowds turned out to hear the president at Bellingham, "Taft day" having been well advertised.

Mr. Taft's first speech of the day was at Bellingham, where he predicted the opening for traffic of the Panama canal by July 1, 1913, said that Canada was going to be sorry that she had not adopted the reciprocity treaty, and talked about conservation.

Panama Canal Open July 1, 1913.

Speaking of the opening of the Panama canal, the president said he would take the people of Bellingham into a little official confidence.

"If nothing untoward happens," he said, "you can count on the completion of the canal not later than the first of July, 1913. It has only been promised on the first of January, 1915, and if it is not ready until then, you must not say that anybody made a promise that it would be completed before. I am expressing a hope based on calculation, but of course, man proposes and God disposes, and it is possible that something will happen down there in the way of slides or delays to work that may continue it until the first of January 1915. But don't want you to have any unpleasant surprises. I don't want you to have heart disease if you learn that the first steamer goes through on July 1, 1913."

He said that it made no difference what policy was adopted in regard to the tolls or management of the canal, for the people were certain to see that arrangements were made so as to make it profitable to ship goods through the waterway.

Senator Stephenson, objected to the introduction of this testimony on the ground that it had no relation to Senator Stephenson, but the committee overruled him.

"You put yourself in the position of agreeing that a false statement should be made before the investigation, didn't you? You were content that the false information should stand so long as you were not called to substantiate it?" asked Senator George Sutherland.

Kingsley replied that as soon as it appeared that he would have to testify he repudiated what Stone had said.

"Helping in Perjury."

"When you agreed to help Stone to cover up what he did with the money, didn't it occur to you that you were conspiring with him to commit perjury?" asked Attorney Littlefield.

"It did not so occur to me then, but it does now."

The $2,500 given to Stone out of the Stephenson campaign fund of $107,793, it was testified, was to be used by Stone to promote the senator's interests. Stone gave various sums of money to Davidson, then governor, and to others, before the charges were made, and later on being called upon to explain, Stone called a meeting of his deputies to "frame up" a story of what he wanted the public to believe was the disposal of the money, Kingsley testified.

At the legislative investigation, Daddison admitted having had the money laid on his desk.

John Blaine of Boscobel, Wis., a state senator, who originally made the charges against Senator Stephenson, was called to repeat in detail his charges as presented to the United States senate. First of the Blaine charges was that Stephenson gave to E. A. Edmunds, "a sum exceeding $106,000 and approximating $250,000," to be used in the campaign in violation of the Wisconsin statutes. Edmunds was a Stephenson campaign manager.

Objection by Littlefield.

Mr. Littlefield here entered objection to certain features of the present investigation. He thought certain lines of testimony ought to be obtained by the committee in executive session, as it might, when spread broadcast, mislead the public concerning Senator Stephenson.

"I know this committee does not intend to be influenced by public opinion," said Mr. Littlefield. "Trials by newspapers and magazines are something not exactly desirable. The public does not discriminate as to what evidence is competent and what incompetent. It simply grasps whatever impression it may happen to get and it sticks to it. It may be seen that Senator Stephenson might be harmed by testimony not entirely within the lines of legal procedure."

The committee ordered Blaine to proceed with his testimony.

Based on Hearsay.

Blaine admitted that practically all of the first six of the charges made by him against Senator Stephenson were based on hearsay information. He said he practically had received no information first-hand and he had brought the charges without a thorough investigation on his part.

McNAMARA TRIAL HALTS

deaths of nineteen of these the McNamaras are held on indictments.

Darrow Is Busy.

Much of the time of District Attorney John D. Fredericks was occupied yesterday in advising election officers and keeping that situation in hand. Attorney Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, chief of counsel for the defense, and his associates worked during the day in their long suite of offices, but made no formal appearance.

District Attorney Fredericks was asked when he would determine which McNamara should stand trial first.

"Tomorrow at 10 a. m.," he replied. "It is not necessary to decide until then, and it saves changing your mind."

At that time will appear the forty-five veniremen left out of 122 after yesterday's preliminary examination by Judge Walter Bordwell and unless present plans are changed, they will be taken in hand by counsel for both sides. None of them has been examined as to opinions, prejudices or similar possible qualifications.

Jury May Come Slowly.

How long it will take to get a jury that will face extended confinement is problematical.

General belief here today was that if one juryman is secured from forty-five, the progress will be excellent.

greater part of the Italian army expedition is now on the way to Tripoli.

One contingent, comprising the largest part of the total force, sailed from Naples last night, and another fleet of transports left Taranto at sunrise today. More troops will depart from Agosta tonight.

The landing of a whole army corps in Tripoli is looked upon as one of the most difficult operations of the war, despite the fact that little fear of an attack by the enemy is entertained. Accordingly every precaution looking to the safety of the troops has been taken. The battleship convoy covers a moving area one mile wide and five miles long. Within this square the transports appear secure from any danger except the ever-present one of the elements.

Once safely arrived off the Tripolitan coast it is expected with a favorable sea the troops can be landed in two days.

More Efforts for Peace.

London, Oct. 10.—The correspondent of the Chronicle at Constantinople telegraphs that last Turkish note to the powers was so conciliatory in tone that Germany has decided, with the other governments, to renew her approaches at Rome for an understanding. Some of the answers received by the Porte from the powers last night are favorable to Turkey's request.

Reports from Benghazi that two Italian cruisers were destroyed and from Derna that two Italian torpedo boats had been blown up by mines are in circulation but have not been confirmed.

Kenton, Ohio, Oct. 10.—William Yazel and Michael Hickman fought a duel here yesterday with shotguns, Hickman sustaining serious abdominal injuries and Yazel being wounded in the right arm. The men had been enemies for a long time and the duel was arranged when they and some of their followers met. At a distance of thirty feet apart they blazed away at each other at the count of three. Each fired only one shot.

WANT DIVISION OF EIGHTH WARD

New Duluth Commercial Club Thinks Growth Warrants the Step.

The New Duluth Commercial club will agitate the plan of dividing the Eighth ward and creating a new one with its eastern limits at Seventy-first avenue west. The decision was reached last evening by the club's directors at a special meeting held for that purpose. They claim that there are 1,000 men west of this new boundary, 60 per cent of whom are voters. The question will be officially taken up at the club meeting next Tuesday when the aldermen will be instructed to bring the matter before the city council.

The members of the committee also decided that the Northern Pacific rates would come up at the next meeting. They say that the fares are prohibitive and that they are retarding the growth of the suburb. In view of the fact that the railroad is operating within the city limits, the members believe that the company should be compelled to lower the rates between these points. The fare is now 68 cents for the round trip, and is a full charge of 8 cents a mile.

The city will also be asked to put the new highway which is to take the place of the old country road in shape, and it is believed that the street car company will then lay its lines to that section.

SAY AVENUE IS IMPASSABLE

Nearly every automobile owner 'n West Duluth is complaining about Grand avenue and its present condition. They say it is impossible to drive on that thoroughfare. The street is muddy and hardly has an even stretch of fifty feet. The men are planning a campaign for the rebuilding of the road and making a respectable street of it, they say.

"It is not right," said one of the citizens, "to make a man pay taxes and then compel him to use a road that does not even compare with some of the worst country roads."

The citizens in that section want the street from Twenty-fifth to Forty-fourth avenues repaired and made fit for riding. A stone pavement was recently laid from Forty-fourth to Forty-ninth avenues and it is up to the former avenue that the men want the street fixed.

DYING MAN FOUND IN REAR OF SALOON.

The funeral of Nels Anderson, 121 North Fifty-fifth avenue west, who died yesterday in the Duluth hospital, will be held tomorrow afternoon from Richter undertaking rooms. Interment will be in the Oneota cemetery.

Anderson was found at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the rear of Claus Pearson's saloon, 414 North Central avenue, suffering from acute alcoholism. The patrol wagon was called and he was taken to the Duluth hospital where he died two hours later. When brought to the hospital he was unconscious and he failed to rally. He leaves a wife and four children, three of whom are living near Duluth. A son, Edward, resides in West Duluth.

PLANKING LAID THE WRONG WAY.

A large number of team owners in and about West Duluth are complaining that the planking on the new bridge at Forty-ninth avenue has been improperly laid on the half already completed, and that it will make it hard for horses to pull a load up the bridge from either side. The planks have been laid lengthwise of the bridge, and in wet weather will not give the horses a foothold.

A number of the men interested say that the planking of the other half should be looked after before it is too late.

"There was no special agreement between the board of public works and the Canadian Northern as to how the planking of the bridge should be laid to my knowledge," said O. G. Olson, president of the board of public works, last evening. "The agreement was made between the council and the railroad. We had not noticed how the planking was being laid, but it certainly should have been put in diagonally or crosswise instead of lengthwise. The board intends visiting the place tomorrow."

Ritchie of Bayview Heights, were married last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Galbraith, 507 Cody street. Rev. John G. Leitch of the Westminster Presbyterian church, read the ceremony.

Only relatives and immediate friends attended. A wedding supper was served after the ceremony by Mrs. Galbraith. ## "Such Lovely Hair!"

The popular home-made "dry shampoo" called forth this remark when two friends met: "What lovely hair! Why what have you been doing?" Thereupon the second of the two replied, "I have been using a simple home-made 'dry shampoo' for nearly a month now, and really I do believe it has transformed my appearance. My hair was so stringy and oily, dead and lustreless that I was just in despair. I just purchased at the drug store 2 ounces of antiseptic vilane powder and 6 ounces of powdered orris root, mixed them and apply a tablespoonful every night or two and then brush the hair. It removes dirt, grease and dandruff as nothing else does. I would advise its use in preference to washing the hair and it's not expensive either."

HOLD FIRST EXHIBITION

Agricultural Contest Held By Pupils of Floodwood School.

The first of the country school agricultural contests which were planned by Supt. N. A. Young, was held yesterday at Floodwood.

The seed from which the children raised the vegetables was furnished by the Duluth Commercial club and distributed from Mr. Young's office.

There was a great deal of interest in the contest, which was the first of a number to be held in all parts of the county this fall, and some of the farmers drove fourteen miles to be present.

The committee in charge of the Floodwood exhibition was composed of Dr. M. N. Triplett, Adella Thornell, Dorothy M. Decker. All the Floodwood teachers assisted. There were more than 400 entries.

The list of Floodwood prize winners follows:

Five ears of corn, first prize, Harold Wilder; second, Warner Swen.

Early potatoes, first, Gusta Blider; second, Otto Yager.

Late potatoes, first, Arthur Jurvelin; second, Otto Yager.

Table beets, first, Lincoln Kespohl; second, Lempi Ylitalo.

Carrots, first, Tilda Voltonen; second, Gladys Chauraro.

Rutabagas, first, Anna Kartenen; second, Willie Mustenen.

Head of cabbage, first, John Rarhata; second, Raymond Wolfe.

Pumpkin, first, Margaret Moore; second, Harold Wilder.

Bread, first, Olive Parquette; second, Clara Casey.

There were several entries aside from those outlined by the county superintendent.

A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of the agricultural department of the Duluth Commercial club, was present and spoke. He advised the boys as to making selections for exhibits and instructed them to secure seed for next year's crop this fall. He said that parents should allow their children to have small pieces of ground to work and receive remuneration derived from the crops.

H. A. Hopkins of Duluth gave a short talk, in which he advised co-operation in marketing crops. County Supt. Young spoke to the women regarding their work in connection with the children.

Contests will be continued as follows:

Tuesday — At Adolph, forenoon; Arnold, afternoon. Wednesday—Meadowlands and Alloi. Thursday—Kelsey and Cook. Friday—Palo. Saturday—Embarrass.

On Oct. 20 and 21 general contests will be held in Duluth, in which those who have won prizes in former contests will take part.

JAMES McGOVERN NAME OF DECEASED

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cruiser whose body was found near Cusson Sunday was James McGovern. It was at first thought that his name was Thomas McGuire.

McGovern, who was about 60 years old, was a member of Central Link lodge of Odd Fellows of Duluth. Officers of the lodge have been conducting a search for McGovern's brother since the body was found, but have been unable to find him. He is supposed to be in Indiana and is a railroad man. McGovern's funeral will be held here tomorrow.

DENY THAT WALSH HAS BEEN PAROLED.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Department of justice officials today declined to discuss the case of John R. Walsh, the former Chicago banker, beyond the statement that it was not true that Walsh had been paroled.

This denial was made emphatically, but official announcement of the status of the case was not vouchsafed. It was stated that the parole papers had not yet reached Attorney-General Wickersham.

LESSON FROM KANSAS CITY

Mayor Believes Duluth Should Have Home for Petty Offenders.

Mayor M. B. Cullum believes that Duluth should have an institution similar to that at Kansas City for the relief of all unfortunates who get into police court but who need help rather than punishment.

The mayor was so deeply impressed with the explanation of its workings that he will take the matter up with the charter commission with a view to having an amendment to the charter submitted to the voters for approval. If the amendment should be passed the local authorities would be able to start work on such an institution within a year or two, according to how soon the funds would be available.

The Kansas City institution was brought to the attention of Mayor Cullum while he was at Atlanta, Ga., attending the sessions of the League of American Municipalities. The city has a large amount of property and the buildings have been secured at comparatively small expense to the public, a great many of the improvements being made by the men sent there. The institution cares for all kinds of offenders in the petty class.

"For instance," said the mayor this morning, "Duluth has no place to which an unfortunate girl can be sent. Through the force of circumstances or because of misfortune she may come into the hands of the police. All we have now is the county jail, and that is no place for her. She should be sent where she can get a little human sympathy, a little advice and a little encouragement. She should be given renewed hope and sent out with a desire to make something of herself. In that way the community would be doing her a real service. As it is now she is turned out into the streets again discouraged, with the thought of her arrest uppermost in her mind. She has no one to whom she can turn, no one to give her a decent meal and no roof to shelter her at night."

The institution would be a farm and a workhouse and different men handled according to the needs of their cases. The artisans could be given work in their respective lines and those needing outdoor treatment could be put to tilling the soil.

At Kansas City, a welfare committee has general supervision of the various cases, and they also look after the juvenile offenders. He thought that a great work is being done at Kansas City and that the same plan might be adopted here with success.

JONES NAMED IN ELWOOD'S PLACE

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—David P. Jones, former mayor of Minneapolis, has been appointed a member of the capitol grounds commission to succeed Lester B. Elwood, whose death occurred a few days ago.

Assistant Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith is preparing papers to condemn three lots just west of the capitol to add to the state's property. When these are taken, the entire irregular strip of ground in the vacant lot will pass into the hands of the capitol commission. The lots are owned by Michael Ryan. He asks about $25,000 for them and the commission believes this price too high.

Makes a Pint of Finest Cough Syrup.

Cheap and Effective, Too.

The most effective and economical cough syrup can be made at home by any one, and in this day of high prices for foodstuff and clothing any family can appreciate a saving even on a necessity like cough syrup.

First, obtain of any well-stocked druggist 2½ ounces of essence Mentho-laxene. Empty it into a pint bottle. Then take a pint of granulated sugar, add a half pint of boiling water, put on fire and let come to a boil. Cool and pour in bottle. Shake the mixture well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two until cough is broken up; then take whenever necessary. Give children less according to age.

This mixture will break up a cold and cure a cough much more rapidly than any ordinary mixture, because it is not constipating, but laxative in action when 8 to 10 doses are taken daily. If your druggist does not have mentho-laxene, he can obtain it for you from the wholesale firms. Try this splendid recipe and you will never want anything better.

A PERVERSION OF THE REFERENDUM.

Congressman McCall of Massachusetts in his able attack on the initiative and the referendum in the Atlantic Monthly makes one very successful assault on the referendum. That is, it is thoroughly successful in proving the point it seeks to prove; but it would be more important if the matter attacked had any relation with the real theory of direct legislation.

This attack is predicated on the assumption that the referendum allows the legislature to refer pending laws to the people without a demand from the people that they be referred. No referendum law should be adopted anywhere that will do this.

Says Mr. McCall: "The referendum takes away from the legislature the responsibility for the final passage of laws, and permits it to shift the burden upon the people. Legislators will be asked: 'Are you not willing to trust the people to say in their wisdom whether a given bill should be enacted?' The prevailing vice of members of lawmaking bodies in our country is not venality, it is political cowardice; and they will be ready to take refuge in that invitation to trust the people. A witty member of congress from Mississippi once said that he usually found it easier to do wrong than to explain why he did right. There will be no such difficulty under the referendum. The legislator may dodge the responsibility of voting upon some bad but specious law where his political interests would lead him to vote one way and his sense of duty another way. He would only need to say that he believed in the people, and would vote to refer it to that supreme court of appeal."

Every word of that is true. The trouble with it as an argument against the referendum is that the theory of the referendum makes no such provision as that which he attacks.

The referendum, it may be explained again for Mr. McCall's benefit, and for the benefit of others if there be any who are equally ignorant of its purposes, provides that when a legislature passes a law it does not become effective for a specified period, and not at the end of that period if a petition, signed by a specified percentage of the voters, demands that it be referred to the people. Then it does not become a law until the people ratify it, and not at all if the people fail to approve it.

There is nothing here about reference of legislation to the people by the legislature. It is true that such reference has been proposed, usually by timorous lawmakers who see in it a chance to evade committing themselves on subjects of wide public interest. In the initiative and referendum measure which the Minnesota house of representatives passed last winter there was, originally, a provision that the legislature might refer disputed legislation to the people. On the wellfounded objection that this would enable timid legislators to evade responsibility and escape going on record, that provision was very properly stricken out by amendment.

If there were such a provision in an initiative and referendum law, it would be mischievous. It would all but do away with legislative responsibility, and would throw upon the people the full burden of legislating on all important and disputed matters. The legislatures would pass no laws on which there was not a substantial unanimity in the public mind, but would refer all debated subjects to the people, thus escaping responsibility and avoiding the necessity of going on record.

But there should be no such provision in any direct legislation law; and Mr. McCall would argue his case to better advantage if he informed himself better on the principles he is attacking.

ABOUT THE NEW STATES.

As territories, Arizona and New Mexico were merely geographical terms except to those who had interests there. As states, it is worth while looking them over to see what kind of company is being introduced into the sisterhood of states, now complete after nearly six double decades.

It will surprise many to know that Arizona is larger than New York and Pennsylvania combined; and New Mexico is larger still than Arizona. Though Arizona hasn't many more people than St. Louis county, and New Mexico has about as many as Ramsey county, each will have as great a representation in the United States senate as New York with its 9,113,614 people.

Arizona has grown from 40,440 people in 1880 to 204,354 in 1910, and New Mexico from 61,547 in 1850 and 119,565 in 1880 to 327,301 in 1910. Both hope that statehood will bring faster growth because a state is more attractive to settlers than a territory with its suggestions of frontier hardship and drawbacks.

While New Mexico is now the more populous of the two, Arizona is likely to pass it soon. Irrigation there is working miracles, and alfalfa, wheat, corn and barley are being grown there in increasing quantities. While Arizona develops as an agricultural state it is certain to develop also as a mining state. Its development, both mining and agricultural, has been held back by lack of transportation facilities; and agricultural development with its certainty will draw railroad facilities that the uncertainty of mining never could tempt. Arizona has a larger proportion of ore-bearing and mineral-bearing lands than any other state in the Union, copper, gold and silver being mined there in steadily increasing quantities.

New Mexico is also producing much gold and coal, and there, as in Arizona, irrigation is turning the desert into fertile fields.

Sparsely settled though they are, both states have populations larger than some of the older Eastern states. For instance, Deleware has but 202,322. Both of the new states will grow, and the character of the population will improve vastly with agricultural development. The domination of natives of Spanish and Indian blood in New Mexico will cease, and the atmosphere of restlessness and change and impermanence that inevitably hovers over mining camps will give way to the permanence and stability that inevitably surround the tilled field.

It is good that these last of the territories are in the ante-room being prepared for initiation into statehood. If conditions are unsettled in both of them for a time it will not be remarkable, but as the diversion of water into the desert broadens the area of cultivated acres matters will rapidly adjust themselves, and New Mexico and Arizona will become staid and settled and respectable members of the family of the Union.

THE "MOB".

As nearly as we can make out the president's state of mind at the present time, the courts are a divine and nearly infallible institution, and somewhere in this country there is a "mob" from whose wild and unregulated passions vast harm will come if it is let loose.

What seems to agitate the president mostly is the recall of judges; this and the fact that he appreciates that in vetoing statehood because of the judicial recall provision in the Arizona Constitution he has laid himself open to the charge of refusing to let the people of a prospective state determine their system of government according to their own will and conscience.

The president has a perfect right to his opinion about the recall of judges. Many agree with him who are much less open to the charge of being reactionary than the president is. And because of this fact there is little reason to fear that the recall of judges will be adopted in many states before it is given a fair trial in a few states. Many oppose it who do not fear the people, who do not look upon the people as a "mob," and who have no doubt of the wisdom and sanity and safety of the popular judgment. They oppose it because of the fear that the timidity of some individual judges when subject to the recall will make them "trimmers" when it comes to deciding important public questions. It isn't the people, but some judges, that these opponents of the judicial recall are afraid of.

But about this "mob." That's something we should like to know more about. If there is a mob in this country which threatens the destruction of free government, it would be interesting to have some specifications about it. Where is it? Who composes it? Why is it a mob, and why are its members of such a character that their getting together quietly, peacefully and in cold, calm judgment at the polls makes the assemblage a mob?

The president really ought to tell the country more about this mob. If he knows of the existence of such a thing he ought to point it out, that the plain people in whom rests all power may wipe it out and leave us safely mobless again.

Mobs are dangerous. Their existence anywhere is a menace, and nowhere is that menace more deadly than it is in a republic like this, where so much of the power and responsibility rests with the people, and where so much more of both is going to rest with them in their future as they recover the reins of government from the hands of bosses and special interests which have held them too long. If there is a mob in this country it is a very dangerous thing, and its presence ought not to be tolerated a minute longer than can be helped.

It is the plain duty of the president to tell us all about this mob at his earliest possible convenience. It is his duty as a citizen, and it is doubly his duty as president of the United States. We can't begin the necessary work of dispersing this mob until we learn where it is, why it got together, what is the matter with it, and who composes it.

BUTTER AND EGGS BY MAIL.

T. G. Palmer of Chicago was one of the witnesses recently examined by the congressional committee which is investigating the sugar trust.

He said that his work consisted in gathering statistics for the sugar beet factories, and that it often took him abroad. The question of the cost of living was brought up, and Mr. Palmer said:

"On the Continent the parcels post cuts a considerable figure in the cost of living. A man living in town is furnished his butter by a certain farmer and his eggs by a certain farmer; they come in by parcels post, and they come direct from the producer to the consumer."

In Europe the town consumer buys his produce from the farmer, and the government carries it through the mails at a trifling cost.

In this country the town consumer buys his produce from a retailer, who buys it from a commission man, who gets it from a wholesaler or possibly from the producer. It is carried from the farm to the railroad by wagon, often over bad roads that make hauling three times as expensive as it should be. It is shipped by freight or express to the nearest market, where it is distributed to other points of consumption.

Every step in this process of getting food from the producer to the consumer costs dearly. Every handler of the produce must get his profit, and the railroads and express companies take a heavy toll.

No wonder the farmer complains that he does not get enough for his produce, and the consumer that he pays too much for it.

What a contrast with the simple system prevailing in Europe, where the parcels post has been developed so that the people do much of their own shipping instead of turning it over to railroads and express companies!

There produce comes direct from the producer to the consumer, arriving fresh and desirable, bringing the producer an adequate price and yet being cheap to the consumer.

Here practically all produce must pass through a fixed routine, accumulating expense and losing freshness and food value in the process.

And 75 per cent of it is pure waste that could be eliminated if in democratic America the people had the privileges long ago conceded as a matter of course to the people of king-ridden Europe.

Elimination of this waste will work to the benefit of both producer and consumer, and they are the ones for whom the government should exist—not the middle men and other parasites who fatten on the absurd system that prevails in this country.

Establish the parcels post, and the farmer on the rural free delivery route can ship produce in the morning that will reach the consumer the same day. The farmer will get better prices, and the consumer better goods at lower prices than he now pays. The rural delivery system, now losing $30,000,000 and more each year to the government, will be put on a self-sustaining and ultimately a profitable basis.

The people want the parcels post system. This is the only civilized nation on the face of the globe that hasn't it. It has not come because up to this time the express companies, for whose existence there isn't the slightest shadow of an excuse, have been more powerful with the government than the people have.

BILL AND DICK

By SAVOYARD.

It was the close of a day of toil in the early spring season when old winter yet lagged. The scene was the cabin of a pioneer settler of the Kentucky Pennyrile. All day he had swung the ax in the clearing, striving to turn forest into field that he might exact of the soil food for wife and children. He now sat at his humble meal of coarsest fare, and with his helpmeet, and the children, two boys, Bill and Dick, the former the elder and the stronger, were in the chimney corner, each provided with a generous pone of cornbread which he was intent on making more palatable by combining with it the contents of the skillet. They had been thus engaged for a little while when Dick, the weaker boy, cried out, "Mam, make Bill let me have some of the deep sop!"

Then and there that poor woman was confronted with the problem that has pestered every just statesman since government was first established among men—how to make Dick equal with Bill. In a government like ours each citizen has rights and upon each are imposed duties and since the primal curse man has been prone to shirk his duties and swift to augment his rights. And there in that cabin was the inevitable episode of remonstrance against wrong. Dick was George Washington, Bill was George Guelph. Bill was the oppressor, regardless of the rights of Dick, and here were the conditions that make rebellion and revolutions.

In one of the fairest cities of the loveliest province of France is a column on which is carved these lines:

"When every man receives his own
And justice reigns for strong and weak,
Perfect shall be this town of stone
And all the dumb will learn to speak."

There the earth had drunk to the gorge the blood of a thousand battles shed in wars growing out of the eternal problem of adjusting the skillet so that the side next Dick should contain as deep sop as that on the side next Bill. The skillet has never been exactly adjusted in any clime under the sun. A perfectly level skillet has been the dream of poets and the despair of sages, and it will never be until the war between right and wrong, which began with the murder of Abel by Cain, has been fought to a finish and civilization shall triumph in the total and everlasting overthrow of evil.

The late Tom Carter was a delightful man, but touching the controversy between Bill and Dick, he was prone to be cynical and a partisan of Bill.

In his philosophy it was not only impossible to set the skillet level, but it was not desirable that it should be so arranged. He declared that nature was opposed to it, and cited that she had made the oak of one plant and the thistle of another, or examples like that but the soil affords equal opportunity to the vegetable and to the weed, and the skillet is the soil for this illustration. Tom contended that if the skillet should be set level Bill would get more than his share and Dick less than his anyhow, and that perhaps is true; but in that event it would be Dick's fault; now it is Dick's misfortune.

Tom Carter was an altogether practical man. At one time in his career he was a book agent, and so successful was he that, if allowed a hearing, he could sell a book to a lamp-post. He became a lawyer, not erudite or profound in the profession, but an able and a skillful practitionor. No senator employed better English, but he had a slow and painful delivery. He was a very strong debater and had the temerity to engage the truculent Heyburn himself and beat him, too. He was a hand-and-a-half in the tremendous struggle in the Republican congressional caucus in 1889 when Reed and McKinley were candidates for speaker. He was for the big fellow and landed him a winner. And Carter subsequently agreed with those who saw in the result the final triumph of McKinley, and who believed that had McKinley been speaker of the Fifty-first congress and Reed chairman of ways and means, Reed, and not McKinley, would have been the Republican nominee for president in 1896.

Carter was a standpatter. He never lacked faith in a privileged class. He sincerely believed that some men should be allowed advantages to wax great in order that they might take care of the little. He could have imbibed great consolation from the ninth chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Romans. He cited Shakespeare as one specially endowed by nature to be great, one who would find his way to the deep sop. He pointed to Rockefeller as one who would have been rich anywhere or at any time because God had given him the genius for acquisition.

That is all true, but it is no less true that the skillet ought to be set as fair for the peasant as it is for the peer. Everybody knows that it is not so adjusted. Look at the tobacco trust. Actually it absorbed companies that did not want to be absorbed. It uttered securities of different dignities, apportioning the more valuable among its favorites. All in all, it is the very worst of all the bad trusts, getting all the sop in the skillet, leaving none at all for Dick.

And what a pity 'tis that all the trusts are not good as they all could be. Here are capital and labor both sopping the skillet, each after the deep sop, regardless of the rights of the other. Both ought to have sense enough to know that the peace and prosperity of each depend on an equal and fair division of the deep sop, so that each will get his fair share, no more and no less.

Tom Carter did not believe that any trust was bad, not even the beef trust, that is accused and condemned in every quotation of the price of cattle in the stockyards and of its products in the slaughter house. But the American people are at fault. Some two years ago everybody was complaining of the prices of meat, and millions of families joined in a solemn boycott of the meat trust. A few of them abstained from eating meat a few days and then resumed it. A phase of this miserable failure was an advance in the prices of all meats as long as the boycott continued.

The heathen Chinee orders it better. When our country heaped humiliation upon him, the Chinese in their own country entered upon a boycott of American goods, and it was a boycott that boycotted. Then we surrendered, and our great and immaculate government yielded Mammon what it had denied Justice. Our laws touching the Chinese were not changed in the slightest particular; but the Roosevelt administration, that did not have a very high opinion of the law, anyhow, made a radical change in the enforcement of the law. The Chinee was appeased, the boycott was lifted, and America got her profits again, and that is the main chance.

But the skillet ought to be better adjusted in the interest of fair play and for the sake of Dick, and in the true interest of Bill himself.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

NOW IS TIME TO EMPTY THE STOCKING.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is with no desire to emulate Thomas Lawson that I write this letter, but it expresses something that has been on my mind for a long time.

Right at the present time, business is quiet in all lines. Why? Nobody seems to know. People just seem to be hanging on to their money. The banks are full of money. It seems that the people of the United States are simply frightened of a ghost and are grabbing all the ready cash in sight and laying it away—for what I do not know. Now I am working on a salary, and haven't anything to sell, so I am a disinterested spectator, but it seems to me that now is the time for the common people to invest their savings. If the country were booming, and prices of all kinds of securities high, they would be falling over themselves to buy. But now, when there are bargains, they all keep out of the market. There are many good bargains to be picked up in the investment field now, in real estate, stocks which are properly investigated first, bonds securities of all kinds, and business openings. Now is the time to take that old stocking from the shelf and unloosen. It takes a little nerve to buy when everybody else is selling, but that is the time to do it. I would like to see a big national movement of the optimistis of this country. That's all we need to make business hum again.

The Obscure Glory.

Madison State Journal: Four men of high distinction met in the corridors of the statehouse of one of our western capitals. Life had brought them honor and success. One was a normal school president, another a leading lawyer, one a state official, and one a merchant of prominence and wealth. They had been schoolboys together.

Suddenly one of them said: "Do you remember little Miss M., who taught us first in the old district schoolhouse on the prairie? I owe all that I have done and been to that little woman."

Instantly each of the other three said: "And so do I."

The teacher of whom they spoke had long been dead, a victim of consumption while she was still little more than a girl. She had died before her ambition could flower. Perhaps she died lamenting that her little circumscribed life, hemmed in by the limitations of that prairie schoolhouse had been bare of opportunity. Yet years afterward four men who had left a mark upon their time were to say with affection and reverence: "I owe all I am to that woman."

If all the men in the world could speak their inmost belief as to the guiding influence of their lives we should no doubt hear an almost unanimous testimony to the abiding power of small things.

In the smallest corner of human life, consecrated human service fills the world with light and beauty, unconsciously touching human souls with noble aspirations that make life "marvelous in the powers that cannot die."

Where Language Fails.

Clifford Howard in Lippincott's—The English language today contains upwards of four hundred thousand words. This is nearly two hundred times as many as the most effusive gossip has any need for; and yet, despite this wealth of material at our disposal, enabling us to construct elaborate sciences and philosophies, we find ourselves without adequate means to express properly some of the simplest remarks.

"Everybody should have his or her purse with him or her when he or she travels."

Where, oh, where, is the common-gender pronoun that will spare us this ridiculous circumlocution? Alas, in all the wide realm of the English language there is none; and millions of otherwise independent Americans are driven to the improper use of the plural—"Everybody should have their purse with them when they travel"—while thousands of others, who would rather be proper than untruthful, eliminate the feminine and hobble along ungallantly and mendaciously on the masculine pronoun alone—"Everybody should have his purse with him when he travels."

But even these awkward shifts are not always available:

"If Mr. Smith or Mrs. Montague should telephone that he or she is going to church in his or her automobile, I wish you would ask him or her to stop by on his or her way and take me with him or her."

Nearly forty years ago a Mr. Converse of Pennsylvania (blessings be upon him!) suggested the little word "thon" for this much-needed pronoun, but while our great language eagerly absorbs hundreds of new words each year, including such helpful ones as skiddoo and fletcherization and fellidoucous, it persistently refuses to recognize thon; and consequently, with all our abundance and increasing richness of vocabulary, we are able never to express ourselves one bit more gracefully.

The Northmen.

Who wish no worlds to conquer, they
Who are craven men and churls,
Who cower from the north wind and shrink them from the sun,
Who rot at home in quiet over tasks
but fit for girls,
Nor heed the wild sea crying where white the billows run.

The spirit of our fathers that stirs our blood to fire,
The heritage of courage, the mighty gift of brawn
That dowered us from the cradle, they were not meant for hire,
Or to waste in idle chafing, when the battle lot is drawn.

Who wish no worlds to conquer, let them stay and till the fields,
Let them bend their backs in labor
while we launch upon the foam,
For the salt is in our nostrils, and the magic that it wields
Is sweeping from the Western sea to urge us from our home.

To bask in tropic sunshine; to battle with the storm;
The wealth of fabled islands; and distant, unknown lands,
Where the shady palm groves greet us or glistening icebergs form;
They are beckoning and calling, and our ships are on the sands.

Who wish no worlds to conquer, they
will welcome us again,
They will glory in our conquests, and they will wonder at our gifts.
The salt is in our nostrils, and the sea is whipped with rain,
And our ships are slipping westward where the breaking fog bank lifts.

—Charles Coleman Stoddard in the Century.

A Laborous Word.

Ave Maria: There is no word, long or short, in the English language capable of performing so much labor in a clear, intelligible sense as the verb to get; and here is an old time specimen of its capabilities:

"I got on horseback within ten minutes after I got your letter. When I got to Canterbury I got a chaise for town; but I got wet through before I got to Canterbury and I have got such a cold as I shall not be able to get rid of in a hurry. I got to the treasury about noon, but first of all I got shaved and dressed. I soon got into the secret of getting a memorial before the board, but I could not get an answer then; however, I got intelligence from the messenger that I should most likely get one the next morning. As soon as I got back to my inn I got my supper. When I got up in the morning I got my breakfast and then got myself dressed that I might get out in time to get an answer to my memorial. As soon as I got it I got into the first chaise and got to Canterbury by 3 o'clock, and about tea time I got home."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

•••B. F. Howard had a wonderful escape from a severe accident yesterday. He was about to step into his carriage in front of the Norris-McDougall block when the horses became frightened and partly turned the carriage around, thereby throwing him to the ground. He held fast to the reins and was dragged across the street on his stomach, and then up the street, finally bringing the horses to a standstill in front of Steele & Campbell's saloon. He suffered no bodily damage and his overcoat was only slightly torn.

•••At the annual meeting of the Kitchi Gammi club, J. H. Upham was elected president and Messrs. Hartley, McLaren and H. W. Pearson, members of the board of directors. It voted to spare no expense in fitting and furnishing the club's new home in the Howe building.

Dr. Brunet, who has been attending him, says that from all he can ascertain the man has been suffering from hysterical coma. He will probably be transferred from St. Mary's hospital to the county poor farm.

•••A committee of five of the Minnesota Grain Growers' Protective association, consisting of Senator Probstfield of Clay county, Hudson of St. Paul, R. J. ## DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Up to Eberhart.

Blackduck American: Minnesota has one great daily newspaper that appears to be free and unshackled and not susceptible to the influence of sleek politicians and mighty corporations such as the railroads. We refer to The Duluth Herald. The Herald has taken a firm stand and is making a determined fight in favor of an increase of the railroads' gross earnings tax and has suggested an extra session of the legislature with this end in view. A majority of the members of the legislature, The Herald has ascertained, are willing to meet for this purpose and it is now up to Governor Eberhart.

A Daniel Come to Judgment.

Eveleth News: The Hibbing Tribune accuses The Duluth Herald of having become Democratic. Not so, the Democrats have simply come around to The Herald's views.

The Situation.

Sauk Center Herald: "Duluth Now on the Job" is an editorial headline in a Head of the Lakes paper. How could it be otherwise with two such excellent newspapers as The Herald and News-Tribune boosting every minute and the business men of the Zenith City backing them up?

Come On In, Water's Fine!

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Duluth Herald is making a fight to have the congressman-at-large nominated at the primary election, and we are with The Herald all of the time—this time at least.

No Sooner Than You, Old Top!

Mankato Free Press: The Duluth newspapers report that ripe strawberries are being picked in one of the city parks. 'Twill not be long ere Duluthians will be picking icicles.

Right You Are.

Marshall News-Messenger: The persistent efforts of The Duluth Herald to throw a white light, and at the same time something of a bomb, into the Republican ranks as to the proper method of nominating a candidate for congressman-at-large for Minnesota, under the federal apportionment, has met with no little support from a large share of the Republican press of the state. The bosses who claim that the nomination must be by state convention, may show a degree of prudence in forecasting their action by unquestioned legal authority, else the necessary support of votes of the common people may be cast in a spirit of resentment of bossism, and just now, as during the past three campaigns, the state is in chaos so far as party adherence is concerned. The Herald insists that the state law amply provides for the nomination of a congressman-at-large—in the same manner as applies to district congressmen, by the people in primary elections.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Kissing relatives is meaner than counterfeit money.

You never hear a pretty kirl wondering where all the men have gone.

If women smoked cigars men might be able to understand why they need money.

Speculating in stocks makes about as rich hauls as fishing in a barrel of kerosene.

A man has the courage to enter in a marriage contract, but a woman has the courage to live up to it.

Short Ballot.

Collier's: California leads the country in the application of the Short Ballot idea to state offices. After the victory at the primaries, the Lincoln-Roosevelt League made the short ballot the first specific plank in the Republican platform. Hiram Johnson preached that issue up and down the state. The result is that the state printer is no longer an elective officer, and that in the vote on various measures, which is to be held Oct. 10, the clerk of the supreme court is likely to go. It is an honorable position for California to hold—to lead in a movement which is destined to a great future. The states must in time surely follow the cities. Already the short ballot exists in eight cities or towns in California. Kansas has the most towns—twenty-four, Pratt being the latest addition. Then come Texas and Illinois with sixteen each, Oklahoma with fourteen, South Dakota with nine, Iowa with eight. Utah and Alabama are new arrivals with five and three respectively. Massachusetts and Michigan have four each; West Virginia, North Carolina and North Dakota, three each. In Idaho, Lewiston is the pioneer; in Kentucky, Newport; in Louisiana, Shreveport; in Maryland, Cumberland; in Montana, Missoula; in New Mexico, Roswell; in Oregon, Baker; in South Dakota, Columbia.

Baron Rosen and the Reporters.

New York World: Baron Rosen, the retiring Russian ambassador, was asked yesterday for some utterance upon the war for Tripoli. He replied: "I have spent thirty-five years in this country and in all that time I have never been misquoted by a newspaper man. I am therefore certain that none of you will quote me now incorrectly when I say that I cannot speak on any public subject, for I am still true to my training as a diplomat."

Baron Rosen's experience is that of most public men. No one ever talked to reporters with more startling freedom than Mr. Roosevelt when President. His confidence was once misused by a French writer who did not understand the unwritten law of reticence, but never by an American. Our able secretaries of state, Knox and Root and Hay, have spoken frankly to Washington correspondents of the closest diplomatic secrets, indicating what could be printed and what could not, without betrayal.

Newspapers commit errors enough of haste, of overzeal, of ignorance, of misjudgment; and reporters naturally share these qualities. But we know of no other class of men whose word is more habitually reliable than that of reporters.

A Heroine.

Boston Transcript: Mrs. Reno—Freed (to small daughter)—My darling, I want to tell you a secret. Your mother is going to be married again next week.

Daughter—Oh, mamma! And after all the trouble we had with papa!

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Baltimore American—"Don't you miss your husband very much, Mrs. Jones?"

"No, indeed. You see I have a bull terrier who is growling all the time, too."

London Opinion: "I won't pay another penny of your debts for you, you disgrace. You must either go bankrupt or get married. I had to do the same."

Pittsburg Post: "Have a Turkish bath with me, old chap?"

"Just had a Turkish bath with Wombat."

"Well, another won't hurt you any."

Toledo Blade: "The time has come," says the Boardinghouse Philosopher, "for the winter cold, the campaign cigar, resurrecting the winter flannels and numerous other evils."

Yonker's Statesman: Church—Some of your neighbors have got a phonograph, I hear.

Flatbush (listening intently)—Geel That's no phonograph! That's those pesky bees swarming again!

Toledo Blade: Customer—How much for that suit of clothes, if I pay cash?

Tailor—Forty dollars.

Customer—How much on credit?

Tailor—Eighty dollars, half of it down.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Your three daughters should be a great comfort to you."

"They should be, but they ain't," declared Mrs. Watts-Trumps.

"They all prefer sewing and cooking to bridge."

Fliegende Blaetter: A Fat Cure—"Don't you find wood chopping rather hard, old chap?"

"It wouldn't be so bad if my servant didn't sit down close to me with a cigar in his mouth and grin like a house on fire."

Chicago News: Teacher—You know, Archibald, the auto came after the horse.

Little Archibald—'Scuse me, teacher; but a team of horses always comes after our auto.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Half of these congressmen make me sick."

"What's wrong with them?"

"Why, they talk continuously of the enormous amount of money they are losing by not being able to lecture before the Chautauqua."

Source of His Information.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Manufacturer Crane has evidently been reading some of the various kinds of stein songs in the college song book.

NEW GLASS BLOCK OPENS

Duluth Store Has Been Remodeled From Basement to Roof.

Orchestra Playing Every Afternoon for Entertainment of Visitors.

The Glass Block store, which has been transformed into one of the finest, most commodious and convenient shopping places in the city by the new management, is in shape for its house warming and display of new fall styles.

The attractive arrangement of the display windows of the store creates a pleasing impression on the first approach, for they are most artistically planned for display purposes.

There is a brown and gold window which is creating much admiration. It contains an exquisite fur coat displayed on a model and a pretty fur hat and shaded veil in the same tones were also shown. An ornate vase with golden grapes and vines added much to the effect.

A purple window also was pleasing. The gown shown here was of crepe-de-chene trimmed with fringe to match and shirrings of the goods. Beautiful handbags of gold cloth and gold and purple cloth were attractive.

In another window two evening gowns were displayed. One was of Nile green chiffon with high waist line short puff sleeves and a round neck. Small roses of gold ribbon and gold braid were used in ornamenting the gown and there is a sash of black satin. The other little gown is of white chiffon over a pretty foundation trimmed with wide delicate lace. Dainty bags and fans ornamented with the same patterns were shown in sets. Long gloves, chains and necklaces are also shown.

Still other displays were of practical street suits with hats and gloves to match, beautiful suitings of reversible goods and dainty waists.

Autumn Decorations.

The autumn decorations in the store are artistically arranged, making the shop a perfect bower of beauty. Huge palms and ferns with sprays of autumn tinted ferns and garlands of autumn leaves, have been combined in the most pleasing effect imaginable.

New arrangements in the departments throughout give a more roomy, freer, appearance in all parts of the store. The abolishing of the old carrier system for wrapping bundles and sending up the cash, has taken out all of the overhead crowded appearance and excellent results are obtained through the new National cash system which has been installed where the parcel and change delivery is made at each counter making the store lighter and the delivery quicker.

Specialty Shops.

The fourth floor has been left as it was with the tea rooms and rest rooms, carpets, rugs, draperies and bedding but the third floor has seen perhaps the greatest transformation of all the departments. It has been arranged into a series of specialty shops complete in themselves. There is the beautiful cut glass room which is a maze of gleaming glass. The cut glass is displayed about the walls of this room and attractive tables are completely set with glasses and china on snowy damask cloths.

The china and heavy glass wear department is large and well arranged. The various sets of china are shown on tables covered with the damask cloths giving the shopper the effect which it will make on her own table. Then there is the muslin underwear of French and domestic make; the baby specialty shop with its complete line of apparel and novelties for babies. The corset department, the beauty shop, the art needlework department, the boy's clothing and furnishings, children's dresses and the main offices are all to be found here.

The second floor has the millinery, cloak and suit, and dress goods departments. This latter is deserving of special attention as it is a new feature. Instead of showing the goods at crowded counters a large department is given to its display on counter and tables where special lines may be featured from day to day.

The main floor has been relieved of many of its small departments and the new effect is pleasing. The book and music department has been spread out using the balcony for music and the circulating library, and other minor changes have been installed.

In the basement are shown trunks and bags, wall papers and mouldings, pictures, toys and housefurnishings.

La Brosse's orchestra is playing at this store every afternoon from 2 o'clock on, and refreshments are served to all visitors on the fourth floors and souvenirs are also being given out. Tomorrow evening the store will be open from 7 to 9 o'clock so that the men of the city may have the opportunity of seeing the store robed in its new fall stock and the music and refreshments will then be the features of the entertainment as in the afternoons.

UNNATURAL THINNESS EASILY CORRECTED

By Clever Prescription Which Can Be Filled at Any Drug Store.

No Need to Be Thin Now as Reports Show This Method Effective.

People who are very thin and scrawny ought not to be so. Undoubtedly they are more subject to diseases and contagions than the normally fleshy. Thinness is usually accompanied by weakness, and weakness subjects any one to colds, coughs, consumption, pneumonia, etc. It has been discovered, almost by accident, that tincture cadomene when combined in a prescription with proper accelerative medicines, becomes one of the most valuable, effective, and reliable nutritive or flesh making medicines known to science. It is especially beneficial to men and women between the ages of sixteen and fifty-five, who from lack of proper nerve force and digestion, remain undeveloped in body, limbs, arms and bust. A well rounded symmetrical figure in man or woman indicates health, magnetism, stamina and happiness.

The reader who wishes to add from ten to forty pounds should not fail to begin with this valuable prescription:

First, obtain of any well stocked druggist, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol. Shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take one teaspoonful before each meal, one after each meal. Drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Keep up this treatment regularly and of a certainty from one to three pounds will be added to the weight each week, and the general health will also improve.

OLD FRIENDS IN NEW BUSINESS

C. A. Gregory and A. G. Strong Will Deal in Florida Lands.

"No friends like old friends" as the old saying goes, so it is not surprising that old friends should join forces for business as well as for pleasure.

Such a joining of forces by two of our citizens, who have been friends for many years, has just taken place.

C. A. Gregory, the well known musician, and A. G. Strong, for many years with French & Bassett, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Strong & Gregory and have opened an office at 310 Lyceum building, where they will conduct a general land brokerage business, buying and selling lands of all kinds, but making a specialty of Florida Glade lands.

Mr. Gregory is considered one of the best posted men in this part of the country, on lands in the southern part of Florida. He has given the subject much careful thought and personal investigation, and to satisfy himself as to the many reports that have come from the land of sunshine and winter vegetables, he lived there all last winter and worked one of the farms. He says "he knows."

Mr. Strong says he will himself soon know, as he expects to leave for the South about the end of the month on private business, and will go to Florida to make a personal investigation as to conditions. He will also represent other parties having interests in the Florida Glade lands—making personal inspection of their specific holdings and reporting thereon.

This is really an opportunity for any one having a land contract in Florida to arrange for a wholly disinterested party, to make a personal report on the land they are buying.

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

PENNSYLVANIA MOBS AROUSED

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 10.—Because of an alleged assault made yesterday by John Plowden, negro, upon Mrs. John Perkins, at her home near here, he was rushed to the Hollidaysburg jail last night to prevent a possible lynching. It is charged Plowden entered the home of John Perkins, and after binding and gagging Mrs. Perkins, assaulted her. School children gave the alarm, and a posse pursued him, but he kept his pursuers at bay with a revolver. The police later arrested Plowden at the home of a friend and rushed him to the Hollidaysburg jail. Mrs. Perkins is in a terrible condition from shock and the brutal treatment of the negro.

Coatesville Aroused.

Miss McIlheny, daughter of William McIlheny, a prosperous farmer, was on her way home from school when she was attacked. The girl fought her assailant until half her clothing was torn from her body and just as she was being overpowered, Frank Wynn, a farmer came and frightened the negro.

A posse still is scouring the country. Miss McIlheny's condition is serious.

Lillian Russell's Warning, Sore Feet: Bad Health

Lillian Russell is a physical marvel. Now in mature years, but having preserved all the fresh beauty of youth. In the Chicago Tribune she says: "Care of the feet (the hardest worked members of the body) is absolutely essential to health. Constant irritation from sore feet often causes serious nervous disorders, and nothing brings wrinkles to the face more certainly. Here is the best treatment known to science for all foot ailments. It works through the pores and removes the cause: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently massaging the sore parts." The effect is almost magical. All soreness disappears instantly. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives instant relief for bunions, aching feet, sweaty feet, chilblains and frostbites. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent box usually cures the worst feet. Calocide is not a patent medicine. Don't waste money on uncertain remedies. Insist on getting what you want from the druggist.

STATE HAS POWER TO CONDEMN THE CITY JAIL

City Attorney Tells Council It Must Obey the Board.

Offers Compromise Suggestion—Transient Merchant Ordinance Is Killed.

City Attorney Bert Fesler last evening informed the council that the state board of control has power to condemn the city jail if it is unfit for further use. This must be done by a written order and the jail cannot be used further while that order is in effect.

The city attorney proposed a compromise which he believed would be acceptable to the board of control and which would not cost over half as much as would the addition of a third story, for which $20,000 was levied. He believed that the city and state officials would work in harmony.

He suggested that the old cells be torn out and replaced with new ones, which should be so installed that they would have light and ventilation from the Michigan street end; that the Superior street end of the basement be remodeled for the use of the automobiles and the Michigan street end be used for housing lodgers.

With the lodgers downstairs, there would be no mixing of them with the prisoners and the jail would be sufficient to meet the needs of the city until the construction of the proposed new jail. The new cells would cost about $5,000, but they could be used for the new jail when it is erected.

Acting upon the report, the council authorized the board of public works to employ an architect to draw plans and specifications for the changes, his fee to be 5 per cent of the cost, exclusive of the cost of the cells.

The transient merchant ordinance was killed when it came up for final passage by a vote of 7 to 9. The ordinance provided that transient merchants should pay a license fee of $10 per day for doing business in the city, the application to be made to the city clerk. It was similar to the ordinances now in force in Superior and St. Paul. Alderman Scott stated that he thought no merchants, whether they are here for a day or several weeks, should be required to pay a fee. Those voting with him against the ordinance were Aldermen Shartel, Krueger, Makowski, Miller, Curren, Bergstrom, Hogan and Jordan.

The traffic ordinance was amended to give the police power to regulate traffic. This was considered particularly necessary where traffic is congested. The amendment prohibits all vehicles except those of the police and fire departments, ambulances and mail wagons from going through any procession. It requires all drivers to stop at the signal of any policeman and to obey his instructions as to going ahead or standing.

Alderman Wharton announced that the committee on ordinances and resolutions will hold another public hearing on the lodging house ordinance next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At that time any one who has any changes or amendments to suggest will be accorded an opportunity to be heard.

The amendment to the peace and order ordinance, designed to give the police power to deal with "mashers" was passed without a dissenting vote. The police will now be able to arrest persons standing on the sidewalks who are making themselves obnoxious. Under the ordinance as it was before half the walk had to be obstructed before any arrests could be made.

Mayor Cullum and Alderman Shartel made reports to the council of their trip to Atlanta, Ga., as delegates to the League of American Municipalities. The mayor gave quite a lenghty address, telling of the various cities which he had visited and of the papers which he had heard at the convention.

B. F. Smith sent a bill to the council for $38.71 alleged to be due him for services rendered in August as a deputy assessor.

The petition for the big Woodland trunk sewer was received and referred to the committee on drains, sewers and sanitation.

The board of public works was ordered to proceed with the construction of a sanitary sewer in West Fourth street between Thirty-ninth and Forty-first avenues. The estimated cost is $1,408.

Residents along the boulevard protested against telephone poles being erected parallel to the incline, between Fifth and Eighth streets, claiming that they are unsightly and that conduits, attached to the incline, should have been used.

The city engineer was directed to prepare plans and specifications for two cisterns to be used by the fire department at New Duluth.

The water and light board was authorized to purchase 8.67 acres of land adjacent to the Lakewood pumping station at $200 an acre. Part of the land will be used by the department employes and the remainder will be parked.

Several extensions of contracts for various improvement jobs were allowed. The wet weather has greatly retarded the work.

The fire department was authorized to sell two horses unfit for further service and to replace them with two others.

The vacation of Sixth alley between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues east was laid over one week to give some of the aldermen an opportunity to look over the ground.

The amendment to the building ordinance, drawn to allow the Holland hotel to add four stories, was laid over one week for further investigation.

CORNELIUS N. BLISS IS DEAD

Former Leader in Republican Party Dies of Old Age.

New York, Oct. 10.—Cornelius Newton Bliss, for years one of the prominent figures in national Republican politics and otherwise well known as a merchant and a member of the drygoods firm of Bliss, Fabyan & Co., died at his home here last night of heart disease.

The end was not unexpected, as Mr. Bliss had been ill for a year. He did not, however, take to his bed until a few days ago. While death is attributed to heart failure, there had been the general breaking down which comes of old age. Mr. Bliss was 78 years old, having been born in Fall River, Mass., in 1833.

CORNELIUS N. BLISS.

Mrs. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bliss Jr., and Miss L. P. Bliss, a daughter, were at the bedside.

No arrangements for the funeral had been perfected at a late hour tonight, but will be announced tomorrow.

The death of Cornelius N. Bliss removes from the political field another of the coterie of Republican leaders who have been in the forefront of the party's affairs for a generation or more.

He was treasurer of the Republican national committee from 1892 to 1908, and previous to that had been chairman of the New York state Republican committee. With the late Senator Platt, Senator Depew and Former Governor Levi P. Morton, he for years had represented New York state at Republican national conventions. He twice refused to become a candidate for governor of New York, but following the national campaign of 1896, in which William McKinley was elected president, he accepted the position of secretary of the interior in the McKinley cabinet. He held this post for two years and then resigned because of stress of private business. In business Mr. Bliss has been rated as a highly successful merchant and he had amassed a great fortune.

COFFEE IS CORNERED

Duluth Man Expects Green Coffee to Wholesale at 20 Cents.

Hopes Syndicate Will Defeat Its Own Ends By Its Greed.

Coffee is high-priced because it is cornered, and the price is going still higher, in the opinion of H. L. Caldwell, manager of the Caldwell Coffee company.

"I have been in the coffee business for thirty years," said Mr. Caldwell today, "and for the first time in my life I see what looks like a successful corner on coffee. I remember how it was cornered in 1883 by B. G. Arnold and Bowle, Dash & Co. of New York and Charles Kimball of Boston. The wholesale price of green coffee was boosted to 18 cents. Then the affair went to smash and green coffee took a drop to 5½ cents.

"In 1901 the Standard Oil company undertook to corner the coffee market and lost millions. That failure killed some of the big fellows who tried it.

"The corner that is now on looks like a much better organized deal. It has the Brazilian government behind it. I believe our big coffee man, John C. Arbuckle, has planned the whole affair. I think his game is to boost the price of coffee until the small coffee roaster no longer finds any money in the business. Then the Arbuckle roasted coffee may recover some of the roasting trade it used to have before the little roasters became so numerous and cut so deeply into the markets.

"Green coffee is now wholesaling at 15¾ cents a pound. I expect to see the price go up to 20 cents. The price of coffee has gone up a cent and a half within the last week.

"It was a year ago last August that the price of coffee began to rise. At that time the Duluth grocers were paying 15 and 15½ cents a pound for coffee that they retailed at 20 cents. Now the same grade costs them 23 and 24 cents a pound and they get 28 cents for it. I look to see the coffee retailing at 30 cents a pound by the first of next year. You see, the grocer is not losing so much by a reduction in his margin as by having so much more money tied up without any additional profit. The same thing is true of the small roasters.

"We are very cautious now about tying ourselves up with future orders. Coffee is going up, up, up, and no one seems to know where it will stop—only it seems to me that it must stop somewhere.

Started in 1910.

"It was on Aug. 9, 1910, that coffee started on its present upward career. The Brazilian government started it by buying up the surplus coffee that then lay a drug on the market. The government bought 8,000,000 bags of 130 pounds each, and it took $85,000,000 to do it. The money was raised by means of bonds, which were floated with the City National Bank of New York and the Rothschilds of London, and the coffee that the government purchased was put up as collateral. That coffee it now being sold off from time to time as the bonds become due. Thus far about 2,000,000 bags of the coffee have been sold. Meanwhile the Brazilian planters have been getting higher and higher prices for their coffee. They are getting 15 and 16 cents a pound, whereas they used to get 7 and 8 cents.

"Now, it may be that this syndicate will fight its own head off, as others have done before it. I have some hope that the whole thing will collapse as a natural consequence of putting the price of coffee up beyond all reason. One thing is certain. The demand for coffee has been falling off. I believe it has lost as much as 20 per cent in the last six months. We are doing no speculative buying, but are simply trading on a hand-to-mouth basis. I think other dealers all over the country are doing the same. Furthermore, I have observed that adulterated coffees are coming upon the market more and more, and are finding ready sale, not so much in this part of the country as in the South and Southwest. While the cornering scheme seems to have been carried on with remarkable manipulators will defeat their own end by their greed."

WILEY BECOMES THE REAL CHIEF

Pure Food Board Reorganized Minus Solicitor McCabe.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's regime as chief enforcer of the nation's pure food laws began yesterday when the re-organized board of food and drug inspection met at the agricultural department. Dr. Doolittle of New York, the new member appointed at Dr. Wiley's suggestion to take the place of Solicitor McCabe, was present, as was also Dr. F. L. Dunlap, the associate chemist, whose leave of absence has just begun. Dr. Dunlap, who has been secretary of the pure food board, turned over all business to Dr. Wiley and Dr. Doolittle. After the meeting the two members conferred with Secretary of Agriculture Wilson over the methods to be followed.

It was thoroughly understood in the department of agriculture that Secretary Wilson would be guided by the decisions of Dr. Wiley and Dr. Doolittle.

Supported by Germans.

A full copy of the health decision at Berlin upholding the findings of Dr. Wiley, that benzoate of soda and benzoic acid are harmful in foods, has been received at the agricultural department. The German report reviews Dr. Wiley's experiments and findings which were over-ruled by the Remsen referee board in this country, and says:

The Royal Scientific Deputation for Medical Affairs is likewise of the opinion that the use of benzoic acid and benzoates should not be permitted for the preservation of foodstuffs."

ADMIRAL SCHLEY'S WILL IS PUT ON FILE.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, in his will, filed for probate, left to his three children and their heirs all the presents given to the admiral by "the people of my country," and devised the rest of his estate to his widow, Mrs. Annie Schley.

"Give Christian burial to those who fall, and only surrender when there is no longer power left to defend the country and flag," is the sentiment with which the will concludes.

The will, written by Admiral Schley on Oct. 2, 1902, on a Scottish rite blank, conveys no information on which an estimate of the value of Admiral Schley's estate could be based. The three children are Capt. Thomas F. Schley, Virginia, M. S. Wortley and Dr. Winfred Scott Schley.

PRAISE AMERICA AND FATHERLAND

German-Americans Also Adopt Resolutions on Liquor Legislation.

Washington, Oct. 10.—With a royally festive "kommers" at which old German songs were sung, and the fatherland, as well as America, was praised in speeches and toasts, the sixth biennial convention of the National German-American alliance came to a close last night.

"The Dutch treat" will become a thing of universal reality if a resolution offered by Phillip Rappaport of Indianapolis, as adopted, can be carried into effect. It called for the presentation to the next convention by the executive committee of the alliance of a practical plan to do away with the custom of treating at public bars.

St. Louis was elected as convention city for 1913, with a recommendation that St. Louis be given most favorable consideration for 1915.

The business sessions closed with the election of officers, all of the old ones being re-elected, with the addition of four vice presidents.

Would Restore Canteen.

Condemning prohibition laws and urging the restoration of the canteen to the military posts and soldiers' homes, the alliance adopted a number of resolutions offered by the committee on personal liberty.

These declared that "blue laws, prohibitory enactments and legislation which dictates what the individual shall eat, drink and wear, and how and when he shall enjoy himself," are being fostered and promoted by mercenary agitators, "who in a movement of hypocrisy disguised in the cloak of the church and the mantle of patriotism, are hurting true temperance by causing the clandestine and surreptitious use of strong drinks."

The resolutions favor giving cities, towns and incorporated villages, home rule on the liquor question.

Another resolution adopted invited German veteran associations, German Catholic societies, Norweglan societies and others throughout the United States to affiliate with the alliance.

PASTOR ADMITS BIGAMY.

Says He Does Not Think He Did Anything Wrong.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 10.—Following the arrest in Beecher, Ill., yesterday of Rev. John Harton, formerly of Bolton, Eng., on charges of bigamy, the police announce that the pastor has admitted the offense, but has pleaded ignorance of the meaning of bigamy, avowing that he has done no moral wrong.

The Congregational preacher married Miss Amanda Brencker, a member of his Beecher congregation, in Chicago, Saturday, in the Cook county courthouse. Information reached the police that a wife, Edith Jones Harton, daughter of a retired British naval officer, and three children were awaiting Harton in England. The arrest followed.

Harton, who has held the pastorate at Beecher for five months, is said to have shown a letter received from Rev. W. B. Carter of Madison, secretary of the Wisconsin Congregational association, asking him to withdraw from an anticipated call to Steuben, Wis., because of rumors that had reached the ministerial body. His alleged defense of his actions, his denial of a moral wrong in them, and his alleged avowal of ignorance of the meaning of bigamy are said by the police to have followed the display of this letter.

DRASTIC MEASURES TO QUELL REBELLION.

Lisbon, Oct. 10.—Both chambers of parliament have been summoned to meet in extraordinary session Oct. 16, when the government will ask that paragraphs 20 and 21 or article 3 of the Constitution be suspended and a special high tribunal be constituted for the immediate trial of those charged with political offenses.

This is the government's response to the monarchist invasion of Northern Portugal. Awaiting trial are 600 political prisoners, and others may be added.

Col. Alberto Da Sallvara, formerly commander of police, has been appointed minister of war, succeeding Gen. Pimento, who resigned.

Monarchists Retreating.

Oporto, Oct. 10.—Latest advices say that the monarchists are retreating, having abandoned Casares and taken refuge a mile from the frontier to the northwest of Vinhaes. The government coulmn is closing in on the monarchists.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Mrs. George S. Richards, president of the Matinee Musicale club has received a letter from Malcome Dana McMillan, the young St. Paul composer of "The Heart of Farazda" the beautiful song cycle sung by Mrs. Frank O'Meara of St. Paul at the President's day recital of the club last Wednesday. He expresses his appreciation of the interest and enthusiasm with which his cycle was received by the Duluth audience at its first public rendition.

The cycle which is dedicated to Mrs. O'Meara received full justice in her rendition and made a decidedly favorable impression on all of the hearers. This same cycle is to be the feature of the opening programs of the Shubert club of St. Paul tomorrow and the Thursday Musicale of Minneapolis, Oct. 19. Mrs. Snyder and Andraes Dippel of St. Paul, noted critics who have heard it, claim that it ranks with Cadman's cycle "The Indian Love Tales" and the Matinee Musicale club should feel deeply honored in hearing the first public rendition of it by so beautiful a singer as Mrs. O'Meara.

HAUSER-BERINI.

Pretty Wedding of Well Known Young People.

At a pretty wedding ceremony yesterday morning at the Sacred Heart cathedral Miss Nina Hauser became the bride of Robert Berini. The ceremony was performed at high mass at 8 o'clock. The bride wore a white norfolk suit of serge with a white beaver hat and white shoes and gloves. She carried lillies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Inez Lee who wore a norfolk suit of blue and also carried lillies of the valley. Her going away suit was of gray.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served by the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Zimmer at their home, 4317 East Superior street at which covers were laid for twenty-four guests, all relatives of the couple.

The house was effectively decorated in green and white, daisys being the predominating note and the table was especially pretty.

THE EVENING STORY

UNVEILED

By T. A. C.

Carroll Richardson was a disappointed man. He had abandoned his home, had left his wife in wrath and indignation and had vowed that he would nevermore see her. True, he had made provision for her future, and believed that he had behaved generously. Still, he was oppressed with a haunting sense that his conduct had really been marked by inconsideration, was overbearing.

Edith had only married him for the sake of her child. This was the height of her offense. But had he not known this at the time? She had accepted him gravely, kindly, gratefully—that was all.

Edith! As her name rose to his lips memories of his wife presented themselves to his mind—memories of a sweet matronhood—that wrung him now to a tenser emotion.

How wistful she looked in those days of her girl widowhood—how chastely sedate in the garb of woe. What a wealth of affection she had bestowed upon the child of Harold Maher, his one heritage to her. How sympathetic to him she had been in the few months of their marriage—how solicitous in his troubles.

A groan escaped the man as he wandered aimlessly up and down the long lane. He had vowed to leave America, and here, after but a week's misery in New York he was in the very neighborhood of her father's house whence he had taken her. He ought to have gone elsewhere, the man assured himself. His visit had but served to revive and deepen his wretchedness.

What had been the cause of this quarrel? Carroll Richardson had always loved Edith Ladd—loved her even when Harold Maher led her to the altar. He had not then told her so but when poor Harold had been in his grave a year he had told of his love.

He knew she had given Harold Maher a great love and that now he held a holy place in her memory. He did not in those days dream that she would give him the same wealth of affection, but of late he had hungered for it, and believed that she had yielded it to him. He had been chivalrous in his exaction. He had not envied her sweet, matronly pride in her boy—in Harold's boy. Nay, he had sought to perform Harold's part towards the little fellow. And now he was striding to and fro, impetuous, half distraught, half hugging to himself the belief that he had been cozoned and deceived, and yet half rejecting it.

Who had played the traitor's part to him and to her? Even as the memories crowded in upon him this thought would intrude itself, only to remain unanswered. It had been well and insidiously done. Upon returning from his honeymoon he had received the first warning of what he now bitterly described as "Edith's treachery."

At first anonymous epistles addressed to him at his office had contained little more than gibes and sneers—had dubbed him little more than an infatuated fool. But each gibe and each sneer had also warned him that the day of disillusion was near.

He had at first disregarded these malignant letters—he had kept them carefully from Edith. Why should he trouble her? He had even laughed at the futility of her enemies.

But at length their very persistence had made an impression upon him. They had become more definite in their character. They spoke of Edith Maher having had other suitors. They hinted at passages between her and Charles Warner. They suggested that he was accepted because he possessed money, and thus could give her boy a better home and a more expensive training than Charles Warner.

Unconsciously the man became brusque in his manner at home. He sometimes sat glowering silently at the fire for hours. At times he would avoid seeing his stepson for days, and when he surprised Edith in tears he would never offer a word of sympathy.

The end came just about a fortnight before this night when Carroll was striding along in restless anxiety and bitterness. His anonymous correspondent had explicitly asserted that Edith Maher had boasted of her conquest, and had boldly declared that she should accept him because he was a good "catch," and because it would be "a good thing for her boy." Nay, she had even said she did not care for him. Let him tax her with her crime if he doubted it. And he did tax her. His wrath overwhelmed her.

"Did you marry me simply to get a home for your boy? Was our wedding a loveless marriage on your part? Was your vow a lie and a fraud? Were you faithless in heart if not in fact?"

Out rushed the questions, leaving the poor woman speechless, powerless to quell his rage. Then her tears fell as the indignant man proceeded to still further interrogate her. The pent up suspicioon of weeks had now a cruel expression imparted to it.

In her emotion she had admitted that when she accepted him she first thought of securing a home for her boy, and he had accepted this admission as a justification of all the sinister accusations. At all events he had rushed violently from the house.

The man still strode up and down this unfrequented green lane. At length he entered a field in which he and Edith had often wandered and flung himself on the turf. It was a close summer evening, and while he was communing with himself—half applauding, half upbraiding—he fell asleep. His very emotion had exhausted him.

"You know, my dear Mrs. Richardson, you have all my sympathy. I cannot tell you how I deplore the unfortunate business. I had not believed that Mr. Richardson could so behave."

Carroll Richardson awoke with a start as these words fell on his ear. For the moment, his faculties not yet quite under control, he imagined he was dreaming. He wondered how his wife could be there, but instantly recalled the fact that he was near her father's house. But who could be talking to her thus—in tones he instinctively felt to be untrue.

"Of course, my dear, when you married Carroll I only thought you did it because he was able to provide a good home for your boy—because he was a good catch."

Good heavens, this was the very language of his letters. Was he now about to receive confirmation of all his harsh fears and doubts? He remained in his prostrate position, intent on every word.

A moan, all the more painful because of the effort to suppress it—a moan of anguish—had escaped his wife.

"Of course," went on her companion, "you remember that you confided to me that, though you respected him, you did not love him. You were in doubt as to whether you should accept him. Indeed, I thought you cared more for Charles Warner."

Another moan fell on the ears of the distraught man. Why should his wife be tortured thus? Resentment possessed him even as he thought of his own fancied wrongs. And who was this woman? Why, it must be Cecil Forman—Cecil Forman, whom his father once wished him to marry, and who told him that her own uncle had already hinted that he would look with favor on the match; Cecil Forman, to whom for a while, knowing his father's desire, he had paid something like court. Her accents did not now ring true—they were cold rather than warm, pitiless rather than sympathetic. How strangely she was corroborating his anonymous correspondent.

"However," pursued Miss Forman, barbing her gibe, "I do not see why you should now be so cast down and hurt. He has provided for you and your boy. What more could you want? That dear, was all you sought."

"Strange," again thought Carroll, "how faithful Cecil Forman is to the language of the anonymous letters. She uses not only the same sentiments, but the very same language."

"At one time," ran on the lady, her tone more insinuating, but more repellent, "Carroll directed his attentions to me. I rebuked him; like you, my dear Mrs. Richardson, I could not bring myself to care for him. But, of course, I was not a widow and a mother, and had not upon me the necessity to find a home. After my rebuke of him I heard of his attentions to you, and was sorry, but when you said you did not care for him I thought no serious harm would some and that you would lead your life and he his." The man was about to leap to his feet, but restrained himself once more. His wife was speaking, and in indignant tones.

"Who has done this cruel thing I don't know. It is true I did not care for Carroll Richardson as I ought to have done when he proposed to me. Yes, ought to have done, for a truer man never lived. At least, I cared for no other, certainly never for Charles Warner. But his goodness, his kindness, his sympathy have made me more than love him. Who has been so wicked as to do this wrong to me? Oh, Carroll, Carroll!"

"My dear Mrs. Richardson, you must not give way to these transports. After all, is he worth it?" Carroll Richardson started at this brutal comment on himself. "Perhaps his going away was but another act of treachery. Remember his attentions to me ere he sought you. No, I don't believe he is worth your tears."

"Miss Forman, I don't know what right you have to say this"—his wife's voice was now almost firm—"but I do know that Carroll could never be guilty of treachery."

There were two ejaculations. One came from Miss Forman, the other fm Carroll's wife.

"Forgive me, dear. Come home," said Carroll very brokenly.

"Oh, Carroll," was the happy woman's answer.

"Mr. Richardson," exclaimed Miss Forman, "are you not ashamed of yourself?"

"Yes, Miss Forman, I am—ashamed of my folly in believing the writer—I know her now—of those malignant letters!"

The Kitchen

Corn Fritters.

Take twelve ears of half-grown corn, cut the grain through with a knife, then cut them from the ear; beat four eggs, mix them with four tablespoonfuls of flour, and then with two pints of milk; season with salt and pepper, stir in the corn, and drop a large spoonful at a time in smoking hot fat; fry them a light brown. Those fritters are a favorite garnish for fried chicken.

Corn Pudding.

One and a half pints of prepared corn, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and a half pints of milk, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, four eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of nutmeg. Prepare the corn by scoring the ears down each row of grains and scrape sufficient of the latter from the cob to make a pint and a half, cream the butter and sugar and add the salt, nutmeg and the yolks of the eggs; mix well and add the corn and milk alternately.

How to Wash Gloves.

Girls who wear the convenient washable gloves—either wash kid ones, or, on warm days, silk gloves—will find that an easy and effective way to get them clean is to wash them on the hands. They should be carefully drawn on so that they are smooth over the fingers; then the hands are washed with a good white soap just as if they were bare. Make a thick lather and rub them thoroughly together. If the ends of the fingers are especially soiled, use a soft nail brush for them. After rinsing off the soap it is a good plan to give them a second gentle rubbing with soap and another rinsing to finish the process. If the owner has time to let the gloves dry on her hands that is the best way. But they can be taken off wet by turning them inside out and re-turning when off the hands. Do not pull them off by the fingers—it will stretch them badly.

Consider the Complexion

By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS.

In selecting colors the complexion has to be considered first. Next comes the hair and the eyes. Colorists say: Match the hair for day dressing and the eyes for night, but if this theory was followed out in its entirety women who possess nondescript tints in these two points would be at a loss for becoming dresses.

A woman with vivid red hair should avoid any color that contrasts with it, as it only makes the tint more perceptible. White, especially in day time, has a good effect, and in wearing a hat always select a dark one, which shows the hair freely. Women with red hair should never wear pinks and certainly not reds unless they are red browns that will tone with the hair and are darker in shade. Black or dark tinted velvets are essentially the tints for the Titian-haired woman who does not care to wear white.

Gardening as a Cosmetic.

Somebody has discovered that gardening is the best of all occupations for improving the health and complexion. Fresh air, muscular exercise, and mind rest should be derived by the girl who digs and hoes and plants her own garden. And so bright eyes, clear skin and fresh color, the signs of health, await the gardener.

But it must be gardening in earnest. It must entail early rising, and working in all weathers. No dilly dallying or half-hearted work is any good. The mind influence is half the cure, and there certainly is a wonderful satisfaction in the feeling that one is doing real, serious work, in seeing the fruit of one's labor.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HALFBREED IS WOUNDED

East Grand Forks Captain of Police Uses Gun to Effect.

Hits Fleeing Prisoner With Three Shots Out of Four Fired.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three bullet wounds were sustained yesterday afternoon by Jerrald Rogers, a half breed, when he attacked Captain Hugh Quigley of the police force while the latter was attempting to arrest him. The officer fired four times, three of his bullets taking effect, giving Rogers a wound in the thigh of each leg, and another wound in the calf of his right leg. None of the injuries are serious and Rogers was taken to the county jail at Crookston to await a hearing on charges of resisting an officer.

The fact that Rogers had just been divorced by his wife was probably responsible for the trouble. He had gone to their home and had torn things up when the police officer arrived on the scene. Rogers at first submitted tamely and came with the police captain for some distance before turning on him. The officer was not able to cope with his prisoner and was down, his billy club being wrested from him.

Officer Wings Man.

Then Rogers arose and started away, while Captain Quigley jumped back several feet and pulled his revolver, ordering the man to stop or he would shoot.

"Shoot," yelled Rogers, as he turned his face to the officer, at the same time raising his hands over his head.

Quigley did not fire instantly, but waited for a moment until Rogers again turned away, starting toward the house. At that point the officer fired.

KEEN RIVALRY OVER EXHIBITS

Various Sections of North Dakota to Exhibit at St. Paul Land Show.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—If North Dakota is not well represented at the Northwest land show in December in St. Paul, then the sectional associations that have been launched cannot be blamed.

The rivalry that exists in this state is of a peculiar nature, although there is over the whole a general sentiment of pull together. In the sectional fight that has been aroused as a result of the St. Paul show, the Red River valley took the start, organizing the Red River Valley Boosters. This was followed by the Lake Region association, and finally by the Missouri Slope Development league, each of these organizations being committed to a program of self advancement with the St. Paul land show as the medium through which to work.

PRESBYTERIANS OF NORTH DAKOTA

Annual Gathering of Church Begins at Jamestown on Wednesday.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city is in readiness for the synod of the Presbyterian church which begins Wednesday and continues until Saturday.

The synod will be preceded by the annual state Sunday school institute, with the final meetings of the district presbyteries taking place today, one being in this city and the other in Grand Forks. Many men of prominence in the Presbyterian world will be in attendance. Robert E. Speer, D.D., of New York city, will be the speaker at the opening session of the institute Wednesday evening. He is one of the secretaries of the board of foreign missionaries and this is his first visit to the state.

Matthews & Co., wholesale grocers, from $35,000 to $25,000; C. N. Cramer & Co., commission merchants, from $30,000 to $20,000. ## SUGAR BEET CROP REPORTED LARGE

Sugar Plant at Menominee, Mich., Begins Its Most Successful Season.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The factory of the Menominee River Sugar company has started work, with every indication of the most successful year in the history of the plant. For the next three months 400 men will be employed, and the plant will be in operation night and day. Farmers all over the country have had greater success with their beet crop than ever before, and George W. McCormick, the general manager, believes that this will be the most successful season in the history of the plant.

"As far as I can judge at the present time from the reports of the farmers and the way the crops look, this season is going to be above the average and far ahead of last year," Mr. McCormick said. "Every farmer has made a special effort to grow good sugar beets and plenty of them. The beets are of unusual shape and size and will yield a high average of sugar.

Weather Favored Beets.

"Sugar beets never looked better than they do today. The weather since August has been most favorable for their growth. The fact that the crop this year will be a large one is not entirely local, but is widespread. Sugar beets of splendid size were in evidence at many of the county fairs this year, and where they were not exhibited any previous years. This is a healthy sign. The Menominee River Sugar company has this season 7,500 acres contracted for sugar beets. The average yield will be eleven tons to the acre. The factory will therefore pay to the farmers of this district $500,000 in cash. The returns will be larger than from any other crop grown in this vicinity."

MAKING OBSERVATIONS FROM THE SIDE LINES

The Man Who Tenderly Cared for Johnson's Feet Is Here—Michigan's Prospects Bright—Pilakoff and Ordemann.

DR. Wallace Williams, a colored companion who was at the front with General Jack Johnson in those strenuous days of Reno, and who in his own words, "fixed the feet of Johnson," is with us. "Doc." blew into the sanctum yesterday and between puffs of a big black segar regaled part of the office force, including the office boy, with some interesting inside dope of the doings out at Reno, afore the battle.

"You see this Sammy Langford is a nice colored boy," said the Doc in answer to the inquiry as to his opinion regarding the ability of the two blacks, "and he ain't one spec afraid of Johnson. That's the trouble with some of dese other boys—they is afraid of Artha. Well Sammy has fought him afore and he knows he ain't a goin' to be afraid.

"You might say that it was no fight at all, out at Reno. That poor old man done let his muscles get all soft and mushy and then he had no chance at all to be any good any more. I seen better fighting in the training quarters than I did the day I sit clear up there on the top of the seats and watched them two hug each other around that ring.

"It was me that sent Lil' Artha into the ring in good shape His feet was all swelled up, they was, and I done massaged them and fixed them up so that he went right in there and fought just as lively and nice. If it hadn't been for me a fixin' up his feet, that fellow could hev hardly walked."

Dr. Wallace Williams has been around some and he is some dresser when he gets started, if we are to believe his own words. In Minneapolis he was the center of an argument in one of those restaurants where the upper crust of colored society hangs out or holds forth, and they just impulsively started in to smash glass and heads, all because some held that Dr. Wallace Williams was the best colored gentleman in the city.

And speaking about classes and degrees of society, Dr. Wallace Williams holds that Lil' Artha has no license to hold his head high in the ozone and refuse to recognize some of the more humbler members of his race.

"Johnson sure did rush the can in them days gone by," said the Doc. "What dat fellow said in Noo York, afore Artha done busted him over the head, was true. Johnson used to drink beer out of a can. In those days in Chicago when Williams and Walker was in the highest first class colored society, Lil' Artha was tending a bar and wasn't even going with those high class folks. He just ain't got no reason for being so proud of himself."

Dr. Wallace Williams says he came here for the simple life and that he intends to stick around for a few days at least.

IN addition to preparing his second paper on his career as a college football player, Mr. Chassey Bolton, Minnesota's most eminent football authority, is looking the field of Western football over and may in the future write an exclusive article for The Herald on some phase of the Western field that appeals to his fleeting fancy.

Chassey Bolton's second paper will appear exclusively in the next Saturday edition of The Herald and will be accompanied by the likeness of Mr. Bolton. This article is written exclusively for The Herald.

HERE is the inside nature of a little joke that was to be, but which was reversed and started home with the smile all washed off its little rosy face by the brimy tears of disgust and defeated hopes.

Carl Mattsson of Minneapolis, a wrestling partner of Ordemann, and considered one of the best of the heavyweights of the Twin Cities, was sent up here to beat Pilakoff, as the wrestling fraternity in the two cities believed that the gigantic Finn simply caught Rogers napping in that third fall at the Auditorium, and that Mattsson could beat him.

When Mattsson tells Henry Ordemann of what Pilakoff did to him, that worthy may sit up and take notice. In the contest at Cloquet Pilakoff simply tore into the big boy from Minneapolis and upset him before he really realized that he was in a match. The quickness of the fall will probably convince the followers of the mat sport in Minneapolis that Pilakoff has a habit of catching his opponents napping.

It may be that Ordemann would like to come up and try conclusions with the powerful Finnish exponent of the gentle art of wrestling.

OPTIMISM greased on the ball bearings of plausibility comes from the camp of Yost. With Conklin, Wells, Thompson, Bogle and a few of the players that went to make up last year's team, Fielding H. should have one of the best teams in the history of his Ann Arbor regime, and anyone who has followed Western football is aware of the caliber of some of the aggregations turned out by the wizard hand of Yost.

Next Saturday the pupils of Yost will meet the eleven of the Michigan Agricultural college, and should this team be of anywhere the strength of last year's team, those who follow the team to Lansing may see one of the prettiest games of the early season, here in the Middle West.

On the same Saturday afternoon that Minnesota is battling with the husky Cornhuskers from Lincoln, Neb., Michigan will be pitted against the Ohio State U. As Ohio and Nebraska are about in the same class, or should be with the improvement the Nebraska teams of past years have shown, the games of a week from Saturday may furnish some comparative line of dope on the old rivals, though the comparative line is the most uncertain and often the most unsatisfactory in the world.

WHILE the season for baseball waneth we have not much more time to talk of the great national game which the coming week, will make its adieus for the season. Therefore while the season is yet with us it might be mentioned that Winnipeg has made some slight overtures toward the organization of a new league next season, the organization to include Duluth and Superior and Winnipeg and one live town on the other side, with what other towns might be suggested later on.

It is generally believed that the season but recently closed was the last of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league. If that is the case then it may be good news to at least believe Winnipeg is ready to work with the two cities at the Head of the Lakes toward the organization of a new league.

There is supposed to be a meeting of the Minny league officials some time the present week, and that time something may come up that will throw some light on the future intentions of the club owners.

KARLE AFTER PILAKOFF.

East India Wrestler Wants Match With Finnish Giant.

Jack Curley, internationally famous all over the world of sporting events, writes to The Herald today in regard to his man Karle, one of the famous East Indian wrestlers that was brought to this country by Benjamin, the famous English promoter. According to the letter from Curley, Karle is under his management at the present time.

Karle was at the Gotch-Hackenschmidt match in Chicago, and he sure does look like some athlete. Benjamin told a number of men around the ring that Karle had defeated Gama in India. He also stated that Karle was open to meet any man in the world.

The victory of Pilakoff has attracted attention all over the country and challenges are coming in to the big Finn from right and left. Within the past two weeks, following his defeat of Rogers, Pilakoff has received through the sporting columns of The Herald challenges from Jess Pedersen and Zbyszko, in addition to the challenge coming today from Karle.

DISTANCE RUNNER IS OUT WITH CHALLENGE.

John Sword of Stockholm, the winner of many long distance races in Sweden and also in this country, has issued a challenge to any runner in this part of the country and will run from ten to fifteen miles for a side bet of from $50 to $100.

While just a youngster, Sword has won a number of fast races and in the old country has competed with some of the best of the Marathon runners. He has had some races since coming to the United States and has been successful in winning most of them.

Sword is after a race with John Shine of Minneapolis, who is not a shine, despite his name, when it comes to running.

DOOIN WILL CONTINUE TO MANAGE PHILLIES.

OPINIONS OF THE FANS ON THE COMING WORLD'S SERIES

"Doc" McNulty confesses that he does not know a lot about the great national game, but says he likes it. He is taking a great deal of interest in the coming series between the Giants and Athletics and from what dope he has gathered is inclined to believe the American league team will pull down the long end of the money.

"I have never taken the same interest in the game of baseball that I have in the boxing game," said the genial doctor yesterday, when asked for his opinion on the game, "but from what I hear I am inclined to string along with the Athletics. Connie Mack is a wise boy and has a great team to execute his orders. I believe the Athletics will win."

Larry Wilcox of Cloquet, who always takes a deep interest in things of the sporting line, writes in to The Herald the following opinion regarding the outcome of the series:

To the Sporting Editor of The Herald:

Regarding the coming world's series between the Giants and Connie Mack's world beaters, it is very interesting to read the varied predictions, even from the real wise ones. Of course it is going to be a great fight for the highest honors in baseball, but we must hand it to the Giants. Connie Mack laughs at the Giants' base stealing, and says: "Base stealing never won a world's series." Very true, but it is an important factor.

We remember Connie Mack predicted his team would win the majority of games from the Cubs a year ago. Very true, they won with apparent ease. Has Connie predicted a victory for his team in the coming clash with the Giants? Not yet, which goes to show that he is really the sly old fox in baseball as he is called. We consider Mack's heavy sluggers will slump in batting averages when they face Mathewson, Ames and Wiltse.

We should not bank on Rube Marquard, though he may prove a star. On the other hand, Bender and Plank should each win a game, and the series to go to the New York Nationals.

L. W. WILCOX.

POLICE STOP BOUTS TO MUSIC

Mozart Gesang Verein Unable to Give Prize Fight—Singing Program.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 10.—Members of the police department refused to permit Packy McFarland, of Chicago, and Grover Hayes, of Philadelphia to go six rounds here last night before the Mozart club. A crowd of 2,000 gathered at the Coliseum to see the fight.

Chief of Detectives Allender notified the club's officers that arrests would be made if the club staged any of the boxing matches, but allowed two boys to wrestle.

This is the third time within recent date that McFarland has been prevented from fighting by the police. The Chicago man said he would be here until this afternoon, and in the meantime the officers of the club say they will seek an injunction restraining the police from interfering. If successful the fight will be held tonight.

No person, not a club member, will be admitted to the Coliseum, as was the case in the two former meetings of the club. To come within the law the club, which is incorporated as the Mozart Gesang Verein, with athletic and singing exercises as its main objects, has had a quartette sing between each of the bouts.

NORTHERNS WIN CLOSE CONTEST

Defeat Jeffersons at Roller Hockey By Score of 4 to 3.

Oscar Solheim scored the winning goal in the roller hockey game between the Jeffersons and Northerns at the Auditorium last evening, winning the game for the Northerns by the score of 4 to 3.

Le Fleur scored early in the game. McGinnis tied the count a few minutes later with a pretty goal. Just four minutes before the close of the first half Le Fleur scored again, placing the Northerns in the lead.

Conley tied the score shortly after the opening of the second half. Trathern came back and placed the Northerns in the lead. With only two minutes left to play Conley again tied the score.

It was here that Solheim made the spectacular play that won the game, rushing the ball through the opposing players by a burst of speed that could not be denied.

For a new team the Jeffersons showed classy form, Baker and Conley showing some very good playing. Le Fleur and Solheim played a great game for the winners.

The lineup:

Referee—Ed Furni.

Timekeeper—Russell Holgate.

"Doc" Had Good Time.

Dr. McNulty has returned from a hunting trip up near Kennedy's landing. While gone he was royally entertained by Andrew Hole and his family. There was some great partridge shooting and the doctor also enjoyed some very good rabbit fixed up in the old Southern style. According to Dr. McNulty there is some great bird shooting in that part of the country and he further says that he was entertained by a royal host.

Brown and Lewis Draw.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 10.—Knockout Brown of Chicago and Harry Lewis of Philadelphia, claimant to the welterweight championship, fought eight fast rounds to a draw last night before the Southern Athletic club.

MATHEWSON IS MAINSTAY

Big Twirler Depended Upon to Win Series for Giants.

Pitchers of New York Team Are Working for Condition.

New York, Oct. 10.—Christy Mathewson donned his baseball togs and, calling on Catcher Hartley, strolled out on the Polo Grounds this morning to take up his daily pitching practice.

The big twirler agrees with Managers McGraw and Mack that the world's series between the New York Nationals and the Philadelphia Americans is a problem of pitchers and for this reason the New York slabmen are keeping in the best possible condition.

The team members themselves say that "Matty" is their mainstay and upon him depends largely the result of the series, with the hope that Marquard, the season's sensation in the National league, may come through with a victory or two to clinch the series for the home team.

"I know just what the team and the home crowds expect of me," said Mathewson, "but my work is necessarily defensive and it is up to my team-mates to make the runs.

"My condition? Well, I feel first rate and am on edge for the series, but you must know that in this game that 'breaks' or luck must play a big part."

Marquard Is "Right."

Marquard thinks he is ready and will have the old left-handed speed and jump to his ball that made him invincible while his team was making its successful dash for the pennant in August and September. Without speed Marquard admits he has no terrors for even a minor league team.

"But I have the speed and the curve will jump and hook over the plate all right," said Marquard today.

All the twirlers were out today putting in a little practice just to keep their curves working and perfect their control.

Giants After Record.

New York, Oct. 10.—With the world's series almost at hand, interest has developed over the possibilities of the New York team ending the season with its record tied with that established by the Philadelphia American team.

New York easily won from Brooklyn yesterday, making a score of 99 games won and 51 games lost as compared with Philadelphia's record of 101 victories and 50 defeats. While Philadelphia has no chance to improve its record, since the season is ended, New York has four games to play, all with Brooklyn, to which they have lost but 2 out of 18 games played. With victories in all four contests, New York's record would show a percentage of .669, equalling that of its Philadelphia rivals.

Doyle Injured.

The first whisper of trouble in the condition of the New York players picked for the world's championship was heard among the fans last night because of a slight injury to Capt. Larry Doyle, who turned his ankle while running around first base in the sixth inning of yesterday's game. He retired from the game, and this caused anxiety as Doyle is one of the hardest hitters and best base stealers in the club, and is expected to play an important part in the title series. He assured inquirers as he left the grounds that while his ankle was somewhat stiff, he was certain it would have no effect upon his appearance next Saturday.

Applications for tickets to the games continued to pour in at baseball offices. The tide of incoming mail turns today to an outgoing one with the first issue of tickets.

Many Turned Away.

Special policemen turned away thousands of seekers after tickets to the world's championship series.

Five thousand persons, it is estimated, have been turned away from the office. In each case the ticket seeker was told to mail his order with a certified check or money order accompanying it. No money has been taken in at the headquarters nor will there be until Thursday, when the advance sale of remaining seats begins, but perhaps $50,000 has gone down the mail chute near the door.

Secretary Gray said he thought about 40,000 persons would squeeze into the new stadium at the Polo grounds next Saturday.

MATTY OPPOSED TO SON'S PLAYING

Great Pitcher Does Not Want His Boy to Follow Baseball.

New York, Oct. 10.—The Giants are going to win the world's series against the Athletics—that is if Christopher Mathewson, the pitcher, who has won two pennants for New York, is any prophet.

"I haven't seen the Athletics' game. I have not had a chance to look over their infield yet, but, of course, think the Giants are going to win," he said confidently.

Every fan in New York knows just how the idolized Matty looks on the Polo grounds. But the youngest fan in New York has the privilege of knowing New York's star twirler better than any one else in the world knows him. For this youngest fan is Christopher Mathewson, Jr., aged 5, who awoke this season for the first time to the all-importance of baseball and his father's eminence on the diamond.

Son Knew Who Won.

"He asked me the other day: 'Who won the pennant?'" said Mathewson, "and I answered, 'The Giants won it.' Then he said, 'Did you win the pennant?' I guess somebody had been talking to him."

"Does he intend to be a baseball player when he grows up?"

"He has not thought about it yet."

"And you?"

"Yes, I've thought about it and I'm against it. My mother reminded me a few years ago that when I was 8 or 9 years of age, I confided to her that my burning ambition was to be a pitcher in the National league. I'd forgotten all about it, for I went to college—Bucknell university—and got to be quite a good football player. It's seldom that a small college has a crackerjack baseball team. They give more attention to football.

Game Paid His Schooling.

"When I took up baseball it was because I liked it so much and because it was the easiest way to earn money to go on with my schooling.

"You see, I was just one of thousands and thousands of boys crazy about baseball and with the idea of being a ball player when they grow up. But what chance have those boys?

"I was lucky—lucky in getting with the Giants, lucky in getting to New York, which, of course, affords the largest opportunities for development in any profession. But let's figure out the chance of the average boy. There are two big leagues, and in the sixteen clubs which compose them, say, 320 men. Of these players 50 per cent are paid salaries which compensate them for giving the best years of their youth to baseball. The odds against a boy's getting to be one of those players are 100 to 1.

Others Have Best Chance.

"The fellow that starts in to be a doctor or a lawyer has a much better chance. In those professions he does not have to be a big leaguer for his business to pay dividends on the investment he has made of his youth and strength."

So that's why Chris Mathewson, Jr., will never be a professional ball player, if his father can help it.

At 5 Chris, Jr., is talking of baseball. At 6 Chris, Sr., was playing it.

"I don't think I played a regular ball game till I was 9 or 10 years old," said Mathewson, "but I had a bat when I was about 6. I was a big boy when I was 9 and I used to walk four miles to the next town on Saturday to play on its ball team. My own town, Factoryville, Pa., had no team in those days."

WOLGAST AND WELLS TO MEET

Champion Will Get Fortune for Fighting Ten Rounds.

New York, Oct. 10.—Ad Wolgast, the champion lightweight of the world, and Matt Wells, the English champion, will meet in a ten-round bout here Oct. 28. Announcement of the bout which was arranged several days ago, but called off because of an insufficient guarantee for Wolgast, was made last night by George McDonald, manager for Wells.

McDonald announced that Wolgast had been guaranteed $22,000 and Wells $10,000 to be placed in their hands before the fight and an agreement had been signed yesterday for the men to meet, weighing in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock on the day of the fight. The bout will be staged at the Beach Palace at Coney Island. McDonald himself is promoting the match. In addition to his guarantee the world's champion will receive 40 per cent of the gate receipts and a like percentage will go to Wells.

BROWN IS GIVEN CLOSE DECISION

Local Fighter Wins From Sammy Trott in Ten-Round Contest.

New Orleans, Oct. 10.—Pal Brown of Duluth secured the newspaper decision over Sammy Trott of Columbus, here last evening. The harder hitting of Brown won him the decision. He hurt Trott with body blows in the infighting and at the finish had the Columbus boy tired and hanging on in the clinches.

During the first part of the contest Trott outboxed Brown, and was faster and more clever than the Westerner. Not until Trott slowed down from the fast pace of the first five rounds did Brown begin to get the upper hand.

The contest was decided by the newspaper men, Referee Stout giving no decision.

CENTRAL AFTER GAME WITH NELSON DEWEY.

The faculty committee on athletics of the Central high school is after a game with the Nelson-Dewey football team of Superior for next Saturday. After playing two teams that have outweighed Central from fifteen to twenty pounds to the man, it is believed that the hill top boys will show some fast and effective football against a team of their own weight.

New plays are being tried out this week at Athletic park. It is rumored that there will be some changes in the lineup. Solheim is expected out this evening and his presence should strengthen the line and also instill greater confidence among the Central players.

Nelson Dewey is reported to have a fast and well trained team and a game for Saturday between the Superior high school aggregation and Central will be the means of showing how Central stands among the high school teams in the Head of the Lakes region.

McGinnis After Bryant.

John McGinnis, roller skater, has issued a challenge to Frank Bryant and says he is ready to meet the Head of the Lakes champion at Bryant's convenience. McGinnis is a fast local man and has shown considerable speed in some of his local races.

Moore Outpoints Hyland.

New York, Oct. 10.—Pal Moore, the Philadelphia lightweight, easily outpointed Fighting Dick Hyland of California in every round but one of a ten-round bout at the Empire A. C. last night. Neither man was marked badly at the finish.

McALPINE HAS COPPER STOCK

Accused Two Harbors Clerk Also Said to Have Invested in Lands.

Two Harbors Council Again Wrestling With City Scale Question.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—P. J. McAlpine, the former city water and light collecter, who is in jail pending the outcome of charges of having defrauded the city out of over $10,000 in money collected, owns some copper stocks and property on the Pacific coast, according to statements made at the council meeting last night when the McAlpine matter was under discussion.

The accountants will not be through with their examination for a month. Mr. Esse stated that a few days after McAlpine's arrest the accountants had come across a list of McAlpine's holdings, consisting of some land in Oregon, some land in Vancouver and against which there is a claim of $1,500, and also considerable copper stocks. McAlpine, he said, would neither allow this to be signed over to the city or refuse it.

City Scales Up Again.

The council decided to reopen the question of the purchase of a city scale. Some time ago, before the special election, the council refused to purchase a city scale after bids had been received. On Oct. 23, the date of the regular meeting of the council, bids will again be received. The estimated cost for a good scale and the installation of it is about $300. The idea is to have the scale installed in front of the city hall and have the city clerk do the weighing and charging a fee for services sufficient to pay the expenses of the scale. When the committee on alleys and sidewalks asked for additional funds for work it developed that the city's credit is not as good as expected because local banks hold $26,000 in city orders which will not be cashed until tax money comes in about Feb. 1. There is also some money due from the light and water department from subscriptions. These will be available early in the winter when the temporary cloud on the city's finances will be removed. During the discussion of the financial question it became evident that local banks under existing conditions declined to extend further credit.

CLAIM INTEREST IS FALLING OFF

Reported Virginians Are Not So Keen After Municipal Ownership.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest in municipal ownership appears to have lessened following the adoption of the resolution by the city council last week, but it is expected to revive when the council tomorrow evening takes up the proposed initiative ordinance for its second reading. There is considerable curiosity whether the members of the proposed special water and light commission will try to withdraw their names from the proposed ordinance. It is probable that the resolution of the council calling a special election will be presented for action.

CHISHOLM WEDDING.

Rudolph Olson of Hibbing and Miss Mitchell to Wed.

Chisholm, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Mitchell, the wedding of their daughter, Miss Ada Mitchell, to Prof. Rudolph Olson of Hibbing will be celebrated tomorrow afternoon.

The ceremony will be performed by Rev. James F. Pickard, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hibbing. The wedding will be a quiet one, only immediate relatives of the contracting parties being present. Mr. and Mrs. Olson will reside in Hibbing on Center street, between Second and Third avenues.

Miss Mitchell is well and favorably known in Chisholm and is accounted one of that town's most popular young ladies. Prof. Olson has resided in Hibbing for the past six years and is prominent in musical circles.

NO INDIGESTION OR SICK STOMACH

Gas, Heartburn, Dyspepsia and All Misery in Stomach Vanishes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

FINNISH STUDENT MASTERS TONGUE

Missionary Who Studied Language in Finland Speaks at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Daniel Watanabe, a missionary from the Far East, who studied Finnish the past four years in Helsingfors, Finland, last evening, gave an interesting sermon in Finnish at the Finnish Lutheran church before a large audience. All were surprised at the ability of the speaker to express himself in the Finnish language.

He discussed religious topics in an entertaining manner and his talk was closely followed. He also spoke at Virginia at the Finnish Luthern church yesterday.

He will leave the United States, Oct. 14 for his home in Japan where he will continue his religious work. He has been traveling about in this country for many months and has made many friends among the Finnish people.

Others who spoke on religious topics at the Finnish Lutheran church yesterday were Rev. Victor Kuovimaki of Ely and Rev. Victor Kuisito of Hibbing.

DAUGHTER'S LIFE IS THREATENED

Mrs. Nick Garchia of Stevenson Gets Alleged Black Hand Letter.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Garchia, who operates a bakery in the Stevenson location and whose daughter, Carmile, is said to have been the object of attention from several Italian admirers, is said to have received a threatening letter along the usual Black Hand lines. This purported to say that unless she placed $1,000 in cash at a designated spot on a certain date her daughter would be murdered. The letter was postmarked in Wisconsin.

The Garchia girl is said to have been the object of several desperate fights between rivals for her hand and some connect these circumstances with the threatening letter received by the mother. The federal authorities who have long been keeping an eye on alleged Blackhanders in this locality are working on the latest case.

MUCH SURPRISED BY CONFESSION

Virginia People Not Prepared for Tom Fisher's Admitting Crime.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was much interest shown here in Monday's Herald regarding the confession of Tom Fisher, the Indian United States mail carrier at Nett Lake, that he murdered William A. Brown, a government forest ranger Aug. 8.

Fisher had a good reputation here and several prominent citizens felt certain during his first preliminary hearing here that he could not be the man who did the killing. Fisher, until recently told an apparently straightforward story.

Seven Austrians were examined in connection with the murder case, but nothing could be found against them. The confession was a surprise to nearly everybody in this part of the county.

At present the village of Coleraine has an assessed valuation of about $3,600,000 while its sister village, Bovey, has a valuation of less than $1,000,000, and the plan under consideration is for Bovey to include these lands that are being detached from Coleraine in its corporate limits.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Every one who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is commonly caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices, or by lack of tone in the walls of the stomach. The result is that the stomach loses its power to digest food.

We are now able to supply certain missing elements—to help to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to aid in making the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a most dependable remedy for disordered stomachs, indigestion, and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. E. M. Tredway, 108 West Superior street.

FLOOD GOING DOWN RIVER

feet, 6½ inches, a fall of ½ inch since yesterday.

Anchor Floating Property.

Fort Madison, Ia., Oct. 10.—In anticipation of a sudden rise of the Mississippi river on account of the heavy rains and the bursting of the dam near La Crosse, Wis., rivermen here are securing everything liable to damage by high water.

During the recent storms thousands of dollars' worth of logs were swept down the river. The mill owners have tugs at work north of the city today, anchoring several large log rafts.

One Death Reported.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 10.—With the flood pouring into the Mississippi from all points above and overrunning the lowlands north of the city, the big river is showing capacity to care for the great volume of water, and the stage this morning remains at 9 feet above zero, no change from yesterday. Beyond the one death yesterday, no further reports of loss of life have been received, farmers having had several days warning of the approach of the flood, enough to permit those in the lowlands to reach higher ground.

Tonight the common council of La Crosse is to meet in special session to take steps for the relief of the Black River Falls flood sufferers.

River in New Channel.

An engineer today surveyed the district over which the water coursed and found that a section 3,000 feet long by 1,500 feet wide had been cut away altogether, land as well as buildings. The water at Black River Falls is now practically at its normal height, but the river continues to run through the new channel cut through the main streets of the town. It will remain there permanently unless a vast sum of money is spent to remove it, and it is expected that the people will prefer to rebuild their business section back from the river and to permit their old town to go down in history as a submerged city. The rebuilding is made particularly difficult because the loss of the business district means the wiping out of three-fourths the assessed valuation of the town.

Vincent's Inauguration Will Take Place on That Date.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four university presidents will pay tribute to the educated man, to Minnesota university and to Dr. George E. Vincent at the latter's inauguration as president of the state seat of learning here Oct. 18. The program was made public late yesterday.

"The Idea of Culture," will be discussed by President A. Ross Hill of the University of Missouri; "The Idea of Vacation," will be the subject of an address by President John H. Finley of the College of the City of New York; President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago will talk on "The Idea of Research," and "The Idea of Service" will be made the subject of an address by President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin.

Powell to Represent Alumni.

The four university presidents will present their four ideas at a meeting preliminary to the inauguration proper, President Vincent presiding over the convocation. The inaugural ceremony will follow.

E. B. Johnson, secretary of the Alumni association, has announced that the alumni will be represented at the inaugural exercises by Rev. John Walker Powell, class of '93. Rev. Mr. Powell is pastor of the Endion Methodist Episcopal church of Duluth.

KNIFE WIELDER IS HELD TO GRAND JURY.

John Fromich, the laborer arrested Saturday afternoon for slashing Joseph J. Berry, a marine fireman, in the side with a knife in Carlson's saloon on the Bowery, waived examination in police court this morning.

He was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury on a charge of assault in the second degree. It appears that Fromich got into an argument with the bartender over the price of some drinks and threw a glass at him, whereupon Berry struck him with his fist. Fromich then turned on Berry and stabbed him with a long hunting knife. He was caught as he was trying to run away. Berry is being cared for at St. Mary's hospital, where it is stated that his injury is not serious.

HE ISN'T JEALOUS.

Noiseless Soup Spoon Man Praises Fingerless Soup Plate Invention.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 10.—Sterling H. Campbell of this city, inventor of the noiseless soup-spoon, today hastened to congratulate Isaac Allen of Chicago when he learned that gentleman had perfected a finger-proof soup-plate. They will go well together, he believes.

Campbell resides at a hotel and he knows how it is. Observation in public eating places has sharpened his inventive genius. A ladle which will enable anyone not Italian born to make reasonable progress with a dish of spaghetti is about perfected. He also has discovered that a teaspoonful of olive oil on a grape fruit will keep the juice from squirting into one's eye.

NEW AMBASSADOR FROM RUSSIA STARTS WEST.

Earthquake Recorded.

New York, Oct. 10.—An earthquake probably not more than 1,000 miles distant and of considerable magnitude was recorded this morning on the seismograph at Brooklyn college. The record began at 8:19 and continued until 8:53, with the maximum disturbance at 8:32. The strongest movement was in the north-south direction. The disturbance was considerably more severe than that recorded by last week's shock in Haiti.

MINE VALUES INCREASED

$10,000,000 Will Probably Be Added to Last Year's Figures.

Duluth Men Confer With Members of State Tax Commission.

Mine valuations in St. Louis, Itasca and Lake counties will be increased by the state tax commission this year. The amount of the increase is not known, but it is understood that the additions will be the result of the development of the properties and will not be arbitrary on the part of the commission.

A conference was held at the state capital yesterday, prominent mining men appearing before the commission to confer on the assessments. There was little objection to the increases proposed, although in some cases explanations were made in the belief that the commission was mistaken as to the status of some properties. The objections and explanations were technical for the most part and in general the representatives of the mining companies were satisfied with the figures reached by the commission.

Last year the commission made a sweeping arbitrary increase of 5 per cent on all mine assessments. No such action was taken this year. May 1 each year the mining companies file statements as to the condition of their properties. The commission verifies the figures and makes its assessments on the basis of its findings. The increases made this year are the result of development and in only a few cases was the development overestimated.

For instance, section 30 has its assessment increased this year by between 400 and 500 per cent. The mine enters the shipping class, calling for a different basis of assessment and consequently a higher valuation. Other properties are in the same class, while in some cases the commission was asked to reduce valuations of properties which formerly shipped and are now inactive.

It has been estimated that the increases will amount to $10,000,000, but the figure is purely an arbitrary estimate and the correct amount will not be known until next week. The mineral valuation last year was $221,173,775.

The following mining men attended the conference yesterday: L. C. Harris, section 30; John G. Williams, section 30; C. E. Moore, Ruddy Mining company; William Wearne, Indiana Steel company; J. A. Savage, Shenango Furnace company; J. Uno Sebenius, Oliver Iron Mining company; Werner Pressentin, Oliver Iron Mining company; F. J. Webb, Republic Iron & Steel company; L. L. Wilcox, Republic Iron & Steel company, and H. F. Kendall, New York State Steel company.

BAND-STANDS ARE NEEDED

Successful Park Concerts Impossible Without Them, Says Director Flaaten.

Lovers of good music, who attended the band concerts conducted by The Herald in the parks of the city during the past summer, were impressed by the fact that band-stands are badly needed if concerts in the parks are to be continued.

Many people, including Jens Flaaten, director of the Third Regiment band, believe that steps should be taken by the park board immediately to erect modern band-stands in as many of the parks as possible. Chester park and Lincoln park, the most popular for concerts, should at least be provided with stands, says Mr. Flaaten.

The stands in which the Third Regiment band gave The Herald concerts this year are worse than useless, according to Mr. Flaaten. They tend to confine the sound, instead of throwing it out as modern shell-shaped stands would do. He says that the band is badly handicapped by the stands used this year and the people do not get the most out of the music.

An effort will be made to have the park board remedy the defect before the next season for band concerts opens. The Herald has for years been interested in band concerts in the parks to the extent of providing them. It has hoped that they will become a regular feature of the summer season in the parks, but they cannot be the best obtainable until suitable band-stands are provided so that the band may do its best.

Mining Engineers Meet.

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—The annual session of the American Institute of Mining Engineers opened here today with 200 delegates in attendance. The session will last a week. Vice-president Robert W. Hunt of Chicago will preside.

Easier To Remove Than Conceal Wrinkles

(National Hygienic Review)

"When you try to conceal your wrinkles with paste made from beans, you deceive yourself, not me. Let a detect, which is possibly but small, appear undisguised. A fault concealed is presumed to be great."

This little epigram of Martial's suggests the present day tendency to avoid the use of cosmetics which can only conceal or hide facial defects, and to adopt instead rational means of removing the same. For the removal of wrinkles, saggy cheeks and baggy chins, the saxolite prescription, which goes to the foundation of these troubles, seems to have come into general use since its virtues became known but a short time ago. One ounce of saxolite, procurable at any drug store, is dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Used as a wash lotion this tightens the skin immediately, effectually smoothing out wrinkles and "drawing in" hanging skin or folds.

SHERMAN LAW IS UP AGAIN

Supreme Court Must Wrestle With Another Anti-Trust Suit.

Hard Coal Case Is Before It for Determination.

Washington, Oct. 10.—After striving for nearly two years to interpret the Sherman anti-trust law in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, the supreme court of the United States was brought face to face again on this, the first day for argument of cases in the new term, with the self-same Sherman anti-trust law.

The Tobacco case was the last case decided at the preceding term of the court, ending May 29. The so-called "hard coal case," another governmental "trust busting suit," was found at the head of the list for consideration today.

The "hard coal case" originated in a dissolution suit begun in the United States circuit court for Eastern Pennsylvania against the principal railroads carrying anthracite coal and coal owning companies.

Conspiracy Alleged.

A general conspiracy to reduce competition in the transportation and sale of coal was charged, and in addition a number of special conspiracies by various groups of defendants were alleged. The lower court decided against the government on every point except that the Temple Iron company, of which the railroad defendants owned the stock, was held to be violative of the law. The government, however, was not content with the decree even in regard to the Temple Iron company, and so appealed the whole case to the supreme court. The railroads and the coal companies also appealed.

pleaded not guilty to an indictment brought by the Beltrami county grand jury charging that he had conspired with Mike Davis and Martin Behan to enter the Smyth store at Puposky and steal property of greater value than $25, under circumstances not amounting to burglary, but which constituted a gross misdemeanor. He was given the privilege of withdrawing his plea in this case and of filing a demurrer in view of his earlier conviction, and was allowed to furnish a personal bond of $1,000.

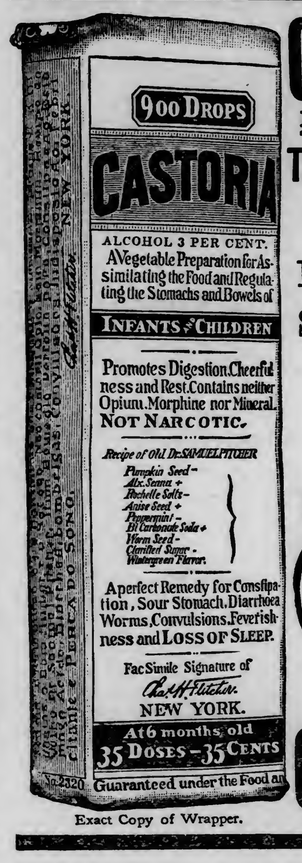

Dr. Dumas still faces the charge of conspiracy which has been lodged against him by the federal government, and which will be considered by the federal grand jury at the term to be held in Fergus Falls in November. The doctor has given a $10,000 bond for his appearance when wanted in this case, with his father and J. W. Johnson of Cass Lake as sureties.

The cost of an ad is the only charge to secure the advantages offered by the use of the facilities of this paper, which cost thousands of dollars.

A KANSAS SOCIETY NOTE.

Atchison Globe: The guests at Mrs. Arthur Mize's tea yesterday afternoon detected an odor of something burning. They looked at each other knowingly and said: "Poor Mrs. Mize, something is burning up in the kitchen." But the odor grew stronger and at last one woman said: "It smells as though feathers are burning." Then suddenly one woman screamed: "Mrs. Challis, look at your hat!" Sure enough, Mrs. Jim Challis, had been standing near a lighted candle and the aigrette on her hat was on fire.

The guests had a great time putting out the fire. The aigrette was what the insurance men call a total loss. An Atchison woman who has gone to thousands of receptions says the burning of the aigrette yesterday is the first time she ever knew anything to really happen at a reception. She had given up going because nothing ever happened, but now will start in over again.

BULLS MAKE BIG GAINS

Wheat Goes Higher In Nearly All Markets of World.

Report of Heavy Frosts in Argentine Republic Causes the Bulge.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 10.—Duluth December wheat closed today at a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. There were gains generally in the wheat markets of North America. Flax likewise closed at a bulge, October closing at $2.34½ and gaining 3½c; November closing $2.32½, gaining 4½c; and December at $2.28, being 4c up. Durum closed 1c up, oats ¾c up, rye and barley unchanged.

The bulls had things pretty much their own way up to noon today in the wheat pit, not only at Duluth, but at Chicago, Minneapolis, Winnipeg and other North American markets. In fact things were bullish in wheat in nearly all the markets of the world. There were higher cables from Liverpool during most of the market session in that city and both wheat and corn closed there at gains. The wheat was influenced mainly by the news of heavy frosts in Argentina, which, it was feared, caused great damage to the crop in that country. Unfavorable reports regarding the Russian crop also bulled the wheat and it closed on the Liverpool market at 5/4@1¼d higher.

Chicago made a high opening on receiving these cables, and so did Duluth, Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The American wheat markets were further bulled on the strength of the government crop report. This report showed the smallest spring wheat crop in Minnesota and North and South Dakota, taken together, in many years. The report gave the wheat crop of these three states at 142,584,000 bu, a decline of 34,000,000 bu from last year and 12,000,000 bu under the black rust year of 1904. The government crop report also showed a decline in the condition of corn, and this could not but help boost the price of wheat.

Duluth December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.07⅝ asked, opened today at $1.07⅞ bid, and rose almost steadily during the morning. About noon it was selling at $1.08⅛.

The flax market was also bullish. Yesterday a great deal of flax was sold, and the offerings, in consequence, were a great deal lighter today, while the demand was still brisk. Moreover, the weather forecast indicated a renewal of showery conditions in the American Northwest, and this encouraged the holders of flax to ask for more. They did and the price went up. Duluth October, which closed yesterday at $2.31 bid, opened today at $2.30, but by noon was bringing $2.34. November was up 4 cents, being quoted at $2.32 asked and December was up three and a half cents at $2.27½ asked.

WHEAT SITUATION.

The following general review of the wheat situation is published in the Commercial West, Minneapolis:

"The features of the wheat situation attracting most attention of late have been the continued rains throughout the Northwest and the very poor average quality of the wheat receipts. The weather today gives promise of improvement, but there is no prospect of any change in the quality of the wheat. The Canadian crop, although that is of only indirect interest or importance, is probably even poorer than that of Minnesota and North Dakota, as it was not only damaged by black rust and rains, as well as our own crop, but in addition it was hard hit by frosts, and, being later, will be more damaged by the wet weather. The short spring wheat crop, combined with the poor quality of a large percentage of it, is resulting in a strong demand for hard winter wheat, but owing to the short crop in the Southwest and to the demand from other directions, it is daily becoming harder to draw that wheat to this market. The shortage of the spring wheat crop in connection with its poor quality and the shortage in the hard winter wheat crop is developing a situation that is very bullish, though whether it will result in materially higher prices in the near future is problematical. There are other factors that must be considered. For example, the big red winter wheat crop and big stocks of red wheat in Chicago, which cause heaviness in that market; and the general depressed business situation throughout the country, and stock market conditions that almost resulted in a panic last week—these are factors that the wheat bull should not ignore. Then, too, the flour trade is dull, and as yet there is no prospect of its increasing much in excess of daily consumptive requirements.

"There is more reason to expect the heavy movement of spring wheat to continue during this month and next than there is to believe that it will fall off materially. In the last four days stocks of wheat in Minneapolis terminal elevators have increased 1,425,000 bus.

"Trade in the pit is very light and there is almost nothing doing outside of daily hedging sales of the elevator companies and the scalping operations of the floor traders. While sentiment is generally bullish considering the whole crop year, the market has hesitated during the last few days and some setback would not be surprising. In fact, it would be a good thing for the market as a whole if prices should break back to about the point from which they jumped on the day following the defeat of reciprocity in Canada. This would carry Minneapolis December back to $1.04 and Chicago December to 95½c."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Turns Upward on Strength of War Scare.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Uneasiness lest after all the Turco-Italian war may embroil other nations and seriously interfere with grain shipments from the Black Sea, gave the wheat market today an upward slant. Liverpool traders were reported to be excited over the situation, especially as the Europeans visible supply showed none too robust a total. Furthermore, the offerings from Russia were already light, and the crop outlook in that country growing worse rather than better. The United States government report, too, looked more bullish on close analysis, the yield in the three Northwest states being the smallest since 1900. Opening prices were ⅛c to ¾c higher. December started at 98c to 98¼c, a gain of ¼c to ⅝c and rose to 98¾c.

Heavy frost in the Argentine helped to bring about a future advance. The close was easy but ⅛c@⅝c net higher for December at 98¼c@98⅜c.

The Washington figures regarding corn made that cereal firm. The fact was particularly noticed that the losses were in the chief producing states. December opened ¼c to ⅛c up at 64¼c to 64⅜c and seemed inclined to hold within that range.

Buying here on the part of foreigners led to an additional rise. The close was steady with December ⅜c@¾c net higher at 64¾c@64¾c.

Oats received no strength from other grain. Cash houses were on the selling side. December started unchanged at 47⅝c and receded to 47⅜@47½c.

Provisions suffered from lack of support. First sales were 5c to 17½c lower, with January deliveries $15.20 to $15.30 for pork, $8.87½ for lard and $8.07½ to $8.10 for ribs.

STAGNATION IN STOCKS

Speculation at Low Ebb and New Influences Are Absent.

Buying Orders Uncovered on Decline and Close Is Steady.

New York, Oct. 10.—There were no changes of importance from yesterday's final prices in the opening transactions in stocks today. Variations of the active issues were confined to small fractions, about equally divided between gains and losses. Chicago, Great Western gained ½ and New Haven lost the same amount.

After a brief period of hesitation and receding prices the market began to rise in a more vigorous fashion, with a good demand for Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Atchison and United States Steel. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis moved up 2½ and General Electric and Texas company, 2.

Speculative interest in stocks was at a low ebb today, and in the absence of new influences, the market became stagnant. Atlantic Coast line lost 1¼ of yesterday's gain, American Beet Sugar lost about as much. Bonds were quiet, with some of the Southern issues reflecting the recent rise in the stocks.

While the Steel corporation's statement of unfilled tonnage for September was negatively favorable, it failed to stimulate any demand for that stock or excite interest elsewhere. Trading continued featureless, except for some slight activity in secondary industrials.

Some selling orders were distributed after 1 o'clock and all of the active issues gave way from ½ a point to a point below their high figures. United States Steel and Reading again relapsed to below yesterday's closing. Norfolk & Western was in demand and improved 2½ to 105½.

The market closed steady. Buying orders were uncovered at lower levels and the market stiffened. Reading and St. Paul rallied easily, but Union Pacific and United States Steel lagged. Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville & Nashville fell back several points when traders attempted to take profits.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 10.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade continues slow and all classes meet with light inquiry, but with settled weather dealers look for a good call for lagging horses. It is expected that light chunks in common classes will move slowly until the spring demand opens. Trade has an uneven tone and values have a downward tendency.

SMALL CHANGES IN COPPER VALUES

The Boston copper market did not have a large day's business. What there was rather favored the bulls, though there were no gains to make any great boast about. Coppers moved very much as did the New York list, fluctuating within a narrow range, and doing just a little better than yesterday.

Though there was little trading in the Boston copper market up to noon today, the values of the stocks were for the most part firm, and many of them showed gains. Those who held the stocks seemed inclined to keep them. Shorts were rather nervous, and appeared inclined to cover in anticipation of a rising market. The general stock market at New York, like the copper market at Boston, was dull but firm, with the general tendency rather bullish, though the transactions were m

DAY OF THE SAILING SCHOONER ON LAKE SUPERIOR IS PASSING

The days of the sailing schooner on Lake Superior are passing.

Modern steam vessels and huge bulk freighters have almost entirely supplanted the schooners, and at the present time the list of sail-rigged freighters has dwindled down to almost nothing. Local vesselmen regard the sailing schooner as a curiosity, and it has been a long time since one has visited this port.

There are, however, two sailing schooners actively engaged in the lumber trade on Lake Superior at the present time, and as far as is known these are the only two which do not depend upon tugs to tow them in and out of a harbor. They are the Cora A., owned by William Walsh of Chicago, and the Quickstep, owned by Capt. James Erickson of Milwaukee.

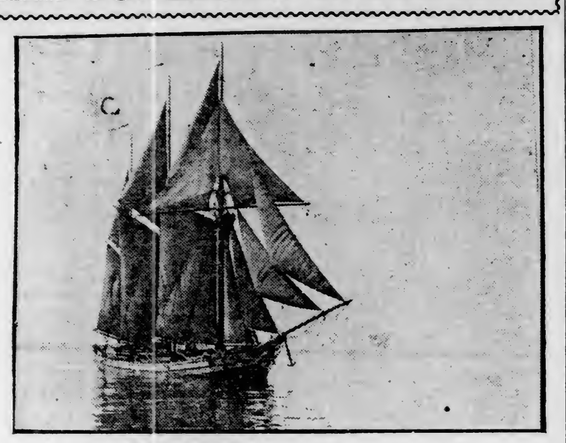

G. A. Taylor, junior engineer under J. H. Darling at the United States engineer's office in this city, while at Ontonagon with the government yacht Vidette a few days ago, photographed the boat shown above. It is through his courtesy that The Herald publishes them.

The Cora A has a capacity of 370 gross tons and her length is given as 146 and beam, 31. She was built in 1889. The Quickstep is an older craft and was constructed in 1874. Her capacity in gross tonnage is given as 282, her length, 141 and beam, 25.

The Quickstep and Cora A, carry cargoes of lumber from Ontonagon and other ports on the south shore to Fort William. The lumber is usually maple, which is much superior in quality to the Canadian product. It is used principally for flooring. Both boats have made several trips this season, unassisted by any towing agencies. It has not been unusual for them to make the round trip in a week.

"The men who man these schooners," said Mr. Taylor, "have sailing reduced to an exact science. There is no steam on the vessel, not even to handle the rigging, for this is operated by hand. The captain of the Cora A. informed me that last season he traveled something over 200 miles on Lake Michigan, averaging for that distance 11½ miles to the hour."

Sailing schooners, such as the Quickstep, reproduced above, are not as uncommon on Lake Michigan, as on Superior. There are one or two fleets in operation there yet, but the number gradually decreases every year.

INCREASE IN GRAIN RATE

Shippers Now Offering 1⅛ Cents for Tonnage to Buffalo.

Duluth grain shippers now offer 1⅛ cents for tonnage, an advance of ⅛ cent, but vesselmen are still holding off and the movement to Buffalo is not brisk.

The 5-cent rate between Buffalo and the seaboard will go into effect Nov. 1, which will mean an advance of 1 cent over the figure now quoted, and many shippers are anxious to get their grain down the lakes before the new rate will become effective.

TUG RESCUES THE DONALDSON

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a hard pull, the tug Schenck of the Great Lakes company finally has released the steamer James T. Donaldson, which went aground in a fog yesterday morning. The Donaldson carried a heavy load of coal and lost her course near Lime Island, where she became stuck in the mud.

TREASURER OF ANCHOR LINE VISITS DULUTH.

P. E. Perkins, treasurer of the Anchor line, and Mrs. Perkins of Philadelphia, arrived in Duluth yesterday on board the steamer Juniata. They will return to Buffalo, when the Juniata makes her round trip. Mr. Perkins was much impressed with Duluth and the possibilities of the city.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

The steamer Thomas Barlum, which had a slight accident in this port Sept. 28, went ashore while being towed down the Buffalo river. The parting of a towing line was responsible for the accident.

Coal still pours into Fort William faster than the docks can handle it and there is a delay of from ten to twenty days in getting unloaded and back to business.

The steamer Cheroke, recently purchased from Shannon & Carey of Saginaw from W. S. Brainerd of Toledo, has arrived in Detroit after a bad trip. The steamer caught afire twice on the way down, but the damage was slight.

The secretary of war has approved a modification of the United States harbor line in Niagara river near the Bedell ferry landing.

The steamer Northwest of the Northern Steamship company's fleet will probably not be rebuilt this winter. The boat was damaged by fire early in the season and officials of the company say that the underwriters have not as yet settled for the damages.

William G. Campbell, Lorain manager of the Great Lakes Towing company, who was suddenly taken ill with heart trouble last week in his office in Lorain, is expected to recover.

The passenger steamer Arrow of Sandusky will go to the Toledo shipyards for repairs after the close of the season.

PAYMASTER'S CLERK MISSING

"Considerable Shortage" in Navy Funds Reported By Wireless.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 10.—A wireless message from the flagship California of the Pacific squadron, received today, requests the Los Angeles police to hunt for Charles Aurelius Gibbons, paymaster's clerk of the flagship. The message reads:

"Clerk to paymaster wanted for considerable shortage in accounts of government funds."

According to the message, Gibbons left the flagship while it was anchored with other cruisers at Santa Monica two days ago.

WILL FLY IN DULUTH

Thomas McGoey Contracts to Make Flight From Ball Grounds.

"Smallest Field I Ever Flew From," Says Bird Man.

Duluth is promised its first aviation exhibition Sunday afternoon.

Thomas McGoey, the aviator who made two successful flights in Superior last Sunday afternoon, will fly at Athletic park Sunday between 2 and 5 p. m.

McGoey's work in Superior was classed as well nigh perfect by those who witnessed it. He made two flights, one for height and one for exhibition only. The flights were witnessed by a crowd of about 6,000 people.

Ever since last July F. G. Kenworthy, Mr. McGoey's manager, has been endeavoring to arrange a flight for Duluth, but has been unable to secure satisfactory grounds. He did not want to take the chance at Athletic park, which he considered too small. Yesterday, however, Mr. McGoey himself came to Duluth and personally inspected the field.

THOMAS McGOEY.

"It is small," said the aviator this morning, "but the field is very level and smooth. I can get away. Of that I feel certain. I will be taking a chance, for if I hit that fence, it will be flowers and slow music. There are also some houses and wires outside the grounds that are dangerous, but I am willing to take the chance, although it is the smallest field I ever flew from.

"I can fly from there in any kind of weather within reason. A stiff northeaster might worry me, but with a still day or a moderate west wind I'll get away, and once I get away, there will be no difficulty, whatever."

In addition to the flight, the Adams and Jefferson football teams will meet in a contest that will go a long way toward establishing the city championship. Each team has a tie game with the Fairmonts to its credit, and Sunday's game is in the nature of a decisive struggle. The game will be called at 2 o'clock. The flights are advertised to take place between 2 and 5 p. m., and whenever the aviator is ready, the football game will be stopped temporarily, and continued between his flights.

Big Cattle Concern Quits.

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 10.—The Conrad Circle Cattle company has voted to divide $100,000 of $150,000 in the treasury as dividends and to retire from the cattle business. The company owns large land areas in Canada and will retain them.

JAMES B. M'NAMARA FIRST TO BE TRIED FOR DYNAMITING BUILDING AND CAUSING NINETEEN DEATHS

Both Brothers Ready to Face Accusers in Court Room.

Refuse to Talk About Case, on Advice of Their Lawyers.

Difficulty in Securing Jury Is Expected By Officials.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 11.—James B. McNamara, the younger brother of John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, will be tried first for the murder of nineteen men in the explosion of the Los Angeles Times a year ago.

This announcement was made before the opening of court today by District Attorney Fredericks, who declared that should the defense exercise its privilege of having the brothers tried separately he elected to begin by placing James B. McNamara in the prisoner's box.

At 10 o'clock both John J. McNamara and his brother entered the room with Clarence Darrow, their chief counsel. Both men were smiling and shook hands with the many attorneys at the bar. The prisoners were without handcuffs as they entered the courtroom.

The brothers were handcuffed when they left the jail and during the walk across the street through the crowd to the court and into the hall of records.

Few to See Brothers.

Scores of photographers took snapshots, but few other persons gathered to see the men. They were accompanied by Jailor George Gallagher and an assistant, and were followed by seven deputy sheriffs.

Court convened at 10:15 o'clock, having been delayed in opening by the

CALL NO STRIKE IN DES MOINES

Union Officials Await Word From Third Arbitrator.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 11.—The threatened strike of street car employes has not yet materialized. Instead it was indefinitely postponed on order of the executive committee of the Carmen's union to give more time in which to locate G. S. Gilbertson, former state treasurer, who yesterday was appointed third member of the arbitration board.

A diligent search for Mr. Gilbertson, who was in Minnesota cities on private business, was kept up all day yesterday and last night, but to no avail. He was variously reported to be in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Red Lake Falls and other points. Whether he would accept the appointment as arbitrator was not known at an early hour today.

Just when another order to strike would be issued, or whether it would be issued at all, could not be ascertained.

FEARS PLAN OF ALDRICH

James J. Hill Talks at the Illinois Bankers' Meeting.

Also Points Out "Simple Remedy" for All Trust Evils.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 11.—The twenty-first annual convention of the Illinois Bankers' association opened here today. One thousand bankers, representing financial interests in every section of the state, were in attendance. The convention will devote itself to a study of proposed monetary legislation and agriculture. James J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railroad, delivered an address this afternoon before the assembly on "The Relationship of the Banker and Farmer."

Mr. Hill characterized as "uneconomic and therefore unsound" the business relations between the Central Reserve association and the United States government proposed by Former Senator Nelson A. Aldrich in his plan for currency reform submitted to the Federal Monetary commission, and urged the bankers of the country to perfect a plan that would be under their own control.

Mr. Hill, admitting at the outset that the "United States has the most inelastic currency system in the civilized world," declared that Mr. Aldrich and his associates had done a

WANT EXTRA SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Speaker Dunn Finds Sentiment of Legislators in Favor.

Governor Would Wait Until Rate Cases Are Decided.

Feeling That Decision Will Not Be Given in Time.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—That a concerted movemen will be started by well known men of the state to get an extra session of the legislature, is the assertion of H. H. Dunn, speaker of the house at the last session. Mr. Dunn had this to say before he left last night for the Lakes-to-the-Gulf deep waterway convention at Chicago.

It is known that the former speaker has talked to a number of legislators relative to the need of another meeting to pass an increased gross earnings tax bill, state-wide primary, initiative and referendum and a waterways bill, and has found considerable sentiment in favor of it.

Mr. Dunn met Lieutenant Governor Gordon at the Merchants hotel here yesterday, but the Browns Valley editor refused to commit himself. He declared he would have a signed statement ready for publication when the United States supreme court passed on the pending rate cases.

Mr. Dunn refused to say just how the matter will be presented to Governor Eberhart. Up to the present time the governor has persistently held that an extra session should not be called, maintaining that the time for it will have arrived when the rate cases are decided. Ralph Wheelock, his private secretary, has authorized the statement that if the cases are decided adversely to the people, the governor will consult well known men

WILSON GOES TO TALK TO BREWERS

Elaborate Preparations Made for Meeting in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson came to Chicago today to take part in the international brewers' exposition and congress, which will open tomorrow at the Coliseum.

The brewers worked to such good purpose that the show, the biggest of its kind ever held, was ready for the inspection of the public today. Ten million dollars' worth of brewing machinery was in place, and $500,000 worth of ornamentation had been set up to show the machinery off.

There are Norse pillars and posts and "trimmings" in the Coliseum proper, and a bierstube in the annex showing true Norse architectural treatment.

"Ideal Public House."

The beer, lemonades and sandwiches to be sold will be served only at tables in the bierstube. No whisky, gin, wines, cordials, or mixed drinks will be found.

According to the program, the bierstude is "to show what the management of the exposition holds should be the ideal public house and garden of the future."

Exhibits in the exposition come from the United States, Canada, Germany, France, Austria, Belgium, and Denmark. Perhaps the most interesting of all the exhibits is a $15,000 miniature brewery, in which every process of brewing will be shown, colored water serving as the liquid.

WU CHANG CAPTURED

Chinese Rebels Gain Important Victory Over Troops.

Special Cabinet Meeting Results From Anxiety at Pekin.

Hankow, China, Oct. 11.—The revolutionaries have won a notable victory, gaining possession of the city of Wu Chang after a battle with the loyal troops that began yesterday and continued until well into last night.

Up to today the foreign residents had not been molested. The revolutionary committee issued a proclamation exhorting its followers not to harm the citizens of other countries. The fact that the wishes of the committee have been respected thus far, while reassuring to other nations, is in itself a sinister sign of the government at Pekin, as it indicates that the rebellious movement is now thoroughly organized.

The fear of the officials now is that the disaffection between the troops will spread to this city, and every effort is being made to ward off this danger.

Five gunboats are now in the river, in readiness to protect Hankow should

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IS TURNED DOWN BY THE CALIFORNIA VOTERS

Initiative, Referendum and Recall Adopted By Big Vote.

Votes for Women Beaten By Not Over 8,000 Majority.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 11.—Woman suffrage has been defeated in California.

With all precincts counted, the majority in San Francisco against granting suffrage to women is 13,705, while in the state at large the majority in favor of granting suffrage to women will not exceed 8,000. The San Francisco vote complete is: In favor, 21,907; against, 35,612.

Returns this morning indicate that practically all of the other constitutional amendments voted upon yesterday have been carried, this including the recall, the initiative and referendum, and the proposition to make the state railroad commission an appointive board and empowering the legislature greatly to increase its powers. The recall provision includes the general offices.

Outside of the counties around San Francisco bay, the state apparently

HILL PREDICTS MUCH IDLENESS

Railroad Magnate Gives Interview on Business Conditions.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"There will be more idle men this winter than ever before," predicted James J. Hill last night, before leaving for Springfield, Ill., in discussing the condition of business over the country, and particularly in the West.

"This is the reason," continued the chairman of the Great Northern railroad: "Our capacity for production along industrial lines has grown faster than our consumption along the same lines. Some years ago the farmer had to raise enough to feed himself and another man in the cities; now he must raise enough for himself and for two other men, on account of the movement to industry rather than farms.

"Business is sound," he affirmed, "but no new enterprises are being started. The politicians and newspapers are to blame. There is too much political ghost-dancing. The people are not given the facts. There is uncertainty as to the future on this account, rather than on account of the supreme court decisions."

DIES ON EVE OF TAKING TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

ORRIN D. KINNEY.
(From a Photograph Taken Several Years Ago.)

Explosion Kills Two.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 11.—Two men were killed and five others were injured by the premature explosion of thirty pounds of dynamite today at Twenty-third and Wyandotte streets in this city where excavations for the new union station are being made.

O. D. KINNEY PASSES AWAY

Mine Owner and Banker Dies Suddenly at Home in Athens, Pa.

Former Resident of Duluth and Once Active in Politics.

Orrin D. Kinney, banker, mine-owner and well-known former resident of Duluth, died at 4 o'clock this morning at his home at Athens, Pa., where he had lived for the last five years.

The news, which was conveyed to Mr. Kinney's Duluth friends by a message to E. B. Hawkins, came as a distinct surprise. Mr. Hawkins had visited Mr. Kinney Sept. 22 and 23 and he was then in the best of health, apparently. He was making plans for a trip around the world this winter and was to have sailed from New York Oct. 21. The cause of death was not given in the message.

CLAPP DECIDES TO MEET TAFT

May Set the Pace for Minnesota Progressive Faction.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Moses E. Clapp has accepted the invitation of the Young Men's Republican club and will occupy a seat on the stage of the Minneapolis Auditorium on the occasion of President W. H. Taft's visit the evening of Oct. 24. Senator Clapp's reply was received yesterday. He spoke last Saturday at Luverne for Senator Robert La Follette, and will be the principal speaker at the La Follette rally at Rochester, Minn., Oct. 30. His acceptance of the Minneapolis invitation, it is said, will be a signal for the La Follette men to take part in a "respectful welcome to the president when he comes to Minnesota."

ASK PERRIN WHAT HE DID WITH FUNDS HE GOT OF STEPHENSON

Senate Committeemen Put Superior Man on Witness Stand.

Attorney Says He Gave $250 of $5,000 to R. J. Shields.

Blaine's Admissions Fail to Stop Inquiry Into Election.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 11.—Just what was done with the small sums of money paid out of Senator Stephenson's $107,793 campaign fund was inquired into today by the senatorial committee which is investigating charges of bribery in the senator's election.

S. L. Perrin, an attorney of Superior, Wis., as one of the workers distributed over the state in the primary campaign of 1908, told of spending $5,000. He testified that he paid $250 to R. J. Shields.

Shields, who also has been mentioned in the investigation of Senator William Lorimer, received in addition $470 from the Stephenson fund. He has been summoned to appear at this investigation.

Will Keep Up Probe.

Despite the testimony of J. J. Blaine, the state senator who brought the charges against Senator Stephenson, that he had no facts to substantiate them, Chairman Heyburn announced today that the investigation will proceed. About seventy-five more witnesses will be examined.

"We want to know more about the activities of Shields," said Chairman Heyburn. "Shields was given the money to promote the campaign. He was to talk to the voters and urge them to support Stephenson."

The witness said he was unable to say what Shields did with the money, as he gave no accounting.

Dissented as to Law.

Blaine in his testimony had said that under the Wisconsin law the giving of any money to an elector was illegal, whether the purpose of giving the money was lawful or not. This was one of the principles upon which he had based his charges. Chairman Heyburn said he dissented from that view, as it took away the rights of electors legally to participate in the selection of their representatives.

BOURNE URGES PRIMARY VOTE

Wants Presidential Primaries in All States Where It Is Possible.

Washington, Oct. 11.—"On behalf of Republicans who believe in direct primaries," Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., of Oregon, president of the National Republican Progressive league, today issued a letter asking that as far as possible every member of the party be given an opportunity to express his preference for candidates for president and vice president next year.

The senator's letter is addressed to the members of the Republican national committee, and requests that when the call for the national convention is issued next year, it shall contain a strong recommendation that in all states, wherever practicable, the state committee call presidential primaries at least thirty days prior to the national convention.

HIS VOTE WAS WORTH $1,000

That Is What Terrill Says He Was Told By Griffin.

McCormick Denies Peffers' Story in Lorimer Inquiry.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—State Representative Terrill testified before the United States senate committee that Former Representative John Griffin, a Democrat, told him (Terrill) that he could get $1,000 for Terrill's vote for Lorimer.

Former State Senator George M. McCormick of Alton, was the first witness called today. McCormick described his part in the 1909 deadlock at Springfield. He said he changed his vote from Hopkins to Lorimer on the ninety-fifth ballot. Previous to changing his vote, he said, he had told Former Governor Richard Yates, Mr. Lorimer and several other men that he would give his vote to the first Republican that had sufficient strength to break the deadlock.

Denied Peffers' Story.

Mr. McCormick denied flatly the story told yesterday by John M. Peffers, who said McCormick had been of-

Residents Claim the Present Building Is Greatly Overcrowded.

The agitation started last week at Smithville for a new school house has caused a similar movement in New Duluth. More room for the children will be asked by the Commercial club, according to the action taken at the club's meeting last evening. A committee consisting of Alderman Krueger, C. H. ### Remarkable Exhibit of What Port Wing Can Produce.

What can be done in the vicinity of Duluth in the way of vegetable and fruit growing is shown by a display in the window of the Pittsburgh Coal company on Superior street.

The display is made up of vegetables and fruit grown at Port Wing, on the south shore of the lake, and in the display are some of the finest specimens of apples, corn, potatoes and roots that can be grown in any part of the country. Many comments have been made on the display, which is doing a lot to show what can be grown in the vicinity of Duluth.

The south shore during recent years has been shown to be a great fruit belt. The lake tempers the north wind and early frosts that visit the north shore are not felt on the south shore.

MANY CITIZENS DO NOT WANT CHRISTIAN NATION

Power of Evil Forces in Community, Theme of Addresses.

Minneapolis Ministers Deliver Interesting Talks at Baptist Convention.

"Constructing a Christian Commonwealth" was the subject of two interesting addresses this morning at the session of the Minnesota Baptist State convention at the First Baptist church.

The subject was divided into two themes, Dr. L. A. Crandall of Minnesota taking, "The Principles" and Dr. F. Peterson, "The Materials."

In his talk on principles, Dr. Crandall upheld the principles of right living, right thought, right action, and right purpose.

He said in part:

"There are many people in the state of Minnesota who do not want a Christian Commonwealth. It is against their purpose, it is against their mode of living and it interferes with their business.

"There are such people in every community. You have them in Duluth, we have them in Minneapolis. You'll always find them pitted against the things that are right and the strength that they some times show is appalling.

"Their business is the destruction of human souls. They live upon the shame of others. It is their constant aim to drag down humanity rather than to give it the needed upward lift.

"They not only destroy their chances of salvation but they drag others with them. It is a greed for money and an easy existence that keeps them in power from year to year. It is because there is money in it. If there was nothing in it for them, the evils of today would be far less."

Here the speaker told the story of a young girl who was lured to a room in a certain part of the city of Minneapolis where the woman who lured her there brought about her ruin. "It was because there was money in it for the woman," said the speaker.

"A business man told me that a few days ago in Minneapolis he went to a city official and asked that the officer keep the vows he took when he went into office. He wanted a certain house cleaned out and the official laughed in his face. It was because there was money in it for that official that the law was not enforced.

"The saloonkeepers, the interests, the organized bodies of men and women who live on the destruction of others are the shame of our civic life.

Lust for Money.

"Oh! this lust for money! This mad scramble for wealth on the parts of all the people good and bad alike. In place of the worship of their God, they worship wealth. They long for it, crave it, fight for it and in between forget their worship of Him.

"The rush for money, wealth, power is not confined to one or more classes of people; it embraces them all. It is such thirst, there is such anxiety to gather in riches in money that it is hard for all of us to stand up against it. If there is $100,000 in sight and awaiting to be pulled down, it takes a deal of backbone to stand up and fight and win. We have got to apply our Christian principles and keep our hands off. The temptation is strong. It is a battle beween our better selves and the weaker. We must look to our God for helping when facing a crisis of this kind.

"Love plays a prominent part in the matter of principle. There must be love for principal; love of principle. Our lives must be so consumed with love for principle and our fellow men that it must become a passion. We must love our work, be wrapped up in.

"Thomas A. Edison has returned from his vacation. It was the first vacation he has had in twenty-four years. He was enthusiastic over his work. It is a passion burning within him for it that has made him the successful man that he is today. We must have the same passion for our work of constructing a Christian commonwealth in Minnesota. We must be so consumed and so enthusiastic and such untiring workers that the work will seem easy and a pleasure.

Love Sweetens Poverty.

"Now love sweetens poverty. I do not mean that poverty is a blessing. I have been in poverty all my life and I expect to be the rest of it and I've had a bully good time. Wealth does not involve happiness. It is not right that the rich should oppress the poor. But what I mean to say is that it is possible to be very happy though poor. I have had experience enough to show me that wealth does not bring happiness. I know of one very rich man who is not happy. He cannot solve the secret of it. I know a ver-- poor laboring man who is happy. He has studied it and solved it. The rich man has never had time.

"Love is great enough and strong enough to challenge the strongest of men and is so simple that it may be grasped by the most ignorant and weakest.

"Love can make the world what it ought to be. It is easy to talk about love but it is not such an easy thing to love. We must learn.

"Love is not complete without devotion. We must be devoted to the things that are highest if we are to build a Christian Commonwealth.

"For that purpose we need love, devotion, self sacrifice and other virtues instrumental in upbuilding and encouraging the things that are best and which contribute largely to true happiness and true lives, given to our work and the happiness of others as well as the true interest of building a Christian commonwealth."

The Materials.

Dr. Crandall was followed by Dr. F. Peterson who spoke on "The Materials."

Dr. Peterson said that in Minnesota there are the materials in the land and in the people. He told of the great size of the state and of its population. He stated that only one-third of the surface of the state has as yet been scratched. He told of the great strides in settling up the state and in the bringing in of settlers.

"We must more than tickle the surface, we must in a scientific manner farm the whole state," he said.

He told of the coming of those from foreign lands to farm here. "I have no time for those who believe that the country is going to ruin because the foreigner is allowed to come in," he said. We need them, every one. They are making our race better. They are bringing their vices but we must not overlook their virtues."

The speaker said that in Minnesota there are the materials in plenty for the upbuilding of a Christian commonwealth. He touched on the matter of divorces in the country and lamented the fact that there is a divorce out of every twelve marriages. He traced the averages up from a time twenty-five years ago and stated that if the average is maintained that in twenty-five years more, every other marriage will eventually result in a divorce.

CLEVER CROOK WORKS GRAIN MEN

A circular letter, warning grain dealers of an alleged swindling game, was received at the Board of Trade today, from J. W. Cook, secretary of the Denver Wholesale Hay and Grain Dealers' association. The letter is headed, "Grain Dealers, Beware!" and reads as follows:

"About Aug. 20, 1911, a party at Brigham City, Utah—by name Roy V. Smith (evidently assumed)—began to write to grain firms in Denver, offering various quantities of oats, barley and wheat, and, after considerable correspondence by letter and wire, sold to Denver grain dealers oats and barley.

"His letterheads on which he carried on his correspondence gave his business as an importer and breeder of Percheron stallions and mares, and about Aug. 30 he closed the several deals with the several grain dealers, and advised them that the cars would be loaded by the first of the following week.

"On Sept. 7 he came to Denver, and on that day and the next two succeeding days called on the various grain dealers, produced bills of lading apparently correct in every detail, but later on proved to be forgeries, and requested a part payment on each shipment to be made at once. Whenever check was given, he requested that the drawer of the check identify him at the bank, that he might obtain the cash, stating he was going East to purchase stallions, and that there was one for sale near Colorado Springs; that he was a stranger to the party having the horse for sale, and could not properly identify himself as the holder of a draft or cashier's check, and for that reason wanted the actual money to pay for the horse in case the purchase was made.

"This party was questioned very closely regarding several different matters, and was minutely familiar with every detail of the grain business, as also the produce business, and was well posted on the markets. He is about five feet five inches tall; weight, about 145 to 150 pounds; of light complexion, smooth face, with rather small, sharp features, and about thirty-two years of age. He wore clothes of rather poor texture, and his quiet and uneasy manner confirmed his story of a first transaction in shipping carload gain to market, the story told by him.

"However, we are of the opinion he is a grain man and is perfectly familiar with grain shipping, though his actions are apparently of the 'Farmer Style.'

"Keep a close lookout, as the deal may be tried in your city. A similar deal was pulled off at Portland, Oregon, last March, and, from all descriptions, was the same man.

"Denver and Portland dealers are out about $25,000.00."

SAVED BY NEIGHBOR

When Upham, N. D., Man's House Takes Fire.

Upham, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only the fact that a neighbor chanced to discover that his house was afire saved A. T. Lembgen of this place his life. He had arisen in the morning, starting a fire in the kitchen stove. Afterwards he returned to his bed and fell asleep, while the fire was in some manner communicated to the wall of the room. He was soon overcome by smoke, although evidently aroused before entirely bereft of power to move.

J. Nelson, a neighbor, had arisen earlier than usual and discovered the fire. When he arrived on the scene Lembgen was unconscious and it was only after hard work that he was able to effect a rescue.

BOY IS MISSING FOR THREE DAYS

Carl Linken Told Mother He Would Be Home Early Saturday Night.

Carl Linken, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Linken of 706 East Fifth street, has been missing from his home for three days. Last Saturday he was given permission to earn a little money by setting up pins in a local bowling alley. In the evening he went out for his supper and met his mother. The boy assured her that he would be home early. That was the last his parents have seen or heard of him. The police have been asked to aid in the search.

memorable work that "should be received with great respect," but that also should "be studied with great care."

Too Much Politics.

That political connection is inherent in the constitution of the proposed Reserve association was Mr. Hill's chief criticism of the Aldrich plan. In this connection Mr. Hill asserted that if currency reform was not carried through under leadership of bankers of the country, it would "be taken up by congress and suffer the same fate that has befallen every other great economic issue after it became the football of party politics."

Mr. Hill also made a plea for agricultural reform, declaring that unless this is done "the farm will fail and the foundation of all our prosperity be undermined."

"I want to make one earnest suggestion about this so-called Aldrich plan to the bankers of the country," said Mr. Hill. "Take it up for yourselves, perfect it by the light of your business experience and make it your own enterprise, under your own initiative and subject to your own control, instead of a creation of federal law. Shape your own association for yourselves, and ask congress for authority, under wise legislative regulations where such may be necessary, to do this thing, instead of surrendering your rights as well as your obligations for all time to a political power.

Task for Bankers.

"There is no part of the scheme outlined which you cannot plan and execute for yourselves better than any congress can do it for you. Your state associations and the American Bankers' association furnish all the necessary machinery.

"It is doubtful if any plan creating by law a centralized financial system can pass congress. At the best it must wait for years. Popular prejudice and our own history tell too strongly against it. But the associated banks are free to go ahead and adjust the details of their business in accordance with the workings of commercial evolution. Legal permission to do this would be less difficult to obtain, because the act would not be irrevocable, the organization would not be intrenched behind the law creating it, and the contemplated voluntary association would be and remain always subject to the supervision and open to check or modification by law if at any time this appeared advisable."

Monetary System Poor.

"Our monetary system has always been, and for more than a generation has been acknowledged by all well-informed persons to be profoundly unsatisfactory," Mr. Hill continued. "Yet little has been done to improve it. The initiative should be taken by the bankers. It is in a special sense their problem. They are more familiar with its difficulties and with the methods by which it must be solved than any others."

Mr. Hill told the bankers that the subject of his address was the bankers' relation to wealth production, exchange and distribution, and discussing the distribution of wealth, he commented upon the unsatisfactory business condition of the country, and declared that great business, particularly the railroad operations, were at a standstill because so many important business interests are either "under fire or apprehensive of assault."

"Nearly all the outcry and activity against corporate wealth," he asserted, "is for political effect rather than moral reform.

Real Remedy Simple.

"The proof of this," he said, "is the simplicity and effectiveness of the real remedy, which is not applied. It would be an easy matter to put an end to the abuses of both monopolies and trusts. Enforce the laws against those who break them, and the former will disappear. The trusts will vanish as soon as they are compelled to show that every dollar of their capital stock has been paid for in cash or property and labor at a fair valuation. Oblige every corporation to do this, under penalty of an assessment on stockholders to make good any deficiency in capital or surplus, or else a scaling down of capitalization to actual values, and the trusts would not long bother anybody. Many are less interested in restraining trade than in selling stocks and bonds not representing actual value received or used in their business.

Distribution by Taxation.

"Examine the political nostrums now most talked of as saviors of society, humane in intent though many of them be, and it will be found that they all involve the continued expenditure of large sums of money, to be collected by taxation. The men who pay these taxes are the holders of property. The men who vote these expenditures are the taxpayers plus that considerably more numerous body of electors who either pay no taxes or a share so inconsiderable that its increase or decrease is not felt. Hence a constantly increasing disposition in the nation and the states to change the distribution of wealth by legislation; taking it by enormous appropriations from those who have accumulated it and scattering it among those who have not.

"The end of such a system may be delayed, but it is not doubtful. Capital is exhausted and is not renewed. The motive vanishes. The public is educated to refuse work, to spend lavishly, to look to the state as the cow that can keep everybody supplied with all the milk he may want indefinitely. Labor suffers in the end, exactly as it does when its three meals per day are reduced to two or one. Activity slows down. The total amount of wealth in the country diminishes, both by removal to other communities where its security and its reward are greater and by the steady encroachment of consumption on production. National indigence approaches.

Bad For Nation.

"But perhaps the worst effect of all is seen in the deterioration of national character. As a people comes to believe that wealth may and should be distributed by state and opportunity of the individuals who create it, envy, greed, hatred, and every form of malice flourish, and may even ape the form of virtue. Materially and morally this substitution of man-made, arbitrary methods for the working of permanent natural forces working through well established economic law leads to national decay."

Speaking of the farm, Mr. Hill said that the main fact about that industry "is that it is producing today less than one-half of what it could be made to produce, without material additional outlay of capital or labor."

and if there is a feeling that the extra session should be called he will call it.

The United States supreme court, however, has postponed the hearing of the rate cases until Jan. 8 next, which would lead to the belief that a decision may not be handed down until late next spring or early in the summer—at a time when it would be almost impracticable to hold a special session. But why should an extra session depend upon the result of the rate cases? This question is asked by many who believe that the gross earnings tax should be raised, whether Judge Sanborn's decision is upheld or reversed.

the necessity arise. The foreign consuls have also telegraphed their governments asking that warships be sent to the scene.

Foreigners Neutral.

The foreign consuls at a conference today decided to comply with the Chinese requests that they employ foreign gunboats to prevent the revolutionaries from crossing the river to Hankow. The revolutionaries sent a circular note to the consuls asking that foreigners remain neutral and assuring them that they would not be harmed.

Cabinet Is Summoned.

Pekin, China, Oct. 11.—A special cabinet meeting was held this afternoon to consider the situation at Wu Chang.

The viceroy of Hu-Peh province, who escaped from Wu Chang and boarded a yacht in the river, reports that he was aware of the existence of an extensive revolutionary organization for several weeks past.

Last Monday he learned that an outbreak had been fixed for that midnight. He made thirty-two arrests and seized documents, proclamations, explosives and forged seals, along with papers which showed where revolutionaries intended to make Hu-Peh the base of operations, which were planned to envelop the Yang-Tse-Klang provinces.

voted strongly in favor of granting the ballot to women. In San Francisco, however, the vote was heavy against equal suffrage.

Extend Commission Powers.

The amendments providing for the extension of the powers of the state railroad commission over all public utilities and increasing its rate making powers were approved, as were the amendments providing for a divided session of the legislature, allowing counties to have freeholders' charters, fixing four years as the minimum period for the use of public text books, providing for the establishment of inferior courts and making the clerk of the supreme court an appointive office.

Only two provisions, both of lesser political importance, are in doubt. These are No. 19, relating to the issue of railroad passes to public officials, and No. 22, exempting certain property from taxation.

fered $2,500 for his, McCormick's, vote.

"I was offered nothing for my vote and was given nothing for it. I voted for Mr. Lorimer simply and solely to break the deadlock. I know of no corruption in that election," said McCormick.

New interest was attached to the second day's sitting today of the Lorimer investigation committee of the United States senate by the testimony expected to follow the introduction yesterday of several new names in connection with the charge that money was paid illegally to elect Senator Lorimer.

Told of "Weak Sisters."

John M. Peffers of Aurora, formerly secretary to United States Senator Albert J. Hopkins, in naming the four assemblymen, said his information was based only on suspicion, and his characterization of them and others under suspicion in his mind as "weak sisters" was expected to start a new line of inquiry. The attitude of the committee following the testimony gave the impression that every member of the legislature who voted for or against Lorimer would be called.

Two new witnesses, Representatives Louis Pierson of Wilmette and Richard P. Hagen of Chicago, were directed to be ready to testify today.

Named Them.

According to Peffers, "the weak sisters," as witnesses and Attorney Hanecy, counsel for Mr. Lorimer, termed them, were Former State Senator A. B. Downing of Dixon, Former Senator William Fieldstack of Chicago, Former Representative Carl S. Burgett of Newman, Former Representative Johnson Lawrence of Polo.

Of these four men, Peffers testified that all but Fieldstack were followers of Mr. Hopkins.

"For the last month of that 1909 deadlock," said Peffers, "the whole idea of the Hopkins campaign was to keep our men from being bought. I suspected several of the weak sisters in our camp. They were men that I thought could be improperly influenced."

He was born in Athens, Pa., where he lived for a number of years before coming west and to which town he returned to spend his declining years. When the Civil war broke out, he enlisted in the Army of the Potomac and served with a Pennsylvania regiment all through the war.

After the war, he studied law in Towanda and for nearly twenty years he practiced his profession in that town. He came West about 1883, going first to Minneapolis, where he resumed the practice of law, but about 1890, he came to Northern Minnesota and established a bank at Ely with Joseph Sellwood. He later established banks at Merritt and Virginia.

Soon after coming to Northern Minnesota, Mr. Kinney established a residence in Duluth, and although his interests were largely on the range, he continued to make his home here until he retired from active business and returned to Pennsylvania. With E. B. Hawkins he was largely interested in mining properties on the range. He made frequent visits to Duluth in the last five years, the last occasion being last spring.

Elected to Legislature.

In the early years of his residence here Mr. Kinney was prominent politically. In 1891 he was elected to the legislature from Ely, serving from this district with John D. Boyd of West Duluth and H. C. Kendall of Duluth. In 1894 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, but was defeated by Charles A. Towne.

Mr. Kinney did not again seek public office, but he always took an active interest in politics. He was a great admirer of Former President Roosevelt and his policies, and during the past few years has been a strong advocate of the principles enunciated by the Progressive Republicans.

Mr. Kinney's wife died about fifteen years ago. A stepdaughter, Mrs. Ahbe, lived with him at Athens.

E. B. Hawkins, who was Mr. Kinney's business partner for about twenty years, will leave this evening for Athens to attend the funeral, which will be held Friday.

Mr. Kinney had a host of warm friends in Duluth and on the iron ranges who will learn with deep regret of his sudden death. The photograph of Mr. Kinney reproduced with this article was taken in Duluth a number of years ago and the only one obtainable today. He removed his moustache several years ago and this made a considerable change in his appearance. He was a man of large physique, and his commanding figure always attracted attention. While in political life here he became noted as a vigorous and effective speaker and he took a leading position in the legislature during the term that he represented the Duluth district in the house.

JAMES B. McNAMARA FIRST TO BE TRIED

arrangements of seats. District attorney Fredericks and Clarence S. Darrow greeted one another and began allotting seats for assistants along the tables facing Judge Bordwell. Court was not convened until 10:46, and the defense at once announced its desire for separate trials for the brothers. The state elected to try James B. McNamara first, and the defense then moved for a change in the trial judge. Judge Bordwell, denying that he was prejudiced, promptly denied this action.

Ready for Trial.

In the subdued light of their cells in the county jail sat the two brothers—James B. and John J. McNamara—peering through a maze of iron bars at the building across the way, where today was to be begun the fight of the state of California to hold them responsible for the death of nineteen men in the explosion of the Los Angeles Times building on Oct. 1, 1910.

A severance of the case against the McNamaras, both of whom were indicted five months ago on twenty-one counts for murder, has been the announced desire of the defense, and the prosecution awaited the formal request in court today to that effect before disclosing which of the two brothers it had elected to try first.

Both Ready for Trial.

Neither of the brothers knew when he awakened today which the prosecution would summon. Since April 26 they have been confined in jail, but both reiterated today that they were ready for the trial. They sat in a corridor before a vase of flowers when the newspaper men saw them.

James B., the younger of two reclined coatless in an armchair. His was a lean figure with a sallow face and thin reddish mustache, in sharp contrast to his older and bulkier brother, John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

"Of course we are ready," said John J., as he pushed his fingers through thick locks of gray hair. "It does not matter who is tried first."

Advised Not to Talk.

Asked about the alleged evidence, he declared that on advice of counsel, they had been requested not to discuss the case.

"But," he said with a smile, "there are a great many things we could say. That will come up, however, at the trial. We expect it to be a long drawn-out affair, but we think we will win."

Counsel for both sides admitted today that the examination of witnesses and the taking of evidence would not be approached for some time. For today, therefore, little was anticipated besides the preliminary motions and perfunctory examination of the jurymen.

Jurors May Come Slowly.

Of the venire of 125 men, summoned on Monday, forty-seven names still remained, but it was considered not improbable that from these but few jurors will be obtained, and that another venire, and possibly a third, would be required from which to make a final selection.

The interval of time elapsing while the jurymen are being chosen will be used assiduously by subordinate counsel for both sides in completing their study of the case and in the preparation of correlative matter.

Spick and span on the eighth floor of the newly completed Hall of Records was the chamber where court was scheduled to convene today. The veneer of long tables for counsel shone brightly and the odor of varnish still filled the air.

Provision For Reporters.

Three score of desks for upwards of sixty newspapermen had been arranged behind the bar and here and there among them were scattered telegraph instruments equipped with noise-muffling devices. Black, upholstered seats for judge, jury and prisoner completed the finery of the court room. For the Hall of Records, surmounting a hill top that overlooks the city, the opening of the trial was virtually a legal "house warming."

PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND MELLIN'S FOOD

"I have been recommending Mellin's Food in quite a number of cases and find where it is used according to directions that it is always satisfactory. One thing I notice especially is that the Mellin's Food babies all seem to have good, hard, firm, healthy flesh—which is something you do not always find in manufactured foods."

"My husband is a physician and feels he has saved many a child's life by prescribing Mellin's Food. We first knew of its good qualities when our first child was fifteen months old. I weaned her and she began cutting her stomach teeth and had bowel trouble. We tried Mellin's Food. In a short time she began to gain and thrived from then on."

RODGERS FLIES TO KANSAS CITY

Is Nearly Half Through His Coast-to-Coast Flight.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 11.—C. P. Rodgers, sea-to-sea aviator, landed in Swope park here at 11:34 a. m., after flying 84 miles from Marshall, Mo., today in 3 hours and 10 minutes.

Reaching here he had covered 1,483 miles since leaving New York and was within a few hours' flight from the half-way point in his cross-continent journey.

Before settling to earth in the presence of several thousand persons at the park, nine miles from the business center, Rodgers circled above the city hall and down town streets. He also hovered above the livestock pavilion at the stock yards, where several thousand persons attending a stock show watched his flight.

When he landed at Marshall yesterday, Rodgers had exceeded the world's record for a cross-country aeroplane flight. The former world's record, 1,265 miles, was made by Harry Atwood in a recent flight from St. Louis to New York. Rodgers had flown 1,398 miles, according to railroad mileage. Rodgers will follow the southern route to the Pacific, thus avoiding the mountains.

WRIGHTS MAKING SOARING MACHINE

Hope to Solve Problem of Flying Without an Engine.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 11.—Wilbur Wright before leaving here last night for Dayton, Ohio, said his brother, Orville will not be here for the aviation meet next week, because he is experimenting at Kittyhawk, S. C., with the problem of soaring machines without motors.

"It is an entirely feasible idea, too," said Wright. "There is no reason why machines cannot be made to fly without motor power, the same as do some birds. Some of the larger birds, such as vultures, which travel great distances, are enabled to do so because they have the art of soaring for many miles without the use of any power."

METHODISTS PRAISE TAFT

Peace Treaties Are Subject of Resolution at Toronto.

Speaker Says Church Needs Clergy Who Are "Men First."

Toronto, Oct. 11.—"The act of President Taft in bringing forward the peace proposals between England and America, is one of the most courageous and magnificent attempts ever made by any statesman in the history of the world."

Shortly after this statement had been made to the Ecumenical Methodist conference by Alderman Snape of Liverpool, the delegates adopted a resolution indorsing the proposed arbitration treaty. The document was signed by Rev. Henry Haigh of Newcastle-On-Tyne, Eng., president of the conference, Justice McLean of Toronto, Bishop Earl Cranston of Washington, D. C., Bishop A. W. Wilson of Baltimore, and Bishop E. R. Hendrix of Kansas City.

Speaking on the subject, Dr. J. Scott Lidgett of London, Eng., editor of the Methodist Times said:

"The time is coming when everything which relates to the welfare of mankind will be considered by tribunals of peace and adjustment. Yet human nature must be transformed before we can have universal peace."

Men Before Clergymen.

Rev. S. D. Chown of Toronto, in discussing the "adaptation of the church to the needs of modern life," yesterday said:

"We need today spiritual leaders who are men first and clergymen afterward. We need in them perfect sincerity. The pulpit in some quarters is dry-rotting with homiletic exercises and languishing for the vital messages of the gospel. A parrot preacher is a parasite. The church must increase its activities in the direction of social service. The layman's function is to secure social justice. The preacher is but a voice crying in the wilderness, unless the laymen he represents combine to do business in the right spirit of the cross. The political economy of the iron heel is dominating our civilization and Christianity. Human creatures must be treated as if they had human natures."

Discussion during the afternoon developed that a number of delegates doubted the wisdom of the steps now being taken by the Canadian Methodist church, to form a union with Presbyterians and Congregationalists.

On International Peace.

The resolution adopted on international peace reads:

"We hail with pleasure and profound gratitude the deepening and growing spirit of good will and peace among the leading nations of Europe and America. The noble work of the Hague conference as promoted by the federal council of the churches of Christ in America, and the free church council in England, is already bearing fruit in the arbitration treaty which agrees to submit questions of national honor to the proper tribunal for arbitration. We heartily indorse this signal advance in the interest alike of peace and universal brotherhood. We strongly urge the Christian nations represented at the Ecumenical conference speedily to take the necessary executive action to consummate the arbitration treaty which has been signed by the representatives of Great Britain and America. By every proper means we will seek peace and promote, in His holy name, Who is the Prince of Peace."

LODGE "PAYS FOR CUPS FOR BABIES"

Charge Is Made Among Others Against Mrs. Emma Manchester.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charges of a sensational nature against Mrs. Emma B. Manchester, supreme guardian of the Forest Woodmen circle, a sister lodge of the Woodmen of the World, are contained in a document filed with the state insurance commissioner of Nebraska, seeking to oust her from office. The lodge, according to J. A. O. Preus, state insurance commissioner of Minnesota, has a large membership here, interested in the proceedings.

Among other things, it is charged that Mrs. Manchester has been in the habit of giving silver loving cups to babies named for her, and charging them up to the order.

"Mrs. Manchester, having been caught with the goods, as it were," the complaint alleges, "makes no attempt to deny or excuse, save with the placid announcement that they were irregular. * * * These cups costing the order on an average of $2.50 apiece, it might be a point of economy on the part of the order to buy them at wholesale."

Presents for Sisters.

The document further alleges that Mrs. Manchester bought silverware for presents to her sisters in New York and charged the articles up to the order; that she has kept her husband, A. L. Manchester of Wichita, Kan., on the pay roll ostensibly as state manager, at $150 to $180 a month; that she has misappropriated approximately $14,000 of the order's funds; that she caused $13,200 to be paid for the resignation of the supreme physician, and that she accepted applicants into the order over the objection of a former supreme physician. Summing up, the brief says:

"The members of this order should no longer be compelled to pay financially in order that Mrs. Manchester may profit by her office, and, in our opinion, the only hope for the future prosperity and progress of this order lies in the removal of Mrs. Manchester as supreme guardian, thereby removing also her band of interested friends by whose bad advice she has found herself in a position to be publicly held up to the pity of every honest and right-minded citizen whether a member of this order or not."

Commissioner Preus is closely watching the outcome of the charges.

BOY IS ACCUSED OF MURDERING SISTER.

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 11.—Charged with the murder of his 13-year-old sister Mary, Ernest Webb, aged 15, last night was locked in the county jail, one week after the alleged commission of the crime at his parents' home at New Found, near here. Mr. and Mrs. George Webb, the parents, are in the custody of a deputy sheriff at New Found, charged with being accessories before and after the fact.

The parents reported that the boy accidentally had shot his sister while playing with a shotgun, but it now is charged that the lad deliberately killed his sister.

EXPERTS TO TALK ON MILK

National and State Officials Will Address Medical Association.

Certified Milk for the Babies Advocated By Duluth Physicians.

The milk question will be thoroughly discussed at the meeting of the St. Louis County Medical association to be held at the Commercial club rooms tomorrow evening. All who may be interested in the subject are invited to attend.

Three of the most competent milk experts of the country will deliver the principal addresses and they will undoubtedly be able to give some interesting data and information on milk and the conditions surrounding its production and marketing. They will also be willing to answer any questions which may be asked them. The speakers will be Dr. F. B. Bothell of the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture, Dr. J. G. Winkler, head of the state dairy and food department, and Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health. All of these men have made a study of milk and have been actively engaged where they have had unlimited opportunities of observation.

The physicians are interested in securing the production of certified milk, which could be used as food for babies. It would be of a higher standard than required by the state regulations and put up under the most rigid sanitary conditions. They state that Duluth has several dairies of such high standard that they could very easily meet the requirements of certified milk. To pass the test milk must contain at least 3.5 per cent butterfat and less than 500,000 bacteria. Certified milk would contain more butterfat and far below that number of bacteria.

Souvenirs given free with every corset sold tomorrow. $1 gorsets at 69 cents, in all new fall styles, all sizes; 17 East Superior street. Luery & Co.

E. C. CONGDON IS RE-ELECTED

Again Heads Kitchi Gammi Club—T. F. Cole Only New Director.

E. C. Congdon was re-elected president of the Kitchi Gammi club at the annual meeting held last evening. F. W. Paine, W. W. Walker and George C. Stone were re-elected members of the board of directors. Seth Marshall retired from the board and Thomas F. Cole was elected. Mr. Paine, Mr. Walker and Mr. Cole were elected for three years each, and Mr. Stone for a one-year term.

The president and directors are elected by the club and the other officers are chosen by the directors at a meeting held shortly after the annual meeting. The retiring officers are Stephen H. Jones, vice president; F. W. Paine, secretary, and Seth Marshall, treasurer.

Reports of committees were heard last evening, in addition to the election of officers. The building committee reported that plans are being prepared and good progress is being made in arranging the preliminaries for the erection of the club's new home.

MICHIGAN PUZZLED OVER LEPER'S CASE

County and State Alike Lack Facilities to Care for Him.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 11.—What to do with Marilius Jenson, the Calumet leper, is puzzling the authorities of both this township and the state. Adequate facilities for his care are lacking here; the efforts of the state board of health to have him removed to a leper colony in some other state have failed, and the proposal to send him to the hospital at the University of Michigan is doubtful of acceptance on the part of the regents of the university.

At present Jenson is living in a house erected especially for him in a remote part of this district by the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, and his family are living in another house near him. However, Jenson does not like the idea of being so much alone, and his family, anticipating trouble with him, want him removed. The matter is now being considered by the state board of health.

INVITES ALL MINNESOTA TO INSPECT DIXIE.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a night letter containing 256 words, the chairman of the All-South Conference being held in Memphis, Tenn., has invited Governor Eberhart and all of Minnesota to come to Dixie and see the progress it has made. Speaking of the period between 1911 and 1915, the message says:

"The heart of the South is warm with national impulses, and it will gladly welcome the nation to any and all friendly scrutiny. Our conference is now in session and awaits with interest and with confidence the receipt of your assurances as chief executive of the state of Minnesota and speaking for the state of Minnesota in the course of the semi-centennial years 1911-15.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "The Spoilers."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

The dainty Duchess who appears in "The Spoilers," presented this week at the Lyceum theater by the Gus A. Forbes company, is one of the most amusing characters of the piece. Miss Jane Hampton plays the role with the right touch of comedy. The Duchess is a stranded Uncle Tom player. She blows into camp to the lawyer's office by a following of miners who await the securing of her divorce in order that they may propose to her en masse. The Duchess and her episodes provide a contrast to the struggle of the main characters.

"The Spoilers" is one of the most elaborate plays scenically that the Forbes company has presented. The first scene on ship board is a most realistic one and each act has an adequate and true setting. The play is a thrilling melodrama and hundreds of the readers of the novel have welcomed their well known characters in the life this week.

"The Spoilers" will be presented every evening this week except Friday and there will be a Saturday matinee. The first matinee of the week was presented this afternoon before a large audience.

Sixteen years ago Miss Jessie Millar, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week in the team of Albertus the First and Jessie Millar, was playing an engagement in Duluth as "The Phenomenal Girl Cornetist."

"It was up at the old pavilion at the head of the incline road," said Miss Millar in speaking of it last evening. "In those days I was traveling as a cornet soloist. I was only 12 years of age when I appeared in Duluth. As I remember, I played an engagement of ten weeks here that summer. The old pavilion used to draw enormous crowds in those days. It was about the only amusement resort Duluth boasted. I was sorry to hear, when I returned, that it had burned down. I was counting on visiting it again."

Miss Millar and her partner, and her young sister, who appears with her in the act, has just returned from a tour of the world, lasting three years. During their absence they visited Australia, South Africa and several European countries, playing several months in England.

At the age of 5 years, Vilmos Westony, who is creating such a sensation at the Empress this week, was playing a concert and from that time he devoted himself to music. A pupil of the Listz school, he studied the theory of music with Anton Dvorak, the eminent composer. Siegfried Wagner is his most intimate friend and through him he received an invitation to play for the great master's widow, Consima Wagner. For some time he was a guest at Bayreuth, the center of the whole musical world and has many interesting stories to tell of his delightful sojourn with the Wagner family. Past 70 years, Consima Wagner, daughter of Liszt, is still a fine pianist and many times have she and Westony played the Valkyrie music as a duet. Indeed it was she who gave Westony a true Wagnerian interpretation of the master's compositions and it is his proud boast that he was requested night after night to play for Frau Wagner and her friends.

Splendid for Old People

When the human system declines the accumulated poisons in the blood cause rheumatic pains in the joints, muscles and back. These warnings should be promply relieved and serious illness avoided by using the following prescription which shows wonderful results even after the first few doses. It will eventually restore physical vigor. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bed time. The bottle to be shaken each time." Any druggist has these ingredients or will quickly get them for you. Any one can mix them.

MORRISON COUNTY BANK CASES ARE POSTPONED.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 11.—Owing to the large calendar, both civil and criminal, that has engaged the attention of the district court at Little Falls for the past three weeks it has been found impossible to try the Bowlus and Royalton bank cases at this time and Judge Taylor entered an order setting the date for trial for Jan. 22, 1912, which will be an adjourned term of the September term.

There are two indictments against O. H. Havill, formerly of this city, wherein he is charged with receiving deposits in the Bowlus bank after knowing that institution to be insolvent.

Big Business Interests Are Waiting for Something to Turn Up.

George H. Ransom of New York city, a member of the Mercantile Association of New York and a member of the firm of George H. Ransom & Sons, a large wholesale firm, at the Spalding today expressed the opinon that business is not bad because there is a genuine cause for it but because of pessimistic sentiment alone.

Going further, Mr. Ransom said he believes business is quiet, or trade is lacking, simply because there is a disposition higher up to "wait and see just where we are at."

"In business circles in general there is a belief that some changes must be made in our American method of conducting big business," said Mr. Ransom. "The question is at the present time just what these changes will be. That is the largest contributing cause for the quietness in business.

Effect of Sentiment.

"Our volume of trade abroad is good. There are not many tangible causes for a lack of commercial activity. But sentiment counts for much in business as it does in love making. There is a pessimistic sentiment in big business circles; there is an uncertainty that the 'interests', so called, want to see cleared up.

"Often the pain is the worst just before it is relieved or entirely removed. The spirit of waiting is on us at the present time. We have been waiting for something to happen all fall, and some people are so pessimistic that they insist that we are going right on waiting until after the next presidential election.

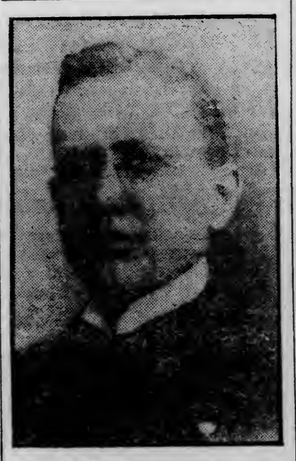

"There is nothing in the legitimate business situation that should cause industry to lag behind, in sullen silence, you might almost say. But as big business came into its first great activity with the wonderful prosperity that dawned upon us in 1896-7, when a general change was made in conducting our American ways of business, it may be that there is a general change taking place at the present time and that we are also making a general change in the method of carrying on the big business of the country.

"It is this change, this uncertainty as to the future that seems to cause a slackness in the general line of commercial activity. If this were removed, I believe business would be brisk. But this sentiment is with us and until some of the big men decide that they are sure of the future, when they decide that they know just how to conduct their business in the future, with reference to the attitude of the government on the trust question, it may remain quiet, with no real contributing cause at the bottom."

MET DULUTHIANS LIVING IN PARIS

State Senator Wallace o Minneapolis Returns From European Trip.

State Senator Carl L. Wallace of Minneapolis, probably the leading tax expert in the state, is in Duluth today on business. Senator Wallace has just returned from Europe, where he spent the summer partly for his health and partly on business. He studied the tax problems of various European countries and added greatly to his knowledge of that complex subject.

SENATOR CARL L. WALLACE.

He also completely recovered his health.

Senator Wallace has been a member of both houses and has made a good record. He was considered one of the strongest men in the upper house at the last session.

While in Paris, Senator Wallace met Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Viele, former Duluthians who are now living in the French metropolis.

FUNDS NEEDED TO EQUIP BUILDING

Salvation Army Starts Campaign to Meet Expense of Opening Industrial Home.

The Salvation Army is inaugurating a campaign for funds to meet the expense of repairing and equipping the building at Twelfth avenue west, which will be used as an industrial home.

Capt. H. Hollister Kline, manager of the Salvation Army Industrial Home at St. Paul, who explains from experience the good that can be accomplished by the utilization of waste and the furnishing of work to homeless men, came to Duluth to inaugurate the campaign. He and the members of the local corps will make a canvass of the city and they are hopeful of obtaining enough money for their purpose.

Waste paper, rags, old furniture, old clothing and other articles for which many people think there is no further use are made to provide revenue for the conduct of the Army work and to provide work for unfortunates, who are willing to work for their food and shelter and cannot find work in the ordinary channels. The Army has accomplished great good in this way in Duluth and other cities and the members of the Duluth corps are basing their plea for funds on that fact.

We have decided there must be some price so low, so very low, some fraction of the price others charge at which for cash the people of Duluth will come into our store during the next few days and select the most beautiful things we have, pay us the cash, and let us deliver the goods to them.

The following are merely samples of a few of the almost innumerable items which we are sacrificing to raise money.

GOVERNOR VISITS NORTHERN TOWNS

With State Auditor and Secretary of State Speaks at Spooner.

Spooner, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart delivered the dedicatory speech here last night at the formal opening of the new auditorium, which was the most notable event in this section since the great fire of Oct. 10, last year, when both Spooner and Baudette were wiped out. State Auditor Iverson, Secretary of State Schmahl and Albert Berg also spoke. After the speeches a sumptuous banquet was served at the Queen River hotel. The governor and party arrived here yesterday afternoon and expressed themselves as agreeably surprised by the advances made by the people who only a few days more than a year ago were left homeless by the great fire which swept through this vicinity.

Baudette Observes Anniversary.

The anniversary of the great fire was observed in Baudette Saturday by a mass meeting of all the citizens in the new Congregational church at 8 o'clock in the evening. The theme of the evening was "A Better Baudette and a Better Village." The speakers were C. R. Middleton, Prof. Cook and the Rev. Mr. Lofthouse of Rainy River.

The new edifice, which was constructed at a cost of $3,400 and has a seating capacity of 350, was crowded to the door with enthusiastic citizens who were overjoyed at having made the progress they have in the past year.

On Sunday the dedication of the new church building took place. The dedicatory address was delivered by Rev. Mr. R. J. Montgomery of Detroit, Minn. In the afternoon Albert Baldwin of Duluth, representing the State Congregational Brotherhood, gave a very interesting address to the men of the two villages.

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, COATED TONGUE, HEADACHE OR BAD STOMACH

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated and never know a miserable moment. ## NIELSEN-MARTIN.

Tenor May Sing Aria Frow New Opera at Concert.

Riccardo Martin, the greatest American tenor of the day, who will sing in Duluth Friday evening at the Lyceum theater with Alice Nielsen and her operatic company, will arrive in Duluth tomorrow.

Mr. Martin has obtained the right to sing the Dick Johnson aria from the new opera "The Girl of the Golden West" on the concert stage, and this is the first time that that right has been given to anyone to sing any of this opera in concert work. He has not used this piece yet but it is probably that he will sing it Friday night.

Luigi Cilla a member of the company who will sing Friday evening is also a singer of great ability. He is a native of Italy, born of a musical family and his musical education began when he was a child. At 16 years of age he was a member of a grand opera orchestra and with the money thus earned he started the vocal studies that were to fit him for the career of a grand opera tenor. After three years' work under the celebrated teacher, Francesco Codivilla of Lisbon, Portugal, he made his debut in Rio Janeiro at the Apollo theater, singing later at the Teatro Lirico. Luigi Cilla made his American debut in Cleveland with the International Grand Opera company appearing in the principal parts in Traviata, Lucia di Lammermoor, Carmen, Faust, Rigoletto, Cavalleria Rusticana and La Boheme. For the past season he was a member of the Boston Opera company.

One of the prettiest affairs of the season was the bridge party given yesterday afternoon at the Kitchi Gammi club by Mrs. F. E. Lindahl of 1530 East First street. Holden and Mrs. Charles Elston.

Again today Mrs. Lindahl was hostess at bridge at the same place and nine tables were used for the game.

RACINE WEDDING.

Reid-Bull Nuptials Notable Society Event.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 11.—One of the most brilliant and elaborate wedding ceremonies known in Racine occurred at noon Tuesday when Miss Jeannette Bull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Bull, was married to John Reid, Jr., of Yonkers, N. Y.

Bishop H. D. Robinson of Nevada, performed the ceremony and was assisted by Rev. Frederick S. Penfold. One thousand society people were present from Racine, and many other states.

The bride comes from one of the wealthiest families in the state and is widely known. Miss Lydia Croby Wallis of Racine, was the maid of honor and two of the bridesmaids were Miss Lila Ormond and Miss Katherine Colburn, of Boston.

BRAINERD MUSICAL CLUB.

Opening Program Was Notable Event.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 11.—The opening of the Brainerd Musical club, affiliated with the State Federation of Women's clubs, was an event. Mrs. Henry I. Cohen, the new president, in her welcoming address, gave a resume of the previous years and an inspiring picture for the future. The program which followed was in charge of Mrs. Henry I. Cohen and Past President Mrs. W. H. Gemmell. Mrs. Charles A. Weyerhaeuser and Miss Florence Millspaugh of Little Falls, strengthened the pleasing impression they had previously created. The first group of German songs, "Wanderer's Nachtlied," by Franz Peter Schubert; "Gute Nacht," by Robert Franz; and "Fuer Musik," by Robert Franz, were beautifully sung. In "Mein Schaetzelein," by Max Reger; "Allerseelen," by Richard Strauss; and "Neiken," by Felix Weingurtner, Mrs. Weyerhaeuser gave an artistic interpretation of the modern German song.

In the English group "Beware of the Hawk, My Boy," from Natoma by Victor Herbert; "Damon," by Max Stange; and "Time Enough," by Ethelbert Nevin, Mrs. Weyerhaeuser gave full scope to her clear, powerful voice. Her last selection, "Speak Love," by Arditi, was well closen for the close of the program and left a beautiful impression. Miss Florence Millspaugh proved herself a most charming and sympathetic accompanist. In her solo work she delighted the audience by her rendition of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique," skillfully bringing out its clinging sadness. Her interpretation of Grieg in the "Minuette" and "Ich Liebe Dich" were pleasing. Mrs. C. K. Burnett of Brainerd gave two charming recitations. A social hour followed during which dainty refreshments were served by the house committee, Mrs. N. H. Ingersoll, Mrs. F. W. Wieland and Mrs. C. B. White.

Clan Stewart Dance.

David Ericson Paintings on Exhibition in Duluth

David Ericson has a new collection of paintings on exhibition at Edwards' art store, at 12 Second avenue west for two weeks, which will interest the public.

This Duluth artist who has gained fame both here and abroad always has such an interesting collection that his exhibitions are eagerly attended. He has many very new works in his present showing and some of the beautiful ones which he has shown before are greeted as old friends by visitors to the store.

"The Harp of the Winds" is his largest picture.

It shows a row of tall leafless elms on a snow covered space by the side of a stream in the foreground with a far-away background of trees. The sky has a rosy tint which is reflected on the snow and the atmosphere is misty but the work is distinguished for its marvelous perpective and the feeling of the air moving about the tall tree trunks.

"A breezy Day" is another of his new pictures showing tall birches and a background of autumnal colorings with a deep blue sky but the atmosphere of the picture is of a breezy fall day.

Another "A Late Afternoon" is an autumn picture of landscape with a glorious rose tinted cloud coming up over the horizon. This is painted with a delicate touch and is much on the style of a Corot.

A little picture of a small group of sheep coming through a group of pine trees with the sun shining down on them is another which will be a general favorite. Mr. Erickson's sheep pictures are very well known here. In this one the sunlight showing through the pines with its red bold glint is especially attractive.

Another picture of a quaint little village street painted by Mr. Erickson a short distance from his studio in a village in France is interesting. It shows quaint little shops and in the foreground a little fisher girl with her basket on her arm is walking down the street.

Mr. Erickson has also painted a picture of an Italian peasant trudging up a hill, barefooted, with a bag of meal on her shoulders and a long crooked staff in her hands. The patience and care expressed in the face are splendid. The figure is in shadow in the foreground with a background of sunlight.

There are several other autumn pictures with the rich wonderful coloring of nature at this season, beautiful rose tinted clouds, glorious golds and rose shades of sunlight which are very different from most of Mr. Erickson's paintings which he has displayed formerly. His moonlight pictures have been so well received, but these brighter ones are as interesting and as attractive.

Still another picture which is perhaps more valuable than any except the "Harp of the Winds" is a scene in Paris of a bridge and the river showing the barges and boats with lights, the lighter vehicles crossing the crowded bridge, the lighted windows and balconies of the buildings along the left bank and a woody bank on the right near the Louvre. This too, as in the "Harp of the Winds," has the same prospective and feeling of the air and movement which is felt in the large salon picture.

The exhibition will be open for two weeks to all who are interested in seeing the pictures.

THE EVENING STORY

His Heroic Rescue

By Belle Maniates.

Kenneth Hawkins of the life saving crew stood disconsolately on the pier looking into the still deep waters of the lake. It was the spring of the year, and Kenneth's fancy turned, though not lightly to the thoughts of love.

They had turned thenceward for some time—in fact ever since he had met Laura Manson last winter. He had always been equal to every occasion heretofore, but now whenever he was in Laura's presence, his hands and feet seemed in the way, and an impediment came into his speech and he fet painfully self-conscious.

He was making no headway in his wooing. Only tonight Sherwin Tarr would be taking her to the party. He felt that he must do something desperate and do it soon to bring himself favorably and wholly into the limelight to attract Laura.

If he could only save a life! But everyone seemed to keep away from the big lake and it was yet too early for the bathing resorts. With a sigh Kenneth looked up the street that came to a sharp incline down to the lake. On one memorable night, Laura on her way home from the office where she was employed as a stenographer, had come down this street to the pier to watch the sun glints on the water. He always looked for her second coming.

No such vision as Laura met his eyes now; only a small boy whistling shrilly as he carelessly propelled a baby carriage, came down the street.

Suddenly the warning clang of fire engines was heard. The small boy turned to view the hook and ladder outfit as it passed on the street above.

In the excitement he released his hold on the handle of the baby carriage, which shot down the hill, passed the life saver and went into the lake.

Kenneth made a swift plunge and came to the surface, bearing the carriage with contents intact. A man he knew came running up to him and took the dripping contents from the carriage.

"Look what you have saved, Kenneth!" he said with a grin. The hero's language showed no regard for the lad's tender years, for he had saved—a bundle of washing.

"Ma'll lick me!" sobbed the boy.

Well, she ought to," growled Kenneth, shaking himself like a big water dog.

"I couldn't help it," whined the lad. "And Miss Manson will take her wash away from us now. She wanted that dress for the party tonight sure."

"Don't cry," said Kenneth in tender tones. "Here's a dime for you to get ice cream soda with." The boy looked up in astonishment and his tears ceased to flow at the change of tone and front.

"What Miss Manson were you taking the washing to?" inquired the lifesaver interestedly. "Where does she live?"

"She's Miss Laura Manson, she boards to her aunt's three blocks up this next street. I'll have to go and tell her before I go home."

"I know her," said the big man kindly, "and I'll go with you and explain to her that you were in no way to blame—that it was an accident."

"Oh, bully," ejaculated the boy gratefully.

His spirits became ebullient in the reaction from this first consternation, and he began to find solace in the humor of the situation.

"Gee!" he said grinning, "I bet you thought it was a baby in this here carriage."

"I sure did," laughed the man.

"You made an orful quick leap," continued the boy admiringly, "and you fetched it out right side up with keer all right—all right."

Laura Manson responded to the knock at her aunt's door. Her surprise was evident on beholding her dripping wooer and the excited young son of her washerwoman. Then her eyes fell on her soaked garments.

"Oh," she cried in dismay. "What has happened? What did you do to my clothes, Sammy?"

"Don't scold him," interrupted Kenneth, driven to championship by gratitude for this opportunity of feasting his eyes on her daintiness and dimples. "He couldn't help it. He came down that steep hill and the carriage got away from him and went into the lake."

"Yes, an' he——" explained Sammy, moved to eloquence by the admiration of his hero, "thought it was a baby inside the kerridge, and he jumped right in after it and brought it up in a jiffy right side up, and he gimme a dime and brung me here to tell you how your clothes come to be wet and ——." Laura looked at the life saver with a glance of admiration, equal to Sammy's.

"It must be grand to be always ready and able to save lives, but," in voice of concern, "you're dripping wet. Come right into the kitchen and get dry."

In spite of Kenneth's protests that he was used to being wet and cold she seated him by the kitchen stove and brought him a cup of warm tea.

"You are not going out of here until you are dry," she declared. "Sammy, you know where the cooky jar is."

Straightaway the little kitchen became Paradise to Kenneth, and the cup of tea the most delectable of nectars.

"It was kind of you to come to explain for Sammy," she said.

Either the hot steam took the tangles out of Kenneth's tongue, or else the intimacy of the kitchen in such cozy contrast to the front parlor freed him from his self-consciousness.

"I didn't do it for Sammy," he blurted frankly. "I was glad of an excuse to come and see you."

"Say," cried Sammy coming from the pantry, where he had crammed himself full of cookies. "Shall I take the clothes home again for ma to do?"

"No, Sammy, they are clean. I'll just rinse them out and iron them and you needn't bother your mother by telling her a word about it."

"Yer a peach," praised Sammy, "but, say, ye can't go to the party."

"Oh, yes I can. I can dry the dress by the fire here and iron it out."

"It'll be damp," expostulated Kenneth, "and you will take cold. You had better send word to Sherwin that you can't go."

"Sherwin isn't going," she said demuredly. "He had to go out of town today. I am going with uncle and aunt."

"Won't you go with me?" asked Kenneth boldly.

"Why, yes," she accepted, "but," with a shy glance, "aren't you afraid I will take cold?"

"Ef yer do yer can take perrygoric," said Sammy philosophically.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FAIR

The weather man's rain prediction for last night or today proved a poor guess. Not a drop of rain has fallen and the beautiful Indian summer weather continued. Communing with nature is a favorite pastime with those who have the time for communing on these fine October days. Continued fair weather is the prediction for tonight and tomorrow.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 6:21 and it will set at 5:29 this evening, giving eleven hours and eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The slight barometric depressions in the West and Southwest caused light to heavy precipitation over Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Michigan, the Eastern Lake region, Atlantic and Gulf states during Tuesday or last night. Snow is falling this morning at Helena, Mont., and in the Yellowstone Park. Moderate temperatures are the rule to the eastward of the Rocky mountains. Clear weather prevails generally from Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Western Ontario southward to Mexico. At the Head of the Lakes no rainfall of importance is expected during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Oct. 11. — Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

Upper Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Thursday.

Montana — Unsettled tonight and Thursday with probably rain or snow in west portion.

Upper Lakes—Light to moderate variable winds. Fair weather tonight and Thursday.

WEST END CANDIDATE FOR ALDERMAN

Republicans Expected to Unite in Support of George M. Peterson.

At a meeting to be held this evening at John Mohr's store, 2023 West Superior street, the Republicans of the West end will probably settle on a candidate for alderman from the Seventh ward.

Peterson, secretary of the Duluth Grocer's association, is being boomed for the aldermanic position by the Republicans of the Seventh ward, and it is expected that he will receive the party approval this evening. Every precinct of the ward will be represented and the boom will be officially launched.

The Republicans are determined that their candidate should be elected to the city council and are therefore planning to pick the strongest man for their representative. It is the belief of a large number of West end Republicans that Mr. Peterson is the best man for the position and if he accepts the party's approval will have no opposition at the primaries.

Mr. Peterson said last evening that if he receives the proper support at the meeting tonight he will file for the nomination. Mr. Peterson is well known in the city.

TO GET RID OF RHEUMATISM

If we suffer with Rheumatism and desire to get rid of it we must make up our minds to subject our systems to the proper course of treatment for a while. The only way to cure oneself of Rheumatism is to remove the cause—expel the irritating uric acid from the blood; every other method of treatment has proved a failure. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. This medicine goes down into the circulation and expels every particle of the sour, inflammatory uric acid which is the one great cause of the disease. The cure can be greatly hastened by a little care and self denial by the patient. In the first place do not let anything interfere to prevent your taking S. S. S. regularly and according to directions; be guarded in your eating, because an attack of indigestion will always aggravate the symptoms of Rheumatism. Do not expose yourself to damp and inclement weather any more than is necessary. When S. S. S. has had time to rid the blood of the uric acid and strengthen the system, then these little restrictions can be left off. This simple course has cured many thousands of cases of Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free. S. S. S. is sold at drug stores.

CONFESSED MINNEAPOLIS FIREBUG IS ACQUITTED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 11.—Albert G. Smith, who is alleged to have confessed that he fired at least twenty sheds and buildings in Minneapolis in six weeks, was adjudged not guilty by a jury in the circuit court here late Tuesday. Smith contended, through his counsel, that if he confessed at all, it was under duress and that he was not responsible, since he was in deadly fear under alleged "third degree" inquisition. Police officials hold a statement, said to have been made by Smith immediately following his arrest, in which admission of guilt is alleged to have been made. The arrest of Smith, who came here from St. Cloud, Minn., was the climax of a series of fires, all presumably of incendiary origin.

Judge Gary stated that it was not until lately that the full number of the committee could be obtained, and that it would organize as soon as one of its members, who is away from home, returned.

BLAME IS DIVIDED IN NEENAH HORROR.

Neenah, Wis., Oct. 11.—That the fifteen persons who died as a result of the grade crossing horror of Sept. 24 came to their deaths as a result of the carelessness of Driver Peter Hanson, and that if the crossing had been properly guarded the accident would not have occurred, was the verdict of a jury in the inquest. The jury deliberated thirty minutes. The inquest was concluded and an investigation by the state railroad commission, in charge of Chairman Roemer, was held. The concrete result was that the commission will hasten its efforts to eliminate grade crossings in Wisconsin, which Chairman Roemer said is the ultimate purpose of the commission in dealing with this branch of the commission's work.

MISSION OF THE CHURCH

Rev. Loucks of Minneapolis Speaks on Need for Social Service.

Says It Would Attract the Laboring Man to Religion.

"To What Extent Should Social Service be a Function of the Church?" was the subject discussed by Rev. Loucks of the Fourth Baptist church of Minneapolis at last evening's meeting of the Baptist convention at the First church, Ninth avenue east and First street.

The speaker stated that it is his firm conviction that the failure of the church members to engage in social work is one of the real causes for the barrier between the laboring man and the church.

Rev. Loucks spoke instead of Dr. W. T. Stackhouse, who was to have given an address on the Laymen's Missionary movement, but who was delayed by illness.

Practical Aid.

The speaker said:

"Before we are going to interest men in the things which concern us, we must first interest ourselves in the things which concern them. In this day of industrial turmoil we must study the problem of wages, of environment, of living conditions, and the church must be prepared to give some form of practical aid. Why, our missionary brethren recognized these facts long ago and did not hesitate to make use of them. When they saw that thousands were indulging in practices which ruined, degraded, and dragged down, such as child marriage and opium smoking, they sent doctors and established hospitals in the foreign lands and by this means won their way into the lives and souls there."

Rev. Mr. Loucks pointed out the great diversity of opinion in the church regarding the place and importance of social work, some holding that Christ's mission on earth was a social one and the end of the church to bring about His kingdom on earth and others inclined to think there was no Biblical injunction for the church to engage in social work. "Even if it could be maintained that there is no positive statement in the Bible authorizing social service," said the speaker, "that would be no reason whatever why the church should not engage in it. There is no authority there for the establishment of a Sunday school, or the calling of a state convention, or the sending of a medical missionary. The vital question is: Is this something in which the spirit and teaching of Jesus Christ finds expression?

"The great mission of the church being to save the lost, anything which relegates this to the background ought not to be engaged in. Social service may be a great adjunct to leading people to Jesus Christ but life has its issues in the heart and unless hearts are right, people cannot be saved. The supreme need of the world today is for new hearts. The church should not be a social center but a soul-saving center.

"Since Christ would save not merely men's souls but the whole man, no form of social service is unworthy. As I have said the chief criticism that can be brought against those in social work is that they pursue it to the neglect of all else, so I can say that the chief fault of those in the church is that they come to feel that the only need of the world is to learn of Jesus Christ. It is this which has tended to create the barrier between the church and the working man."

CAMP DIGGLES IS ONE YEAR OLD

Anniversary Celebration Will Be Held By Spanish War Veterans.

Maj. A. M. Diggles camp of the Spanish war veterans, held its first meeting of the fall and winter series at Memorial hall in the courthouse last evening.

The camp has been organized about a year and last evening plans were made for a large anniversary celebration, the making of arrangements being placed in the hands of the executive committee. At that time it is the intention to ask the state commander and his staff to come from St. Paul.

Word has been received from Robert A. Elwood, chaplain-in-chief of the national organization, that he will be able to be in Duluth Nov. 7 or 8, coming here from North Dakota, where he will be engaged until Nov. 6. Chaplain Elwood has a wide reputation as a lecturer and the local camps will probably act together in bringing him here. The proceeds would be devoted towards sending as many delegates as possible to the national convention at Atlantic City next year.

The secretary was instructed to send notices to all members of the camp that action will be taken at the meeting next month towards changing the name of the camp to Camp C. G. Howard, in memory of the late commander, who was selected for that office when the camp was mustered in.

DULUTH MAN WILL IDENTIFY McGRAW

Roy Quigley, Spalding Hotel Clerk, to Figure in McNamara Trial.

Roy Quigley, Spalding hotel clerk, will be called upon to identify John McGraw and his signature on the local hotel register, during the McNamara trial in Los Angeles, now on. He will leave for the West as soon as the formal subpoena arrives and this is expected on any mail.

In July, 1910, John McGraw, one of the principals in the labor leader indictments, registered at the Spalding and Quigley was on duty. During McGraw's stay in Duluth, there was a bomb outrage reported in Superior and the Burns' Detective Agency alleges that McGraw had a hand in the crime. They now have possession of the register and Quigley will be asked to testify as to the identity of the accused.

The district attorney of Los Angeles has notified Mr. Quigley that he will be needed at the trial and several letters have passed between them.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CREDIT MEN

Good Progress Is Reported By Officers—R. W. Higgins New President.

At the annual meeting of the Duluth Association of Credit Men, held last evening at the Commercial club, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, R. W. Higgins; vice president, W. F. Arndt, and treasurer, J. H. Dight. These officials, constituting the executive committee, will appoint the secretary and the various standing committees. It has already been decided that the present secretary, N. S. Marshall, who has held the office about a year, will be chosen to succeed himself.

It was announced that Franklin H. Wentworth, secretary of the National Fire Underwriters' association, and secretary of the National Association of Credit Men, will be in Duluth on or about Jan. 31 next. They will address the association at a meeting to be held some evening at the Commercial club, on topics relating to insurance and fire protection, in which matters both are experts. The club will send out invitations to non-members to attend this gathering.

The secretary reported that the association now had a membership of fifty-six, showing an increase of six over a year ago.

WHITTIER IS LIKE PARENT

So Says Assistant Attorney General Weeks in an Opinion.

Reply Is Made to Questions Asked By Board of Control.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. Whittier of the state training school for boys at Red Wing, has authority to strap boys whenever needed, but excessive punishment will warrant his removal. Mr Whittier sustains the relation of that of a parent to a child rather than that of a warden or jailer to a prisoner.

Foregoing are two items in an opinion rendered by C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general, today to the state board of control. The board has asked him just how far it should go in considering evidence introduced by Attorney Sanborn in an effort to oust Whittier on charges preferred by Ralph Wheelock, private secretary to the governor.

Mr. Weeks also holds as follows:

"The fact that boys are in his care longer than boys are under a teacher in a public school, does not warrant the infliction of corporal punishment to a greater extent than inflicted on boys in public school."

Same as Parent.

"His power to discipline boys is no greater or no less than that of a parent so far as the infliction of force or violence on the person of an inmate is concerned.

"If Mr. Whittier or his employes habitually inflict excessive corporal punishment, he is to be held accountable therefor, although in inflicting such excessive punishment it was done in good faith and without malice. Such a finding of facts would support an order of ouster on the ground of incompetency.

"Mr. Whittier cannot be removed from office because the judgment of the board of control is that in some instances a lesser punishment should have been inflicted. Such would be substituting the judgment of the board for the rule of law, to the protection of which Mr. Whittier is entitled and by which his responsibility is to be measured.

"Mr. Whittier is not to be held responsible for an unlawful act committed by a subordinate without his knowledge or consent, unless it is apparent that his lack of knowledge resulted from incompetency to handle the management of the school.

Protect From Abuse.

"It is incumbent upon Mr. Whittier that he exercise extraordinary care and vigilance to protect children in his care from abuse.

"Witnesses who testified before the board of control should not be classified—that is, their testimony should not be weighed lightly merely because they formerly were inmates or employes of the training school."

In summing up an answer to one query, Mr. Weeks said:

"Public opinion is not a criterion, although a reflecting person will at once appreciate that public opinion is a potent factor in the formation of the standard we have given you—not the public opinion which is the result of heat engendered by the discussion of a particular case, but rather the public opinion which is the evolution of the gradual advancement of the standards of civilization through a series of years."

NEGRO BOY IS LYNCHED BY MOB

Meets Horrible Death for Assault on 11-Year-Old White Girl.

Greenville, S. C., Oct. 11.—Willis Jackson, a 17-year-old negro who assaulted an 11-year-old white girl at Honey Path yesterday morning, was hanged to a telephone pole by one foot last night and his body shot to pieces by a mob.

Following a sensational man-chase of more than 100 miles, a mob overpowered the sheriff and his deputies six miles north of Greenville late in the afternoon and secured the negro.

The negro, after committing the crime, was taken into custody by officers and spirited to Anderson by automobile. A mob followed closely, but on arriving at Anderson found that the negro had been taken to Greenville. Then followed a race across country between an automobile bearing deputies in charge of the negro, and scores of machines filled by the mob.

Fearful lest the jail here would not withstand attack from a mob, the prisoner was hurried toward Spartanburg. The machine bearing the negro broke down after leaving this city, and the party concealed themselves in the woods. On returning to the city, the chauffeur who drove the party was seized by the mob and forced to lead them to the spot where the negro was concealed.

LUMBER MILLS WILL LIE IDLE

Coast Mountain Association Will Curtail Its Output.

Calgary, Oct. 11.—Far-reaching changes for western states and Canada have been decided upon at a conference held here by the members of the Coast Mountain Lumbermen's association. It was said the members have agreed that they will close a large number of their mills on both sides of the line this coming season, and in some of the mountain mills not a wheel will turn until 1913. Horses are to be sold off, camps will be abandoned and generally the lumber men will mark time for about a year.

The Canadian trade for the past year has been annoyed by the encroachment of the American mills. It was decided at a meeting held Saturday that the association would meet all cuts that the American lumbermen might make.

In the meantime an effort will be made to have the government put a duty on American lumber that will give them protection in the rough lines of lumber, in which they have to meet the keenest competition at present. Those in close touch with the lumber business say that there is not likely to be any advance in the prices of lumber until next spring at least.

FAVOR PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 11.—A presidential primary in Iowa next year is favored by a majority of the Republican leaders and editors, according to a poll being conducted by the Register and Leader of this city. Twenty-seven counties in the state have been heard from and in these the sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of the plan of naming the presidential nominee at the same time the delegates to then ational convention are selected, according to the Register and Leader.

Senator Albert B. Cummins has expressed himself as much pleased with the result. The senator left today for New York, whence he will depart by steamer for Panama. He expects to be on the isthmus for several weeks.

White Bread Eaters

Beri-beri! What's That?

A recent press dispatch from Paris to the New York American quotes Thomas A. Edison as saying, that in France:

"They (the French) do not unbalance the wheat for the sake of appearance but retain the gluten qualities in an extraordinary way. I think that most of the indigestion in America comes from the desire to make bread look pretty, and in so doing, unbalancing the wheat, taking from it qualities most essential to nutrition and health.

"It has been found in countries where that dreaded disease known as beri-beri flourishes (Beri-beri is a fatal disease attacking the nerves and nerve centers) that in the process of polishing and whitening rice, elements are taken from the food that, if allowed to remain and be fed to patients suffering from the disease, actually cures them."

In the making of white flour, the vital elements of the hard, outer coat of the wheat are "thrown away," because they darken the flour. Nerve starvation is a natural result.

No one can "beat" Old Mother Nature. She places in wheat and barley certain elements (Diastase, Potash, Lime, etc.) up under the outer shell. Diastase is the element which helps to transform or digest starch and make it useful for the body. The Potash goes to rebuild the gray matter in the nerve cells.

these brain-and nerve-building elements are purposely preserved, among them the valuable Phosphate of Potash, (grown in the grain) the essential tissue salt of all gray nerve matter.

Grape-Nuts contains all the meat of the wheat and barley from which it is made. A dish of Grape-Nuts and cream is the cereal part of the daily morning meal of hundreds of thousands of people all over the world.

CALL AN EXTRA SESSION!

There are evidences that the state administration is weakening in its stubborn opposition to an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of increasing the taxes paid by the railroads.

It is announced semi-officially, on behalf of Governor Eberhart, that if the supreme court decides the rate cases against the state, and he is convinced that the people want it, he will issue a call for an extra session.

This will not do. Something more is needed.

Yesterday the supreme court postponed the hearing on the Minnesota rate cases to Jan. 8. That means that the decision may be delayed until late in the spring and perhaps into early summer. There will still be time for an extra session of the legislature to get the measure increasing railroad taxes before the people at the November election; but it will have to be held in the midst of a presidential, state and legislative campaign, with politics and political considerations dominating every move of the legislature. There will be little chance, in such circumstances, for free and open-minded and independent action. Besides, it will be far more difficult for the members to attend a session in the late spring or summer than it will be in January or February.

No matter what the supreme court's ruling on the Sanborn decision may be, railroad property is grossly undertaxed in this state and the taxes upon it should be increased. There is other business which the legislature ought to do, also, which could be agreed upon at the opening of the session and put through with little delay. Waiting for the decision of the supreme court, now that the hearing has been postponed, would be fatal to the calm, cool deliberation that should prevail during the session, because that would hardly be possible in the midst of a hot political campaign.

The Herald, in urging the increase of railroad taxes, has been charged with doing it in a spirit of vindictiveness against the railroads for restoring the 3-cent passenger rates and the higher commodity rates. It has tried by all the means at its command to show that this is not the case; that railroad taxation should be on the same basis as the taxation of other property, regardless of what the rate situation may be. Yet in practically agreeing to call an extra session to increase railroad taxes if the Sanborn decision is upheld, the governor is proposing something which cannot be construed otherwise than as retaliatory.

The governor should call an extra session of the legislature without waiting for the outcome of the hearing in the supreme court, and he should call it for some date before spring. If he wants to be assured that the people want it, let him open his ears and listen. Let him watch the country press, which faithfully and without bias presents the sentiment of its patrons. With few exceptions the "country" newspapers of Minnesota have gone on record emphatically for the extra session.

All over the country legislatures have been holding extra sessions, and in not a single state was the need of it so great as it is in Minnesota. The governor must choose between meeting this need and thus doing the will of the people, and refusing to meet it and doing the will of the special interests which are opposed to an extra session of the legislature.

TRAVELING AT 18 CENTS A MILE.

Minnesota is in an uproar because the charge for railroad passenger travel in this state has been raised from 2 cents a mile to 3 cents. What would the average Minnesota citizen think of paying 18 cents a mile for traveling? And that, according to the New York Evening Post, is about what the average automobile-owner pays for riding in his machine.

While the rate seems high, probably not many automobile owners will be able successfully to dispute it, because not many of them keep such careful books on their pleasure as to enable them to do it. Very likely this is due, in part at least, to the fact that only a minority of them dare to calculate the cost of their automobiling. They know it is an extravagance to own an automobile, and if they really knew how much it is costing them for each mile of travel their consciences would be appalled.

If there are any local automobile owners who have kept careful account of the cost of their pleasure, it would be interesting to know how their figures square with those of the Post.

The Post's figures are based largely on some speculating recently done by the London Times, which started with the item of depreciation—something that some automobile-owners are inclined to overlook, though it is a very important item.

The Times came to the conclusion that between 15 and 20 per cent of the value of a new automobile ought to be written off as lost after the first day's run. Intrinsically, it finds, the car may be none the worse off and may be even better for a good shaking down of the machinery. But it is no longer a new car. It is second hand, and anybody who has ever tried to dispose of a second hand article knows what that means, whether it is an automobile or a dining room set.

Still, the Times would not mark anything more off the first year for depreciation. However, it would mark 15 per cent off of a $5,000 car at the beginning of the second year; a figure somewhat less than is customary on this side, where dealers take off about $1,000 a year on cars of the best American makes. In two and a half years, therefore, half the value of a $5,000 car should have disappeared; and of course this must be added to the cost of running the car. The Times works this out per mile per passenger, figuring it at 3 to 5 cents a mile; which is, of course, pure guesswork because no two owners use their cars to the same extent. However, the Times thinks this "a cost which cannot be considered excessive, considering the capabilities, comfort, convenience and rapidity of the modern motor-car." On the whole the Times figures the cost per mile per passenger for a first-class car ought to be about 12 cents a mile. The Evening Post thinks that in this country 17 or 18 cents would be much nearer the mark.

Which makes rather expensive traveling. However, the figure would vary so much between individuals that speculation about it isn't particularly impressive. Between two men owning the same style of car the difference might be 50 per cent in the cost per passenger per mile; not only because one may travel twice as far as the other, but because one may do his own driving and much of his own repairing while the other delegates all these expensive services to others.

A SCHEME WORTH TWO OF THAT.

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture says that the American public can deliver itself forever from the peril of high sugar prices by producing more beet sugar.

We think we know a scheme worth two of that: put sugar on the free list.

The tariff on sugar now costs the American people a couple of cents on every pound of it they buy. Taking the tariff off should reduce the price accordingly.

Beet sugar may be the solution; but it is very slow in coming, and besides the sugar trust seems to handle that kind, too. Taking the tariff off sugar would provide immediate and tangible relief to the consumer.

MAINE MAY BE DRY, AFTER ALL.

Though the official returns on their face showed a slight majority for the repeal of prohibition in Maine, it is stated now that proposed corrections in these returns, if allowed, will produce a substantial majority against repeal.

That will be rather a pity, because it makes this a drawn battle, with the whole ground to be gone over again. Prohibition hasn't prohibited in Maine except in rural sections that would be as dry as they are now under such a local option system as Minnesota now has. It hasn't worked in the cities, and the fact that the cities went strongly for repeal shows why: a majority of the people didn't want it to work. Now that they have gone on record to that effect enforcement of the law will be even laxer in these cities than it was before, because the officials who winked at violations will feel that they have the backing of the public.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY.

Reactionary statesmen and politicians, and other defenders of things as they are, now have another proposed reform to get indignant about.

This proposed reform is the presidential primary, which is being advocated in a number of Western states, and which ought to be put in effect in every state of the Union.

As it stands now, the people have little to say about who shall be nominated as presidential candidates. Directly they have nothing whatever to say. This is the case practically, though theoretically it is otherwise.

There are several candidates for presidential nominations in each of the old parties who could not possibly hope to get a nomination if the people voted on it, but who have strong hopes of being nominated because the people don't vote on it.

The presidential primary plan is very simple. The voters in each party select their delegates to the national conventions, and in selecting them they will be guided largely if not entirely by the choice the candidates announce themselves as favoring for the presidency. The issue would be clear-cut. A Republican voter wishing to see La Follette nominated for president would vote for the candidates for delegates to the national convention who announced themselves for La Follette; and a Republican voter preferring Taft would vote for the Taft candidates. A Democratic voter wishing to see Wilson nominated would vote for Wilson candidates for delegateship; and a Democratic voter preferring Harmon would vote for Harmon candidates. And then, in each party, the presidential candidate receiving the most votes would get the state delegation.

That plan gives the people a voice in nominating presidential candidates. The present convention plan does not.

Some time next spring the state central committees will announce the dates for state conventions to select delegates to the national conventions. Prior to these state conventions there will be county conventions to select delegates from each county to the state conventions. Prior to these county conventions there will be precinct caucuses to select delegates to the county conventions. Here, if anywhere, the individual voter gets his chance to pick the presidential candidates; and anybody who has had any experience with any part of this process will realize that it is a very slender chance.

Suppose a voter wants to register his choice at the caucus in his precinct. He finds out, if he can, where the caucus is to be held. He goes there during the hour that the vote is being taken, and he finds two sets of delegates in the field; though more often there will be but one. The men running on both these tickets are strangers. He doesn't know whether they are for his presidential candidate or for somebody else. Neither, perhaps, do they. If there is a contest, the issue is more likely to be over local party control than it is over the question whether Taft or La Follette, or Harmon or Wilson, are to be nominated. In short, the voter doesn't know how to express his choice, because there is no way to express it. The candidates for delegates to the county convention have been quietly picked in some back office, or perhaps in two back offices; and intentions as to presidential nominations are concealed.

Indirectly, the mass of public opinion has some influence on the presidential nominations. Directly, however, the individual voter has no power whatever. The presidential primary would give it to him.

WHY HE DOESN'T CARE.

A Minnesota exchange suggests that maybe the reason Governor Eberhart is not interested in the arrogance of the railroads in restoring the 3-cent passenger rate is that he buys mileage books and so travels for 2 cents a mile.

That may have something to do with it; but there's another plausible reason.

The governor does a good deal of his traveling in other states, and there, unlike Minnesota, the 2-cent rate still exists. In the Northwest, it is only in Minnesota that you must pay 3 cents a mile to ride on railroad trains. The moment you get outside the state you can begin to travel for 2 cents a mile, as you did in this state prior to July 1, when the railroads took advantage of the Sanborn decision to restore the old rates.

POTATO WAREHOUSE NOT A NECESSITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It was with interest that I read your editorial entitled, "Wealth in Potato Warehouse." I wish however to correct or perhaps take exception, would be the better term, to your statement that it is necessary for the grower to market his potatoes at this time or allow them to freeze and become worthless. Now I have been a farmer myself and know that a potato warehouse is no more necessary for preserving the potato crop than a public warming house for keeping the population of the farming community warm. All the farmer needs is his root cellar, basement or pit. There is no one who has any energy, but can make a root cellar or pit for his potatoes. For a farmer to sit down and let his potato crop freeze, because the price does not suit him, does not look thrifty to me. You can place in comparison or contrast the difference between potatoes placed in a warehouse and the pit or root cellar and you would be surprised to note how much inferior the warehouse stock is. The only advantage of the warehouse in a community is that it enables the farmer to get a warehouse certificate for the stock and get money enough on it to meet the pressing needs without putting on the market enough stock to glut it. It also assembles the stock, making it an object for buyers from various markets to bid.

Now another correction regarding the statement that in this section alone there is a large crop of potatoes. Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the West, there is a larger crop than ever known, and it is questionable in my mind whether or not it is sound judgment to advise the farmer to hold the entire crop until spring for a raise in the price. Seven or eight years ago, the writer bought several cars of potatoes at 20c to 25c delivered in Duluth. Three years ago the writer bought several cars in the spring of the year at 15c per bushel, sacked and delivered in Duluth. Today I saw three farmers and made each an offer of 50c per bushel for their potatoes but each one refused to sell. This is a good price and potatoes can be raised at a good profit at these figures. The articles appearing in the newspapers from time to time have given the farmer an idea that he can make his demand for a raise and the consumer will "Do it for Duluth," and pay the price. Too much advice is bad for the grower.

Yours,
A. FORMER FARMER.

HERE IS AN ANSWER TO "FATHER'S" QUESTION.

To The Editor of The Herald:

Answering the question of (Father who tends the furnace): Buy about five pounds of sheet zinc, either old or new, and two pounds of coarse salt, then build a good fire in the furnace, allow the coal to get well burnt to a red heat, then throw on about a pound of the zinc when well burnt off, throw on about a half pint of the coarse salt. Repeat until all is used up, you will find this a remedy for your furnace trouble. This same receipt will extinguish chimney fires.

A Pure Stock Law.

Collier's: People will always be on the sucker list—for "that list is made up of you and me," as the King of Gold Mine Promoters recently said. We can't keep our names off, and those names will be sold to every fake scheme and swindling promoter in the United States. Pretty books and warm-hearted letters will come to us by way of the postoffice. What, then, is the remedy, if the list itself is public property? At present the promoter is absolutely safe. As long as he avoids misstatements of existing facts, he can play the game right along, banking on human ignorance and human nature to bring him a percentage of buyers for his worthless stocks. He is as certain to win as any peddler whom the law would allow to go from door to door offering cocaine, morphine, or opium. Our laws forbid peddling such things. A qualified person—a doctor—must sign certain details before you can get the dangerous drugs. It is different with your savings and the peddling of dangerous and worthless stocks. There is no law. It has been urged that we enact a law—a Pure Stock Law—requiring a promoter to tell the ingredients in his stocks—how much capital has been paid in, how much earnings have been made, how large commissions are being paid out of the stockholders' money to fiscal agents, peddlers, and promoters. The government is to insist, not upon the accuracy of the statements, but upon their existence. If they prove false, the buyer will have his own remedy at common law. A former secretary to a president of the United States remembered that not a day passed at the White House without his mail bringing complaints from women, or other investors of small means, of swindling through the mails. What has been done in Kansas, in the administration of Governor Stubbs, to regulate the stock enterprises is worthy of serious study in other states.

Just a Sentimental Angora.

Youth's Companion: Mrs. Moriarity owns a goat, for which she has a warm affection. All the neighbors regard Nanny as quite as much a member of the Moriarity family as is Michael or Kathleen.

One fine morning Mrs. Riordan came running across the street with her shawl over her head and said: "Mrs. Moriarity, what is the matter wid Nanny? Is she sick. I seen her l'anin' agin the corner of the house, and she was lookin' ill!"

"The saints bless you, Mary Ann," replied Mrs. Moriarity, "Nanny ain't sick! She climbed up on the cintertable last night and ate the mistletoe, and it made her sintimental, that's all!"

The Tables Turned.

Tit-Bits: It was time for baby girl to be in bed, but no amount of coaxing could take her. At last father offered to lie on the bed till she fell asleep. Off she went "pick-a-pack," and the tired mother leaned back in her chair with a sigh of content ready for a hard earned rest.

Ten minutes—twenty—half an hour, and she was wondering when father would be down, when all at once she haerd a soft, stealthy "pit-a-pat." Nearer came the steps, and then a little, white-robed form with a tiny finger on her lip stood in the doorway.

"Hush, hush, muvver," she said. "I'se got farver to sleep."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Asking a Miracle.

Anoka Union: The Union is praying that Governor Eberhart be given sufficient backbone to remove some of the disturbing elements in his administration.

A Fight—Maybe.

Cambridge Independent-Press: Indications point to a lively congressional scrap in the Eighth district next year. Friends of Congressman Miller state that the congressman will seek a re-election, and on the other hand Miller's old enemies are doing everything in their power to bring out an opposition candidate. They are urging Senator Boyle of Eveleth to make the race and it would not be surprising if the senator came forward as the candidate of the Bede crowd. Mr. Boyle is a bright young lawyer and he would take some of the Miller strength with him right off the bat and a warm fight would be the result. So far Congressman Miller has kept from making any direct statement on the matter of his future candidacy and it is too far in advance to make a guess at the probable outcome, were Miller and Boyle to be pitted against each other in the next congressional campaign in this district.

No "Has-Beens" Need Apply.

Cambridge North Star: There has been a lot of small talk about congressman at large up to this time but no one has mentioned a man of the right size. No "has been" can come back in Minnesota. This is a progressive state in spite of some of the would-be political managers.

High Time, Indeed.

Hinckley Herald: With Minnesota under the special interests, brewery and Eberhart rule and the taxes mounting higher and higher until they are now the highest in forty years, don't you think it is getting about time for the voting public to agitate for fearless, clean minded and determined men who will declare their position and when put into office will carry out the wishes of the people who send them there?

Ticklish.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: The president's tariff board is running short of money and may have to go out of business. This leaves the president in the position of the man whose motorboat engine runs out of gasoline right when he is in the midst of strenuous rapids.

Spooner.

Redwood Falls Gazette: The Seventh has a man who would make some candidate in the at-large fight. He is not a has-been. He was passed middle age before he broke into politics and he has been there with both feet since then. Whatever may be said against L. C. Spooner of Morris, his bitterest enemy admits he is the biggest brained of the bunch. On a question of pure mentality Spooner has 'em all going. He is a courageous, dominant speaker, and while some of his official acts have been questioned there is no member of the legislature who has done more for his own district. In many ways he would make a strong candidate for this place.

Bad Company.

Willow River Farmer: Mr. High Cost of Living and Miss High Taxes seem to be keeping company, evidenced by the fact that the state tax levy for 1912 is the highest since 1873.

The Mother.

There is no height, no depth, that could set us part—
Body of mine and soul of mine, heart of my heart.

There is no sea so deep, no mountain
so high,
That I could not come to you if I heard you cry.

There is no hell so sunken, no heaven
so steep,
Where I should not seek you and find you and keep.

Now you are round and soft, and sweet as a rose;
Not a stain on my spotless one, white
as the snows.

If some day you came to me heavy with sin,
I, your mother, would run to the door and let you in.

I would wash you white again with my tears and grief.
Body of mine and soul of mine, till you found relief.

Though you had sinned all sins there are 'twixt east and west,
You should find my arms wide for you,
your head on my breast.

Child, if I were in heaven and you were in hell—
Angels white as my spotless one stumbled and fell—

I would leave the fields of God and Queen Mary's feet,
Straight to the heart of hell would go seeking my sweet.

God mayhap would turn Him at sound of the door;
"Who is it goes out from Me, to come back no more?"

Then the blessed Mary would say from her throne:
"Son, 'tis a mother goes to hell, seeking her own.

"Body of mine and soul of mine, born of me—
Thou who wert once little Jesus beside my knee—

"It is so that mothers are made: Thou
madest them so.
Body of mine and soul of mine, do I not know?"
—Katherine Tynan in McClure's.

William Gillette's Notes.

New York Sun: In the writing of his plays and the studying of characters for the stage William Gillette takes many and copious notes. All his life he has been given to this habit of taking notes.

One night when he played Dr. Watson to William Pinkerton, the famous detective, that he might absorb some sleuth local color for his Conan Doyle play, the real Sherlock Holmes, so far as Gillette was concerned, William Pinkerton said to him:

"You take so many notes I don't see how you cart them about, or find them when you want them for reference."

"I don't refer to them ever," replied Gillette. "You know I am hopelessly given over to the note habit. I take them in folios and scrolls; in black and white and red, with and without illustration and upon all sorts of material.

"I have stored tons of literature, with drawings and corrections all hurriedly jotted down, upon possessions various, cuffs, hat bands, envelopes, pass blanks, railroad schedules, maps, nice ivory bound annotation tablets, collars, gloves and newspaper margins.

"I never looked at one of them in my life, but I keep them with systematic splendor of fidelity, pay storage on them and am perfectly satisfied. If I took no notes I should always feel that something, character, detail or atmosphere, had been neglected in my work. Occasionally, if I can find them, they save a dispute."

The Unwise Samaritan.

Puck: A certain woman went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and it chanced that her gown was not fully buttoned up in the back.

Now, a priest and a Levite, meeting the woman and perceiving her plight, passed by on the other side, without saying a word.

But a certain Samaritan, journeying that way, was touched with compassion.

"Madam," quoth he, "your ha—hum——"

"Sir!" the woman thereupon exclaimed, and gave him a look which froze him on the spot.

Whence it appears that discretion is the better part of valor.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Mrs. Fineweather—Are you taking your husband abroad this year?

Mrs. Bonton—No. I decided last year when he insisted upon speaking of the Venetian gondolas as canal boats that the real charm of Europe is lost upon him.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Detroit Free Press: "I shall never ask him for his advice again."

"What's the matter?"

"He never thinks that what I have made up my mind to do is right.

Tit-Bits: He—I dreamed last night that your mother was ill.

She—Brute; I heard you laugh in your sleep.

Chicago Daily News: Visitor—Poor man! Have you been disappointed in love?

Hermit—No, lady—only in matrimony.

Puck: "By some she is considered the leading emotional actress of the day."

"And she has never married, you say?"

"A little, I believe—in amateur way."

Chicago Daily News: Delighted Mamma—Oo—professor, what do you think of little Arthur as a violinist?

Professor—I like the way he puts the fiddle back in the case.

Boston Transcript: Ethel—The professor says that my bathing suit is exiguous.

Alice—Is that a compliment?

Ethel—I don't know. There isn't a dictionary in the hotel.

Life: Miss Rocksey—But, papa, George is a hard-working young man.

Old Rocksey—That's it exactly. The man I wish you to marry must be able to make money without working.

Puck: Mrs. Idler—Let's see! Wasn't there some scandal concerning that Broadhead girl?

Mrs. Chatter—O, yes! Don't you recollect? She married for love!

Sphinx: He—Is Miss Smith in?
Maid—No, she's out.
He—Well, then, call Miss Smythe.
Maid—She's out, too.
He—I guess I'll sit by the fire and wait.
Maid—I'm sorry, but the fire is out.

Baltimore American: Mrs. Gaddy—There are some distinctions in life which are very puzzling to me.

Prof. Pundt—Like what, for instance?

Mrs. Gaddy—When you write everything bad and mean in a man's life in a book for everybody to read, it is biography, but when you just tell the same things to a few people on a front porch, it's gossip.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Father," said the beautiful daughter of the American millionaire, "I wish you would explain to me the difference between a baron and a baronet."

"I don't know exactly," he replied, "but if it's goin' to be more than $500,000 you can just make up your mind that you'll have to take the one that comes cheapest."

Chicago Tribune: Excited author (rushing behind the scenes)—Why are you cutting out the second and third acts of my play?

Manager—I am not cutting anything out; I'm merely varying the order of the acts. Several influential persons in the audience have asked me if it would not be possible to have the hero die in the next act.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Where a woman is so often right is never acting on judgment.

Some men can be good-natured about everything in the world except the wrong telephone number.

A woman has a bunch of children so that looking after her husband's comfort will be all the bigger job for her.

It's so easy for a girl to make her hair seem to curl that it would be mock modesty for her not to say it does it naturally.

A man doesn't worry so much about what's going to happen to him in the next world after he has been bumped and knocked around this one for about 50 years.

The Wickershamian Catalogue.

Springfield Republican: A book might be written on "The Indiscretions of Wickersham." He pre-dated the Ballinger memorandum and thereby embarrassed the administration beyond measure at a critical moment in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. He went to Chicago and read the insurgents completely out of the Republican party on the very evening when President Taft at Washington was pleading for party harmony. He hastily condemned Dr. Wiley and officially recommended his "condign punishment" by removal from office, only to have the president later on pronounce in favor of the doctor and commend him for excellent service. He went to some Western city and suggested government regulation of prices as the remedy for monopoly, only to have this sent to the scrap-heap of rejected cure-alls. Finally he talked volubly to a New York newspaper correspondent, who had traveled 800 miles to see him, about the prosecution of the big corporations at a time when near-panic conditions prevailed in the stock market, and then explained that he hadn't supposed he was talking for publication. If the book were published this week it would have a large sale.

The Matter With Them.

Chicago Record-Herald: "What Is the Matter With Our Public Schools?" is the title of a page article in the Sunday issue of the New York Times. We submitted it to a high school boy who shall for the present be nameless, and this is his answer:

"Too dog-gone many of them ain't got nobody that's heavy enough to play center."

"LET US ALONE."

Chicago Tribune: Reference was made some days ago to the present condition of the New York Sun. Any drastic liquidation on the stock exchange puts the Sun into a high fever, and now for days it has never once fallen below 103 degrees.

By way of relief two or three columns of the Sun's editorial page have been given daily to the impassioned protests of "Business Men" demanding a "Return to Sanity"—which, being interpreted, seems to mean to most of these excited citizens a repeal of the Sherman law, a reversal of the policy of regulation of railroads, hands off the sacred tariff, and all the other features of the Sun's and Wall street's simple formula for prosperity, "Let us alone."

A reading of these letters is an education. The Sun ought to reprint them as an appendix to a new volume of its editorials—not its innocuous "casual essays," but its real thunderings on behalf of the "Let us alone" doctrine. The view they give of a certain sort of mind is enlightening. The writers are, first of all, self-elected champions of Business, and their cry is: "Down with the politicians! What we want is an organization of Business men to manage government, and the keystone of that management shall be 'Let us alone.' What we want is a Great Man like Mark Hanna."

In none of these letters is there a suggestion that the "let us alone" regime had a defect. There is not a word of any of the business evils which the interstate commerce laws and the anti-trust laws were aimed to remedy. Any reader of these letters—or the Sun editorials—who was not acquainted with American conditions, would infer from them that a golden age of perfect business, economic, and social conditions had been insanely destroyed without shadow of excuse.

There is nothing to be done with minds in this state, except to note their existence. It is not necessary on behalf of real American business men to explain that the "let us alone" mind does not represent them. It was the real American business man who demanded the end of the curse of rebates, the regulation of common carriers in the general interest, and legislation to check the gravest evil which ever beset or ever will beset the commonwealth, the growth of gigantic aggregations of capital and the centralization of financial control utterly without check in the public interest.

The Sun and the little class it speaks for prate about "sanity" and appeal to business men to organize. Well, real business men are organized now, but not to march back to the days of "let us alone," to the days of bribed legislators, and bought senators, and watered stock loot, and thimble-rigging, and secret rebates. That may have been the golden age of prosperity, but real business men have come to understand that it came too high—for them. We do not know the temper of these men and we overestimate their patriotism if the Sun's furious little war cry of reaction will rally many of them to the Big Business banner.

Looking Ahead.

Collier's: In nine months much may happen, but in our opinion, as things are now, the strongest candidate the Democrats could nominate for president would be Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, and next to him Oscar Underwood of Alabama. The superstition against nominating a Southern man for the presidency has lived too long. Let it die.

GRAIN DEALERS OPPOSE FEDERAL INSPECTION.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11.—The Grain Dealers' National association was thrown into excitement last evening by a speech of United States Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, in the course of which he remarked that federal inspection of grain was sure to come. The convention immediately adopted a resolution declaring itself unalterably opposed to federal inspection. The matter of grain speculation and trading in futures was discussed during the afternoon, and uniformity in grading also came in for consideration.

NO SCARCITY OF JOBS NOW

Fall Orders for Men Are Beginning to Come In.

No longer is there a scarcity of jobs.

The big fall orders have begun to come in and Martin Cole, in charge of the local free employment bureau says that those now idle are idle from choice.

An order for fifty men came in this morning for railroad work and several others as large have been received during the past few days.

During the past week a great many men have been sent out for work on construction crews. The lumber companies are sending a few men to the woods. Prospects look good for a busy fall in and around Duluth.

ITALIAN ARMY FLEET SIGHTED

Turks Try in Vain to Recapture City of Tripoli.

London, Oct. 11.—A dispatch to Lloyds from Malta today says that an Italian army expedition of three battleships, a cruiser, eight torpedoboat destroyers and nineteen transports passed Malta this morning, going southeast.

Turks Attack Tripoli.

Tripoli, Oct. 11.—The Turks apparently do not intend to abandon Tripoli to the Italians without further determined resistance.

About 1 o'clock this morning a new force of about 3,000 Turkish troops, with field guns, was discovered advancing with the evident intention of recapturing the town. The Italian commandant, however, had an intimation that such an attempt probably would be made and the Turks were met with a heavy artillery and rifle fire, to which they replied with equal energy. It was moonlight and the fleet turned the searchlights on the contending forces. When the engagement was at its height, the battleships and cruisers joined in with their smaller batteries, directing the shells to cover the Italian front and flank. For more than an hour the firing on shore was continued, but around 2 o'clock it slackened and gradually ceased. The Turks retired, but in good order, although it is reported they suffered heavy losses.

Rhinelander Man Hurt.

Rhinelander, Wis., Oct. 11.—While walking on a windfall in the woods near here, Charles E. Merrill, aged 55, superintendent in the woods for the Wisconsin Veneer company, slipped on a windfall and a limb pierced his abdomen causing what may prove to be a fatal injury.

SURVEY OF MISSIONS

Annual Statement Is Made at Milwaukee Meeting.

Development in Foreign Countries Is Helping the Work.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 11.—"The annual survey of the missions," was presented at today's session of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, which is holding its annual meeting here, by Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., of Boston, the foreign secretary of the board.

After referring to the eight honored missionaries of the board who have died during the last year, Secretary Barton began his survey of the field with a review of the outstanding political events of the year; the revolution in Mexico, the difficulties of the new regime in administering the Turkish government, China's rapid step forward towards representative government and the change to republican government in Portuguese West Africa. All these changes, he affirmed, have made conditions for missionary work brighter. A larger religious liberty is looked for in Mexico with more emphasis put upon education. Liberty of the press, freedom of travel, and freedom of speech have been continued in Turkey, though under some perhaps necessary limitations. The rapid suppression of the opium trade and the advance of other reforms in China augur well for better conditions in that empire. And if the statement of Portuguese officials can be relied upon, missionary work in Portuguese Africa will receive more liberal consideration in the future, than in the past. The relations between the natives and the government in Natal have also been greatly improved under the new government there.

Readjustments in Fields.

Readjustments in mission fields and in other management become necessary from time to time. In the interest of missionary comity and efficiency, certain transfers of missions have been made or are contemplated. The mission at Guam has been passed over to the General Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of Indiana; negotiations are in progress with the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, with reference to passing over the American Board's work in Spain to them, as that body is especially well equipped for work in European countries. Certain changes in the Micronesian islands and in some parts of Turkish missions looking toward better cooperation with other missionary societies are still under consideration.

Secretary Barton reviewed the educational advance of the year. The sum of $1,000,000 has been received for the Higher Educational Endowment fund, whose goal is set at $2,000,000. The first institutions to receive its aid are those training young men for the ministry. The influence and power of education is deepening constantly throughout the East, especially in the training of girls. Industrial education is not being over pressed, but in some countries, like Africa, is of large importance.

Hear Missionaries.

Following the survey, four missionaries, representing as many of the board's missions, presented the challenge of progress in India, Turkey, Africa and China, and four others the challenge of need in these lands.

Against the stir of the new ambitions in India, the new liberty in Turkey, the development of Africa and the natives' part therein, and the astonishing advances in China, were set the urgent needs of more workers, better equipment and more compelling power.

The forenoon session closed with an address by Dr. Henry A. Stimson of New York bearing upon the annual survey.

EAST GRAND FORKS FACES LIVELY ELECTION.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Municipal Judge T. A. Sullivan is a candidate for re-election. W. J. Rasmussen is his opponent. The fact that Judge Sullivan has held the position sixteen years and that he has been the central figure in a local fight of several years' duration adds zest to the situation and will make the election one of the hottest.

TRUST ON THE DEFENSIVE

American Sugar Refining Company Denies Manipulating Price of Sugar.

Says Increase Is Due to Failure in European Beet Crop.

Local wholesalers have just received a circular letter from the American Sugar Refining company, giving reasons for the present high cost of sugar, and arguing that it is not due to any trust manipulation.

The company states that it refines 42 per cent of the sugar used in the United States. The crop just harvested in Cuba, according to the circular, shows a shortage of about 300,000 tons from the previous crop, a direct loss to the American supplies, as these sugars come to the United States almost exclusively.

Long continued heat and drought in Europe, the circular goes on to say, corresponding closely to the untoward summer weather conditions in this country, have so seriously impaired the growing beet sugar crops of France, Germany and Austria, that estimates indicate a reduction of 1,500,000 tons or more—over one-fifth—in the supplies of Europe.

This threatened scarcity, the letter says, has caused excessive speculation in Europe and has advanced the sugar prices at London and Hamburg—the leading sugar markets of the world—1¾ cents per pound since June 15, while growers of cane sugar, in the face of an anxious demand and a certain shortage in the beet product, have similarly advanced the price of their product over 2 cents per pound in the same period.

The American Sugar Refining company declares that it does not own an acre of cane-sugar land, nor produce a pound of raw sugar; that it depends for its supplies of raw sugar upon the growers of Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii, Java and other sugar countries; that it has, in common with all other refiners at home and abroad, been compelled to secure its supplies from these sources at constantly advancing prices; that on June 15 last raw sugar could be secured at 3.89 cents per pound, the corresponding price now being 5.96 cents per pound; that on the June date the American Sugar Refining company was selling granulated sugar at 4.90 cents per pound net, whereas its price since Sept. 11 has been 6.62 cents per pound net; and that during the rise its prices have been from ¼ to ⅜ cents per pound below the quotations of other refiners.

The circular states that the actual figures, showing the losses in the European sugar crop cannot be known before December or January, and that these losses may have been exaggerated; also that the domestic sugar crops promise good yields, and with their harvesting, which has already commenced and which will be in full progress in October, the present tension should disappear.

LET RAILWAYS HANDLE EXPRESS

Recommendation Is Made at State Commissioners' Meeting.

Washington, Oct. 11.—That the railways of the country take over the express companies' business, virtually was recommended yesterday to the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners in session here by the committee on express rates and express service. There was prolonged discussion of the committee's report, which was the only business before the convention yesterday.

"The express and railroad companies," said the report, "are engaged in performing a transportation service that one company could perform just as effectively if not more so. The fact is that the railways could probably assume the handling of both the heavier commodities and the lighter packages at a lower cost and with greater satisfaction than the express companies, to the public. Their present organization is nearly complete enough for this."

Objection to Adoption.

Objection to the adoption of the report was made because of the opinion expressed therein that the so-called postal or ounce rates of express companies are discriminatory and either should be eliminated or raised.

R. Hudson Burr of Florida, president of the association, in his annual address, declared that the interstate commerce commission should have enlarged powers to require the most exacting supervision over the manufacture of products entering into the equipment of railroads.

"It is appalling," he added, "to note the great number of accidents which occur and which are attributed to defective equipment or defective rails."

Mr. Burr expressed his belief that "the express business of the country should be conducted as a department of the railroad business."

State railroad commissions, he declared, were a necessity because "the ordinary courts of the land cannot perform such administrative duties as are necessary for the proper regulation of transportation problems."

Regulation Defended.

Some railway regulation laws may appear radical, but only superficially so, declared Chairman Clements of the interstate commerce commission, in welcoming the convention to Washington.

"Charges which have been made that laws for railway regulation are un-American and un-democratic are false," he said, "for no new principles of law are involved in them; they are all based on the old English law principles of fairness, justice and equality."

The convention will continue three or four days.

IDA VON CLAUSSEN PUT IN BELLEVUE

Will Be Examined as to Sanity, on Order of Judge.

New York, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Ida Von Claussen, who once started a suit for $1,000,000 damages against Theodore Roosevelt and others because of an alleged conspiracy to keep her from being presented at the royal court of Sweden, was sent to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue hospital yesterday for a five-day observation as to her sanity.

Mrs. Von Claussen appeared in the supreme court Monday in her action for divorce from William Honan. Justice Greenbaum of the supreme court received a telegram Sunday, dated at Chicago, in which Mrs. Claussen said:

"Justice and liberty is all I ask. If foul play marks your decision, God help you."

Justice Greenbaum believed that the woman's telegram indicated an unsound mind, and he sent Mrs. Von Claussen to the Tombs for examination.

"What are you doing?" she exclaimed as the magistrate announced his decision. "You are taking away my reputation. If you commit me I will communicate with the German emperor. You will find you are handling fire. I have lived in Germany for four years and I have applied for citizenship."

SNEAK THIEVES AT THE LIBRARY

Check Room Needed to Put End to Petty Thefts.

To prevent recurrences of sneak thievery at the public library, many Duluth citizens believe that the library board should establish a check room, where wearing appearel of those who have occasion to visit the institution could be properly cared for.

Within the past few weeks, a number of instances, where articles were stolen from the public library, have come to the attention of the authorities. A well known Duluth man lost his overcoat Saturday afternoon when he visited the library. He had left it hanging on a coat rack when he entered the reading room. When he came out and was ready to go home, he found an old garment in its place. That the job was the work of a sneak thief was evident. In the pockets of the coat, he found a number of stale biscuits.

Another instance has been reported where a silk umbrella was stolen from the library. Not long ago, one of the attendants of the library had a small satchel containing $100 stolen from her. In no instance have the thieves been detected.

Among the other duties of this proctor will be that of contesting undefended cases. He will be employed to take depositions everywhere and will be present at each divorce trial to furnish the judge with a written report of information concerning the suit.

WEALTH IN SUGAR BEET

Secretary Wilson Says It Will Solve One Price Problem.

Cabinet Member Talks at Wisconsin Dairy Meeting.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 11.—That the American public can forever deliver itself from the peril of high sugar prices, is the opinion of Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, who says the great remedy lies in the production of more sugar, and he adds that the production of beet sugar in America is increasing at a remarkable rate, owing to the profit to the farmer and the increasing demand for the finished product.

He said while here attending the dairy show, that the Wisconsin sugar beet factories could operate to disadvantage with the dairy industry, in that the refuse from the beet sugar plants makes excellent food for dairy cattle.

"The American farmer can raise enough sugar to supply the world, for even now Colorado, California and Wisconsin are raising great crops," he said. "We ought to make our own sugar in this country, and this has been my theory ever since I went into the department. Drouth in Germany, or revolution in Cuba would bring no panic to the American housewife if the American farmer seized his opportunity. Relief is now even in sight.

Big Increase in Production.

"When I went into the department, the production of the entire country was 29,000 tons. Now it is over 500,000 tons. There is no trouble at all in the raising of sugar in this northern tier of states. I also look for the reclamation service to bring up the total production as the best crop in these new lands is an immediate money crop.

"Beet sugar is as satisfactory as cane sugar from the housewife's standpoint, and the crop is one of the most profitable. Where they farm properly the farmers get from $80 to $100 an acre for the crop.

"The development of the sugar beet industry waits upon better farming. Twenty tons an acre can be grown by good farming. The present average in America is ten tons. I have repeatedly said that if we could get the average up to eighteen tons we could take the duty off and defy the foreign crop. But we must wait until the farmer knows how."

Wisconsin's Dairy Industry.

Speaking of Wisconsin's dairy industry, which brought him to this city, he went on:

"The beet sugar and dairy industries go well together. The residue from the sugar factory makes finely flavored butter. The dairymen may have trouble when feeding cabbages and potatoes, but not when feeding beets. The tops contain mineral matter required in the growth of the root and where the top is fed, the fertilizer should be returned to the soil upon which the crop is grown."

Secretary Wilson has been experimenting with a seed which he hopes will be so perfect that there shall be but one germinating point per seed, thus eliminating the labor of thinning the crop, for the present seed has from one to five germinating points.

The on-coming sugar product, he said, will lower the present sugar price from the seven-cent figure which now prevails.

Dairying More Important.

Dairying is destined to become more and more prominent as a branch of agriculture in the country, the secretary said in the course of his address, in which he officially opened the international Dairy show at the auditorium last night. For its best development, the needs of the industry generally throughout the United States, Mr. Wilson laid down these precepts:

Better dairy farmers; better cattle; better cropping systems, that will supply more home-grown feed of better quality; better business methods; more intelligent help in the dairy, but particularly more intelligent use of that help; more attention devoted to the care and preparation of dairy products, particularly from a sanitary standpoint, and more dairymen to make their homes on the farm.

Welcomed by Governor.

Governor Francis E. McGovern and Mayor Emil Seidel respectively delivered addresses of welcome on behalf of the state and city.

During the period of the show, which will continue a week, a number of associations made up of various dairy interests will hold conventions.

Among the big attractions of the show is the famous White House cow, Pauline Wayne. The program throughout is designed to educate in the dairy industry.

The exhibits by manufacturers of dairy machinery and appurtenances is large and interesting as a part of the demonstration of the main subject.

OLD CAMP COOK BURIED IN CEMETERY AT AITKIN.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 11.—The body of Charles Cardinal, a member of the local Odd Fellows lodge and for many years a well konwn pioneer camp cook in the northern woods, a native of Lanark, Ont., who died early in the week at the Odd Fellows' home at Northfield, was buried here by the local order yesterday.

BRIDGE NEAR BRAINERD IS DECLARED UNSAFE.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 11.—The latest development in the bridge tangle in Northeast Brainerd is the condemning of the structure by State Engineer George W. Cooley, who writes that the bridge is unsafe for heavy travel or fast moving vehicles. Heavy automobiles and thrashing engines long ago have avoided using the bridge as they feared falling through it. It crosses the Mississippi river a short distance north of the dam near the Northwest Paper company pulp mill. The county commissioners wished to build a new bridge and the state's attorney's office advised them that a special election had to be called to let the people vote on the matter. The commissioners decided to get along with the bridge until the next general election and ordered the county surveyor to see what was necessary to hold it together for another year. This has been stopped now by Mr. Cooley's order.

WARD COUNTY, N. D., IS ALSO ORGANIZED

Second North Dakota County to Start Progressive Republican Movement.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second county Progressive Republican league organized in North Dakota was launched here yesterday afternoon at a meeting called by R. A. Nestos, executive committeeman for the district.

The officers elected follow: President, Gunder S. Reishus; first vice-president, Evan Griffith, Kenmare; second vice-president, H. A. Dickinson, Ryder; secretary, John H. Carroll; treasurer, W. S. Young, Minot.

It was decided that an active campaign should be launched to obtain members, and every section of Ward county will be thoroughly canvassed with that end in view. To care for this work an executive committee consisting of the officers and four others, to be appointed by the president, was authorized.

No candidates were indorsed by the newly formed league, and while the question was discussed briefly it was decided to leave that feature alone for the present.

RURAL EDUCATION TO BE CONSIDERED

Country School Problem to Be Chief Theme of Educators' Meet.

Mayville, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the North Dakota Educational association will be held Nov. 1 to 3 at Fargo, and T. R. Travis of this city, general secretary, has about completed the program. One of the questions that will be given a prominent place in the meetings will be rural development. Every phase of the rural educational problem will be considered. The three days will be given over almost entirely to the one subject.

There will be several men of prominence in attendance at the big meeting, and among them are Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston and Ernest Thompson Seton. Dr. Winship will speak on the subjects of "Rural Schools for Country Life," and "Education for Prosperity, Efficiency and Service." "Scouting of Wild Animals" is the subject on which Mr. Thompson will speak.

BABY EATS RAT POISON.

But Mother's Skill as Nurse Saves Child's Life.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 11.—The 2-year-old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnson of Eastwood park ate a large quantity of rat poison a few days ago, but is still alive.

The little fellow was playing about the house when he got hold of some rat poison, which, it was supposed, had been placed out of his reach. Like most little fellows, the baby pursued his search into unexpected places until he got hold of the poison.

He started to eat it, and had taken enough to kill several babies when his mother, who used to be a trained nurse, found him. Mrs. Johnson applied her skill as a nurse and securing an emetic, succeeded in saving the life of her little boy.

A physician was called, and he stated that the boy had taken enough poison to kill two babies. Mrs. Johnson, however, had given the little fellow just the right treatment and in a few hours he was out of danger.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls—The sewer contractors completed a block during the past week, having traversed the distance from Sixth to Seventh street on Sixth avenue. Rain delayed the work for a day or two and caving has caused considerable trouble.

St. Cloud—County Attorney J. B. Himsl has been notified by telegraph from Stillwater that the application of Paddy Sheehan, assailant of Officer George Becker, for a writ of habeas corpus, has been denied by Judge P. T. Stalberg. The question raised was that the trial judge erred in sentencing Sheehan to more than ten years in the state prison.

Brainerd—There is being formed here a new business which will make a specialty of selling groceries and provisions at wholesale prices to consumers and will reach out after trade throughout northern Minnesota and beyond by means of catalog. Instrumental in forming this company and manager of it when all details are completed, is John Mann, for many years identified with the grocery in all its branches.

Winnebago—Five skeletons have been dug up in the Van Blair sand pit near the city. Owing to the fact that Indian relics have been found in that vicinity from time to time it is thought that the skeletons are those of Indians. One of the skeletons was very large.

Crookston—Supt. C. G. Selvig of the Crookston School of Agriculture and State Experiment Farm, Monday finished thrashing a field of forty-two acres of oats, and received 2,845 bushels, an average of 68 bushels per acre. Moorhead—County Attorney N. I. Johnson of this city left Sunday for St. Paul to protest the granting of a pardon to Mrs. Eliza Goebel, who was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary last spring. Attorney James M. ## TRAILIN' THROUGH THE PAST ALONG WITH BILL

The Old Veteran Relates of the Time That John L. Sullivan Fought Slade.

THERE are times when all of us are moved to wonder if the big events of the past are never to come again. Some among us can remember back to the glorious days of old, as they are wont to call them, when men gathered from near and far, when men traveled across a continent to witness two men, better than all other men in the world, battle for pride as well as money, for pride was held high in those days.

Those events are engraven in the memories of some of the old timers. Often they think of the crowds, of the excitement in the air, of the expectancy, of the something that grips the blood, of the lights, of the little shades of comedy and here and there the touch of tragedy, and it is natural that they should talk of them, over and yet over again.

And so it is with Bill. Yesterday we found him, the inevitable black cigar slanted over in the right hand corner of his firm, old mouth, with a suit that was subdued with difficulty, with a shirt that shrieked mildly, and with his soft Stetson set at a characteristic angle. It was Tuesday, but Bill was lenient, the mood was on, and he gave the talk usually reserved for Saturday afternoon.

"Jus the other day I seen in the paper where old John L. had saved up $75,000," began the old boy, by way of introducing the topic for the afternoon. "There ain't nobody any gladder than I be, for Sullivan spent it when he had fist fulls of it, and then he went out and hoed the hardest road that any beaten guy ever went up against.

"My boy, let me tell there ain't any of us but what got guys hangin' around tryin' to make the travelin' to the final restin' place a little hastier. There ain't no guy who has fought, and has been around, speakin' his own opinions up, free and fearless, but has some feller a lyin' low. Show me a guy who says he ain't got no enemies and I'll show youse a guy who could learn to crochet. When one piece of steel hits another, sparks has got to fly.

"Maybe you didn't know it, but Richard K. Fox used to hate John L. like an alley cat a screachin' hate and malice at a rival on the top of the fence. He wanted to get old John licked, and he tried mighty hard to dig up some boy that would knock the Boston strong boy into the old discard pile.

"Finally he found Slade, the Maori, heard of him from Australia, where Slade was cutting high stuff, and has him come over to this land of the free and lovin'. Dick Fox hoped in his heart that he had found a man who could beat the mighty John L. into humble submission. When a man hates, my boy, his feelin's boils up like a ragin' torrent, and they beats him on to get his enemy.

"Everyone don't know it, but there was some others beside Dick Fox who wanted to see John L. get licked. There has never been a champion without enemies, and John L. was rough and honest, and he said what he thought, and he ruffled up the feelin's of a lot of guys who was eatin' and drinkin' on him. Them kind is the first to turn, and they was like a pack at the heels of a bear, hopin' he would go down.

"BILL."

"Letters kep a comin' in to Sullivan. They was mean and must have hurt the big fellow, for he alwus valued his friends. I was talkin' to Sullivan right here in this town, right in Duluth, and he tells me of some of the things that was sed in them letters.

"One guy must have had the venom of a snake, for he sed he already seed the big fellow in his grave, for this Slade was goin' to kill him. But I don't think fear was a part of John L. Sullivan. He just went on as if nothin' at all was out of the way, though he knowed that they was a hopin' to get him and that they hed brought the toughest guy they could find to fight him.

"When I last talked with the big fellow, right here in this hotel, he told me about it. 'That Slade fellow, Bill, sure did look as if he might do some of the things they was sayin' he would do,' said old John, as we sat here a smokin' and reminisin'.

"'When I climbed through the ropes in Madison Square garden and squinted at the Maori he looked strong enough and big enough to whip his way through a room full of men. But I didn't think if he was goin' to beat me, for I never did in them days; I just kep a calculatin' how I could get him and get him good. Then I tore out and started to send the Maori back to Australia.'

"That was John, my boy. He didn't think he could be beat. He didn't think of the men madly yellin' and standin' on their chairs, that night; of some of them that was brought there to hiss at him; he only kep his glims glued on that Maori man and kep followin' him around, lacin' him and winnin' from the first gong.

"Sullivan won, I think it was in three rounds. There is always the crowd that rushes in and tries to shake the champion by the hand. They was some white men that tried to do that with Johnson at Reno. They tried to carry the big fellow off on their shoulders, after he had put the finishing touches on that man from the Antipodes. Though John didn't say it, for he didn't hold grudges like some men I've knowed, I have always a thought that there was a bitterness in the heart of the big fellow that night, a kind of savvy to the sham and pretense and hollow mockery that sometimes goes with the winnin' of a big fight.

"Sullivan whipped the Maori, allright, and he whipped a lot of others. Time and habits finally landed the big fellow, that night at Noo Orleans. And take it from me, my boy, they wus a lot of fellows a rejoicin' a plum lot at the sight of clever young Jim Corbett steppin' around like a dancin' master and hittin' poor old game John where and when he pleased

"But there is gallant souls in all sorts of company. There is those of us who has stuck to the big fellow through all the years We have alwus stood up for him and said he could have licked two Jim Jeffries. I hope this paper has it right, boy, about old John salting away that 75 thou."

ATHLETICS TAKE SECOND GAME

Walter Johnson, Pitching for All-Stars, Hit Hard By Champions.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Philadelphia's pitchers worked in something like their true form yesterday and the All-Star team was defeated, 3 to 2, the winning run coming over in the ninth inning with no one out, on Collins' single and Baker's double to the right field fence. Coombs pitched the first four innings and his bases on balls to Milan and Gessler, coupled with Chase's single and Davis' error, gave the All-Stars their two runs. Plank pitched three innings, allowing but one hit and Bender finished the game allowing but one hit.

The way the champions hit Walter Johnson surprised the onlookers as he had all his well known speed and control. Eddie Collins hit three singles while Harry Davis hit the ball over the right field fence for a home run. Sensational fielding plays were made by Chase and Eberfeld. Score:

REDS WIN FIRST IN OHIO SERIES

Suggs Outpitches Blanding and Both Are Given Perfect Support.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 11.—Cincinnati defeated Cleveland in the first game of the inter-leaegue series for the championship of Ohio yesterday, 4 to 0. Suggs outpitched Blanding, hiding the American league team safe all the way. Outside of Suggs' pitching, the throwing to bases of Catcher O'Neil of Cleveland, was a feature of the game.

It was announced that owing to the desire of the Cincinnati club to rush work on its new grand stands, the remainder of the series would be played in Cleveland. Score: R. H. E.

CRUCIAL GAME NEXT SUNDAY

Adams and Jeffersons Will Clash at Athletic Park.

In a contest that should go a long way toward settling the city football championship, the Adams and Jefferson teams will meet Sunday afternoon at Athletic park.

The first clash between these two teams resulted in a victory for the Adams team by the score of 5 to 0, but since that time the Jeffersons have played a tie game with the Fairmonts, and as the Fairmonts also held the Adams men to a tie, the game Sunday should be hotly contested. If the Adams men win, it will leave them with only one rival for the city championship, the Fairmonts.

Colton is coaching the Adams players, and he expects his charges to win Sunday's game, but the East Enders have been coming fast, and for a new team have been showing surprising form.

The football game will be held in connection with the aviation meet scheduled for Sunday afternoon, so the largest crowd that ever attended a game in the city, is expected.

NEW YORK COUNTS ON HIM

CHRISTIE MATHEWSON.

FORMER WINNERS OF THE WORLD'S SERIES GAMES

New York, Oct. 11.—Everything is now in readiness for the world series between the Giants and the Athletics. The first game is to start in New York, the Giants having won the toss. Precedent holds that the team that wins the toss also wins the series. Maybe there will be an upset this year, however.

Just for the benefit of the fans a little dope on the past performances in the two major leagues would not be amiss. Below will be found tables showing the pennant winners in the two leagues from their inception and also a table showing the winners of the world's series from the time they have been played for.

Here are the winners in the American league since its organization in 1900:

American League Pennant Winners.

| Year. | Team. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| 1900 | Chicago | .607 |
| 1901 | Chicago | .610 |
| 1902 | Athletics | .610 |
| 1903 | Boston | .659 |
| 1904 | Boston | .617 |
| 1905 | Athletics | .621 |
| 1906 | Chicago | .614 |
| 1907 | Detroit | .613 |
| 1908 | Detroit | .588 |
| 1909 | Detroit | .645 |
| 1910 | Athletics | .680 |
| 1911 | Athletics | ..... |

Here are the winners in the National league for the same length of time, the teams that have played for the final world title with the American league teams:

National League Pennant Winners.

| Year. | Team. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| 1900 | Brooklyn | .603 |
| 1901 | Pittsburg | .647 |
| 1902 | Pittsburg | .741 |
| 1903 | Pittsburg | .650 |
| 1904 | New York | .693 |
| 1905 | New York | .668 |
| 1906 | Chicago | .763 |
| 1907 | Chicago | .704 |
| 1908 | Chicago | .643 |
| 1909 | Pittsburg | .724 |
| 1910 | Chicago | .676 |
| 1911 | New York | ..... |

Following are the world champions in the various years, together with the teams they defeated for the title:

1903—Boston (A. L.) beat Pittsburg.
1904—No series was played.
1905—New York (N. L.) beat Athletics.
1906—Chicago Sox (A. L.) beat Chicago Cubs.
1907—Chicago (N. L.) beat Detroit.
1908—Chicago (N. L.) beat Detroit.
1909—Pittsburg (N. L.) beat Detroit.
1910—Athletics (A. L.) beat Chicago.
1911—?

The National league has won four titles to the American league's three, there being no series played in 1904. Chicago is the only team that has repeated on winning two or more series in succession. Chicago's last world victory was in 1908, when the Cubs beat out the New York Giants in the last game of the National league series by that famous bonehead play of Merkle that gave the Cubs a victory everyone was willing to concede to the Giants.

They then defeated the Detroit Tigers for the world title. Since that time the Cubs have been going back, although they finished a strong second this year.

The records above are those of the series that have been played between the National and American leagues since the formation of the latter in 1900. The National league, however, dates back to 1884 and championships were played for at that time. Here is the record of the series played prior to 1900 between the National league and other organizations:

No series was played during 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902.

National league, Temple Cup series:
1897—Baltimore beat Boston.
1896—Baltimore beat Cleveland.
1895—Cleveland beat Baltimore.
1894—New York beat Baltimore.
1893—No series played.
National league, two seasons played:
1892—Boston beat Cleveland.
1891—No series played.
National league-American association:
1890—Brooklyn won 3, Louisville won 3, draw 1.
1889—New York beat Brooklyn.
1888—New York beat St. Louis.
1887—Detroit beat St. Louis.
1886—St. Louis beat Chicago.
1885—Chicago won 3, St. Louis won 3, draw 1.
1884—Providence beat Metropolitans.

There is little doubt that the forthcoming series between the Giants and Athletics will attract the biggest crowd that ever attended a ball game and the receipts from this series is expected to far eclipse any other series that has ever been held.

PILAKOFF AND ORDEMANN TO MEET IN FINISH BOUT

Articles were signed today for a finish match between Frederick Pilakoff, the gigantic and wonderfully muscled Finnish heavyweight wrestler, and Henry Ordemann of Minneapolis, the leading American wrestler and one of the greatest grapplers in the world.

This match was brought about through the wide demand from the fans in this city who saw Pilakoff defeat Rogers, and hundreds of Pilakoff's countrymen, who have asked that the giant Finn be matched against a man who is known all over the Northwest as one of the very greatest wrestlers in the profession.

The date of the match will very likely be Oct. 26. This will give Pilakoff time to get into the best condition of his career, though the big fellow is at wrestling weight at the present time and could go right on now and put up the battle of his career. As for Ordemann, he has been in light training since the first of September, according to the statements of George A. Barton, the well known Minneapolis sporting writer, and will come to the Head of the Lakes in prime condition for a hard and gruelling contest.

Pilakoff is Heavier.

Pilakoff weighed for his last match 222 pounds. Ordemann will tip the beam, just before he steps on the mat, at something like 210 pounds. Ordemann will have the advantage in a deep knowledge of catch-as-catch-can science, but he is not the equal in strength of the Finn, who stands today as one of the strongest men in the entire world.

That it will be a hard and gruelling mat contest goes without saying. Ordemann beat Karl Lehto here last season and there are hundreds of the admirers of Lehto who want to see the Norskman beaten. Pilkaloff made hundreds of friends through his defeat of Rogers, and these people want to see the big local champion add the scalp of the Minneapolis man to his belt.

On the other hand, Ordemann has hundreds of personal friends right here in Duluth. He lived here for a short while and has wrestled here several times. Besides Henry is a Norwegian and his countrymen are with him.

But aside from all this and more important than all this, is the fact that people of Duluth have asked for this match since Pilakoff defeated Rogers, believing that it would make one of the greatest and most evenly matched contests ever wrestled in this city, or ever contested in the Northwest.

Two veritable giants of the mat, Pilakoff and Ordemann should make a wonderful contest, should put up a battle that will bring out strength, the quality of endurance, the test of gameness and ability to stand the gaff, as well as a display of the science of the game.

MEETING POSTPONED.

Minny League Officials Will Get Together on Oct. 24.

The meeting of the Minny league scheduled for Superior yesterday failed to materialize, the Superior representative being the only club owner on the ground. While the by-laws of the league provide for the meeting yesterday, Frank E. Force, president of the league, telephoned from Minneapolis, after his attention had been called to the lack of delegates, stating that he had set the meeting for Oct. 24.

According to the statement of the president, the meeting will be held in Superior on that date.

The Maroons Organize.

The Maroons have organized for the season and are out to meet any 122 pound team in the field. Games are wanted with any of the football elevens of the city in their class, especially the Mohawks.

REAL TEST THIS WEEK

Conference Football Teams Will Meet Some Strong Opponents.

Illinois, Northwestern and Chicago Have Hard Games Scheduled.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—With Indiana eliminated from the western conference football race, as a result of its defeat by Chicago last week, contests will be played on Saturday, which should tend to determine the exact strength of the contenders for the Western title. Although defeated by Wabash last Saturday, Purdue still has a chance for conference honor if it beats the Maroons this week.

Average followers of football refuse to give Wabash credit for its hard earned victory over Purdue. The little giants form a team which would give any member of the conference a stiff and stubbornly fought contest. Purdue must hold Chicago to a tie score to be figured in the running.

St. Louis Strong.

Illinois will be put to a severe test when the downstaters clash with St. Louis university at Urbana. The easy victory of the Orange and Blue over Milliken last week demonstrated Illinois is going to be represented by another formidable eleven, but it will be forced to extend itself to gain a decisive victory over the Mound City eleven. The coaching staff will be reinforced this week by Lowenthal, a former all-western center, and Lion Gardiner, a former Illinois captain.

In its second game of the year Wisconsin will tackle the Ripon eleven at Madison. The Badgers won a comparatively easy game from Lawrence last Saturday, but they will have a much harder time in gaining against Ripon. As Wisconsin should improve with every day's practice, the team which faces the initial kickoff against the smaller Wisconsin team should be an entirely different one taking all angles of the game into consideration, than the one which met Lawrence.

Northwestern will seek revenge for the defeat which Illinois Wesleyan administered last year on Saturday at Evanston. Coach Hammlett has the material for a strong eleven, as was shown in last Saturday's game. Illinois Wesleyan is every bit as strong as it was last season and Northwestern will have to play football all the time to win.

Iowa Plays Morningside.

Iowa will get into action for the first time this season by playing Morningside at Iowa City. Nothing definite is known at the strength of the Hawkeyes and the result of their initial contest will be watched with a lot of interest. Iowa again is under the tutelage of Hawley, a former Dartmouth player, and, according to reports, he has a lot of likely candidates trying for the different positions. Minnesota and Indiana, the other members of the "big eight," have no games scheduled, but the time will be devoted to hard scrimmage and signal drills.

Michigan, which already looms up as the strongest team in the West, will play the Michigan Aggies at Lansing. The Wolverines have what might be called an almost perfect schedule this year. Each succeeding contest is a little harder, which gives Yost just the amount of time needed to perfect the plays which are planned for each struggle.

An important elimination contest will be played in the Missouri Valley conference when Kansas meets Nebraska at Lincoln. Although this contest will be played much earlier than usual, the Cornhuskers, because of their advanced early season form, should be the winners.

A lot of interest centers around the Wabash-Depauw struggle, which will be played on Friday at Crawfordsville. The result of this contest will have an important bearing on the championship of the Western minor colleges.

Many Games in East.

All the big elevens in the East will again be seen in action in battles which should be considerably harder than the preceding ones this year. Of all the contests Yale appears to have the easiest opponent in Virginia P. I. The Blue eleven has played by far the best football of any of the Eastern elevens, and it should have little trouble in winning a decisive victory.

Harvard will tackle the strong Williams team at Cambridge in a game which should be a severe test for the crimson. So far the Cambridge aggregation has made no effort to run up large scores, the coaches apparently being satisfied with victories by any score. Williams is certain to give Harvard a hard game, and, after this struggle, a more definite idea of the strength of Haughton's team can be determined.

Cornell should receive a stiff struggle from Penn State, a team which is heralded as being one of the strongest of the Eastern minor colleges. Colgate will be Princeton's opponent, and another hard contest should result. The army will meet Rutgers, Pennsylvania will tackle Villa Nova, the navy will clash with Washington and Jefferson, and Carlisle will play Georgetown in the other important Eastern games.

GIANTS ARE GIVEN REST

McGraw Is Not Working His Regulars Hard This Week.

Doyle Out for Day, But Merkle Is Back in the Lineup.

New York, Oct. 11.—Evidently Manager McGraw, of the New York pennant winners of the National league, thinks that most of his stars need rest more than gruelling practice for the world's series to open here Saturday with the Philadelphia American league team, as he yesterday put only four of his regulars in the lineup against Brooklyn and played one of these—Snodgrass—out of his regular position, the center fielder covering second base. Larry Doyle was not in action, his layoff being due to the accident which befell him Monday, but he is expected to be in trim today. Merkle, whose condition has been giving his manager some concern because of a "Charley horse," got into the game again today at first.

In general, McGraw is believed to be satisfied with the condition of his men and confident that, barring accidents, he will have them in fine fettle for the battle. "Chief" Myers, the hard-hitting catcher upon whose ability so much concededly depends, is reported to be benefiting greatly by the rest given him this week.

There was as much activity as ever yesterday in the offices of the New York Nationals, where the work of assorting applications for tickets was being ended and the tickets mailed to those whose requests had been approved. The open sale will begin Thursday morning.

Betting on the series was fairly active today with the odds about even.

Rush for Seats.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 11.—Workmen were kept busy yesterday in putting Shibe park in shape for the first of the world's championship baseball games to be played here next Monday. Additional benches and desks were installed and equipped with telegraph wires to accommodate newspaper men, while new fences were erected in the outfield, to prevent spectators from overflowing the playing field.

Those in charge of the press applications say that never before has an inter-league contest excited so much interest in all sections of the country and the demand has been so great that many applications for scorers' seats will have to be refused.

In spite of the extra force of clerks put to work, it has been impossible to catch up with the large amount of mail containing requests for seats for the first two games to be played here. The supply of available tickets quickly was exhausted and it is estimated that more than $100,000 will have to be returned to senders.

CENTRAL TO MEET GRAND FORKS TEAM

Grand Forks high school football team, the same aggregation that held the University of North Dakota to a no score game, will meet Central at Athletic Park, Saturday.

Playing a team somewhere near its own weight, and with the improvement that should come after the game of last week, Central should go into the game with Grand Forks with the strongest lineup of the season and should also play a dashing game.

During the present week the team has put in the hardest practice of the season. The boys have been on the field until nearly 6 o'clock, practicing formation plays, while the forwards have been through a hard drilling. Should Solheim be in the lineup of next Saturday the forwards should play a much stronger game than last Saturday, and with the line holding better the backfield will have a much better chance to show both speed and a more concerted attack.

With the first real high school contest of the season coming on Saturday, and that with a team that has the reputation of being one of the strongest high school organizations turned out for years from the Grand Forks institution, there is a treat for football lovers in store.

WILL PLAY CARLTON.

North Dakota University Team Is Out to Win.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carleton college will find in the University of North Dakota football aggregation, when they meet Saturday at Northfield, Minn., a team that has been given some decidedly stiff work and which is out to win. New enthusiasm has prevailed on the Flickertail football field this week, with Coach Dunlap and Lieut. Phil Hayes pushing the men through some exceptionally hard and fast work.

With only two games played so far this season, and with each of them showing the Dakotans to be in poor form, the team went to work this week with a spirit of making good. Monday and yesterday there was hard scrimmage work.

Bryant Will Race.

Frank Bryant, the Head of the Lakes champion roller skater, has accepted the challenge of John McGinnis, the speedy little local boy, and a series of races has been arranged. The first contest will come on Oct. 18, and will be held at the Auditorium. The second will come on Oct. 21, and if a third is necessary, it will be held on Oct. 28.

MOVE TOWARD CITY PLANTS

Virginia Council to Give People Chance to Vote on Matter.

Election on Nov. 21 to Decide Whether City Shall Acquire Plants.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council passed a resolution last night providing for a special election Nov. 21 to vote upon the proposition of whether the city council shall forthwith proceed to purchase the water and light plant of the Virginia Electric Light, Power & Water company either by condemnation of purchase, if at a reasonable figure. The resolution was presented by Alderman Boylan. The vote was unanimous for the proposition.

The action was taken following the receipt of a communication from M. A. Murphy, Conrad Mattson, Carl R. Johnson, Ben Milavetz, A. N. Thompson and R. J. McGhee, named in the ordinance introduced by initiative, withdrawing their names from the ordinance, after which the ordinance was ordered laid on the table indefinitely. The men referred to also presented a communication, suggesting that the municipal ownership proposition be submitted in one concrete question instead of several and that the question be whether the council should proceed to purchase the present water and light plant or acquire it by eminent domain.

The resolution also provides for the operation and of the water and light plant, municipally, if the voters so wish.

The building committee's report, recommending that the city take no steps at this time to provide the proposed militia company with an armory, was adopted by the council.

The board of health was instructed to examine into the quality of so-called cream being sold at milk depots.

Buhl, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Mining company has a force of men drilling on property belonging to the Great Northern situated about half a mile west of the village.

First Bruin Slaughtered This Season Near Aurora.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of partridges are being brought to Aurora by local hunters. Last season the birds were scarce owing to the early forest fires and the woods were very dry and noisy, but this season there are plenty of birds and everyone who is able seems to be after them with the result that many are being brought to town.

Those who are observing state that the indications are good for deer, there being many signs throughout the entire woods in this section. The first black bear to be killed this season was slain near the Stevens mine last Sunday by Victor Peterson.

No meeting of the water, light, power and building commission was held.

MONEY PAID OVER FOR VILLAGE WORK

Village of Gilbert and Mining Company Arrange to Complete Sewer.

Gilbert, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney Morgan of the Oliver Iron Mining company counsel at Duluth was here Monday, and a meeting of the council was held to transfer the balance of the $25,000, which was to be expended upon public improvements in the village. Of the $25,000 there yet remains $8,203.69 which will be paid over today, and will be used by the village to pay for the completion of the sewerage system.

The payment of the money by the Oliver company and the fact that Gilbert has an outlet for its sewerage system is something which is a matter for congratulation by the citizens of Gilbert and has made a very good impression of the Oliver company.

WOULD MAKE CLUB ROOMS PLEASANTER

Hibbing Commercial Club Figures on Adding Social Features.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—An important meeting of the commercial club will be held tonight at the council chamber.

One of the important matters to come before the meeting is the matter of extending the usefulness of the club by adding to it some social features.

It has been suggested by President McEachin that the club might secure club rooms, as have commercial clubs in many Northern Minnesota towns, where reading rooms, billiard rooms, etc., may be maintained, and where business men may go for an hour's diversion or where they may take a visitor to discuss business or to entertain him for a short time.

City Hall Basement Mentioned.

The basement rooms of the city hall have been suggested as a suitable place for such club rooms. There are several large and convenient rooms in the city hall basement, which might easily be converted into very pleasant club rooms. These basement rooms are not now being put to any use whatever and it is believed that they may be secured for commercial club purposes from the water and light commission at a nominal cost.

A. P. Silliman's proposition for the building of good roads in St. Louis county will also be considered and the matter of establishing a Western Union telegraph office in Hibbing will be up for consideration.

Scheme Is Started to Colonize Track With Small Farmers.

Stock Company May Be Organized to Properly Advance Project.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club last evening agricultural topics were discussed. The talk on farming by G. Meggs of the Northwestern Agriculturalist was closely followed. He advised starting a colony near here and the committees now contemplate forming a stock company which will care for the project providing a large tract of land can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

Mr. Meggs was requested to confer with Land Commissioner N. B. Arnold of the Duluth & Iron Range road, relative to the sale of a tract of land to the proposed company on reasonable terms. It is planned to advertise the project extensively and it is the desire of the club to have over 100 farmers settle here within a few years. The land will be offered the settlers on easy terms, and should the proposed company materialize a club representative will be stationed among the farmers.

The club will also boost the Wallace colony project. The colony is located about twenty miles from here and is attracting much attention. A public market place and potato warehouse for the farmers were also discussed and provisions will be made for the two establishments at the next meeting of the Commercial club, next month.

SANDY SOIL GREAT FOR RAISING CROPS.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Cut over, sandy lands in St. Louis county will raise fully twice the crops that any other lands will raise."

This is the claim of W. H. Everett of Fern township, while in town yesterday. Mr. Everett was a former Hibbing resident but now has a fine farm about fourteen miles north of Chisholm, where he raises produce of all kinds and markets it in Chisholm and Hibbing.

"The sandy soils, I find, not only do better than the clay, but they are much more dependable," said Mr. Everett. "We get a crop in our section no matter whether the season is wet or dry, whether it is late or early. The great difficulty which settlers have to encounter is the clearing of the land. The territory north of Chisholm is beginning to settle up, however, and land is worth from $7 to $15 per acre."

Exhibits from Mr. Everett's farm were among the noteworthy prize-winners at the county fair this fall.

Giants and Athletics Will Have All Regulars in Lineup.

McInnes Recovers From Injuries and Will Be at First Base.

New York, Oct. 11.—"Managers have their troubles, but the physical condition of the players probably will be the least of them in the world's series of 1911," remarked John McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals today.

In this respect, at least, the coming games between the pennant winners of the big leagues will be unusual, for both teams expect to take the field with their regular lineups in fine fettle.

If the weather clears the New York Nationals will play Brooklyn a doubleheader today and the games will be nothing more than exercises for those whom McGraw wants to keep on edge. The New York club has no players who will be incapacitated from playing the world's champions.

McGraw probably will announce the following batting order for his team on Saturday: Devore, lf.; Doyle, 2b.; Snodgrass, cf.; Murray, rf.; Merkle, 1b.; Herzog, 3b.; Fletcher, ss.; Meyers, c.; Mathewson, p.

Reports from the Philadelphia camp indicate that First Baseman McInnes will be back on the bag for the big series. McInnes received a severe welt on the wrist from a pitched ball in one of the recent Detroit games.

Manager Mack's batting order probably will read:

Lord, lf.; Oldring, cf.; Collins, 2b.; Baker, 3b.; Murphy, rf.; McInnes, 1b.; Barry, ss.; Thomas, c.; Bender, p.

All of McGraw's men are hoping to win, but as Herzog remarked, "This series is an even money chance," and the third baseman's opinion is said to be the feeling of most of the other players.

LEHIGH TEAM IS LIGHT AND FAST

Princeton Should Have Easy Time With Eleven From Small School.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 11.—Although the Princeton coaches had been counting on an easy game this afternoon against Lehigh a soaking rain put the gridiron in such a slow and soggy condition that some anxiety was expressed as to whether it was wise to risk possible injury to one of the regular backs.

Both teams will depend more or less on the open game to gain their ground. Brown, who has played an end and a tackle so far on the Princeton team, is slated to play guard today in place of McCormick. With this exception and the shifting of Dunlap back to end, where he played on last year's Princeton team, the lineup was the same as that which faced Villa Nova last Saturday.

The eleven from Lehigh is rated to be fast but unusually light. Pasetti, a star quarterback of two years ago, will start in the game.

MIDSHIPMEN MEET ST. JOHN'S

Annapolis Teams Play on Gridiron at the Naval Academy.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 11.—The all-important football game of the season, from a purely local standpoint, will be played on the Naval Academy gridiron this afternoon when the midshipmen and the cadets of St. John's college come together in their annual battle.

Both teams are in fine fettle but every advantage favors the midshipmen.

Rain last night and this morning made the field a trifle soggy.

The probable lineup:

| Navy— | Position. | St. John's— |
|---|---|---|
| Hamilton | le | Thompson |
| Brown | lt | Broadwater |
| Elmer | lg | McNutt |
| Weems | c | Welch |
| Howe | rg | Harris |
| Davis | rt | White, captain |
| Gilchrist | re | Claude |
| Sowell | q | Pettit |
| Dalton, captain | lh | Clayton |

DOUBLE PROGRAM OF EVENTS AT LEXINGTON.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—On account of the track drying out in good shape, it is believed that it will be possible to run off a double program of trotting and pacing events here today. There are seven events to be decided, aggregating $15,600.

The feature is the champion stallion stake, worth $8,000. Walnut Hall stake, worth $3,000 is next in interest.

FEWER FIRES IN STATE FORESTS

Few of Serious Nature Encountered By the Rangers.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fires in Minnesota during the dry season between July 1 and Oct. 1, were far fewer in number this year than last, according to figures compiled by D. P. Tierney, assistant state forester, today.

While fires were burning in parts of the northern section of the state almost continuously last year, only 136 were encountered this year, and few of them were of a serious nature. Patrolmen and rangers keeping close watch over the dangerous territory and the timbermen obeying orders from the state forester, lessened the conflagrations.

SAILORS ARE WILLING TO FLY

O. Hellmich, turret captain, and J. A. LePage, quartermaster, both of the navy recruiting office, are willing to accept the offer made by Aviator McGoey, who promises to take up one passenger on his flight at Athletic park Sunday afternoon, the conditions being favorable.

Both officers have watched with interest the strides which have been made in the science of aviation during the past few years, especially with regard to the possibility of the airship being used in modern warfare, and they are anxious to make a flight.

McLeansboro, Ill. — "About five years ago," says Mrs. John L. Drew, of this place, "I was afflicted with pains and irregularity every month. I am now in perfect health, and recommend Cardui to all suffering women." Every day, during the past 50 years, Cardui has been steadily forging ahead as a result of its proven value in female troubles. It relieves headache, backache, womanly misery and puts fresh strength into weary bodies. Try it.

John Ohman is suing Otto Johnson, Erick G. Wallinder and Frank Carlson for $20,000 as damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained when his horse was frightened by automobiles owned by the men.

The plaintiff claims that he was driving on the Cloquet road when the three machines passed him. He got out to lead the horse and the noise of the machines frightened it to such an extent that he was thrown on the road and trampled upon.

Ohman claimed that the automobiles were being operated at dangerous, unreasonable and unlawful speed.

LISTLESS DAY FOR THE COPPERS

Little Doing in the Red Metal Shares—Changes Are Irregular.

It is not often that so little trading is done in copper stocks as took place today. There were few deals and very little doing in the way of either gains or losses. Amalgamated closed a little above its closing price of yesterday, following the trend of the general New York list, which made some good gains toward the last. North Butte and a number of others lost.

So quiet was the copper market up to noon today that brokers were inclined to call it a holiday market. The undertone was firm. There was no raid on the part of the bears and no aggressiveness on the part of the bulls. Those who ownd the stocks were in no mood to let them go for the prevailing low prices. At the same time, the demand for the shares was poor. The general stock list at New York was in about the same condition, and it therefore afforded no stimulus to business on the copper share market. There were some encouraging pieces of news, however. The Southern railway reported the best year of its history, the operating revenues running up to $60,0000,000. It was announced that the Illinois Central strike was losing ground and some of the men were returning to work. The New York Sun, however, published an interview with James J. Hill, in which the latter is quoted as saying that more men will be idle during the coming winter than ever before. The Steel corporation reported unfilled orders of 3,611,617 tons on Sept. 30 last, showing a shrinkage of 84,667 tons.

Among today's copper quotations were the following: Amalgamated, yesterday's close, $49.37½; today, $49.37½, $49.12½, $49.25, $49.37½; $49.75, $50. Butte Coalition, yesterday, $14.75 bid, $15.25 asked; today $15. Calumet & Arizona, yesterday, $47.75 bid, $48 asked; today, $47.87½, $47.50. Granby, yesterday, $3.62½ bid, $3.75 asked; today, $3.81¼. North Butte, yesterday, $24 bid, $24.25 asked; today, $24, $23.50. Keating, yesterday and today, $2.25 asked. Butte & Superior, yesterday and today, $8.50 to $9.

New York—Exports of copper Tuesday were 2,511 tons; total since Oct. 1, 5,073 tons. Of Tuesday's exports 1,424 tons were from Baltimore and 1,087 from New York.

Boston—A director of the Alloucz Mining company says: "The new construction and development work has so far progressed that it is now only a matter of a short time when the output can be doubled and dividend payments will then be in sight."

A New York wire says: "One of the large selling agencies for the copper companies is understood to have made heavy sales of the metal to Europe on Tuesday. In the case of every order received, the buyer asked urgently that delivery be made this month. The feature is regarded as significant of the insufficiency of stocks of copper abroad."

MRS. R. C. VINCENT PASSES AWAY

Was One of Most Prominent of Pioneers of Duluth.

Mrs. R. C. Vincent, 67 years of age and one of the most prominent of the city's pioneer residents, died yesterday afternoon at Rochester, Minn., following an operation.

With her were her husband, son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Vincent. Mrs. Vincent was one of the best known of the early Duluth settlers and took a leading part in all social affairs.

She had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will regret to hear of her death. Mrs. Vincent was born at Le Roy, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1844. Other relatives who survive her are Mrs. M. H. Kelley, a niece of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Edward Straub of Unity, Wis., and Mrs. J. B. Rondo of Marinette, Wis. The body will be brought to Duluth tomorrow morning. No funeral arrangements have been made.

TOO FOND OF "CANNED MUSIC"

John Gray Convicted the Second Time of Stealing Phonograph.

John Gray's fondness for phonographs has led to his undoing.

But Gray has a wife and three small children who need his support and when John pleaded guilty in district court today to stealing a talking machine recently from Ole Olson's saloon, 202 St. Croix avenue, Judge Cant showed leniency by letting him off with only a severe reprimand.

In 1907 Gray was convicted of appropriating to his own use a phonograph and the recent occasion was his second offense.

STILL CONSIDERS YOUNG IS CRAZY

Despite His Plea of Guilty, Court Withholds Passing Sentence.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Young, charged with complicity in holding up a Northern Pacific train last July at Buffalo, N. D., was not sentenced by Judge Pollock this afternoon and may never be. The court took the matter under advisement. Young was arrested in Wisconsin on a charge of committing the crime. When first brought here he admitted his guilt, later he said he was "doped" and pleaded not guilty, still later pleading guilty even against the advice of his attorney. Many people regard the man as either insane or a "dope fiend" and take little stock in his stories. His former employer proves a practical alibi for the prisoner, showing it was almost impossible for Young to have been participant in the hold-up.

The case is being tried before Judge Dancer of the district court.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Improvements which will cost approximately $5,000 will be made at Itasca park within the next year, according to estimates in the hands of W. T. Cox, state forester. Small rustic shelters are to be erected at Elk Springs, Rest Park and Beaver Dam with open fire places in each. ## CHAMPION WOMAN FIRST "BASEMAN"

MYRTLE C. ROWE.

Myrtle Rowe is known as the woman champion first baseman of the world. At least she claims this title. Myrtle comes from New Kensington, Pa. She took to baseball naturally and disproving the tradition that a woman could not throw straight, she actually made a good record as a player, even according to masculine standards. But Myrtle has grown tired of baseball and has gone in for musical composition. She and her brother, William A. Rowe, have composed "rags" which are appreciated by persons who like that sort of stuff.

WEIGHT AND HEALTH.

At the twenty-first annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Directors some facts were brought out in regard to the best build of men and women from the insurance man's point of view.

In the New York Life Insurance company efforts have been going on for many years to determine the exact influence of build on longevity, says the Medical Record. It is suggested that a mistake has been made in assuming that the average build at any age is the most favorable build at that age or the build from which it may be expected the most favorable mortality will be sustained.

For instance, figures show that at the age of 20, all risks from 24 per cent overweight to 10 per cent underweight are better than average risks. Does it not then seem probable that the point of most favorable build is about half way from 24 per cent overweight to 10 per cent underweight, or in the neighborhood of 7 per cent overweight? If this inference is correct the tables now used are too favorable to the underweights by about 7 per cent.

At age 60, on the other hand, the superstandard risks begin at about 8 per cent overweight and extend to about 22 per cent underweight. The mean point between these extremes lies at about 7 per cent underweight and the conclusion appears evident that the present table based on average weights is too high by about 7 per cent. At the intermediate ages, 30 to 50, the mean point lies not at the zero but on the heavyweight side of the zero at the age of 30 and at the lightweight side of the zero at the age of 50, and only at the age of 40 is the table apparently correct.

ROYAL LADIES AND THEIR REGIMENTS.

London Globe: There have never been seen so many royal and imperial ladies at the head of their regiments in Germany as will be present at the coming great military reviews, observes a Paris journal. At Altona the kaiserin will present to the kaiser the Eighty-sixth regiment of infantry, and at Stettin the regiment of Pomeranian Cuirassiers, of which her imperial majesty is the honorary commander.

Queen Victoria of Sweden will precede her regiment on horseback in full uniform, and will be present at the side of the emperor at the march past.

The Princess Eitel Frederic of Prussia for the first time will appear before her imperial father-in-law at the head of a regiment. She is commanding the Twelfth Dragoons. The young grand duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin will be at the head of the Eighteenth Mecklenburg Dragoons.

Holland's queen will lead in person the Fifteenth regiment of Hussars, and it is very probable that the crown princess of Greece will review the Regiment Elizabeth. It is likely that the third daughter-in-law of the kaiser will appear in military uniform for the first time, as the question of conferring upon her the command of a regiment of cavalry is now under consideration.

WHEAT AND FLAX DOWN

Weather Conditions Cause Both Grains to Sag a Little.

Report of Frost Damage to Argentine Wheat Crop Is Contradicted.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 11.—Wheat closed at a loss of a fraction in most of the North American markets. Duluth December, which closed yesterday at $1.08⅝, asked, made a close today at $1.08⅜@$1.08½, showing no great loss, and not what was expected when wheat made its bearish opening this morning. The gains that the bears made in this and other grains may be attributed entirely to the unexpected spell of splendid harvesting and thrashing weather, and to the contradiction of the frost damage reports that were sent out yesterday from Argentina. Durum closed half a cent up, oats ⅛c off, and rye the same as yesterday. Flax closed 2c down for October and 3c down for November and December. Wheat fluctuated within a narrow range up to noon today, without a great deal of trading. The bears had the better of it in all the great North American markets, on account of fine weather on this continent and reports of good weather in Argentina. The news of frosts in Argentina was a great bullish factor yesterday, but today the story of damage to the Argentine wheat crop by the frosts was flatly contradicted. This caused wheat to sag considerably on the Liverpool market and the lower wheat cables caused lower openings at Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth and Winnipeg. Wheat receipts at Duluth and Winnipeg were heavy. Duluth December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.08⅝ asked, opened today at $1.08¼. During the entire morning it went no higher than $1.08⅜ and no lower than $1.08. About noon it ruled at $1.08¼.

The warm, clear weather, which was not predicted, had a bearish effect on the flax. It means the drying up of the flax fields, getting the seed into proper condition for thrashing. It also means the drying of the roads, enabling farmers to haul what they have thrashed to the elevators. It is expected by some of the brokers that the present favorable weather, if continued, will in ten days or so have the effect of increasing the daily receipts of flax at Duluth until 50 to 100 cars are arriving here each day. The cars of inspected flax on the track today numbered 21. Duluth October flax, which closed yesterday at $2.34½ asked, opened today at $2.34, sold later as low as $2.32¼ and about noon ruled at $2.33. November, about noon, was 2½c below yesterday's close and December 4c down.

"Broomhall wired from Liverpool: "The firmness in the American Northwest and the strength in Winnipeg were offset here by a more favorable political outlook and denials of damage in Argentine with a disappointing closing in Buenos Ayres, and prices at the opening were ¼d to ⅜d lower with pressure in the distant months. Following the opening a steadier undertone developed and the market advanced ⅛d to ¼d for the near months on a better demand for cargoes and parcels and the reserve shown by holders. Receipts here are lighter and there is further talk of lighter Russian shipments again this week. The distant months continued under pressure of more favorable European crop advices and after the opening these declined an additional ⅛d. At 1:30 p. m. the market was quiet and ¼d to ½d lower than yesterday with Manitoba offers freer. Corn after opening ⅛d higher, further advanced ¼d, with the undertone firm. ## CHICAGO MARKET.

Good Crop News From Argentina Works Against Wheat Bulls.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Failure of frost to damage crops in the Argentine counted today against the bulls in wheat. Big receipts Northwest had a similar effect, and there was additional discouragement in the fact that the European political situation was looked upon as having an aspect more favorable to the bear side. Sentiment for lower prices was increased because of pit shorts having covered freely and owing to the absence of outside demand. The opening was ⅛c to ¼@⅜c down. December started at 95c to 98⅛c, a decline of ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c and fell to 47⅞c.

The market most of the time was sluggist, owing to there being no session tomorrow. Near the end, there was a rally on account of the evening up of trades. The close was firm with December a shade net higher at 98⅜c.

With arrivals expected to be larger on account of good weather, corn turned weak. There was quite a general rush to sell. December opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c off at 64½c to 64¾c and sagged to 64⅝@64½c.

Increase of country offerings acted as a drag, but the market finally recovered with wheat. The close was steady at 64⅝@64¾c for December, a net loss of ⅛c.

Oats were easy with wheat and corn. Little pressure however, from the bears could be noticed. December started the same as last night to a sixteenth lower at 47½@47⅜c to 47⅝c and descended to 47½c.

Scalpers lifted provisions a bit, but encountered free sales from commission concerns. Initial transactions were unchanged to 2½c higher, with January deliveries $15.12½ for pork, $8.80 for lard and $8 for ribs.

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Somewhat Easier and Range of Trade Narrow.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 11.—The wheat market again today was in narrow range and a trifle easier. Failure of predicted rains in Northwest and failure to confirm Argentine crop damage from frost weakening factors. Towards the close bullish Russian news caused a slight advance. December closed ⅛@¼c lower than yesterday and May ¼c lower. Local elevator stocks of wheat increased 1,200,000 bushels for four days.

Car lot wheat receipts with comparisons follow:

Minneapolis, today 366; last week 499; last year 494; Duluth, today 331; last week 521; last year 131. Winnipeg, today 827; last week 727; last year 652.

December opened $1.08⅝ to $1.08⅜, high $1.08, low $1.08⅜, closed $1.08⅞. May opened $1.12⅝, high $1.13⅛, low $1.12½, closed $1.13.

Cash wheat was steady today. No. 1 northern sold for the even December price to ½c above. Demand good for mixing and choice milling grades, but poor qualities were slow sales. Close: No. 1 hard, $1.09⅞; No. 1 northern, $1.09@1.09⅝; to arrive, $1.08⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.05¾@1.07⅜; to arrive, $1.05⅞@1.06⅞; No. 3 wheat, $1.01⅞@1.03⅞; No. 3 yellow corn, 68c; No. 3 white oats, 46@46½c; No. 2 rye, 92c.

Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 11.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 2 to 7 points in sympathy with higher Liverpool cables and on a continuation of yesterday's covering movement, but offerings were very heavy on the advance and prices later eased off to within a point or so of last night's closing figures.

Rains in the south as well as the higher cables promoted the early buying while the heavy offerings reflected a continuation of the Southern selling here and also an active selling by some of the big spot interests on a scale up.

Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: October, 9.41; November, 9.42; December, 9.57; January, 9.40; February, 9.45; March, 9.54; April, 9.60; May, 9.68; June, 9.72; July, 9.75; September, 9.58.

Rapid Bidding Up of Leading Issues in Last Half Hour.

United States Steel Yields When Profit-Taking Sales Begin.

New York, Oct. 11.—A fairly active demand for the leading stocks advanced prices in the initial transactions today. Changes were restricted to fractions except in the case of Western Maryland, which rose a point. American Smelting, Southern Pacific and Southern railway preferred were in good demand at higher prices. Canadian Pacific showed some heaviness.

When Reading began to manifest weakness the whole list sold off, but the usual market leaders did not yield to much below yesterday's closing. Reading gave way from 137⅛ to 136¼. Large purchases of American Tobacco 4 per cent bonds advanced them 1½ to 89⅝. The 6's were neglected but held firm.

The demand for stocks today was confined almost entirely to the limited requirements of professional operators who did not wish to increase their commitments in view of the holiday tomorrow. Purchases for the retirement of short contracts gave the market an appearance of strength at the outset, but prices soon shaded off and the list became lifeless.

Almost the only activity was in American Tobacco 4's bonds, which were influenced favorably by reports that further concessions would be made to holders of these securities in the reorganization of the company. The Hill stocks were heavy, following the pessimistic utterances of the head of the system. Speculation was steady for a time in the second hour, but the general recovery was hindered by persistent selling of Reading, which went down to 135¾.

Lehigh Valley rose a point before reacting, and there was a rise of 1½ in United States Rubber and Southern Railway preferred, the latter responding to the very favorable annual report published today. Bonds were firm.

The market closed steady. The most significant movement of the day occurred in the last half hour. There was a rapid bidding up of all the leading stocks on large transactions. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Lehigh Valley, American Smelting and American Beet Sugar sold a point or more above yesterday's closing and the loss in Reading was recovered. United States Steel rallied less proportionately than the other market leaders and was one of the first to yield when profit-taking sales were begun. The whole list eased off before the close.

MARINE NEWS

HOPKINS IS HEARD FROM

The Derelict Lumber Hooker Sighted By Captain and Crew of Winnipeg.

Government Yacht Vidette Sent to Remove Obstruction From Vessel Course.

Word reached Duluth this morning that the abandoned steamer A. L. Hopkins, the derelict lumber hooker, which has for the past week been waterlogged and drifting in the course of vessels between Ashland and Keweenaw point, has been sighted by the captain and crew of the steamer Winnipeg of the Frontier Transit company.

The news came in the form of a telegram from Captain Thomas Hefferman, master of the Winnipeg, to Captain Albert Swenson of the Duluth hydrographic office. The message is as follows: "The steamer Winnipeg passed the wrecked steamer Hopkins about thirty miles from the Portage canal on the course to Outer Island."

James H. Darling, principal engineer under Maj. F. R. Shunk in the government engineer's corps here, this morning ordered the government yacht Vidette to go in search of the wrecked steamer and remove the Hopkins from the course of vessels. The information received from the Winnipeg today will probably aid Capt. Brown of the Vidette in locating the derelict.

After having sent telegrams to the owners of the Hopkins, the Dixon & Brown Transportation company of Cleveland, and waiting a reasonable length of time for a reply to the query as to what they intended to do with the wrecked steamer, Mr. Darling this morning decided that the government would take the matter into its own hands and the Vidette was sent this afternoon in search of the wreck.

The instructions given to Capt. Brown of the Vidette were that, if the Hopkins were located, she should be towed out of the path of vessels and if possible to shelter. Indications are that the vessel will probably be beached somewhere on the south shore. Otherwise, Capt. Brown will tow her to shelter behind one of the Apostle islands. Just what will be done will be left entirely to the judgment of Capt. Brown.

Just how much of the cargo of the Hopkins is still intact, is a question. The storms of the past week undoubtedly damaged the boat. The steamer Barth, downbound, reported having sighted the wreck and some lumber, evidently from her cargo, floating Friday afternoon. No other news of her reached Duluth until the telegram from the master of the Winnipeg was received this morning.

SAY LINE IS CERTAINTY

Scoffs of Marine Men Do Not Down Talk of Independent Boats.

Minneapolis People Said to Be Active in Preparation for Movement.

Despite the fact that vessel men brand the Flour City steamer line project as absurd, Duluth people who are in touch with Minneapolis flour shippers and traffic workers say that at least two boats will be in operation in a few days.

What they base the assertion on is unknown. Duluth vessel men say no boats suitable for the purpose are available. The only steamers that could possibly be secured, they say, are of small tonnage and could move only a small amount of the total tonnage the Minneapolis millers are said to have accumulated in anticipation of the 21½ cent rate becoming effective.

Nevertheless, it is understood that the Minneapolis people have been working along, preparing for the operation of the line. They haven't announced what boats they have obtained, but have said that they have the boats.

It is understood that an effort is now being made to have the interstate commerce commission recognize a through rate of 20.6 cents from Minneapolis to New York and other Atlantic seaboard points, via the Flour City line. The recognition is desired in order that the railroad lines east of Buffalo may be compelled to accept a proportional equal to that received from the 23-cent rate now in effect on lake and rail shipments. Should a joint rate, based on local rates, become effective, the amount to be received by the independent boat line would be so small as to entail a certain loss in operation.

Duluth vessel men continue to scoff, Minneapolis traffic men continue to make promises and the steamer line is not yet in operation, with the season of lake navigation drawing rapidly to a close.

RAZING OLD ELEVATOR.

Workmen Wrecking Old Structure Which Might Hamper Navigation.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ruins of the Wilkeson elevator, which burned about two months ago, are in danger of falling into the Buffalo river and seriously hampering navigation. Yesterday a wrecking gang employed by the Lackawanna railroad started the work of razing the ruins. This will take about two weeks and will be under the supervision of Buffalo building inspectors. The gale which swept over the Great Lakes last week weakened a number of the large timbers of the structure.

MUST EARN MONEY TO PAY THE RENT.

Vernalla V. York was arrested this morning on complaint of his wife, who charged him with non-support. When arraigned in police court he entered a plea of guilty and his case was continued until Nov. 1.

Mrs. York said that she wanted enough money to pay the rent at least, and that she did not want to take any promises. As the court didn't see how he could get the money without working, she could not get any more than a promise and York was allowed to go on his promise to get the necessary funds into his wife's hands in time to settle with the landlord. He said that he had a job which would pay him $3 a day.

Spirits at the Lyceum.

Every once in a while the thinking world is brought face to face with a fact which has caused the wisest of men to question the accuracy of human knowledge. The phenomenon in the present instance is Dr. Eddy, the famous spirit medium who has been startling the world and creating such a furore at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, filling that immense building for the past three months. The test that has caused the greatest amount of controversy is called De-Materialization. While the medium is surrounded by a committee, spirit figures appear on the stage. Disappearing they immediately appear among the audience in plain open light. Other experiments are slate writing, spirit pictures, the famous "Katie King" test, materializations of forms and faces. Sunday night, Oct. 15 Dr. Eddy will appear at the Lyceum.

GROUNDS ARE NOT TOO SMALL

Aviator McGoey Says He Will Surely Fly in Duluth Sunday.

"Since it was announced in The Herald last evening that I was going to fly at Athletic park Sunday," said Aviator Thomas McGoey, "many people have asked me if the park were not too small for a flight, and have expressed doubt of my getting away. "It is not too small. I will be taking chances, but I have looked the ground over, and I can make it. With favorable conditions I can rise from the ground in 75 to 100 feet, and I have all of 300 feet out there. Then the ground is so much smoother than the ordinary field, that I can get a much better start, and work up speed quicker. On a still day or with a light west wind, I could rise in 75 feet out there. The only thing that will stop me is a heavy northeast wind."

Mr. McGoey is staying with friends in Superior, but will come to Duluth with his machine Thursday or Friday.

In connection with the flight, the Adams and Jefferson football teams will meet in a game of football for the city championship.

The bell cost $286 and was paid for entirely by the Indians. E. E. Durkee of Cloquet has the contract for hoisting the bell.

RAILROADS

W. F. FITCH IS ADDED TO BOARD

South Shore Head Also Vice President of the Wisconsin Central.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 11.—At the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Central railroad yesterday afternoon, the following directors were re-elected: E. Pennington, J. S. Pillsbury, C. E. Wales, Alfred H. Bright, W. L. Martin, G. T. Jaffray, Minneapolis; Leroy W. Baldwin, New York; William Ervine, Chippewa Falls; Sidney G. Courteen, Milwaukee, and M. H. Ballou, Menasha.

One new director was elected, W. E. Fitch, Marquette, Mich.

The by-laws were amended to permit the addition of another vice president and W. F. Fitch was elected to that position. Mr. Fitch is also president of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad.

Vice President Albert H. Bright said no other improvements in Wisconsin were contemplated this year, than the completion of the line from Frederick to Superior.

The gross revenues of the Wisconsin Central diminished $417,000 because of improvements and increased operating expenses.

ALLEN TO HEAD THE CHICAGO & ALTON ROAD.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 11.—That A. A. Allen, president of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway, is to become president of the Chicago & Alton and subsequently president of the Minneapolis & St. Louis, after it absorbs the Iowa Central, is the report in railroad circles here.

Accompanying the report was the statement that the present joint management of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western and the Alton will be discontinued and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western will relinquish its sway over the Alton.

SANER RAILROAD LAWS ARE FAVORED

Mercer, N. D., Commercial Club Indorses Ideas of Hill and Elliott.

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The views expounded by President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific and James J. Hill of the Great Northern at Bismarck recently, in which they dwelt upon the question of railroad legislation, were heartily approved by the Commercial club at Stanton, Mercer county. The resolutions passed by that club are favorable to more lenient and more sane railroad legislation, on the theory that such procedure will bring about more construction work in the state and not hamper the railroads in their contemplated extensions of new lines.

Not only does the Stanton club approve of the sentiments expressed by the railroad men, but it also goes on record as being willing to work with that end in view, using all honorable means of bringing about a condition that will be more favorable to sane railroad legislation in the state.

NEW TRAFFIC AGREEMENT.

Will Help Marinette and Oconto Counties, Wis.

Marinette, Wis., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—An important traffic agreement has been completed between the Wisconsin & Northwestern railroad, the Dunbar & Wausaukee railroad and the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad. The owners of the two first named lines are the J. W. Wells Lumber company of Menominee. By the new agreement there will be practically a new line of railroad from the western part of Oconto and Marinette counties to the Twin Cities and Peshtigo. Over this road will be brought the timber owned by the J. W. Wells Lumber company. The new combination will take in a large area of timber lands.

The Wisconsin & Northwestern railroad now extends from Phillipsburg on the Dunbar & Wausaukee line west about twenty miles to the Peshtigo river and in fact across it into Oconto county. The logs will be brought over this line to Phillipsburg and then over the Dunbar & Wausaukee to Constine and there transferred to the Wisconsin & Michigan and brought to Menominee.

GREAT NORTHERN ELECTS DIRECTORS NEXT THURSDAY.

St. Paul, Oct. 11.—Three directors of the Great Northern Railway company will be elected next Thursday at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the company which will be held at the general offices in this city. The terms of J. J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors and Louis W. Hill and Frederick Weyerhauser, both directors, expire Thursday. It is generally believed all three will be re-elected.

J. J. Hill left last evening to speak at the Illinois state fair at Springfield.

THIRTY ESCAPE FIRE IN HOTEL IN ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty persons had more or less narrow escapes from death early this morning when fire damaged the Park hotel, Sixth and Wacouta streets, to the extent of $5,000. The blaze started in the store room of the hotel, and the fire department, fighting for an hour and a half, confined the flames to the first floor, while individual members of the department and members of the insurance patrol took the inmates from the second floor rooms.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Word has been received here of the death of Capt. Patrick J. Gallagher, who for more than twenty years was master of some of the largest vessels on the Great Lakes, at St. Catharines, Ont. He was 60 years old.

The steamer Eastern States, bound from Buffalo to Detroit broke her rudder in the Detroit river, Monday. Repairs were made at Detroit and the boat has again resumed her trips.

Notice has been received at the Duluth hydrographic office that the Pointe aux Frenes gas buoy No. 11 in the St. Mary's river will be removed and relocated after Oct. 10. The new location will be about 300 yards easterly from its present situation, where it will be in about twenty-four feet of water and more clearly define the turning point off Pointe aux Frenes.

RESCUED SAILORS ARE TAKEN TO DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 11.—The steamer City of Mackinac brought nine sailors who were rescued from the schooner Hayward off Harbor Beach Saturday to Detroit Monday. The boat went on the rocks in a gale and the members of the crew were rescued with the greatest of difficulty by the life savers. The men were nearly exhausted. They boarded the D. & C. boat at Mackinaw about midnight Sunday.

LIVINGSTONE WILL NOT FINISH OUT THE SEASON.

The crew of the Livingstone, the steamer which twisted its rudder a few miles out of the Duluth harbor Saturday night, will be transferred to Hartwell and that boat will finish out the season. The repairs to the Livingstone will require about a month and it is not thought that she will be placed in commission again this season. The Livingstone is owned by G. A. Tomlinson.

SAYS EVENING PAPER IS BEST!

"Evening papers are best. More evening hours are given by all members of the family to reading than morning hours. The evening ad is read, discussed, and the family buyer determines to 'go down town in the morning' or as soon as the work is done, and do the family shopping. WE NEVER USE MORNING PAPERS, but if we did it would simply be as a 'reminder' and not with the idea that the ad would be carefully read and discussed.

"UNCLE IKE'S" BARREL WIDE OPEN DURING WISCONSIN CAMPAIGN

Sums Like $1,800 Handed Out and No Questions Asked.

United States Attorney George Gordon Testifies at Inquiry.

Primary System Assailed By Attorney General Bancroft.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 12.—Money was distributed so liberally by Senator Isaac Stephenson during his campaign for nomination at the primaries in 1908 that sums as great as $1,800 were paid out without any accounting ever being given or asked.

George H. Gordon of La Crosse, United States attorney for the western district of Wisconsin, today so testified before the senatorial investigating committee. Before he held any public office, but while counsel for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad at La Crosse, Gordon said he was paid $1,800 out of the $107,793 Stephenson campaign fund, to be used in the senator's interest. He in turn distributed the money to others from whom he asked no accounting. He could not remember how much he had paid to individuals, but he kept no money for himself.

Question About Accounts.

The committee endeavored to show that the Wisconsin law required a rendering of a detailed account of expenses by not only the candidate, but his workers as well. Senator Pomerene took the position that it would be evasion to presume that only the candidate had to account, because then he would have merely to say he turned his funds over to a manager and no

NORTH DAKOTAN IS TRAIN ROBBER

State's Attorney Reports After Examining the Conditions.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—After making a personal investigation of conditions at the Redman farm near Buffalo, N. D., State's Attorney Arthur W. Fowler stated that "there was no possible doubt that John Young is the man, or at least one of the men, who held up Northern Pacific train No. 2 on July 10."

Young, who pleaded guilty to robbing the train Tuesday, was to have been sentenced yesterday, but owing to the investigation of Mr. Fowler, sentence was deferred. Young still maintains that he does not know the identity of the two men who assisted him in the hold-up. The Redman farm is where Young was employed this summer. He received his pay check there the night of the hold-up and attempted to prove an alibi.

Judge Pollock imposed a fifteen-year sentence on Young this morning.

Whether he is guilty or a dope fiend or mentally irresponsible or whether he admitted this crime to avoid some other punishment, is a puzzle to the officials. The court was undecided whether to accept the plea of guilty, so States Attorney Fowler investigated the matter.

OKLAHOMA INDIAN LAND CASES UP

About 30,000 Conveyances Before Federal Supreme Court.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Some 30,000 conveyances of Indian lands in Oklahoma today came up for scrutiny by the supreme court of the United States. The government is seeking to have these conveyances set aside on the ground that the Indians who made them were without the ability to do so, because of governmental restrictions against the Indians' alienating their land.

Having in view cancellation of these conveyances, the government in 1908 and 1909 brought 301 suits against 16,000 defendants. Four test cases have been fought through the lower federal courts and were up today for oral argument before the supreme court.

Objection was made to the suits on the ground that the United States had no interest in the subject matter of the litigation, that the Indians should have been made parties and that the suits were "multifarious."

The government has replied to the first two objections by saying it still stands as guardian for these Indians, despite the fact that it has made them citizens and given them title to the land, and to the last by a technical argument.

NEW YORK GIRL IS CLUBBED AND ROBBED.

New York, Oct. 12.—Agnes Waugh, a 19-year-old stenographer employed in New York and the daughter of George J. Waugh, a civil engineer, was beaten into insensibility as she was returning to her Bay Ridge home last night and it is feared she may die. An unknown assailant robbed her of her pocketbook and escaped.

Three bloodhounds were put on the man's trail, but he has not been captured.

DUKE OF BRAGANZA.

London, Oct. 12.—The duke of Braganza is the father of the young man known as Duke de Vizet, who married Anita Stewart of New York. He is the pretender to the throne of Portugal and it is reported that he is at the head of a movement which is intended to bring about a revolution in Portugal. His son, who made the American match, resigned his claims to the succession at that time.

CLAIM WOMEN GET BALLOT

Suffrage Leaders in California Predict Victory for Cause.

With 658 Precincts Unreported It Lacks But 800 Votes.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 12.—If the present ratio of gain is kept up woman suffrage will be shown to have carried by a safe majority. Belated returns this morning from sixty-eight precincts reduced the majority against suffrage to 356.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 12.—The fate of the proposed amendment to the state constitution that will, if carried, grant to women the right of the ballot, remains in doubt. The latest returns at hand show the proposed amendment to be 808 votes short of a majority, but as the vote of the big cities is completely counted, the supporters of the proposed amendment assert the belief that the country districts as yet unheard from will overcome this vote in opposition.

Six hundred and fifty-eight precincts remain to be heard from, and suffrage leaders said today that they expected to win by a majority of between 3,000 and 4,000 votes.

The three morning papers here said today the proposed amendment has a good chance to carry, and one of the papers predicts a majority of 4,000 for it. It probably will be late this afternoon before the result is known to a certainty.

Special Precautions Taken With Palace Guards at Pekin.

Pekin, Oct. 12.—Between 5,000 and 6,000 Chinese troops in Hankow native city are reported to have mutinied this morning and killed from 200 to 300 Manchus. The rebels occupied Sui Ting Fu yesterday. Elaborate military precautions have been taken to prevent any sympathetic revolutionary uprising in this city and the palaces are guarded by troops of proved loyalty.

Advices received here indicate that three regiments of the army participated in the revolt at Wu Chang.

It is believed the revolutionaries will attempt to destroy the railway and prevent the transport into Hu Peh province of the troops that were concentrated in Sze-Chuen last month.

The bierstube is arranged to illustrate the ideal toward which the brewers' congress announces it is working—a model for American public houses It is to be conducted on the basis of German resorts of similar character.

The exposition will close Oct. 22.

Attorneys Marble and Healy were busy preparing a list of witnesses to be heard tomorrow and Saturday. The list, it is said, will contain the names of half a dozen new witnesses. ### Chicago Knights of Columbus Celebrate Anniversary of Discovery.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—With elaborate pageants on land and water, Chicago today celebrated Columbus Day in honor of the 419th anniversary of the discovery of America.

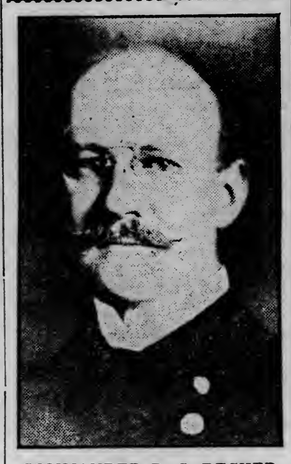

Members of the Knights of Columbus, impersonating Columbus, King Ferdinand, Queen Isabella and other characters of the period, boarded the three Spanish caravels at Jackson Park and sailed to Grant Park, where the party was welcomed by Mayor Harrison and other officials and the scenes marking the discovery of America were re-enacted with dignified ceremony. A reception was tendered to the actors in the historical drama, which was attended by thousands.

Solemn high mass was celebrated at the Holy Name cathedral in honor of the event, which was followed by a parade of Italian organizations in historical costumes with floats and allegorical reproductions of famous scenes in the life of Columbus.

The day's celebration was concluded with a number of banquets.

LOOKS BAD FOR JOHN R. WALSH

First Report of Parole Board Does Not Mention Him.

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 12.—In the first list of paroles granted by the federal board of paroles at its last meeting, the name of John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker, does not appear. Either ten or eleven men, at least two of whom were bankers, have been ordered released, it is understood.

Walsh's hearing came before those of some of the men who are to be paroled, it is understood. As the cases are taken up numerically by the board, this is thought to be an unfavorable sign for Walsh.

CINCINNATI GIRL BEATEN BY THUGS

Says She Was Attacked Upon Leaving Her Home.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The entire western section of this city was searched all night by special police in an endeavor to find two men who bound and gagged 17-year-old Edna Hogg in the rear of her home at 1793 Agnes street last night. When found the girl was unconscious and it was not until an hour later that she could tell of her experience.

She said she was walking in the rear yard when two masked men seized her, bound and gagged her and beat her with their fists. No assault was attempted according to her story.

A note pinned to her dress said: "Sorry we did not have acid to throw on her too." On the reverse side of the note it said: "From the one you did not like." The handwriting was little more than a scrawl and scarcely readable.

NO PICKETING AT CHICAGO SHOPS

Chicago, Oct. 12.—There was no picketing in the vicinity of the Illinois Central shops at Burnside by strikers today as a result of the injunction issued by United States Judge Humphreys at Springfield, Ill.

Quiet reigned and the police guard patrolling the plant had nothing to do.

Nearly 1,500 men reported for work. No disturbances followed the payment of the September wages to the strikers.

Strikebreakers Imported.

Grand Island, Neb., Oct. 12.—Hope that the local strike situation would solve itself has been abandoned by the local Union Pacific officials and the first installment of strikebreakers from the East arrived here today. About thirty were in the party. No violence attended their arrival. Strikers claim fifty helpers went out yesterday.

LEGAL HOLIDAY HALTS THE TRIAL OF JAMES B. McNAMARA

Columbus Day Brings Respite to Court Officials.

Clash of Counsel Expected in Examination of Talesmen.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 12.—Columbus Day, a legal holiday in this state, halted today the trial of James B. McNamara, under indictment for the murder of nineteen men in the explosion of the Times building here a year ago. When court reconvenes tomorrow, the examination of talesmen will be taken up where interrupted at the opening of the session of the trial yesterday.

The extensive offices of the two squads of attorneys presented a busy scene, notwithstanding the official respite today, and it was apparent that both sides have not yet made ready for the more important days of the trial, when the testimony of witnesses will be received.

The gist of the brief was decided upon several days ago at a conference held at St. Louis. It probably will be filed Jan. 8, if permission to file it is allowed by the supreme court.

CITY JEALOUSY FURNISHES INCIDENT IN TAFT'S TOUR

Fond du Lac, Wis., Almost Doesn't See the President.

Telegraph Wires Are Kept Hot During the Controversy.

Salem, Or., Oct. 12.—The Fond du Lac incident, the most interesting connected with the recent travels of a president, was officially declared closed on board the Taft special when it stopped for several hours here today on the way to Sacramento and San Francisco. And President Taft is looking forward to his visit to Fond du Lac in the insurgent state of Wisconsin, with an interest greater than that felt in any other city on his 13,000-mile itinerary.

The indications are that there will be a big time in Fond du Lac on Taft day, Oct. 26.

For a while it looked as though the gates of the city were to be closed against the chief executive of the nation, all because they thought it was Oshkosh, when it really was Appleton, that wanted to be treated a little more liberally in the division of the president's time on a busy October day in the home state of Senator La Follette, a rival candidate for the Republican nomination in 1912.

PLANS GREATEST SCENIC HIGHWAY IN THE WORLD

Port Arthur Man Here Working for North Shore Road.

Would Connect With Twin City Route—Automobile Advertising Campaign.

Wants Convention of Delegates From Three Cities Interested.

A campaign that has for its purpose, the placing of Duluth on one of the greatest automobile roadways in the country, is in its inception.

The roadway proposed is from here to Port Arthur, $20,000 having already been spent upon the building of the first leg of this road, that from Port Arthur to the boundary line at Pigeon river.

This road, in connection with one from here to the Twin Cities, would make this part of the country internationally famous as possessing one of the greatest drives in North America, from the standpoint of natural beauty and picturesque scenery, and would be the means of bringing thousand of tourists here.

N. G. Neal, industrial commissioner of Port Arthur, is in Duluth today working on the plan for an automobile road from Duluth to the head of the Canadian Lakes. Like many people in this city and many more in Port Arthur, Mr. Neal believes the completion of the proposed roadway would be the means of making Duluth, Two Harbors, Grand Marais and Port Arthur as famous to tourists as the various points in the famous White mountains.

Work Under Way.

Already the province of Ontario and several of the counties through which the road from Port Arthur to the boundary line passes, have contributed $20,000 to the building of the road. Something like forty miles of road has been constructed. There is twenty miles of good road going out from Port Arthur, while the remaining twenty miles from that point to the boundary line, is not so good, but is at the present time passable for an automobile. Much more money is to be expended on this road.

What Mr. Neal wants, and what the people up in the vicinity of Port Arthur and Fort William believe would be a very good thing, is for Duluth to get behind the movement for a road from here to the falls of Pigeon river, up along the North shore.

Cook county has guaranteed bonds to build its share of the proposed road, but some opposition is being met.

As Mr. Neal stated today, this road would lie right through one of the most naturally beautiful spots in the entire world. Through virgin forests, threaded and dotted by tiny lakes, winding around dells and wooded glens, following with graceful cure the shore of Lake Superior, following at times the shore of the lake from a lofty rocky eminence, this road would be one talked of from one end of the country to the other.

Up in the White mountains thousands of people tour each season in automobiles. With such a drive as the one proposed from Duluth to Port Arthur, in connection with the road from Duluth to the Twin Cities, this city would be the port of passage of autoists from every part of the United States.

Summer Hotels.

There would be need of summer hotels at Two Harbors and Grand Marais. There is at the present time a splendid hotel at Port Arthur, overlooking the lake, one that in the summer months is housing the many tourists who come to the Canadian Head of the Lakes over the Canadian railways. With the Twin Cities at one end of the line, receiving as they do each season, hundreds of motor parties from south, west, east and north, with Duluth with fine hotels and many attractions as the next stop, and then with the magnificent drive through the virginal beauty of forest and stream stretching away to the north—where would there be a more perfect motor trip in all the world, asks Mr. Neal.

In his enthusiasm for the movement, Mr. Neal proposes to hold a convention the coming winter, having as delegates people from Duluth, Port Arthur and Fort William.

He believes this convention would go far toward crystallizing action. He believes that this roadway would be the means of giving these cities national prominence and would also be the means of bringing thousands of dollars of outside money here.

When the road is completed, and Mr. Neal has infinite faith that it will be completed, he suggests that two big touring cars, one from Duluth and the other from Port Arthur, start out and make a trip from the Head of the Lakes to New York, advertising in every county and village on the way to the metropolis, the fact that a great automobile highway has been opened up in one of the most beautiful stretches of country in the whole world.

WILL MERGE WITH CACTUS

Combination Keating Property in Radersburg Will Be Taken Over.

The sudden interest that speculators have taken in the stock of the Cactus Copper company of Duluth, boosting its market value from 9 to 18 cents a share in the course of three days is due to a movement that is on foot for the merger of that company with the Combination Keating Mining company, whose offices are at Minneapolis.

Briefly, the plan is to have the Combination Keating deed over to the Cactus a forty-acre tract of gold-mining property in the Radersburg district of Montana, receiving in exchange stock of the Cactus. This Cactus stock is to be held in trust by the Combination for the benefit of its own stockholders, who will receive Cactus stock in exchange for Combination stock. After the exchange has been completed the Combination Keating company will lose its identity, having virtually become a part of the Cactus Copper company.

Some of the promoters of this project declared today that before they should even have it carried out, the stock of Cactus would be selling at 50 cents a share. "It means," said one of them, "that the mines of the Combination will be worked with the capital of the Cactus. Cactus used to have mining properties in Arizona, but it is doing no mining just now; but it has assets amounting to about $100,000. Combination, on the other hand, has a fine gold-mining property, improved with the most modern electrical mining devices. It has a shaft 140 feet deep. By expending $25,000 more, the Cactus company could put that property on a dividend-paying basis."

William A. Eaton of Duluth, president of the Cactus company, and Edward Collins, an expert mining engineer, will leave together next Saturday for the Radersburg district, and if the property is found by them to be what it has been represented by the Combination engineers, it will be purchased by the Cactus company without delay.

Mr. Eaton is himself a large shareholder in the Cactus company. There are four other Duluth men with him on the board of directors, namely, Guy Eaton, Horace L. Palmer, George H. Mance and H. B. Fryberger. The headquarters of the Cactus are in Duluth. A large portion of its stock, however, is owned by Eastern people, principally New Englanders. The company was organized about four years ago. It has never paid any dividends.

The head office of the Combination is located in Minneapolis, but its stock is owned mainly by people of Duluth and Butte. This company was organized last March. Its stockholders have never received any dividends.

MAY HAVE AN ASSISTANT

Another Man May Be Added to Working Force of Associated Charities.

Campaign for Funds Is Decided Upon at the Annual Meeting.

Secretary Courtenay Dinwiddie of the Associated Charities will probably be given another assistant.

This was decided yesterday at the annual meeting of the society which was held at Memorial hall, the courthouse.

A campaign for funds with which to carry on charitable work in the city will soon be launched. The society decided that as the central organization needs funds, steps shall be taken to secure them.

The churches and societies care for the several districts of the city as they have been apportioned but the Associated Charities is called upon at times for quick aid in emergency cases and at times of that kind, money is needed badly.

A committee was appointed to take charge of the matter of raising money to whatever amounts they think necessary. The same committee is also authorized to elect another assistant to Mr. Dinwiddie, if the work in the office seems to demand it.

The Central council met just previous to the meeting of the Associated Charities and by-laws were adopted. E. A. Silberstein was again elected to head the Associated Charities for the coming year and Courtenay Dinwiddie was re-elected secretary. Mrs. R. S. Holden was chosen vice president in palce of Mrs. T. J. Davis, resigned.

There were forty present at the meeting.

Mr. Dinwiddie made a detailed report of the work accomplished by the Associated Charities since he has been associated with it as secretary.

At the suggestion of the society the city health department is enforcing the laws in regard to midwives and hospitals maintained for babies. The Bethel society also followed suggestions from the society in making plans for its new building.

The secretary reported that between Dec. 1, 1910 and Oct. 1, 1911, 495 cases have been investigated and help extended. Of these 495 cases all but 173 are now closed. This means that they are now self sustaining and need no further help.

In the matter of relief work, 453 garments have been distributed. Seventy-four pairs of shoes, forty-two articles of furniture, sixty-four books and other needed articles have been given out.

In the matter of obtaining work for men, thirty temporary jobs have been found, six additional ones being permanent. Seven temporary jobs have been found for women and two permanent.

Miss Lucy Hernan, the visiting nurse, gave a detailed report of her work. She has made 616 calls since March 1. Dr. O. G. Rowe has contributed his services in cases where he has been needed to attend children.

MAN DIES AT THE COUNTY JAIL

Andrew Liljander, 50 years old, died in the county jail this morning.

He was serving a seven days' sentence for drunkenness.

As yet it is not known whether he died from the result of alcoholism or from a bad gash over his eye.

He was picked up several days ago very drunk and was sent to the jail by the municipal judge to sober up. When he was arrested he had a bad cut over the eye, which he said he sustained as the result of a fall.

Dr. Murphy attended him. An inquest will be held.

SCHOOL FAIRS AT TWO TOWNS

County Superintendent of Schools N. A. Young is busy these days with the agricultural exhibits being given in the country school houses.

Today miniature county fairs are being held at Kelsey and Cook. Friday there will be an exhibition at Palo and Saturday at Embarrass.

The shows are great successes. The children have taken a great interest and the results are pleasing to those who promoted the idea. The seed was furnished by the Duluth Commercial club.

On Oct. 20 an exhibition will be held at the courthouse. The winners in the county exhibitions will be the entrants.

BOYS MAY HAVE LEFT TOGETHER

The police believe that Earl Linkem, 12 years of age, who has been missing from his home at 706 East First street since Saturday evening, ran away with another boy, George Etchoe, 17 years old. Saturday Etchoe told a chum that he would soon be going to his mother's home in British Columbia, but that he believed that he would go to Anoka to see his "girl" first. It appears that young Linkem decided to accompany him, and it is claimed that both boys went to the Twin Cities Saturday night, boarding a late train after having bought tickets. As far as can be learned, they have not been at Anoka, and thus far have not been located in the Twin Cities.

HAPPENINGS AT BOYS' BUILDING

The Sunday club committee of the boys' department, Y. M. C. A., met at the boys' building last evening. The following members were present: Julius Nolte, Kenneth Harris, Walter Wilander, Arthur Wasgatt, Harold Smithies, Ralph Dunning and Earl Thompson. The committee selected speakers and leaders for the Sunday afternoon meetings for older boys.

The intermediate committee will meet today at 5 o'clock and make arrangements for the opening meeting, which will be held Sunday at 3 o'clock.

The boys' department orchestra has been organized and the boys have commenced weekly practice. Any members who play any kind of instruments are cordially invited to join the club.

All the gymnasium classes have been organized and are doing good work. The physical director is planning to give a gymnasium exhibition once every month. This will give parents and friends an opportunity of seeing what is being accomplished in the gymnasium.

TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT HERE

The tuberculosis exhibit of the state board of health is on display in the basement of the First Baptist church, during the state Baptist convention, now in session here. Since the exhibit was here three years ago it has been taken to more than 100 different cities and towns.

A. R. Blakey, who is in charge, says that tuberculosis should be treated in its incipiency. According to his figures, 75 per cent of the patients can be saved if treated in time, while if the disease is far advanced, the percentage is cut down to 3 or 4 per cent.

In Minnesota last year, according to Mr. Blakey, 2,250 pe ple died from tuberculosis, a decrease of 50 over 1909.

PLATFORM OF PROGRESSIVES

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A definite platform and program has been outlined by the governing board of the Minnesota Progressives. At a meeting held in the commercial club rooms of St. Paul, seven principles were laid down as follows:

"Nominate all elective officers by direct vote of the people, including national senators and presidential delegates with instructions as to choice for president."

"Purify the ballot by a thoroughgoing corrupt practices act."

"Free the party from domination by political bosses and special interests."

"Secure responsibility, economy and efficiency in public service."

"Conserve and reclaim natural resources."

"Restrain with a strong hand business and corporate greed."

These slogans will spread throughout the state and be followed by a systematic campaign.

Lighting Talks

NUMBER 75 DULUTH, OCTOBER 12, 1911

Truth Will Prevail

Recently a man came into the electric light office and said: "Look here, my light bills are altogether too big! Why, they average $5 a month, and that's more than I ought to pay. There's something wrong somewhere."

This man admitted that his house was a big house, much larger than the average home in Duluth, that he had a large number of electric lamps, and that he had never been economical or sparing in his use of electric light—he always burned all the lights he wanted and as long as he wanted them. He had no complaint to make of the service he got.

He had in his hand his latest bill, which was for $5 gross. The sight of that figure had driven from his mind the fact that he was entitled to a discount of 20 per cent for prompt payment, making the actual amount of his bill $4 net.

Consultation of the company's books showed him that his bills for a year past had actually averaged less than $3 a month, for he had paid a total of barely $35 for all the electric light he had used in a full year's time.

This man had paid his bills by check. He went home and found that his check-stubs and cancelled checks tallied exactly with the account shown by the company's books. Then he wrote the company a letter apologizing for his "kick."

This company did not want any apology. We were glad he came in and gave us the opportunity of showing him the truth.

Now this experience is cited because it is typical of the way perfectly well-meaning but uninformed people will sometimes make hasty, irresponsible, and utterly mistaken statements about this company and about the electric lighting business.

The Duluth-Edison Electric Company is responsible to the People of Duluth, not only for the service it provides, but also for the statements it makes. We must and do stand back of every fact and figure used in these Lighting Talks with absolute proof of their truth.

Nobody who knows what he is talking about can deny that a municipal electric plant would increase enormously the City debt and would make taxes go higher and higher for years to come. Nobody who knows anything about the electric light business can deny that in competition with this company a municipal plant would be an utter failure.

THIS COMPANY CANNOT BE "STRANGLED"—not because it is too strong, but because CONFISCATION IS FORBIDDEN BY THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION, the very foundation of all law and all government in this land.

Are YOU willing to have YOUR city violate the National Constitution for the sake of a municipal plant that would only be an everlasting burden and disgrace to YOU, the People of Duluth?

Think about this, and read the next Lighting Talk in next Saturday's Herald.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Forbes Stock company in "The Spoilers."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

"It's horrid being the dupe of clever and crooked politicians," said Miss Corrine Cantwell between the acts of "The Spoilers" which the Gus A. Forbes Stock company is presenting this week at the Lyceum. "and I am nearly scared to death every performance that I won't get to the Midas in time with the 'papers' which prove that Mr. Forbes, I mean Mr. Glennister is in the right and that right will triumph. This is the most strenuous week I've put in for some time what with escaping from quarantined ships, visiting questionable dance halls, and warning vigilantes and such like but I like it," said Miss Cantwell, "and I hope some time I can go to gold fields when there's a rush on. Also I hope I will find a claim with gold underneath and valuable timber on top and good agricultural land in between. That I think is the kind of claim to get. What fun it would be to be in on the first of anything, life in a mining camp especially. But you'll have to excuse me, I've got to meet the brute at the road house."

"The Spoilers" is a play that would have suited the former strenuous president of the United States, for action is the key note of "The Spoilers" and it is proving popular with the stock company patrons.

The play will be repeated tonight and Saturday afternoon and night. The first performance of "Regeneration" will be given Sunday afternoon.

Miss Mazie King, the toe dancer who is at the Orpheum this week, wants to walk down all the flights of stairs in the Alworth building on her toes. It would be a comparatively easy feat for her, after what she accomplished in New York, where she walked from the top of the Metropolitan tower to the street on the tips of her toes. The tower is forty-five stories high, or more than three times as high as the Alworth building.

"I did it on a wager," said Miss King. "Some of my friends claimed I could do it, and a small bet resulted from the argument. The Alworth building would be easy after that, for it is only sixteen stories high, they tell me, although this is a much higher skyscraper than most cities the size of Duluth can boast of.

"Many people think toe dancers wear some kind of a steel brace in the soles of their shoes, but this is not correct. The sole of the shoes I wear is made of soft and pliable leather. The toes are padded to protect my feet from the boards of the stage, but there is no brace of any kind for the instep, and a toe dancer walks and dances directly on the ends of her toes. The same man who makes the shoes for Genee and Pavlowa makes them for me and for dozens of other toe dancers. In fact he has almost a monopoly on the business.

Vilmos Westony, the Hungarian pianist, who is playing popular and classical music at the Empress this week has been in America only a short time and since his arrival on this side has been appearing in vaudeville theaters of Sullivan & Considine. Although his success in vaudeville has been little short of phenomenal, he has decided to return to the concert platform for which he was originally engaged, although as he says it does not pay quite as well.

"In vaudeville," says Westony, "I am compelled by the managers to play both popular and classical music, usually following a big classical selection with some rag-time, interspersed with comedy. The musical critics take exception to this and very often question my art, on the theory that a great artist would not descend to popular music. They make a mistake, of course, for I play for the masses while I am in vaudeville, while the musical critic belongs to the classes or rather believes he does. I am even told that Madam Schumann-Heink was criticized for singing, The Rosary. It is very funny to me. If the audience applauds until the hands be sore, the critic believes the audience is wrong and he alone is right. He is a great man, this American critic. In Budapest, where I was born, the nobility asked me to play this American ragtime, as it is what you call a relaxation, and the nobility has become soaked with Wagner, Chopin, Bizet and the others. In this country, the vaudeville managers ask me to play something the patrons understand and something they do not understand. The vaudeville manager knows his business; he knows what the patrons want better than does the critic. If I played all classical music, the critic would praise me and call me a great artist, but the audience would go to sleep and then nobody would come to hear me except the critic—and he wouldn't pay anything."

HERE IS A REAL DYSPEPSIA CURE

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Headache Five Minutes Later.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order Stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occassionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved in five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

FERRY COMPANY TO FIGHT.

Soo Boat Concern to Resist 5 Cent Fare Ordinance.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officials of the trans-St. Mary's Traction company, owners of the ferry line operating between this city and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have announced that they will fight the ordinance recently passed in this city reducing the fare from 10 to 5 cents excepting during the winter months when the 10 cent fare may be charged. The 5 cent ferry fare, an unknown luxury here, is to begin next Tuesday according to the ordinance. The officials of the company say they will ask for an injunction before that time.

They Come Out Boldly.

Much interest is manifested in the open light seance of Dr. Eddy to be given at the Lyceum Sunday night, Oct. 15. Investigators of spiritualism propound these questions: "Is there anything of value in the renassaince of spiritualism which is at present occupying the attention of Eastern folks? Do we approach any nearer that forbidden territory by any system of soul telegraphy than our generation did thirty-five years ago, when John Dale Owen was listening for footsteps on the boundary of another world, dying at last because he heard them not? Is there in telepathy that entitles it to the name of an exact science? Dr. Eddy, the medium, will attempt to define this occult force and undertake to demonstrate spirit power by the production of such phenomena as spirit pictures, materializations of forms and faces, floating tables and chairs, etc., all in the open light.

IS KILLED ON STEAMER

Sailor Meets Instant Death While Loading Ore Boat.

Blow on Temple From End of Cable Proves Fatal.

Jack Orth, a sailor, was instantly killed last evening by being struck on the temple by a cable, on board the steamer Stone, which was loading ore at the dock of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road.

The men had just finished loading the boat, and the hatches were being placed in position with the aid of a dinkey engine and a cable. Orth started to detach the cable and in some manner the end of it swung and struck him on the temple, knocking him down and killing him almost instantly.

Orth was a single man, about 22 years of age, and had no relatives in Duluth as far as known. The body was taken to Flood & Horgan's undertaking establishment.

SHOALS WILL BE DREDGED

Work in St. Louis Bay Will Be Completed in Three Weeks.

In less than three weeks time, work will be completed on the government job of dredging the shoals in the channels of St. Louis bay. The Northern Dredge & Dock company of this city, which has had the work in hand since the first of August, expects to finish the job by that time.

About 100,000 cubic yards of sand is being removed from the old channels by the dredges. This is the first time that the course has been cleared out by the dredges since the channels were deepened in 1900.

The Northern Dredge & Dock company was the lowest bidders for the work and the contract was let to it for $17,000.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

The gas buoy at the entrance of the Ashtabula harbor is out of order, but will be repaired as soon as possible. Masters have been notified that a red light will mark the spot at night.

At Ashland, the steamers Republic and Colgate have arrived in port with coal cargoes. The tug J. L. Williams also arrived yesterday from Bark Bay with the scow Acme in tow, carrying 4,300 poles.

The steamer J. H. Wade, which was in a collision with the steamer Corus, will probably be docked today at Cleveland. She has a half dozen damaged plates.

The wrecker H. W. Baker has the contract for floating the steamer Favorite, which is on the bottom at Buffalo and the wrecker Reed is at work on the government dredge Maumee, which is on the extension of the east breakwater at Cleveland.

The freighter W. J. Filbert, which loaded with ore at Escanabe, brought to Conneaut, O., this week, the largest ore cargo of the season, reporting in with 11,300 tons, or 200 tons more than the previous record held by the William Palmer.

Following an investigation conducted by Detroit steamship inspectors of the collision between the sand steamer C. H. Little and the freighter James H. Hoyt, the licenses of Capt. Thomas Fowler of Detroit, master of the Little and N. DuClos, first officer of the Hoyt, have been suspended for ten days, dating from Oct. 4.

Capt. W. W. Smith, marine superintendent of the Pittsburg Steamship company has started a cofferdam for the steamer Follet, which is on the bottom in the St. Clair river. The Cofferdam will be built on land and towed to the sunken steamer.

The city council at Saginaw will be asked to establish a dock line for the Saginaw river.

LAUNCH LIGHTSHIP FOR THE MILWAUKEE HARBOR.

Muskeegon, Wis., Oct. 12.—Lightship No. 90, a sister vessel to Knuckle No. 94, has just been launched at the Racine boat manufacturing plant here.

The craft goes to Milwaukee, where it will be stationed just outside the harbor. It is the second boat of the type in this hemisphere. Like Knuckle No. 94, it is in reality a floating lightship, the light being placed at the top of a steel shaft which is built hollow in such fashion that the men may reach it without being exposed to the weather.

Also just completed at the Racine plant is the lightship tender Camillia, which is built to furnish ships stationed at lighthouses with the usual government supplies.

ALLOW PASSENGER BOATS TO TRANSPORT ALCOHOL.

All passenger carrying boats are affected in a ruling, which has been made by D. N. Hoover, Jr., acting supervising inspector general of the department of commerce and labor at Washington at the request of a Detroit steamship company. The ruling allows passenger boats to transport wood, denatured and grain alcohol, provided that the fluid is placed in iron drums or good iron bound drums and not stored in a hot place.

MORE CAUTION IN EXCHANGING SIGNALS.

Masters of vessels on the Great Lakes should use greater caution in exchanging whistle signals, especially in the harbors, according to a circular letter sent out from the office of James Stone, supervising inspector of the Ninth district at Cleveland.

The letter states that the duties of the steamboat inspectors are not confined to cases where damage has been sustained.

"I recommend that the local boards deal as firmly as possible in cases where no damage has occurred as in any other case," says the report. "For in so far as we can enforce the general observance of the rules, we get that much nearer avoiding accidents which may have been caused by the non-observance of the pilot rules."

The letter continues that the inspectors should insist that a master of a steamer being towed by a tug, must signal as well as the tug.

It has been the custom to let the captain of the tug do the signaling. The inspector rules the master is as much liable as the tug captain of signals.

LET CONTRACT FOR ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.

Thomas H. C. Wright, an electrical contractor of this city, has been awarded the contract for the complete electrical equipment of the government tug Essayons. The contract was let this week at the United States Engineer's office for $907. A searchlight will be placed on the tug in connection with the other electrical installation.

Missouri Damaged.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 12.—The steamship Missouri of the Northern Michigan line, which was aground at Mackinaw, has arrived in port, badly damaged. The Illinois, of the same line, is still aground at Northport, where she ran on Friday night. Tugs from every nearby port north are at the place and expect to move the boat.

May Come to Duluth.

The new steel freighter, John N. Schoonmacher, the largest bulk freighter on fresh water, which is expected to come to Duluth light for ore on her maiden trip, cleared at Toledo Monday for Sheboygan taking with her more than 13,000 tons of coal, which is a record. The Schoonmacher is in command of Capt. Thomas H. Sanders.

Bixby Loads Grain.

The steamer W. K. Bixby of the National Steamship company of Detroit is today loading grain for a trip to Buffalo. The Bixby has been idle most of the summer and most of the time has been anchored in the harbor. She will probably clear port either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Tug Inspected.

After a thorough inspection yesterday afternoon at the Grignon ship yards, the tug Mentor of the Northern Dredge & Dock company had its certificate of inspection renewed. The inspection was made by the local government steamboat inspectors, Monaghan and Chalk.

SHORTAGE OF MONEY.

Applications for loans of $382,000, with only $60,000 available, is the situation that State Treasurer W. J. Smith finds this fall in meeting the demands of the state school districts.

Treasurer Smith is in the city, a guest at the Spalding.

Each year, he says, the schools ask for the amount they will need to repair the roads and paths leading to the schoolhouses, but usually there is enough in the treasury to meet the situation.

On account of several large items of expenditure during the past few months, the fund has become depleted and Treasurer Smith is in a quandry. It is probable that many of the districts will have to wait a few weeks for the money.

GASOLINE BOAT BURNS IN HARBOR

The Charles M., Jr., a small gasoline launch owned in Superior, was destroyed by fire in the Lake avenue slip about 11:30 o'clock last evening. An end of the naval reserve boathouse was scorched, but the damage was slight, the loss will probably be between $300 and $400. What caused the explosion which fired the launch is unknown. One of the young men who had come over in the boat was trying to start the engine when it occurred. He sustained a bad burn on one hand, while a companion had a cut on his hand. They disappeared before their names could be learned by the fire department officials.

Thinness Easily Overcome

(From "Health and Beauty").

Further evidence is being presented almost daily that a recent compound of new chemical elements combined in a tablet with hypophosphites is in reality proving a blessing to the abnormally thin men and women, for it can be demonstrated beyond doubt that a regular course of three or four months' treatment brings an increase in weight of from 10 to 30 pounds, with a decided improvement of health and color too. For self administration the most popular form is to be found in three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, obtainable in sealed packages from the best apothecary shops, with full directions.

WOMAN'S REALM.

"As no chain is stronger than its every link, so our Federation cannot be stronger than its every member, so let us as individuals try to improve ourselves not only along the lines of culture but morally and spiritually as well that we may place our Federation at the head of everything that is high and good." This was one of the sentiments expressed by Mrs. E. H. Loyhed this morning at the club room of the library when she and Dr. Flora L. S. Aldrich spoke before the members of the Twentieth Century club and their friends.

"I feel," she said, "that we have great opportunities ahead of us to work on and that we are all favored women, getting a fine training which is needed in fitting us for proper citizenship, and I feel that no woman can be a club member without being better fitted for a home maker. No good work can be done until we have been trained and the club work is giving us a more thorough training than any other thing towards making us good citizens. Club women should read the club papers and the newspapers and learn what others are doing that they can do it too but I say that that they can do it too, but I say that in harmony the club work will not be a success.

"Women know much more about housekeeping than men, therefore they know much more about civic housekeeping and the results of the proper keeping of streets and alleys, they know more about the training of a child than men do so they have their work to do and they will have to keep at it to show the men that they do know how to run things. We must not let the men know that we do not know it all, but we must lead them gradually to have confidence in our judgment and our ability to execute reforms and carry on great things that they will come to ask for our help more and more.

Prevention.

"What I want to work for is to save the women and girls of the state from having to be sent to the institutions and schools for reforming them and just some effort put forth by the club women would do a great deal along this line. The Federation has accomplished a great deal in making the state school for girls a home school where they are taught the things taught in our own homes to our own daughters and a few things which the club women of the state could work for which would help are the opening of the school buildings for social centers and the establishing of classes, sewing societies, and social clubs among the girls and women so that they could become interested and broadened. This work is especially needed in the outlying districts to brighten the lives of the people living there and little excursions made by clubs or groups of individuals would be such a boon to them.

"The clubs should work for the passing of a state law which will state that the public school buildings may be used in the state as social centers, and this can be done, for we need it in Minnesota."

She also spoke of the Brotherhood movement which originated in New York, where every man took some young boy and took a kindly and helpful interest in his affairs. She suggested that every club woman present take some girl and help her by taking a friendly interest in her life, her friends, her clothes and her work, and giving her advice and counsel.

Dr. Aldrich Speaks.

Dr. Flora Aldrich read a most interesting paper on the history of women from the earliest ages down, with their relative advantages and the different stages of life which they have gone through, and of the women of the present day. She said: "Women of the present day now work everywhere uplifting homes and bettering conditions. The women of this age have done more than their share, and the printing press has been woman's best friend.

"The chief hope now is to obtain equal suffrage."

She spoke of the struggle that woman has had in being recognized along educational, scientific and medical lines but she was most hopeful for the growth of the equality of women to men in all lines.

For the first time on any concert program the great "Dick Johnson" aria from the much talked of opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," will be sung here tomorrow evening by Riccardo Martin at the concert to be given at the Lyceum theater by Alice Nielsen and her concert company, and this distinguished tenor, especially engaged as soloist for this occasion. The right to sing it in concert has but recently been given to Mr. Martin, and this will be his first use of it at the Duluth concert.

The advance sale of tickets for the concert indicates that music lovers of this city are looking forward to the entertainment with more than ordinary interest.

Martin's glorious tenor, so often likened to that of his colleague, Caruso, will be heard in several operatic arias that are always worth while, and Miss Nielsen is always the great artist who is now at her vocal best. This

"Good Night, Sir!"

By Gaston Cherau.

When Carriveau first came to the office, he entered so timorously that scarcely anyone noticed him. He might have been a mouse. He sat down at his desk, did what he was told, and asked no questions. For a month his only wish was that he would be tolerated. He was like a lost dog that has found a porch where the wind blows, but the rain doesn't fall.

And then, insensibly, he opened his wings, and moved about the room, he talked, he arranged his desk to suit himself, he took root without anyone noticing it.

A day came when he distributed the work, another day when he gave advice to the newcomers. He became quite at home, so much at home that the chief himself no longer felt he had the courage to say to him: "Carriveau, my friend, your work is neglected."

"What! My work neglected? You surprise me."

The clerks said "Mr. Carriveau," with a certain deferential tone, and when Carriveau asked them, "Is the chief in?" he did not wait for their answer, but would walk straight into his employer's room.

"My dear Carriveau," the chief would say, "you will be so good as to knock." My dear Carriveau did not appear to hear.

"I was going to say," he began, seating himself in an arm chair.

"Listen, Carriveau," the chief would sometimes say.

And Carriveau, smiling and bowing, would reply, "Sir?"

"Carriveau, this useless zeal will not do! Life is becoming unbearable for my employes. It won't do at all! If you go on you'll put me in an embarrassing position, my friend."

Carriveau did not reply. He smiled like a master who knows his power and abuses it. He was like those limpets which cling the tighter to the rock the more you seek to pull them off.

When he would go, the chief would blaze with anger and dictate a letter to Carriveau: "My dear Carriveau, I see myself obliged to deprive myself of your services."

The office was told Carriveau was going. The juniors spoke of celebrating the occasion, but Carriveau arrived, shut himself in with the chief, and an hour later they came out arm in arm. Carriveau, with head erect, the chief as shame-faced as if caught in the act.

But one day Carriveau had made several needless dismissals. The chief entered little Bordage's room and said to him: "This time I have had enough of it! Carriveau must go. Tell him for me not to put a foot inside this office again. See!"

Little Bordage scratched his head. He was perplexed.

"You understand, sir," said little Bordage, "but do you not think it would be better to send him a letter?"

"A letter! a letter! Bordage? He's had twenty letters, and he's always here. You may smile, if you think it's a laughing matter! He comes to me like a disappointed suicide and then it's woes, woes. He is unhappy; he dines by himself every evening. You don't know what it is to dine alone. It seems it is the worst of miseries. Or, again, it's his mother who is dying. She's been ten years on her death bed, that woman. What a dreadful disease. But the worse for Carriveau who is going, perhaps, to lose his dear old mother; but I want no more of him. Send him about his business. I'm going for a holiday, and if I see him here when I come back, it's you that will go, my little Bordage!"

And having installed little Bordage in his private room, the chief went home with a light step once again at having given Carriveau the door.

A little later little Bordage heard a voice saying, "I see the chief's not in?"

He felt his heart stop. It was Carriveau coming in, hat on head and cracking his fingers.

"Little Bordage, you do look worried!"

"I am worried, replied Bordage. "I am worried, because the chief has told me to dismiss some one, and I don't know how to go about it."

"If it Morlet he means?"

"It's some one we can't get rid of."

"Can't get rid of?"

He burst out laughing and then told me how he would go about it.

"You understand. At the same time," ventured little Bordage, "if you don't mind we'll have a rehearsal. Right? Well, I'll sack you!" He leaned back in his arm chair and began: "Mr. Carriveau, I have asked you here to tell you that we find ourselves obliged to deprive ourselves of your services, and this time, definitely. Your work is bad, and you meddle with things that don't concern you."

At the same time he rose, put his hand on Carriveau's shoulder, and gently guided him to the door. "Not at all bad. Not at all bad," approved Carriveau, "but put a little more spirit in it."

"Then, Mr. Carriveau," went on little Bordage, "I earnestly hope your old mother will be restored to health and that you won't have to dine alone in the evening. I have made up what is due to you."

He handed a paper to him, opened the door, and pushed him out, adding dryly, exactly as Carriveau would have done, "Good night, sir."

"Not at all bad," said Carriveau, "but I want to point out to you—"

The door was shut again, the bolt was in its place.

"Bordage!"

Then, stupefied, Carriveau looked at the paper he held in his hand, saw it was for him and stood stock still. The clerks smiled.

This was how little Bordage, who was a timid little chap, and whom they said was a girl, turned the tables on the terrible Carriveau, the terror of master and men.

PHOTOGRAPH FROM AEROPLANE

Aviator Will Take Picture of Crowd at Athletic Park Sunday.

A genuine bird's eye view of a Duluth crowd will be impressed on a camera plate Sunday at Athletic park.

Thomas McGoey, the aviator who will fly Sunday afternoon at the ball park, is planning to take a camera up with him Sunday, and take a picture of the crowd at Athletic park from the air.

The camera will be adjusted as well as possible before he leaves the ground, so that he will have little to do but press the bulb. The lens of the camera will be pointed directly downward, so he should get a picture of the thousands of faces staring up at him.

Pictures from aeroplanes are rare, and none has ever been taken in Duluth.

McGoey will probably arrive in Duluth with his plane tomorrow morning. The aviator carries a tent with him in which the machine is kept. The process of setting up the aeroplane takes several hours, and the tent is used to keep out the curious crowds.

The aviator has received numerous requests from Duluth men and women who want to make an ascension with him. He is rather doubtful of being able to carry a passenger Sunday, but says if the weather conditions are perfect he may attempt it.

MRS. R. C. VINCENT WILL BE BURIED FRIDAY

MRS. R. C. VINCENT

The funeral of Mrs. R. C. Vincent, 67 years of age, who died at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at Rochester, will take place Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 527 West Third street. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First M. E. church, will have charge of the services.

Mrs. Vincent was one of the best known of Duluth's pioneer residents and was one of the leaders in all charitable work a few years ago. She is survived by her husband, her son, George, and two sisters. Her husband, her son and his wife were at her bedside at the time of her death. Mr. Vincent was a member of the firm of Hubbard & Vincent, a large lumber company which formerly operated a saw mill in the western end of the city.

BOY HELD FOR NON-SUPPORT

Samuel Rose, 16 years old, one of the youngest husbands ever arraigned in police court, was up yesterday afternoon on a charge of non-support, the warrant having been sworn out by his wife.

He entered a plea of not guilty and his trial was set for this afternoon.

When Rose first left his wife, who is about his own age, it was reported that she was in most destitute circumstances, with almost nothing in the home to eat. It was stated that she had returned to the home of her mother on First avenue east.

VICE PRESIDENT AT STURGIS, MICH., FETE.

Sturgis, Mich., Oct. 12.—Vice President Sherman, scheduled to speak here late this afternoon, is the important feature of the second day's celebration marking the opening of the Sturgis dam. It is expected that the vice president will discuss conservation and perhaps comment on reciprocity, as the great majority of his audience will be farmers.

LAST DAY OF CONVENTION

Baptist Conference Was One of Most Successful Ever Held.

Principal M. B. Price Tells of Growth of Pillsbury Academy.

With a song service which will be followed by a meeting for unfinished business at the First Swedish church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, the Fifty-second Minnesota State Baptist convention, which has been on in Duluth since Monday, will come to a close.

The convention has been one of the most successful ever held by Minnesota Baptists. There were about 150 delegates in attendance throughout the conference and every department of the work in Minnesota has been represented.

At the session held this morning at the First church, there were reports by the committee on resolutions, the convention treasurer, the finance committee and addresses by Rev. A. F. Ham, Rev. O. Bergstrom, Rev. A. Erickson and Rev. P. G. Nelson.

The reports and short talks were followed by discussions of the different phases of the subjects.

This afternoon Sunday school work was under discussion. Rev. W. E. Risinger spoke on "The Sunday School as an Educational Agency in Constructing a Christian Commonwealth." The discussion which followed the talk by Rev. Risinger was opened by A. A. Oestreich.

One of the most interesting talks of the conference was given by M. B. Price, principal of Pillsbury academy at Owatonna, Minn.

Pillsbury is a college preparatory school maintained at Owatonna by the Baptists of the state. It has a large endowment fund which enables young men and women to get a higher education at a nominal cost.

Dr. Price gave a most interesting talk on the growth of the school during the few years past and the prospects and plans for the future.

Proud of School.

Baptists of Minnesota are rightfully proud of this school for under able management and having originally the advantage of a beautiful location, the school has grown from the beginning, which was in a small frame building, to one of the largest schools of the kind in the west.

During the past few years more ground has been acquired, which, together with what the original plot comprised, surrounds the large and imposing buildings with one of the most beautiful campus grounds imaginable.

The buildings and grounds are valued at over $500,000. At present there are about 225 pupils. Fourteen instructors comprise the faculty.

While not strictly a military school in the matter of disipline, Pillsbury offers a thorough course in military instruction. Pillsbury cadets have in the past shown the thorough manner in which they are drilled by excellent showing made against the state troops.

A new dining hall has just been completed. This building is almost the last one needed to make Pillsbury thoroughly up to date. Dormitories, a gymnasium, a central administration hall, a music building, beautiful grounds, and adequate athletic grounds go to make Pillsbury one of the most modern schools of the kind in this part of the country.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon there were more reports and the annual election of officers.

The Baptist Young People's union later this afternoon held a business meeting and elected their officers for the coming year.

This evening the convention closed with a meeting at the First Swedish church. The delegates left the city on afternoon and evening trains, bringing to a close one of the most successful conventions ever held by the Baptists of Minnesota.

WILL KEEP THE STREETS CLEAN

Despite the shortage of funds at the command of the board of public works, a determined effort will be made to keep the streets in the downtown section clean until the snow falls.

The mayor has taken the matter up with the board members and they will do all in their power to keep them free from dirt. This will also relieve the condition in the spring, when it becomes necessary to remove the accumulation of months. This is bad enough without having that of two months in the fall added to it. The fall months are sometimes very windy and the dust becomes decidedly unpleasant if steps are not taken to keep the streets fairly clean.

CARRIES REVOLVER FOR SELF DEFENSE.

"I carried that revolver for self defense," said Richard Cullen, in explaining his arrest and fine for carrying concealed weapons. "I frequently have to carry large sums of money in promoting my mining company, and I have been attacked before in other cities. I asked permission to carry a revolver and while Chief Troyer said he could not give me written permission to do so, there was nothing secret about it. I still claim I used it only in self defense the other night, and did not point it at the man, but merely drew it from my pocket and showed it to him."

ASSAILANT FREED; VICTIM IS JAILED.

Ingvall Jacobson was arrested on a charge of assaulting Dan Arnson yesterday afternoon and Arnson was locked up on a charge of drunkenness.

When arraigned in police court both entered pleas of guilty, but Jacobson was allowed his freedom while Arnson got $15 and costs or fifteen days in the county jail.

It appeared that Jacobson is a newcomer and that Arnson has been making a practice of favoring the company of newcomers, and among other things, getting drunk at their expense. Jacobson started in to "take it out of his hide" when the police interfered, sending them both to headquarters.

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 1503rd Av., N., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peruna has done me a world of good I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some who has suffered as I did.

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peruna.

Our Medical Department receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womankind.

Of the vast multitude of women who take Peruna only a very small percentage consider it necessary to write us on the subject.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lacelle, 124 Glenora Ave., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition.

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Mrs. Ella Miskell, R. F. D. 2, Box 80, Scottsburg, Indiana, writes:

"I suffered for two years with catarrh in the head, having such pains in the head and face that I feared I would lose my reason. I tried every known remedy, but gradually grew worse. Nights of restlessness would succeed days of agony. After taking twelve bottles of Peruna I am entirely well."

Says He Will Show How a Man Should Die.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12.—Attorneys for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., are preparing a petition for writ of error to be presented to the supreme court of appeals when it meets Nov. 8, in an effort to save the prisoner from electrocution Nov. 24 for the murder of his young wife. A statement from Beattie follows:

"I'll show them how a man should die, if that's what they're waiting for. The electric chair, bah, what's that? Nothing, I tell you.

"If the lever on the switchboard is near enough, I'll turn on the current myself. When a man's got to die let him die like a man, without a whimper. I suppose some people are glad that I'm in this fix."

PLAN STOCKYARDS OPPOSITE WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 12.—After two years' negotiation, three Western Canada railways—the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk-Pacific—have agreed on the purchase of 215 acres in St. Boniface, across the river, from Winnipeg, on which they will proceed to erect stockyards, abattoirs and cold storage warehouses at a cost of $5,000,000. The Manitoba government will aid to the extent of $250,000.

MRS. JENKINS SUES ALLEN FOR STOCKS.

New York, Oct. 12.—Through her attorneys, Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins yesterday served a summons on Nathan Allen, a wealthy leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., in a suit for conversion. Mrs. Jenkins seeks to recover stocks and notes alleged to have been taken from a safe deposit vault in the Illinois Trust company, a painting and a pearl necklace and pearl earrings, the total value of all of which is given as $197,000.

Recently Allen paid a large fine in the United States circuit court for having smuggled into the country jewelry and wearing apparel on his return from Europe with a party of which Mrs. Jenkins was a member.

The Enticing Dutch Auction.

A new auction scheme, which, although originated in Yankeedom, is called the Dutch auction, is being used by merchants to move their goods. Instead of asking for bids, the auctioneer starts a figure at more than the article is worth and gradually reduces his own offer, until he gets an affirmative call from a customer. It is said to be not only successful but exciting and more alluring than the original auction to the women. There is no auction feature in purchasing golden grain belt beers, which cost more to make than others, but cost you no more. # Doctor's Prescription for Eczema

The most advanced physicians of this country and Europe are now prescribing a wash of wintergreen thymol and other soothing and healing ingredients for the cure of Eczema, Psoriasis and all other forms of skin trouble. This compound is known as the D. D. D. Prescription.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist, writes: "I am convinced that the D. D. D. Prescription is as much a specific for Eczema as is quinine for malaria. We have been prescribing the D. D. D. remedy for years."

I myself vouch for the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema and absolutely guarantee that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

If you will call at my store I will be glad to let you have a $1.00 bottle on the guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find it does the work. And you decide. For that matter a trial bottle for 25 cents ought to be enough absolutely to prove the merits of the remedy.

Drop into my store, anyway, and as I have seen a great many cases of skin trouble, I will give you free a pamphlet giving directions for bathing, diet, etc., for all kinds of skin trouble.

Ask for the D. D. D. pamphlet, "Cause and Cure of Skin Diseases." Get posted on this wonderful remedy today.

WEST END HOTEL FOR HOMELESS

Salvation Army Home Will Be Ready for Occupancy Nov. 1.

Relief Store, Industrial Home and Working Man's Hotel Combined.

The new Salvation Army home at 1202-4 West Michigan street is almost complete and will be ready for occupancy about Nov. 1. The building has been remodeled from the old structure that has been there for the past twenty years, and was leased from the Soo railroad for five years with an option of extending it to ten years if desired. The plan of the local corps is to widen the scope of the work and to introduce different social and industrial enterprises that have been impossible in the old quarters at 1606 West Superior street and 1605 West Michigan street. The relief store is in the former and the industrial home in the latter store, and under the present arrangements the quarters are much too small to carry out the work as it should be done.

CAPT. FRED KRAUSE,
Local Manager of the Salvation Army.

Capt. H. H. Kline of St. Paul is in the city now and will start the campaign for funds to pay for the improvements that have been made and those that are to follow. Funds are required to establish a dormitory or hotel over the Industrial home, for the benefit of men who have no other lodgings and who are not able to pay very much. Fifteen and 25 cents will be charged for a night's lodging, with free privilege of baths. Others who are not able to pay anything will be lodged free of charge until some kind of work is found for them.

Work Partly Done.

New partitions have already been put in the building and nearly all the hotel equipment has arrived. The plumbing contract has been let and will cost $500. A new roof has also been put on the structure. About $3,000 is still required to complete the work and buy the remainder of the equipment. Thirty men will be able to receive free lodging, while seventy-five rooms are arranged for the other lodgers.

Capt. Krause says that the idea in acquiring the new quarters is to widen the scope of the work and to have a place where a man with any kind of a trade, who through circumstances is forced out of a job, may get temporary employment, with board, lodging and a small remuneration to tide him over until he gets something better.

"The Industrial home that will be installed in the new quarters," said Capt. Krause, "will be a sort of a Jack-of-all-trades shop. There we will have a place for the tailor, who is stranded, the furniture repairer who is 'broke,' the cobbler who is without funds, and in fact any tradesman who is in need of work."

In the present quarters, the only feature which has been carried out is the waste paper department, which gives work on the average to about ten men. They collect waste paper from the various business houses and prepare it for shipping out of the city. Two or three men are also employed to collect and take care of the goods in the relief store. In the new quarters the first story will be given over to the relief store and work shops. The basement will probably be used for a waste paper warehouse and the second story converted into a working men's hotel.

Old Landmark.

The new building has an odd history as it is one of the West end landmarks having been built in 1891 by Peterson & Johnson. The first story was devoted to a store and a saloon and in the rear there was a feed store. At one time there was a printing office in the basement. Upstairs at some time there was a dance hall and at that time the building was known as Central hall. Later the building was remodeled and the upper story was devoted to living rooms. It changed hands several times before it was acquired by the railroad people. P. Deslauriers, a clothier, was the last tenant of the place.

Several of the Army officials who were here at the time of the lease of the building and instrumental in extending the local work, are interested in the move and have promised their aid. Capt. Kline was sent by the Western secretary to begin the campaign for funds to finish the building and aid in buying the necessary equipment for the hotel.

Capt. Fred Krause, manager of the industrial department and the "Poor People's Store," has been here for the past year and has made a record in the work he handles. He had been in that work for the past ten years in all parts of the country and has adopted the latest methods in the Duluth branch. He came here Aug. 13, 1910, and increased the department from a small relief store at 907 West Michigan street, to the present quarters at 1202-4 West Michigan street, with a hotel, relief store and industrial home combined. The first improvement was the establishment of the waste paper department, which now employs upwards of ten men giving them continual work. More men could be used at all times as there is room for growth now since the new building has been secured. The paper is baled and when a carload is secured, it is shipped away to be manufactured into pulp. Not only waste paper is sold but hard and soft shavings are baled and sold.

The relief store is not a second-hand shop as it has sometimes been called by the public. It is maintained for the poorer classes and well stocked with clothes and household necessities, most of which are second-hand. All of the goods in the store have been solicited by the Army agents.

Poverty-stricken people come to the store and ask the price of the goods. The storekeeper has instructions from Capt. Krause to inquire into the domestic affairs of the callers so as to ascertain the circumstances that they are in. Prices are then made accordingly and in many instances the goods have been given away.

"HUMANE HENRY" A DULUTH BOOSTER

Predicts 250,000 People in Ten Years for Zenith City.

Henry Haskins, known in Duluth as "Humane Henry of Huron Street," former humane officer and prominent West end resident, is visiting this week with R. C. Sloan, 601 North Twenty-sixth avenue west. He has just returned from an extensive Eastern trip accompanied by his wife and is now renewing acquaintances before leaving for Calgary, Can., his present home.

"Humane Henry" was known by everyone in Duluth when he lived here. He went to Calgary several years ago and made a fortune in farm lands. He is in business there at the present time. A number of his friends took him out to the new factories and mills at West end yesterday to show him the growth of the city. Asked what he thought of the growth and what he had to say, Mr. Haskins merely said that Duluth would have 250,000 population within the next ten years, and that the people of Duluth do not realize the worth of their town and its possibilities. "I predict the greatest future for my old home town," he said.

WANT AVENUE IMPROVED

Property Owners Will Try to Evolve New Paving Plan.

A committee was appointed last evening at the meeting of the Twenty-seventh avenue property owners to take up a plan with the city council to secure an amendment to the city charter that would enable the residents to secure paving and street improvements on a 15-year payment plan.

The committee consists of County Commissioner Joseph Cummings, James Preston and Alderman Bernard, who will make their report at a meeting to be held in two weeks. The 15-year plan was suggested as it has proven satisfactory in a number of the Western cities where it is in operation at the present time.

The gathering was held at the polling place at Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street and was attended by nearly fifty property owners. Alderman Bernard presided and John Moir acted as secretary. Opinion was practically unanimous that the improvements should be made and the business of the meeting then developed into deciding on the best methods. It is believed there will be no difficulty in securing the requisite number of signers to a petition.

KILLS MAN HIS SISTER ACCUSES

Tennessee Youth Avenges 13-Year-Old Girl's Wrong.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 12.—With a pistol in the hands of her brother pointing at E. W. Carol, Caroline Smith, aged 13 years, yesterday afternoon told a pitiful story, and when the girl said she had told all, Smith fired five shots into Carol's body, killing him instantly. The child's grandmother heard her recital and saw the killing.

Sunday the girl disappeared, after having been seen leaving Sunday school. A city-wide search was begun, resulting in finding her in a deserted house on the outskirts in company with Ed Turbeville, who now faces charges of abduction.

Turbeville, the Smiths say, told a damaging story against Carol, who is 35 years old and married. Carol was a fireman, and Weaver Smith, the girl's brother, went to the railroad yards just as Carol was about to leave on his engine. Pointing a pistol at him he demanded that he go to the Smith home and face the girl. Carol formerly lived at the Smith house, and the girl's story dated back about a year.

Smith surrendered to the police immediately.

REGRET DEFEAT OF RECIPROCITY.

Nearly every Canadian farmer is dissatisfied with the outcome of the recent reciprocity election held there, and sincerely believes that they have lost a great deal through its rejection, said Rev. J. A. Krantz yesterday, having just returned from a northern trip. Rev. Mr. Krantz attended several Lutheran conferences in Winnipeg and its vicinity, and was enabled to find out the opinions of the farmers themselves.

"I have talked with many farmers and business men," said Mr. Krantz, "and almost without exception they laid the responsibility for the outcome to the unscrupulous politicians in Ontario and to the big business interests who left nothing undone that could mislead the voters. Of course, I was in a Liberal section but I found everywhere a sentiment that Canada had lost an important opportunity to better herself and that the farmers of the western section would suffer."

BIG EXODUS FROM CANADA

Railroad Man Predicts That 20,000 Canadians Will Visit England.

An exceptionally heavy passenger business from Winnipeg and points in Western Canada to Europe, via Duluth, Chicago and New York, is expected between now and the Christmas holidays by W. E. Blachley, traveling passenger agent for the Pennsylvania lines, who is in the city.

"It would be a very conservative estimate to say that at least 20,000 Canadians from the country around Winnipeg and the Canadian Northwest will return this year to the old country," said Mr. Blachley this morning.

Mr. Blachley came to Duluth from Chicago, where he attended a meeting of the officials of the Pennsylvania lines. There, plans for handling the passenger business were discussed and steps taken to improve the service, wherever possible.

Mr. Blachley stated that the new eighteen-hour train from Chicago to New York on the Pennsylvania lines was running to capacity and that berths were in great demand for this train. It costs $10 extra to ride on this train, which makes the fastest time between Chicago and the seaboard.

"Up in Canada," said Mr. Blachley, "there will be many people who will return to the old country for the holidays and from now on the travel will be heavy. Winnipeg figures somewhat as a distributing center and it is expected that a large share of the traffic will pass through Duluth and the Twin Cities to Chicago and the coast."

Mr. Blachley's headquarters are in Winnipeg.

FEWER IDLE CARS REPORTED

In a copy of the fortnightly bulletin of the American Railway association, which has just been received by officials of lines entering Duluth, it is stated that on Sept. 27 the number of idle cars in the United States and Canada was 58,382, as compared with 70,722, two weeks previous. At the same time, the shortage increased from 6,429 to 8,344. The decrease is due to better traffic conditions says the report.

During the two weeks ending on Sept. 27 the surplus of coal cars decreased from 23,795 to 19,643, while the box car surplus decreased from 19,419 to 12,372. The miscelioneous car surplus was somewhat smaller, but the number of flat cars idle was about the same as a fortnight ago.

The roads operating in the Northwest, the report states, brought their surpluses down to 13,121, a decrease of a little over 2,000 under the totals of two weeks ago. Last year at this time there were 9,000 idle cars in the grain territory of this country. The number of idle cars on the hands of the roads in the middle west was considerably under the figures of the last previous report. It is in this section of the country that the car movements have been most marked recently. In Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska the car surplus was only 295. Changes in other sections of the country were not of importance.

In the middle Atlantic states a small increase in the number of idle cars was noted. The reports throughout the country indicate a heavier freight movement than during the latter part of September last year.

Owing to the brisk movement of freight to and from interior points, the percentage of idle cars in Duluth is kept exceedingly low.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC WILL IGNORE STRIKERS.

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—That the Grand Trunk Pacific railway has no intention of negotiating further with its striking machinists and boilermakers, is made evident by the insertion of large advertisements in daily papers by the company, calling for machinists to fill the places of the strikers, and by the company's continuing to ignore all requests of the men to appoint another member of the conciliation board.

FRECKLES GONE

"Simple Remedy from Boyce Drug Store Removed Them," Says Society Lady.

"The best skin specialists told me that nothing would remove my freckles and that I would carry them to my grave," said a well known society woman, "but I fooled them all with a new drug, othine—double strength, that I bought at Boyce Drug Store, which cleared my skin and gave me a fine complexion."

The action of othine is really remarkable, for when applied at night, many of the freckles disappear entirely by morning, and the rest have begun to fade. An ounce is usually all that is needed, even for the worst case.

Be sure to ask Boyce Drug Store for the double strength othine, as this is sold under a guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

WAIT ALL NIGHT TO BUY TICKETS

Baseball Enthusiasts Storm New York National League Headquarters.

New York, Oct. 12.—More than 1,000 baseball enthusiasts stormed the headquarters of the New York National league club today to buy tickets for the world's series. When the office opened at 9 o'clock a line of men and boys extended from thedoor on the second floor of the St. James building down the stairs and for three blocks outside. Some had been in line since 10 o'clock last night.

When the doors finally were opened the rush swept a large number of the policeme noff their feet. Hats were lost policemen off their feet. Hats were lost was littered with pieces of torn clothing.

Speculators who had agents sprinkled through the line comforted them during the long night by frequent relays of coffee and sandwiches.

The tickets were limited to four for each person.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—The Philadelphia Athletics returned to the home grounds today from their trip to Washington and Richmond and this afternoon will play the All Stars in the final tuning up prior to the contest with the New York Giants next Saturday. Baker, third baseman, will not play today, as he has a slight cold. "Stuffy" McInnes, the nervy young first baseman, will be in the world's series. His injured wrist is mending rapidly and is now strong enough for him to get into practice.

In today's game Pitchers Bender, Coombs and Plank probably will be worked three innings each.

Tomorrow will be a day of physical rest, but every man will be on hand for a council of war in the inner sanctum of the tower of Shibe park.

Reserved seats for the first games to be played in this city are going out today. After the tickets are distributed the force of clerks will busy themselves returning tens of thousands of dollars to applicants for tickets who could not be accommodated.

The shipment will amount to 560,000 ordinary sacks of flour. This flour cargo is the largest single one ever sent across the Pacific in any ship.

FARMERS WANT PARCELS POST

Impetus to Be Given to Movement at Meeting in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The national farmers congress which convened here today promises to present a spirited resolution mill during its four days convention. The first signs became evident this morning when contests started for places on the resolutions committee.

That new impetus will be given the movement for a parcels post was assured, and federal support of good roads will be one of the most important subjects to be dealt with.

Resolutions will be urged calling upon President Taft and the next session of congress to support the latter scheme with the establishment of a national good roads bureau in connection with the department of agriculture.

A special train carrying over 300 representative of thousands of farmers in the Northwestern states arrived last night, and several special cars reached here early today from the West.

A monster reception is being prepared by Governor and Mrs. Harmon for the delegates to the congress, at their home here tonight.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experience and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty-cents and one-dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful merits, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Duluth Daily Herald.

WATERWAY MEN BEGIN SESSIONS

Sixth Annual Convention Is Opened in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association's slogan of "fourteen feet through the valley and dig 'er deep through Dixie," bade fair to be altered to a call for a deeper channel as a basis for the agitation for an inland deep waterway at the sixth annual convention of the association, which began here today. The meeting will continue three days.

The deeper channel plan, fostered by President William K. Kavanaugh, was expected to receive considerable attention at this meeting, which is the last before the report of the special engineers' committee goes to congress. Two factions are present, one urging that immediate action be taken by Illinois and the other advising delay until federal aid is secured. Governor Charles S. Deneen is at the head of the immediate action faction.

ARE AFTER RECOGNITION

Minneapolis Millers Want Through Rate Proportional From Buffalo East.

Steamers Lackawanna and Scranton Are Secured for New Line.

In spite of the assertions of Duluth vesselmen that the plan was not feasible, Minneapolis milling interests will have the new Flour City line of steamers in operation between Duluth and Buffalo within a few days it is claimed. It was learned today that two boats had been secured for the new business. They are the Lackawanna and the Scranton.

The Lackawanna is a package freighter now operated by the Buffalo Transit company and has a capacity of 2015 gross tons. The steamer Scranton is also operated by the same concern and has the same capacity. Arrangements have been completed to have both fitted out for the new trade at once.

The action of the Minneapolis men follows the withdrawal by railroads of the reduction recently granted by them in flour rates, lake and rail, from Minneapolis to New York. The through rate, now prevailing is 23 cents per hundred pounds. The proposed reduction, which never went into effect, gave them a rate of 21½ cents.

W. M. Trickett of the Minneapolis traffic commission, is in Washington arranging to have the Interstate commerce commission recognize the new independent line of steamers.

The recognition of the new line by the commission will mean that the Eastern trunk lines from Buffalo to the seaboard will have to grant the Minneapolis shippers a proportional rate of 9.2 cents, instead of the local rate of 11 cents. In case the recognition of the new line is not secured, the local rate of 11 cents would have to be paid from Buffalo to New York.

If the Minneapolis men succeed in their attempts to have the interstate commerce commission recognize the new line, the rate on flour, Minneapolis to New York, will be 21½ cents, cutting the differential between Minneapolis and Duluth shipments to 3½ cents.

THIEF RETURNS CHILD'S TRINKETS

Keepsakes Worn By Victim of Iroquois Theater Fire Restored.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The public appeal of a mother for the return of several little trinkets revered by her as remembrances of a daughter who perished in the Iroquois theater fire, was answered late yesterday by the thief who had stolen them. They were returned by mail.

The mother is Mrs. George J. Kuehler, wife of an attorney. Two little rings and two lockets that had been the means of identification of the mangled body of her little girl after the theater fire, were part of the $250 worth of plunder taken by the robber.

A pathetic appeal to the robber was published in the city newspapers at the request of Mrs. Kuehler, offering the thief all his plunder if he would return only the keepsakes. During the day a man called by telephone, saying the rings and lockets would be returned, inasmuch as he, who had a daughter himself, understood the mother's grief. A few hours later the postman restored the trinkets.

OPERA STARS REACH CITY

Miss Alice Neilson and Riccardo Martin, the two stars of the Alice Neilson Opera company, reached Duluth today with the rest of the company, somewhat tired after the day ride from Minneapolis.

"I am still in love with my work," said Miss Neilson. "I am in grand opera to stay. While people have been good enough to tell me that I made a great success in light opera, I really never did like the work. I always wanted to do bigger things, somewhat, and in grand opera I believe I have found the work best suited to me.

"There is lots of work; in fact, you must work constantly and incessantly to succeed. But work is necessary for success, and the harder our work the larger and fuller is bound to be our success. When one is satisfied the work comes easier. I love the work I am doing now, and therefore I am happy and I have never regretted leaving the light opera field."

Miss Neilson added that critics had said some very nice things about the company, which is but ten days old.

Riccardo Martin is a charming man to meet. Unlike many of the foreign grand opera stars, for Mr. Martin is an American, he is without affectation. One of the first things he asked about was the best way to view the lake. A number of the members of the company took an auto ride around the city this afternoon.

"FAKE" PICTURE OF DULUTH AROUSES GERMAN CURIOSITY

"STREET SCENE IN DULUTH."

Can any one solve this puzzle from a curious woman in Baden Baden, Germany.

The photograph was printed in a German publication as an "American Venice" and is said to be "a street in Duluth, in the state of Michigan."

Her communication, addressed to "a newspaper in Duluth," is as follows:

"I am very much puzzled over the enclosed picture.

"How is your fire department supposed to reach the fire plug at the left?

"Of what are your building foundations made that the paddle wheels do not disturb them?

"How can such a large boat travel in three inches and a half of water.

"In other words, how was this curiosity produced? Yours truly,

"HATTIE L. MOSHER,
"Leipsig,
"Germany."

The street shown in the photograph is believed to be a reproduction of Front street in Toronto, Can., and is undoubtedly a "fake" produced by cleverly blending two different pictures, one of the street and the other of the boat, traveling in some body of water. But it was evidently printed in the German publication as the real thing and Miss Mosher is undoubtedly sincere in her quest for information, evidenced by the fact that she has written here from the other side of the Atlantic.

RAISED 526 BUSHELS TO ACRE

On one acre of the Jean Duluth farm 526½ bushels of potatoes were grown.

This is believed to be one of the biggest, if not absolutely the best record made in the state. When it is considered that the average crop to an acre in this state is 150 bushels, one begins to realize the immense yield made from one acre of the Jean Duluth farm and also gathers an idea of the immense possibilities of the land in this section of the state for potato raising.

Supt. Hostetter of the agricultural department of the Commercial club is going to take some of the potatoes gathered from this one acre of ground that yielded so largely, to the New York American Land and Products and Irrigation exposition, which will be held in New York city, Nov. 3 to 12. He believes that this display from Duluth will carry off the first prize for potatoes.

BIG POINT FOR GOVERNMENT

Decree Is Issued in Suit Against "Electrical Trust".

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 12.—In the United States district court, Northern district of Ohio, Judge John M. Killits today rendered a decree in favor of the government in the case brought by the United States attorney general last summer in Cleveland against the General Electric company and about forty subsidiary companies controlled by the General Electric company, under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Establishes Precedents.
Washington, Oct. 12.—The Toledo decree, according to Attorney General Wickersham, established precedents of genuine value to the government in Sherman anti-trust law prosecutions.

"By this decree," the attorney general said, "the contracts and combinations entered into by all the defendants are declared unlawful and they are severally enjoined from entering into or performing any agreements or arrangements of any nature by which the prices of incandescent electric lamps of any type or description, whether patented or unpatented, are to be sold, either at wholesale or retail."

ADMITS MURDERS IN ANOKA COUNTY

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Dygart today confessed to the murder of Mrs. Amelia Rhoades and her cousin, Frank E. Rhoades on the Bolton farm in Anoka county, on Sept. 12.

SUPERIOR DYGART MAY BE THE MAN

Prisoner Under Arrest at Anoka May Be Poplar Murderer.

That James Dygart, self confessed murderer of Mrs. Amelia Rhoades and her cousin Frank E. Rhoades at Anoka, Minn., is the same man who murdered Supervisor John Hefstedt at Poplar, Wis., June 17 last, is the opinion of Sheriff Edward McKinnon of Douglas county, who left yesterday for Anoka to identify the prisoner. James Dygart confessed yesterday to the double murder on the Bolton farm near Minneapolis, after a police hunt lasting over three weeks. Sheriff McKinnon is certain that the man is the same one wanted at Poplar for the murder of Supervisor Hefstedt.

The sheriff has a description of the man wanted near Superior and will endeavor to identify him at the Anoka county jail. Seven hundred dollars is offered by the state of Wisconsin for his apprehension. Should Dygart be the same man as Sheriff McKinnon wants, he will end a search that has lasted over three months, and incidentally receive the state reward. The Anoka murder was a brutal one. The police followed several suspects for weeks before they were sure of their man. Dygart was first located on a farm where he had hidden after the murder.

B. Fleming of that city, in an address before the Six o'clock club at Hotel Superior last evening.

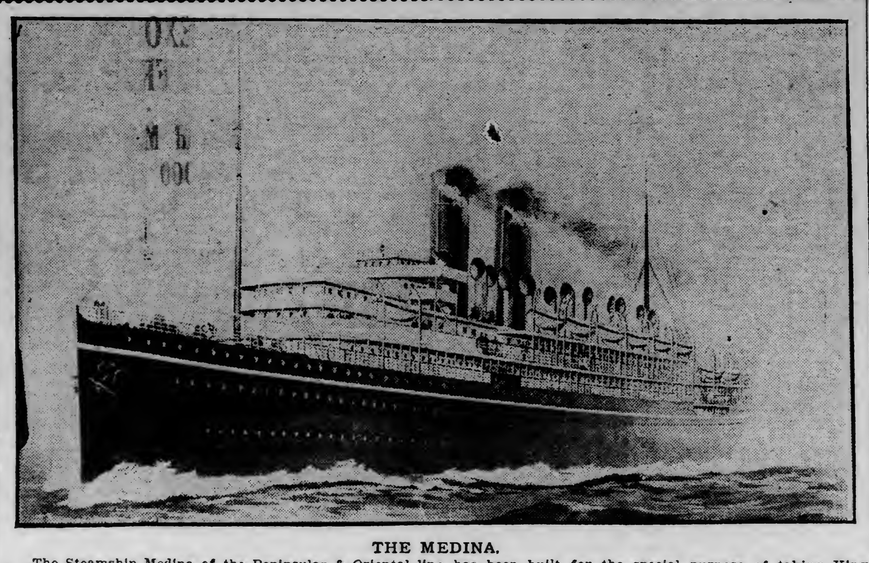

Mr. Fleming's talk consisted of a brief history of the movement and its spread during the last few years. He also explained fully how it is working in his home city at the present time.

SAYS STATE CAN GET THE MINE BACK

Smith Talks of Reclamation of Mountain Iron Property.

Holdings Are Said to Be Worth Many Millions.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fight which Attorney General Simpson is starting for reclamation of the Mountain Iron mine located in St. Louis county may result in bringing back to the state a property originally worth $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 which slipped away in a somewhat peculiar manner.

When the government was ceding certain swamp lands to the state many years ago, the section on which the Mountain mine is located was included. It was given it in lieu of another tract of land on which a settler had taken up a claim. When the list of lands finally was checked up with the department of the interior, the land of the Mountain mine in some manner was not included. An investigation was started in 1895 to learn by what means it escaped, but it was not prosecuted in the courts. Mr. Simpson is in the East now arranging to carry the case through the courts for a final settlement.

"The mining operations on the section have been rapidly pushed," Assistant Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith said this morning. "I believe the state will be able to establish its right of ownership."

BACK FROM HIS FIRST VACATION IN 20 YEARS

THOMAS A. EDISON, WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

Thomas A. Edison returned Saturday on the America from his trip abroad. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Mr. Edison looked greatly improved in health and expressed himself as delighted with the enthusiasm of his reception in all the capitals of Europe, but declared there is no place equal to the United States.

A Home Recipe for Wrinkled, Saggy Skin

(From Beauty and Health.)

The famous saxolite lotion which is recommended by beauty specialists for the removal of wrinkles and for reducing distended pores, can be made at home. Ask your druggist for saxolite in powdered form, 1 oz., and ½ pint witch hazel. Dissolve the powder in the witch hazel and bathe the face, neck and hands in the solution. Results are remarkable, and instantaneous. The skin tightens, and this naturally reduces the wrinkles, as well as creases or folds about the neck, cheeks or hands. The tissue and muscle beneath the skin also become firmer and more solid.

One feels much refreshed and exhilarated after using this truly wonderful preparation. Its continued use for only a short time will make one look five or ten years younger.

2,000 VISIT NEW GLASS BLOCK

Evening Reception Is Climax of Three Days' Opening.

Nearly 2,000 people visited the handsome Glass Block store last evening between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock at the open house which was kept that the men of the city might have a chance to visit the store during the three days' warming and opening of the fall stocks of goods.

The evening was a most fitting climax for the three days. No goods were sold, and during the open hours La Brosse's orchestra played a delightful program of music and Miss James, the well known soloist, sang several numbers. Refreshments were served in the tea rooms and flowers were given to the women as souvenirs. At the close of the evening, Phillip Gordon Brown, one of the managers of the store, sang several songs which were enthusiastically received and W. C. Brown, general manager, played a number of popular pieces on the "bones." He was very clever with these little instruments and scored a hit with the audience.

The decorations and the goods throughout made a most agreeable spectacle for the visitors.

DANCE HALLS MUST BE CLOSED TO MINORS.

All persons under the age of 21 years must be kept out of dance halls.

There has been some criticism of late in regard to the management of public dancing places in Duluth, and a law passed by the state legislature in 1905 and which is still in force, reads:

"Whoever permits any person, under the age of 21, to be and remain in any dance house owned, kept or managed by him in whole or in part, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

It is said that a great number of boys and girls under the age of 21 frequent the different dancing halls of the city, and an effort will be made to have the law enforced.

Club women of the city are interested in the movement. The law was pointed out by one of them today.

WILL BE NO STRIKE ON DES MOINES CARS.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 12.—Des Moines' proposed street railway strike was officially declared off late yesterday afternoon, following the selection of the third member of the arbitration board in the person of John A. Gulher, an attorney of Winterset, Iowa. Mr. Gulher says he will accept.

Simultaneously with the acceptance of Mr. Gulher, came the report that G. S. Gilbertson, former state treasurer, who had previously been agreed upon as arbitrator, also had accepted. The Winterset man, however, will serve on the board, the other arbitrators, after futile attempts to locate Gilbertson, having proceeded to a new choice.

It is expected that the controversy now will be settled without further difficulty.

BOY'S WIRELESS TELEPHONE.

Bernays Johnson, 18 years old, son of Former Lieutenant - Governor Charles P. Johnson, has just received a patent on a wireless telephone, says the St. Louis Republic, and has two of the machines installed in his laboratory.

There is something uncanny about the apparatus that speaks to one as plainly as the telephones he has been accustomed to use. But it does the work, and young Mr. Johnson expects to reap a fortune from his invention, which he will introduce to the St. Louis public at once.

It is the simplest thing in the world, to hear this precocious young man tell it. It differs from the wireless telegraph, with which so many persons think they are fairly familiar, in that there is no apparatus high in the air required. He admits that one cannot speak across the ocean, but he declares that for any distance up to ten miles it is tried and tested and found not wanting.

Of course there is an electric current, but this current is sent scurrying around through earth, water or metal, and when it finds its affinity, another telephone attuned to the same degree, it fastens itself on and talking is just as easy as anything.

The way he does it is to drive any old kind of a piece of iron or 'most any other metal in the ground. At some other point within a radius of ten miles he drives another peg. Then the telephones are connected with these iron pegs, and when one gives the signal a bell tinkles at the end of the line, just as in an ordinary telephone, and when the receiver is taken from the hook communication is instantaneous.

If a man wants a private telephone in his residence connected with his office it is just the easiest thing in the world, says Mr. Johnson. The home phone may be as ornamental as desired. The one he has in operation is now mounted on a metal stand with the telephone apparatus inclosed in a mahogany box. It looks like a table when not in use. There was no need in driving an iron peg in the ground for this. There was a convenient gas pipe near, and that serves the purpose admirably.

The other phone, which may be installed in the downtown office, can be connected with the gas pipe, lightning rod or any other piece of metal that reaches to the ground, and the system is complete when the connection is made.

Johnson claims several advantages for his patent. First it may be installed at small cost. There is no expense in keeping up wires or any delicate apparatus. Absolute privacy is guaranteed, for there are but the two telephones on the line. In event it is desired to extend the system it may be done quite readily by attuning another phone to the same key and installing it and having a device attached to give the correct call without giving the alarm to the other phones not wanted in the same system.

The wireless works as well while the electricity is scurrying through water as land. Thus steamboats may be equipped with the wireless and cables are dispensed with, as is also the expensive equipment for the aerial wireless plans. Just a piece of metal attached to the wire and thrown in the water and another phone, similiarly equipped on another boat, and the line is complete and ready for business.

FOR COMMUTERS.

"What will be the practical utility of aviation?" is a question asked and answered by Hudson Maxim, the inventor, in an article entitled "Practical Uses of the Aeroplane in Commerce Travel and War" in Country Life in America.

"Will the aeroplane ever become a safe and practical vehicle of travel, or are the limitations of its possibilities such that it will never be more than a plaything in hazardous sport or a military machine?" he asks; and he writes on in answer to his own question: "I predict that in the near future, assuredly within the next decade, the commuting aeroplane will be a common sight. The aeroplane will be a great time saver. The tiresome hours of the commuter spent on trains and trolley cars are always so many hours added to the day's work. The flying machine will change the weary coming and going to invigorating recreation and sport."

Further on in the article while going into the practical uses of the aeroplane in detail Maxim says:

"Much is being done and much will continue to be done by the sportsmen to develop and perfect the aeroplane, but it will be the exacting requirements of government boards to adapt the machine to the exigencies and uses of war that will more than anything else compel aviation to develop on practical scientific lines."

Making another prophecy of the aeroplane in war, Maxim says:

"In the wars of the future for days previous to any great battle aerial scouts will ride the sky in all directions, making observations and taking photographs. Both sides will have their aerial pickets out and there will be many a hot encounter between contending air craft.

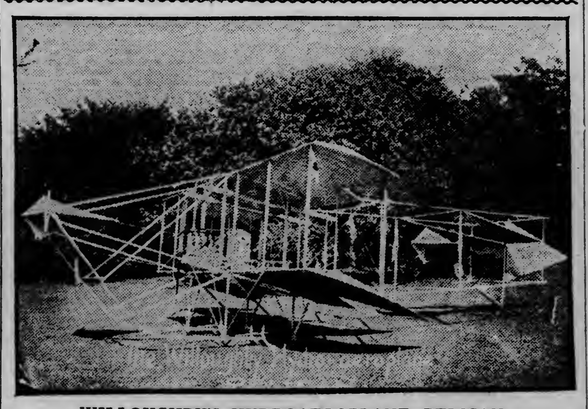

"The aeroplane will never be a success against ground batteries. There has all along been much misconception about the destruction that aeroplanes would be able to do by dropping dynamite upon armies, warships, coast fortifications and cities. This has been due to an exaggerated popular idea about the force and action of high explosives.

"When unconfined, dynamite is very local in its action. When confined however, in a strong steel projectile it will blow the housing of it into many thousands of fragments and effect great destruction inside a ship or in the encasement of a coast fortification, but a bomb could not be made to penetrate these places merely by dropping, and then also accurately to direct the fall of a bomb from a rapidly moving aeroplane at varying heights is so difficult as to be almost impracticable.

"A high explosive bomb, although it should contain 500 pounds of dynamite, dropped upon the firing line of an enemy would do comparatively little damage."

Just as it pays a man to be seen associated with the successful, so it pays a store to have its announcements appear in the company of the prosperous.

NEWPORT MAN HAS NEW FLYER

WILLOUGHBY'S HYDROAEROPLANE, PELICAN.

Hugh L. Willoughby of Newport has built a new kind of hydroaeroplane, which he calls the Pelican. It is a biplane measuring 30 feet from tip to tip and weighing 575 pounds. Mr. Willoughby puts his propeller in front. Up to this time only monoplanes have had the propeller in this position. Mr. Willoughby has patented his double rudders, which have inverso and simultaneous action, and his engine control. He has also patented the form of his rudders or vanes and intermediate wings or allerens. Riding the water, Capt. Willoughby substitutes for his running wheels two brass hydroplanes. For use on land it is found that a 25-horse power engine is enough, but for rising from the water, Capt. Willoughbly has substituted a 50-horse power engine.

COUGHING BURST BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Cough in 5 Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief as found in patent cough medicines, and a whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion. A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels, and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the cause, except it be consumption. Don't wait for consumption to grasp its victims, but begin this treatment which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

GIVE THE LEGISLATURE A CHANCE.

The Herald has a letter from Hon. H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea, speaker of the house of representatives at the last session of the Minnesota legislature, which it takes pleasure in publishing here for two reasons: first because publishing it rights a wrong that was inadvertently done, and second because it presents a true statement that has a very important bearing on the issue of whether there shall be an extra session of the legislature. The letter follows:

To the Editor of The Herald:

My attention has been called to the fact that in your poll of the vote in the house last winter on the gross earnings tax bill you have me recorded as voting against the same. You no doubt reached this conclusion from the fact that my name does not appear in the Journal of the house as voting in the affirmative.

The fact of the matter is, when this vote was taken I was very sick in my rooms at the Merchants hotel and was unable to be present and vote for the bill. I make this explanation as I do not care to have it appear that I was against the bill last winter.

It seems to me that your estimate of the votes in favor of passing the gross earnings tax bill at an extra session is too conservative. For instance, my colleague, Alva Henion, voted for the bill last winter and will vote for it again. Furthermore, there are other members in the same position he is, but did not write you—no doubt a result of oversight. IT SEEMS ABSOLUTELY CERTAIN THAT A GROSS EARNINGS TAX BILL WOULD BE PROMPTLY PASSED BY THE LEGISLATURE BY AN OVERWHELMING VOTE IF AN EXTRA SESSION BE CALLED FOR THAT PURPOSE. Yours truly,

H. H. DUNN.

Albert Lea, Minn., Oct. 9.

Mr. Dunn is right. The Herald was incorrect in putting his name in the list of those who voted last winter against increasing the railroad gross earnings tax. It did not happen in the way he suggests, but through pure inadvertence. The Herald takes pleasure in stating that when the vote was taken Mr. Dunn was ill, and that in its opinion had he been present he would have voted for it.

But we are glad also to publish his letter because it is a complete and emphatic answer to those who have opposed the extra session because they feared that the legislature, even if it were called together, would not act. Mr. Dunn says, and The Herald firmly believes that he is right, that "a gross earnings tax bill would be promptly passed by an overwhelming vote if an extra session is called for that purpose."

The Herald was conservative, and intentionally so, in giving the results of its canvass. It counted for the passage of a gross earnings tax bill only those who explicitly went on record in letters to this newspaper. But it stated, also, that from what it knew of the legislature and from what well informed members told it, it believed that there would be but few negative votes in either branch of the legislature when the roll call was taken on the passage of a bill making a substantial increase in the share of state taxes to be paid by the railroads.

There is not a single excuse for the failure of the governor to call the legislature together next winter for the purpose of increasing railroad taxation. The session would cost a trifling amount in comparison with the amount that would be saved the state by gaining two years' increase in railroad taxes, which will be lost forever if action is postponed until the regular session of 1913.

DEMAND THE PARCELS POST.

If you wish to send a parcel by mail, you must keep it below four pounds or the postoffice won't take it—unless it is going to some other country, when you can send an eleven-pound package. And for your four-pound package addressed to Two Harbors you must pay 16 cents a pound, while if your eleven-pound package is addressed, say, to Hongkong, it will cost you only 12 cents a pound.

That's how the postoffice discriminates against you because you happen to be a citizen of this country. But that is only the beginning of it. If your package weighs more than four pounds, you must take it to an express company, and the government lets the express company charge you what it pleases.

Now in Belgium 132 pounds can be sent by mail in one package; in Germany and Austria 110 pounds can be sent; in France 22 pounds can be mailed; and eleven pounds can be mailed in Great Britain, Australia, Italy and even in Chile and Cuba.

In the United States it costs $1.32 to mail an eleven-pound package if it is consigned to some point outside the country, and $1.76 if the contents of the same package are divided into three packages and mailed to a point in this country. In Germany the charge would be 13 cents; in Great Britain 22 cents; in Italy 20 cents; in Switzerland 8 cents.

Because this country discriminates thus against its people, the express business, a thing unknown abroad, has grown up, and has created vast private fortunes. Starting business on a shoestring, and not even now owning tangible property of any great value, the average express company is earning profits so great that every little while it has to declare a fat stock dividend, after which it keeps on paying good dividends on the watered stock, which is a capitalization of the nation's discrimination against its own people.

Says the Chicago Tribune: "Why does the United States postoffice discriminate against itself and against the American people in this way? For years a few Americans have been building up great fortunes behind the wall of the postal policy. These fortunes have come out of the pockets of the masses of the American people, who have meekly consented to pay heavy express rates while the great government agency of the post turned its back on them. In Great Britain, which we have called slow, ultra-conservative, deficient in snap, hustle, enterprise, the postal service really serves the people. It delivers both letters and parcels to every house in the kingdom. The retail stores of England use the post to deliver goods. The farmer and gardener use it to send their produce to the great markets. Practically everything under eleven pounds is mailable."

Congress is now considering the parcels post. The postoffice department, which in the past has repeatedly urged the adoption of a complete parcels post system, is now timidly proposing a subterfuge plan providing parcels post only on rural routes, to which nobody but those living on such routes will have access.

This is the only civilized country in the world which voluntarily turns over to private concerns for their enrichment a most important part of the duties of a postal department. This country should have a complete parcels post system. The people want it. If they let their wants be known at Washington they will get it. If they do not make their demands heard they probably will not get it, for those opposed to the plan are using every possible effort to prevent its adoption, and they are powerful.

PROGRESS.

It is to be feared that the distinguished prelate who yesterday branded the initiative, the referendum and the recall as weapons of "mobocracy" is not probing deep enough. Deeper than these is the ballot, through which these tools of real democracy come; so if these are dangerous, more dangerous still is the ballot, which brings them to pass.

The ballot brought them to pass Tuesday in California, where the voters by an overwhelming majority put the initiative, the referendum and the recall into their state Constitution. Henceforth, in that state, the power of government is to be held closely by those who wield the ballot. If the legislature fails to enact a law the people want, under the "initiative" the people can enact it themselves. If the legislature enacts a law the people do not want, under the "referendum" the people can veto it. If a public official proves unfaithful to his trust the people can discharge him by the "recall." And the recall provision even includes judges, a policy regarding which there is greater doubt than there is about the rest of this truly democratic program.

California, too, came close to giving the ballot to women, the constitutional amendment providing for it having lacked but a few votes of adoption; though at this writing the result was in doubt.

California has done well. Its action affords a splendid example to states that are not yet free from the restrictions of representative government that has not represented or served the people, but almost invariably has represented and served special interests.

WHY THE STATE TAX RATE IS HIGH.

Says the Madison Western Guard: "The state tax rate for next year is the highest in forty years. If the cause is anything else than extravagance, will some one please tell us what it is?"

Extravagance there has been, no doubt; but there IS another reason, and The Herald is glad to tell what it is.

The state gets its revenue from two main sources: taxation of railroads under the gross earnings system, and taxation of other property in the ordinary manner. What the railroad taxes fail to yield the people must pay. The state tax rate represents the assessment that is made upon the people to make up the deficiency after railroad taxes are used.

The state tax rate is high—the highest since 1873—because the railroad tax has not expanded, as other taxes have, with the growth of the state's needs, and because the railroads are not paying their due share of the expense of running the state. If the railroad tax were what it ought to be, the state tax rate would be much lower.

Obviously, railroad taxes should be increased. They cannot be increased until the legislature adopts a measure increasing them and the people approve this measure at a general election. If legislative action is postponed until the regular session of 1913, the state will remain for two years under this exorbitantly high tax rate. If there is an extra session railroad taxes can be increased next year, and the state tax reduced.

JEWISH FARM COLONIES.

When The Herald commended Rabbi Lefkovits for urging his people to turn their attention to the opportunities of farm life, and suggested that men of money among the Jews could do no greater service to their less fortunate brethren than to help them get back to the land, it did not know that such a movement is already afoot. It is glad to be informed that this is the case.

A philanthropic syndicate with a capital of $450,000, headed by Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, is now making arrangements for the settlement of Jewish families on 72,000 acres of land in Wyoming. Almost without exception these families are to be taken from the congested centers of the large cities, where opportunity is stifled by the fierce competition that exists where there is not bread enough for all, and placed on farms where opportunity is free and plentiful, and where there is a living and ultimately independent if modest wealth for all those having intelligence and industry.

Next spring 450 families will be taken from the tenements and located on the prairies of Wyoming. Each family will be loaned $1,000 to be used in the development of the colony, and to be repaid as soon as it is convenient. No interest will be charged. The plan, it is stated, "is an experiment in relieving conditions among sweatshop workers and other impoverished Jewish immigrants." If it succeeds it will be continued on a wider scale.

This is practical philanthropy that will benefit the cities, which will be by so much relieved of their present congestion; the country at large, which will have that much of its population taken out of the consuming centers and added to the dwindling list of producers; and above all the direct beneficiaries themselves, who will be lifted out of poverty and hardship and given a chance to make themselves economically independent. Better still, it is not charity, since every dollar given must be paid back, and thus there will be no pauperizing effect.

The land is to be taken up under the Carey act, and with irrigation rights it is valued at $40 an acre. The colonists will have fifteen years in which to pay for their farms.

Apropos of Stephenson's troubles, what's the use of being a millionaire if you can't get into the United States senate by spending your own money, or letting other people spend it for you?

---

President Taft's experience in the mountains is said to have convinced him of the necessity of better roads. It's a pity he can't have a little experience among the people who have to squeeze and pinch to pay tribute to the trusts through the operation of the tariff. Maybe he would get a few more convictions.

AMERICAN INDUSTRIES

By SAVOYARD.

It was the blind senator from Oklahoma, Mr. Gore, who uttered this epigram which is scarce obnoxious to the criticism Edgar Allan Poe had for the epigram in general. Said the senator:

"The tariff enables one man to get without earning what another man earns without getting."

I don't believe the idea was ever more felicitously expressed, and surely it delighted that maker of happy epigrams, Mr. Bryan.

Senator Gore draws a serious indictment against the tariff, and here is testimony to warrrant a conviction:

Both Col. Goethals and Col. Hodges stated to the appropriation committee that the law which requires the commission to give preference to American bidders, unless their figures are too high, has kept many foreign firms from entering the contest. They mentioned the case of the purchase of a ladder dredge from a foreign firm for $399,000, an incident which, they said, brought forth many protests from American manufacturers and their friends. The only bid from an American firm for this dredge was $874,000, more than twice the price asked by the foreign manufacturer.

You see the American people, through their agent, the American congress, agreed to tax themselves $500,000,000, or approximately that sum, to construct a ship canal across the isthmus of Panama. Of course supplies to the cost of hundreds of millions would be required for the mighty enterprise, and the Roosevelt administration very bravely declared that those supplies would be bought in the cheapest markets in the world.

But that did not suit the men in America who had such suppplies to sell, and they appealed to a subservient American congress which required the authorities in charge of the work to give the preference to American bidders unless their figures were outrageous. Thus the American people not only taxed themselves to build the canal, but they added at least $100,000,000 to the cost for the "protection" of the American manufacturer.

"Behold, my son," said the Swedish chancellor, "with how little wisdom the world is governed." It was the duty imposed on the people to foot the bills of this gigantic undertaking, but it was the right of certain "interests" to reap a profit from it. The government constituted itself an enormous buyer, and then put shackles on itself that practically confined it to a single market, and that the dearest in the world.

Except that the canal when finished will be of incalculable benefit to our country in case of war, it will be of comparative inconsequential advantage to us in a commercial way unless we make a radical change in our economic policy. Such works are made for ships. We have no ships in the foreign trade, and will not have until congress puts foreign built ships on the free list. That is how Germany made her commercial marine, and that is how ours will be made if it is made at all.

There was launched the other day at an American shipyard at Fore River, Mass., one of the largest ships in the world, of dreadnought class, with the enormous displacement of 28,000 tons. The vessel is for the Argentine navy, and the American contractor got the job because he underbid all the shipyards of England and Continental Europe. There was great rejoicing among the faithful, like Jim Sherman, Jake Gallinger, and other friends of the tariff. But when they were begging for a ship subsidy, they asserted, and proved—by statistics—that it was a financial and industrial impossibility for America to compete with England in the construction of ships, though it was notorious that our shipyards had constructed numerous vessels for foreign navies—Russian, Japanese, Chilian and others.

Now it is a fact that more labor is required to build a ship like that monster which was launched in Massachusetts last week than is required by anything else constructed by the skill and labor of man, unless it be a railroad or a tunnel under a great river, or a canal joining two oceans. Perhaps it required the labor of 25,000 wage-earners to produce the materials and fashion them into that mighty craft that is to head the navy of the leading Latin-American republic. But the Fore River shipyard undertook the task for less money than the yards of Glasgow, Scotland, or Belfast, Ireland, were willing to perform it.

But our laws gave the American shipyard an advantage in that all raw materials that entered into the construction of that ship were free of tariff duty; and if American material was used the American producer of that material gave that shipyard a rebate equal to the tariff duty. That was testified to by one of the Steel trust. He swore that when his monopoly furnished steel to the monopoly that makes farm machinery, it grants a rebate equal to the tariff if the steel is used to make a plow, or mower, or thrasher, or hoe, or other farm implement to be sold abroad; but if it is for a cotton gin in Mississippi, or a plow in Kansas, or a mower in Iowa, or a thrasher in Minnesota, there is no rebate, and the American farmer must foot the tariff bill.

Now, if free raw material enables our shipyards to compete with the pauper shipyards of Europe in the construction of a ship worth $6,000,000, or more, why would not free wool enable our weavers to compete with those same paupers in the production of a bolt of cloth? And if the tariff is so constructed as to make it to the interest of our manufacturers to sell cheaper to foreigners than to home-folks, is it not time that we set about overhauling the tariff and fixing it so that it will be to the interest of our manufacturers to sell their wares as cheaply in the home market as in the foreign? The way to do that is to put all raw materials on the free list and levy a tariff for revenue strictly on the finished product ready for the ultimate consumer.

The South is clamoring for factories. She has the water power, the coal, the salubrious climate, the raw materials, the generous soil, the diversity of farm, garden and orchard products, navigable rivers, capacious harbors, and everything to invite capital to engage in manufacture in that section.

Only one thing forbids—the protection that is in the tariff. Eradicate that and the South will soon establish the world's workshop. But there are Southern statesmen who forbid it.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

NOT A BAD PLAN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I see by your issue of Oct. 10 that the aldermen are lining up for re-election, and that Curren may be in the field. I would like to suggest that Park Point put up some good man who would take some interest in our school, and our few improvements, and would interest himself in everything that interests Park Point or the Fourth ward. There are things we want and ought to have, and they could be secured if gone after right. I would suggest also that some one send some name to the open court and let some one else approve it.

Respectfully yours of the Fourth ward.

W. T. CONNER,

Duluth, Oct. 11.

Maine and Prohibition.

Harper's Weekly: It may be that the people of Maine will conclude after a while that the perpetual conflict in that state over state prohibition is a nuisance that is worth abating, and will get together soberly to try to find some form of regulation of the drink traffic on which a large majority of them can agree. At this writing, nearly a week after election, it is not determined yet whether the Maine voters decided to retain the prohibition clause in the state constitution or not. It has been there since 1884, and, after twenty-seven years, has not yet established itself in the approval of the Maine people. Half of them are against it. After forty-four years of state prohibition half of Maine is opposed to that.

This looks like failure for state prohibition in Maine. The word is a fetich in that state. In the minds of many voters long under prohibition, belief in that method of restraint has come, no doubt, to be a matter of religion. It would be just as sensible to make the treatment of tuberculosis or the system for preventing typhoid a matter of religion. What is wanted is the method of dealing with the drink traffic that is best adapted to reduce to a minimum the damage done by alcohol. Prohibition is a sentimental remedy.

Governor Wilson in Convention.

New York World: The World has had occasion to express its fears that Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey might be proceeding too rapidly toward Bryanism and Populism in his obvious candidacy for the presidency. We have found his panaceas of direct government dubious, to say the least; his treatment of the "money power" sensational. It is with the greater pleasure, therefore, that we congratulate him upon the first state conventions held under the Geran law, whose passage he secured.

The Democratic convention in particular, in which his own influence was dominant, presented the novelty of an open discussion of platform planks in the public hearing, of a brief and business-like session, of a small group of delegates and a platform of practical projects for the state, not words and buncombe.

Especially must we commend Governor Wilson for insisting that a resolution indorsing him for the presidency be tabled. There will be plenty of time for that next year. His present duty is the administration of the government of New Jersey and the advocacy of needed local reforms.

Economizing to the Last Grain.

New York Evening Post: One stock exchange member was found today full of hope as to the future. He says that the speculative game has been killed for the time being, only because everybody is saving money, even the farmers. He is sure of his facts. While running his 60-horse power car through a nearby village only yesterday he saw with his own eyes a farmer drive up to a hitching post and carefully muzzle his horse with a feeding bag. Then the farmer went around to the back of his wagon and removed a chicken which had a piece of string tied to one leg. The chicken was then tied to the hitching post, to pick up the oats dropped from the horse's nosebag

THE APPEAL OF FALL.

Edwin L. Sabin in October Lippincott's: By fits and starts crisper grow the mornings and the evenings, and even earlier comes the dusk, so that there is a long reading-space betwixt supper and bed—a time in which Injuns may be slain, and pioneer times may be lived again; in which occur discussions upon domestic or foreign affairs by Father and Mother; or in which, failing of other entertainment, you and Hen Schmidt, next door, may play at marbles on the carpet.

The delirous excitement of Hallowe'en approaches, culminates, and reluctantly passes, for another year. And now there is frost o' mornings. Mother's begonias must be hustled in, and her geraniums; and in the south windows is built up, on the wide tiers, the customary pyramid of plants—Mother's cherished proteges who have the best of the winter's sunshine.

The leaves are dropping fast, so that all the front yard is littered with those from the maples, and all the back yard with those from the apple-trees. With these the house is banked at the foundations, from ground to first clapboards; with these the rose-bushes and the honey-suckle and pansies and the violets and clove pinks must be bedded, at Mother's direction; and the remainder also must be raked, but for the burning. Presently this after-school labor brings its reward in shape of bonfires. Along the street the flames are leaping, the smoke is eddying, as if the town is lighting beacons against the nearing host of winter. Around the bonfires may you and your fellows gambol and parade, performing reckless prodigies of prank and dance.

The sunsets are red; answering back with winter's bael-fires upon the horizon. Ducks and geese fly continuously—and some night all the air is vibrant with tumultous honking as in cohort after cohort the alarmed migrants stream for the South. That is a sign. Not even the veriest dullard can mistake. So behold, in confirmation, the next noon the cold-wave signal—that ominous white flag with the black square in the center—is waving from the town hall. And after school Mother takes you down-town and buys you the lusts—the winter boots—the annual boots with red-and-gilt tops and copper toes—the boots which are intended to last you through till spring!

And what is before those boots—what scuffing and scraping and sliding and soaking and freezing—ere, shorn of their pristine freshness and of pretty much every other original attribute, they are cast into the desolation of the alley, only such boots know.

That very night it comes; the cold wave. It rushes down from the north, driving before it the geese, and shakes the house and howls above your bed. But you may rest oblivious to external events, until internal events apprise you thereof. For early in the morning Father has arisen, to make in the hard-coal argand stove of the parlor that fire which (he fondly expects) will not go out all winter. The heralding scent of warmed polish is wafted up to you—announcing the crisis. To this you awaken.

And hurrah! For, bless us, this is winter—or very much like it, asserts Mother. "Cold as Greenland," asserts Father. Keen and gusty is the November air, as the gray clouds scud across the pale sky. The porch vents its first, familiar cracking as you step upon it, reconnoltering. The sitting-room (which is also the dining-room and breakfast-room and supper-room) stove exhales its cheery warmth, and the obstinate and sluggish parlor stove exhales its odor of polish.

And hurrah! Here is a change, and changes are welcome. Bluffly arrayed for winter—in comrade mittens and comrade scarf and comrade cap—and further accoutered with those new boots, may you stump forth, cringing not, but gleefully receptive of weather whatsoever that may be, and ready to bid winter, if this be winter, hail.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1891.

•••August Truelsen, son of President Henry Truelsen of the Duluth board of public works, was badly bruised on the steamship Augusta Victoria which arrived at New York this morning from Hamburg. The boat encountered a severe storm lasting several days. The seas ran mountains high and washed off everything movable. A sudden roll of the vessel on the wildest day of the storm threw down many of the passengers, and when picked up four were found to have broken arms and legs, while eight others were severely bruised. The Truelsen family were returning from a visit to Germany.

•••N. J. Miller has just received from Venice through the Duluth customs house a number of handsome carvings.

•••H. C. Henninger and wife of Camden, N. J., are in the city on their way to the Pacific coast. Mr. Heninger is making investments here.

•••Letters have been received here stating that A. M. Miller, Jr., late manager of Temple opera house, and Mae Sylvester were married last week in Peru, Ill. Mr. Miller, who is an old Duluth newspaper man, is now on the road as manager of the Reeves Burlesque Opera company doing a travesty upon "Faust." Mae Sylvester is the Faust of the company and has been here with the Shaw Opera company.

•••O. P. Smith of Mankato is visiting his son-in-law, William Spencer at West Duluth.

•••Miss Minna Gale will appear at the Lyceum tonight in "Romeo and Juliet," with a strong company, nearly all of whom are old Booth-Barrett people.

•••The steamship Susan E. Peck, wheat laden from Duluth, in her hurry to get down the Sault river, swung in ahead of a couple of vessels bound up and was struck by the rear vessel. She immediately sank and blocked the narrow channel like a gate. Steps have been taken by the government to open a passage around the obstruction and it is expected this will be done in about four days. Probably 150 vessels will be blocked there in the meantime.

•••William F. Coulton, aged 25 years, employed as brakeman on the Mitchell & McClure logging road, was killed yesterday morning by a Northern Pacific freight train near South Superior. He fell between the cars while trying to board the train. His home was in Duluth with his brother David at Superior street and Twenty-third avenue west.

•••The real estate firm of Mallory & Boyle has dissolved, George J. Mallory will continue the business at West Duluth.

•••A Belfast, Ireland, paper reports the death of William Browne, an uncle to Mrs. Eloy B. Braff and Engineer W. A. Nelson of Duluth. He also has a large number of other relatives in the vicinity of Duluth.

•••G. H. Hall of West Duluth will go to Sparta, Wis., tomorrow to attend the wedding of his son.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Always.

Swanville News: We have read many editorials in our city dailies the past week on the sugar question. The rise has been set down to the tariff, the wool bill veto, the crop, the president's swing round the circle and so on ad infinitum, by the many learned writers. The only point over which there has been no controversy of opinion is the fact that it's the "little feller" that is footing the bill.

Not So Bad As That.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: William J. Bryan blames Champ Clark for the defeat of the reciprocity agreement in Canada. Holy smoke, Mr. Bryan, shut up, or Champ Clark will carry Minnesota for president!

Tax the Bachelors.

Mankato Free Press: Mrs. Florence Lee, a visiting nurse in Duluth, makes the suggestion that the bachelors in that city should be taxed 50 cents per month, the money to go toward the fight that is being waged against tuberculosis. That is right. Tax the bachelors. They ought to be made to pay something for their single blessedness.

Needs Lots of Defense.

Sauk Center Herald: "President Taft defends his progressivism," shrieks a daily newspaper headline. Well, if there's anything under heaven that needs a defense it's the kind of progressivism "Bill" has been handing out to the dear people ever since he made that now famous Winona defense of the tariff and Jim Tawney.

They Are the Owners.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: For Rent—A nice easy chair in the presidential office at Washington—to the right person. Apply to The People.

Teddy's Biggest Mistake.

Belgrade Tribune: The Republican party has fooled the American people the past sixteen years, but never were they fooled so badly as when the hot-air artist, Teddy Roosevelt, knowingly selected and perpetrated Bill Taft upon the American people.

Advice.

Pillager Herald: Keep on voting the Republican ticket and get 50 cents' worth of sugar for a dollar.

A Hero.

Little Falls Transcript: Quentin says a man was arrested for attempting to hug a Boston woman. Pshaw! He should have been Carnegie medalled as a hero of the first caste.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Small communities are 40 per cent asleep and 60 per cent scandal.

A cuddly woman can scratch as sharply as the rest of them when the time comes.

You can always tell when a girl is going to marry a man by the way he thinks she isn't.

When a man suspects you of suspecting that he is lying, there is no doubt what he is doing.

A man gets all tangled up trying to light a pipe and talk at the same time, but a woman can visit over the telephone, feed the baby, and read a letter all at once.

Making Mistakes.

Homer Croy in Lippincott's—Just as sure as "to err is human," to make mistakes is a good sign. If we did not make mistakes once in a while, we should be calling for our celestial harps. A mistake now and then keeps our conceit in check, and our hand to the plow.

Once there was a man who determined not to make a mistake. Enough money had been left him so that he did not have to get up with the alarm-clock. Into a moderate-priced boarding house he moved. He did not enter business of any kind for fear of going wrong. He sat around from day to day with just enough to make ends meet. He treated the other members of the boarding house with consideration, and kept within proper social bounds. He would enter into nothing where anything was left to chance. He would vote neither yea nor no, say neither yea nor nay. He was always on the fence; he was neither positive nor negative. His life was being spent in not making a mistake.

Then one day the man died.

After the funeral was over one of the neighbors said: "Well, I calculate Jim's life was just about as complete a fizzle as you could find anywhere. He was neither for nor agin. He spent his whole life in holding his hands and trying not to make a mistake. Consequence was, he never did anything right and worth doing. Poor old Jim!"

So it was. Jim had made a mistake in trying not to make a mistake.

A good theatrical producer can tell what will be a success only about six times out of ten. He makes mistakes galore. With the public, when dramatics are concerned, a mistake is a mistake, and nothing less. When a manager scores seven successes out of ten, they call him a wizard. The seven successes more than wipe out the three mistakes.

So even though you are making some mistakes, don't hesitate. If you have successes two-thirds of the time, throw your hat up into the air and shout. Do as the ground squirrel does when trapped in a hole—use the dirt behind to brace your feet on.

In the Nick of Time.

Life: The cables bring the cheering news that it is all a mistake to think Thomas A. Edison is an agnostic. He says so himself.

This refutation of that report comes just in time to prevent several congregations in this country from ripping the electric wiring out of their churches and going back to gas as an illuminant, or even further back to oil.

As to that, considering the saintly conduct and language of Brother Rockefeller, it does not seem exactly brotherly for the churches to have discarded oil lamps, does it?

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

New York Sun: Stella—What do you consider a waste of opportunity?

Bella—A freight train going through a tunnel.

Washington Star: "You are afraid to go along a country road at night?"

"Yes. Every time I hear a hoot owl I imagine it's some new kind of an automobile shriek."

Buffalo Express: "I understand there was a great fuss over the match of the motorman and the heiress?"

"Yes; his folks are all cut up—say she isn't half good enough for him."

Houston Post: "That scientist is a coward."

"How so?"

"He made the statement that woman's foot was growing larger, and when I challenged him to name the woman he refused."

Detroit Free Press: "I wish I could take as much interest in baseball as my husband does."

"Why?"

"I should like to take it out on him every time the home team loses."

Houston Post: "This is the twentieth anniversary of my marriage."

"That so?"

"Well! Is that all you have to say?"

"Look here! Are you fishing for sympathy or congratulations?"

Exchange: Diner—A creme de menthe, waiter.

Waiter (calling out)—One starboard light.

Houston Post: "Don't you think a young man should learn to say, no?"

"I think he should learn to say 'No, thank you.'"

Baltimore American: "I am in a predicament."

"Why?"

"I must either swallow my wrath or eat my words."

More Commission Government.

Collier's: The prohibition issue overshadowed everything else in the recent election in Maine. It is worth noticing, however, that Gardiner in that state decided to establish commission government by a vote of about 4 to 1. This is the first city in Maine to adopt a plan which is gaining everywhere. The charter has embodied in it direct primaries, initiative, referendum, and recall, those Western favorites which are likely to spread in the East.

DULUTHIANS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A telephone message was received this morning stating that an automobile party of four West end men had met with a serious accident while driving on the Cloquet river road last evening.

In the party were Alderman Charles Hoar, C. F. Johnson, John Hoar and B. E. Wellberg. It is understood that all miraculously escaped injury, while the machine did not fare so well. The accident, it is said, was caused by the loss of a wheel from the rear axle.

The men were unable to get back to Duluth last evening and this morning telephoned from some place on the road. They were on their way to Cloquet river for a fishing trip.

QUIZ HINES IN SECRET

bers of the committee examined Mr. Hines in private for half an hour, while other witnesses waited for the formal opening of the day's hearing. When the executive session had concluded, counsel for the committee declined to say what had occurred during the examination of Hines.

Former Representative Henry Shephard of Jerseyville, one of the Democratic members of the Forty-sixth general assembly who voted for Mr. Lorimer, was the first witness called before the opening session of the committee. Shephard testified that Lee O'Neill Brown first asked him to vote for Lorimer. The witness said:

"I told Browne I would vote for Mr. Lorimer, but on one consideration. I told him that I would do so if a certain editor in my town could be refused further appointment as postmaster."

Wanted Postmaster's Scalp.

Shephard related much of the testimony that previously he had given. He said that on the day of Lorimer's election, George W. Alschuler of Aurora also asked him to vote for Lorimer.

"I then went to Mr. Lorimer and told him about the Jerseyville situation and about this editor-postmaster who had been attacking me and my family for a period of nine or ten years. Mr. Lorimer said the matter of the postmastership could be arranged. Then I agreed to vote for Mr. Lorimer, and went out on the floor of the house and did so."

ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE

Methodists at Toronto Talk of Church and the Home.

English Delegates Give Valuable Pointers on Slum Work.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 12.—With "The Church in the Household" as the general topic for consideration by the ecumenical Methodist conference in this city today, the program of addresses included "Home Religion and Religious Education in the Home," by Rev. H. B. Lark of Bude, England; "Methods of Religious Training in the Home," by Rev. D. S. Bedford of the Wesleyan Methodist church of the United States; the "Family Altar," by Dr. Richard T. Smith of London, England; "The Psychology of Child Training," by Rev. H. H. Hammill, Nashville, Tenn.; "The Widening Mission of the Sunday School," by Rev. C. E. Wilbur of Pittsburg, Pa.; and "The Equipment of the Sunday School Teacher," by J. H. Freeman of the Wesleyan Reform union.

Learning From Englishmen.

The American and Canadian delegates, especially from the larger cities, are getting much valuable data from the papers read by English delegates regarding methods in so-called slum work and in practical application of the principles of Christian socialism. Much of this information will be used in a preventive way.

According to Rev. George P. Eckman of St. Paul's Methodist church of New York, "One of the conspicuous needs of the day in our work is disinterested social service. The social settlement already is showing to the state its duty and to the church its opportunity. We must make impossible in the new world some of the deep-seated social diseases of the old world slums."

Praises "Downtown Church."

Among the most efficient fields of work in large cities is the "downtown church," according to Rev. J. G. Bickerton of Philadelphia, who sees great loss of effective machinery which never can be duplicated "when those churches in the big centers are sold for gain and the congregations move to more desirable districts." His belief is that "they should remain to fulfill their missions as centers of light and social regeneration in those areas on which otherwise the shadows must fall."

Divorce, Socialism, labor unions and wealth were some of the subjects upon which emphatic opinions were expressed by speakers at the session yesterday. The general topic was "The Church and Social Service."

Talk Divorce and Unionism.

Divorce was discussed sharply by Rev. George Alexander of Nashville, Tenn., editor of The Methodist Review. He asserted that there is urgent need for more preachers like Dr. G. G. Richmond of Philadelphia, "who fearlessly exposed the iniquity of the recent marriage of a divorced millionaire. All honor to him, and equal honor to the poor Methodist preacher who flatly refused the fee of $1,000 to perform the ceremony and declined a gift of another $1,000 offered to him as a reward for doing his duty."

That the labor union is the greatest single force in the United States, next to the public school, was the statement of Rev. Dr. George Elliott of Washington, D. C. "Nothing is doing more to make homogenous our population than our labor unions," he said.

are joining the movement voluntarily.

The losses in the fighting thus far aggregate several hundred, but practically all the dead are Manchus. The slaughter of the movement, which is guided by shrewd and temperate leaders, is evidently "Down with the Manchus."

Thus far there has been no indication of any animosity against foreigners on the part of the revolutionists.

Have Seized Arsenal.

The capture of Han Yang, which is a town of perhaps 100,000, just north of Hankow, has delivered into the hands of the revolutionists the arsenal and the important Han Yang iron works.

The revolutionists had no trouble in Han Yang, overwhelmingly outnumbering the local troops.

General Chang Piao escaped by flight and the members of the local government were dispersed.

The popularity of the revolutionary movement all along the river and in the interior is indicated by apparently authentic reports that several nearby cities have fallen, where resistance was offered the rebel forces, the towns appear to have been put to the torch.

The Methodist missionaries in Wu Chang are known to be safe. An expeditionary force is now engaged in gathering up the Americans and rescuing them wherever they are hemmed in by the natives.

Bishop Roots Cables.

New York, Oct. 12.—The Episcopal board of missions today received the following cable from Bishop Logan H. Roots of Hankow, China, who has charge of the Episcopal missionary work in that part of the empire:

"Missionaries are safe and well. Everything is now quiet. Can remain here."

more equitable treatment it was necessary to cut down some of the time allotted to Fond du Lac. This caused the storm clouds to lower, and while the tempest raged the telegraph wires were kept hot with messages which chased the presidential train all the way from Cheyenne to the Pacific coast.

The mayor of Fond du Lac announced that if Fond du Lac could not have Mr. Taft for two hours and a half they didn't want him at all. This decision apparently was not unanimous, for there were other telegrams sent urging the president to come to Fond du Lac, even if it be only for a few minutes.

Kept Wires Hot.

The announcement had been made from Fond du Lac several days ago that the city had withdrawn its invitation to the president and would refuse to entertain him. The entire official correspondence—by telegraph—was given out here today to make the situation entirely clear. It begins with the following telegrams sent by Mayor Frank J. Wolff of Fond du Lac to Secretary Hilles, on the presidential train at Cheyenne:

"We have made elaborate arrangements for the president's visit to Fond du Lac. We are advised that our time is to be divided with Oshkosh and other points in the Fox river valley. We would like to know definitely the time allotted to Fond du Lac. It will require two and a half hours to carry out the program and arrangements."

Appleton's Time Extended.

To this the secretary to the president replied:

"Telegram received. Railroads had given only ten minutes to Appleton, one hour and forty minutes net to Oshkosh, and two and a half hours to Fond du Lac. This was an error. Appleton was to have had one hour and ten minutes. It will be necessary to revise the program and deal fairly with Appleton."

This message must have caused some excitement in Fond du Lac, for promptly this answer was sent from Mayor Wolff as the "chairman of all committees":

"As all arrangements had been made to cover the president's visit to Fond du Lac for two and a half hours, as per original program, disappointing, all arrangements have been abandoned. Give all your time to Oshkosh and Appleton."

Postmaster Stepped In.

As soon as this action of the mayor and the committees was made public, Postmaster George Watson of Fond du Lac wired to Mr. Hilles as follows:

"Kindly give the people of Fond du Lac an opportunity to express their loyalty to the president in accordance with his plans and convenience. The people wish to greet him and to hear him."

F. M. Givens, president of the Business Men's association, also got busy and sent the following telegram to Secretary Hilles:

"The citizens of Fond du Lac urge that there be no change in the program of the president regarding his visit to this city. Everything will be arranged for his comfort and pleasure."

Meantime there came a message from William Kohl, chairman of the Republican committee of Dodge county, Wis., urging the president to give his time to Mayville, in that county. If Fond du Lac didn't want him, Dodge county did. Also in the meantime Mr Taft had made up his mind to go to Fond du Lac, reception committee or no reception committee.

Settled the Matter.

The telegram from Mr. Hilles which brought about the final solution was addressed to Postmaster Watson, as follows: "Your telegram received. Only difficulty that might be encountered in Fond du Lac, in consequence of telegram from the mayor, is that of inadequate police protection to the crowds. If the city officials oppose a meeting there, what police protection would be guaranteed as a safeguard against accident?"

On yesterday came the following signed by the mayor of Fond du Lac and the chairmen of all the committees:

"The mayor and citizens of Fond du Lac are anxious to entertain the president and his party on the 26th of October. The misunderstanding as to time assigned to Fond du Lac led to hasty action in telegram cancelling visit by president. The city of Fond du Lac extends its good wishes to the president and desires to assure him that he will receive a hearty welcome when he arrives in our city. We stand ready to carry out the program in accordance with the time at our disposal."

In the following telegram from Secretary Hilles to Mayor Wolff, the final chapter was written:

"The president will be pleased to comply with the wishes of the committees."

And Fond du Lac will entertain Mr. Taft for an hour and a half on the afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 26.

Went Into Oregon.

Portland, Or., Oct. 12.—On one of the busiest days of his trip, President Taft crossed the Columbia river into Oregon and arrived in Portland, last night. He spent the day in traveling south from Tacoma, and the only long stop was made at Olympia, where Mr. Taft was the guest at luncheon of Governor Hay of Washington. Last night the president sat down to dinner with members of the Portland Commercial club and later delivered an address in the armory. Later he was driven to the new building of the Columbus club, where he made a short talk to the Knights of Columbus, referring especially to Columbus day, which largely through the efforts of the organization was made a legal holiday at the session of the legislature last January. He received throughout southwestern Washington a rousing reception, the inhabitants of most of the towns through which the train sped being anxious to see and hear the president.

Senator Bourne, one of the leaders of the "insurgent" forces in the senate who two years ago entertained Mr. Taft for a while in Portland, was not present last night, but other Oregonians of prominence, including Senator Chamberlain and Governor West, welcomed the president to Oregon. Senator Bourne is in Washington.

Mute as Interpreter.

The president spoke on all sorts of subjects yesterday, from the tariff vetoes to women's suffrage and peace and arbitration. Just before crossing the Columbia river, at Vancouver, the president said farewell to Washington. He spoke to several thousand persons.

A mute nearby acted as interpreter to a number of fellow deaf-mutes and kept his fingers flying while the president delivered his message of thanks to Washington and explained what the Panama canal would mean to the United States.

John J., were the twelve veniremen, who were temporarily drafted into the jury box for preliminary examination when court adjourned yesterday. Though it had been expected that this process would constitute a perfunctory and monotonous chapter in the trial, likely to drag through many weeks, the situation as a result of yesterday's quizzing of the initial veniremen has changed somewhat and it now is believed that many a passage at arms will ensue between counsel over the question of competency of talesmen who have formed opinions concerning warfare between capital and labor unionism.

For Haggerty's Death.

District Attorney John D. Frederick for the prosecution elected to try McNamara for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a machinist who, with twenty other men, met death in an explosion and fire which wrecked the Los Angeles Times building, Oct. 1, 1910.

This case was picked from nineteen indictments for murder found against the prisoner, his brother, John McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Iron Workers; James Caplan and M. A. Schmidt, both at large, and four unidentified persons specified as John Doe, Jane Doe, Richard Doe, and John Stiles, because Haggerty's body was found nearest the spot where the explosion occurred. The prosecution contends that this explosion was caused by dynamite; the defense that it was caused by gas.

The new hall of records in which the trial is being held, is only a stone's throw distant from the scene of the explosion.

This is the setting of the legal stage. Upon it counsel for the defense, headed by Attorney Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, in questions to the jury and arguments to Judge Bordwell, sought to depict a mighty contest between organized labor—the McNamaras are union men—and its opponents, without much opposition from the prosecution.

Grand Jury to Report.

After serving ten days less than a year, the grand jury which indicted John J. McNamara, his brother, James B., and six others for murder in connection with the wrecking of the Los Angeles Times, will make its final report tomorrow and will be discharged, according to unofficial announcement here today.

The jury was impanelled by Judge Walter Bordwell Oct. 22, 1910. Three days later it concentrated its attention upon the Times explosion case, to the exclusion of everything else, the first fruit of its labors being secret indictments returned Jan. 8 against James B. Bryce, Milton A. Schmidt and David Caplni.

March 14 the same jury found that the victims of the Times disaster met death in a wreck and fire caused by a dynamite explosion, and on April 15 it returned an indictment against the two McNamaras and against Ortie McManigal, who later signed a formal statement concerning his knowledge of the case.

Since returning these indictments, the grand jury has found time to take into consideration other matters, but has returned from time to time to consideration of the case to investigation which it was called.

"UNCLE IKE'S" BARREL WIDE OPEN DURING WISCONSIN CAMPAIGN

further details would be necessary.

Senator Heyburn, the chairman, gave it as his opinion that the validity of United States senator's election could not be affected by the question whether or not he had filed an account of expenses for his nomination, but the subject had to be touched in the present investigation because of the charges against Senator Stephenson.

Gordon, when asked how much it would cost to properly organize the 2,200 precincts in Wisconsin, said about $100 for each precinct. This would make the cost to a candidate for the entire state $220,000, more than twice as much as Senator Stephenson spent. In addition there would be the cost of advertising, Gordon said.

Riordan on Stand.

D. E. Riordan of Ashland, Wis., testified he learned of Stephenson's candidacy at the Republican national convention at Chicago in 1908. He agreed to work for him and subsequently spent $3,200 of the Stephenson funds.

Political evils in Wisconsin began with the advent of the primaries as a means of nominating public officials, according to Levi H. Bancroft, attorney general of the state, who testified yesterday before the committee. Bancroft was also called to explain what he did with $250 paid him out of the $107,793 Stephenson campaign fund. He declared that the money paid him while he was a candidate for assemblyman, was not used to further his own interest, but was expended entirely in Senator Stephenson's behalf while the latter was seeking nomination for the senatorship at the primaries in 1908.

Referring to the fact that Senator Stephenson failed to make a detailed account of his expenditures other than that certain sums were paid to individuals, Bancroft said it was his opinion that the corrupt practices act did not require a detailed account of what each man spent.

Primaries the Beginning.

"We never had talk of corruption in this state before," said Bancroft. "It all came about since we got the primaries, and now there's nothing but political evil."

As for the money he had received, Bancroft said he spent it as fast as possible, for he was glad to be rid of it.

"You never heard of any money being used corruptly in the election of Mr. Stephenson?" asked Chairman Heyburn.

"Never a cent. Senator Stephenson always was considered above investigation in this state—until he got into the United States senate."

Chellis C. Weyland of Milwaukee testified that out of $1,199 he had received $5.35 went for chewing gum. Asked what he did with the chewing gum, Weyland said:

"Why, I gave it to young women. It was a good argument to win them over."

Interpreting the Wisconsin law relative to campaign expenditures, which J. J. Blain, who brought the charges against Senator Stephenson, had declared prohibited the handing by candidates of any money over to campaign managers, Senator Heyburn announced it was his opinion that such a construction would interfere with the constitutional rights of citizens to participate in the selection of their representatives in congress. It was his opinion that the Wisconsin law did not contemplate such a prohibition.

Old Record Missing.

The committee sent a request to the state authorities at Madison, Wis., asking for all papers used in the previous investigations by the legislature of the Stephenson charges. W. L. Essman, custodian of the papers, said that the papers had been put in two boxes. On coming to Milwaukee he reported that one of the boxes was missing. He was unable to say until he examined such papers as he had what documents were missing.

ITALIANS LAND NEW DETACHMENTS FROM ARMY OF OCCUPATION

ment officials expressed the view today that, with the German emperor working on his ally, the king of Italy, and the czar of Russia in a favorable position to influence the Porte, peace between Italy and Turkey is not far off, and that an armistice at least can be arranged as soon as Turkey is prepared to admit that Italy is in technical possession of Tripoli.

Trouble at Porte.

London, Oct. 12.—A news dispatch from Constantinople, forwarded by way of the Bulgarian frontier to avoid the Turkish censor, today says that the situation in the Turkish capital is grave. It is feared that when parliament meets Saturday an open conflict will take place between the Committee of Union and Progress and the reactionary party. The masses are greatly excited against the Young Turk committee, and the best men refuse to join the government while the committee attempts to dominate it.

Working Among Powers.

Rome, Oct. 12.—There is a feeling in official circles here that Turkey and her sympathizers are doing everything possible to engender opposition among the powers to Italy's plans, and it is believed that certain reports which have been circulated aim chiefly to play on Anglo-German antagonisms.

With this object, is is supposed, the report had spread broadcast that Germany, having planned to obtain Tobruk from Turkey, prior to the beginning of hostilities, will end by obtaining this important strategic point from Italy as a base for operations in the Mediterranean against British supremacy.

All these rumors and reports are officially denied by Italy. It is pointed out by Italian officials that Germany never has taken any step in such a direction in the past, and has no intentions to ask anything from Italy in the future, while it is also declared that Italy could not dream of being a catspaw to draw chestnuts from the fire for Germany.

No Intervention Expected.

In connection with this denial, it is stated that the entire situation remains unchanged, that none of the powers opposes Italy's action and they have no intention of intervening until Italian dominion in Tripoli is indisputable.

Advices from Tripoli, sent by Rear Admiral Borea d'Olmo, the governor, and Capt. Gagni, the commandant, say the sailors now in possession of the city have given splendid proof of their powers of resistance and endurance.

It is too late now for the Turks to recapture the place, as the first section of the troops of the expedition has landed.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Mrs. D. T.: No, you are not too old to regain your charming complexion, even though your face is wrinkled and beset with enlarged pores and blackheads. You can clear up and improve your complexion best by using the following greaseless cream-jelly: Mix together two teaspoonfuls glycerine, one ounce almozoin and a half pint cold water. Stir and let stand a few hours before using. This cream-jelly is unequaled for freshening up a dry, rough skin, and accomplishes wonders in eradicating wrinkles, blackheads and freckles. After using this almozoin jelly only a short time, you should find a big improvement in your complexion.

Rose: You must be a pitiful sight to look upon, with so much burdensome fat. Instead of denying yourself the food you crave and undergoing torturous exercises, try this harmless remedy: Get four ounces of parnotis at any druggist's and dissolve it in a pint and a half of hot water. Take a tablespoonful before each meal, and your fat will disppear as if by magic. I receive many letters from those who have tried this simple, inexpensive remedy telling me what a grand thing it is. It cuts down fat rapidly and leaves the skin smooth and free from wrinkles.

Mrs. E. B.: Ignorance is the only acceptable excuse for a head of poor hair. With but a little care you can have just as nice a head of thick, lustrous hair as your daughter. In the first place never wash your hair with soap, as the alkili in soap destroys the hair, making it brittle, short, streaky and lifeless. Try shampooing about twice a month, with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. The abundant lather cleanses perfectly, rinses easily and dries quickly. You will soon notice your hair getting thicker, longer and taking on the beautiful healthy look so much desired, and you will no longer be bothered with dandruff.

Jean: Any amount of cold creams and the like will not take the pimples and that sallow look from your face. What you need is a good blood purifier and strengthening tonic to put a healthy color into your cheeks. Get an ounce of kardene and a half pint alcohol at your druggist's; mix these with a half cup sugar, then add enough hot water to make a quart. Take a teaspoonful of this tonic before meals and you will soon regain your lost appetite, sleep soundly at nights and feel energetic. In a few weeks you will have a good healthy color in your face and be feeling fine.

Society Bud: No, there is no way to change the color of your eyes, but you can easily make them clear, sparkling and beautiful, by using in each eye twice daily a few drops of a soothing tonic, made by dissolving an ounce of crystos in a pint of water. This strengthens weak, tired eyes and removes all inflammation. For granulated lids, and other eye-troubles, it is an unfailing remedy. Many oculists use this tonic with excellent results, and wearers of glasses find it a big help.

G. A.: Powder will not correct a sallow skin. If you wish to tone up your complexion and give it that much-desired smooth, velvety look, use a lotion made with four ounces of spurmax dissolved in a half pint hot water with two teaspoonfuls glycerine added. You will find this lotion inexpensive and a sure remedy for freckles, tan and skin roughness. It takes away that sallow, shiny look and does not show on the face or rub off like powder. I find face powder very harmful to the complexion, as it clogs up the skin pores and causes rough, wrinkled faces.

Fay: Unless the electric needle is handled by an expert, of which there are comparatively few in the country, you cannot permanently rid the skin's surface of that downy growth, a simple, yet effective treatment consists of applying a delatone paste to the offending hairs, and after two or three minutes rub off and wash the skin. You can get powdered delatone at the drug store, an ounce of which costs a dollar, but this cost is trifling, as a little of the delatone and water to make a paste does the work quickly and well.

A. L. C.: Don't worry, for modern science has given us a remedy for hair and scalp troubles that is simply wonderful in its remarkable effects. Get from your druggist a half pint alcohol and one ounce quinzoin; mix together in a bottle, then add a half pint cold water. Although a very simple, inexpensive remedy, this tonic rubbed into the scalp, about twice a week eradicates dandruff, stops itching of the scalp, and checks falling hair quickly. It keeps the scalp in a healthy condition and promotes a vigorous, natural growth of glossy hair.

HAD BROKEN GAME LAWS

Recluse Living on Island Near Hibbing Arrested By Game Wardens.

Fish, Muskrat and Deer Illegally Taken Get Accused Into Trouble.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rip Van Winkle may have been a lucky man, according to the once poular song, but his prototype arraigned in municipal court before Judge Brady today is not, as the court gave him a fine of $100 or its equivalent, ninety days in the county jail for breaking the game and fish laws of Minnesoto.

Kattie Kerkena lives on an island in West Second lake, about fifteen miles south of Hibbing and for some time he has been under suspicion of the game wardens. Yesterday Wardens Wood of Alice and James of Ely invaded his den on the island making the trip from the mainland on a raft.

Evidences of Lawbreaking.

They found several evidences of law breaking. There were about fifty pounds of fish taken illegally by nets, eighteen muskrats recently trapped and nearly a score of muskrat skins, also three deer carcasses. Kerkena put up a fight as the officers started to arrest him by drawing his knife on Warden James. He was overpowered and brought to Hibbing. This morning he was arraigned in court. He looked like Robinson Crusoe and Rip Van Winkle rolled into one, his shaggy beard, tattered clothing and generally unkempt appearance bespeaking life in the wilds. The evidence against Kerkena was so conclusive the court imposed a $100 fine and in the absence of the necessary amount the trapper was sent to the county jail. He is about 50 years old and for years has been a character around Second lakes.

VIRGINIA TO HAVE ANOTHER THEATER

Fourth Playhouse to Be Built on Chestnut Street for Immediate Use.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected work will begin at once on a three-story brick block fronting fifty feet upon Chestnut street, next to the Ormonde hotel, for Nels Anderson, who owns 100 feet there. The new building will have on the first floor a new vaudeville theater with a seating capacity of about 550 and will be ready for business about the first of the next year. This will make four theaters for Virginia.

POWDER MAKING TO BEGIN SOON

Du Pont Plant at Wilpin, Near Hibbing, About Ready to Operate.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Black powder will be manufactured at the Du Pont Powder plant near Wilpin, probably within three weeks, possibly in two weeks.

The Du Pont Powder company has erected a very complete plant on the shores of Lake Carrie, near Wilpin, about seven miles from Hibbing. The plant is located on the sides of a number of hills just north of Lake Carrie. The plant consists of separate units in the shape of concrete buildings, each building being erected at a considerable distance from each other building and all being connected by a narrow gauge track. This track has a slight downward grade from the first building where the raw material for the manufacture of black powder is received, running past the various mills, to the final shed where the powder in cans is received and transferred to delivery wagons or cars for shipment.

In addition to the various buildings which compose the powder mill plant, there is a large reinforced concrete power house which generates power and light and furnishes steam for all parts of the plant and for the adjoining location, on another hill, made up of various houses and cottages for the superintendents and workmen. The entire plant is a considerable village about three miles in circunferences and containing more than forty buildings.

DISCUSS ADDITION TO LINCOLN HIGH

Hibbing School Board and Others Look Over Preliminary Plans.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the board of education of the Hibbing district last evening, sketches of the proposed addition to the Lincoln high school were submitted and were discussed at length by the board and others.

In addition to the members of the board there were present: Assistant General Manager J. H. Hearding of the Oliver Iron Mining company, Supt. W. J. West of this city, C. A. Remington, Judge Martin Hughes, Rev. Frank Durrant, A. P. Stillman, J. J. Cox, D. D. McEachin and others. The sketches submitted provided for a large study hall, twelve class rooms, a large gymnasium with running track and two swimming pools. The estimated cost of such a building, which would be joined with the present Lincoln building is $110,000. There was considerable informal discussion of various features of the plans submitted but no action of any kind was taken. The purpose of the meeting was to show to all who are interested something of the character of the building which has thus far been considered by the board.

Other Business Transacted.

The usual monthly bills were allowed by the board, the treasurer's report for the month was filed, the resignation of Miss Laura Olson of the high school faculty was accepted, a bid of the Blake Electrical company in the sum of $265 for wiring the Alice school building and other work in connection was filed, the girls of the high school were granted the use of the gymnasium the night of Halloween under the supervision of the faculty and the board adjourned.

May Detach Glen School.

A move is on foot to separate the Glen school from the Hibbing district and to attach it to the Chisholm district.

Messrs. C. R. Woods, Dr. E. H. Nelson, Maitland Tripp and D. C. Hackett, representing the Chisholm school board appeared before the school board last evening and said that the Chisholm board has been petitioned by the people at the Glen location for the transfer of the school. The delegation, through its spokesman, Attorney C. R. Woods, declared that Chisholm has no interest in the matter except to accommodate the people of the Glen location and that the Chisholm schools themselves do not care particularly whether the Glen comes to them or remains in Hibbing.

It is understood that there is some opposition to the matter on the part of taxpayers in the Hibbing district on account of the amount of territory which the Chisholm district would be compelled to take from Hibbing. On this account the matter was laid over by the board for further consideration.

The Glen school, although actually within the village limits of Chisholm, is a part of the Hibbing school district.

BOY IS INJURED BY DYNAMITE CAP

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—While playing with companions near his home at Sparta, Helge the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Martil was struck in the abdomen by pieces of an exploded dynamite cap hit by boys who were shooting at the cap which lay on a stump. The boys immediately took their injured companion to his home from which he was removed to the Fabiola hospital of this city. The pieces of the cap were removed from the injured boy's body and according to the attending physicians the lad has good chances for recovery if complications do not arise.

EVELETH CHARTER COMMISSION

Organizes By Electing James Poole President and George Perham Secretary.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the first meeting of the Eveleth charter commission the following officers were elected: James C. Poole, president; Solomon Sax, vice president; George A. Perham, secretary. Frank R. Campbell acted as temporary chairman. The members were very enthusiastic over the prospects of submitting a charter in six months time as required by law and also discussed the commission form of government very freely.

George A. Whitman, Solomon Sax and George A. Perham were appointed as a committee to secure copies of city charters from cities in this state and will submit at the next meeting of the commission to be held next Thursday evening. President Poole will also submit his list of committees at the next meeting. The city has appropriated $500 with which the commission to execute its work and the members are confident the city will be supplied with an adequate charter in less than six months.

MANY MORE FARMERS

Around Lake Carrie District Than Few Years Ago.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two years ago the Lake Carrie road, now generally called the Du Pont Powder plant road, was built by the township of Stuntz. About seven miles of road was built at a cost of approximately $14,000.

There was some opposition to the building of the road at the time because "it would benefit nobody but Billy Close," who was the one lone farmer in the section reached by the road. Today in the immediate territory reached by the road there are over twenty-farmers, while many others have started further back from the road in the same section, and the acreage cleared is little short of marvelous. In the Lake Carrie district a wide stretch of land, as level as a floor has been cleared and one cannot travel half a mile in any direction without finding a farm or two beginning in the brush. The farming has not only begun, but there is plenty of evidence the farmers are prospering and that the section opened by this seven miles of road will very shortly become a very busy farming country.

DRILLING AROUND AURORA.

United States Steel Company Is Operating Extensively.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company is drilling extensively in this vicinity. A dozen drills are already on the ground and set up and many more are to follow.

The drilling will be done between Aurora and Mesaba in sections 2, 19, 21 and 30 and will be the most thorough ever undertaken in this vicinity. It is expected that not less than fourteen months will be consumed in the work. Forty drills in all will be used.

The headquarters will be established at the Stevens where the office building, the dry and the blacksmith shop have been fixed up for a winter camp. Many of the married men are moving their families into the houses at the location. There will 150 or more men employed.

The engineering work has all been done and the crews have left. All the drill crews will have to do is to follow the blue prints, set up the drills and commence boring the territory full of holes. It is considered certain that some big finds will be made. The work will be in charge of L. W. Johnson, who will be located at the Stevens.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Duluth Citizens Show the Way.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of serious kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that these ills can be cured. Read what a Duluth citizen says:

Mrs. J. E. Kennell, 324 N. Twentieth Ave. W., Duluth, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have given entire satisfaction in our home. About a year ago a member of our family was so crippled with his back that he could hardly straighten. He had much pain and lameness in the kidneys and there were other troubles in evidence which plainly showed what was wrong. Doan's Kidney Pills were publicly recommended and a supply was procured. This remedy brought relief and thus proved its merits."

Light to copious rains fell over the eastern lake region, Upper Ohio valley, Middle and South Atlantic and Gulf states during either Wednesday or last night, principally in connection with the barometric depression centered off the New England coast. Rain has developed over Western South Dakota, and this condition may reach the head of the lakes tonight."

Face Peeling Easy—Blonde or Brunette

"The blonde's complexion fades early, because her skin is extraordinarily thin and fine," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, perhaps the most famous living beauty. "The brunette's, as a rule, is the reverse. The skin is thicker and has a tendency to an oily appearance."

For either the faded blonde's skin or the brunette's oily or sallow complexion, the best remedy is ordinary mercolized wax. Used daily, this will give one an entirely new complexion within about a week's time. The wax gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin, with all its defects, a little each day, without affecting the delicate underskin in the least. The latter will have the exquisitely beautiful glow of youth—indeed, one may readily lose ten or fifteen years from her age, so far as appearance goes, by a course of this simple treatment. Mercolized wax, securable at any drug store, is applied like cold cream.

Talks About Fat

Red Cross Nurse Explains Quick Way to Get Rid of It, and Proves It By Her Own Experience.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

"There are so many different treatments for fat used these days by those who are unable to make a fortunate selection, and who of course fall as a result, that I want to put in a word of good advice to all fat people," says Mrs. Clara E. Doolittle, well-known Red-Cross Nurse.

"When I was about 40 years of age, I became so fat that I tipped the scales at 200 pounds, and I was so disgusted I did not know what to do.

"Every remedy I used failed, and right here is where most fat people make a mistake. Just stop experimenting with yourselves, and try to find out first what treatment stands the test. This is what I did.

"I learned of the excellence of the treatment of Prof. F. J. Kellogg at Battle Creek, Michigan, which anyone can use at home. I thought I was in fair health before I took this treatment, but now I feel better than I ever did before. When I began, I weighed 200 pounds, with chest measure 42, waist measure 32, and hip measure 48 inches. In a few weeks' time I lost weight without any ill effects, until now I weigh 148, with chest measure 37, waist 27, and hips 40 inches.

"I cannot speak too highly of Mr. Kellogg and the great work he is doing for fat burdened humanity. Some fat people are afraid to venture, but none need be afraid of this treatment. I have the honor of being a Red-Cross nurse and have been a nurse for over 15 years in America's best hospitals and have been brought in daily contact with sufferers. To all such I recommend Prof. Kellogg's Safe Fat Reducer."—Clara E. Doolittle, Box 64, now at Tekonsha, Mich.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: OCT. 15. Ezra I, 1-11: The Return From the Captivity.

CONNECTION.

The hour for deliverance from captivity has struck. It is 536 B. C., the end of the seventy years predicted by Jeremiah. Through the prophets, like Daniel and Ezekiel, religion has revived. Deprived of their sacred place and the temple worship, with all its symbols, they learned to prize their Scriptures and to value the spiritual element in religion. Piety and patriotism revived. As the purpose for which they were allowed to be carried captive was a religious and moral one, there were now good grounds to restore them. They have been disciplined; their acquaintance with the world will be an aid to them later; only the aspiring and the faithful can be sifted out and they will perpetuate the faith. They have learned their lesson and will never go into idolatry again. The man to bring it about is at hand, Cyrus, the benevolent and far-sighted king.

THE LESSON.

I.

Cyrus Inspired to Liberate Them. 1.

"Now in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, that the word of Jehovah by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, Jehovah stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia, so that he made proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying."

1. HEATHEN.—It used to be thought that Cyrus was a monotheist, worshipping the one God, but he was evidently a polytheist, who thought of Jehovah as the one chief God. It is not to be claimed that he knew he was serving God in such a profound way. He was carrying out the deeper purposes of God in ways he was not fully aware of. How God stirred up his spirit we don't know; but perhaps by guiding his wise disposition, his personal sympathies and his broad statesmanship, so that he would be carrying out a plan definitely announced by Jeremiah. God knows how to fulfill His own word. He makes use of all kinds of people.

2. STATESMAN.—He was large-minded and humane, as Xenophon in the Anabasis tells us. He was a wise ruler, anxious to conciliate and harmonize all his subjects. Their captors tore them away from their native land; he will take them back and they will be all the more loyal. As a statesman he saw the need of a strong outpost at that point as a fortification against the aggressions of Egypt and a base of operations, if he should want to invade Egypt. He had been king of Persia since 549 B. C, having first started in Elam. God raised him up from the beginning and at last gave him victory over Babylon, because He needed just such a man to restore His people. Cyrus was wise enough to put his decree in writing. Years afterward, when the Jews, who returned, were in trouble with jealous enemies, who tried to stop their work of rebuilding, the written copy of this proclamation saved the enterprise. God's wisdom was back of the precaution. See Ezra 6.

II.

Cyrus Issues the Decree. 2-4.

"Thus saith Cyrus, king of Persia. All the kingdoms of the earth hath Jehovah, the God of heaven, given me; and he hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whosoever there is among you of all His people, his God is with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of Jehovah, the God of Israel (He is God), which is in Jerusalem. And whosoever is left, in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, besides the freewill-offering for the house of God which is in Jerusalem."

1. RELIGIOUS.—Notice the way he speaks of the God of the Jews, as the "Lord God of heaven and earth," a name current among those who spoke the Aramaic language meaning about what "Ormuzd" meant in Persian, "the chief God." Perhaps Cyrus meant that Jehovah alone was chief, not alone the chief among the Jews. Let us hope he did. He positively records his belief that He was sovereign of heaven and earth and had bestowed power upon him, the king.

2. COMMISSIONED.—We recognize his commission to restore God's people and rebuild His temple; so did he. How he came to know it we know not. He may have read Jeremiah's prophecies, or Daniel may have stirred his interest. He came to hold the deep conviction that he was divinely appointed to do it. God has His own way of imparting such convictions of duty. He localizes God as the God "of Israel," and gives us the fear that he felt under no obligation to rim except to take of His own people, as he would have done for any other God's people. His decree was a protection to the people. Their enterprise could not be regarded as lawful, nor would it be safe, without it.

3. SYMPATHY.—His provision for those who went and those who stayed was kind. Freewill offerings were asked for the temple and personal gifts for the poor emigrants. Even Gentiles were encouraged to aid with money, clothing and beasts of burden. They would give in order to stand well with the king and to get rid of disagreeable neighbors, even if they had no personal interest in the emigrants.

III.

Leaders Arise and Everybody Helps. 5-11.

"Then rose up the head of fathers' houses of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, even all whose spirit God had stirred to go up to build the house of Jehovah which is in Jerusalem. And all they that were round about them strengthened their hands with vessels of silver, with gold, with goods, and with beasts, and with precious things, besides all that was willingly offered. Also Cyrus the king brought forth the vessels of the house of Jehovah, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem, and had put in the house of his gods; even those did Cyrus king of Persia bring forth by the hand of Mithredath the treasurer, and numbered them unto Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah. And this is the number of them: thirty platters of gold, a thousand platters of silver, nine and twenty knives, thirty bowls of gold, silver bowls of a second sort four hundred and ten, and other vessels a thousand. All the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. All these did Sheshbazzar bring up, when they of the captivity were brought up from Babylon unto Jerusalem."

1. ENTHUSIASM.—The king's interest made it popular, we might say, a fad. The hereditary leaders accepted the opportunity and were followed by the priests and Levites. This was a hard task. It came from God and required faith in Him, for they were to encounter great hardships and meet scorn, there and in Jerusalem. Those who were brought over captive, at first, were of "Judah and Benjamin" and now a few of the other tribes, carried away over a hundred years before, were mixed in with them. The number who returned was 42,360. Some remained because they were having a comfortable time, or were involved in business, or were in government positions, or for other reasons. A large Babylonian colony continued to exist till the time of Christ and they always exerted a powerful influence on Jewish thought.

2. CO-OPERATION.—All helped, Cyrus leading with a gift of the former vessels of the temple, 5,400 in all, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought away and were kept intact. He appointed a Jew, named Sheshbazzar, at the head of the movement and made him a sort of pasha of Jerusalem. They reached Jerusalem October of Cyrus' first year as king of Babylon. The apocryphal book of Esdras tells us they started off in high spirits and to strains of stirring music.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

With regard to justice, if any appeared to him inclined to display that virtue, he made a point of making such men richer than those who sought to profit by injustice. Accordingly, while in many other respects his affairs were administered judiciously, he likewise possessed an army, worthy of the name. For it was not for money that generals and captains came from foreign lands to enter into his service, but because they were persuaded that to serve Cyrus well would be more profitable than any amount of monthly pay.—Xenophon.

The end in view was neither social nor political, but purely religious. The exiles return as a people of God. The goal of their pilgrimage is a holy site. The one work they are to aim at achieving is to further the worship of their God.—Nicoll.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. To what extent and in what way does God use worldly people to bring about His will?
2. What are the benefits of the exile to the nation and to the world?
3. In what way is our earthly life an exile?
4. Is it true that everyone who does good is entitled to our support?
5. Should the knowledge of coming hardships keep us from right undertakings?
6. Is there a definite place where the most useless may have something to do?

ASK TAFT TO FIRE WILSON

Consumers' League Representatives Praise Dr. Wiley and His Work.

Also Urge Dismissal of Solicitor McCabe and Dunlap.

New York, Oct. 12.—Resolutions commending the work of Dr. Harvey Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, praising President Taft for his exoneration of Dr. Wiley, and urging the removal from office of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Solicitor McCabe and Associate Chemist Dunlap of the department, were adopted by the food committee of the National Consumers' league at its meeting here yesterday.

The resolutions indorse Dr. Wiley for "his efforts to have the food and drugs act enforced for the benefit of the consumer as well as the manufacturer," and urge congress to amend the food and drugs act so that hereafter Dr. Wiley "may be given a free hand" in its enforcement.

Charges Against Wilson.

Among the reasons advanced for urging the removal of Secretary Wilson are the allegations that he "used his official position to force" the Denver convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments "to vote in favor of the use of the drug sodium benzoate in foods;" that he "has used his official position to favor the manufacturers of foods, drugs, liquors and medicines;" that he allowed the food law to be "set aside" for the production of glucose, labeled as "corn syrup;" that he was instrumental in giving the solicitor of the department the right to decide whether suits shall be brought for violation of the food law after samples "have been found to violate the law," and that the law dealing with the labelling of beers "has not been enforced."

Mexican Rebels Defeated.

Tuxtla, Gutierrez, Chiapas, Mexico, Oct. 12.—Fighting late Monday afternoon for the possession of the little town of Chiapilla, held by insurrectos whose strength was estimated at 900, a force of volunteers numbering but 190, killed 130 rebels and captured 106, eighteen of whom were wounded. The loss to the government forces is given at less than a dozen killed.

MADERO CABINET BEING CHOSEN

Five Who Are Serving Under De La Barra Will Retain Posts.

City of Mexico, Oct. 12.—Five members of the present cabinet will hold portfolios under Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and four of these will be retained in their present positions, according to an authorized statement made at Madero's headquarters. The other three positions will depend upon the outcome of the vice presidential contest. The cabinet places already arranged for by Madero are as follows:

Finance, Ernesto Madero; communications, Manuel Bonilla; fomento, Rafael Hernandez; war, General Gonzales Salas.

Manuel Calero, now minister of justice, has been asked to remain, but he may be requested to take the portfolio of the department of foreign relations.

Unless De La Barra should be forced into the vice presidency, it is probable he will persist in his refusal to accept. Should he take the place, however, Calero probably will retain the portfolio of justice, but in case he goes to the foreign office, the department of justice probably will go to Miguel Diaz Lombardo.

Determined to know just why the Mexican government paid Gustavo Madero, a brother of the president-elect, 642,196 pesos, and what it has cost to muster out the revolutionary forces, the chamber of deputies has called upon President De La Barra for an accounting.

KRUPP INFRINGEMENT SUITS THROWN OUT.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—The United States circuit court of appeals has dismissed four suits brought by the Krupp company of Germany against the Midvale Steel company of Philadelphia, to restrain the Pennsylvania corporation from alleged infringement on patents for a process of manufacturing armor plate. The decision was given by Judge Joseph Buffington and sustains the opinion of the circuit court, which decreed that the evidence produced before the lower court was "not sufficiently satisfactory either in quality or amount" to establish infringement. The appellate courts also declares that two certain claims in two of the Krupp patents are invalid, and therefore there could not be an infringement.

WAYNE AGAIN HEAD OF THE GRAIN DEALERS.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 12.—E. H. Wayne of Delavan, Ill., was re-elected president of the Grain Dealers' National association at the close of the convention here. W. Kirwin of Baltimore was elected first vice president, and Frank Scowgill of Omaha, second vice president.

Directors elected are: R. W. Forbell, New York; Charles D. Jones, Nashville, Tenn; Wallace N. Bell, Milwaukee; James L. King, Philadelphia; John R. Marfield, Minneapolis; A. F. Leonharft, New Orleans; W. C. Coffe, Kansas City; C. C. Coney, Wilmington, N. C.

The convention asked the directors to name Norfolk, Va., as the place of the 1912 meeting, which probably will be done.

HORSE ATTACKS MAN IN PHILADELPHIA STREET.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Attacked by a horse while attempting to cross a crowded street last night, Jacob Fucher was mangled so badly that he may die. The animal was standing at a crossing when Fucher attempted to pass. Seizing him by the shoulder with his teeth, the horse lifted him from his feet and whirled him around as a terrier shakes a rat. Horrified spectators rushed to the rescue, but before they could hinder the animal, it had tossed its victim to the street and trampled him.

MONARCHISTS BEATEN IN LAND ATTEMPT.

Lisbon, Oct. 12.—The government has recalled in an urgent command all warships that have been operating on the north coast, and the whole fleet is now anchored in the Tagus, with steam up night and day ready to sail. The monarchist adventure on land is recognized as lost. The government forces are concentrated on three sides of the enemy, which is entrenched near Spanish border country.

DENOUNCED BY IRELAND

Initiative, Referendum and Recall Scored By Archbishop.

Prelate Declares Them to Be the Weapons of Mobocracy.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Oct. 12.—At the annual election of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, the old officers were re-elected, according to the rules of the constitution, and vice presidents from eighteen states also were elected. The city of Peoria was selected as the next meeting place.

The climax to the reunion of the society came last night when the annual banquet was held. Divine blessing was invoked by Bishop Scannell of Omaha, who was followed by Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, Minn., who spoke upon "American Democracy."

The initiative, referendum and recall were termed the weapons of mobocracy by Archbishop Ireland in his address. After relating the history of the making of the Democratic government by the newly born states after the Revolutionary war, Archbishop Ireland said:

"And now the clamor is heard that the organization of American democracy such as the republic has known for a centur" and a quarter must be altered, torn asunder, under the pretense that with it the people do not govern with sufficient directness. Let us hope that this clamor is but a passing evolution of feeling, soon to sink back into the tranquil serenity of thought usually underlying the movements of the masses of the people, to be there buried in the silence of oblivion.

Urged Toward "Mobocracy."

"Democracy, yes; mobocracy, never. And towards mobocracy we are now bidden to wend our way. The shibboleths of the clamor, you know—the initiative, referendum and recall—put into general practice, as the evangelists of the new social gospel would fain have them, are nothing more nor less than the madness of democracy. The highest and purest moral virtues, run into extremes, become evil; so with Democracy.

"May we not, it is asked, trust the people? Yes, we trust the people as the framers of our Union trusted them. We trust the people as the people usually trust themselves when interests other than political are at stake—remitting those interests to men expert in such matters, who take time to gather and digest information, who situate the questions under debate as the multitude cannot do, in the general framework of circumstances and consequences, outside of which a solution is necessarily incomplete and unsatisfactory.

"Save the Republic."

"In the long run, American public opinion will be sure to right itself. The misfortune is, as we know too well, the people may suffer from a temporary excitement, sufficient to exclude calm, far-seeing thought and prudent decision. From the convictions of such temporary excitement we should strive to save the republic.

"With the initiative and referendum legislative bodies become mere bureaus of registration and exchange for disparate popular views and opinions, all conclusive authority is lost to them. A small fraction of the population sets the machinery of legislation in motion, retards or annuls its decrees. And this for all subjects, the most abstruse and complicated The ultimate verdict, it is true, rests with the whole people; but many, we must admit, are the problems regarding which the whole people have no adequate knowledge, to which, in the throes of a political campaign, the people are unable to give the requisite reflection.

"Worst is the Recall."

"But the worst is the recall. Stability and independence in office for a fixed period of time are essential. Liable to recall, the official is continuously watchful of public opinion, which it is his interest to placate and hold in check. And then we must remember the peril to the public peace of the commonwealth. Fifteen or even 10 per cent of the voters at a preceding election—gathered probably from the defeated party—may force the recall and bring on the turmoil of a new campaign.

"But what if the official has proved himself unworthy of his trust? Our laws and Constitution provide a remedy: Let him be impeached, and judged by well established and impartial courts.

"The perils from the recall are shown when it is extended to the judiciary. If ever independence from popular clamor is imperiously demanded, it is when men are bidden to speak in the name of supreme justice, regardless of convictions to persons or parties, when absolute calmness of mind and deepest study are the prerequisites to a decision. What the social or political revolutions with which the country may be threatend, for the sake of America let us pray the God of nations, let there be no sacreligious hand laid upon the courts, impairing their independence or lowering their majesty."

In the program that has been arranged for the two-day meeting, some good features have been provided. # DISTRESSING CASE OF HIVES CURED

Body Covered with Large Red Marks. Face Also Affected. Cuticura Ointment Eased Skin Right Away and Completely Cured.

"I retired one evening and after sleeping a couple of hours was awakened by a burning sensation all over the upper part of my body. It was just simply terrible and made it impossible for me to sleep the rest of that night, so I had to sit up all night changing my position every couple of minutes. As the hours went by it grew worse and soon I started to scratch myself. When daylight arrived I saw that my body was covered with large red marks about an inch or two apart. My face was also affected. I stayed home that day and went to see a doctor. He told me that I must have eaten something poisonous, and I had the hives. He prescribed a medicine and also gave me some ointment.

"As the days went by I steadily grew worse, the marks changing from one part of my body to another. The medicine and ointment were of no use, and I felt greatly disappointed until one evening by chance looking over the papers I saw the Cuticura Remedies advertised. I immediately procured some Cuticura Ointment and applied it to my body. I could hardly believe it, but it seemed to ease my skin right away. I kept on using the Cuticura Ointment for a week and can say that it certainly was the finest preparation I had ever used. It completely cured me, and I have not been troubled since." (Signed) William Waterman, 129 E. 109th St., New York City, Dec. 8, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the skin and hair, will be sent, post-free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 23A, Boston.

Mysterious Individual Said to Be Prowling About Breaking Windows.

Bottineau, N. D., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The section northwest of here, in the hills, is agog over an alleged wild man who is said to be scaring young and old by his queer antics. Officers have been unable to catch him. The mysterious one is said to have a penchant for breaking windows.

In the hills there are many where a man could hide himself from searchers, and that is responsible for the inability of the officers to locate the supposed wild man.

At the Gulstad home, five and a half miles from here, the unknown has made several appearances, and on each occasion has thrown bricks through the window. Another time he chased a servant girl who chanced to be about a mile from the residence, but she was able to elude him as he dropped the chase when he came near the house.

Sheriff Bonde of Kandiyohi county and a deputy at once started for Minneapolis with the prisoner. A scar on the face of the man who had obtained work on the Kandiyohi farm, betrayed him to the officers. He refused to talk further than to admit that he is the man wanted.

HEALTHY MOTHERS

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

He did not fire as he feared he might strike the other man, but the other man was not so particular and blazed away with a repeating shot gun. The shot fairly rained down on Mr. Kohler, one shot penetrating his nose, one striking him in the forehead, one in the neck and several about the body.

Badger—Rev. F. H. Barnett, who has been the Methodist pastor here, has left for Indiana to take up his work on a circuit of six appointments with Queenstown as his headquarters.

St. Cloud—What might have resulted in a serious accident occurred Monday afternoon on St. Germain street in front of Powell's hardware store, when J. J. Seeder of Wyelles attempted to lift a shotgun out of his automobile, not knowing it to be loaded. All at once a flame of fire issued from the muzzle, followed by a loud report. The charge of shot struck the Leisen store across the street and barely missed a little girl standing on the sidewalk.

Little Falls—S. S. Durham, indicted for manslaughter in the first degree, and convicted of manslaughter in the second degree, was sentenced by Judge Taylor Monday evening to the state's prison. Under the law no definite sentence could be imposed, but the prisoner's sojourn in Stillwater will be governed by the parole board.

Mankato—Judge William R. Geddes, aged 56, an old resident of Mankato, whose serious illness has been the occasion of deep concern among members of his family and his many friends throughout the county for some time back, passed away Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock at St. Mary's hospital, Rochester, Minn., where he has been for two weeks past receiving treatment.

St. Cloud—The funeral of George W. Stewart, whose sudden death startled St. Cloud Sunday, took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home on Second avenue south. The services were marked by strict simplicity. There was no music. Rev. Paul Dansingberg, pastor of the Unitarian church, to which denomination the deceased belonged, conducted the simple services.

Stillwater—Fergus Forgett, a young man, was brought here from Pine county Tuesday morning and lodged in the county jail for thirty days in default of paying a fine of $25 with costs imposed by a justice of the peace. The young man was accused of stealing $10 from Steve Pritza in Pine county Monday.

Spooner—W. D. Colburn, or the past four years log buyer for the Shevlin-Mathieu Lbr. Co., in this territory, has departed to enter the employ of the Bachus-Brooks Co., as cruiser and woodsman.

Minneapolis—J. M. Batterton of New York, president of the Ferdinand Hersch Cigar company of that city, had his left leg broken when he was hurled from the revolving door at the entrance of the Dyckman hotel and thrown forcibly to the walk. He was removed to his room in the Radisson hotel. He cannot explain how the accident occurred.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—Detective Henry Rooney has returned to Milwaukee with Ernest Leinss a former real estate agent in this city, who was recaptured at Great Falls, Mont., after escaping from the train at Roundup, Mont. Leinss is wanted here on the charge of having obtained $6,000 under false pretenses in real estate deals.

Marinette—Edward McNeil, killed by a South Shore train near Soo Junction, lived at Algonquin, a suburb of Sault Ste. Marie, it develops. A peculiar coincidence is that McNeil's father met his death in a similar manner about a year ago, being struck by a switch engine in the yards at the Soo, when stepping from one track to another to dodge a passenger train.

Watertown—Grieving for her son, 17 years old, who died suddenly thirty-five hours previously, the wife of Alderman G. J. Russell, died of a broken heart. The double funeral will be held to Calvary cemetery Milwaukee, Wednesday morning.

Fans Taking Notice of Pilakoff-Ordemann Match—McGoey, the Birdman—Great Football Game Is Looked For.

WRESTLING fans of Duluth and also throughout the Northwest are beginning to take notice of the coming match between Ordemann and Pilakoff, the announcement of which was made in The Herald of yesterday. There is hardly a fan but believes that the big contest to be decided the latter part of the present month will be by all odds the greatest match ever wrestled in the Northwest.

Right after the victory of Pilakoff over Yankee Rogers there came a demand to see the giant in action with Ordemann. "Gee, I'd like to see that fellow go up against Ordemann," said a Duluth professional man, as he walked out of the Auditorium after the Pilakoff-Rogers match. This statement voiced the sentiment of perhaps several hundred fans who watched the giant Finn pick Rogers up in his big arms and slam him to the mat.

It was some five or six years ago that Henry Ordemann first made his appearance in this city. Then he came here to work. One of the leading members of the boat club got the muscular Norsk interested in the rowing game, for Henry sailed on the Norwegian seas before he came to America, and he started out to try for the Duluth crew.

But Ordemann didn't stay here very long. The next Duluth fans heard of him was when it was learned that Frank Gotch had picked up a big blacksmith in Minneapolis by the name of Ordemann and was going to make a champion out of him.

In the days of the old Metropolitan, Ordemann came here with Gotch and he was about the greenest wrestler in the business. Those who saw him in his daily go with Gotch never believed that he would develop into a star grappler. But to the incredulous ones Gotch only answered that it required time for everything.

Later Ordemann came back here and wrestled Chris Person. He threw that worthy so fast and in so workmanlike a manner that the fans here realized what a star the big Norsk had developed into. Last winter Ordemann came once more and won a finish match from Karl Lehto, who was handicapped by size and weight.

Ordemann will meet a man even larger than himself in the person of the gigantic Finn. He will also meet a man stronger than he is. There are only about two men in the world any stronger than the wonderfully muscled Finnish giant. Ordemann will meet a man with marvelous strength, plenty of endurance, a man who is game and a wrestler who will not go into the match with the idea of going on the defense.

The match should be the best ever wrestled in this city, for at last Duluth has a man who can meet the big fellows and meet them on even terms.

THOSE who have never seen the flying machine, truly the most marvelous invention of an age where ingenuity seems not to stop at the very first boundary line of the miraculous, will have a treat in store for them Sunday, when McGoey, the birdman, will give the first exhibition of flying that has ever been given in this city.

All of us have read of the flying machine and the wonderful accomplishments that are being made by both the inventors and daring aviators. But realization is not brought to its full measure until one has witnessed one of these products of a century of daring accomplishment.

To fly calmly and peacefully on the air like a giant bird, to dip and turn and whirl like some sportive gull hovering over the water in search of prey, is indeed an accomplishment of an age that has made more progress than any other period in the history of the world.

McGoey is showing himself one of the best of the men flying. Rarely has he disappointed the crowds that have flocked to watch the sensational trips through the air. While he is taking a risk in attempting to fly from so small a field as the ball park, this very risk will no doubt prove all the more attractive, as it is a trite fact that Americans love a sport that has some slight element of the risk in it.

Duluth is to have, at last, its first peek at the flying machine, and this, too, in face of the fact that this town nearly lost the opportunity of seeing a flight because it has not a suitable field where outdoor amusements of this nature can be held.

It might also be remarked in passing that Duluth will continue to miss seeing many of the biggest attractions in the country until it has a fair grounds or big amusement field of that nature.

WELL here we are at last—we are going to see what promises to be a corking contest between Central's scrappy football team and a team of its own weight. Now we can settle down on the sidelines, when the game is called, and be assured of a contest which should really bring out some brilliant playing on the part of the hill top boys.

With its line strengthened through the addition of Solheim, and with a shift in some of the other positions which should add strength to the forwards, Central will go into the game Saturday against the crack Grand Forks high school determined to show that it has a team that is going to be reckoned with among the high schools of the state.

Few teams have been put through harder workouts than the Central bunch has the present week. From 3 o'clock to nearly 6 the youngsters have been run through signals, thoroughly drilled in some new formation plays, the interference coached and the line men told what it means to get under a man and stop those line driving plays up before they catch the drive and speed by the line of scrimmage.

The men in the backfield have been repeatedly coached on how to get their backs into the driving smash into the line. In short the boys have been taken over the coals of burning desire to win and it should be a vastly improved team that faces the strong high school aggregation from Grand Forks, on Athletic park field, the day after tomorrow.

Duluth is fond of football. The high school boys are giving the best example of the game being played in this city. The gridiron game is primarily one for schools and colleges, argue what you will, and it is in the schools and colleges that the best players are developed and the best game played. Football has never been eminently successful outside of the school and college, and probably never will, for the simple reason that the game is not played as the schools and colleges play it.

While there is the glamour and sentiment of a big college contest missing about a high school game, there are some high school games as good as any of the college contests. Few college games have been better than the game, some two years ago, or perhaps more, between St. Paul Central and Duluth Central.

Grand Forks is coming here with the reputation of having a very strong team and the game should be a fast and interesting one. We are still rooting and pulling for a game with one of the leading high school teams of the Twin Cities, and still believe that the game will come if the public continues to show its appreciation of Central. A big crowd Saturday will do a lot.

ALL-STARS WIN SLUGGING MATCH

Morgan, Krause and Coombs Hit Hard in Exhibition.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12.—The All-Stars had little trouble in defeating the Philadelphia team of the American league here yesterday by a score of 13 to 8. Krause hit the longest drive of the year at the local park, lifting the ball high over the left field fence for a home run. Neither team showed remarkable defensive powers, the men being unwilling to take chances. Mack used Morgan, Krause and Coombs in the box, who yielded fifteen hits, while his men got the same number from R. Collins and Mullin, who pitched for the All-Stars. The score: R. H. E.
Philadelphia ...1 0 0 0 2 3 0 2 0 0—8 15 5
All-Stars .....2 0 1 0 1 0 5 4 x—13 15 1
Batteries—Morgan, Krause, Coombs and Lapp; R. Collins, Mullin and Street and Henry. Umpires—Egan and Dineen.

GIANTS HAVE YOUNG TEAM

Average Age of New Yorkers Is a Trifle Over 25 Years.

New York, Oct. 12.—Whence hail the Giants?

The fourteen star performers of New York's star baseball team—the men who are expected by the local enthusiasts to drive the world's championship pennant hard and fast to the flagpole at the Polo grounds—were born in nine states and come of many nationalities. Each, of course, is a veteran of the diamond, yet the average age of the players is but a trifle over 25 years, and their average term of service in New York uniforms runs a few months over four years.

Few books in value surpass the galaxy of stars for a native of New York city. But two, in fact, were born within the boundaries of the Empire state. Four of the other eight states have contributed two of their best baseball heroes to make a New York pennant-winning team—Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California. The remaining four find their birthplaces in Maryland, Wisconsin, Indiana and the District of Columbia.

Mathewson Is the Veteran.

Christy Mathewson, one of McGraw's star twirlers—the greatest of all, many say—is the veteran of the team, with ten years' service to his credit. He overtops the second man, Ames, by two years, while Wiltse and Devlin tie for third honors with seven years each. Meyers, the big Indian pitcher and heavy hitter, and Murray have been but two years in continuous service with the Giants.

Herzog rejoined the team this year, but McGraw bought him back in 1908 and exchanged him two years later for Becker of the Boston team.

Fletcher has been two and a half years with the team, while Josh Devore, smallest and fastest player in the big league, joined the Giants last year, although he had been purchased in 1908. The two intervening seasons he spent with Utica and Newark.

Doyle Comes from Illinois.

Larry Doyle, captain of the National league leaders, is 24 years old. He was born in Caseyville, Ill., and has been four years with the Giants. Fletcher, 25 years old, was born in Collinsville, Ill. Herzog, 24, is a native of Baltimore, Md. Warren, Pa., contributed Ames to the Giants. He is 27 years old.

Wiltse hails from Hamilton, N. Y. He is 28. Merkle was born twenty-three years ago in Watertown, Wis. Devore, youngest of the fourteen, was born in Murray City, Ohio, less than twenty-three years ago.

Crandall a Hoosier.

Crandall, 23, is a native of Wadina, Ind. Devlin, who, with Mathewson, claims seniority of age in 31 years, was born in Washington, D. C. Marquard, the "$11,000 Beauty," first saw the light in Cleveland, Ohio. He is 23. Meyers, whose father is a full-blooded Indian, was born 28 years ago in Riverside, Cal. "Matty" was born in Factoryville, Pa. Snodgrass is a "native son" of California, his birthplace being Ventura and his age 32 years.

Four of the players participated in the series of 1905, when the Giants last won the championship pennant. They are Mathewson, Ames, Devlin and Wiltse. Mathewson is the only man on the team who was there when John McGraw took over the reins of management.

SCHULTE AND COBB AWARDED AUTOMOBILES.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Outfielder Schulte of the Cubs and Ty Cobb of the Detroit American league team won the automobiles offered this year for the player in each league who was adjudged by a "jury" of newspaper men to have been of most service to his club in 1911, it was announced here.

The presentation was planned to take place in New York or Philadelphia later. No one line of endeavor decided the award this year, the winning being scored according to his general playing efficiency. Cobb's percentage under the scoring system was 1,000 and Schulte's 453.

OFFICIAL HANDICAP LIST OF GOLFERS.

Short Hills, N. J., Oct. 12.—The executive committee of the United States Golf association, which meeting this week at the Baltusrol Golf club, has decided to undertake the preparation of an official handicap list of all the golfers enrolled in the association. With the completion of this list, it will be possible for players to compete anywhere under a uniform system.

This list will also be serviceable in the preparation of club handicaps and will be used by all the clubs which are members of the United States Golf association. Par will be the basis for handicapping.

McGRAW HAS STARS OUT

Mathewson, Marquard and Meyers Practice for World's Series.

Big Catcher Has Range and Makes Pretty Throws to Second.

New York, Oct. 12.—The surface of the big arena at the Polo grounds where the initial battle of the world's championship series will be staged on Saturday, was soaked by a persistent rain yesterday and the double-header scheduled between New York and Brooklyn had to be postponed. Despite this loss of a chance to drill his forces, however, Manager McGraw managed to make the afternoon a profitable one in training certain of his brightest stars for the approaching fray.

Those who managed to get a peep behind the imposing steel framework which forms the new grandstand, practically encircling the playing space, saw an interesting exposition of McGraw's methods of schooling ball players. The ground dried during the afternoon sufficiently to admit of practice and McGraw trotted out his principal batteries and put them through their paces.

Meyers Is Strong.

In turn Mathewson and Marquard were sent into the box and while McGraw stood at the plate "Chief Meyers" at the receiving end gave his arm a workout in repeated throws to second. McGraw made the test realistic by stationing a runner on first and having him go down with the pitch. In a few trials the big Indian showed that he "had the range" after his long rest. The base running was done by some of the team's most fleet-footed players with all the conditions of a real game simulated. Neither Marquard, the big left-hander, nor "Matty" over-exerted himself in the rather raw air, but each appeared to be in the pink of condition.

The last league games of the year are scheduled for today, and, weather permitting, the locals will end their season in a double-header with Brooklyn at the Polo grounds. They will have to win both games to get over the 100-mark and the Philadelphia in the number of victories for the season. It is expected McGraw will put his full line of regulars into action and try them out thoroughly in these last contests.

Tickets Distributed.

Happy enthusiasts were scattered all over New York last night when mail carriers began delivering the tickets which will admit them to games in this city. Clerks are still busy cleaning up their work of allotting reservations and conducting the open sale of remaining seats which begins today.

Few big wagers on the world's series were reported here. Hundreds of small bets, however, have been made, for the most part at even money. A party of old ball players has put up $500 against $5,000 New York will win four straight games from Philadelphia. The big end of the bet was taken by E. E. Smathers, acting for a syndicate.

CARDINALS AND BROWNS PLAY SCORELESS TIE.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 12.—The St. Louis Americans and the Nationals played nine innings to a 0 to 0 tie in the first game of a series for the city championship yesterday afternoon. Darkness stopped the game. The score:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Nationals .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 | 8 | 2 | |

LEITH TO MEET FAMOUS PLAYER

Northland Instructor Will Play George Duncan in Special Match.

The biggest golf event of the present season, and one of the most classy events played on the golf links of the Northland club, is scheduled for next Saturday morning, when W. D. Leith, professional golf instructor at the club, meets, George Duncan, the Scottish nation golf champion.

Mr. Duncan was the runner up in the open championship of Scotland and is one of the famous professional players in the golf world. He has been playing a great deal at the Glenview club of Chicago the past summer, and last Sunday he was beaten by Mr. Leith at a match played at the Chicago club. The game Saturday morning is in a measure due to the belief of the Scotchman that he can take the measure of the brilliant young Northland instructor.

The meeting of Mr. Duncan and Mr. Leith will be by far the best exhibition of the game ever given here, and will be one of the best professional matches played in this country the present season.

James A. Donaldson, another famous player who has made a fine record in this country this season, Mr. Leith and Mr. Duncan were all born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and practically learned the game together.

STAR BACK RETURNS.

"Shorty" McMillan Back With the Strong Michigan Squad.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 12.—With "Shorty" McMillan, star quarter of the 1910 eleven, wearing moleskins and following the signal drill, there was joy in the Wolverine football camp yesterday and the radiance increased when Yost announced that the little star would be able to play at least part of Saturday's game with the Lansing farmers.

Yost saw McMillan while he was in Detroit Monday and finally induced him to resign his business cares and return to school and the gridiron.

"Shorty" is in splendid condition, and is nearly ten pounds heavier than he was last year.

Yost had so much to teach his charges that he did not endeavor to scrimmage them on the slippery gridiron, but devoted his attention to signal drill in new plays and teaching the backs to handle punts under fire, a department in which they showed marked weakness in the opening game. A mid-week game with the reserves and all-fresh is to be played today.

BAT NELSON WINS FROM NEW YORKER

Former Champion Triumphs Over Beecher in Ten-Round Bout.

New York, Oct. 12.—Battling Nelson, who once fought his way to the lightweight championship, won handily last night in a ten-round bout from "Willie" Beecher, a local lightweight, who twice defeated "Knockout Brown." Nelson's appearance in the arena of the Madison Athletic club was cheered by a large crowd of boxing enthusiasts, for it was the old champion's first fight in New York.

At the start Beecher appeared the more clever and landed right and left on face and body almost at will, but the Westerner took the beating as he always did with head lowered and kept pressing in on his man. In the third the Battler came up fast, steadying Beecher with hard right and lefts to the face which drew blood from mouth and nose. Beecher seemed tired at the gong. The fourth was nip and tuck and in the fifth Beecher made a target of Nelson's head, but without avail. Nelson got back with some of his famous body punches.

From this on Battling Nelson was always going in hard, head first, with Beecher constantly backing up. At the end of the ninth and tenth rounds, the local man appeared glad to hear the bell.

GOPHERS HAVE HARD PRACTICE

Football Men Have Been Given New Signals to Learn.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 12.—Another dose of signals was handed to the University of Minnesota football men when they gathered for practice on Northrop field yesterday afternoon. On Monday, the Gophers were run through signal drill until their heads swam and their limbs ached and more of the same medicine was prescribed last evening by Dr. Williams. The coach is determined that his pupils get their signals down pat at any cost.

As a result of the grind the men are beginning to show a pretty thorough understanding of their formations and a knowledge of just what each is to do when the orders are given. Scrimmage was not mentioned at practice yesterday until another session with the signals had been held. Then the scrubs were called upon to do battle with the first eleven. The first squad showed far better work in the scramble than it did against the Coyotes. Every man appeared to know just what he was to do and just how he was to do it, and at dark the coaches seemed a little bit happier than they have been of late.

Following the usual custom, last evening's drill was watched in the most profound secrecy. The student guards, chosen on account of broad shoulders, rather than depth of brow, were unusually vigilant and did their work well. They saw to it that none but football men or ground keepers invaded the hallowed grounds unless armed with properly signed and subscribed credentials. Even with them in some cases, positive identification of the bearer was vital if Dr. Williams' heroes were to be inspected by vulgar eyes. Hunkie Davies, Mose Strathern, Oren Safford and a few more or less brilliant football men of other days managed to elude the watchful attendants and slipped into the executive session.

Lawler a Drop Kicker.

It was understood on the football stamping gorunds yesterday that the coaches intend to develop a real drop kicker, who may bring down a few points in the games to come. Frank Lawler, who made a brief but creditable appearance in Saturday's game, seems to be the choice for this department of the game. He did not enter the scrimmage yesterday, but spent the afternoon booting drop kicks from all angles of the field and at distances ranging from fifteen to forty yards. He made a good showing in the new role and it is believed that with a little more practice he will develop into a valuable toe artist. Minnesota has been shy of a dependable drop kicker since George Capron's time, but these who saw Lawler yesterday believe he will get away with the job as well as Capron.

SHIFT IN TEAM.

Solheim and Harris Will Play With Central Saturday.

Oscar Solheim will play center in the game Saturday against the crack Grand Forks high school team. Solheim was out last evening for the first time of the season and is ready to go against Grand Forks and show the form of last season. "Bunk" Harris is to play right end in the game of Saturday, according to the news coming from the park, yesterday. Harris has been playing a strong and consistent game in practice and should star against the Flickertails.

Lawrence may be worked at half Saturday and some other changes may be made in the team. Central is looking for a hard game, but against a team of the weight of the Duluth boys, they are confident of winning.

"BASEBALL" GARRY PICKS THE GIANTS TO WIN.

"Baseball" Garry, the man who eats, sleeps and talks baseball; the man who knows when every player in the country is right, his average and his disposition, also the color of his eyes; has at last come out of the temple of quiet and reserve and given his opinion on the coming series between the Giants and Athletics.

"It looks to me like a Giant victory," said "Baseball" Garry. "I think Mathewson and Marquard will beat the Athletics. I have a kind of hunch toward the Giants, but think that it is a kind of toss up. But with Mathewson and Marquard working right the series should go to the National league winners, for these two pitchers are awfully good."

TIGERS TIED BY LEHIGH

Princeton Is Given Severe Set-Back in Mid-Week Game.

Pennsylvania Wins From Dickinson, But Is Scored on Twice.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 12.—Lehigh held Princeton to a 6 to 6 tie at football yesterday afternoon and while the Princeton eleven gained almost triple the ground by rushing that their opponents did, they were unable to gain when gains meant scores.

Lehigh scored early in the game on a blocked forward pass, Vela breaking through. Knox picked the ball out of the air and with a clear field before him, scored a touchdown. Pazett kicked the goal. For the remainder of the first two periods the visitors repelled the desperate attack of the Princeton team time and again, and left the field for the intermission with a score of 6 to 0 in their favor.

The third period opened with the play decidedly in favor of the visitors. Krichton and McCaffery tore through the Princeton line for two first downs, the only ones made by Lehigh. With the period half gone, the coaches began putting in substitutes. Baker, who replaced Dewitt, tore his way through tackle, shook off the secondary defense and ran forty-five yards for a touchdown, and then kicked the goal, tieing the score. Princeton had not a ghost of a chance to score during the remainder of the game.

Dickinson Scores Twice.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Dickinson college succeeded in scoring twice on the University of Pennsylvania football team yesterday afternoon, the final score being 22 to 10. One of the visitors' touchdowns was the result of an intercepted forward pass on which Halfback Dunn sprinted twenty-five yards without opposition. Dickinson's second touchdown was the result of good football, although it was made in the third period when Pennsylvania was using a good many substitutes. Neither goal was kicked.

Pennsylvania in the first period scored its first touchdown following a run of fifty yards by Mercer, on a forward pass. The second touchdown came in the same period on end runs and forward passes. The third touchdown came in the second period. Two goals from touchdowns were kicked. The remaining five points were contributed by Thayer on a goal from field and a safety.

Navy Wins Easily.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 12.—The naval academy football eleven yesterday defeated St. John's college by a score of 21 to 0. Navy started with the same line-up that faced Johns-Hopkins in the initial game of the schedule, but later the coaches made many changes with a view to getting a line on the ability of a number of substitutes. St. John's constant use of forward passes and wide end runs thereafter kept the academy lads on the jump to prevent a score.

PRIZE FIGHTING IS MEANS OF SUPPORT.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Prize fighting is a visible means of support, according to Police Judge Osborn in a decision yesterday when he dismissed Mickey McLaughlin, who was charged by his father with vagrancy. McLaughlin showed that he had been all over the country fighting and that at present he was earning money by training young aspirants in the boxing game.

HOW PITCHERS WILL PROBABLY LINE UP.

New York, Oct. 12.—Mathewson vs. Bender; Marquard vs. Coombs; Ames, Wiltse and Crandall vs. Plank, Morgan, Danforth and Krause.

If you can solve this series of pitching problems, 75 per cent of the world's series answer will lie beneath your cap.

In a brief series of this type, two slab men from each camp must stand beneath the bulk of the burden. Mathewson and Marquard of the Giant array will fight the most of it out against Bender and Coombs from the Athletic camp. If there be a third entry called within the ring, it will be Wiltse or Ames, scheduled to grapple with Eddie Plank.

There is hardly a question now but McGraw expects to win this series with his great right-hander, and his almost equally renowned southpaw. Mathewson and Marquard are booked to hold the center of the Giant spotlight upon defense.

NEWS FROM THE FOOTBALL CAMPS

Stagg Experimenting.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Maroon kicking and defensive skill are scheduled for a tryout in next Saturday's Chicago-Purdue game at Marshall field. Coach Stagg tested both departments in a long drill yesterday at the Midway camp and intends to gather valuable data for the later games on the showing in specialties against the boilermakers.

While Purdue's attack may not defeat the Maroons, Stagg asserts that it will be strong enough to give his line the best tryout they have had this year. He regards Purdue as certain to be stronger than Indiana, owing to better condition and the added week of experience. The Maroon forwards will have all they can do to hold the visitors scoreless, in Stagg's opinion.

Roberts Is Injured.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 12.—Capt. Roberts of Illinois may be withheld from the St. Louis game on Saturday. The Illinois leader has a bad knee, which will hardly allow him to play. The chances that playing would disable him for the Chicago game are too great, and it is likely the coaches will insist that he stay out. It will be a hard matter to reason with the captain, however. Roberts is regarded as indispensable to success against the Maroons, and even if St. Louis proves as dangerous as feared, he must be nursed.

Purdue Working Hard.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 12.—In anticipation of the game with Chicago next Saturday the Purdue football team took on new life yesterday and showed great improvement over the form shown in Saturday's disastrous game with Wabash. Coach Horr gave the 'varsity some fast scrimmage practice with the big freshman team, and the regulars did some excellent work. The coach has made a number of shifts in the line-up as a result of the poor showing of several men in the Wabash game.

Hard Drill for Iowa.

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 12.—Practice work on the Iowa field yesterday was the longest and hardest yet done by the Hawkeye candidates. The men were kept at work from 3 o'clock until after 6, and were called back to the gymnasium at 7 for an hour's talk and signal practice. The afternoon was spent in semi-scrimmage. The coach spent most of his time with the linemen, who were kept busy working against the best forwards that could be found in the second team and 'varsity substitutes.

Joy at Indiana.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 12.—There was great joy in the Indiana camp last night on return of Merrill Davis, star right halfback, who has been in the hospital for two weeks suffering with an injured heel. He will play against Franklin on Saturday. Whitaker, who replaced Davis in the game against the Maroons, was sick and unable to do himself justice. In one of the fastest scrimmage workouts of the year the freshmen scored on the varsity for the first time this season. Brehart, a plucky little quarter, booted the ball for a goal from the 35-yard line.

Fighting for Places.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—By sending some of the players of the first Purple team to the second team, the men have been induced to fight harder for the places and a number of keen competitions are in progress on Northwestern field. Whiting, a new candidate, was out yesterday for the first time and is trying for right half. Pierce, who was operated upon for appendicitis a couple of weeks ago, came out yesterday for the first time since the operation and was put through a light practice.

Flickertails Work Hard.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 12.—Unless unexpected conditions are met within the next two days, Carleton college will find in the University of North Dakota eleven when they meet Saturday at Northfield, Minn., a team that has been given some decidely stiff work and which is out to win. New enthusiasm has prevailed on the Flickertail football field this week, with Coach Dunlap and Lieutenant Phil Hayes pushing the men through some exceptionally hard and fast work.

With only two games played so far this season, and with each of them showing the Dakotans to be in poor form, the team went to work this week with a spirit of making good. Monday and yesterday there was hard scrimmage work. On Tuesday's play the regulars walked through the second team four times in ten minutes for touchdowns.

ELECTRIC TODD IS PURCHASED FOR AUSTRIAN.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 12.—It was ascertained here yesterday that Senator J. W. Bailey was not the purchaser of the trotting stallion Electric Todd, 2:09¼, as was reported. The animal was sold to Emil Jacobson. Jacobson announced that he had purchased Electric Todd for an Austrian but refused to divulge his name. The price was said to be $6,000.

THREE I LEAGUE MAY BE REORGANIZED.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Reorganization of the Three I baseball league was expected to be perfected at the meeting of members of the league here today. The plan submitted by President A. L. Tearney and which it was expected would be followed was that the league as it exists be dissolved and a new one organized under its franchise, taking in clubs that would be mutually satisfactory.

OLD BOARD BILL

Basis of Suit By Minnesotan Against South Dakotan.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 12.—A 20-year-old board bill, which Edward C. Schultz of Monticello, Minn., claims is owed him by Warner E. Brown of Veblen, S. D., is the basis of a suit for $1,000, which has been filed with the courts here.

Schultz files an itemized bill for board at $3.50 a week, giving the defendant credit for a day's work occasionally, and also for shaves and hair cuts. The first week's board was due April 17, 1888.

The plaintiff's claim for board is $315.75, with interest amounting to $259.95. The remainder of the $1,000 is for "damages."

WHEAT AND FLAX RISE

Higher Prices for Wheat at Duluth, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Flax Goes Up on Account of Light Offerings and Good Demand.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 12.—Colder weather in Argentina, higher prices for wheat at Liverpool, a better foreign export demand for Manitoba wheat and lighter wheat receipts generally boosted the price of that cereal today at Duluth, Minneapolis and Winnipeg. Duluth December closed at $1.08⅞, a bulge of a half to three-eighths of a cent over yesterday's close. Each of the flax futures gained 4 cents. Durum closed a cent and a half up. Oats and rye closed unchanged.

Trading in wheat and all other grains was light on the Duluth Board of Trade today. Brokers did not wish to hazard any larger deals than were necessary, as they did not have the guiding quotations from the Chicago and other large grain markets of America, which were closed in observance of Columbus day. Minneapolis grain brokers were doing business, however, and so were those at Winnipeg. While fluctuations were not large on any of these markets, the bulls seemed generally to have the better of it especially in wheat and flax.

There were bullish cables from Liverpool, where wheat closed ⅜d higher. This was due in large measure to reports of more frost in Argentina last night and it was feared that this time the wheat really had been damaged. Duluth December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.08⅜@$1.08½, opened today at $1.08½ asked and made an almost steady climb during the morning, until at noon it was selling around $1.09. Light receipts both at Duluth and Minneapolis had a good deal to do with this rise.

In view of the fine harvesting weather for flax throughout the Northwest for the past six days, one might naturally have looked for a bearish market in that seed today, but up to noon the reverse was the case at Duluth. Offerings were light and the demand was brisk. The brokers are confident, however, that this spell of dry, warm weather will show an effect on the flaxseed receipts at Duluth by next Monday, if not sooner. Duluth October flax, which closed at $2.32½ bid yesterday, opened today at $2.32 bid, and then began a steady climb until about noon it was bringing $2.35. November and December were also up three cents from yesterday's close, the former being quoted at $2.32½ asked and the latter at $2.28.

NO SESSION OF EXCHANGE

All copper exchanges were closed today.

In the East Columbus day was being celebrated, and there was no session of the Duluth exchange. What trading there was, was confined to the brokers' offices.

A. D. Thomson of Duluth, president of the Cliff Mining company, said today that late reports regarding the company's lead and silver mine in Utah were unusually good and encouraging.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF SNOW IN BUTTE

Montana Gets Worst October Storm in Twenty Years.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 12.—Crowds of linemen are at work throughout Western Montana today repairing the damage done to the telephone and telegraph lines by yesterday's snow storm, the worst October storm this state has had in twenty years.

The storm was most severe west of the Rockies and in Idaho. In Butte eighteen inches of snow fell yesterday, and telephone and telegraph and street car and taxicab service was demoralized.

APPROVE ACTION OF GOVERNORS

State Railway Commissioners Elect Minnesota Man President.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The National Association of Railway Commissioners today adopted resolutions approving the recent action of the convention of governors of various states at Spring Lake, N. J., in authorizing the presentation to the supreme court of the United States of a brief supporting the right of states to regulate freight rates within their borders.

The association refused to go on record as favoring legislation abolishing the express companies of the country by compelling the railroads to take over the express business. Another resolution also offered by George Rice of South Dakota, indorsing legislation to prohibit express companies from owning stock in any other express company or in a railroad and railroad companies from holding express company stock, was lost 19 to 20.

Charles F. Staples of St. Paul of the Minnesota railroad commission was elected president of the association for the ensuing year. Other officers chosen were O. P. Gothlin of Columbus, Ohio, of the Ohio railway commission, first vice president; F. Warner Hill of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia railway commission, second vice president; William H. Connolly, chief clerk of the interstate commerce commission, secretary; and William H. Kilpatrick of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois commission, assistant secretary.

The committee on grades and crossings and trespassing on railroads recommended state laws requiring the elimination each year of a given number of grade crossings.

The secretaries of the state commissions organized themselves into a sub-association "for the study of the office methods used in different federal departments."

WILL BUNN BE INDORSED?

Question of Non-Partisan Judiciary Before the Republicans.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Are the Republicans of Minnesota big enough and broad and square enough to indorse a non-partisan judiciary? This is a question facing them in life-size form right now. On the death of Justice Jaggard, George L. Bunn of Ramsey county, a Democrat, was appointed to his place on the supreme bench. He will hold his seat, however, only till the next election. If his record is good and clear, will the Republicans indorse him for the place for a full term?

Up to the present time, the Republicans have not come out with brass bands and bill posters favoring non-partisan judiciaries. There have been little "peeps" about as raucous as those made by young chicks, favoring it, but they have come from only a few localities. When T. D. O'Brien's term expired, the Republican convention did not indorse him. He was an appointee of Governor Johnson. At the time of the appointment of Judge Bunn to the supreme bench, much capital was made of it by Governor Eberhart's friends. The situation is interesting.

MORE INDICTMENTS BY BELTRAMI GRAND JURY.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury has returned two more indictments and has been discharged by the court. It is not known against whom the indictments are but gossip says they have to do with new angles of the Dumas case. Judge McClenehan complimented the grand jury upon the efficiency of its work.

Sam Fullerton, deputy state fire marshal, left last night for Buhl on the Mesaba iron range where today preliminary hearings are being given three men named Dougherty, McCabe and Murphy, charged with having burned a saloon building at Buhl, recently. The men having been out on bail since their arrest.

TURKS READ THE BIBLE

Missionaries Make Enthusiastic Reports at Milwaukee.

China Also Is Said to Be Awaking to Christianity.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 12.—Speaking on the challenge of the present opportunity in Turkey, at the American board of foreign missions meeting in Milwaukee this forenoon, Rev. J. L. Fowle of Cesarea declared that each year thousands of copies of the Christian scriptures, in whole or in part, are bought and read by Moslems. The missionary is often astonished to find knowledge and appreciation of these scriptures where least expected. Stereopticon lectures on the life of Christ were freely attended and eagerly enjoyed by many followers of Islam, he said.

Other speakers, reporting the challenge of present opportunity as they have faced it in different parts of Turkey and China, were united in declaring that absolutely a new attitude had transpired since the dates of the Boxer massacres and the Turkish revolution.

Turning Point in History.

A special message from the Prudential committee voicing the urgent appeal of these new times upon the board's constituency was presented by Rev. Edward M. Noyes of Newton Center, Mass.

"This decade is a turning point in human history," said Mr. Noyes. "The civilizations of the East and West are face to face. The religions of the non-Christian world are disintegrating. What is to replace them? In Japan, Corea, India, Turkey, Africa, the future is being determined by these swiftly passing years. Christianity has the greatest opportunity of all the centuries of its history."

"The best ambassador this country can send out should be the one sent to China in this time of that empire's remaking," said Dr. Arthur H. Smith, speaking of "An Empire at Stake," at the meeting last night. "America's business in China now is to strengthen the hand of that nation as she seeks to develop a new civilization, and to uplift her people. And Christian America's business is to strengthen and endow the higher schools and colleges she already has there."

Dr. J. K. Greene of Constantinople, speaking on the Turkish crisis, affirmed that missionaries were on the whole hopeful as to the ultimate success of the new regime.

Hear Minneapolis Man.

The closing address of the evening, on "Fresh Assurances of Missionary Conquest," was by Rev. A. J. Lyman, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y., just home from an extended visit to India. At the afternoon session, following an address by S. T. Johnson of Minneapolis, chairman of the national commission on apportionment of the Congregational church, there was a discussion of the working of this new benevolent plan of apportionment and hearty indorsement of it.

IRISH GIRL HURT IN INDIANAPOLIS

Serious Accident Follows Long Journey Alone From Home.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 12.—After having safely made alone the long sea and land journey from Inshaugh, County Antrim, Ireland, to visit members of her family in this city, Jeanie Morrison, a young Irish girl, was so seriously injured in a fall from a street car upon her arrival here that it was said today her recovery is doubtful. Unconscious, she was taken to a hospital and there was found by her searching relatives.

In 1883 she made a collection of the flora of the Pipestone region for Prof. Winchell's report on the botanical resources of Minnesota. This collection was exhibited at the New Orleans world's exposition in 1884. Possessing rare qualifications for literary work, she confined her talents largely to poetry.

COULD ACQUIT HYDE FOR $3,000

Convicted Doctor Swears Officer Offered to Fix Jury.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—An affidavit signed by Dr. B. Clark Hyde, in which it is charged that Deputy County Marshal Harry C. Hoffman told him that for $1,500 he could hang the jury in the first Hyde trial and for $3,000 could secure acquittal, was introduced into the hearing of Hyde's application for elisors here today.

In the affidavit Hyde said the offer was made while Hoffman was conducting him from the jail to the court room.

A GOOD INVESTMENT!

1526, 1526½, 1528 East Third Street, being three houses with brick basement and having every convenience, on a lot 30x140 feet.

These houses are in good condition and have a rental value of $102.50 per month; are located in the best of neighborhoods and have always had good tenants.

This is a good investment as it pays a high rate of interest on the purchase price and requires but a moderate amount of cash to handle it.

It is a particularly good investment for a party looking for a comfortable home in a good neighborhood, as he can rent the other two houses for enough money to pay on the whole investment a higher rate of interest than the ordinary investment pays, besides getting his rent for nothing.

These houses are owned by a non-resident and as it is all the Duluth property he owns, wishes to close it out, which accounts for the cheapness of the price, which is $7,500.00.

HANKOW DESOLATED BY REBELS; PEKIN IS IN IMMINENT PERIL

Manchu Dynasty in China Appears to Be Doomed.

Revolutionaries Want Republic With Sun Yat Sen at Head.

Missionaries Given Safe Conduct From Scene of Fighting.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 13.—Advices were received here today by the Chung Sai Yat Po, (the Chinese Daily World), that the revolutionists in China have declared a republic, electing Li Yung Hung, lieutenant commander of the imperial new army, president.

Hankow, China, Oct. 13.—Following a night of terror, death stalking through the streets and lurking in every shadow, this city today presented a scene of desolation.

All night long incendiary fires burned throughout the native quarters, with no effort made to stay the leaping flames which licked up everything with which they came in contact.

The wanton massacre of Manchu families left scores of dead, and to add to the horrors of the night, all the prisons were opened and the inmates liberated. Many of these are desperate criminals.

The revolutionary army is strongly entrenched in Wu Chang and Han Yang, with guns mounted in commanding positions. Since the capture of the Han Yang arsenal the leaders declare confidently that they are in a position to cope with any opposition being now provided with ample ammunition.

Loyal Troops Barred Out.

Parties of governmental troops arriving here from time to time are met promptly by revolutionists, who endeavor to persuade them to join the movement. If they refuse they are

REPRISALS BY TURKS

Feeling Against Italians Is Bitter in Ottoman Empire.

Reports of Armistice Strenuously Denied at Rome.

Constantinople, Oct. 13.—The government today ordered the expulsion within twenty-four hours of all Italian correspondents in Constantinople.

A society has been organized to wage an economic war against Italy. All Ottomans are asked to sign a declaration undertaking on oath to cease all dealings with Italians. The newspapers indorsing their campaign advise Ottomans to inculcate the young with a hatred for Italy and Italians.

A prize court has been formed to deal with the captures of war, which up to the present time include two tramp steamers, a yacht, a motorboat and a number of tugs, lighters and steam launches.

Armistice is Denied.

Rome, Oct. 13.—That an armistice has been arranged between Italy and Turkey as reported from Berlin, is strenuously denied by the Italian government.

A dispatch from Tripoli says that the Turkish government has been unable to communicate directly with the commander of the former Turkish garrison at Tripoli.

Consulate reports have reached the Italian government stating that thirty Italian laborers employed on the Hedjaz railroad on the boundary line between Egypt and Syria were massacred at Kerak, Syria, early in October.

SHEPHARD ON GRILL AGAIN

Banker Recalled to Stand in the Lorimer Inquiry.

Is Put Through Merciless Examination Before Committee.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—With more than a dozen members and former members of the legislature waiting to go on the witness stand, the United States senate committee which is investigating the Lorimer case prepared today for hearing much testimony.

Henry A. Shephard, Jerseyville, Ill., banker and former member of the legislature, was the first witness on today's list. He was recalled for further examination after spending five hours on the stand yesterday.

Consideration for the private life of witnesses was pushed aside by the committee when Mr. Shephard was subjected yesterday to a rapid fire examination of five hours' duration. Despite his protests, Shephard was forced to strip bare escapades which he had managed to keep secret through two grand jury inquiries and a previous senatorial investigation of the Lorimer election.

Shephard admitted under close interrogation by United States Senator Luke Lea, that he used a fictitious name in registering at a Chicago hotel in April 1910, because he was accompanied by a woman who was not his wife. Until this time, Shephard had insisted that his object in using the fictitious name was to avoid newspaper reporters.

"What Has Become of Shields?" Is Asked at Milwaukee.

Minister Is Quizzed About Expenditures in the Campaign.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—"What has become of R. J. Shields?" was asked at today's session of the senatorial committee which is investigating charges of bribery in the election of Senator Isaac Stephenson. Shields, who frequently has been mentioned in the investigation of Senator William Lorimer, also is wanted as a witness in the Stephenson case. When his name was called, he failed to respond. The committee will make efforts to insure his appearance.

Shields, who lives at Superior, Wis., was paid $470 of the Stephenson fund according to previous testimony.

To disclose frankly what he did as a political worker for Senator Stephenson, Rev. F. H. Eppling of the Lutheran church today informed the committee that he wanted to have representatives of his church present when he testified. In previous investigations Mr. Eppling was declared to have expended $600 of the campaign fund.

Pastor Is Anxious.

"I want my church to know exactly what my political activities were," he said. "Therefore, I ask the committee to stipulate when I am to testify, so I can have church representatives present."

The time was not fixed.

Argument as to whether the largeness of a candidate's expenses for nomination to congress was to be taken as a presumption that the money was used wrongfully, occupied a great portion of the investigation yesterday. After it had been testified by witnesses that instead of $107,793 Senator Stephenson might have expended $220,000 for nomination at the primaries in 1908, and after it was figured out

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 13.—Examination of Talesman Z. T. Nelson of Pasadena was the first proceeding scheduled for today before Judge Walter Bordwell in the superior court in the murder trial of James B. McNamara.

Questioning of talesmen, frequently regarded as a dismal proceeding, furnished in this case interest to spectators and partisans, because it was expected to define, in advance of the opening arguments, some of the essential issues of the trial, which is designed to show whether the defendant is responsible for the death of Charles J. Haggerty, who with twenty others, was killed in the Los Angeles Times explosion over a year ago. For nineteen deaths James B. McNamara is held on indictments, but the state has elected to go to trial on Haggerty's case.

President Makes Address at Sacramento—Crosses Oregon.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 13.—President Taft today told the people here the reasons for his urging treaties with Central American states and his views on the Monroe doctrine.

The president "spoke" his way down the Williamette valley and across the state of Oregon yesterday. For hour after hour his train traveled a land that blossomed in flowers and fruits, and the folks who came to the little towns where his train paused for a minute or two brought tributes of all sorts to the chief executive. By night the president's car resembled the interior of a florist's and greengrocer's shop.

Mr. Taft spoke on many subjects. He declared several times that the old battleship Oregon should be the first through the Panama canal, an announcement that always brought forth cheers. He spoke on peace and arbitration and a half dozen other topics.

WATERWAY MEN HEAR EBERHART

Political Conflict at Convention Smothered at First Session.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Addresses by Speaker Champ Clark, Governors A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota and Judson Harmon of Ohio, Representative Oscar Underwood of Alabama and Engineer Lyman E. Cooley were scheduled to occupy the morning session today of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association.

The afternoon session was to be taken up by a stereopticon lecture on the relation between the Panama canal and the Mississippi river, an address by Ex-Governor Folk of Missouri and debates by the delegates.

It was at the afternoon session that the differences of opinion of the factions interested in the project were expected to be shown, and that political questions would be brought to the fore.

Discussions which gave promise of development into political controversy were smothered quickly at the opening session, which was attended by more than 8,000 delegates. Following an address by Isham Randolph, an engineer of the sanitary district on the drainage question, several members of the convention not in harmony with the views of Mr. Randolph, who favors Governor Charles S. Deneen's policy regarding the waterways, began a storm of questions relating to the integrity of the governor's policy.

They promptly were called to order by President William K. Kavanaugh.

BAD WEATHER FOR LONG FLIGHT

Robinson Has to Delay His Start Down the Mississippi.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hugh Robinson, the trans-Mississippi aviator, delayed his flight this morning owing to unfavorable weather. He made three circuits of Lake Calhoun and returned to starting point. Forty thousand people saw the false start. An effort will be made to get away later in the day.

One change was announced in the first day's schedule, Robinson eliminating Wabasha as a stopping point. He stated his first stop would be at Red Wing, his second Winona and that he would spend tonight at La Crosse—152 miles from Minneapolis. The second day, if there be no mishap, will take him to Dubuque.

Aerial Mail Popular.

Hundreds of letters were posted in Minneapolis for Robinson to carry to towns and cities where he will stop to make flight exhibitions. The limit of twenty-five pounds was reached long before the mail closed for the hydro-aeroplane route.

In a special aerial sack are fifty special delivery letters for various points. In all there are 3,000 letters. La Crosse, Winona and St. Louis lead in the public favor, about 250 letters being addressed to each of these cities. Cairo claimed three letters, Hannibal five and Fort Madison ten. Twenty-one cities were provided for, including one letter for Muscatine, which is on the river, but not a stopping point. This was included in the mail for the city nearest Muscatine where a landing will be made.

CANADA HAS ROYAL RULER

Is First of Regal Blood to Be Governor General in Dominion.

Quebec, Oct. 13.—The Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George V., and the first governor general of royal blood that Canada ever has had, today took the oath of office in succession to Earl Grey. The duke arrived in the harbor last night aboard the steamer Empress of Ireland. There was a crowd at the dock, but his royal highness and the duchess remained in their suite and only a few officials and friends gained the privilege of welcoming them to Canada. The official landing of the duke and duchess was made today and the ceremony of swearing in the duke followed shortly afterward.

The entry of the royal party was made an impressing incident. Capt. Victor Pelletier, aide de camp to the lieutenant governor of Quebec, entered the hall from the apartments of the speaker of the legislative council and announced to the judges of the supreme court that their royal highnesses were about to enter. ## GOVERNOR CANNOT HEAR WELL YET

Still Insists There Is No Demand for an Extra Session.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart has as yet made no move toward calling an extra session of the legislature to pass an increased gross earnings tax bill and other pieces of needed legislation. He insists that there is no demand for it throughout the state.

"None of those who have been agitating the question has been to see me about it," he said. "I am not in favor of calling an extra session until the United States supreme court passes on the pending rate cases."

Nevertheless, the movement is assuming larger proportions and is being widely discussed by the country press. Christopher Easton, secretary of the State Anti-Tuberculosis society, has written H. H. Dunn, speaker of the house that in case one is called, the tuberculosis bill passed by the senate at the last session should be considered by the house.

DREAD RAINS IN WISCONSIN

Heavy Fall Will Mean Renewal of Flood Destruction.

City of Portage Narrowly Escapes Fate of Black River Falls.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 13.—The Mississippi river here has stopped rising for the first time in a week. The gauge this morning is 9.3 feet, exactly the same as yesterday. If no more heavy rains fall, the situation will grow no worse and relief will come gradually next week. Fears, however, are expressed of further rains, which, finding the river at the high point, might do even more damage than the present flood, which began when the water was many feet lower than it is today. Until the Mississippi has gone down two or three feet at this point, liability of serious damage from further rains will remain.

Governor McGovern is today at Black River Falls, conferring with the citizens' committee and state officers who have been on the ground all week. # FOG CAUSE OF FATAL WRECK

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Michael King, engineer, and R. K. Smith, brakeman, were killed in a rear-end collision here today between a freight train on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and a Pere Marquette fruit train.

The accident was due to a heavy fog, which was also responsible for a wreck last night on the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago electric line in which sixteen persons were injured. The moisture-laden atmosphere caused much annoyance to traffic early today, and was directly to blame for several accidents in which many persons were slightly injured.

Today was to be devoted mainly to showing visitors around, so far as the congress was concerned, though there were several meetings of affiliated bodies arranged.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 13.—Albert Hauert is under arrest charged with causing the fire in his own home Monday evening.

When the firemen arrived in response to an alarm, they found that the house had been set on fire. Fires had been started with the aid of kerosene in five different rooms of the house, but all the doors between the rooms had been shut and this confined the flames to the respective rooms.

No One Was at Home.

There was no one at home and Mr. Hauert was not located until Tuesday night, when he returned home from Black River Falls, where, he said, he had been since Saturday. He was closely questioned by the police and a deputy state fire marshal, who has been here investigating the case, but he denied all knowledge of the crime. He stated, however, that the house was well insured, his wife, who recently obtained a divorce from him, having insured it for $1,500 and on Aug. 30, this year, he had it insured for $2,200, making a total of $3,700 on a house assessed at $1,300.

WILL FIX BOUNDARY

Line Between St. Louis and Lake Counties Will Be Determined.

Settlers on Disputed Land Have Paid Taxes in Both Counties.

A writ of quo warranto has been served on County Auditor Odin Halden by Attorney General George F. Simpson, to show what authority St. Louis county is exercising jurisdiction over a strip of land about a mile wide on the eastern boundary line of the county.

The answer must be filed by Oct. 23 and the arguments will take place on Jan. 15, before the Minnesota state supreme court.

This is the old dispute which has lasted for years between St. Louis and Lake counties as to the exact location of the dividing line between the counties.

If Knife river had kept its original bed there would never have been a dispute, but the location of the mouth is constantly changing and St. Louis county was benefited thereby.

The mouth of the river was the original point from which the line was drawn. It remained so until 1895, when by an act of the legislature the line was fixed at what was known as the "true meridian," the boundary line which divided ranges 11 and 12.

The two counties agreed until December, 1910, when the land was again placed on the tax books of St. Louis county by Auditor Halden.

Since that time both counties have in some instances collected taxes upon the land, and the settlers want the matter settled as the double system of taxation does not meet with their hearty approval.

St. Louis county has even sold some of the land because of the delinquent taxes upon it. The matter comes up for argument before the supreme court in January.

ECONOMIZING ON MATCHES

With the advent of automobiles, the urgent demand for a new jail or a remodeled old jail, including about $5,000 worth of modern cells, the request for at least part of a new signal system, books containing a synopsis of the police ordinances, additional policemen, better jail facilities at West Duluth, New Duluth and the West end, and a few other things, the powers that be at headquarters have decided to practice economy.

It's to be a real saving. The powers that be have decreed it. The drawer that contains the matches, the lucifers with which the policemen and some of the loafers about the station light their pipes, cigars and sometimes the detested cigarettes, has been put under lock and key. So if you want a light and haven't one of your own or a key, and can't find the man with that article, you'll have to go without the light.

It is estimated that for the entire year about $8 or $9 are spent for matches at the station. This is considered extravagance. Henceforth there is to be a saving. Maybe the bill can be cut in half, and it might even be put down below that figure. By practicing economy, enough money might be saved to help pay for the new jail.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The mock trial entitled Lewis vs. Hoopes, conducted before the Sophomore-Freshman Literary society in the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon resulted in a verdict of guilty. John McCabe acted as judge, Floyd Lawson as clerk, Leonard McCarthy as sheriff, Fred Bates as prosecuting attorney and John Shields as defendant's attorney. Before the trial the society adopted blue and gold as its colors and decided to present a Poe program at its next meeting, when the life and writings of that author will be discussed.

Several of the upper classmen at the high school have decided to form a debating club with a limited membership. They will take up debating to the exclusion of anything else and will be given lectures by R. D. Brackett, coach of the high school debating team. Twelve students have been secured as charter members and most all of them have had previous experience. The membership will be elective and the regular meetings will be held Tuesday afternoons after the school sessions.

WILL PAY SHORTAGE.

Bonding Company to Make Up for Bren's Deficiency.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—John Lind, president of the university board of regents, says that the bonding company, which issued J. D. Bren's $40,000 bond as acting treasurer of the university, has notified the authorities that the Bren shortage would be paid by the company. Mr. Lind, who called on Governor A. O. Eberhart yesterday, said that the exact amount which the company will pay has not been determined, but that it will approximate the amount of which Mr. Bren asserts he was robbed in June last.

Wilson & Force, local agents for the bonding company, the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company, have had several conferences with the regents. The regents maintain that the company is liable, whether Bren was robbed, as he asserts, or whether he embezzled the money, as is charged in indictments pending against him.

The public examiner reported that Bren was short approximately $14,400. He said he was robbed of about $13,300.

NEW TRUSTEES CHOSEN.

Glowing Reports Are Made of Catholic University.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Most encouraging reports of the work being done by the Catholic University of America here were presented to the board of trustees yesterday. This year's enrollment is larger than ever and progress was reported in every direction.

Vacancies on the board of trustees were filled as follows: Archbishop Prendergast of Philadelphia to succeed the late Archbishop Ryan; Archbishop James J. Keane of Dubuque to succeed Archbishop John James Keane; Bishop Canevin of Pittsburg to succeed the late Bishop Hortsman of Cleveland, and Former United States Senator Kearns of Utah to succeed the late Michael Cudahy.

It was decided that Dr. Paul Gless of the University of Bonn should be called to fill the newly created chair of German literature, and Rev. Dr. Fenton, assisted by Rev. Nieban, both Sulpician fathers, to have charge of pastoral and mystical theology. Dr. Franz Coeln of the University of Bonn was called to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Dr. Granan as professor of New Testament history.

APPLES ARE THE FEATURE

Season for Winter Varieties Is Now at Its Height.

Oranges and Lemons Are Higher—Butter and Cheese Advance.

The winter apple season is now at its height. The winter apples now on the market are from New York, Iowa and Missouri, and are finer in quality than winter apples have been for a number of years. The prices are reasonable.

Duluth wholesalers recently purchased large quantities, just before the shippers' prices went up, and are now in many cases selling to the retail grocers at just what they would have to pay the shippers, if the shipments should be ordered now. It is not likely, however, that the higher prices charged by the shippers will cause the prices charged by the Duluth wholesalers to increase during the coming week.

The orange market is up, for the Valencia season is about over and the navel crop is not yet ready. Both these varieties come from California. The orange receipts are getting lighter. The first arrivals of the navels will probably not take place before Nov. 10 or 11, possibly not much before Thanksgiving. After the navels begin to come in, however, oranges will begin to cheapen. During the past few days oranges have risen in price about fifteen per cent.

The lemon market has been growing stronger from the same cause as the orange market, and that is that the old crop is playing out and the new crop is not yet ready. About Thanksgiving the new crop of lemons will be coming in and the price will begin to fall. Lemons are about 10 per cent higher than they were a few days ago. The bulk of the lemons consumed here are raised in California.

Peaches are almost gone. There are no Coloradoes on the market, and but a few Washingtons are left. A few late California and other varieties will arrive within the next few days. These late peaches are not what is ordinarily known as fancy fruit. They are of a greenish hue and are used only for preserving.

Concord grapes are still plentiful. Large quantities are coming in from New York state.

Imported figs have been arriving this week from Turkey. Turkish figs are the finest in the world.

Home-grown tomatoes are no longer to be had. There are hothouse tomatoes, however, coming in from Chicago in crates.

Carrots, beets and many other home-grown vegetables of the hardy varieties are very plentiful and cheap, on account of the slow demand. Potatoes, however, are expected to go higher very soon. Red and yellow onions are cheap on account of recent dry weather. They were up for a while on account of rains, which prevented farmers from digging them and bringing them to market. During the last week they declined about 20 per cent.

Pop corn has been going up. Good pop corn is scarce. Much of this year's crop will not pop. Most of what is used here comes from Iowa.

Commission merchants predict an advance in the price of cranberries. The two great cranberry states are Wisconsin and New Jersey. There is a big shortage in the Eastern crop, and that will undoubtedly bull the price of the Wisconsin cranberries, though the crop of that state is better than last year's.

New crop nuts are coming in. There are hickory nuts, butternuts and black walnuts from Iowa and Missouri, and fancy chestnuts from Pennsylvinia. The wholesalers are also getting in some large chestnuts from Italy. These are largely for the Italian trade. Americans also buy them for use in flavoring turkeys for Thanksgiving dinners.

The cheese market is firmer. Cheese during the last week has gone up about a cent a pound, rising in sympathy with butter. Fancy creamery butter has gained 3 cents a pound.

New cider will be on the market next week.

JEFF DAVIS AND MISS CARTER WED.

Ozark, Ark., Oct. 13.—United States Senator Jeff Davis of Little Rock, and Miss Lelia Carter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace A. Carter of this city, were married at the Carter residence yesterday afternoon.

SAYS TARIFF ROBS PEOPLE

John Arbuckle Denounces Customs Tax on Sugar.

Says He Will Devote Ability to Abolishing the "Wicked Tax."

New York, Oct. 13.—Just before sailing for Europe yesterday, John Arbuckle, the sugar refiner and coffee manufacturer, issued a statement strongly attacking the tariff on raw sugar, declaring it to be a "wicked tax" for the benefit of the beet sugar interests. In his statement Mr. Arbuckle said:

"I propose to devote all my time and all my ability to the abolition of all import duties on raw sugar, a most wicked tax on a food necessity of all our people. It taxes the man who works for a wage of a dollar a day as much as it taxes an Astor or Mr. Morgan or Mr. Rockefeller. Each eats, or at least needs, the same amount of sugar, and each pays, not according to his ability, but according to his needs, reversing an elemental rule of taxation.

"If, as some one has said, sugar is the comfort of old age and the delight of youth, your Uncle Sam is engaged in taking candy from children, the height of meanness. The duty on raw sugar is 78 per cent of its value.

Compares Some Duties.

"You will be surprised to compare this import duty with others:

| Article. | Duty Per cent. |
|---|---|
| Sugar | 78.87 |
| Champaign | 70.00 |
| Automobiles | 45.00 |
| Furs | 50.00 |
| Diamonds | 10.00 |
| Pearls | 20.00 |

"The duty which the United States exacts on the importation of raw sugar, holds up the price of the beet sugar, as well as the cane sugar, for the gentlemen who are manufacturing beet sugar exact from the public every penny they can get. The beet companies have said that they can produce beet sugar at about 3 cents per pound.

Prices in the West.

"In California, the beet sugar is sold just under the price of the cane sugar, and the cane sugar, although it is manufactured from Hawaiian raw sugar, which is admitted free of duty, costs the consumer the New York price of refined sugar, plus the freight.

"In Utah the beet refiners exact the full price of the San Francisco market, plus the freight across the Rocky mountains. Everywhere the beet sugar manufacturer takes full advantage of the import tax, and it results that the people of the United States pay the tax to the government on the cane sugar and to the beet sugar barons on the beet sugar.

"The saving to the American people on the sugar consumed last year, if the tax were removed, would have amounted to almost $150,000,000.

Who Gets the Rake-off.

"The beneficiaries of the duty are planters of cane in the Hawaiian islands, Porto Rico, Louisiana and the Philippines and the manufacturers of domestic beet sugar. We are taxed for the benefit of Louisiana and the domestic beet sugar producers. The domestic beet sugar interests need no protection. The American Sugar Refining company has $20,000,000 of beet sugar capital."

Increased in Transit.

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—The value of the cargo of sugar which arrived here yesterday on the British steamship Kwarra from Java, increased in value in transit more than $107,000. The Kwarra sailed from Java, Aug. 1.

When the 6,000 tons of sugar were put on board the value per 112 pounds was 14s 6d. Yesterday's quotations for Java sugar were 18s 6d. The advance of 4 shillings in the price will net the owners $107,140 over the original purchase price. The duty paid on the Kwarra's cargo totaled $180,000, or on a basis of $30 per ton.

OCTOGENARIAN STILL LIVING

Although He Has Been Reported as Dead Four Times.

Brazil, Ind., Oct. 13.—Although he is 80 years old and four times has been dead, Frank M. Gates of Lena was able to come to this city, and in proof of his perfect health and remarkable strength engaged in a friendly wrestling bout with a local wrestler forty years younger.

When 5 years old a horse fell on him, crushing him so seriously that he was believed to be dead and the undertaker was summoned. Four hours after the accident the undertaker arrived, but found his subject alive.

He fell into a well fifteen years later, was fished out and pronounced dead by the physicians. Again he recovered.

In the Civil war Gates was stricken with fever. He was placed in a hospital at Evansville, and while apparently dead was taken into the dead room and placed among the bodies, but recovered consciousness and left the hospital in the night.

The next day he attempted to creep on an Ohio river packet—carrying his company to the front at Fort Donelson. A guard on the boat recognized him as a fever patient after the packet had pulled out and pitched him into the river. He was later picked up unconscious, but recovered and soon rejoined his company, fighting to the end of the war.

DR. ELIOT PLANS TAKING TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 13.—President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard is planning a trip around the world, to start on Nov. 7 and occupy approximately eight months. The greater part of his time will be spent in Japan, China and India. He will sail from New York on Nov. 7 on the Kronprinz Wilhelm for Cherbourg, thence he will go to Ceylon, where he is cheduled to arrive Dec. 3. From there he will make a side trip into the interior of India occupying about eight weeks.

On his return to Ceylon he will go directly to Singapore, stepping off at Rangoon and Penang. At Singapore he will branch off to Java. Thence he will continue to Hongkong, from where he will make another side trip to the Philippines before he starts for Shanghai. From the Chinese ports he will travel up to Yangtse river to Hankow and thence to Pekin and Tientsin.

On returning to Shanghai he will sail for Japan, where he will arrive late in April and make a prolonged stay. From Japan he will cross the Pacific to San Francisco, stopping at the Hawaiian islands.

He is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco on July 1, 1912, and will go directly to his summer home at Northeast harbor.

GARFIELD WILL GO TO LA FOLLETTE MEETING.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 13.—James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior under President Roosevelt, returned here yesterday from New York where he had a meeting with Mr. Roosevelt. Asked if the visit had anything to do with the La Follette progressive Republican meeting at Chicago, Oct. 16, he replied that he never gave out anything regarding his conferences with Mr. Roosevelt. He added, however, that he would attend the Chicago meeting.

McNAMARAS' SISTER STRUGGLING ALONE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13.—While thousands of dollars are being subscribed for the defense of her brothers, John and James McNamara, Mary McNamara, the only member of the family now in this city, toils long hours each day to make enough to provide for her modest wants and to pay the taxes on the humble McNamara home on Quarry street on the north side.

Mrs. McNamara, mother of John and James, is now living with a married daughter in Nebraska, and Mary McNamara leads very much the life of a recluse. Early each day she locks up her home and proceeds to the house of Rev. Father Hickey, where she is employed as a domestic.

French Not Pleased.

Paris, Oct. 13.—The accord with Germany upon the relative positions of France and Germany in Morocco has not been received with any special manifestations of pleasure in France. The unrest and concern in public opinion over how much the government may agree to give, weakens the ministry at home and causes anxiety as to what the chamber may do when it reconvenes.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Nielsen-Riccardo Martin Concert company.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Tomorrow night will be football night at the Lyceum. The members of the high school football team and the members of the Grand Forks team which comes to the city to meet the local boys on the gridiron tomorrow afternoon, will be the honored guests of the Lyceum management at the concluding performance of "The Spoilers" which will be presented by the Gus A. Forbes stock company. After the university games the theater party has come to be an established institution and many of the high school rooters and their friends will be present tomorrow evening at the theater to express their approval of the players of both teams. If success settles on the high school pennant the cheering will be given with much vim and vigor and if it's the other way of course there will be some for the visitors. Many theater parties are planned for tomorrow evening.

"The Spoilers" which is the bill is especially appropriate for so strenuous an occasion for the play abounds in stirring climaxes and the four acts are replete with the crises that mark the lives of the men struggling for supremacy in the far North. "The Spoilers" will be presented at the usual matinee tomorrow afternoon.

There will be a double headline bill at the Orpheum next week. The two feature acts will be presented by Johnny and Emma Ray, and Miss Grace Cameron.

The Rays are making their farewell tour in vaudeville after many years of successful touring. They have recently purchased a theater of their own, and plan to take charge of it next spring. They are presenting a comedy sketch called "The Band Master," which has been one of the biggest comedy acts on the circuit this season. The other headliner is Miss Grace Cameron of musical comedy fame. Miss Cameron, since she left musical comedy has been presenting character songs in vaudeville, and has made a reputation as a New York favorite. Another act that should be popular with Duluth audiences will be the return engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGreevy, who were seen here last season in "The Village Fiddler and The Country Maid." Four other acts will complete the bill, which is looked forward to as one of the big bills of the season.

There will be three more performances of this week's bill, tonight, tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night.

Vilmos Westony, in selections popular and classic, is creating a great sensation at the Empress this week. It is months since Sullivan & Considine have presented the vaudeville loving people of Duluth with an act the calibre of Westony's. Although it is a most difficult thing for Westony to make a short speech in English, yet, in the few short weeks which he has been on this side, he has gained a very clear idea of the class on entertainment desired by the average American. In securing an artist with a reputation like Westony and sending him over the circuit, Sullivan & Considine have given the real music loving people a chance to hear a great virtuoso at popular prices.

Like all other great pianists, Westony is a composer as well as musician. The number wherein he plays four airs at the same time was arranged by him and is considered a most brilliant achievement of modern technique. He arranged it for his American tour as a concession to the variety of tastes to which he must cater in vaudeville and it has been received with great enthusiasm everywhere by the musically knowing as well as those who can appreciate only his pyrotechnical execution. Six to eight hours a day is still Mr. Westony's practice diet and his wonderful hands are at once as soft as velvet or as hard as iron.

NOTED SPIRITUALIST COMING SUNDAY NIGHT.

The ghost will walk at the Lyceum Sunday night—not only one but many. Dr. Eddy, the noted spiritualistic medium, will give a seance at that time for the purpose of demonstrating spirit power in the light. Dr. Eddy comes to Duluth with the indorsement of the Royal Society of England, which tested him for three months in every conceivable manner that human ingenuity could suggest, and at the finish of these investigations presented him with a parchment certifying that the manifestations given in their presence were beyond human aid. Dr. Eddy has given his seances throughout England, Austria and France, and is now making a tour of the United States, attracting widespread attention.

He courts fullest investigation and conducts his operations in the strongest light, surrounded by a committee. In the seance at the Lyceum Sunday night he will produce the famous "De materialization" test which has involved a great deal of comment. Questions written and retained by the interrogators will receive full and intelligent answers. There will be other manifestations of his power, and the affair promises to arouse the keenest interest in the subject of spiritualism.

WILL STOP TREATING

Cigarmakers Are No Longer Allowed to Enjoy Untaxed "Smokes."

Order From Uncle Sam Sets Forth Very Stringent Law.

Cigar makers are to be denied the privilege of smoking their own cigars without first paying a tax to the government.

For years there has been a law which has covered this subject, but it was not explicit, and in a bulletin just issued, a copy of which has been received by the local collector of internal revenue and local cigar manufacturers, this point is made plain.

The government has placed a ban on "unstamped" smokes, and the next time that the cigar maker treats, he will have to do so from a box on which the tax has already been paid.

The bulletin gives implicit instructions to agents of the government in plain language and says:

Must Enter "Smokes."

"There exists among certain manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes an erroneous impression that cigars and cigarettes known as 'smokes' may be given to employes each day, which cigars and cigarettes are not taken from regularly stamped packages, but from stock, without the same being entered in the manufacturer's account, and without being packed and stamped before removal from the bonded factory premises, as required by law and regulations. The practice, wherever it exists, must be at once discontinued.

"The removal of cigars or cigarettes without the payment of the tax due thereon from the bonded premises of cigar manufacturers by cigar makers, or other persons employed by such manufacturers, is a violation of the provisions of section 3397 of the revised statutes, as amended, which statute reads as follows:

Law Is Quoted.

"'Whenever any cigars are removed from any factory or place where cigars are made, without being packed in boxes as required by the provisions of this chapter, or without the proper stamp thereon denoting the tax, or without stamping, indenting, burning, or impressing into each box, in a legible and durable manner, the number of the cigars contained therein, the number of the manufactory, and the number of the district and the state, or without properly affixing thereon and canceling the stamp denoting the tax on the same, or are sold, or offered for sale, not properly boxed and stamped, they shall be forfeited to the United States. And every person who permits any of the above described offenses shall be fined for each offense not less than one hundred dollars or more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.'

"The plea advanced that it has been customary among manufacturers of cigars to permit their workmen and employes to remove from their bonded premises as 'smokes' cigars upon which the tax has not been paid, can not be accepted as in any degree palliating an act which is expressly forbidden by the statute above referred to.

"Where it is discovered that cigars or cigarettes have been thus unlawfully removed from the factory a full and complete report should be made to this office. This report must include the number of workmen employed in the factory, the number of 'smokes' removed daily by each workman, or employe, and the aggregate number of such 'smokers' removed during the two years immediately preceding the date of the examination.

Check Up for Two Years.

"The utmost care should be taken in making up the total number of cigars or cigarettes found to have been removed as "smokers' during this period of two years, in order that the assessments to be made to cover the tax thus evaded may be based upon correct and accurate figures. Statements, under oath, should be obtained from the manufacturer's foreman and such other persons as have a knowledge of the number of cigars or cigarettes that have been thus unlawfully removed from the factory premises in the manner above indicated."

ABLE TO TALK TO ANIMALS

Claims He Has Mastered the Languages of Fifteen Animals.

Able to Converse With Crickets, Squirrels, Rattlesnakes, Etc.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 13.—Charles Kellogg of California, who, if not a nature-faker, is one of the most remarkable human beings of all time, arrived at the Hotel Bellevue this week from Paris and is awaiting an interview with professors from Harvard's department of science, confident that he will convince them of his ability to converse with animals.

Mr. Kellogg has just returned from Europe, where he gave demonstrations of his unique power before professors of the Universities of Paris and Berlin.

According to Mr. Kellogg, he has accomplished in reality during a life spent in the wilds of the Sierra Nevada mountains in California what the genius of Kipling makes Mowgli accomplish during a childhood passed in the tropical jungle. But, unlike the child of Kipling's brain, Kellogg has for friends only the animals of the temperate American West. He knows not the language of the tropical monkey, though he has often talked "bear" with the grizzlies of the Sierra Nevadas. Crickets, squirrels, lizards and rattlesnakes are some of the other animals whose languages Mr. Kellogg speaks fluently.

Wants Harvard's Verdict.

"The scientists of Harvard have for years been recognized as the court of last appeal in matters of this kind," said Mr. Kellogg today. "Though I have convinced the savants of Europe of the truth of my contentions, I shall not rest content until the professors of this great university have likewise acknowledged my powers. Since Prof. Hugo Munesterberg revealed to the world the miserable tricks by which the so-called medium, Mme. Palladini, imposed upon both lay and scientific Europe for twenty years, the intelligent public has been inclined to await the verdict of Harvard before accepting any conception which wanders far from the beaten paths.

"But, after all, the idea of man communing with animals is not nearly so absurd as it would at first appear. Scientifically considered, it is not even radical. How does a child learn to talk? It hears certain sounds and sees that they have certain meanings The fact that human organs have been making that particular sound for centuries is proof enough that his own vocal organs are naturally suited for reproducting it. Therefore, having the proper instrument, he has merely to experiment a bit upon its keyboard in order to speak the words his senses have recorded.

"No reasonable man can deny that the higher animals have a means of communication. I myself think it probable that all forms of life, however primitive, possess this faculty, though of course proof of the belief is not entirely practicable. Wherever animals associate freely they communicate with each other, though animals of the same species have a more nearly perfect understanding than those of different species.

Years of Observation.

"It was by years of constant observing and associating of sounds with actions that I mastered the fifteen animal languages I am familiar with. I began on domestic chickens and gradually extended my study to include such wild animals and reptiles as the bear, the lizard and the rattlesnake.

"For those who are accustomed to think only of human languages, fifteen will probably seem a most extraordinary number to master in a lifetime, but it must be remembered that the further down the scale of civilization one goes the less need is there for words to express ideas, for the very simple reason that there are fewer ideas to express. There are, according to Webster, something like 400,000 words in the English language. Shakespeare is said to have used 15,000; and the estimated active vocabulary of the average man is under two thousand. The semi-savage inhabitants of Terra del Fuego have less than five hundred, and the squalor-dulled peasants of Eastern Russia have less than three hundred words in their vocabularies. It will be observed that the further down the scale of human development one goes the less highly developed he will find the language. And the same holds true of the other animals.

"Using a system of hieroglyphics modelled upon the modern Chinese system, I have compiled a dictionary of the language of the ordinary brown or hearth cricket, which has the most highly developed language of any of the animals I am familiar with, though I have reason to suspect the monkeys are superior in this respect. From my dictionary I find there are twenty-seven elemental words or sounds, and eighty-five other words made up of various combinations of the original twenty-seven. A cumulative system not unlike that of the Germans. The number of words or sounds in other animal languages I am familiar with varies from twelve to ninety-five.

Dog Is Deficient.

"Strangely enough, the dog, which we are accustomed to regard as of a rather high order of intelligence, is markedly deficient in the matter of language, both the grizzly bear and the rattlesnake being vastly his superior. In the vocabulary of the ordinary watchdog there are but seventeen sounds. I knew one dog, an exceptionally intelligent collie, who regularly used twenty-one sounds in ordinary conversation. The additional four were inventions of my own, which I was able to teach him only after many months of constant labor.

"This lack of linguistic development on the part of dogs proceeds, I believe, not from any lack of intelligence, but rather from lack of a means of expression. To a far greater extent than any other animal of my acquaintance, dogs depend upon their intuition, a faculty which is developed in them to a remarkable degree. They seem almost to read each other's mind without any exchange of signals whatsoever.

"When I first began the study of the languages of wild animals I experienced great difficulty in approaching them. For a time I had first to learn as best I could from a distance a few of the more important sounds. Then gradually, as I became more familiar with the animal world in general, the difficulty entirely disappeared. Now I am afraid of no animal, and I encounter very few that show the least timidity in my presence.

"When I come before the Harvard professors I shall permit them to bring forward any number of specimens of the animals I have mentioned and I shall prove to their entire satisfaction that a perfect understanding exists between me and the animals. If I do not I shall be perfectly willing to be branded a nature faker."

God-Given Ability.

Although Mr. Kellogg admits that his ability to interpret the enunciations of animals is the result of long and arduous study, he insists that his ability to make himself understood, to imitate the sounds of these animals, is God-given. He says he can, without the least difficulty, reproduce any sound that comes from an animal's throat. He has a peculiarly constructed palate, no tonsils, and the cord connecting the teeth with the lower lip is entirely missing, but he has been assured by the most noted specialists that there is nothing abnormal about his throat and vocal cords. They are at a loss to account for his strange gift.

Mr. Kellogg exhibits a letter signed by a French ornithologist of note in which the savant pays high tribute to his powers. Freely translated, the letter reads in part as follows:

"The powers of this man are almost supernatural. When we of the academy gave Mr. Kellogg an interview we were more than half prepared to find a paltry charlatan with a few cheap tricks which could easily be disposed of by a person of intelligence. Instead we found a man whom nature seems to have been endowed with a sort of universal understanding.

"More than a dozen birds of various varieties were brought into his presence, and with each of these he exchanged sounds, the birds appearing to answer his intonations as if in perfect understanding of signals given."

JACKPOT COLLECTED

From Poker Game Given to Player's Wife and Babe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 13.—Judge Collins of the police court settled a poker game in favor of Mrs. John Foust and her 6-month-old baby.

Her husband sat in a game which John Louden is charged with operating. He should have reached home with $25, but he did not.

The game was raided. Foust and eight others were arrested.

At the conclusion of the trial Judge Collins looked across the bench at the tear-stained face of Mrs. Foust and the baby and said the last jackpot, containing about $25, was theirs.

"You may question my right to do this—you may want this money back," remarked the judge, looking at Louden and the others, "but if you do, go ahead and replevin the money."

FREAKS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL TO BE BARRED.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—Men are to be emancipated from styles that have no place except upon the vaudeville stage or the college campus.

The Customs Cutters' association, now in convention here, has firmly passed sentence of death upon these freaks:

Skin-tight English garments which require a shoe horn and talcum powder to don and a monkey wrench to button.

"Mother Hubbard" overcoats, the long, loose-fitting affairs that afforded shelter for many deformities.

Pegtop trousers, that atrocious abomination which resembled skirts at the top, and the legs of which were turned up half way to the knees.

Extreme English coats which cause a man's shoulders to slope from his ears to his ankles in unbroken lines.

Coats with oblique pockets with many flaps and buttons.

All garments of the rah-rah, gambler or hoodlum type.

All loud" colors and combinations.

Padded shoulders which make any anaemic shrimp of humanity resemble a prize fighter.

BIG MUSKELLUNGE CAUGHT NEAR NEVIS

Fisherman From Oklahoma Hooks Fifty Big Ones in Six Days.

Nevis, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. A. Beebe and wife have returned to their home in Oklahoma City, Okla. They have been here several days catching muskellunge, with great success. In six days they landed fifty fish above the thirty-inch limit, one a twenty-pounder, the best day's record being fifteen "muskies."

Mr. Beebe is one of the greatest muskellunge fishermen in the United States. For eight summers he has been catching these fish in Minnesota and Wisconsin. His catch of fifteen in one day here is his record and he says that muskellunge fishing is the best here he has ever found. Most of the fishing has been done in Deer and Spider lakes. Mr. Beebe considers Nevis, situated as it is in the center of several lake systems, is the ideal place to fish from, and plans upon returning next summer and perhaps building a cottage on one of our lakes.

Big Bean Crop.

The first of the bean crop is being thrashed on the Swan Rodin farm south of town where a forty-acre field is yielding at the rate of twenty-two bushels per acre. This is somewhat higher than beans will average over the country, but there are many fields that will produce not less than twenty bushels per acre. Bears will net growers in the neighborhood of $1.75 per bushel this fall. More than 1,000 acres of beans are being grown in the vicinity of Nevis this year.

FLY HOME TO DINNER

Duluthians Will Some Day Use Aeroplanes to Reach Country Estates.

Aviator Thinks They Will Bring "Back to Land" Movement.

"Duluth people will live to see the day when every big building in the city will have a landing place for aeroplanes, and a large percentage of the citizens will own their own machines and use them as the bicycle was used ten years ago," said Thomas McGoey, the aviator, who will fly at Athletic park Sunday afternoon.

"I see Duluth is hearing a lot about the homecroft idea and a very good idea it is. I firmly believe that the aeroplane will make this homecroft plan feasible for the greater part of the people of Duluth. I believe the aeroplane will make it possible for people to live on their little garden tracts ten or twenty miles out in the country, and come to the city every day to transact business.

"This won't come in one year, or maybe in five, but ten years from now I believe you will see the aeroplane in common, everyday use, by business men. It will solve the problem of the congested cities, and take the people back to the country.

"This may sound like an exaggeration, or a dream, but just look back and think what has been done in the last two years. Two years ago you could count on one hand the number of men who had flown in heavier than air machines. Today there are hundreds of them who have licenses as aviators, and literally thousands who are studying the art of flight.

"It is no longer an experiment, any more than swimming. It is simply a question of learning to operate the machines, just as the swimmer must learn to use his arms and legs, and there are expert aviators just as there are expert swimmers. The only difference is that an aviator can't experiment with a rope tied around him to save him.

"Aeroplanes are going to become cheaper and safer. In fact the big changes during the next few years will be in making them safer. Devices will be invented to protect the aviator in case of an accident in the air. The type of the machine may be changed entirely, as the bicycle changed from the old high wheel to the safety. They will become perfected so that it will be possible to alight in a much smaller space, and from a much smaller field. As I said before, I hope to live to see the day when a man can step into his aeroplane on the roof of some building here in Duluth, and fly home ten or twenty miles to dinner, making the flight in ten or fifteen or twenty minutes, instead of taking a crowded street car. The owner of an aeroplane can then have his home in the country, with his garden plot and his orchard, and still be closer to his work than the suburban resident of today. "Sounds like a dream, doesn't it? But it isn't."

WEST END MEETINGS FOR WEST END MEN

Men and Religion Forward Movement Will Be Pushed.

Plans for a series of religious meetings for men for the coming winter were completed at a meeting of West end ministers held at the Swedish Mission church yesterday afternoon. The meetings are to be held in cooperation with the Men and Religion Forward movement recently started in the city. The first will be held on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 29, the meeting place to be announced later.

Rev. M. S. Rice presided at the meeting and gave a number of suggestions for the coming campaign. Those present at the gathering were: Rev. J. J. Daniels, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, Rev. C. G. Olson of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran, Rev. Swaney Nelson of the Swedish Baptist, Rev. George H. Silloway of the Grace M. E., Rev. Ed Stromberg of the Swedish M. E., Rev. W. E. Harman of the St. Peter's Episcopal, Rev. J. Nervig of the Zion Norwegian Lutheran, and Rev. Edward Erickson of the Norwegian Danish M. E.

DEATH NOT DUE TO FALL

The death of Andrew Liljander, who died in the county jail yesterday morning, was caused by cerebral hemorrage induced by chronic alcoholism and accelerated by a fall, is the opinion of Dr. F. F. Clark, who conducted the coroner's autopsy last yesterday afternoon.

Liljander was arrested Monday for drunkenness and when brought to the police station was bleeding from a wound over his eye, which he said he sustained in a fall. He was attended by Police Surgeon Murphy and later sentenced to seven days in jail. The post mortem did not disclose any fracture of the skull, nor was the fall directly responsible for the man's death, said the physician.

Liljander roomed at 1901 West Superior street and is survived by a brother, Matt Liljander, who lives at 828 Garfield avenue. The body has been taken to the Olson & Crawford undertaking rooms by his brother where the funeral arrangements will be made.

MEN'S CLUB WILL HOLD BANQUET.

The Men's Club of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church will give a banquet next Thursday evening at the church parlors, when the new club constitution and by-laws will be voted on and a campaign for more members will be started. Arrangements will be made for 100 plates, as a large number of outsiders are expected to attend. A special program has been arranged, including a number of speeches by prominent West end citizens.

The club was recently started and has an active membership already of forty men and boys. Rev. Edward Erickson is the president of the club and P. D. Hanson is the vice president. Joseph Hauer is secretary and W. Gabrielson is treasurer.

WILL INSPECT ARMY WORK HERE

Col. B. Nelson of Chicago, who is making a tour of American cities for the Salvation Army, is now in the West end and will speak Saturday evening at the Scandinavian Salvation Army hall at 8 o'clock. The hall is upstairs of the store at 1631 West Superior street, and the meeting will be attended by the Superior officers as well, as it is an important one. Several special topics will be discussed, and Col. Nelson will answer any question that may come up. Capt. Olson of Superior will also address the gathering and take part in the evening program.

COL. B. NELSON.

The local officers are entertaining the visitors and showing them the nature of their work in Duluth. The traveling officers make a report to the headquarters after the tour, and it is then that a national report is made showing the standing of each city and what it accomplished during the year.

SWEDISH SINGERS COMING TO DULUTH.

The Orpheus Singing society has arranged to have the Swedish-American Vocal Trio and company come to Duluth and give a concert here on the evening of Nov. 15. The society is composed of twenty-six male singers, and it is their plan to bring a prominent company here every year to sing popular Swedish songs. The company selected this year includes Miss May Corine, soprano; Miss Judith Lindblom, mezzo soprano; Miss Selma Linde and Miss Viola Uddgren, in children and folk songs.

A reception for the singers will be held after the concert.

YOUNG PEOPLE ORGANIZE SOCIETY.

A new society was organized last evening by the young people of St. Peter's Episcopal church, the name of which is to be decided at the next meeting. The members will meet in the guild hall of the church the last Thursday of the month, when a constitution and by-laws will be adopted. The following officers were elected: William Lewis, president; Miss Gladys Byerly, vice president; Miss J. Larin Hesse, secretary; and Miss Violet Conroy, treasurer. The entertainment committee for the next meeting will be W. A. Drummond, Miss Violet Conroy and Miss Ella Renhult.

BAZAR WILL CLOSE SATURDAY EVENING.

The bazar of St. Clement's church, which has been in progress for the past week at 2112 West Superior street will come to a close tomorrow evening after one of the most successful weeks the church has ever had.

Those in charge of the affair report a very large attendance each evening and the returns of the various booths have also helped toward the sum needed to defray the debt incurred by the erection of the church last year. The church was built last year at a large cost at Twenty-first avenue west and Third street.

Nearly every society and club of the church has had booths at the bazar. The lodges are also helping in the management of the affair and have contributed liberally in the donations toward the fair.

Lecture and Concert.

Rev. A. F. M. Elmquist of Minneapolis lectured at the Dorcas circle entertainment given in the church parlors last evening. The circle of the Bethany Lutheran church had arranged a special lecture and concert program which was well received by a large audience. The following program was given in addition to the lecture of Rev. Elmquist: Organ solo, G. G. Anderson; Prayer, Rev. C. G. Olson; song, congregation; address of welcome, Mrs. Gustafson; recitation, Florence Gorman; vocal duet, Mabel Horner and Mr. Lundberg.

Dry Shampoo Popular

A local druggist is authority for the statement that most every woman, and many men, are using the popular "vilane-orris root dry shampoo." "It is becoming a craze," he says, "because of the quickly perceptible effect on the hair and scalp. It simply transforms an ordinary oily, stringy, dandruff-reeking head of hair into a most beautiful lustrious, fluffy and clean one. Mix together six ounces of powered orris root and two ounces antiseptic vilane powder. Keep in a jar or box and frequently distribute a tablespoonful through the hair. Let remain several hours or a night and then comb and brush thoroughly."

UNCLE SAM HAS MUCH BUILDING

There Are 190 Buildings in the Course of Erection.

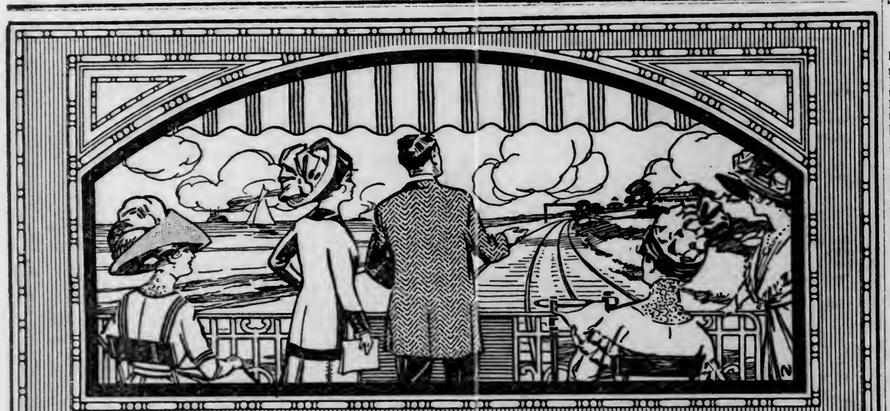

Washington, Oct. 13.—The office of the supervising architect of the treasury department is daily turning out work in the way of plans and estimates, the effect of which is being felt all over the country. At present there are 190 buildings in the course of construction under the supervision of the treasury department. The supervising architect's office has charge of the designing and construction of all of the postoffices and custom houses in the United States and insular possessions. James Knox Taylor, supervising architect, is in charge.

The greatest projects on which the supervising architect is now working are the postoffice and the customs house at New Orleans, the postoffice at Denver, the New York postoffice and the customs house at Boston. An average expenditure of $75,000 a year is being made on these buildings. Washington is also to have a new postoffice building.

Each year the supervising architect's office expends about $12,000,000 on postoffices and custom houses. While much of the designing of these buildings is done by men in the Washington office, a great deal of the larger work is done by outside architects, who secure the work by competition and do it on contract.

There are certain centers around which most of the present day work is being done. Of the states of the Eastern seaboard there are only two Maryland and Florida, in which no big work is progressing. On the Pacific coast the work is clustered about San Francisco and Seattle, and along the border line between Washington, Oregon and Idaho there is much work being done. The vicinity of Denver is the seat of considerable work under the supervision of the treasury department and about Kansas City there are a number of postoffices in the course of construction. Through the central part of Texas there is a belt, running north and south, in which the supervising architect is directing government work, as well as in St. Louis and Omaha. Utah, Wyoming, South Carolina, and South Dakota have one enterprise each. In Georgia and Rhode Island there are a great many postoffices being erected.

According to the most eminent architect of the day, the quality of the work being done by the supervising architect's office is of a high standard. Nowhere are mediocre buildings being constructed and a uniform excellence in design in noticeable.

MINISTER, AGED 89, WEDS.

Takes as Bride a Woman 31 Years His Junior.

San Jose, Cal., Oct. 13.—The Rev. H. T. Bentley, aged 89, a retired Methodist minister and author of several religious works, and Mrs. Mary Ann Spivey, aged 58, of this city, were married here a few days ago. The ceremony was performed in the Free Methodist church, the Rev. W. O. Simpson officiating.

Bentley is reputd to be wealthy, but he has lived simply many years in this city in a little cottage. On the front gate of this place was written: "H. T. Bentley's little cottage under the big mansion," and the inscription attracted a great deal of attention.

The "little cottage" has been sold and another in Crittenden street purchased for the home of the couple.

THIS DOLLAR WENT FAST.

Stamped and Addressed, It Went By Mail on Unique Journey.

Boulder, Colo., Oct. 13.—A silver dollar which was stamped, addressed and mailed in the Lafayette postoffice last Friday, sent by the dubious postmaster to the federal authorities in Denver, held by the assistants to be improper matter for the mails and finally approved by United States Attorney Ward, arrived at its destination here this morning.

It was sent by J. O. V. Wise of Canfield to County Clerk Agnes O'Day in payment for the filing of a warranty deed. The coin bore a 1-cent postage stamp on one side and a circular piece of paper on the other, with the typewritten address: "From J. O. V. Wise, Agnes O'Day, Boulder, Colo."

OHIO RIVER HIS MAGNET.

Nonagenarian Takes a Swim in the River of His Boyhood.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13.—After being away from Cincinnati eighty-six years, Oliver W. Gogin, 91, returned "just to see the town and take a dip in the Ohio," as he expressed it.

He went to the river where the boys of his day used to swim and, after donning a bathing suit, jumped into the cold water with a sprightliness that turned the long years back to the old days. He enjoyed the swim hugely and swam around in lively fashion for a "boy" of 91.

"Having come back to old Cincinnati, where, eighty-six years ago, I first ran a barefooted boy," said Gogin, "I, like any other boy of 91 years of age, could not resist the temptation to take a good old-style swim in the river."

With a Severe Cough the Bowels Need a Laxative.

Make This Laxative Cough Syrup Cheaply at Home.

Any one can make a full pint of finest acting laxative cough syrup for about 75 to 80 cents. About eight times cheaper than labeled cough syrups, because a pint will last a family a long time. First obtain of any well-stocked druggist 2½ ounces of essence Mentho-laxene; empty it into a pint bottle. Then make a syrup with a pint of granulated sugar and a half pint of boiling water. Stir, let cool and fill the bottle with the syrup. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two. Eight to ten doses daily will act as a mild laxative, check the cough instantly and cure it quicker than anything you can buy. This syrup builds up the strength of the system and makes the tissues of the lungs and throat healthy.

Chronic cases yield most readily to its beneficial action. Give children less according to age.

ARMY MULE POWERFUL

No Fear of Animal Being Displaced By the Auto.

"Mr. Mule" Can Go Where It Would Be Simply Junk.

Washington, Oct. 13.—"An army without a mule would be like an automobile without an engine," said Gen. Henry T. Allen of the general staff.

"All this talk about the automobile truck supplanting the army mule is tommyrot.

"Mr. Mule is more powerful than ever."

Old army officers speak of the army mule as "Mr. Mule," unless he is inexperienced; then he is a "shave tail."

Twelve thousand mules are serving under the stars and stripes at the present time. During the Spanish-American war 50,000 mules saw active service. Four mules, at the army standard of value, are worth $300. Therefore, Uncle Sam has $2,700,000 invested in mules.

There are twelve automobile trucks in the army and they are being tested against the mule. The odds are on the mule.

Two troops of cavalry have just left Fort Riley, Kan., for St. Joseph, Mo., and return, a hike of 500 miles. One troop is equipped with old style cavalry outfit. The other is fitted with new fangled accoutrements for men and beasts. Accompanying the troops are several automobile trucks, with mule-drawn forage wagons, ambulances and pack train. It is known from experience that the mule will be in at the finish, but there is some doubt about the automobile.

Mule Strong as Transport.

In time of war the automobile truck can be used, if there is any sort of road at all, to carry supplies from the railroad or coast to the field depots. County bridges are not built to carry two or three tons, and, therefore, the truck could not be used extensively without special preparation. As a transport, Mr. Mule is strong. In field work, in carrying supplies to regiments over broken or mountainous country, he has no superior. He climbs like a goat and can live on as little as a razorback hog. The mule can negotiate country that an automobile cannot approach.

There are twelve batteries of mountain artillery and Mr. Mule is the backbone of these batteries. He carries the guns, the soldiers, subsistence for man and beast and ammunition.

President Taft rode a gray mule from Manila to Bagio when he was governor general of the Islands. Returning to Manila, he cabled Secretary of War Root that the work of road building was progressing splendidly. Mr. Root wired back:

"Please report on condition of the mule."

The first life lost in the war with Spain was that of an army mule. When the cruiser New York steamed into Matanzas harbor and shelled the Spanish garrison this mule came down to the shore line and heehawed his contempt for the American warship. A shell took him amidships and his Spanish hostler reported him killed on the firing line.

Caused Panic in Camp.

About this time 5,000 American shave-talls were corralled in the instruction camps at Chickamauga, adjacent to the 50,000 soldiers. One dark night the mules stampeded and dashed through the camp, heehawing and snorting and kicking, throwing the whole camp into a panic.

The Spaniards in the early days of their conquest brought the mule here, and he has served under the American flag ever since the Revolution.

Gen. Sherman as secretary of war placed an old army mule on the retired list. It came about in this way: The mule grew old. The commander of a Texas post, reported to headquarters that he had an old gray mule, too old for work, but not to consume a regular ration. From post to division and from division to the department the story of the gray mule went, and Gen. Sherman heard of it. From the description he recognized the mule as an old friend of the civil war. Thereupon he issued the following order: "As a result of thirty years of faithful service Mr. Gray Mule is relieved of all further duty. He will be maintained in Texas, at his post, with the usual daily allowance for fodder."

In the early days of the occupation of the Philippines a transport started with a load of horses and mules across the Pacific. As a result of typhoons and hurricanes four of the mules were landed, and three of these died after going ashore. The surviving mule became a mascot. He was exempt from all rules. There would have been mutiny had any officer tried to force the mascot into service. He died seven years afterward from sheer indolence and fat.

Once Started a Riot.

An army mule started a riot once. In 1872 a regiment of cavalry and three of infantry were sent from St. Louis to the Yellowstone country on a survey. The band of the Seventeenth was notoriously bad. One day the battery to which the mule belonged stopped in front of the Seventeenth and the mule lifted his head, looking at the band of the Seventeenth, and brayed loudly in the very face of the bandmaster. An Irish artilleryman, pointing at the band leader, shouted: "If I could finger the heehaw I could beat the whole damned band playing."

The musicians, insulted, started for the Irishman, but he and the mule, it is said the one using his fists and the other his heels routed the band.

The mule's army duties are numerous and exacting. He is a pack animal, he toils in the traces of the supply wagons, he races with the field ambulances, he is used for saddle purposes in mountainous country. He reaches the height of efficiency when detailed to a mountain battery, for he stands firm under fire.

QUITE A NICE LITTLE AMOUNT

American Money Spent Abroad During Year Surely Helped Some.

Washington, Oct. 13.—About 290,000 Americans went abroad during the last fiscal year and spent fully $200,000,000 on passage across the Atlantic, hotel bills, railway transportation, amusements and for miscellaneous purposes, according to a statement prepared by John Ball Osborne, chief of the bureau of trade relations, department of state.

Of this number 220,000 were about equally divided between first and second cabin passengers, with an average expenditure of $800, and the remainder were steerage. These figures do not include the large sum annually spent for jewelry, clothing and other articles.

The cost of running the municipal governments of sixteen of the larger cities during the calendar year 1908 was $274,000,000, according to a special report of the United States census, and it is safe to say, with figures available, they would show little difference in the comparative standing of the same cities at the present time. This included outlays for general and special service expenses such as police and fire protection, health, highways, charities, hospitals, education, recreation, etc., but does not take in public improvements.

"A large part of this vast amount is undoubtedly spent in France, particularly in Paris," said Mr. Osborne.

Just pause a moment and think if that $200,000,000 was kept in this country it would buy 44 five-cent loaves of bread for each one of the 90,000,000 of men, women and children, or supply at least a half dozen shirts to every man over eighteen years old.

"The Food I Eat Does Me No Good"

One of the commonest ailments of the day is inability to derive benefit from the food taken. Food that does not digest is worse than wasted. The complaint quoted above is one often heard by doctors.

Food that fails to digest ferments. Gas forms in the stomach and the acids of fermentation cause heartburn. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a digestive tonic and give new strength by enabling the blood to take up and profit by the food we eat. They double the value of the food to the body, increase the appetite, renew energy, vitality, snap and vigor.

Mrs. Emma M. Mayne, of No. 635 Second avenue, Clinton, Iowa, says: "I had just worked myself out bringing up a family of five children and, while in this run-down condition, I took sick with some kind of stomach trouble. I doctored with several physicians and saw a specialist in Chicago but received little help. My stomach was certainly in a bad state and I was completely run down. I could not eat anything with relish and could not sleep. I would have deathly sick spells and would vomit. I had terrible headaches and dizzy spells. I got very thin and my friends thought I was going into consumption. I doctored for a year or so without help and, while visiting a niece she told me that she took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, so I tried them. They soon helped me and a few boxes entirely cured me."

Don't go about your treatment blindly but start today to cure your indigestion by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The experience of other sufferers has been that their stomach troubles disappeared as soon as the blood was made pure and rich.

Every sufferer from stomach trouble should read our booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat." It is free upon postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c per box; six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

WATCH SAVES ITS OWNER IN SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 13.—A gold watch saved the life of William Richey of No. 4508 Clayton street. Richey inadvertly placed his timepiece in the upper left hand vest pocket, instead of the accustomed lower pocket, and that is why he is not dead, with a load of buckshot in his heart.

Richey was rabbit hunting north of Denver when his shotgun was accidentally discharged. The bulk of the charge struck his watch, destroying it and preventing the shot reaching his heart. The balance of the shot was buried in his left arm, terribly lacerating it.

COLLEGE GIRLS STAY MARRIED

Only One Out of Fifty-Seven Wedded Is Divorced.

Wellesley, Mass., Oct. 13.—If you marry a college-bred woman you are very apt to stay married to her.

This has been shown by the fair and learned alumnae of Smith college at Northampton and has caused much comment here. They contend that a college education—for a woman—is an enemy of divorce.

They have the figures—and women's figures never lie—to prove that only one college bred woman out of fifty-seven who marry is divorced or divorces her husband, this among graduates of all the women's colleges.

The girl educated at Smith college seems to be even more clinging than her sisters. Of eighty-five marriages reported only one Smith college girl was divorced.

The alumnae investigaters find that out of every ten or twelve married women not educated at a college, is divorced.

"College bred women marry late in life," said Dean Angiel, chaplain of Wellesley today. They are not frivolous; they are less vain; they do not marry easily. The low divorce rate discovered is a new and significant argument for a college education for women.

MILK SUPPLY DISCUSSED

State and National Experts Talk to Dairymen on Clean Milk.

Central Distributing Plants Are Advocated By Dr. H. M. Bracken.

Duluthians interested in dairying got many valuable pointers on milk, its inspection and marketing and the scoring system when that subject was discussed at the regular meeting of the St. Louis County Medical society at the Commercial club last evening.

The three principal speakers were Dr. F. D. Bothell of the department of agriculture; Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health; Joel J. Winkjer, head of the state dairy and food department. Their general subject was "certified milk."

Dr. Bracken advocated the establishment of central distributing plants, asserting that this would be the most logical solution of the milk problem from a commercial and sanitary point of view. He realized that it would be a hard matter to get them started, but said that once in operation it would be possible to properly supervise the distribution of milk in the cities. He emphasized the economical feature, stating that with such a central institution one man would be able to cover the territory in which three or four men now deliver milk. He told of one $150,000 central plant in Europe and smaller ones in Toronto and Milwaukee which have been in successful operation for some time.

He stated that milk may be divided into four classes—certified, inspected, pasteurized and commercial. He said that the former is by far the best, containing more butter fat and less bacteria than the others and is used principally as a food for babies and invalids. He said that it costs from 12 cents to 15 cents a quart, and that the public should not expect to get milk of that grade too cheaply.

"Pasteurized milk is in many ways ideal," said Dr. Bracken, "because it is possible to give a better commercial product, and also limits the danger of disease to a great extent, particularly of tuberculosis. There is another classification commonly used, that of 'commercial pasteurization,' which in most cases is no pasteurization at all. I do not know that you will really get a proper quality all the time, unless there is proper supervision, and that is in the hands of the local health department."

Mr. Winkjer went into detail of the method of inspection of the state. He said that the first step was the testing of milk as to its percentage of butterfat, and that this is now being extended to an inspection of barns. He stated that the inspection in Minnesota is not up to the standard which it should be, but thought that on the whole it would compare favorably with that of most other states. He declared that the state has but four inspectors and that the number is far too small.

Dr. Bothell devoted his attention to explaining the government score card and the features which enter into the scoring and determining the relative condition in the sanitary inspection of dairies.

The speakers were heard by a good-sized audience, including the members of the medical society and a considerable number of local milkmen and others interested in dairying.

LA FOLLETTE WILL STUMP MIDDLE WEST.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, progressive Republican leader, has decided to start early next month on a speech-making swing through the Middle West. The tour will last until congress meets in December. It will embrace the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi and probably Ohio. The itinerary has not been arranged.

Senator LaFollette said if he did not visit Ohio on this trip he would do so during the Christmas holidays. The coast was not included in the tour because of lack of time.

UNEARTHS JACKSON PENNY.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 13.—While excavating under an old log cabin, about twelve miles north of Logansport, J. W. Olson found a Jackson penny.

These pennies were issued by Andrew Jackson, president of the United States, in 1837 as a sarcastic slam at the secretary of the treasury for his slowness in issuing currency.

Robert Whitsell, coin collector of this city, states that only a few were issued and that the coin is very valuable.

It is of the old large copper style and on one side is the picture of a tortoise bearing a treasure box on its back. Around this are the words "Executive exjeriment." On the other side is a picture of the Democratic mule and the words "Illustrious predecessor. I follow the footsteps of it."

TAKES FLING AT GOMPERS

Detective Burns Denies Conspiracy Against Union Labor.

Declares Over $1,000,000 Has Been Given to McNamara Fund.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 13.—William J. Burns, former government secret service agent, who worked up the evidence in the case of the McNamara brothers now on trial in Los Angeles, Cal., last night vigorously assailed Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. The famous detective further discussed the Ohio legislative bribery cases, and made the statement that political influences are endangering the successful completion of the present investigation into legislative corruption at Columbus.

Detective Burns stopped at Cleveland from New York while en route to Los Angeles, where he will remain, he says, until after the trial of J. B. McNamara is over.

"Worse Than Asinine."

"The charge of President Gompers made in New York Tuesday that the case against the McNamara brothers is a conspiracy against organized labor is worse than asinine," said Burns. "I say this well knowing that my professional reputation is at stake. I am willing to stand or fall by the evidence as it will be produced in the trial. And I say that the evidence is not only complete, but overwhelming.

"It is charged by President Gompers, and the same report is being sent out from Los Angeles, that the prosecution is afraid to place J. J. McNamara, the union official on trial first, because evidence against him is incomplete. In plain language, that is a falsehood intended to stir up public prejudice."

Detective Burns made public the information that the union labor campaign to raise funds for the McNamara defense has been watched closely from its inauguration.

He emphatically disputes the statement of Clarence S. Darrow, in charge of the defense of the two brothers, that but $120,000 so far has been raised for the trial.

More Than Million.

"As a matter of fact," says Burns, "more than $1,000,000 already has been raised. We know that to be a fact. The country is to know in detail concerning the raising of this fund. And with this information will get positive evidence of just where the money has gone and how it has been expended."

Burns talked about some of the alleged methods of the defense. He made charges of an extremely strong nature, charges which, he says, formally will be brought to the attention of the court, probably before the trial has progressed beyond the stage of securing a jury. Burns has been working, he says, for a month on this phase of the case, and the material he has in hand is the chief reason for his present trip to Los Angeles.

YARD STICK FOR BUSINESS MEN

Senator Bourne Would End All Trouble Under Trust Rulings.

New York, Oct. 13.—A process which he believes will furnish a standard for a "business yard stick" that will be rigid and unchangeable, is outlined by Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, president of the National Progressive Republican league in a statement given out here.

Hundreds of corporations besides Standard Oil and American Tobacco must have a clean bill of health from the supreme court to know that they are doing a legal business, he declares, and the problem, in his view, is to evolve a yard stick that will be applicable to all corporations and business combinations.

"Legislative congress, not the supreme court, and assuredly not the president or the attorney general, must evolve a clearly described yard stick," the senator's statement says.

Tell Views to Senators.

Senator Bourne believes that the best way to fashion the yard stick is to obtain a concensus of public opinion as to its dimensions at hearings of the interstate commerce committee of the senate, authorized at the last session of congress, which he says will provide "an open forum" for "honest and free interchange of ideas based on experience" from all available sources.

"By this process," the senator declared, "we can get the ideas of the composite citizen."

His statement concludes:

"The first question is not the legal formula, but the determination based upon practical experience and ethics, rather than law, as to just what is wanted and just what legislation will supply the want. When that is determined, then the lawyers can draw the bill, form the legislation as to its legal verbiage, congress enact the legislation, the supreme court construe the legal draft rather than the practical purpose, and the executive, through the administration machinery, see that its directions are complied with and the individual breaking beyond the legal bars provided, may be sent to the penitentiary."

The committee, he said, would meet Nov. 15.

MANY TROPHIES ARE MOUNTED

Roosevelt Collection Is Best Ever Brought Out of Africa.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The work of assorting and mounting the animal and plant specimens brought back to this country by Col. Roosevelt from his African expedition and presented to the Smithsonian Institution is progressing satisfactorily, according to a statement made yesterday by Lieut. Col. Edgar A. Mearns, U. S. A., retired, who has it in charge. Col. Mearns was a member of the party in Africa, and with two assistants was assigned to the duty of collecting plants and other specimens.

Col. Mearns has just completed a book describing some of the birds found in Africa on the expedition which had up to this time been unknown to the scientists. Pamphlets also are published from time to time by Col. Mearns and Edmund Heller, who had charge of the larger animals under the direction of Col. Mearns. While most of the specimens collected will be on exhibition, others will be used for experimental purposes by the scientists of the Smithsonian institution.

All of the specimens which were brought from Africa are in Washington and all have been unpacked. Buffalo, lions, hyenas, zebras and many other animals have already been mounted by the taxidermists. According to the calculations of Col. Mearns, it will be fully ten years before the whole collection is mounted and in order. There are no better mounted specimens in the world than those that have been finished.

No action has been taken on the suggestion of Col. Roosevelt that congress appropriate money to aid in having the specimens mounted. Should such action be taken, the work would progress much more rapidly. The task is greatly hindered on account of the lack of funds.

"The collection is perhaps the greatest that has ever been brought out of Africa," said Col. Mearns yesterday. "Not only the variety, but the excellent condition of the skins and other specimens is the pride of those who have charge of them."

Iron River, Wis., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmer by the name of Pratt, who resides five miles north of here, addressed a communication to the state game warden a few weeks ago in which he complained that the deer had destroyed a potato field, which belonged to him. Deputy Game Warden Lund investigated the matter and found that starting on the east end of the field they dug up potato row after row, and as far as he could see they did not leave a potato in the ground in the part of the field went over.

RAIN-TREE YARNS ARE DELUSIONS

Consul-General at Peru Investigates and Reports Results.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Another dream has been shattered, that of the rain tree. For years the records show that the rain tree has figured at intervals in newspaper articles, promoters' prospectuses and elsewhere as a reality. It was pictured as the most beneficent of trees, which absorbed moisture from the atmosphere and discharged it in streams from its branches to the thirsty earth. The rain tree has been described as the redeemer of all deserts. One of the latest reports has credited the rain tree to Peru.

United States Consul General Henry Robertson, at Callao, Peru, having received numerous inquiries concerning the rain tree, recently undertook an investigation of the matter. He has reported the results to his government, and they dissipate the rain tree dream. He says that no such tree exists in Peru or elsewhere, to his knowledge, and quotes eminent botanical authorities in support of his statement. One of the letters says that in certain moist sections of Peru a certain tree becomes saturated, so to speak, and occasionally discharges a small amount of moisture. But the tree could not exist in other localities, so that it would not benefit arid lands.

After the consul reported, the bureau of manufactures asked the agricultural department about the matter. Assistant Secretary Hays replied that the rain tree legend is centuries old. He says that Australia has fallen a victim to the delusion and is planting many alleged rain trees. It is no more efficacious in condensing water than any other tree growing tree. An English botanist, Secretary Hays said, once offered an explanation of the legend.

According to this authority, at times swarms of cicadas or locusts settle upon the trees and extract their juices, which drop upon the ground. The weather bureau investigated the rain tree legend and published an expose of it in 1905.

If a store could be run without buyers, it would not be necessary to advertise.

PERSONAL MAGNETISM

Before You Wed Learn How to Make "X-Force" Test.

Will Enable You to Learn His or Her Temperament.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 13.—Girls contemplating matrimony will do well to write to John Armstrong Chaloner, who recently discovered a test for personal magnetism. By making the test in time, according to Mr. Chaloner, many unhappy marriages might be avoided. Mr. Chaloner himself was divorced by the Princess Troubetskoy, nee Amelie Rives, on the ground of incompatibility of temperament.

"Through the test," Mr. Chaloner says, "a young woman might discover that her suitor was of a cold-blooded, phlegmatic temperament and disposition at heart, though by practice he had been able to enact the passionate. My little mysterious X-force, if applied, would show him up.

"Ratings in magnetic power will be put forward by all the matrimonial agencies when indorsing the charms of any male or female clients. For instance: 'Attractive blonde, not peroxide, weight 125 pounds; height 5 feet 5 inches, piquant features, retrousse nose, svelte figure, kindly domestic disposition, modified magnetic power, 98 per cent.'"

Test Simply Made.

Mr. Chaloner told of his discovery in testifying in his suit to have himself declared sane in the state of New York. He showed that the test can be simply made. All one has to do is to take a silk necktie—floss silk was the kind he used—and place it against a cloth curtain. The curtain employed in the court demonstration by him was of the kind commonly called rep. Taking the necktie by one end he pressed it against the curtain, the tie being held perpendicular to the floor. The four fingers are together and the thumb, pointing downward, also presses against the scarf. If one is "magnetic," after a few minutes, the fingers, being removed, the tie will remain hanging as though pinned or mucilaged. If not magnetic, the tie will fall to the floor and the experimenter will be shown up as a heartless, cold-blooded wretch who could not possibly love his wife with the fervor of a "best seller" hero.

"Not only," says Mr. Chaloner, "can the ladies"—they still call them ladies in Virginia—"find out whether a certain man is 'magnetic,' but contests in magnetism can be instituted between members of the opposite sexes. The frequently deadly boresome after-dinner period may be greatly enlivened in this way."

Cannot Abide Draught.

Mr. Chaloner and Dr. Woods Hutchinson are not at one on the matter of draughts in a bedroom. Mr. Chaloner cannot abide a draught. At his home, "The Merry Mills," at Cobham, Va., his servants were trained to that, and window curtains were carefully lapped one over the other. It was in pinning the lapped curtains that the great discovery was made. Mr. Chaloner suddenly found that by stroking one of the curtains it could be made to stay lapped without pinning. He showed his servants how to do it and he found his valet, Richard Arbogast much more "magnetic" than himself. Every night when Mr. Chaloner is about to go to bed Arbogast gives one of a pair of silk curtains a few strokes, lays the upper part over the other curtain, and, presto! there the curtain sticks.

"I call it 'modified animal magnetism,'" Mr. Chaloner says, using the word "modified" to distinguish it from the so-called animal magnetism of Mesmer.

"Sometimes I refer to it as X-force the 'X' showing that its nature is not well understood. Personally I believe this new means of manifestation of an old force is not exactly electrical in nature, although many will say that it is nothing but static electricity. If it were, why cannot every one do the experiments? There is electricity in every one, so to speak. No one I ever heard of is unable to engender a charge and strike a spark from his finger tips after shuffling the feet on a carpet, but not every one can make the curtains stay lapped over nor the necktie remain affixed to the rep curtain.

Those Who Fail.

"Those who fail in the experiment are those persons of whom we commonly say they are lacking in 'personal magnetism,' are not warm-hearted, impulsive. My test shows them up each time. They may be very fine fellows and well-bred gentlemen, though, and if a girl of opposite temperament wishes to marry one of them—well and good; but she should know beforehand what she is getting. In the proceedings before the acting United States commissioner the other day, Judge Duke, of opposing counsel, was the only man who failed. He may not necessarily therefore be a cold-blooded proposition. While trying the experiment he talked too much, and conversation is generally fatal. I do not suggest that it is necessary to concentrate the mind while doing this—it is not a question of will power at all, or anything of that sort—but there should not be any distractions, and the subject of the experiment should not be physically tired. I myself was worn out when I made the test in the courtroom the other day, and this accounts for the fact that the necktie remained up for me only two minutes. Others who followed made the tie stay up for from five to fifteen minutes, and in two cases at the end of the fifteen minutes the tie was still in place, and was pulled down to let another man experiment with it.

Predicted in a Trance.

"This discovery by me was predicted in 1896 by myself talking in a trance. There is nothing really new about the force, of course. On the theory of the conservation of energy it would be manifestly an impossibility. When I was committed to Bloomingdale asylum it was charged that I said I had discovered a new force. My statement in the trance state was that I would discover it. Years afterward the prediction is exactly borne out by the undeniable facts."

During the court proceedings here in 1901, Prof. William James and other psychologists declared Mr. Chaloner to be of "marked mediumistic or clairvoyant abilities."

Those proceedings established Mr. Chaloner's sanity in Virginia, and sane he will remain in this state no matter what the decision may be when his case is heard in New York.

SEASON'S SHEAR OF 900 GOATS YIELDS $1,150.

Fort Bidwell, Cal., Oct. 13.—W. F. Stanley, living near Fort Bidwell, realized this season nearly $1,150 from the sale of mohair the result of the shearing of 900 angora goats. The mohair brought 36 cents a pound and is of a fine quality. The product from each goat averaged $1.25.

Stanley has 600 ewes and 300 lambs in his flock of goats, which are well bred. He finds the goats are profitable, as they are easily fed, hardy and thrive on the hills of Modoc.

This year Stanley sheared 900 goats. The shearing is done by machines which do much better and quicker work than the old method of shearing by hand and are more humane, as they do not injure the animals in any way. The machines are operated by gasoline. Stanley paid $100 each for the machines in Chicago and the freight was $19 on each one.

Stanley's success with the angora goats has encouraged several of his neighbors to go into the mohair industry and it is possible that it will become quite an important one in this country.

WHIPPING IN THE SCHOOLS MUST GO

Declare the Women and Many Men of Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 13.—Aroused by the cruel whipping of two boys, one of whom is half crazed as a result, a movement is under way in Atlanta to put an end to whipping in the public schools.

The women of Alanta are leading in the fight. Mothers are of the opinion that the rod should not be used in the schools, while the fathers are more or less divided on the subject.

Among those who have expressed themselves as unalterably opposed to the birch in the schools is Mrs. Hoke Smith, wife of the governor, who believes that the parents alone should administer corporal punishment.

A resolution has already been introduced in the council by Alderman Van Dyke asking that the switch be done away with. The resolution was referred to the education board, where it will undoubtedly be passed at the next meeting. The president of the board, Eugene Mitchell, has declared that he was heartily in favor of making a change in the present system of punishment.

The agitation started as the result of the severe whipping administered Donald Oberdorfer, the son of Eugene Oberdorfer, one of Atlanta's most prominent citizens. He withdrew his boy from the schools and immediately made protest to the superintendent. Eugene Roberts, a boy of 12 years, has been so severely whipped recently that he is half crazy now. His mother states that he was an obedient, bright boy before the licking was administered to him, and that now he is subject to fits of frenzy, in which he flies into a passion and sometimes curses those around him.

Physicians say the boy's condition is the result of the punishment.

CUT TO THE BONE.

Traveling Expenses of California Officials Are Restricted.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 13.—Any official of the state of California who cares to wear creased trousers on official business can pay for the creasing himself. The state no longer recognizes any responsibility in this direction. The official also will pay for the laundering of collars soiled in travel or else go on wearing them. As for "valeting"—there exists no permissible terms strong enough to express the disapproval of the state board of control against such luxury. The new regulations, wherein are set forth these facts, simply say it is "not a proper charge against the state and will not be allowed."

Necessity for confining expense accounts of state officials within cast-iron rules is said to have originated partly in the alleged scandalous conduct of a former state adjutant general, who, on an official trip to Washington, went as far as to have his wrinkled uniform pressed at the Washington end of the trip, and put the expense thus incurred up to California's taxpayers. It never can happen now.

Other restrictions fixed by the new board are $1 a day for hotel room rent, or $1.50 a day for train space; $3 a day for food off trains and an extra $1.50 on trains; no tips, no cabs, no special conveyances; vouchers for all expenses over $1 and itemized accounts for smaller sums.

SEERESS HAS VISIONS

About Mona Lisa Picture, But Nothing Definite Established.

Rome, Oct. 13.—The Tribuna of Rome learns that there is a woman living at Corfu who possesses a gift of second sight, which has proved of practical use in running more than one criminal to earth. She says that she has had five visions connected with the disappearance of the "Giocondo" from the Louvre. In the first vision the picture was hanging on the wall of a room in the middle of which stood an iron bedstead.

In the room was a man about 40 years of age, short of stature, with his hair parted in the middle. In other visions the picture was inclosed in a casket or case of light color on board a steamer, the nationality of which was undistinguishable. In the last vision the steamer arrived in port, and she saw an automobile, a long and deserted country road, and a sumptuous villa. The light colored case containing the picture was carried in here and taken upstairs; the picture was hung on the wall.

FIGHTING NOW FOR DELAY.

The extra session campaign is making headway.

At first the talk from the governor and the Twin City press was that there was no need of an extra session and no public demand for it.

Now that it is impossible longer to ignore either the need for it or the plainly expressed demand that it be called, the talk has changed.

From Governor Eberhart and from the Twin City newspapers comes the argument that the extra session ought to be delayed until after the supreme court decides the Minnesota rate cases.

That sounds like a concession, and in a way it is a concession when it is remembered that only a few weeks ago the governor and the Twin City newspapers were ridiculing the idea of holding any extra session at all. But it is not so great a concession as it seems.

Really it is the old fight against the extra session in a new form. It is impossible now to pretend that there is no need of an extra session and no public demand for it. So the opposition to it must take another tack.

That tack was suggested when the supreme court postponed the hearing on the Minnesota rate cases until Jan. 8. Then those who do not want an extra session plucked up courage. "Delay" was the word, because delay means defeat.

These are very important cases, and the court will not decide them hastily. In all probability, considering the fact that many other states are involved in the case and that the governors have appointed a committee to present a brief in behalf of the states, the decision will not be forthcoming until late in the spring or early summer.

Then it will be argued that it is too late to hold an extra session; that it is less than a year until the next regular session; and that to call the legislature together in the midst of a campaign would prevent clear consideration of pending measures.

The campaign for an extra session of the legislature has penetrated even the Twin Cities and the state capitol, and that is encouraging. But it must not be forgotten that the new attitude of those who have heretofore opposed any extra session at all is merely a new attempt to defeat the plan. The fight for delay is a fight against the extra session, and if it wins it means that Minnesota will lose two years' increase in railroad taxes, that the state must go for two years more under the highest tax rate in its history, and that the ignominious distinction of being the only Northwestern state in which the railroads dared restore the 3-cent passenger fare will still cling to Minnesota.

The legislature should be summoned into extraordinary session for some date during the winter, and before the spring brings the opening of the 1912 campaign.

THE GRAND RAPIDS PLAN.

Grand Rapids is discussing a new plan of city government, and as Grand Rapids is an alert, progressive, aggressive and publicspirited community, anything it proposes is worth looking into.

Incidentally, these facts show an aspect of city advertising that isn't considered enough: which is that the best possible way to advertise a city is to have it do something worth while, as Des Moines did when it adopted the commission form of city government, and as Duluth would do if it made itself a demonstration site for the development of the Homecroft and city-planning ideas.

While the Grand Rapids charter has not yet been submitted to the people, it contains original provisions of such a character as to have attracted wide interest among students of civic reform.

It is claimed for the Grand Rapids idea that by adopting the "cabinet" plan instead of the "commission" plan, all the advantages of the latter are retained while additional ones are added. A nonpartisan mayor, upon whom responsibility is directly centered, heads the city government. He is, in practice, the general manager of the community. Under him the administration of city affairs is divided into four departments: public health and safety, finance and accounting, public works, and parks and public property. At the head of each department is a department general manager, who is appointed by the mayor during good behavior. These department managers constitute the mayor's cabinet, and the cabinet, with the mayor, constitutes an administrative board in which is vested the complete administrative power of the city.

Meanwhile the legislative functions are entrusted to a common council of twelve members.

One objection to the commission plan—though not a serious one, it seems to us,—is that executive and legislative functions are combined in one body. Another objection,—and this is far more serious,—is that the members of the commission are elected, when perhaps they should be appointed because of their personal fitness for the places they seek, and because of their technical knowledge and experience. Both these objections the Grand Rapids plan meets, and yet, it is claimed, all the advantages of the commission plan are retained.

This scheme carries the "short ballot idea," as only one city office aside from the members of the council is elective. It eliminates partisanship, which should have no part whatever in determining who shall administer a city's affairs. It provides for the initiative, the referendum and recall, which are indispensable adjuncts to any system of government where responsibility and power are centered, because to centralize power without giving the people full opportunity to control that power is dangerous in the extreme.

The mayor, the only executive officer elected, is held responsible individually to the people for the administration of city affairs. He appoints his four department managers, and they are responsible to him; but he remains responsible to the people for all that they do. There is no overlapping of authority, no dodging of responsibility. Each department head is directly responsible for what goes on in his department, and the mayor is responsible for the manner in which the department manager conducts his affairs.

There is much that is attractive in the plan, and it should not be overlooked when Duluth is preparing the new charter it must soon adopt. What Duluth wants is the best, the simplest, the most businesslike and the most responsible system of city government it can find; and while at present the commission plan holds the place of chief interest, this city is bound by no doctrinaire devotion to any single plan or any single form of any plan.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE WINS.

There appears to be no doubt, now, that the men voters of California decided Tuesday to give the ballot to women. Though the amendment providing woman's suffrage appeared from the first returns to have been beaten by a slight margin because of the heavy vote against it in the cities, all the later returns tended to wipe out the majority against it, and this morning there was a substantial majority in its favor, with the probability that further returns would increase it.

We think California has chosen wisely. We have been unable to see any reason why women are not as much entitled to vote as men, and certainly manhood suffrage has no such triumphs to its credit that men are in a position to say that women are not as fitted for the ballot as they are. Votes for women are coming soon in most states and ultimately in all; and that means neither the terrible results that opponents of woman's suffrage claim, nor the immediate bringing about of the millenium. It is a simple matter of justice, and some good and no harm will come of it.

California is the sixth state to give women the ballot. Wyoming did it in 1869, Colorado in 1893, Utah and Idaho in 1896, and Washington in 1910. In many states women have municipal suffrage or the right to vote on questions submitted to taxpayers if they are taxpayers, and in most states they have school suffrage. A nationwide fight is being made by and for women, and though it will come slowly, victory will ultimately be theirs. The nation will be none the worse for it, and some better.

LESE MAJESTE?

The state railroad commissioners, in convention at Washington, approved the action of the governors who protested against the Sanborn decision taking away from the states the right to regulate railroad rates within their borders. They also elected Railroad Commissioner Staples of Minnesota as their president, and Mr. Staples accepted the honor.

How dared a Minnesota railroad commissioner accept the presidency of an organization that has thus run counter to the ideas of Minnesota's governor, who condemned in unmeasured terms the presumption of the governors in questioning the right of the railroads to do as they please with the people of Minnesota?

Isn't it treason, or lese majeste, or something equally heinous? Shouldn't the governor immediately begin proceedings, a la Whittier, to put Mr. Staples out of office?

NEWSPAPERS AS PUBLIC SERVANTS.

It has become the fashion of late to speak lightly of newspapers, to belittle newspaper statements and to put newspaper influence at a low rate. In part, of course, this fashion is justified; but it is justified by the conduct of some newspapers, and therefore it is unjust to make all newspapers subjects of it.

Many of the newspaper sins which have helped bring newspapers into disrepute in certain quarters are disappearing. The partisan organ and the "kept" newspaper, two types largely responsible for it, are going out. They are going out because the people will not support them; and that was bound to happen.

The irresponsible "yellow" newspaper had great vogue for a time, and did its share toward lowering the "fourth estate" in discriminating minds. But it is going, too, and for the same reason. You can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time; but you can't fool all of the people all of the time. That is why these three types of newspapers, which never were truly representative, are passing.

There is small chance, in these days of enlightened public spirit, for a newspaper to fool very many people, or to fool any of the people long. The newspaper is unlike any other enterprise because it carries all of its goods in its show window. It has nothing that it can conceal, much as it might like to conceal some of its attributes. If a newspaper is purely a party organ, its conduct stamps it as such and its utterances are discounted accordingly. If a newspaper is purely a mouthpiece of special interests, its conduct stamps it as such and its utterances are discounted accordingly. If a newspaper is "yellow," and cares less for the truth than it does for creating a sensation and selling papers, everybody will know it within a short time, and so everybody will cease to respect it. And when a newspaper is no longer respected, it might as well quit.

All newspapers make mistakes. Anybody who witnessed the rush and hurry of getting all of the history of the world for twenty-four hours into an evening paper, for instance, in seven or eight hours, would wonder that there were not ten times as many mistakes as there are. Newspapers are not infallible, and as it wouldn't be any use to profess to be, none do.

But the real newspaper of today, the newspaper with which it is impossible for any kind to compete, serves nobody but its readers. It owes them the duty of giving them all the news while it is news, of getting that news as promptly as it can, and of rendering it as accurately as it is possible to do. Its news columns, its advertising columns and its editorial columns are three separate departments that should never overlap. Whatever its editorial views it must give the news, even if the news proves the editorial views to be wrong. As its mission is to serve the people and as it lives by their support, its ideal will be to serve the people truly and fearlessly, and to fight the people's enemies no matter how rich and powerful they are. The newspaper that "crooks the pregnant hinges of the knee" before the shrine of Special Privilege is unfaithful to the plain people whose patronage supports it.

The newspaper is a public servant, as truly as though it were written so in the fundamental law of the land; and to be true to its calling it must serve the public truly and without fear or favor.

A SUGGESTION.

While he is campaigning through Oregon it might not be a bad idea for the president to pause long enough to learn, from Mr. U'Ren and other sponsors for the recall, something about that important implement of real democracy. Thus fortified, he will be able to talk in California, where the recall has just been adopted, without bruising the sensibilities of the people of that state.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

FRIENDLY WORDS FROM A GOOD PART OF TOWN.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I drop you this to congratulate you and The Herald on the write-up and boost you gave the West end in last Monday's Herald. It is not often that a write-up of this kind is made up of facts, as this one was. The truth in write-ups of this kind is what counts. The whole write-up was a true statement of West Duluth as well, and I want to say that the pictures of the different factories and of the new steel plant were the best I have ever seen, and if all would stop knocking and boost with The Herald, then see us grow. Respectfully,

S. W. HILL,
President, West End Commercial Club.
Duluth, Oct. 12.

STARTED SOMETHING.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There is one thing Park Point should have, and now Mr. Conners has started something let's keep the good work up. We people who live on Park Point pay at least $1 per month more for street car service than people living in any other part of the city. I understand the Duluth Street Railway company's franchise calls for a track on Lake avenue south from the aerial bridge to Thirty-eighth street, also the street railway company known as the Interstate Traction company has no right whatever to running its cars on Lake avenue south. I also understand that there is a state law which forbids any street railway company operating in the state of Minnesota from charging more than 5 cents inside of the city limits and compelling it to give a transfer.

Now why should the people on Park Point pay more carfare than people living in more distant suburbs.

A PARK POINTER.
Duluth, Oct. 12.

"We Don't Want It."

National Magazine: A congressman of thoughtful mien was retelling the old German mythological tale that showed how things usually come to people who don't want them.

"Once upon a time there was a king with three beautiful daughters"—that's the way it starts — "the princesses of the realm. Along came Prince Charming on one fine day, but of course he couldn't marry the three daughters at one time, so a way out of the difficulty was decided upon. The trio must dip their hands in water, and the first on whose hands the water dried should be the bride.

"The first princess, a tall and stately blonde, stood anxiously looking at her hands in the sun, hoping that the moisture would soon be evaporated, so that Prince Charming would be hers. The second princess, with queenly beauty and long raven tresses, folded her hands with regal patience and waited for the glistening drops to dry. The third, with nose atilt and saucy blue eyes, declared as she dipped her hands in the water that she didn't want Prince Charming at all, and with expressive gestures she threw her arms about saying, 'I don't want him,' 'I don't care for him,' and 'He is not for me,' And as she swung her hands about, the water soon dried upon them and she became the bride of Prince Charming. And they lived happily ever after."

The statesman stroked his goatee reminiscently, and the wrinkles about his eyes radiated from the outer corners. "This," he said, "is about the situation in public life. We throw our hands about when our name is connected with a new honor, and say we don't want it, we don't want it. The water soon dries on our hands and we have it, while the anxious and deserving are often passed by when Prince Charming comes a-wooing."

The High Cost of Money.

Life: If labor was what a man paid for money it would be cheap at the price. As it is money is our highest priced commodity and it is only just to Mr. Aldrich to say that the tariff is not to blame; free trade money costs just as much. One really never knows when he starts out to get money how much it is going to cost him. Money is a greater drain on a man's income and resources than an automobile. Whether it costs more to get money than to keep it after you have it no one has been able to figure out, but it is generally believed that the dearest way to get money is to have it given to you. The high cost of money comes under three heads: The things you have to give up while you are making it, the fine things you have forgot to do by the time you get it, and the unpleasant things you must do after you have it. And you pay double if you try to get it and fail. A quick way to ascertain the total cost of money is to compare it with what is left in the world and missing from yourself after you get it.

The Mistakes of Moses.

The Advance: We have often heard "the mistakes of Moses" in the first chapter of Genesis commented upon, but what especially strikes us in that chapter is not its contraventions of science, but its harmonies with late discoveries. How did the writer, many centuries before the story of the rocks had been deciphered, know that there was a beginning and then a pause before life appeared on the earth? Who taught the writer that the earth was "without form and void" before it was divided into continents? How came it that the long-delayed slow emergence of land should be set forth as it is? Was it mere guesswork that prompted the writer to say grasses were created before animals, and not for animals already existent? Is it a happy accident that life in the water appear before life upon the land? And ages before the scientist dreamed of paleontology we find man last in the series just as he appears today by his remains in the drift instead of in the stratified rocks. Further investigation may explain discrepancies, but what except inspiration can account for these coincidences?

Then and Now.

Come seventeen years it was, I think
(I'll never forget the day),
I took a basket to the store
And when the clerk had looked me o'er
Unto him I did say:

"Give me four bits worth of lard, and
a quarter's worth of ham,
And ten cents worth of that husky cheese
That comes from Rotterdam,
And five cents worth of onions,
And a nickle's worth of eggs—"

Well, say, you'd a-thought that blame fool clerk
Would laugh himself off his legs.
"Now, how do you think," says he to me, with a most offensive air,
"You're goin' to carry all that stuff
In that little basket there?"

Yesterday I went to the store with a basket as of yore,
The same old size, the same old kind,
And when the clerk his ear inclined
I named my wishes o'er:

"Give me four bits worth of lard, and
a quarter's worth of ham,
And ten cents worth of that husky cheese
That comes from Rotterdam,
And five cents worth of onions,
And a nickle's worth of eggs—"

Well, say, you'd a-thought that blame fool clerk
Had gone on a laughing jag,
"Chuck the basket," says he, "you can carry it all
In this here paper bag."

THE STATE AND THE RAILROADS

Another Convert.

Anoka Herald: We have not favored an extra session of the state legislature this year fearing the devilry which would naturally and surely result. But the more we think of the rank injustice of the restoring of the three cent fare, the more readily do we lean toward any kind of remedy that will bring this flood of dollars back to the people in the form of increased gross earnings tax upon the railroads. If this can be done, for goodness' sake let's have the extra session and have it quickly.

Conspicuous by His Absence.

Fairmont Sentinel: At the recent congress of governors every state executive came out unequivocally against the interference of federal judges with state laws. Minnesota's governor was conspicuous for his absence at the gathering and refuses to join his colleagues in the movement to uphold the sovereign rights of our state. And the railroads continue to ride roughshod over the laws of Minnesota and Judge Sanborn exercises the prerogatives of a despot. We need a different sort of man at the helm of state.

Shame to Take the Money.

Pine Tree Blaze: The governor of Minnesota rides for 2 cents a mile because he buys a thousand miles' worth at a time. It is downright penury on the part of the railroads to charge him anything under the circumstances.

Good Advice.

Thief River Falls Press: Governor Eberhart seems to have decided that he may expect better returns in 1912 by running around the state "patting the people on the back" so to speak than by sticking in little old St. Paul and seeing that they get fair treatment in their dealings with the railroads and other corporate interests.

Slow Freight, at That.

Montevideo Leader: Most of the governors are very outspoken in opposition to the Sanborn decision, in the hope that the supreme court will knock it out, but our governor has been so dreadfully busy grooming himself at the county fairs that he hasn't had time to express his opinions. He might send them by freight.

Minnesota's Position.

Belgrade Tribune: At the meeting of the state governors at New Jersey Sept. 14, they unanimously protested against the Sanborn decision in the Minnesota rate cases. Eberhart, our own Jim Hill errand boy, was not present, nor have we as yet heard him protest against the decision, or promise he would endeavor to obtain relief for the people of the grand and glorious North Star state. Minnesota is evidently in a very humiliating position with such a corporation-owned governor.

Governor's Attitude Damnable.

Long Prairie Argus: Governor Eberhart is getting further and further away from the people. His open opposition to the action of the governors of the twenty-four states in relation of the Sanborn railroad rate decision, is damnable. Look for a place to land, Governor. You'er on the toboggan.

This Will Show.

Rochester Post and Record: A number of state legislators have been in St. Paul for the purpose of urging Governor Eberhart to call a special session of the legislature to increase the gross earnings railroad tax from 4 to 5 or 6 per cent. A canvas has been made of the members, and it is found that a majority are in favor of the special session and the increased rate of taxation. A majority of the state papers are in favor of the project, and not a few of them are quite pronounced in their opinion that the governor has more sympathy for the roads than the people. That can be disproved by his action in the matter.

"Twelve Commandments" for a Green Old Age.

From "Old Age Deferred," by Arnold Lorand, M. D.: Most of the evils that befall us in this world, including premature old age and early death, are, in our opinion, solely due to our own negligence; and to avoid such a fate we recommend the following precepts:

1. To be as much as possible in the open air, and especially in the sunshine; to take plenty of exercise, taking special care to breathe deeply and regularly.

2. To live on a diet consisting of meat once a day, eggs, cereals, green vegetables, fruit and raw milk of healthy cows (as much as the stomach will permit) and to masticate properly.

3. To take a bath daily; and in addition once a week or once every two weeks, to take a sweat bath (if the heart can stand it).

4. Strict attention to avoidance of constipation.

5. To wear very porous underwear, preferably cotton; porous clothing, loose collars, light hat (if any) and low shoes.

6. To go to bed early and to rise early.

7. To sleep in a very dark and very quiet room, and with a window open; and not to sleep less than six to six and one-half hours or more than seven and one-half, and for women eight and one-half hours.

8. To have one complete day's rest in each week, without even reading or writing.

9. To avoid mental emotions and also worries about things that have happened and cannot be altered as well as about things that may happen. Never to say unpleasant things, and to avoid listening to such, if possible.

10. To get married, and if a widow or widower, to marry again.

11. To be temperate in the use of alcohol and tobacco and also in the use of tea and coffee.

12. To avoid places that are overheated, especially by steam, and badly ventilated. To replace or re-enforce the functions of the organs which may have become changed by age or disease, by means of the extracts from the corresponding organs of healthy animals; but only to do this under the strict supervision of medical men who are thoroughly familiar with the functions of the ductless glands.

Voices of the Night.

Chicago Tribune: "John, I don't believe you put the cat out."

"Confound it, Maria, you didn't put covers enough on this bed!"

"Henry, wake up! I hear somebody in the basement."

"We won't g' home t'l mornin', an' then we won't g' home."

"What's your hurry, Jack? It's early yet."

"Me-ow! Me-ow! Spftt!"

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!"

"Hands up!"

The Masher.

Of all the imps that pose and primp,
Dear girl, cut out the masher.
There's none as cruel to fool and tool
As this four flushing flasher.
He winks and blinks at roller rinks
You'll find him at all dances.
You'll meet the cheat on ev'ry street
Where'er you take your chances.
With subtle smile he tries the while
To do a job of mashing
And tips his hat with rare eclat
And poses deuced dashing.
But, once you go his way, I know
Your trusting heart will sorrow:
He, wondrous kind to you today
Betrays you ere the morrow.

Dangerous.

Kansas City Star: If I had my way I would let no name come before the national convention except the name ratified at primaries of the people. I'm for anything which will give the people direct control of their own affairs.—Governor Wilson at Jersey City.

"Give the people direct control of their own affairs!" The very idea! No wonder Democratic standpatters have come to regard the progressive New Jersey governor as a Dangerous Man.

More Decisions Wanted.

Washington Star: "There's only one way to make aviation safe," said the man who loves legal formalities.

"What's that?"

"Get some good attorney to prove that the law of gravitation is unconstitutional."

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM.

Alexandria Post-News: The shippers of the Twin Cities are proposing a triple alliance with Duluth for the consideration of big traffic propositions, holding out as an inducement greater growth and the prosperity which that city must ultimately enjoy from such a union. The Zenith City men do not seem to be over anxious to enter into a traffic pact with the other two cities, fearing that the advantages gained would not be equally shared. Duluth has already lost much through the railroad favoritism shown the Twin Cities, and her people are naturally suspicious of the overtures, now made by Minneapolis and St. Paul. The people of the state at large are little interested in the controversy between these three cities. They are, however, vitally interested in the proposition which the Minneapolis Traffic association makes to Duluth, in so far as it may affect railway facilities and transportation rates in this state and secure discriminations in favor of larger centers. In an interview published in the Minneapolis Journal the following appears:

"Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, working together for mutual advantage and mutual protection, could stand in the Northwest as a power invincible. Instead of opposition on the part of one city to any plan that is to benefit one of the other cities, the true policy should be one of general conference on big propositions. While each city should work for its own advantage, everything should meet consideration also from the standpoint of effect upon the three cities, and we should pull together for the general interests of ourselves and the Northwest."

The above will dispel whatever doubt the public may have entertained of the selfishness of the larger trade centers. Their aim is not to promote the welfare of all, in securing improved railway facilities and lower rates, but "protection" for their own city and their own interests. And it is against the same influence that our legislators must contend in seeking to secure the passage of a distance tariff law or any other remedial legislation offering relief from the present situation. Had there been a legislature in session at this time, considering a distance tariff law, the traffic association of Minneapolis would not have spoken so frankly of its aims and purposes. If the people of Duluth are suspicious of the proposed alliance what must be the attitude of the thousands of shippers scattered throughout this state who have no traffic association to protect them against the encroachments of big interests? It is to the credit of the papers of Duluth that they are opposed to the alliance.

The Duluth News Tribune says:

"Without the slightest feeling save that of self protection for Duluth, the News Tribune would suggest that this city's traffic association should not be too quick to accept the gifts of the Greeks. Our chief problem in transportation is because of Twin City discrimination. In this, too, Duluth represents not itself alone, but the state of Minnesota."

The Duluth Herald takes the same view. Editorially, the paper says:

"An alliance with the Twin Cities would be proper on any subject except the one suggested. There should be and can be no alliance on traffic matters. These should be relegated to a basis of exact justice to all alike—to small town as well as big town, to country as well as city. That is all Duluth wants, but that it intends to get."

Discrimination in favor of the Twin Cities has been the greatest factor in retarding the commercial growth of the towns and villages of Minnesota. Until all receive "exact justice" the future has little to offer. Will the state as a whole join with Duluth in demanding it?

The Insurance Agent's Soliloquy.

(With apologies to Hamlet.)

To be insured or not to be: That is the burning question.
Whether 'tis wiser in these times to spurn
The words and efforts of insurance men,
Or to take arms against a seething flame
And let insurance companies fight them.
Your house to burn, no more to sleep within;
And by the burning say you lose the hearth place
And the thousand little things your progeny
Is heir to. 'Tis a conflagration devoutly
To be shunned. To burn, to mourn your loss,
Perchance go broke. Aye, that's the rub;
For when your house is gone what dreams
May come. If you have overlooked insurance,
All is lost.
There's a calamity to be avoided in this life.
For who can hear the whips of flames in time.
Your possessions gone; the rich or poor mans'
Not immune.
The fangs of angry flames, the fire department's Delay are things to be expected and foreseen;
And yet you spurn the potent risk insurance companies take;
When you yourself might soon a new house make
With insurance proceeds.
Who would foolish be,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life
To build a house, a home, before your death;
And then some day discover it has burned.
No policy returns; oh what a fate!
The very thought does make a person quake;
But fires will come we know not of.
So insurance is the guardian of us all
And thus it is the wisest resolution
To so avoid an utter dissolution.
—W.

"What! Me stop when Jim Meginnis holds up his hand? I'd let you know I'm his wife, an' he never saw the day when he could boss me!"

Punch: Mother—Yes, I shall certainly put Gladys into some profession so that she can be some use in the world.

Gladys—Oh, mummy! Need I? Can't I be just an ordinary woman, like you?

Red Hen: Lady—Yes, I've an umbrella that needs mending; but how am I to know that you will bring it back?

Umbrella Mender—Have no fear, mum. I allus charge more for mendin' than I could sell the umbrella for.

DREAD RAINS IN WISCONSIN

ernor and Tax Commissioner Haugen with a view to finding some legal way to suspend the collection of the state tax in Jackson county.

Looting is Stopped.

The governor received favorable reports from Maj. Edwards, in charge of the militia, who has stopped all looting, and the state health officer, who has been investigating sanitary conditions, reports that precautions taken are believed to have prevented a possible epidemic.

Mayor McGillivray announced last night that the relief fund in his hands was still only $5,000, which would not go far toward repairing a $2,000,000 loss.

The state levee commission announced today that only through ceaseless vigilance and the hardest kind of work had Portage, on the Wisconsin river, a city of 6,000 persons, been saved from the fate of Black River Falls. Today it is felt that the danger there is over unless there should be further rains higher up on the Wisconsin.

Portage Endangered.

The river at Portage, which reached a stage of thirteen feet last night and kept great crews of men busy all night fighting to save the levee, the destruction of which would have meant the loss of many thousands of dollars worth of property, is reported at the weather bureau here to be falling slightly today. Commissioner Bellinghausen of the state levee commission warned the city officers and public that if the levees broke a wall of water twelve feet high would be driven through the town, and that a fate like that of Black River Falls might be looked for. Desperate work was done, and for two nights there was no sleep in Portage.

The Milwaukee road's Madison-Portage branch is still under water, through which a couple of freight trains have crept in imminent danger.

Railroads Suffer.

The water is up to the rails of the main line of the same road near Kilbourn, but trains still are going through in double track at that point. The Northwestern's new Milwaukee-Twin City line has probably been delayed in opening by serious washouts between Necedah and the Wisconsin river which make it necessary to replace a large part of the grading. This line, on which $15,000,000 has been spent this summer, was to open within a few weeks.

In low lands near Baraboo, cabbage farmers are reported working in the field in hip boots while they get in their crop.

military staff accompanied them including not only members of the royal staff, but members of the military council at Ottawa. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired as their royal highnesses left the ship.

Read Royal Commission.

The actual proceedings were opened by Col. Lowther, military secretary to his royal highness, who read the royal commission appointing the duke of Connaught governor-general of Canada.

Mrs. Borden, wife of the prime minister, then presented a bouquet to her royal highness the duchess of Connaught. The oaths of offices were administered by Sir Lewis Davis of the supreme court, and immediately a royal salute of twenty guns thundered from the citadel and the band played the national anthem.

Addresses of welcome were made on behalf of the province and city of Quebec, to which the duke replied, and then the great seal of state was presented to the new governor-general.

The entire floor of the legislative council chamber was reserved for official guests, among them all the members of the new Canadian cabinet. The galleries were open to the general public.

Prince Arthur William Patrick Albert, third son of the late Queen Victoria, was born at Buckingham palace in 1850. He was created Duke of Connaught and Stratearn and Earl of Sussex in 1874. He is an uncle of King George V. The duke married Princess Louise of Prussia, grand-niece of the late Emperor William of Germany, March 13, 1879.

He became a general of brigade at Aldershot in 1880; commanded the Guards' brigade in the expedition to Egypt in 1882; was present at the battles of Manshuta and Tel-El-Kebir and was three times mentioned in dispatches. He was commander-in-chief in the Bengal presidency from 1886 to 1890. He was promoted to the full rank of general in 1893 and was appointed commander-in-chief at Aldershot.

The Duke of Connaught has the distinction of having declined a throne. In 1889 he and his son, Prince Arthur, renounced their claims to the throne of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha in favor of the Duke of Albany. He was inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces for a considerable period, resigning in 1909. Field Marshal Lord Kitchener was offered this post, but declined it.

The duke was delegated to represent the king last year at the opening of the first parliament of the Union of South Africa. His appointment to succeed Earl Grey as governor general was officially announced in London Jan. 29, 1911.

TAFT TALKS OF TREATIES

discussion of the pros and cons which might sometimes be useful. Treaties are much less the subject of public consideration than are statutes, and yet when ratified they are as binding upon all of us as statutes, because by the Constitution they become the law of the land. In this respect they differ from treaties of other governments, which are only international contracts. It is to certain treaties which I have submitted to the senate, and which that body has now published and laid before you for consideration and discussion, that I call your attention. They are the treaties I made with the republic of Honduras and the republic of Nicaragua, for the purpose of securing a loan to each of these Central American republics.

"We have heard a great deal during the last six months in favor of general arbitration treaties for the promotion of the peace of the world. I believe there has been of late more genuine expression of sentiment among all the people of the earth for peace than ever before in the world's history. The fact is that we have had very little war in the last twenty-five years, and one of the reasons has been the rivalry in preparation for war and the certainty of financial disaster to some nations which must follow.

"I would not minimize the importance of arbitration treaties in the ultimate cause of peace; but I wish to point out that at present wars chiefly arise, not between well-ordered nations having well-armed, well-recruited and well-disciplined forces, but out of internecine strife. They grow out of the rebellion or revolution of part of a people against the constituted authority of the other part. They proceed from the lack of stability of government and cupidity and the ambition of partisan leaders among the people. There are countries where the occupation of a revolutionist has become a profession, and the unhappy common people of such a country have no time for peaceful pursuits, and perforce are driven into guerilla warfare for mere self-protection. Starvation succeeds plenty in countries as productive as any in the world. The institutions of civil liberty, if they ever were inaugurated under a high-sounding constitution, cease to exist, revolutions follow each other in rapid succession, the finances of the government are in hopeless confusion, and it is a stretch of the imagination to call what little authority remains a government at all.

"Such has been the fate of some of the Central American republics. Honduras and Nicaragua are now the two countries most exposed to these internal dissensions.

"In Honduras there have been seven revolutions in fifteen years. Its territory reaches from ocean to ocean, and its neutrality is rarely preserved when its neighbors are at war. These conditions necessitate the keeping up, at great expense, of its army. General arbitration treaties can have little influence over countries subject to these conditions.

In Santo Domingo.

"Our experience with Santo Domingo, once a volcano of revolution constantly in eruption, suggests a possible and practicable method of meeting the same difficulties that are presented to these Central America republics. A study of the revolutions shows that their first object is the seizure of custom houses through which import taxes are collected. The custom houses are the only sources of revenue at such times, and provide the sinews of war for the professional revolutionist. By a very fortunate arrangement, under an order of President Roosevelt, with the consent of Santo Domingo, and under an arrangement with the bondholders of that then failing and unfortunate country, Americans were placed in control of the custom houses and took charge of the collection of the revenues. The arrangement was like a receivership, providing for the deposit of a certain proportion of the funds collected in a New York city bank, to be applied to the payment of the national debt, after it had been scaled down to a reasonable figure, with as much as possible of the fraud, waste and injustice squeezed out. The United States undertook to defend the custom houses against seizure by rebellious Santo Dominicans, and the fact that this government acted as guardian— not of the people, not of the country, but only of the custom houses—was quite sufficient to make this receivership arrangement a complete success. Subsequently a treaty with Santo Dominga embodying these features was ratified by the senate, and has now been nearly five years in successful operation.

"The lesson of Santo Domingo has suggested a similar solution of the difficulties of Honduras, Nicaragua, and some of the other countries in Central America. Honduras' debt, the principal of which was originally $26,000,000 in bonds, has increased by accrued interest to $124,000,000 and her military expenditures each year are $600,000. The government has no money with which to make improvements, to build roads, to do any of the things necessary to progress and civilization. Her people are poor and on the verge of starvation in a land that ought to be blossoming with prosperity, and she has turned to us as a philanthropic guardian of the small countries of our continent, in a word, to follow the course taken in Santo Domingo. Honduras, stretching from one side of the Isthmus to the other, has been a common camping ground for the revolutionists of the Central American Republics. If we can by such a simple arrangement as is proposed, and by the assumption of a light responsibility, put Honduras on her feet, so far as her debts are concerned, and can give her a breathing space in which to develop the wealth which nature has lavished upon her, we can be certain of promoting peace and thrift in a part of the world where peace and due process of law are now unknown.

"Nicaragua is a country lying adjacent to Honduras, and its circumstances have been similar to those of Honduras. The treaty with Nicaragua is practically the same as that with Honduras. The approval of these treaties and a successful administration of the loan contracts will lead to adjustments of the national debts of the other Central American republics on a basis much more favorable to them and with even less responsibility on the part of the United States.

"There is a very decided objection in the senate to the approval of these treaties. I doubt if I can fairly state these objections. This is due, perhaps, to the depth of my conviction that the treaties ought to be ratified because they are of the utmost importance in the promotion of peace on this hemisphere, in a region where there has been no peace. The general argument seems to be that we ought not to involve ourselves in entangling alliances with republics in this hemisphere, or to engage in what seems a mere banking arrangement for the promotion of a banking contract.

"Dollar Diplomacy."

"It is objected that this is 'dollar diplomacy' and that we ought to have none of it. Give a dog a bad name and you know what follows. To call a particular piece of statecraft 'dollar diplomacy' is to invoke the condemnation of muckraking journals, whose chief capital is in the use of phrases of a lurid character. The United States did not enter into this treaty for the promotion of its own banking business or that of any of its citizens. It was thought advisable to favor a contract with American bankers rather than with foreign bankers, because such a contract would tend to keep trade with America, rather than divert it to European markets—I mean the trade of these countries. As it is now, a large part of the Honduras trade, both export and import, is with the Gulf ports of the United States. Peace and prosperity will largely increase this trade, and with an American loan and our protection of the contract we are sure to retain this trade, which will increase, instead of its going to some other country. This is the correct object and purpose of diplomatic negotiations. Trade is not the chief purpose of the contract.

"Another argument against the treaty grows out of the continued discussion of what the Monroe doctrine means. It has been said in favor of such treaties as this that by virtue of the Monroe doctrine all these countries are more or less under our guardianship; that we have guaranteed, in a sense, their integrity against invasion by European countries; and that it is, therefore, our duty, where a European country acting for its own citizens or subjects takes forcible measures to collect their debts from such republics, to say: 'You must keep off and we will undertake properly to adjust your claims.' Opponents of the argument say that no country has the right to use forcible measures to collect the debts contracted with its citizens by a foreign government, and that the position our government ought to take is, not to secure payment of the debt, but merely to say, 'You can not take forcible measures for this purpose,' because it is in violation of the Monroe doctrine,' and that this is far enough for the United States to go.

The Monroe Doctrine.

"Further, is is vigorously denied that the Monroe doctrine requires the United States to intervene in debt-collecting expeditions because they do not contemplate the destruction of the government whose property is seized, but only the forcible collection of the debt. I do not care what is technically included in the Monroe doctrine. Those who look at our position in this hemisphere must recognize that in the brotherhood of the twenty-one republics which constitute what is called the 'Pan American union,' the United States is the most powerful, the leading country, and all must hope that through the influence of the United States and the other countries at peace, those republics at war may be brought to a state of peace. Our enormous interest in Panama only accentuates the necessity for our taking care that those countries so near the isthmus shall not be the scene of warfare which might threaten the usefulness of the canal. Is it not better that we should step in with due authority and act with directness and promptness to suppress war than that we should allow it to go on because we lack authority to interfere; and then, at the extremity, be called in to use force to prevent violation of the rights of foreign nations which always occurs at a certain point in a revolution? I do not care to discuss the exact boundary lines of the Monroe doctrine.

"The Monroe doctrine has been interpreted to be the policy of the United States in conserving the interests of all American republic where they are liable to possible injury from without. It has been invoked to justify our great and sometimes active interest in the settlement of controversies between the countries of this hemisphere and the countries of Europe, and also the settlement of all controversies between the nations of this hemisphere. Certainly it does not involve any extreme view of our friendly relation to these republics to stand sponsor for and co-operate with them in securing such loans as are necessary to enable them to pay their debts and to enter a new era of development and prosperity.

"Having taken this step in Santo Domingo, and having shown how successful the method is in suppressing war, in maintaining power, and in securing prosperity, ought we not to extend the same assistance to countries which have an equal right to look for aid and protection?

Up to the Senate.

"In the promotion of this humane policy the administration has done its part. The treaties with Honduras and Nicaragua have been negotiated and contracts for loans under their provisions have been tentatively approved. All have been submitted to the senate and are pending there. It is for the senate to decide whether this, the most effective step in the promotion of peace on this continent, shall be taken; whether the finances of these republics shall be put on a sound and stable basis, their citizens relieved of the discouraging burden of a debt largely flotitious and greatly disproportionate to their revenues, and the portals of prosperity thrown open to them. Until approved by the upper house of congress the treaties must remain wholly inoperative.

"But if you agree with me that every dictate of prudence, of common sense, of friendship and neighborliness, as well as loyalty to the cause of peace, makes mandatory the approval of theso treaties, you will hope and urge as earnestly as I that the senate, in its wisdom, will give them its prompt and emphatic approval."

STEPHENSON PROBE ALSO STARTS SEARCH FOR SUPERIOR MAN

on a basis given that all the four Republican candidates might have expended an aggregate of $800,000. Charles E. Littlefield, counsel for Senator Stephenson, raised the question whether the amount was to be considered evidence of guilt on the part of the senator who is charged with bribery.

Plea by Littlefield.

"Congress may say a senatorial candidate's expenses shall not exceed $10,000, but there is no logic in the world which will show that just because he spent more than $10,000 the money was used corruptly," said Mr. Littlefield. "If this committee in its report is to base a presumption of guilt on the size of the senator's expense, then we ask the right to inquire of witnesses what is their opinion of the cost of properly conducting a campaign in Wisconsin."

Senator Heyburn, the chairman, announced the committee would inquire into the facts of the expenditures regardless of what they aggregated.

"I am not convinced that congress was justified in limiting a senatorial candidate's expenditures to $10,000," he added.

Senator George Sutherland said he thought the amount spent by Senator Stephenson warranted an inquiry along the line that it was unreasonably large.

"The fact that the senator spent that great amount of money was probably due to the condition in Wisconsin resulting from the primaries," said Senator Sutherland. "'To favor millionaires seems to be one of the effects of the primary system."

Ashland Man Heard.

Mr. Littlefield then asked D. E. Riordan of Ashland, Wis., whether Senator Stephenson was justified in spending $107,793.

"He could have spent a great deal more to advantage—perhaps $200,000," said Riordan.

On this basis, remarked Sutherland, the four Republican candidates for the nomination could have spent $800,000.

Members of the two committees of the Wisconsin legislature which investigated Senator Stephenson's election have been called to appear before the present committee.

One of the legislative committees exonerated the senator, while the other, composed of members of the senate, sustained the charges that his campaign had been conducted corruptly.

HANKOW DESOLATED BY REBELS; PEKIN IS IN IMMINENT PERIL

allowed to withdraw beyond the limits of the city.

The American consul, Roger Greene, crossed the Yang-Tse river to Wu Chang today accompanied by the commander of the American gunboat Helena, the Associated Press correspondent, and two Chinese interpreters. The party went unarmed and entered the gates of the city after they had been opened for a squad of rebel artillery to pass out.

The party interviewed Col. Li, the rebel commander, who treated them with every courtesy and assured them of their safety while in the city.

Missionaries Taken Away.

The consul-general gathered up forty-four foreigners who had not yet left the city, including Americans, Englishmen and Italians, and took them back to Hankow. The missionaries were accompanied by 300 of their Chinese proteges. The party was unmolested on its way through Wu Chang, being escorted all the way by a squad of rebel troops.

The revolution has begun in earnest and is a concerted movement to take the empire and declare a republic. Dr. Sun Yat Sen, leader of the anti-Manchu party who, if the plans do not miscarry, is to be elected president, was the delegate of the revolutionary party to the United States in 1910, and is believed during that tour to have made arrangements for financing the movement.

Sun Yu, a brother of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who is in Hankow, has been elected president of the provincial assembly and Tang Hua Lung, the retiring president of the assembly and a noted scholar, has been elected governor of Hu Pep.

Are Issuing Money.

The whole assembly has seceded from the imperial government. The rebels, who are well organized, have confiscated the local treasuries and banks and are issuing their own paper money, redeeming the government notes with this, as foreign banks are refusing government notes.

The revolutionists have captured Wu Chang, the native section of Hankow and Han Yang, all adjoining cities in Hu Pep province.

Chang Sha, capital of Hunan, is reported to have risen in revolt, and Nanking, capital of the province of Kiang Hu, is on the verge of a rising, several public buildings having been destroyed.

Thousands of soldiers have joined the mutiny in Hu Pep.

Many Manchus have been killed and the terrified people are fleeing from the cities into the country carrying their belongings.

Pekin in Danger.

Pekin, China, Oct. 13.—China today faces an unprecedented crisis. With the spread of revolutionary activity, the opinion is gaining ground that the fate of the ruling dynasty hangs in the balance.

The revolution is no longer confined to the central provinces, a thousand miles away from the capital. Pekin itself is threatened.

Members of the cabinet admitted today that the garrison here is known to be honeycombed with the revolutionary sentiment. The same condition exists in the two great military posts which guard the capital, Pao Ting Fu and Tien Tsin.

Little Basis for Hope.

There still are official attempts to minimize the gravity of the situation, but the reports reaching the capital give little basis for hope. Today's news included reports that Chung King was in danger, that I Chang had been taken, that Yo Chow had fallen, and that communiaction between Hankow and Chang Sha, the capital of Hunan province, was interrupted.

An edict published today offers pardon to all revolutionists "who were coerced into joining the rebellion." The pardon is conditional, however, on their expressing suitable repentance for their defection.

The government today followed up the action of yesterday, cashiering the viceroy of Wu Chang by extending the same treatment to Gen. Chang Piao, the commander of the troops in the Wu Chang district, where this week's outbreak began.

For Defense of Capital.

Every effort of the authorities for the present will be concentrated in an attempt to provide adequate defense for the capital of the empire. The program for the autumn maneuvers in Kai Fong, 400 miles south of Pekin, where 30,000 troops were to have participated in extensive drills, was cancelled today, and the sixth division of the army was ordered to entrain this afternoon for Fong Tai, a suburb of this city.

The government, in its reports on the situation, is attempting to convey the impression that the revolutionists are without trained leaders or adequate organizations. But the revolutionists have a reliable chief, well versed in military affairs, in Gen. Li Quan Hong. Secret advices received here indicate, moreover, that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, whom the revolutionists hope to elect president of a Chinese republic, was at Shanghai last week and may be now on the scene of operations at Wu Chang or Hankow.

GAINED STEADILY FROM THE START

"When baby was three weeks old we were compelled to take him from the breast. We vainly tried several infant foods, but he kept losing steadily until he was nothing but skin and bones and cried continually. The doctor put him on Mellin's Food, and he gained steadily from the start. He is now eleven months old, weighs twenty-two pounds, is a plump, gleeful child. He is now just beginning to walk, has ten teeth, sleeps well, and has gone through this dreadful hot weather without the slightest ailment."

WEEDING OUT OF THE TALESMEN BEGUN IN THE McNAMARA CASE

the court, on objections interposed by District Attorney John D. Fredericks and his aides, were awaited as showing what confines would be placed upon the examination of other talesmen.

Before Nelson's examination was taken up one more talesman was called into the box to replace one dismissed at the last moment of court on Wednesday, because of physical inability to stand the fatigue of a long trial.

Sixty-two Years Old.

Nelson, a ruddy-faced man of 62 years, from the start answered questions put by counsel with deliberation, weighing his answers.

"I can't answer that question because I'm not sufficiently familiar with the subject," was his reply from time to time to questions concerning his attitude toward labor organizations, as he understood them to exist in California and elsewhere.

Because of the determination of questions involved in the examination of Nelson, the first talesman, it was said that questioning of other talesmen would go forward much more rapidly.

The talesmen transferred last night from the official juryroom to more airy quarters, romped like boys at their morning bath and appeared immensely refreshed by the day of ease afforded by yesterday's legal holiday.

A CERTAIN CURE FOR CATARRH

The mucous membranes of the nose and throat are exposed to the irritating influence of dust, impure air, etc., and for this reason are the places Catarrh usually first manifests itself. But these are simply exciting causes, the inflammation and discharge being really produced by an impure and vitiated condition of the blood. It is well enough to use some local treatment to cleanse these membranes, but any one can readily see that if the inflammatory matter is left in the blood, such treatment cannot possibly have any permanent effect. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impure catarrhal matter and irritating germs and at the same time builds up the system by its fine tonic effects. When S. S. S. has purified the blood, the mucous surfaces are all nourished and made healthy. There can be no inflammation of the membranes then, because the blood is pure, and every tissue receives nourishment instead of irritating matter. Our book on Catarrh will interest every sufferer of this disease, and it will likewise give proper advice as to what is best to use as a local aid while S. S. S. is purifying the blood. This book is free to all, and we will also be glad to give any special advice you may feel you need. S. S. S. is sold at drug stores.

FAREWELL TO TWO MINISTERS

Dinner Given for Rev. W. G. Boyle and Rev. E. F. Stidd.

All the ministers of Duluth joined together this noon in bidding farewell to Rev. W. G. Boyle and Rev. E. F. Stidd, who have been transferred to other parts of the state.

The event was in the form of a dinner given at the St. Louis hotel and was attended by nearly every minister in the city. Speeches were made by the departing ministers as well as those in charge of the affair.

Rev. W. G. Boyle, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street for the past year, has been transferred to the Mora church to take the place of Rev. Mr. Briggs, who in turn was sent to Beltrami.

His place will be filled by the Rev. W. H. Farull of Twig, Minn., who is expected to arive here early next week.

Rev. E. F. Stidd, pastor of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, will leave next week for Ely. His place will be filled by Rev. C. W. Emery, who for the past year has been in charge of the church at Deer River.

PIG WINS RACE FROM CYCLIST

An exciting race occurred in West Duluth yesterday between a small black pig and its owner on a bicycle. The pig had broken out of its pen and started running down Main street when its owner, just coming home on his bicycle, noticed it and turning about gave the small porker a merry chase. Nearly everyone on Central avenue was out watching the chase until both rider and animal were lost to view. After the pig had run about a mile it had outstripped its owner by four blocks. The animal was caught about three hours later after the bicycle had to be discarded and the man compelled to chase the animal in the woods.

BOYS STEAL FROM WAGONS

Young boys have been causing trouble to West Duluth drivers of delivery wagons the past few weeks.

The police have received several complaints of late that the boys steal packages from the wagons when the drivers have gone into a house to make a delivery.

Nearly every driver has made a complaint, and the police will make an investigation. One driver of a beer wagon reports a loss of several cases of beer, and believes that the carousing that has been going on evenings on the Longfellow school grounds has been done by the boys who took it. He thinks they hide his beer somewhere and then take it to the schoolyard, where they annoy all the neighbors far into the night.

The police have received several complaints during the past few days regarding the noise at the school grounds in the evening, and have been trying to find the boys that have caused the disturbance.

NEW DULUTH'S RAPID GROWTH

West Duluth citizens are pleased with the development of New Duluth within the past four months. Nearly every one, in speaking of the growth of the suburb, has realized that it means much for West Duluth. One citizen said this morning: "We want New Duluth to grow, for her development means ours also, and it will boom this section of the city. And that is mainly what we want."

Several other industries in addition to the steel plant are going up rapidly, and it will not be long before this little town will be able to prove its claims to greatness.

Construction work is progressing rapidly on the retail furniture warehouse building for H. J. Thompson & Co. It will cost, complete, in the neighborhood of $10,000. Two new business blocks are projected, both to be of brick and two stories. One is to be built by a man from Gary, Ind., who is enthusiastic over the prospects of the Minnesota steel city, and the other by a Calumet, Mich., man. In addition to all these improvements, the New Duluth Land company announces that it will soon commence the work of building six more residences on its lots near the center of the rapidly developing suburb.

A new concrete culvert over the Commonwealth avenue bridge will be built as soon as possible, men having started on the work the first part of this week. This will aid materially in facilitating the traffic between New Duluth and the city proper.

WANT SAFETY DEVICES AT THREE CROSSINGS.

The resolutions passed a year ago by the council ordering the Northern Pacific railroad to place gates or warning bells at the Fifty-seventh, Fifty-ninth, and Sixty-third avenue crossings, have not been complied with and steps will be taken this evening at the meeting of the Commercial club, to ascertain if the city has authority to compel the railroad to place the safety appliances where they have been ordered.

Fifty-seventh avenue crossing is the most dangerous of the three. At that point most of the switching is done and the place is said to be a constant menace to the lives of those using the crossing. A number of school children cross the railroad at this avenue on their way to the Industrial high school and on several occasions recently, there have been some narrow escapes.

Roof Is Scorched.

The roof of A. Fieldman's house at 617 North Fifty-eighth avenue west was slightly burned yesterday afternoon from a blaze starting from chimney sparks. The damage was slight, as the department quickly got the fire under control.

Move to San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Faucault, 331 South Fifty-seventh avenue west, who have resided in West Duluth for the past seventeen years, left last evening with their daughter Delia for San Francisco. They plan to settle there, as Mr. Faucault has purchased a farm in that vicinity.

GOPHER GUARDSMEN BACK FROM BUFFALO.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Adjt. Gen. Fred C. Wood and officers of the Minnesota National Guard, who have been attending the meeting of the National Guard association of the United States at Buffalo, returned this morning. Gen. McC. Reeve of Minneapolis was the only member of the party to remain. He will go to New York city and then cross the continent to the coast.

"Consideration of the pay bill to be introduced in congress providing for national guard officers," Gen. Wood says, "was the all-important question before us. We had a splendid meeting."

GROWS HAIR ON BALD HEADS

Bald-headed People May Get a New Chance in Life.

In these days when youth is the moving factor in business, when a man makes his mark at thirty-five and is ready to retire at forty-five, when business houses pension the man we call "middle aged" rather than allow his lagging influence to intrude upon the commercial rush, a bald head is almost fatal to any man's hopes. The following must therefore prove interesting to people who are losing their hair or who are bald.

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, and also creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. Yet, it is not a coloring matter or dye.

This combination of curative mixed with alcohol as a stimulant perfects a most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles.

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of Rescorin, Beta Napthol, and Pilocarpin. It helps to make the scalp healthy, to nourish the hair, to stimulate the follicles. Where the head is already bare, it enters the follicles, revitalizes the roots, supplies nourishment, and stimulates a new growth.

We want you to try a few bottles of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, on our personal guarantee that the trial will not cost you a penny if it does not give you absolute satisfaction. That's proof of our faith in this remedy and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except, of course, where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, the follicles closed and grown over, and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done to hundreds of others it will do for you. In any event you cannot lose anything by giving it a trial on our liberal guarantee. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store — The Rexall Store. E. M. # "MOVE ON" IS NEW ORDER

Superior Street Will No Longer Be Rendezvous for "Mashers."

Police Now Have Power to Keep Men From Loitering.

Superior street will no longer be the "mashers' mecca." The street will remain, but it's "skiddoo" for the mashers.

With its publication, last evening, the new ordinance regulating the obstruction of sidewalks is now in effect and the police can arrest any one loitering on the sidewalks and curbs who refuse to "move on" at the word of the copper on the beat.

Chief Troyer has wasted no time in instructing the policemen as to their duties in this respect. About the first thing he did this morning was to draw a bulletin to the members of the force informing them that the ordinance is to be strictly enforced.

Speaking of the persons who have made a practice of lining up in front of buildings along Superior street and on the curbs, addressing offensive remarks to women or insulting them with their smirks and grins and hat doffings, the chief directs the men to leave no stone unturned to clean them off the streets. The patrolmen have been instructed to give them a fair warning, and if this is not obeyed, they are directed to make arrests.

Attention is also called to that class which has been in the habit of hanging about the fronts of the big department stores on Saturday nights, waiting for the young women employed within to leave for their homes. They must also "move on" or take their chances of landing in the lockup.

Special attention will be paid to the policemen who are put on the downtown beats. They will be selected with a view to their qualifications to deal with the mashers. Some of them are very familiar with their faces and will be very willing to undertake to clean them off the streets.

An amendment to the traffic ordinance is also now in force. It gives the police power to regulate traffic in front of the theaters or other public gatherings where it is liable to become congested. Drivers are now required to stop or go ahead as directed by signals from the policemen. This is also true on the streets, particularly the busy corners.

THREE MEN TAKE PLEDGE

Husbands, Arrested on Complaint of Wives, "Swear Off" for Year.

Three married men, arrested on complaints of their wives for excessive drinking and its accompanying evils, such as smashing the furniture or driving their families outdoors, took the pledge in police court this morning. Each of them gave his oath that he would forego strong beverages for the period of one year.

Mrs. Isaac Isaacson told the court that her husband came home drunk last night. She stated that he drove her and their seven children outdoors and would not let them return. She explained that it was too chilly to stay there all night, so she called a policeman to take Isaacson away.

Mrs. Edward Johnson asserted that after her husband was through rampaging last evening their home looked as though a cyclone had passed through it. She said that he scattered preserves on the floor, broke the glassware and did other damage. She added that they owe money on their home and that they cannot clear off the mortgage if he continues to spend his money for liquor. Johnson complained that his wife took his money out of his pockets when he was sleeping, and the court said that he did not blame her.

Oscar Archambault was also arrested on complaint of his wife. He said that he had been drunk and disorderly, but that the only damage he recollected having done was breaking the glass in the front door. He thought that it was in getting out, and not in trying to get into the house.

Sentence was suspended in all cases after the husbands had taken the pledge. But the court warned each of them that if they do not abide by their words, they will be dealt with severely. He intimated that each of them would get stiff sentences in the county jail without the option of a fine, and that they would probably have to help on the chain gang cleaning the city streets.

The annual report showed that the gross operating revenue for the last fiscal year was $61,257,632.93, a decrease of $3,207,736.94 compared with a year ago. The operating expenses were $27,600,591.79, a decrease of $1,677,704.21. Revenue from outside operations decreased $34,649.66. Operating income aggregated $20,562,461.37, a decrease of $1,294,519.16. The amount expended for additions was $6,404,037.83, the largest ever expended in one year for that purpose by the road. In addition, about $15,000,000 was spent for new construction, additional equipment, etc.

REDUCTION OF COAL RATES IS MAINTAINED.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The reduction of rates on coal from the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania to tidewater, made by order of the interstate commerce commission in the case of Meeker & Co. of Pennsylvania, against the Lehigh Valley railroad, is sustained by the United States court of commerce which denies an application of the railroad for a temporary injunction against the enforcement of the order.

NO CHANGE IN THE ROCK ISLAND DIRECTORS.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—At the annual meeting of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company, Edward S. Moore, D. G. Reid, Robert S. Walker and John J. Mitchell were re-elected as directors for a term of three years. The stockholders ratified executive board action toward guaranteeing the principal and interest of $10,000,000 for first mortgage bonds of the St. Paul & Kansas City Shortline railroad, and the guarantee of principal and interest on notes of the Rock Island, Louisiana & Louisville railroad amounting to $453,600.

RAILROAD AGENTS ARE GUESTS OF SUPERINTENDENT.

Twenty-eight agents of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad were guests of Supt. J. W. Kreitter and other officials of the road yesterday at the Commercial club.

In the morning the visiting agents were shown around the city and returned for luncheon at the club at noon. W. H. Smith of the Northern Pacific was the principal speaker and talked on "The Receiving and Delivering of Freight." Mr. Kreitter gave an address of welcome.

MUCH WORK FOR THE SOO AT EAU CLAIRE.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Soo railway has a big and rather costly task ahead of it to restore its yard facilities in this city which were seriously crippled as the result of the washing out of the embankment near the south end of the linen mill dam by the Eau Claire river.

The spur track leading to the Cheney elevator was undermined and, with part of a shorter connecting switch track, hangs suspended over the water. The washout extended so near to the freighthouse track that use of that track has also been abandoned, as the weight of passing engines or cars would likely cause a further collapse of the embankment. These conditions have crippled the yard facilities of the Soo in this city so seriously that immediate steps will have to be taken to restore them. This means that the washout will have to be filled in and the disabled tracks relaid.

Gray Promoted.

Archibald Gray, assistant general freight and passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway company at Portland, Ore., has been appointed general freight agent for the Western Pacific railway, with headquarters at San Francisco. Before being located at Portland, Mr. Gray was assistant general freight agent for the Great Northern at Butte, Mont., Sioux City, Iowa and Seattle, Wash.

GET AN ACRE FOR A HOME

That Is Advice of George H. Maxwell at Two Meetings.

Speaks to Irving School Pupils and Duluth Heights Residents.

That Duluth people should turn their attention to the project of making this a homecroft city, where each family may have a summer home with its gardens for vegetables and flowers, its chickens and other attributes of country life, giving health, pleasure and profit, constitutes the keynote of a series of addresses that George H. Maxwell has been delivering in different parts of the city.

Mr. Maxwell recently visited the summer home of Georeg Stevens, which is named "Balm of Gilead," at Fond du Lac. Mr. Maxwell does not see why any thrifty, enterprising family of Duluth cannot establish just such a home and derive from it just as much happiness as the Stevens family does from life at "Balm of Gilead."

Mr. Maxwell spoke along this line yesterday afternoon to a gathering of 300 students at the Irving school and in the evening to a meeting of citizens of Duluth Heights. Tonight he will again speak at the Irving school in the assembly hall to an open meeting. He will advocate plans for the establishment of summer schools in Duluth to teach children how to make and care for gardens, especially vegetable gardens.

At the Irving school yesterday afternoon, he told the students that every boy and girl in Duluth had the opportunity to make a home from which they would derive greater felicity and comfort than John D. Rockefeller ever did from his great estate at Pocantico Hills.

The Stevens Home.

Mr. Maxwell told the students of his recent visit at "Balm of Gilead," the Stevens home, where he spent a day and a night. He gave an account of Mr. Stevens' steady efforts to establish that beautiful country home, which he carved out of the forest mainly by his own labor. A detailed description was given of the restful, inviting house, with its great stone fireplace, the flower and vegetable gardens, the chickens, domestic animals and bees.

"You cannot all be millionaires," said Mr. Maxwell, "but you can all have as pleasant and profitable a home as George Stevens, which he calls 'Balm of Gilead' at Fond du Lac and from which he certainly gets more happiness and satisfaction for himself and family than any millionaire ever got from an expensive estate. Very few can be millionaires. There are not enough millions to go around. But every boy and girl of average ability can, beyond all question, acquire in or near Duluth a homeplace like that of Mr. Stevens.

"Get an Acre."

"Get an acre and live on it. This should be the fixed determination of every boy and girl starting in life. Even though he paid only a dollar a week he would soon own an acre and the building of a home on it would develop his own ability and character."

Principal Foster of the Irving school, after Mr. Maxwell had finished speaking, told the boys and girls that if they would follow the advice they had just received, it would do them more good than a four years' course in the high school.

At Duluth Heights.

At the Duluth Heights meeting, Mr. Maxwell spoke in advocacy of the organization of a co-operative association of citizens, for the purchase of a large tract of land, to be developed by co-operative effort. This could be accomplished by assigning to every member one to five acres, for the establishment of a homecroft.

"These home acres," he said, "you could each develop as a week-end home or a summer home where you could camp or live in a log house during the heated period and enjoy the free life of the woods while renting, furnished, the older home to summer visitors to Duluth who would come here to study the very plans for a homecroft summer school and community co-operation which the local people would be gradually working out and demonstrating.

"Ultimate Duluth—the homecroft city, is destined to be within the life time of those now living, a city of more than a million people and if every family fixes its ambitions upon creating and owning such a home as may be on an acre of ground, and it should never be less for a permanent home, not only will the vision be fulfilled for all individuals, but the magnificent conception of a great city with all its advantages of education, art, drama, music, civil centers, beautiful public gardens, parks, and forests will likewise be achieved."

OLD SOLDIER FOUND AND "WIDOW'S" PENSION STOPS

Placerville, Cal., Oct. 13.—Through investigations made by an inspector of the United States pension service, William A. Dickerson, a resident of Mosquito district, will come into the possession of a pension, and, moreover, he is feeling a deep pleasure of satisfaction because he is now officially known to be "alive."

It developed when Pension Inspectors Sues and Dickerson met here, and the veteran ex-soldier of the Civil war showed his discharge papers.

Seven years ago a woman claiming to be the widow of Dickerson had applied for a pension as his widow. The Pension department officials held up the application while a search for Dickerson was set afoot. At last it was discovered that the soldier was alive and resided in El Dorado county.

Dickerson asd his wife became separated several years ago. She believed he was dead, hence her application for a pension.

STATESMEN EVADE ANTI-PASS LAW

Travel Over Canadian Pacific Between West and Washington.

Washington, Oct. 13.—There are ways of securing free transportation, despite the anti-pass law, which has been in force and effect for the last five years. That certain statesmen have taken advantage of these ways is the declaration of persons in a position to know. One way, and probably the easiest way, os the Canadian Pacific railroad. There is no anti-pass law in Canada and the Canadian Pacific is not subject to control by the interstate commerce commission. The road is said to be free with passes.

The result is said to be that a number of statesmen of this country liberally patronize the Canadian Pacific whenever occasion offers. It is stated that congressmen from Northwestern and Far Western States travel via the Canadian Pacific between their homes and the national capital. When congress adjourned there were many Western statesmen who went across the continent by the Canadian route "to see the country." They "saw the country" and liked it so well that it is expected they will return East over the same route to "see the country" again about the time congress reconvenes in December.

There is no way that this practice can be reached or stopped, it is said. Meanwhile Uncle Sam continues to pay mileage to his statesmen at the usual remunerative rate for one round trip between their homes and the capital for each session of congress. The mileage allowed Pacific coast statesmen amounts to several thousand dollars each annually.

MOTHER AND SON STUDYING LAW

After Four Years' Course Expect to Practice in Missouri.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Sarah T. Andrew, aged 40, has matriculated at the Washington college of law, and her son, Herbert B. Andrew, 20, has started a law course in the law department of the Catholic university.

Mrs. Andrew is the wife of a government clerk. Before she married she taught school in Missouri. Herbert has just completed an academical course at Gonzaga college.

Mrs. Andrew said today:

"It is the intention of Herbert and myself to complete our courses here and take the Washington bar examinations. If we are successful we will go back to Missouri and put out a joint 'shingle.'"

"I have been after mother for years to get her to study law," Herbert said, "because I believe by nature and training she is especially suited for a legal career. I am delighted that she has started and look forward with pleasure to the day when the sign of 'Andrew & Andrew' will appear at our old home in Missouri."

Mr. Andrew, Sr., has not been heard from.

WIFE, 71, SEEKS DIVORCE.

Husband, Aged 74, Is Charged With Having a "Soulmate."

Shawneetown, Okla., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Minnie J. Prior, 71 years old, has applied for a divorce from R. A. Prior, who is 74 years old.

They had lived together happily for forty years, had saved a small sum of money for a rainy day, and now, that they had reached the autumn of life, the domestic happiness of the aged couple has been broken by the appearance of "the other woman."

Mrs. Prior names Gracie Jones, a middle-aged woman, as co-respondent in her petition, in addition to charging her husband with extreme cruelty. Their cotton crop has been a failure, the woman said, and she had only $7, all she possessed, with which to pay for the filings. The clerk, taking pity on her, advanced her the remaining $3.00.

SANBORN REVERSES LOWER COURT IN CAPITOL CASE.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.—An opinion handed down by Judge W. H. Sanborn in the United States circuit court of appeals Thursday involves the title to land in Oklahoma upon which a new capitol may be built.

The opinion reverses the decision of the United States circuit court in Oklahoma in granting a demurrer to Milton E. Parker and others in a suit brought by the heirs of Henry Howe, an aged minister, who made homestead entry on the lands April 23, 1899. Under the opinion the case will be handed back to the circuit court.

HORSE SAVES TWO GIRLS FROM DEATH IN TORRENT.

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 13.—Surrounded on all sides by flood waters, Louise and Margaret Finnell clung to a swimming horse and were snatched from certain death by the animal near Eureka Springs.

The sisters were en route to high school at Eureka Springs and attempted to ford Leatherwood, a creek that had been swollen into a torrent by heavy rains. When they reached the center of the stream the current threatened to upset their buggy. Unhitching their horses, the girls climbed on the animal's back.

The horse swam to shore after a hard battle with the current. Before the girls had left the buggy the current and driftwood had almost torn it in two.

ARREST LAWYER IN COUNTERFEITING CASE.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—The hearing of Fred Marneek on charges of counterfeiting took an unexpected turn before United States Commissioner Mark Foote, when one of the attorneys of the defendant, Fred Mitten burg was arrested by United States Secret Service Operative Thomas Porter. Marneek is one of three arrested in connection with a raid on a log cabin at Friendly Cove, B. C., recently, when traces of a counterfeiting plant were found.

Secret service men interrogated Attorney Mittenberg as to his knowledge of the whereabouts of Alfred Leon, who later was arrested in New York. The lawyer denied knowledge of Leon's whereabouts, but a letter of warning found on Leon when he was arrested, though signed M. Osal, is said by the federal officers to have been sent by Mittenberg. The attorneys was held in bonds of $1,000 and his client in bonds of $5,000.

PASTORS SAY WIVES PERJURE THEMSELVES.

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 13.—George Thompson, Elgin's marrying magistrate, who contends that the clause "love, honor and obey" in the wedding ritual compels perjury, and has changed the clause to "cherish and protect," has received letters of congratulation from pastors throughout Illinois. All declare that the objectionable words are unjust and compel perjury by the wife.

WEDS HIRED MAN TO KEEP HIM, BUT HER PLAN FAILS.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 13.—When Mrs. Lillie E. Reed of Lincoln county, Kan., married her hired man, Albert C. Reed, it was conceded there were extenuating circumstances, for it is hard to keep a hired man in Kansas and Mrs. Reed had $100,000 of property to look after.

The promoted hired man soon developed a longing for electric lights and automobiles and persuaded his wife to come with him to this city, where she bought two automobiles for him, and began the business of taking parties out from the leading hotels, generally for evening joy rides.

His wife was several years his senior and it was not long before he sent back to Lincoln county for the hired girl he abandoned to marry her mistress. When she came to Kansas City there was trouble and Reed took the machines to A. S. Forney and converted them into cash.

Now Mrs. Reed is suing for divorce and also for possession of the two automobiles.

Reed and the hired girl are now without their motor cars and are facing the prospect of going back to the farm.

KATE CLAXTON WANTS DIVORCE ANNULLED.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 12. — Mrs. Charles Stevenson, known on the stage as Kate Claxton, was a witness for five hours yesterday in the city court in her suit to have a divorce obtained by her husband eleven years ago annulled. She declared that she did not know of the divorce until April, 1910, when her supposed husband married again.

The service on her was by publication, and in the notice her name was published as "Katherine Stevenson," which name her attorneys contended was misleading, as her husband had always called her "Kate."

CURRENT WHOOPS UP MULE.

Owner Rigs Up Electric Device That Energizes the Animal.

Forrest City, Ark., Oct. 13.—Friends of Supt. Chilner of the city water and light plant are at a loss whether to class him as the meanest man in Arkansas or the most ingenious one.

The water department has a Missouri mule which possessed a reputation of being the laziest quadruped ever harnessed until Mr. Chilner rigged a patent starter on the wagon to be drawn by it. He put a small electric battery with a switch convenient to the driver's hand, and attached an insulated wire in the headstall of the bridle, thence to the ring of the bit and then back to its tail.

Now when the gang is ready to start there is no cranking nor horsewhipping to be done. The device was resorted to after his muleship threatened to bankrupt the plant buying whips.

LEAF TOBACCO MEN WILL FIGHT TRUST REORGANIZING.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—The Journal says: At a meeting of the Western Leaf Tobacco Dealers' association held in Milwaukee Wednesday night, preliminary measures were taken to fight the reorganization of the American Tobacco company.

It was ordered that a committee be appointed by the president, George Schuster, to canvass the retail dealers of the state for their support. The meeting was attended by representatives of forty-four prominent firms of the Middle West.

MARRIAGE DISCOVERED; SUIT STARTS AND STOPS.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 13.—While on a visit in Nebraska two years ago, Edwin Goebel and Grace Sherle, both of Lincoln, were secretedly married. Rumors of the union circulated, but both families emphatically denied that the marriage had taken place.

Very recently divorce papers were filed in the Logan county court by young Goebel, but before the ink was scarcely dry, the case was withdrawn, and at a reception two days later the marriage was first publicly announced.

The parents of the boy had objected to the marriage on account of his youth, and believing the wedding was illegal, sought to have it annulled.

Then it was learned that the wedding was legal and a divorce must be obtained. This was possible only by default of the defendant, but the plea of desertion could not be made, as the young people were almost constantly in each other's company.

Goebel is the only son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Goebel, his father being one of the leading dentists in the state. He has been attending a medical school at Evanston. His bride is the eldest daughter of Jacob Eberle, a wealthy retired farmer.

THE EVENING STORY

CUT OUT.

By Virginia Stock Walker.

The captain of the Ivanhoe strode the deck in the early dawn of a dismal autumn day. He was in anything but a pleasant humor, and something was weighing on his mind. A heavy fog disturbed his calculations, the schooner lay right in the track of steamers, and sixteen lives in the bunks below might hang on his watchfulness; that was part of trawling. But he was facing a new experience. For the first time in fifteen years, he had knocked a man down. To be sure, it had been necessary, unless he wished to get four inches of cold steel between his ribs. Nevertheless, it had not been pleasant.

Julian, an Italian, had fooled him. The captain had shipped him instead of a disabled seaman, but he turned out to be more at home with pick and shovel than with oar and trawl.

Julian had refused to obey orders. The captain lost his temper, and seized him roughly by the shoulder. Out flashed a knife, but the captain's hard fist was quicker, and the Italian's head thumped the deck, and his weapon flew overboard.

The captain ordered the others to tie his hands, and confine him in the forecastle. The Italian fought like a wildcat, even using his teeth. But at last they trussed him securely, and tossed him into the forepeak.

On deck, in the silence of the morning watch, the captain lived over these events. Never again would he ship a man hastily. Far away he heard a faint rumble, hardly louder than the wind in the rigging. A steamer was coming. She would pass not far from the schooner. He must be on the lookout.

Going forward near the windlass, he began working the brake of the foghorn. The wind carried the sound down towards the coming liner. Two minutes passed. Then the warning blast roared out again. It seemed barely a mile away. But suddenly out in the fog to leeward came a rushing. The captain knew it all too well, and fear gripped him. The steamer! He had miscalculated her position. She was heading straight for the Ivanhoe.

The captain worked the brake of the horn madly, then dropped it and ran aft, shouting at the top of his voice: "Turn out! Turn out! A steamer right aboard."

Up from the gangways rushed a string of startled men, without hats, coats, and boots, dazed, wild eyed, terrified. They ran confusedly about the decks, or stood paralyzed with dread. Then close by in the fog drowning all other sounds, the whistle bellowed menacingly. Before its thunder ended, from high above glared down on them a pair of red and green eyes, with a sharp black prow between. A lookout gave a yell of alarm, as with a ripping crash the steel mass struck the schooner just abaft the forward rigging.

The knife-like stem, driven by thousands of tons of hurtling steel behind, sheared through the hull of the schooner as if it had been pulp aboard. Over board from stern and bow the panic stricken crew leaped headlong; instinct told them that their only safety lay in the water as far as possible from the track of that roaring monster. Before the prow struck the farther gunwale of the vessel, her decks were empty.

One man kept his senses—the captain. Just before the collision he had sprung to the taffrail, and seized the painter of the dinghy, towing astern for precisely this contingency. Casting off the line he threw himself head foremost into the boat, clutching the gunwales, and kicking strongly away from the schooner. His push carried him some distance from the reeling stern. Instantly he dropped on his back in the bottom of the boat, and grasped her sides.

From his prone position he caught a glimpse of the lighted bridge, with the officer in charge peering down. He sent up a cry for help: "You've sunk us; Come back and pick us up!"

There was time for no more. The long black side swept by. Had he been heard? A few minutes would tell. He sprang up and shipped the oars. The lives of his entire crew scattered over that dark fog smothered sea, depended on him alone. Driving the boat back toward the spot of collision, he raised a shout, "This way, boys, this way!"

Soon the boat was as full of the wrecked crew as safety would allow. The captain kept the late comers in the water, holding up to the gunwales. At last a row of heads lined each side.

"All there?" asked the captain. "Let's count up." Nine in the boat, four on the starboard gunwale, and three on the larboard—sixteen in all. And there had been seventeen men on the schooner! An awestruck silence settled over the survivors. Who was missing? The cook clutched the captain's arm.

"Julian," he gasped. A murmur of terror ran round the boat at the thought of the Italian, bound and helpless in the forepeak. Was the wreck still afloat, or had she gone down?

"There!" exclaimed the cook.

From the dense fog ahead sounded faint, muffled cries, mingled with a dull hammering, as of a man's fists on wood. Julian was still alive but in mortal fear. The dinghy moved slowly toward the sounds, and soon its bow brought up against a tangle of rigging. Beyond loomed da black formless mass, evidently the forward part of the wreck.

"Take the oars, somebody," cried the captain, "and keep off far enough not to be sucked down with her if she sinks. I'm going after him. Something's holding him down in the forecastle, and he'll drown like a rat without help. "I've never lost a man yet, and I don't propose to now."

He seen stood upon the wreck which was already awash. His knees struck a mound of canvas, and his practised fingers told him it was the clew of the foresail, which had fallen over the forward gangway. Incoherent mutterings and shouts came from beneath it. He drew his knife. Slitting a long hole in the canvas, he caught Julian's collar, and dragged him out.

There was a bubbling, a gurgling groan of imprisoned air. A shudder under the captain's feet told him the wreck was going down. Unless the two left at once they would go also. With a sudden shiver the bow tilted slowly upright. "She's going," cried the captain to the men in the boat. "Keep off and look alive."

He pitched the Italian overboard, and leaped after him. They struck a tangle of rigging. Death durked in these loops. Fighting furiously for both, the captain forced his way through them.

From the lips of the Italian burst a yell of terror, dying away in a strangled gurgle as his head was drawn below the surface. The captain realized instantly what had happened. One of the floating ropes had entangled Julian's feet, and was taking him down with the schooner. In a few seconds he would be beyond help. The captain must either free him somehow, let go, or be dragged down too.

Knife in hand, he felt his way along the writhing body, until he found a tight loop round the knee. Savagely he hacked at it. Would it never let go? Finally he cut it through, and it pulled away. With an arm round the drownnig man ,he fought up again to the service. Before long they were both on board the boat.

Whistle after whistle echoed through the fog. The steamer was coming back. Twenty minutes later her boats had found them, and soon they were all safely aboard on their way to port.

WHALE RUNS AGROUND

Ocean City, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Straying far away from its home, a true sperm whale, eighty feet long, ran aground on the beach here on a falling tide.

Hundreds of persons who had remained at the resort several weeks later than usual watched its struggles for hours, and by noon were able to walk around it.

The huge sea animal was unable to help itself back into the waters, and it struggles only buried it deeper in the sand.

Whaling has been out of date on the New Jersey coast for more than a generation, but before the tide rose again several bullets were fired into the whale's head.

THIRD ROUND OF TOURNAMENT

Women Playing for National Golf Championship at Short Hills, N. J.

Short Hills, N. J., Oct. 13.—The metropolitan district, Boston and Canada were still represented in the woman's national golf tournament, after the third round at the Baltusrol Golf club today. The winners are: Miss E. A. Allen of Boston; Miss Lillian B. Hyde of Bay Shore; Miss Dorothy Campbell of Hamilton, and Miss Margaret Curtis of Boston.

The hardest match of the day brought Miss Hyde and Miss Kate Harley of Fall River together. After being 4 up, Miss Hyde threw away her advantage and finally found herself 1 down going to the seventeenth. This she won, halved the next and then won on the nineteenth green.

Miss Allen beat Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Philadelphia 2 up, but Miss Campbell eliminated Miss Anita Phipps by a 6 and 4 margin. In the other match Miss Curtis, playing in her best form, beat Miss E. S. Porter of Boston, 5 and 4.

MULE BREAKS LEG

By Kicking Negro's Head—Bullets Bounce Off Another's "Dome."

Philadelphia, Oct. 13. — All stories about the hardness of negroes' skulls were distanced by two events here a few days ago.

In a dispute at his home Henry Lewis, a negro, was shot four times in the head at a range of less than five feet. The bullets flattened out and dropped to the floor. Lewis was taken to the Samaritan hospital but was soon permitted to return home.

The man who shot him escaped.

While harnessing a mule William Piffen, negro, 33 years old, was kicked in the head and knocked down. Staggering to his feet Piffen discovered the mule lying on the ground. Examination showed that the animal's leg was broken. The mule was shot.

DEATH WINS LONG FIGHT

Duluth Man Battled With Fatal Disease for Twelve Years.

Contracted Illness in Spanish War—Lived Life of Trapper.

After putting up a gallant fight against the white plague since the close of the Spanish-American war, Louis M. Austin succumbed to tuberculosis at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at 917 London road.

Austin was a volunteer in the war with Spain and was weakened while in the service, contracting tuberculosis at Chattanooga. Learning of his condition he immediately set out to conquer the disease. Giving up his life in the city among family and friends, he went into the woods and has lived outdoors almost constantly since. He has occupied himself as a surveyor, cruiser, trapper and hunter.

But his utmost efforts were in vain. He fought off the disease for over twelve years, but it slowly gained on him in spite of all that he could do. The last few months his condition has been worse and he has been gradually wasting away.

Mr. Austin was unmarried. He is survived by his father, W. S. Austin of this city, four sisters, Mary, Imogene, Belle and Lottie, and a brother, Z. H. Austin of Minneapolis. He served in the Spanish war in a Duluth company under Capt. Teare. He was known as a crack sharpshooter.

The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from Stewart's undertaking rooms. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

MUST NOT HUNT IN CITY LIMITS

Residents are complaining that altogether too much shooting is being done in and about the city limits, endangering life and limb.

They also state that these same hunters are committing the crime of killing numbers of harmless birds. They call attention to the fact that the law absolutely prohibits the discharging of firearms in the city limits, which includes Lester park, Fond du Lac and an area extending an average of four miles from the St Louis river and the lake front. A concerted effort is to be made to enforce the law, and those interested warn those who have been guilty of this practice to take heed of the regulations before it is too late.

HITTING THE DOPE LINE FOR INFORMATION'S GAIN

Chassey Bolton Will Contribute a Special Article—Jack Johnson in Bad—The Wrestling Situation—Michigan Looks Strong.

(BY BRUCE.)

IN OUR issue of tomorrow we present the second article on football by Chassey Bolton, Minnesota's most eminent football expert. This article is written exclusively for The Herald by Mr. Bolton and is one of the features that The Herald is furnishing for its readers of its sporting page.

In securing Mr. Bolton to write on football for The Herald, we are able to give our readers an inside angle of the great college game by a recognized authority of the subject. The articles of Mr. Bolton are those of one acquainted with the game and give sport lovers an intimate knowledge that makes the enjoyment of the game the more keen.

The article that will appear on the sport page tomorrow, accompanied by a likeness of the author, is the second of a series that is being written exclusively for The Herald, and takes the reader with Chassey from the humble farm to the college campus, where the author gained his first view of a big college gridiron, and where he also received that inspiration for the great gridiron game.

In addition to the series of articles that Mr. Bolton is writing at the present time, we hope in the future to be able to present one or two stories of football in the West, and one article in particular dealing with the question as to whether "Michigan Can Go Forward."

JACK Johnson at the present time is playing the role of an international frog, leaping from one place to another, and like the foolish frog, not calculating on a place to return with assurance of a sound footing.

Li'l Artha started his series of leaps from the good old shores of the U. S. A. He leaped from this good country with abuse on his lips, praising England ere he had landed on the shores of Albion, and remarking that he would be willing to shoulder a musket and fight for the land of John Bull.

For a while the large negro cut a wide swath in the country where it is said the color line is not drawn. Then came the matching with Bombardier Wells and the objection to the contest that came from not only the sporting writers of England, but from every quarter and every class. This broadside of objection to the fight opened the small eyes of Mistah Johnson, causing astonishment, chagrin and then that sullen anger that the big Buffalo has exhibited on numerous occasions in this country.

Then followed leap number two. From merrie England the champion of the world hastily crossed over to France and eagerly poured his tale of persecution into the ears of the impulsive French writers. He said in the midst of his tirade against England, the loved country he was willing to fight and bleed for, only a few short weeks before, that a colored man could not get a fair show in the country of Johnny Bull, and that, in short, France was one of the few countries where a man was recognized for his true worth.

And now it happens that France is agitating a law forbidding a white and black man to fight in the same ring. Oh forlorn hopes riding on the backs of adverse steeds.

Where will Mistah Johnson turn? It may be that he will decide in that funny mind of his that after all the dear old U. S. A. is the very best country in this big world. It has required travel and experience to teach other people, with more intelligence than Li'l Artha, that same lesson.

If Artha does come a trailin' home, it will be interesting to observe just what he has to say regarding that London interview. He may deny it and say he was grossly misquoted. Other people have often taken refuge in that subterfuge. But if this series of international leaps is continued, the question looms large on the horizon of the world, just where is Li'l Artha going to end up at?

IN THE Kansas City Star of the other day appeared an article on the wrestling game that is of interest. The Star has always befriended Yussif Mahmout, holding that the Turk was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, wrestler in the world. He has been kept out of the wrestling game now for almost two seasons, and still he hung on with tenacious courage, claiming that he could beat any of them, not excepting Gotch.

Well he is going to get the chance to work the present season. En tour with the Gotch combination, which opens at Kansas City tonight, by the way, Mahmout will meet any wrestler in the world. He is going to make the big cities of this country before Gotch plunges across the ocean for the trip to England, the continent, Japan and Australia. If there is any wrestler who wants to meet the Turk, he will get his chance.

Karla, the famous East Indian wrestler, the same man whom R. B. Benjamin, the famous English sportsman says defied Hackenschmidt in the British capital, is also here and at the present time is working in a private gymnasium in Chicago with the purpose of getting in great shape for any of the big men of this country.

Just how good Karla is, it is difficult to say. From the mystic East this man comes boldly forth, saying that he is willing to show just how good he is and not making any boastful claims. His method, or the procedure of his manager, seems eminently fair, and before the present season is over, wrestling fans will very likely have the opportunity to see just how good Karla is.

With Mahmout out and with Zbyszko, Jess Pedersen, the gigantic Scandinavian in the game, not to mention Karla, Pilakoff, Ordemann, Cutler, Westergaard, Roller, Hassaine and a new Pole, Marian Plestina, who has been discovered by Emil Klank, one of the most astute and able managers in the country, the season should have some of the biggest and best matches that have been wrestled for a number of seasons.

IT IS generally becoming recognized that Michigan has the strongest football team in the West. With McMillan back and with Thompson, Wells, Conklin and other stars of the great 1910 team back in college, the prediction is being made that Yost will have perhaps the best team that ever represented the Ann Arbor institution.

With Michigan out of the Western conference fold, however, the question comes down to what the Wolverines can do against the Eastern teams There seems little belief at this time that Michigan will meet enough opposition in the games it has scheduled in the West, sufficient to cause anything like a defeat.

The greatest interest will center in the conference games for the simple reason that the majority of big colleges are in this body. If Michigan were in the conference this season and had games scheduled with Chicago, Wisconsin and some of the other teams, it is probable that Yost's men would walk through leaving rather one-sided scores in their wake.

Minnesota will be held a favorite in the conference until it is shown that the Gophers are weak. The record of the Minnesota team for the past two seasons is one to command respect and admiration in the minds of the followers of Chicago, Illinois and Wisconsin. There is a belief in other quarters and a fear at home that the Gophers are not nearly so strong as last season, but just the same the respect for the team will remain until some set back offsets it.

Chicago looks strong at the present time. The Maroons meet Purdue tomorrow and the showing in that game will give further light, though little Wabash trimmed the Boilermakers. The Illini meet Lawrence and on the showing in this contest some line may be gathered in regard to the relative standing of the Urbana boys and the Richards reserves.

Wisconsin meets Iowa at Madison and Michigan stacks up against the Michigan agricultural college team, an aggregation that surprised the West last season by its hard and at times really brilliant playing.

The Badger-Hawkeye game should be one of the most important and interesting in the West. The Cardinals will be the favorite, and should they win Wisconsin will go another step toward convincing the followers of Western football that the Madison institution is going to have a strong team the present season.

PHILADELPHIA PLAYS LAST GAME

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—The Philadelphia team, champions of the American league, yesterday played its final game on their own grounds with the All-stars in preparation for the world's series with the New York Nationals. Philadelphia won 3 to 2. The home team only got five hits off Wood of the Boston Americans, errors aiding in the scoring of two of their runs.

Manager Mack of Philadelphia gave nearly all of his substitutes a chance during the game and the playing of some of these features the contest.

Strunk made a wonderful throw from deep center field, catching McBride who tried to go from second to third after a catch. Strunk also beat out a bunt and stole second and third bases in the same inning.

Danforth, a "southpaw," was given a trial for three innings. He held the All-stars down to no hits and fanned Cobb, Chase, Gessler and Gardner. Both of the All-stars' runs were made off Martin.

McInnis played first base for three innings. His injured right arm is still sore and it is doubtful if he can play against New York Saturday. The Philadelphia team left for New York today. The score: R. H. E.

All-stars .....000000200—2 7 3
Philadelphia ...100110000x—3 5 2

Batteries—Woods and Street; Bender, Danforth, Martin, Morgan and Thomas. Umpires—Dineen and Egan.

Mack Heaves Sigh of Relief.

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—When "Cy" Morgan tossed McBride out in the ninth inning of yesterday's game between the All-stars and the Philadelphia team, Manager Mack breathed a sigh of relief; his team had gone through the post-season series without an injury and the manager expressed himself as being satisfied with the condition of his men. McInnis, whose right arm has been bothering him for the last ten days, got back into the game and did not appear to be suffering from his injury. Every other fielder who will take part in the world's series, was in the game for a short time at least.

Aside from Baker, the players look to be in the best of condition. The star third baseman has a slight attack of stomach trouble, is supposed to be a cold contracted while the team was in Richmond. He will be in the game on Saturday unless his illness grows more serious.

The players will not don their uniforms tomorrow, but will put in the day at the ball park making ready for the trip to New York. The entire squad will leave here early in the afternoon on a special car.

Bender, Coombs and Plant, the pitchers whom it is believed Manager Mack will pit against New York, seem in perfect trim. It is believed the Indian will be sent into the box Saturday and that Coombs will be the selection for the opening game in this city on Monday.

Eddie Collins, the star second baseman of the Athletics was presented with a loving cup by citizens of Lansdowne, a suburb of this city, where he has his home.

CHICAGO FINISHES WITH A DEFEAT.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Cincinnati finished the National league season here by defeating Chicago 4 to 3. The game was loosely played and uninteresting, the smallest crowd of the season being present. Mitchell's batting and Bescher's base-running featured.

Score: R. H. E.
Chicago .....000100101—3 12 2
Cincinnati .....10100110x—4 10 1

Batteries—Slapnicka and Graham; Humphreys, Boyd and Severoid and McLean. Umpires—Eason and Emslie.

BURLESQUE BY NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN.

New York, Oct. 13.—New York closed its season by dropping a double-header to Brooklyn. In the first game Ragon held the locals to two hits, while in the second game Dent was effective in the pinches. The second game was a farce. Charley Faust, the eccentric Kansan, pitched the last inning, which was pure burlesque. Scores:

First game— R. H. E.
Brooklyn .....000000021—3 6 0
New York .....000000000—0 2 4

Batteries—Ragon and Miller; Ames and Meyers. Umpires—Klem and Brennan.

Second game— R. H. E.
Brooklyn .....21000002 0—5 9 2
New York .....000000101—2 8 2

Batteries—Dent and Erwin; Drucke and Faust, and Maxwell, Hartley. Umpires—Brennan and Klem.

GOPHERS PUT THROUGH A GRUELLING PRACTICE

Minneapolis, Oct. 13.—After a long clamor for open practice, students at the university had their wish granted late yesterday afternoon, and for a solid hour the varsity and the scrubs clashed in a spirited scrimmage before the rapacious gaze of about 200 studes.

Both corps of the football forces were subjected to an exhausting signal practice before the gates were thrown open at 5 o'clock. Johnny McGovern, fresh from a triumphal tour of the British Isles and the continent, was out in his old football garments, and for the first time this year he labored with great vigor. Besides the Arlington lad, there were Dr. Williams, Sig Harris, Lisle Johnston, "Hunkie" Davies, Springer Brooks of Yale and as many more old-time gridiron lights to lend their aid. McGovern was full of his regulation pep, and he found little difficulty in instilling it into his subjects.

The students were carefully herded into the south grandstand by the guards, and no one was allowed any closer to the field of battle. From their perches the rooters watched the fun with a respectful dignity until toward the close of practice, when a few Minnesota cheers were rolled out to show the athletes the spectators were with them.

Frank Lawler Injured.

The day's work was marred by the injury of Frank Lawler, all-Western basketball forward last season, who received a wrenched ankle late in the afternoon. At first it was thought a bone had been broken, but careful examination showed it was only a bad sprain. Lawler will be out of the game for several days, but expects to be ready to jump into the Nebraska contest if needed.

L. Smith and Shaughnessy were at the ends for the varsity. McEwan and Frank were the tackles, Hanson and Powers the guards and Morrell the center. Hayward was the quarterback, Capt. Pickering the fullback and Capron and Stevens the halves. The first squad kicked off to the enemey and the ball see-sawed up and down the field without either side making any determined attempt to push it across the goal. If spies from opposing camps were out to get a line on the Minnesota style of play, their wishes were not gratified. There was little in the way of new football uncovered for the spectators. Morrell showed that he is rapidly brushing up in his work at center and once he distinguished himself by breaking through the line and blocking a kick before the opposing kicker knew what was happening.

Co-Eds Watch Practice.

The afternoon was almost perfect from a football standpoint, and a liberal sprinkling of women in the crowd showed that the co-eds have more than a passing interest in the Gophers. With the exception of the Ames and South Dakota games, it was the first look the students have had at their idols since about a week before the Ames game. The play was followed carefully from the stand and several of the favorites came in for rousing little cheers. Rube Rosenwald did not feel able to get into uniform yesterday, but followed the impromptu game at close range in civilian clothes. His ribs have not yet knitted to the satisfaction of the trainers and he has been advised to keep out of the game until his recovery is complete. He will perhaps be in the going before the end of the week and is sure to get into the Nebraska game one week from Saturday.

With coaching talent present every night in abundance, Minnesota prospects for the year are beginning to look up. It is admitted that the Nebraska game will be one of the hardest of the entire schedule. With that idea in mind, the coaches are concentrating their energies on defeating the Cornhuskers. For the present, no other game is being considered. There is time enough to think of Chicago, Wisconsin and Illinois when Nebraska is taken care of, the coaches say. The students believe they are right.

LOAFING DAY FOR GIANTS

McGraw Will Select Pitcher After Opening Day Has Dawned.

New York, Oct. 13.—This was loafing day for the New York Nationals. Some of the players put on their uniforms and indulged in mild practice but did not over-exert themselves. All reported in good condition.

It was gossiped among the players today that Manager McGraw would not determine what pitcher he would send to the mound until he had looked over the weather conditions. If the day is dark, it was thought by a few of the team that Marquard would be called upon to pitch the opening game. It was figured that on a cloudy day Marquard, with his great speed, would battle the Athletics. This selection would also enable McGraw to start Mathewson in the opening game at Philadelphia.

Odds of 6 to 5, and in some instances 7 to 5, on the Nationals were heard of today, but even betting was the rule. Some heavy wagers are expected tonight when the vanguard of the Philadelphia crowds begins to arrive.

Special details of police will be sent this evening to the Polo grounds to look after those who will camp out all night near the bleacher ticket office to obtained the seats offered for sale tomorrow morning.

The gates of the Polo grounds were closed last night with the end of the National league season. They will be reopened Saturday, when the first game of the series to decide the world's baseball championship will be staged on New York's playing field. A big force of men is at work grooming the diamond, while hundreds of workmen are busy putting the finishing touches on the massive grandstand of steel and concrete almost surrounding the field, which, with the wooden bleachers remaining after the fire of last April, is expected to accommodate something like 50,000 enthusiasts when the call of play is sounded.

The New York players laid down their bats as the season closed, officially confirming their title to the National league championship, and their donning of baseball togs for the first big game will be when they march on the flag-encircled battlefield Saturday to meet the Philadelphia team, the American title holder, in the initial test of what promises to be one of the most memorable struggles for world honors.

Conditions surrounding the open sale of tickets for the three games scheduled to be played in this city indicate record-breaking crowds. Two hours after the sale opened, no seat was to be had for the opening game, while the tickets for the two contests to follow were taken as fast as eager hands could hand over the money. Disappointed applicants for opening day seats working their way out through the crowd, however, were surrounded by swarms of speculators who offered the clamoring thousands plenty of tickets at prices which gradually rose from $5 a seat in the forenoon, to $7 and $8 in the late hours, an advance of about $5 over the regulation prices.

With the start of the series only a day away, there is activity in all local baseball circles in preparation for the opening. The headquarters of the National commission, which has the arrangement for the series in charge, was open until late with a clerical force working full speed on the multifarious business details. President Lynch of the National league, one of the members of the commission, said that everything was working smoothly and that there had been no hitch.

All members of the New York club are reported in good condition and Manager McGraw expects to be able to pull the full strength of his forces on the field against Philadelphia.

There was something of a lull in betting, with little inclination to play either team as a favorite to any pronounced extent.

MATTY IS CAUGHT.

Big Pitcher Found Spying on the Athletic Hitters.

New York, Oct. 13.—It was news in fandom today that Christy Mathewson was away from New York for a day or two last week on a secret scouting trip to Shibe Park, the home of the Philadelphia team, which he hopes to defeat for the world's title. If "Matty" hoped to keep his little expedition a secret, he was foiled by two members of the New York Americans, who recognized him as he sat in sweater and golf cap in a grandstand seat directly behind the batter on Thursday and Friday. Every Philadelphian that came to bat was narrowly inspected by the Giants' pitcher. It was evident that he was making mental notes as to the men's weak points.

Much of Mathewson's success in the local series last fall between the New York Nationals and Americans was attributed to his observations on prior visits to the American league park. He seemed to have the key to every man on the team, judging from the way he puzzled them with his fadeaway and perfectly controlled speed. After the series was over, ho said one day: "If you know how to tell the difference between the balls a fellow can hit and those he cannot hit, you've got his measure."

As to his inspection of the Philadelphia team, his deductions will remain secret until he pitches against them.

BILLY SUNDAY PICKS ALL-AMERICAN TEAM.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Billy Sunday, former Chicago National league outfielder, now engaged in evangelical work, has selected for a New York weekly an All-American baseball team.

Following are the evangelists's selections:

Pitchers, Johnson, Washington; Rucker, Brooklyn; Ford, New York Americans; Mathewson, New York Nationals; Walsh, Chicago Americans; Gregg, Cleveland.

Catchers, Doolin, Philadelphia Nationals; Bresnahan, St. Louis Nationals; Archer, Chicago Nationals. First base, Chase, New York Americans. Second base, Collins, Philadelphia Americans. Shortstop, Wagner, Pittsburg. Third base, Baker, Philadelphia Americans. Right field, Cobb, Detroit. Left field, Magee, Philadelphia Nationals. Center field, Speaker, Boston Americans. Utility infield, McInnis, Philadelphia Americans. Utility outfield, Milan, Washington.

JEFFERSONS ARE DEFEATED

The Big Duluths defeated the Jeffersons by the score of 6 to 1 at roller hockey last evening. The oontest was an exhibition game, the last one before the regular season starts, and was played at the Auditorium.

One of the features of the game was the work of Thamann at point. Mullen at center for the Jeffersons also played a strong game. Thamann scored twice for the winners at the beginning of the contest. Wiggins scored for the Jeffersons. Dennis and Thamann did the scoring in the second half, executing some pretty goals.

At the close of the game Ray Johns was elected president of the new hockey association, H. R. Swenson vice president and S. A. Marshall secretary. The rules of the Ontario Hockey association will govern all of the games played under the auspices of the new association.

Following is the lineup:

| Jeffersons. | Position. | Big Duluths. |
|---|---|---|
| Mullen | g | Olund |
| Dryer | p | Thamann |
| Thatcher | c | McGinnis |
| Conley | c | Erickson |
| Wiggins | rg | Hake |
| Bryant | lw | Swanstrom |

Officials — Staunton, referee; Le Fleur, timekeeper; Nelson and Solheim, umpires.

ADAMS VS. JEFFERSONS

In what promises to be one of the best football games of the season, the Adams and Jefferson teams will clash Sunday at Athletic park.

Each team has a tie game with the Fairmonts to its credit, and on the occasion of their former meeting the Adams team won by the score of 5 to 0.

The Jeffersons are a new team in the field, but they have been coming fast, and hope to take the measure of the West enders Sunday. The game will take place in connection with the aviation meet scheduled for Athletic park.

Bowlers Start Tuesday.

At a meeting of Duluth bowlers last evening it was decided to start the regular season next Tuesday night. The present year will start with prospects for the best season in the history of bowling in Duluth. On Tuesday evening the Grands will meet the Jeffersons, on Thursday the Big Duluths will meet the Stanley Shoe company team and on Friday the Adams will play the Three Winners.

BOTH TEAMS LOOK STRONG

Central and Grand Forks Appear to Be Evenly Matched.

With the crack football team from Grand Forks due to arrive sometime this afternoon, interest in the game between Central and the Flickertail aggregation is growing by leaps and bounds. Indications point to the biggest crowd of the local season.

The contest tomorrow afternoon will be the first one of the season where the scrappy hilltop boys have met a team anywhere near their weight. Light the present season, Central has a fast and wil balanced eleven, one that is going to make every high school team in this section of the state look to its laurels.

Thrown into the field in the very first game of the season, before the team had found itself, Central met the heavy Northland college team and played the boys from Ashland to a standstill, although there were no scores registered in the game.

Last week the boys were pitted against a team of veterans from the various high schools of Superior, heavier and older players, and players with the experience of four and five years back of them. That for the most part of the game the Duluth boys were able to outplay their heavier opponents and to miss scoring twice by two unfortunate fumbles speaks well for the ability of the hilltop boys.

Tomorrow Central will be opposed by a high school team and for the first time the present season will be playing an eleven really in their class, both as to weight and to scholastic requirements. Therefore, it can be expected that Central will show its real ability against an eleven not outweighing it by pounds to the man.

Once a team finds itself, its progress is usually rapid. Two games, one of them a defeat, have taught the Duluth boys several things. Realizing that their interference was not what it should be, and realizing also that there were several weaknesses in the line, the present week has been taken up with the task of overcoming the faults shown in the first two games. It is very probable that Central will trot on the field tomorrow afternoon with the strongest and best drilled team that has represented the big pile of masonry this season.

With Grand Forks represented by what is said to be a very strong high school team, which tied the University of North Dakota earlier in the season, the game should be one of the best of the season. A victory for Central will mean much, and it is safe to say that the local lads will start the game with the determination to put up the best exhibition of football that Central has played the present season.

Several changes have been made in the high school team. Harris, who has been playing a star game in practice at end, will replace Jeronimus at the right wing, and Lawrence may start at one of the back positions. Solheim will not be in the game tomorrow, and with the exception of "Bunk" Harris on the right end and the possible shift in the halfback positions, the team will be the same as it started the game last Saturday.

Following is the line-up of the two teams:

| Central. | | Grand Forks. |
|---|---|---|
| Mars, captain | le | Walsh |
| Currie | lt | Lynch |
| Goetz | lg | Burfeing |
| Osman | c | Armstrong |
| St. Claire | rg | Coulter |
| O'Brien | rt | Ferguson |
| Harris | re | Feetham |
| McClaran | qb | Payne |
| Crassweller | lh | Hassell |
| Kerns | rh | O'Keefe |
| Brown | fb | Fishman |

Subs for Duluth—Lawrence, Freimuth, Ward, Brown, Jeronimus; for Grand Forks—Dryden, Batten, Lodwell and Campbell.

LEAGUE SEASON COMES TO CLOSE

New York, Oct. 13.—The pennant struggle in the National league definitely was decided three days ago, but the official close of the championship season did not occur until yesterday when three games were played. The pennant winning New York team dropped a double-header to Brooklyn and the Chicago team lost to Cincinnati. The positions of the eight clubs remain as they were when the battle for the flag was decided, the added days of play effecting no changes in relative standings.

"It was a great season," said Thomas J. Lynch, president of the league, as he interrupted for a moment tonight his work as member of the national commission preparing for the world's series. "I have little to add to what I said at the close of the pennant struggle," continued Mr. Lynch, "except to say that all that is necessary to start the National league off properly to a greater season than ever next year, is a victory for the National league representatives in the world's championship series."

It is baseball opinion here that the agitation for an earlier closing of the season hereafter hardly had been helped by the fine weather that featured Columbus day, now a legal holiday in this state, and the fact that a big and paying crowd witnessed the double-header. President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn club has been one of the chief sponsors for a season lengthened out to include the Columbus day holiday.

CLARK GRIFFITH LOSES HIS JOB

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Shortly before leaving for New York yesterday afternoon President Herrmann of the Cincinnati team said:

"Manager Clark Griffith will not manage the team next year. I want a playing manager in the hope that he will occupy the position of shortstop."

Manager Clark Griffith left last night for Cleveland.

GOTCH STARTS TOUR.

World's Champion and Yussif Mahmout to Begin Tour at Kansas City.

Friday the 13th holds not the least semblance of the hoodoo for Frank Augustus Gotch, champion of all champions, the greatest wrestler who ever trod the mat, for tonight the big fellow from Humboldt, in company with Yussif Mahmout, also ranking as one of the greatest grapplers in the entire world, starts the tour that is to take him around the globe, including such faraway places as Japan, Australia, South America and South Africa.

The tour that starts tonight will in all probability bethe greatest ovation that has ever been given to any athlete since the days when John L. Sullivan made his circle of this country. There is no living athlete in the United States so popular as Gotch. He has given to his country the world's wrestling championship and has defended it against the greatest men in the world.

At one time during the game Daly held an 11-point advantage, but De Oro played brilliantly thereafter and won the game in the 123rd inning.

PLANS MADE FOR AN INDOOR LEAGUE

At a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. last evening the Duluth-Superior Indoor Baseball league was formed. The circuit will be made up of the Big Duluths, Kenney & Anker, Jeffersons, Y. M. C. A. Young Men's Sodality, Catholic Athletic club, Cathedral high school and the Marshall Wells.

With Albert Wegener in the chair, a committee was appointed to draft a schedule and to make arrangements for the places where the league games will be held. Father Raymond, H. R. Swenson and C. Lingwall were chosen as the committee to make the preliminary arranngements.

Plans for the formation of an amateur federation to govern athletics at the Head of the Lakes came up at the meeting last evening, and active steps in the organization of such an association may be taken in the near future.

NATIONALS WIN FROM BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13.—The local National league baseball team won from the American league club in the series for the city championship by a score of 3 to 2. Each team played good ball. The winning run was primarily the result of a wild throw by Stephens. The score: R. H. E.

Nationals .....20000100x—3 9 0

WATERLOO DROPS OUT OF LEAGUE

Chicago, Oct. 13.—After winning its fight waged for months through civil courts and the National baseball commission to retain its berth in the Three I league, the Watertoo, Iowa, club slipped out of the league so quickly that its representatives scarcely knew what had happened.

Assured that the cities comprising the northern division of the league would stand with Waterloo, D. S. Maynard, representing the Iowa club was prepared to agree to a disbandment of the organization and the formation of two separate league, if steps should be taken to oust Waterloo, J. H. Hayes of Davenport and Clarence Rowland of Dubuque were named members of a committee with Al Lelsy of Peoria, and R. H. Kinsella of Springfield, to suggest a 1912 circuit.

It was supposed that Rowland and Hayes would support Waterloo, but instead they voted with the two representatives of the southern division to drop Waterloo and award franchises to Springfield, Ill., Quincy, Danville, Davenport, Rock Island, Dubuque and Peoria.

Brought to a vote, the proposition to drop Waterloo was passed unanimously. President Tearney then appointed a committee consisting of J. M. Boyle of Danville, Al Leisy of Peoria, Harry Hofer of Quincy, Rowland of Dubuque and Hayes of Davenport, to meet in Peoria Oct. 24, to draw a constitution. Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Bloomington, Decatur and East St. Louis have applied for the franchise, but it was said that either Bloomington or Decatur would be selected to fill the vacant place.

CORNHUSKERS WORRY.

Nebraska May Not Get Enough Practice for Minnesota Game.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13.—The Cornhuskers' football bark, previously drifting along in placid waters, is suddenly hitting the snags. Last Saturday's easy victory over the Kearney normalites, in which Nebraska was victorious by the lop-sided score of 117 to 0, lulled the Cornhuskers and most of their followers into a feeling of false security.

Kearney furnished no game at all, and the Kansas Aggies, who are to play Nebraska Saturday, are not likely to furnish the stiff brand of opposition needed. The Aggies were trimmed 3 to 0 last week by Kansas State normal, and unless the farmers take a brace they can scarcely hope to hold the Cornhuskers to a respectable score.

The Cornhuskers are not entirely in the dark as to Minnesota's methods. A Nebraska football grad witnessed last Saturday's battle between the Gophers and the South Dakota Coyotes and forwarded notes on the Williams' system.

Using Gopher plays, the freshmen backs have been tearing through the varsity and eating up the yards. Stiehm has not been able to work up a line combination capable of holding the first-year team. Another week may improve the situation, but the cocksureness which accompanied the victory over the Kearney normalites has given way to doubt.

The sickness of Quarterback Warner has also had a depressing influence. The Cornhuskers play better football with him at the helm. With the Minnesota game so near at hand, his absence threatens a serious impediment. One rift in the clouds is the announcement that Elliott, the big guard, is to stick with the Cornhuskers, having passed up the proffer of a law partnership in Oregon.

TAKES LIFE AT CLOQUET

Well Known Farmer of Carlton County Swallows Carbolic Acid.

Plans to Attend Church Quartet Practice, Then Kills Himself.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Just what prompted C. G. Johnson, a well-known Carlton county farmer, to take his life near here last evening is a mystery, as so far as known there was no reason why he should desire to end his existence.

He came to town from his farm two miles distant yesterday morning and spent the day attending to business and other matters in an apparently rational frame of mind. He made arrangements to attend practice tonight with the male quartet of the Swedish Lutheran church, of which he was a member. Then he secured some carbolic acid and, going into the woods on his way home near the Northwest Paper company's pulp mill, late in the afternoon, laid down and took the fatal draught. His body was found later and all efforts to bring back life proved futile. Mr. Johnson is survived by his wife and a daughter aged 12 and a son aged 6.

ANOKA COUNTY PEOPLE AROUSED

James Dygart's Confession of Three Murders Stirs Community.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—James Dygart has confessed to three murders—those of Mrs. Amelia Bolton and her cousin, Frank E. Rhoades, on the Bolton farm in Anoka county, Minn., and that of John Hefstedt, a farmer of Douglas county, Wis.

Dygart was employed by Walter Bolton, husband of the murdered woman, as a farm hand, as he was by Hefstedt.

He said he killed Mrs. Bolton when she spurned a proposal that she run away with him. Having slain the woman he said he murdered Rhoades to cover up his crime. Then he left. The woman was found in the cellar of the home, her heart pierced with a rifle ball. The body of Rhoades was found covered with a few inches of dirt in the Bolton farm garden. Bolton, the husband of the murdered woman, is a Minneapolis bartender.

Admits Wisconsin Murder.

Dygart said he killed Hefstedt because the latter attacked him during a quarrel.

His confession to the Wisconsin murder came late yesterday after a grueling that had brought out his admission of guilt in the Bolton farm tragedy.

Feeling is running high at Wyoming, in Anoka county, against the prisoner, and it is said Dygart will be kept in jail here at least until the grand jury meets.

PARTRIDGES SEIZED.

Confiscated Birds Killed in Wisconsin, Sold at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—Seventy-two fat partridges consigned to C. H. Weaver & Co., a commission firm in Chicago, were confiscated yesterday in the Northern Pacific freight depot by G. H. Cline, deputy game warden. They had been sent in butter tubs from Grantsburg, Wis., by some person who signed "O. J. J." to the waybill. Who "O. J. J." is the deputy warden has not learned. Both state and interstate law prohibits shipping game birds to market.

The partridges were taken to the state capitol and word passed around that they might be bought from the game and fish commission. The birds were sold for 40 cents apiece. Efforts will be made to learn the identity of "O. J. J."

TWO VILLAGES SUED.

Pillager and Walker Are Made Defendants in Actions.

Cass Lake, Minn., Oct. 14.—The villages of Pillager and Walker are defendants in actions brought to recover the 10 per cent license money supposed to be paid over to the county treasurer as soon as the liquor license fee is received by the village. The village of Pillager has not yet paid its share for the years 1910 and 1911, amounting in all to $160. The 1910 assessment against Walker amounts to $300 and has not been paid. Cass Lake was the first to pay its share, which amounted to $1,050. The village of Hackensack, having one saloon, only recently paid the county.

Summons have been served on the village officials of Walker and Pillager and the question will be taken up at the next meeting of the county board in November.

HAS HOBNOBBED WITH YEGGMEN

State Official Tells of Search for Mike Davis.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—After having hobnobbed with one of the most notorious gangs of yeggmen in the Northwest, drank "squirrel whisky" with them, "rushed the can," danced and listened to talk of "swag" looted from safes, Alfred Mueller, an assistant to Attorney General Simpson, has returned from Bemidji, minus several pounds of flesh and as sunburned as a plainsman.

Mr. Mueller talked with Mike Davis, alias Manchester Mike, the yeggman, who escaped from Puposky after the blowing of the postoffice safe which eventually resulted in the arrest of Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake. He saw him in East Grand Forks, the village which has forty-nine saloons; met other members of the band, and saw them all disappear when they got the tip that detectives and deputy sheriffs were coming for them. Mr. Mueller was dressed as a lumberjack.

Drank "Squirrel Whisky."

"The hang-out of the gang was at 'Little Harry's Place,' a saloon," Mr. Mueller said. "Upstairs was a 'bull pen' where members of the gang slept. While I was with them downstairs, my pal was upstairs and slept with them one night. I got along all right till they got me in a place where I had to stand up at the bar and take a drink of about as fierce squirrel whisky as a man ever put down his throat. Then I went out back of the saloon with them and rushed the can and danced. It was a tough mob."

As Mr. Mueller customarily does not drink, the felicitations of friends were extended him for having been forced to down a glass of the East Grand Forks grog commonly termed "squirrel." He carried in his pocket a small pistol of the "bulldog" variety. J. C. Fielding, the detective in charge of operations, told him that if he ever shoved that toy up into Mike Davis' face the yegg would laugh at him.

Alexander Janes, assistant attorney general, who prosecuted the case against Dumas, is confident the Cass Lake mayor will be sent to state's prison by the higher courts.

STABBING AFFRAY AT FORT FRANCES

Knife Thrust Near Base of Brain Sustained By Finn May Prove Fatal.

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Monday afternoon the river bank at Fort Frances, near the Monarch hotel, was the scene of a cutting affray that may cost the life of one of the participants. A Finn was found bleeding from a deep knife cut near the base of the brain, while all around him were evidences of a struggle. The authorities are taking care of the wounded man, and the chances for his recovery now are about even. Another Finn, John Hill, is being held for the crime, having been apprehended Monday night at Ranier.

A well-known character around this town for years has been a man known as "Paddy, the Pig." Chief of police White sent him across the river a few weeks ago, when he was pounced upon by the Fort Frances police and made to answer to a charge of robbery. He is now serving a nine-months' sentence in Central prison at Toronto, according to reports from across the river.

SEEK TO SYSTEMATIZE CHARITIES IN ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—So pernicious have become activities on the part of unauthorized charitable organizations in St. Paul, that the Association of Commerce has caused to be printed and distributed among its members the following placard:

"We are members of the Association of Commerce. Solicitors for charitable enterprises, benefits, entertainments, ticket sales of all kinds, souvenir programs, special editions, etc., must submit their proposition to the donations' committee of the Association of Commerce before any support will be given."

REFERS CHARGES TO GRAND JURY

Governor Eberhart to Let That Body Pass on Methodist Church Charges.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart has got out of an unpleasant position in which Attorney General Simpson nearly placed him, by referring the charges brought against the mayor and chief of police of St. Paul to the grand jury for action. Methodist laymen demanded that the governor conduct an investigation into the alleged sales of liquor to disorderly houses in St. Paul. The attorney general advised him that he had authority to conduct the investigation, but that he could not oust the officials even if the charges were found correct. He added that if the governor decided he wanted it done, he might "request" the attorney general to start ouster proceedings.

The governor has addressed a letter to the county attorney of Ramsey county, directing him to place the matter before the grand jury, now in session.

"It is the duty of the grand jury to inquire into all police offenses committed in the county," the governor wrote, "and into the wilful misconduct in office of police officers in the county. That body is lawfully constituted for that purpose. Present your evidence there."

VOTES $50,000 FOR ROAD WORK

Menominee County Supervisors to Aid Movement for Better Highways.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Menominee county board of supervisors decided to submit to the electors a proposition to bond the county for $50,000 for permanent improvement of the highways. It is proposed to extend and improve the road between the Menominee county line and the Delta county line and between Spalding and the Dickinson county line.

The total expenditure for road improvement will be $108,000. Part of this will be paid out of the annual road appropriation and from state awards, leaving a balance of $50,000 to be raised. It is proposed to secure this amount on fifteen-year bonds at 4 per cent. The project will be submitted to the electors in the spring, when, in all probability it will be carried. Menominee county is already famous for its good roads and if the proposed improvements are carried into effect it will have the best roads in the state of Michigan.

Aids Development Bureau.

The board at their current session voted $1,000 to the Upper Peninsula Development bureau. Great interest has been aroused in Menominee county over the Upper Peninsula Development bureau's display at the Chicago Land show.

CHAMPION, MICH., HAS LARGE FIRE

Four Buildings Destroyed By Blaze, Origin of Which Is Not Known.

Champion, Mich., Oct. 13. — Four buildings, including three business blocks here, were destroyed by fire at an early hour Wednesday morning. The structures burned were Mrs. M. C. Belhumeur's store and residence, combined, Ed and Will Derle's saloon, which was conducted in the former Champion hotel building, John Mahaney's livery stable, and Joseph Herbert's residence. All of the buildings are in the block opposite the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway company's freight depot. The loss was about $12,000.

The fire broke out in the northwest corner of the second floor of Derle's saloon building at 10:40 o'clock Tuesday night, and it was 4:30 a. m. Wednesday before the people were convinced that no more damage would result from the fire.

The upper story of the Derle building was unoccupied and it is not known how the blaze started. The fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed and as there is no fire fighting apparatus in that part of the town, the buildings, all of which were frame structures, were at the mercy of the flames. A call was sent to the mine, on the Beacon hill, more than a half mile distant, for aid, and several men came down from there and helped fight the fire.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated bowels. Cascarets belong to every household. Children just love to take them.

Sauk Center—The saloon license at Sauk Center was raised to $1,200 by the city council at its last meeting by an unanimous vote. The council decided on this when M. E. Boutell and Henry Rose asked for the renewals of their licenses. Under the present arrangements the six liquor licenses expire at different periods and so the two applications were granted for nine months at the $1,000 rate, then the $1,200 license goes into effect for the six saloons.

Movement to Annex Alice to Hibbing Revived and Growing in Favor.

Petition to Respective Village Councils Is Being Generally Signed.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opening gun in an active campaign for the annexation of the village of Alice to Hibbing has been fired in the shape of a petition which is being signed by residents and property owners in Alice, addressed to the village council of Alice and the village council of Hibbing and praying these bodies to do everything in their power to bring about the annexation. The petition is at the real estate office of P. J. Somers and is being signed by a large number. The petition is as follows: "To the members of the Village Council of Alice and the members of the Village Council of Hibbing: Honorable Sirs: We the undersigned owners of real estate in the village of Alice, St. Louis county, Minnesota, hereby declare that we are in favor of annexing the territory contained in the limits of the village of Alice, St. Louis county, Minnesota, to the village of Hibbing, St. Louis county, Minnesota, and we hereby respectfully petition and urge your honorable bodies to take all necessary steps and proceedings within your power to accomplish the annexation of the said territory in the village of Alice to the village of Hibbing. We respectfully represent that in our judgment the complete annexation of such territory to the village of Hibbing will be of the utmost benefit and advantage to the people of both Hibbing and Alice."

Sentiment is very general in both Hibbing and Alice to the effect that annexation would be a good thing and it is believed that it must come to pass eventually. The great obstacle at present is that many in Alice are unwilling to dissolve the village organization of Alice and to take chances on the kind and quantity of public improvements that would be immediately carried on in the Alice territory by Hibbing in case of annexation.

The police department collected a total of $604.72 last month as follows: Fines $386, costs $143.22, bail forfeited $20, civil docket $55.50.

The team this year is composed of Pryor and Saari, ends, veterans of last year; Turnquist and Levant, tackles; Payne and Farnand, guards; Kotze, center. In the backfield, Finnegan, Crottier, Hill and Turnquist, members of last year's eleven, are all playing strong games. The eleven looks like a likely contender for the range championship honors.

HOPE ST. JAMES WILL BE WORKED

Aurora People Desirous Property Should Again Be Opened.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local people are hopeful of the opening of the St. James mine soon. It is known that the pumps that have been in use at the St. Paul mine at Kewatin have been pulled and are being repaired to be sent to Aurora.

It is also known that orders have been issued for the unwatering of the mine by the first of the year. This is taken here to mean that the mine will be operated. However, the extent of the operations can only be guessed at.

The St. James mine was opened several years ago with a rush, a splendid location built right in the village, and offices and other buildings as fine as are to be found at any mine on the range built. Work was running along very smoothly when, about four years ago, orders were received to shut down. All work was discontinued; all pumps removed and all the men laid off. As the St. James is one of the largest mines in this territory, and is situated right in the heart of the village, its opening would mean much for the village.

KINSELLA APPEALS TO HIGHEST COURT

Removed Lake County Attorney Wants Supreme Court to Review Case.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Kinsella refuses to be "fired." The county attorney of Lake county, who was removed from office by an order of Governor Eberhart last Monday has filed papers in the supreme court asking for a writ of certiorari to have the evidence in the case reviewed by the higher court. The court issued the writ and fixed Oct. 31 as the date for a hearing.

In the petition filed with the court, Mr. Kinsella, through his attorney, J. B. Richards, asserts that the charges made against him, upon which he was removed, were either not specific, were baseless and founded on malice, or else the commissioner who took the evidence for the governor refused to admit evidence which Kinsella offered to show that the charges were untrue.

Indictments Not Evidence.

One of the grounds upon which Kinsella was ousted was that indictments were pending against him for libel and for the alleged distribution of an improper pamphlet. Kinsella objects to the introduction of these indictments as evidence in the proceedings for his removal. In the first place, he says, no conviction has been had. In the second place, he contends, the acts for which he was indicted had no relation to his official duties. Finally, he adds, if he were convicted on these indictments, this would not create a vacancy under the statute for the alleged acts would constitute only misdemeanor, because they are neither felonies nor "infamous crimes." The law provides that when a county officer is convicted of an "infamous crime" the office shall become vacant. He also alleges that the indictments were impeached on the ground that they were not brought in good faith.

24½ CENTS PER PUPIL

Is Cost of Supplies in Schools of Aurora.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under a new cost system recently installed in School District No. 13, some interesting facts are being shown. Under the new system a record of all supplies used by each teacher is kept track of throughout the district. Under this system it was found that the cost of supplies for the month of September amounted to 24½ cents per pupil. The average will be much below that, as during the first month many supplies are issued which are used throughout the year, and many other supplies were issued which are not yet used. The system, however, will give the cost per pupil at the end of the year. It will show the cost of the different grades and departments.

TO PLAY JEFFERSONS.

Duluth Team to Meet Virginia Eleven on Sunday.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia City football team and the Jeffersons of Duluth will play here Sunday afternoon at Oliver park. This will be the first game of the season of the City team, which is composed of former football stars, who have been out of practice for some time.

Saturday afternoon the Hibbing and Virginia high school teams will play football at Oliver park. The local team has been practicing daily and expects to repeat last year's performance when Hibbing was decisively defeated.

BAD SALOONS MUST GO.

Chisholm Council Will Weed Out Undesirable Ones.

Chisholm, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council at its last meeting started a campaign of weeding out undesirable saloons by refusing some applications for renewals of licenses.

The application of Jake Skala for a new license which has been on the table for some time was refused as was also the new applications, one made by Forgetta Bros. and one by Milan Ljabrabratovich. There was considerable pressure brought on both petitions to have them granted. A license was granted to Iver Oman who has been on the police force for some time. He will open for business today.

The application of Adam Payton for renewal came up and was laid on the table. The chief of police was ordered to close up the saloon until further notice from the council.

Helps Black River Falls.

An appeal for aid from the mayor of Black River Falls, Wis., was read and the council allowed $100 to aid the unfortunates who suffered from the flood of Oct. 6. There was some discussion over the village going outside of the state to assist in this manner but as donations came in very liberally at the time of the great Chisholm conflagration it was deemed advisable to show the spirit of reciprocity.

A petition for sewers on Birth street between First avenue and Central avenue was referred to the street committee for recommendation and report. The matter will be disposed of at the next meeting. The regular monthly payroll and bills were allowed and totaled in the neighborhood of $15,000.

The matter of an ordinance to cover the storage of gasoline inside the village limits was brought up and a copy of the ordinance covering the same, in force in Virginia, was submitted and the matter referred to the village attorney.

RAILROAD MAY ERECT HOTEL

Reported in Virginia Canadian Northern May Build Hostelry There.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Silver lake will be filled in for a distance of about 100 feet west of the old public library building and it is possible that the library structure will be left intact until the Canadian Northern passenger depot is well along in the course of construction and the new public library building is completed. This depends upon whether the Canadian Northern finds it necessary to occupy the exact site of the old library building, which was sold to the city. It is expected that a site for the library building will be condemned in a few days and that the contract for the new building will be let very soon that work may begin within a month and the building be completed before spring.

There is a possibility that the Canadian Northern will erect a big hotel in Virginia, but no definite plans have been made public. It is a policy of the Canadian Northern to erect large first class hotels in good sized cities along the line and Virginia may come under the hotel class.

PROGRESSIVES ARE GREATLY PLEASED

Virginia Advocates of Municipal Ownership Like Council's Action.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the Progressive league last night there was rejoicing at the action of the city council in calling the special election to vote upon the question of immediate municipal ownership of the water and light plant. It is felt that the council had recently taken the action desired by those favoring municipal ownership. The league will continue to maintain its organization and to keep an eye upon the situation.

President Vincent of the State University, in company with Dean Appleby and Professor Emmons of the university, will be the guests of honor at this annual dinner.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the committees in charge to make this the most successful dinner yet given. Honored by President's Visit.

The alumni feel that they are especially honored in having Dr. Vincent, who, on the 18th of this month, is to be formally inaugurated as president of the State University, attend the alumni meeting on the range, and his address is sure to prove of great interest to the members. Every person who has graduated or attended the University of Minnesota is eligible to membership in the association, and the committee in charge desire that every such person attend this meeting and meet President Vincent.

OSLER RIGHT; YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair Is First Sign of Age, Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Color.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Will Be Erected on Main Street of City.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work will soon begin on the building to be erected by Jalmer Pearson on Main street. The structure will be 25 by 40 feet and occupy the site of his building which was destroyed by fire last winter.

The boats Holland and Oeda, on Lake Vermilion and Trout lake, are busy every day transporting supplies to the camps of the Trout Lake Lumber company, where some 400 men will be employed this winter getting out timber on the great Cook-O'Brien tract.

A train load of twenty-five cars of lumber was shipped from the Vermilion Lumber company's yards in this city on Wednesday and was destined for some point down the Great Lakes.

Large numbers of men are daily passing through town on their way to the various lumber camps.

CHRISTEN TWO BABIES AT MEET OF MACCABEES.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Fanny Scott, district deputy for the Lady Maccabees, visited the local order here Wednesday evening. One of the features of the evening was the christening of two babies by Rev. T. S. Oadams, Lillian May Sigler and Lota Jane Seltz. At the close of the meeting a banquet was served and all report a good time. Mrs. Scott, while in the city, was a guest at the home of Mrs. George S. Roper.

EVELETH CANDIDATES CONTINUE TO APPEAR.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Kotze who was thinking of running for alderman-at-large yesterday circulated a petition for alderman of the First ward, a position now held by Alderman Joseph S. Wilson. Matt E. Kiley has circulated his petition for alderman of the Third ward for which Oscar A. Enderlich, Joseph Francel and L. Massucci are already candidates.

CENSURED BY THE BAPTISTS

Secretary Wilson Condemned for Stand Taken on Brewers' Convention.

After adopting strong resolutions of condemnation against the attitude of Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, for seeming to give the sanction of the government to the National Brewers' association, the Baptist state convention closed last night with the session at the First Swedish Baptist church.

The resolutions follow:

"Resolved, That we approve of county option as a temperance measure and urge the support of all men seeking office who stand for this proposition."

The resolution relating to the secretary of agriculture reads:

"Resolved, That as representatives of the 25,000 Baptists of Minnesota we hereby express our condemnation of the conduct of Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson in allowing his name to be used by the National Brewers' association in a way calculated to imply governmental sanction and assistance to the liquor traffic."

Copies of this resolution are to be sent to Mr. Wilson and to President Taft.

The convention has been one of the most successful ever held by Minnesota Baptists. Most of the delegates left the city on the afternoon and evening trains last night.

At the final session held last night Minneapolis was selected as the 1912 meeting place. October was selected as the time for the meeting.

South Dakota Registration.

Dallas, S. D., Oct. 13.—According to the official tabulation made last night the official registration for Rosebud claims at Gregory, Dallas, Chamberlain and Rapid City had reached 22,072.

SHOP MEETINGS.

Y. M. C. A. Conducting Religious Services at Factories and Mills.

The first of the series of shop meetings to be held during the winter at the different mills and shops of the city under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. was held yesterday at the Ouellette-Baxter mill, W. E. Lauterbach led the meeting.

The meetings are held at the noon hour. At noon today another meeting was held at the Woodruff Lumber company's plant.

It has been the custom for several years to hold these meetings during the winter. The custom was started several years ago and it is now an established work under the direction of the Y. M. C. A.

BULLISH DAY FOR THE COPPERS

Those who are interested in copper stocks cannot believe that Friday, the thirteenth, is a day of bad luck, when they observe what the copper stock market did on that day. Not for weeks have the coppers made such good gains as they did today. There was a distinct tone of bullishness from the time the market opened this morning. The upward tendency kept declaring itself, however, until the short interest took alarm and began to do some rapid covering. During the latter part of the day there were some good gains, encouraged by a bullish tendency on the part of the general stock list of New York.

ARE ACCUSED OF INSURANCE FRAUDS

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Phillip Levy and Abe Krueger were arrested here today charged with having defrauded fire insurance companies of thousands of dollars by burning wornout horses. The arrests ended a search begun two years ago by the fire insurance department of Wisconsin. The arrests were made by State Marshal T. M. Furtell of Wisconsin and Sheriff Kopp of Menominee, Wis.

The men were charged with having defrauded insurance companies by buying wornout horses, insuring them for sums up to $200, shipping them away in a box car and burning the cars and horses. The prisoners waived extradition and left for Menominee. They also are said to be wanted in Jamestown, N. Y., and in Minneapolis.

EXHIBITION MATCH PLANNED

George Duncan, the famous Scotch golf player, visited the golf grounds of the Northland club shortly after his arrival in the city today, and went over the course in a short practice. Tomorrow he will play a public exhibition with Mr. Leith, the instructor of the Northland club, the match being open to the public.

This match may develop into the best golf ever played in this part of the country. There will be no charge, and those who wish to see two great exponents of the game of golf in action may do so by going out to the golf grounds tomorrow. Eighteen holes will be played in the morning and eighteen in the afternoon.

Mr. Duncan is one of the best of the professional players before the public today. As Mr. Leith is also one of the best players in this country at the present time, the contest should be one well worth witnessing.

Dr. Rinehart is a noted surgeon and is the head of the Rinehart hospital.

DEPORTATION OF HIBBING "BAD MAN" IS DELAYED

Ivan Cacic, aged 29, of Hibbing, will probably be sent back to Austria on the grounds that he is an undesirable citizen. His deportation was ordered this week, but his attorneys, Goldberg & Bogicevich, desired to submit further evidence in behalf of their client and wired the secretary of commerce and labor, asking for a stay of thirty days in order that the evidence could be placed before the immigration authorities.

Just what is the nature of the evidence they have in support of Cacic, is not known.

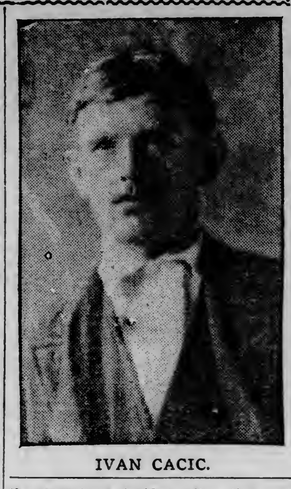

Cacic, not only in Hibbing, but in the state of Utah, where he once lived and in Austria, is regarded as a "bad" man and a dangerous character. Last March, he became engaged in a cutting affair and cut two Dalmatians with a knife in a saloon because they were "cussing the Austrians."

He came here from his native land four years ago and settled in Bingham Canyon, Utah. Regarding his record there the immigration authorities have received the following information in a letter sent from the sheriff's office:

"Regarding Ivan Cacic, I have had the photo identified by several different ones and among them Steve Melich, Martin Kolocovich, Joe Melich and others. He was known here as Sara Cacic. He is a sort of a card shark, particularly in connection with Austrian game called '41.' He was here something less than four years ago and in a difficulty shot one Mike Raskovich in the leg. He succeeded in escaping arrest and has not been seen since. Raskovich is somewhere in Nevada, but we think that we can locate him. Ivan Cacic is a tough character and the Austrians stood in great fear of him."

His record in Austria is not a good one and if he is sent there, it is probable that he will be made to answer for the shooting of a girl at a church entertainment. The shooting did not prove fatal and he succeeded in escaping arrest.

The secretary of commerce yesterday wired Brown McDonald, inspector in charge in Duluth, to stay the deportation until another hearing could be granted. Consequently Cacic will not leave Monday for Austria as was intended. It will depend on what the secretary decides after the new evidence has been submitted whether the man shall be deported or not.

HIT PRIVATE BANKERS.

Illinois Association Limits Their Power.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 13.—The representation of private bankers in the offices of the Illinois Bankers' association was cut down by the revising of the constitution of the association made at an executive meeting. Hitherto the private bankers, who are not under state or federal supervision, controlled more than one-half the offices and chairmanships of executive committees, while they had only one-third of the representation of the association. The constitution was amended so that in future all the officers will be elected from the common representation, irrespective of the class of bankers, whether private, state or national.

J. Adam Bede, Minnesota ex-congressman, addressed the meeting on "How to Be Happy." A paper was read by L. L. Baccus, head of the state banking department, on the "Semi-Public Character of Banking and the Mutual Interchange of Confidence Between the People and the Banks." Charles A. Legg of Chicago also made an address, his topic being "Banking Problems in the Merchandizing of Grain."

WANTS FARMERS IN FEDERATION

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 13.—The conserving of the Farmers' congress to a national country life federation, modeled somewhat after the plan of the American Federation of Labor, was proposed today by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Willett M. Hayes, in an address before the annual meeting of the congress here. Mr. Hayes' suggestion is the outgrowth of work he has been carrying on in the agricultural department toward country life development and of the sentiment aroused by President Roosevelt's country life commission.

The national farmers' congress is one of the older agricultural bodies of the country. Mr. Hayes suggested a change in the legislation of the association which would establish a federation similar to the federation of German agricultural societies, a powerful factor in Germany. The plan contemplates a body made up of delegates from all state federations together with representatives of colleges, experiment stations and national organizations associated with the improvement of conditions of farm living.

It is claimed that the representation of colleges, stations and other public departments in the federation will prevent it from being drawn into political lines.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dewittville, N.Y. — "Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — MRS. A. A. GILES, Route 44, Dewittville, N. Y.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

PLACE GYPSY UNDER ARREST

A gypsy, giving her name as Annie Adams, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of having stolen $10 from Philip Slaght when he went to her to have his fortune told.

He claimed that she induced him to surrender his purse, containing two $10 bills, on the pretext that she had to have it in her hand in order to bring him good luck. But he asserted that when the purse was returned to him it was shy one of the bills. It was later found under the leg of a table by a policeman.

The evidence was not very conclusive and she was discharged after a trial in police court this morning.

KILLS HORSE WITH AN AX

Complaint was made to the health department yesterday afternoon of the brutal killing of a sick horse in the vicinity of Woodland.

It is claimed that the suffering animal was lying in a field, and that a man employed by a company which makes a business of hauling away carcases killed it in plain sight with an ax. Several persons who witnessed the killing accidentally, were sickened by the revolting sight.

The complaint was investigated by the health department, and it was announced today that steps would be taken to prevent any repetition of a similar offense in the future. The man's excuse was that he had nothing else with which to kill the animal. Horses will be shot in the future, it is stated, or arrests will be made.

FRAZEE TEAMSTER INSTANTLY KILLED

Frazee, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jean Smith, aged 26, was instantly killed in the yards of the Chisholm Lumber company here Tuesday morning by being crushed under a load of lumber.

He was hauling green lumber and while unloading the load the chain became unfastened and the load "split" so that part of it crashed down upon him, causing instant death.

DULUTH CENTER OF GUERNSEY BREEDING.

George P. Grout, assistant professor in the department of animal husbandary of the State College of Agriculture, was a visitor here yesterday. Prof. Grout was accompanied by his father, T. P. Grout of Minneapolis, formerlyy of Luverne, Rock county.

While here Prof. Grout made a thorough inspection of the Jean Duluth and several other farms in the vicinity of Duluth. After his tour of inspection he made some very flattering remarks regarding the prominence of Duluth as the center of the Guernsey cattle industry in this state.

There are two chief breeds of the dairy cattle in the state, according to Prof. Grout. The Guernseys and the Holsteins are these two breeds. He stated that while the Holsteins were the most prominent in the southern part of the state, that Duluth has grown to that extent where it was now recognized as the chief home of the Guernsey cattle in the state.

Moreover Prof. Grout stated that the Guernsey cattle were increasing here all the time and that in the future Duluth and the northern part of the state would be one of the greatest dairy centers in the Northwest.

High Cost of Living--Reasons Why

Barthe-Martin Co. Way When you buy from Barthe-Martin Co., they divide the melon with you—you get all there is in it because they save you the middlemen's profit and you can put it down in your own pocket.

The Other Way Simply taking money out of your pocket to pay profits to a lot of middlemen.

Fall Orders This is the time of the year to buy your Groceries for winter.

Think About This If a retailer buys one sack of flour for $2.75 and sells it to you for $3.00 to $3.25, is it any better than the flour bought direct of us for $2.75? Would the fact that you pay the dealer from 25c to 50c more than you pay us make it any better?

Remember This Always remember Barthe-Martin Co. divides the melon with you. When you buy from them you simply pay for the actual cost of material and labor with just one small profit added.

There are no middlemen's profits tacked onto you bill and you get the full benefit buying from a real wholesaler selling the goods direct to the user at wholesale prices.

Wheat Has a Bulge in All Leading North American Markets.

Rainy Weather Causes Flax to Go Up in Spite of Good Receipts.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 13.—This was a decidedly bullish day in nearly all the grains. Duluth December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.08⅞, closed today at $1.09⅛ asked. Both December and May showed bulges in the principal markets of the continent. Flax also closed high, October gaining 1½c, and November and December 2 cents. Durum closed 1 cent up, rye ½c up and oats ⅛c up. Barley closed unchanged.

Up to noon today Friday the thirteenth was an unlucky day in the wheat and flax markets for the bears but quite the reverse for the bulls.

Wheat was almost constantly on the up-grade throughout the morning. The eyes of all wheat markets in the world are now upon Argentina. Reports of frosts in that country caused bullish cables from Liverpool, and this in turn made high openings in the North American markets. If any serious damage should occur to the Argentine crop, Duluth brokers declare that there would be the wildest kind of a flurry in every wheat market in the world. There were also reports of bad conditions in Russia and Australia, and this sent wheat still farther up at Liverpool and on this side of the water. Furthermore the wheat receipts in the American markets have been falling off. Railroads estimate that only 229 cars of wheat of all kinds will have arrived at Duluth today before the day is over, whereas Duluth has been receiving between 300 and 400. Duluth December wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.08⅞, opened today at $1.09¼ bid and during the morning climbed as high as $1.09⅝, which was the noon price.

Rainy weather gave flaxseed a boost. Up to today the weather has been fine for flax harvesting, thrashing and marketing, throughout the Northwest, for about six days. This is having its natural effect on flax receipts, which have been increasing. Today's estimated arrivals, according to the railroads, amounted to 31 cars. One would naturally expect this to pull down the price, but the brokers knew that there had been heavy rains over the Northwest and more such weather was likely. Therefore flax went up instead of down. Duluth October, which closed yesterday at $2.36½, opened today at $2.36 bid, but rose during the morning to $2.39 bid. The noon price was $2.38.

DERELICT NOT FOUND

Gopher and Vidette Unsuccessful in Search for Hopkins.

Both Boats Will Make One More Attempt Before Quitting.

Capt. Albert Swenson of the Duluth hydrographic office this morning received a telephone message from Capt. Guy Eaton of the Minnesota training ship, Gopher, which went out Wednesday with the Vidette, the government yacht, in search of the derelict Hopkins. Capt. Eaton and the Gopher were in Ashland.

Capt. Eaton said that no trace had been found of the waterlogged boat, except that some floating lumber was discovered. The Gopher will resume its search today for the wreck. Capt. Eaton is the of the opinion that it has sunk.

John H. Darling, principal engineer to Maj. F. R. Shunk, who sent the Vidette with Capt. Brown to search for the wreck, last evening received word from Capt. Brown, who telephoned from Bayfield that no success had been attained in locating the derelict. It is the belief of Capt. Brown that the boat has sunk, but following orders from the engineer's office, the Vidette will make another attempt to locate her.

The following dispatch was received this morning from Ashland:

"The Minnesota training ship Gopher returned to Ashland last night, having found no trace of the derelict steamer A. L. Hopkins. Two vessels, the Barth and Winnipeg, sighted the derelict some days ago west of Keeweenaw peninsula. The Gopher ran into large fields of floating lumber sixty miles east of Michigan island light.

"The United States engineer's yacht Vidette and tugs Maxwell and Bayfield have been patrolling the waters from Ontonagon to Apostle islands.

"Vessels are instructed to proceed slowly in thick weather between Portage and Ashland until the derelict is located."

Buffalo papers have circulated a report that the Vidette had been sent out by the government to dynamite the wreck of the Hopkins. Mr. Darling of the local corps of engineers gave no such instructions and the Hopkins, if found, will not be blown up, but will be towed to shelter or beached.

WATERWAYS CONVENTION.

National Commission Will Meet in Toledo on Wednesday, Nov. 1.

Toledo, Oct. 13.—The National Waterways commission will hold a meeting in Toledo Wednesday, Nov. 1. Word to this effect was received Tuesday morning by Howard I. Shepherd, chairman of the river and harbor committee of the Toledo Commercial club.

The members of the commission will go from here to Defiance, meeting there Nov. 2.

The object of the visit will be to investigate that portion of the proposed Toledo-Chicago canal extending from Toledo to Fort Wayne, which would involve the deepening of the Maumee river. It is expected the trip from Toledo to Grand Rapids, Ohio, will be made in automobiles and from Grand Rapids to Defiance in a small boat.

Traffic Decreases.

Traffic through the United States and Canadian canals for September, according to report of Canal Superintendent Sabin, shows a decrease of 1,320,112 short tons in down bound and an increase of 479,582 tons in up bound freight compared with September, 1910.

GRAIN RATE INCREASED

Some Activity Shown in Shipments From Head of Lakes.

Few Boats Will Remain in Commission During November.

Two steamers, the Western Star and the F. C. Ball, cleared today with grain cargoes and it is generally understood that business was done today at a rate of 1½ cents. This is an advance over what shippers were offering for tonnage the first of the week, when 1¼ cents was offered.

The slump in grain shipments from this harbor last week was due in part to the gale which swept over the entire chain of lakes, thus holding a number of the big carriers in port. It is understood that the Bickbee and another boat are fitting out for next week's loadings.

In order for grain shippers to take advantage of the prevailing rail rate on grain from Buffalo to points East before the advance of about 1 cent a bushel is made, Nov. 1, they must load in cars or in boats waiting to be unloaded at the elevators, not later than midnight, Oct. 31.

Little change is noted in the coal trade, except that the vessels are getting somewhat better dispatch. At Fort William there is no indication of a better condition and the congestion is so great that boats are held up from ten to fifteen days before they can be unloaded. The dock operated by the Canadian Pacific railroad at the Canadian Head of the Lakes, is unable to cope with the situation.

Ore shippers are beginning to count the number of loads that they expect to send down the lakes. Not only will ore shippers lay up their fleets earlier this fall than usual, but it is reported that some managers of independent fleets will put their boats into winter quarters this month rather than face the November storms.

The fleets carrying their own insurance will be among the first to lay up. Some of them have intimated that the season would be closed as soon after the first of November as contracts would permit. They argue that the greatest risk of the season is taken in November and with rates as low as they are this year the margin of profit is so small it will not pay to take the chances.

PIPE BROKEN BY ANCHORS

Ashland Faces Possibility of Typhoid Epidemic This Winter.

The intake pipe furnishing the water supply for the city of Ashland has been broken in a number of places by vessel anchors and 1,000 feet of the pipe is said to have been torn away.

The pipe is about 5,000 feet long and after it passes the ore docks, it lies directly in the path of vessels. The 2,000 feet inside the docks is safe, but the outside 3,000 feet is in danger of being broken by anchors.

This week divers sent down to inspect the pipes reported that the pipe had been broken and in a number of cases dragged so far away that the pieces could not be found. Two broken anchors, weighing from 3,000 to 5,000 pounds were found lodged among the disjointed sections of pipe.

The city council of Ashland is in a quandary. It is now too late to put in a new pipe this fall or to install a filtration bed or storage reservoir before spring. Typhoid fever is coming in from the lumber camps and the situation promises to be serious.

READY FOR WINTER WORK AT LOCKPORT

Excavations for Canal Locks Expected to Be Completed Next Spring.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 13.—With the closing of navigation little more than thirty days away contractors on the barge canal locks are already beginning preparations for the long winter season which, this year, is expected to bring the completion of practically all of the excavating necessary for the two lock structures. Large quantities of gravel for the concrete work for the steel gate at the head of the new locks are now being dumped behind the temporary dam, which, with its braces, is the only barrier to the great head of water sweeping down into the lower level of the canal.

Permanent structures will be started at the head of the new lock just as soon as the water is drawn off in November and the upper lock gates with the additional steel gate which is designed as extra protection, will be placed in position. With this done and the abutments for the big bridge completed and the Cottage street bridge torn down, the rest of the winter will be given over to excavating for the lower lock, which begins about 20 feet west of Pine street bridge and will go down 15 feet below the surface mark of the present water level below the locks.

With this excavation well under way, it is hoped to complete all work of this kind before navigation opens in May, 1912. By that time the new gate will be in position and the water kept out of the new lock excavations. Then with warmer weather the concrete work can proceed to much better advantage and all of it will be pushed right ahead from that time on. There is considerable expense to concrete work through the winter as the water has to be heated and much greater care and time taken in covering the material until it sets. For this reason the contractors, Larkin & Sangster, decided to excavate this winter and start the remainder of the concrete work in the spring.

Parks Is Released.

The steamer Sheldon Parks of the Commonwealth Steamship company, which was tied up at Escanaba some time ago on a claim for insurance by Willcox, Peck & Hughes, has been released and will be in commission by the end of the week. The captain was yesterday ordered to the Parks, which is partly loaded with ore. The steamers J. Q. Riddle and Abraham Stearn will not be started this season.

NEW STEAMER FOR PASSENGER SERVICE.

The lake shipbuilders have been asked for bids by the Graham & Morton Transportation company of Chicago for a passenger steamer for the Lake Michigan trade. The boat must be ready for delivery next June.

The plans and specifications are in the hands of the builders and the bids will be opened the latter part of next month. The Chicago firm operates the steamers City of Benton Harbor, City of Chicago, City of Travers, Puritan and Holland.

CONVERTED INTO LUMBER CARRIER.

The old package freighter Alaska, which James O'Connor recently purchased from the Anchor line, has been converted into a lumber carrier and is on its way from Tonawanda to Duluth. The boat was built in 1871 and has been in service most of the time.

Inspecting Locks.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Junior Engineer Meyer of the St. Paul district is here looking over the government locks. He will spend several days here studying lock construction.

Plans for new locks are being drawn for the Upper Mississippi river, which is in the St. Paul district. These will be modeled after the locks in use on the Great Lakes, as it is thought they will best serve the purpose.

New Guard Gates.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 13.—Preparations have been made to hang the new guard gates between Bridge Island and the south side of the American canal. The old gates have served their purpose well, but it was necessary to get new ones in position this year to keep up with improvements and changes.

JUSTICE HARLAN IS DEAD

Member of Supreme Court Succumbs to Acute Bronchitis.

Has Record of Third Longest Service in That Tribunal.

Known From Opinions He Rendered as the "Workingman's Friend."

Washington, Oct. 14.—Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan, the oldest member of the supreme court of the United States, for years conspicuous in Kentucky politics, once candidate for the Republican nomination for vice president of the United States, a foremost constitutional authority and prominent in the councils of the Presbyterian church, died at his home in this city today. He was 78 years old last June.

Justice Harlan had been ill with acute bronchitis less than a week. He sat on the bench last Monday when the court heard arguments on the so-called anthracite coal trust case. The following morning Justice White announced that Justice Harlan was "slightly ill," and yesterday asked attorneys to consider that Justice Harlan was sitting in their cases, although not physically present.

Did Not Realize Seriousness.

Justice Harlan, however, was in much more serious condition than his colleagues in the court realized. Despite his advanced age, he was robust and ordinarily enjoyed the best of health. He was rarely absent from the bench, an attack of influenza a few years ago being almost the only illness from which he had suffered for a long period.

The sudden death of Associate Justice Brewer of the supreme court, who was not only a colleague on the bench but a very close personal friend, very much affected Justice Harlan, whose friends have felt some apprehension of the serious consequences of the shock of Justice Brewer's death.

RODGERS RESUMES WESTWARD FLIGHT

Starts From Kansas City Along Southern Route.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 14.—C. P. Rodgers, the aviator, arose from the field at Overland Park, across the state line from here, at 11:55 this morning in a resumption of his flight across the continent. Rodgers will follow the tracks of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway to Texas, taking the southern route through California. Rodgers hopes to reach Parsons, Kan., late today.

Fame, and the honor of being the first to cross the United States from ocean to ocean in an aeroplane, are now the only incentives for Rodgers to continue his flight across the continent. Rodgers realized he started too late on his journey from New York to reach Los Angeles by Oct. 17, the time limit set by William R. Hearst when he offered a prize of $50,000 to the aviator who would fly first across the country.

TAFT TURNS FIRST SOD

Breaks Ground for the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Elaborate Celebration Marks the Event in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—The first actual work of the Panama-Pacific international exposition, to be held in 1915, was begun today, when President Taft turned the first spadeful of earth at the fair site. The ships of the Pacific fleet riding at anchor in the harbor joined in the celebration, and the line of march of the military parade was thronged by enthusiastic thousands.

The ground-breaking took place at the stadium in Golden Gate park, which occupies a part of the site of the fair. Many thousand soldiers, regulars and militia took part in the exercises.

A battery of field guns from the Presidio was stationed on the hill overlooking the stadium, and when the president hoisted the national colors to the top of a tall flagstaff, the national salute of twenty-one guns was fired and echoed by the forts and warships.

Sod Will Be Preserved.

Immediately afterward the president turned the first earth for the fair, and

NEW VESSEL LINE MAY PRECIPITATE RATE WAR

Independent Steamers Will Cut Rates on Return Freight Also.

Duluth Differential Retained —Commission Recognizes the New Line.

WHAT THE NEW LINE MEANS.

Former rate, Minneapolis to New York, 23 cents per 100.
New rate from Minneapolis to New York, 20.2 cents.
Former rate from Duluth to New York, 18 cents.
New rate from Duluth to New York, 15.2.
Saving to Minneapolis millers, approximately $400,000 a year.

The new independent line of steamers designed by the Minneapolis millers to carry flour shipments from Duluth to Buffalo, is a realty.

Duluth vessel men claimed that it couldn't be done; that the boats were not available; that the new line would lose money; and that terminals could not be secured. But in spite of these claims the new line is now ready for business, with two steamers, and it has been given the recognition of the Interstate commerce commission. It means that the great milling industry of Minneapolis will remain in the West, instead of being transferred to Buffalo, say local traffic men, and it also may mean one of the greatest rate wars seen on the lakes in years.

The Situation.

Briefly outlined, here is the situation:

The old rate on flour from Minneapolis to New York was 23 cents, divided as follows: Minneapolis to Duluth, 5.8 cents; Duluth to Buffalo, 8 cents; Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents.

The new line of steamers has established the rate of 20.2 cents, made up

ROBINSON AGAIN FAILS TO START

Says Air Currents at Minneapolis Make It Dangerous.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Hehald.)—Aviator Robinson made his second attempt to get away on his Minneapolis-to-New Orleans Mississippi river flight at 9:35 today. He returned to the float on Lake Calhoun at 9:45. He said the air currents were downward, making a flight dangerous, but if the sun came out he might make another start later.

PRESIDENT MAY VISIT GREAT HOMESTAKE MINE.

Lead, S. D., Oct. 14.—President Taft will be asked to make a short underground trip in the Homestake mine and see the workings of the "greatest gold mine on earth." The local entertainment committee for Taft day, Oct. 21, interviewed Supt. Grier of the company, and he agreed to make all necessary arrangements so that if the president accepts the invitation to go into the mine he will be amply provided for.

EXTRA SESSION TALK SPREADING AND FEW PROTESTS ARE HEARD

HARD TO GET JURY TO TRY McNAMARAS

Lawyers Say Change of Venue May Become Necessary.

Arguments Over Nelson's Suitability Made Before Court.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—Many lawyers about the court room early today were discussing the likelihood of getting a jury at all to try James B. McNamara. Should Nelson be disqualified, it was pointed out that it would be well nigh impossible to get a dozen men from the 100 on the list of the court, who already had not formed some opinion on the case. Should it develop after a time, it is said, that the panel was rapidly being exhausted, it would not be surprising if the defense asked for a change of venue on the ground that nobody could be found in Los Angeles who had not acquired fixed prejudice on the case because of its notoriety in this section.

Find "Silent Barber."

The "silent barber" needed to shave the talesmen was found today in the person of George W. Karrow. Accompanied by a red plush barber chair, he was taken to the jury exercise room, and after being duly sworn to reveal nothing that he might learn, was allowed to go to work at the noon recess. He said he could shave all twelve talesmen in that time.

From now on that will be a part of his daily duty.

Further argument as to whether Z. T. Nelson should be sworn

WILL NOT SIT IN STANNARD TRIAL

Judge Cooper Refuses to Preside in the Murder Case.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 14.—A Detroit Journal special from Ontonagon says: Circuit Judge Cooper of Ironwood has refused to sit at the trial of Mrs. Laura Stannard, charged with poisoning her husband, Charles Stannard, a wealthy lumberman of Greenland, who died a few months ago.

Passage of Increased Gross Earnings Tax Bill Is Demanded.

Freight Rates Raised Fifty Per Cent in Many Instances.

Governor Likely to Yield to Pressure and Call Legislature.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The extra session ball is moving, gathering strength as it goes. When politicians gather in the corridors of the capitol or around the circular divans at the Merchants hotel, in visiting St. Paul, the conversation opens something like this:

"What d'you know about an extra session?"

"Don't know much. What d'you know?"

"'Pears to me it might not be a bad idea, seein' as how the supreme court has put the rate cases over till January."

"Folks are all discussin' it. If the railroads are going to wax it to the people of the state on freight rates, we might just as well get some of it back by increasing the gross earnings tax. The United States supreme court has held that the state has power to increase the tax as conditions justify it."

And so the conversation runs. Seldom is a protest against calling the legislative body heard. R. C. Dunn of Princeton was here a day or two ago, declaring with customary avidity that such a move would be a fool thing to do. With equal determination Speaker H. H. Dunn insists that the calling of an extra session is not out of the question and favors the passage of an increased gross earnings tax bill.

Increased Freight Rates.

While there has been no move thus far toward asking the governor to Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 14.—The New York Giants of the National League today won the first game of the 1911 world championship series from the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League by a score of 2 to 1. It was a pitchers' battle almost all the way, Bender proving faster than Mathewson, but not getting as good support. The batteries were: Philadelphia, Bender and Thomas; New York, Mathewson and Meyers. The umpires were Klem and Brennan of the Nationals and Connelly and Dineen of the Americans.

The scene within the Polo grounds as the game began was one of intense animation. The vast multitude filled every available seat of the stadium and bleachers. From housetops, galleries, telegraph poles and window ledges a fringe of excited people encircled the field. The police arrangements had been so well matured that there was comparatively little disorder, and nothing reaching the dimensions of panic or the riotous demonstrations which it had been feared might occur.

It was estimated that the crowd numbered upwards of 50,000 people and would probably reach 60,000. Down town speculators reaped a harvest and charged fabulous eleventh-hour prices for chairs in the grandstand.

Scores of persons appeared at the grounds with counterfeit tickets which they had purchased from specu-

AGED BANKER GETS LONGED-FOR FREEDOM

JOHN R. WALSH.

WALSH IS PAROLED

Former Chicago Banker Released From Federal Prison.

Decision Comes After He Had Given Up All Hope.

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 14.—John R. Walsh was released from the federal penitentiary here shortly after noon today. Accompanied by his son, Richard, who had arrived from the north a short time before, they entered an automobile and started at a rapid rate for Kansas City, where they will board an evening train for the north.

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 14.—An order from Washington paroling John R. Walsh, the former Chicago banker and railway president, was received at the federal prison here this morning. The prisoner at once began preparations for the start home.

Mr. Walsh, up to the time of his parole, had served one year, eight months and twenty-six days of his five years sentence. When told that he was to be released, the aged prisoner plainly showed his pleasure. Later, it was announced, the ex-banker's son would arrive from Chicago during the day, and that the start for home probably would be made late this afternoon.

Plea Heard Sept. 26.

Mr. Walsh went before the parole board here on Sept. 26 last and presented his petition for release. The board at the same session heard the petitions of a dozen other ex-bankers, besides those of fifty prisoners serving sentences for various crimes.

CHINESE REBEL CHIEF IN CHICAGO

Dr. Sen Has Had Many Adventures in His Career.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 14.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, leader of the revolutionists in China, was in Kansas City last night. He came here to hold a public meeting for the Chinese of Kansas City. A cablegram from Pekin advising him of the situation there caused him to hurry to Chicago.

Dr. Sen long has been identified with the Chinese revolutionary movement, and from that city carries on the revolutionary movement. The plot was discovered and fifteen of the instigators slain. Dr. Sen fled to Hongkong, where he became a British subject.

Since that time he has labored earnestly in the cause of the revolution. In 1900 he lectured in England and in this country, appealing especially to Chinese students.

In England, while passing the Chinese legation building, he was induced to come inside, then informed suddenly that he was on Chinese soil. Detectives were placed around the building by his friends to prevent his deportation, and as an English subject the plan to kidnap him was frustrated.

The spirit behind the revolution in China is typified in Kang Yu Wei, who has been in exile from his country since 1898. As a student Kang Wu Wei has an international reputation. Before 1898 he was adviser to the late emperor, but because of his ideas of reform he was driven into exile when the dowager empress resumed her regency. For a time he wandered about, then found asylum under the British flag in the Straits settlement.

TAKE SHOTS AT ADMINISTRATION

Farmers' Congress Speakers Oppose Some of Taft's Policies.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Having adopted drastic resolutions denouncing the recent reciprocity pact, opponents of President Taft began a campaign last night for the adoption by the National Farmers' congress of a number of resolutions, the presentation of which is expected to draw generally the lines of conflict between the national administration opponents and its supporters. One of the matters which is to be sprung will be a resolution in which emphatic indorsement is given to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley.

Indications are that George M. Whitaker of Washington will be elected president. The other candidates are C. F. Sanford of London, Ont., and Treasurer W. L. Ames of Wisconsin.

Oppose Tariff Commission.

Opposition to the national tariff commission was voiced in an address by George M. Stahl of Chicago, legislative agent for the farmers' organization. It was declared that it became apparent early in January that the tariff commission was nothing more than an assault on the interests of the farmer "even before the alleged reciprocity pact was made public."

Predicting the early passage of the parcels post bill, he read a letter from Minority Leader James R. Mann, pledging support. He said Speaker Champ Clark would not commit himself.

The congress is expected to indorse the action of the governors' conference in appointing a committee to safeguard the rights of states before the federal courts.

JULIUS SCHMAHL'S WIFE IS VERY ILL

Secretary of State Detained at Home By Her Condition.

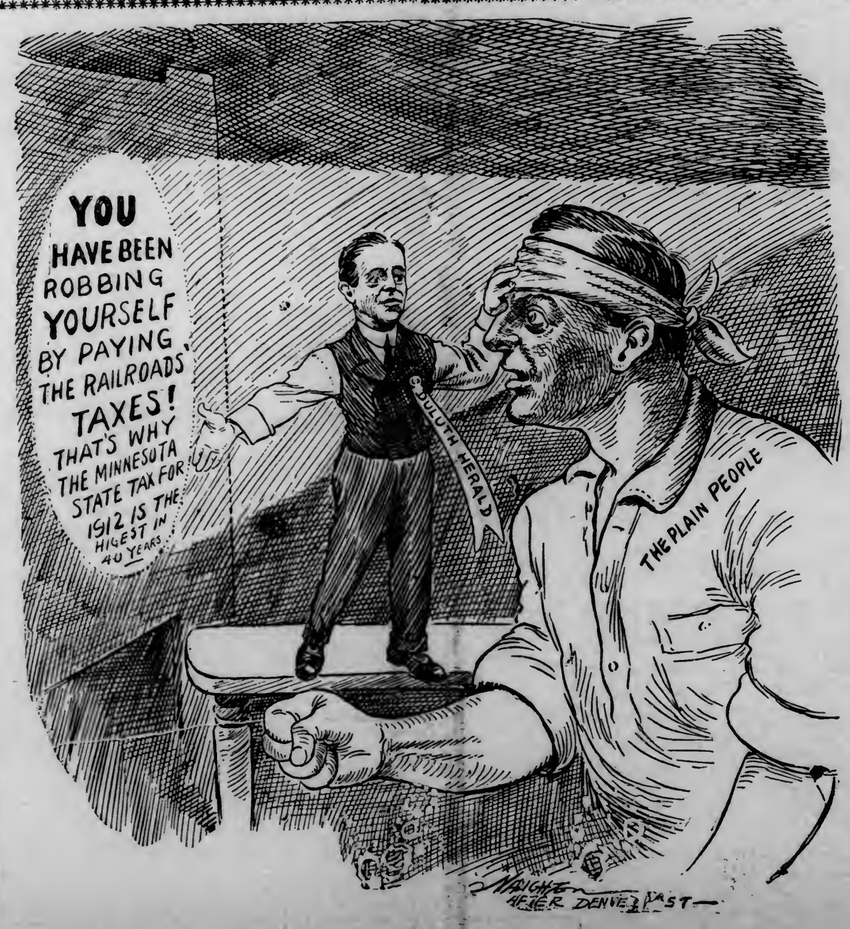

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The condition of Mrs. Julius Schmahl, wife of the secretary of state, is not improved today. Effort is being made to avoid an operation on her for internal trouble, but physicians are not positive it can be done.

Mr. Schmahl did not join members of the drainage commission inspecting ditches in the northern part of the state last night, as he had planned. The serious condition of Mrs. Schmahl caused him to remain at home.

NO SHOOTING IN CITY LIMITS

Plain Clothes Men Will Be on the Job Sunday.

Now is the time to pay attention to the laws which prohibit the discharge of firearms in the city limits. Tomorrow may be too late.

So many complaints have been made of this practice, which has been becoming altogether too common, that Mayor Cullum today took the matter up with the police department. The result will be that plain clothes men will be detailed tomorrow to be on the lookout for youths and others who shoot in the parks or anywhere in the city, with strict instructions to arrest every offender who can be apprehended.

The police did not want the warning published. They took the stand that plenty of warnings have already been given and that the best method now is to make all the arrests possible, demonstrating in positive terms that shooting will not be tolerated in Duluth. Their idea was that if a score or more arrests should be made and examples made of the culprits, anyone who has any inclination in that direction would in the future be more effectually deterred than would otherwise be the case.

SPANISH BRIGAND CAUGHT

Old-Fashioned Bandit of Romance Who Lived in Cave High in the Mountains—Once Was Bull-Fighter of Renoun.

Paris, Oct. 14.—The Spanish brigand Morera, of whom many tales of ferocity and daring are told in lonely mountain districts of Northern Portugal and in the Gallician province of Spain, has been captured by Portuguese troops. Morera was the old-fashioned bandit of romance living in a cave high in the mountains. He had been a bull-fighter of renown in Madrid who escaped to the hills after a crime of violence. To there he was followed by the actress Lola.

This was years ago, and since then Morera had led a life of desperate adventure, marauding in three countries, for sometimes he would penetrate into Southern France and sack a village or plunder and burn a chateau. Usually he operated in Spain and Portugal until his excesses in one country became intolerable. Then he would go into the other. For some months he has been devastating the district of Valongo, near Oporto. Last Friday a detachment of Portuguese troops surprised Morera and his band of sixteen men and pursued them to their cave in the mountains. Two brigands were killed and six wounded in the first heavy volley of the troops. Lola fired her revolver with utmost coolness, wounding two soldiers. She, Morera, and the survivors were overpowered. In the cave a quantity of loot was found which will be divided among the captors if owners are not found.

Famous Old Mansion.

While all Paris—or that small and exclusive minority which calls itself "All Paris"—was seeking shade and distractions by the sea or on the mountain, two happy mortals passed their vacation under the abundant leafage of the park surrounding the magnificent old Eighteenth century mansion, the Hotel de Biron, until recently the home of the school conducted by the Sisters of the Sacred Heart. Acquired by the state from the liquidators of the estates of the religious orders after the separation of church and state, it is proposed to use it as a palace for the meetings of international conferences and to throw the grounds open to the public.

It has been let out in apartments this summer, among the tenants being Rodin. The famous sculptor found the garden an excellent place to work in, and prevailed upon Ex-Premier Clemenceau to pose to him for his bust. The artist became so interested in his sitter that he made not one but three busts, one of which will figure either at the autumn salon or at next spring's Societe Nationale exhibition.

Among the other tenants of the Hotel Biron are de Max, the Roumanian-French tragedian, and Henri Matisse, probably the greatest living post-impressionist painter.

"Monsieur Pickwick."

The Dickens passion in Paris reached a climax with the performance of "Monsieur Pickwick" at the Athenee. This little theater was packed with notables at the invitation first night, and, judging from the applause which followed the fall of the curtain, the new piece should have a long and prosperous run.

The adaptation of Mm. Duval and Charvay will be less likely, in the opinion of critics, to appeal to genuine Dickens lovers, armed with page-long quotations, than to the fashionable French Anglophile who is ready to accept whatever is offered by the land of Shakespeare. But, while of necessity many liberties have been taken with the original scheme, it would be idle to deny the ingenuity with which the various incidents have been chosen and ground together. In an entertainment lasting three hours it would be utterly impossible to expect more than a glimpse at the most important figures in Dicken's masterpiece.

The scenery, to which special study has been given, is unusual and extremely artistic, the black outlines and flat tones producing an astonishing effect of unrealism. It was as if a series of old popular English prints had come to life. The quaint customs completed this unique and very charming effect.

Plays on "David Copperfield" and "Martin Chuzzlewit" are in rehearsal and will be produced during the coming season at two different Paris theaters.

May Meet in Frisco.

The extraordinary results which American investigators have attained in the mixing of vegetable species so as to produce original and more useful varieties have been more discussed by the European members of the International Genetic congress than any other new material brought before that body of savants at the conference just ended in Paris. This association deals with the principles that underlie the propagation and development of life both in plant and animal, leading up in the end to the intricate research into the conscious modification of the human species.

Prince Roland Bonaparte, whose absorption in science has entirely withdrawn him from politics, did much to make the present congress a success. He and Phillip Vilmorin, the secretary, are in favor, on account of the interesting work of Americans, of holding the next meeting projected for 1915 in San Francisco, that is during the Exposition year. Walter T. Swingle of the department of agriculture, one of the delegates of the United States government, persuaded many of the European members to favor the long journey to San Francisco. The next meeting place has been left to the decision of a committee which will take San Francisco into consideration.

Harvard was represented by Prof. E. E. Sauthard, director of the Psychopathic hospital, Boston. Professor Laughlin was here, representing the Carnegie Laboratory of Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., G. N. Collins and Dr. Stockberger the department of agriculture, Frank M. Surface the Kentucky Experiment station, and C. E. Saunders the Canadian government.

The American delegates were told often that the United States was the only government that gives adequate support to investigations of this kind. European inquirers and experimentors are for the most part working out of their own resources. Monsieur Phillip Vilmorin, in France of the hereditary family of seedsman, and his brother Maurice, president of the French Rotanical society, devote much of their income to scientific investigation.

PRISONER HAS TRIP TO ST. PAUL

Charles Plummer Appears as Witness in Civil Action There.

Charles Plummer, who was recently bound over to the grand jury after a hearing in municipal court, at which time he was charged with having embezzled some $2,000 from the Minnesota Fruit company, had a trip to St. Paul during the week with Sheriff John R. Meining.

Plummer, some years ago, held a position as scaler with the Vermilion Lumber company. There was a dispute over the number of feet contained in a certain allotment of logs and Plummer was secured to tell what he knew of the case.

Sheriff Meining took him to St. Paul Wednesday and brought him back Friday. Plummer says that the trip to St. Paul was a welcome break in the monotony of jail life.

Not in a long time has a prisoner at the county jail been taken out of the institution and to another city to appear as a witness in a civil action.

Bedford Denies Wiley Statement.

President Bedford of the Corn Products Refining company denies Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's statement made before the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture, that the Corn Products company secured by pressure a reversal of the board of food and drug inspection's opinion in regard to the labeling of glucose and corn syrup, when state chemists were unanimous against calling it "corn syrup." He said:

"The Corn Products' claim was that corn syrup was a proper and descriptive title, the same as corn meal, corn starch or corn sugar is for the other products of corn. Dr. Wiley insisted the more technical word 'glucose' should be used and adopted, which is not descriptive of a product of corn, as glucose is made from potatoes and various other products. All the states, with the exception of Wisconsin, have adopted the title 'corn syrup,' and all the authorities have certified to the correctness of the name.

"The matter was thoroughly tried in Washington on a rehearing granted by Secretary Wilson, with the approval of President Roosevelt, Judge Calhoun presenting the case, Prof. Chandler and other high authorities testifying, Secretary Wilson, Solicitor McCabe and Dr. Dunlap assenting, Dr. Wiley alone dissenting. Dr. Wiley was fully advised of the new hearing, was present, and argued the matter in person, and presented a brief of over seventy-five pages, in which he accused the Corn Products of all manner of evil doing, one of which was the watering of their stock, which was the reverse, for the stock was reduced, the Corn Products accepting three shares for two."

CONCERT IS A DELIGHT

Alice Nielsen and Riccardo Martin Please Large Duluth Audience.

Duluth enjoyed a grand opera debauch last evening, with some old favorite American songs thrown in for good measure.

Alice Nielsen and Riccardo Martin brought probably the finest company of concert singers ever heard in Duluth, and the audience which filled the Lyceum last evening to hear them was a most enthusiastic one. Every number on the program was encored. The program was composed almost entirely of grand and comic opera selections of the better known class, and the encores were, in many instances, favorite songs of a generation ago, like "My Old Kentucky Home," "Down on the Swanee River" and "Comin' Through the Rye." Miss Nielsen's mannerisms brought from the comic opera stage, are just as charming and delightful as ever, and it is indeed a treat to watch a slim prima donna again. The slim type of prima donna is almost extinct, but Miss Nielsen is as graceful and attractive as ever.

It was noticed that Mr. Martin had to constantly refer to written words while singing "My Old Kentucky Home," but he showed his loyalty by attempting the number at least.

It would be a carping critic, indeed, who would find any fault with the concert as a whole. It was delightful from the first number to the last.

Mr. Martin's first number was the famed "Dick Johnson" aria from "The Girl of the Golden West," which was one of the finest features of the program. His rich tenor voice which won for him the title of "America's Greatest Tenor," was surely at its best with its depth of feeling and clear rich notes. His personality, too, was pleasingly felt in his singing. Mr. Martin is one of the few great tenors who has retained his waist line and his fine personal appearance adds much to the pleasure of hearing him.

Senor Mardones opened the program with a bass solo "Piff, Paff" from the Hugenots, by Meyerbeer, and it was a most auspicious opening, for he is the possessor of a magnificent voice which he uses with ability.

Miss Swartz, who sang the second number, has a charmingly modulated full rich contralto voice and Signor Fornarl, a baritone of much personal magnetism and great dramatic power, also won much praise and long applause for his numbers.

Miss Nielsen and Signor Fornari sang a duet in costume which the audience applauded until they repeated it and the closing number, the sextette from "Lucia," sung by the company, was also received with such enthusiasm that the singers had to repeat it before the audience was satisfied to leave.

Signor Clandestini accompanied all of the singers during the concert and his work was artistic and finished in every detail.

The success of this concert, both from its great artistic standpoint and from the point of attendance, only affirms the fact that Duluth is musically inclined and leaves no doubt of the success of the other big musical attractions which are coming during the season.

The next event in the musical season arranged by the committee composed of T. W. Hugo, Stephen H. Jones and Horace W. Reyner, will be the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which will be here Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10 and 11.

TOWNS REBUILT.

Albert Berg, former secretary of state and at the present time a banker of Spooner, is in the city today, a guest of the Spalding.

Mr. Berg stated that the building of Spooner and Baudette had progressed so rapidly that it would not be long before these towns were in a position where they were before the fire. Mr. Berg believes that Spooner and Baudette have remarkable periods of growth ahead of them and is also an enthusiast in regard to the future development of the entire northern part of Minnesota.

THREE MAY BE IN RACE

Miller, Boyle and Norton May All Seek Congressional Nomination.

Miller Said to Have Reconsidered His Plan to Retire.

Prospects are considered good for a lively, three-cornered fight for the Republican congressional nomination in the Eighth district.

Those who have followed the political situation state that there is every reason to believe that Congressman Miller will be a candidate for renomination for a third term; that State Senator James P. Boyle will be pitted against him; and that County Attorney John H. Norton will be in the race with the other two.

Some time ago it was said that Congressman Miller would not again seek congressional honors. But he appears to have changed his mind. About the same time reports had it that Senator Boyle would be a candidate if Miller did not get into the game. Now it appears that both of them will be in the congressional political arena. County Attorney Norton, it is claimed, is also seriously considering the proposition, his friends believing that in a three-cornered contest he will stand an excellent show of coming out on the top of the heap.

The Democrats are also looking over the field for an acceptable candidate. Throughout the country the Democrats have been winning normally strong Republican districts, and they are of the opinion that with the right man in the field, the feat could be duplicated here. Thus far the only man who has been mentioned is Andrew Nelson, at present a member of the school board and well-known in local Democratic circles.

Boyle Not Out.

The following comment from the Eveleth News, touching upon the congressional situation, will be of interest as helping to throw a little light on the Republican side of the subject.

"Word comes from the Eighth district that Senator James P. Boyle has taken a second thought and decided not to run for congress next year. He has another two years as state senator, and will wait a while before tackling the larger game. He was booked to receive the support of the progressive element if he had run, but many of his friends advised him not to make the try next year. The field is still clear for Clarence B. Miller, after considerable dust-throwing. It may become necessary for Alex. G. McKnight to save the country again.—Cheney, in the Minneapolis Journal."

"The Journal's political writer has been misinformed. Senator Boyle has not decided to withdraw from the congressional contest. In fact, Mr. Boyle really has not entered the contest as yet, hence he is not in a position to withdraw. But the News may say that he has received all kinds of encouragement from every part of the Eighth district and has the matter under serious consideration. Even should it develop that the so-called interests are supporting Mr. Miller that fact will not deter Mr. Boyle, who has neither solicited nor expected any special support from such a source."

GLIMPSE OF THE ORIENT

Real Chinese Dinner Served By Duluth Celestials to Countrymen.

Don Queues and Native Costume and Bow to Dragons.

A wierd Oriental atmosphere that hardly seemed possible for a city like Duluth; the pungent odor of burning spices of the Orient filling the room; the mysterious gloom of shaded Chinese lamps; and around the room the carved effigies of the symbolic dragon were among the surprises that greeted the ordinary Duluthian who chanced to go in the Mandarin cafe for a chop suey last evening. Looking about and wondering whether he had fallen into some Chinese den, the newcomer would be welcomed and told to watch the proceedings.

Several local Chinese were giving a real Asiatic dinner for their countrymen who doubted their ability as cooks after being in this country for so many years. The hosts had planned a unique surprise for their local brothers and went so far as to dress in the quaint Oriental costumes, putting on the long queue that has now been almost forgotten in this country and is gradually dying out in old China. It was as if the East and West were meeting, with the hosts in their native costumes, with long queues and the guests in the most modern of American wearing apparel and their hair closely cropped.

The clinking of the odd dishes in the semi-darkened room and the stealthy walking of the hosts in their soft slippers fascinated the casual onlookers seated about the assembly. Serving the purple colored wines in queer cob-webbed vessels, the guests were as much surprised as the strangers, and when the quaint Chinese songs were being rendered while the guests were partaking of the various foods and meats, it could be easily guessed that the American Chinese had "shown" their Missouri friends from Asia. Then prayer was given to the old effigies of the sun and the moon. They bowed to the symbolic dragon that was carved in the lamps, on the walls and in their dishes. Suddenly the lights were turned on and the place was again the Chinese restaurant.

The wierd atmosphere was gone, the dishes and goblets seemed to clink differently; the waiters made a noise when they walked; that aromatic odor was gone; the audience was again in dear old Duluth eating American chop suey.

The affair was one of the oddest an American could have the opportunity to witness in his own country.

MACHINES FOR VOTING

Plan to Equip All Precincts Will Be Submitted to Council.

Another effort will be made to install voting machines in Duluth to replace the paper ballot system now in use.

The Empire Voting Machine company, with headquarters at Minneapolis, it is stated, will make the city council a proposition in the near future. The feature will be that the city will be given an opportunity to equip itself with the machines and pay for them out of the savings which will be effected by their use in elections over the paper ballot system.

One of the machines, similar to those which have been in use in Minneapolis, will be placed on exhibition in the office of the city clerk next Monday. An expert demonstrator will be on hand to fully explain the working of the machine and to point out its desirable qualities.

A similar proposition was made several years ago, but it was refused for various reasons, among which was the question of the heavy expense.

FIRE PREVENTION TO BE DISCUSSED

Meeting Being Planned to Take Place at St. Paul Nov. 8.

Arrangements are being completed for the holding of the Fire Prevention congress at the St. Paul hotel, St. Paul, on Nov. 8. Workers of national prominence in the movement for fire prevention will be present and take part in the proceedings of the congress.

As there have been many fires in Minnesota and the losses great, people generally are expected to take a great interest in the meetings. People from all parts of the state are cordially invited to attend.

The fire losses in Minnesota in July, 1910, were $650,000 and for the same month in 1911 were $520,000. The fire losses in August a year ago were $160,000 and during that month this year were $165,000.

The fire losses for the United States for the first eight months in 1909 were $116,088,000; in 1910 they were $115,672,000, and in 1911, $139,577,000.

TRUNK BLOWS UP; ONE DEAD, ANOTHER DYING.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 14.—A terrific explosion wrecked the Canadian Pacific railway depot at La Combe, Alberta, last evening, killing B. G. McLeod, baggageman, and fatally injuring Walter Bickford, his assistant. The roof and sides of the building were blown out.

Two Italians had left two trunks in the building during the day. The Italians have been arrested, and it is said admit having had chemicals in the trunks for photographic purposes. The detectives do not accept this explanation. The explosion broke windows in the business portion of the town and shook houses half a mile away.

BIG EXPANSION IN BANK BUSINESS

Resources $1,181,200,000 Greater Than They Were in 1910.

Washington, Oct. 14.—There was a big expansion of the banking business during the last year, according to reports to the comptroller of the currency, from practically every incorporated bank in the United States. The reports say that in June the total resources of banks were more than $23,631,500,000, an increase of $1,181,200,000 as compared with 1910. There were 24,371 institutions heard from this year, which was 1,276 more than reported in 1910.

An analysis of the resources and liabilities showed:

Loans $13,047,300,000, an increase as compared with 1910 of $575,500,000; investment in bonds $5,052,000,000, increase $328,500,000; cash on hand $1,552,700,000, increase $128,900,000; capital $1,952,400,000, increase $472,400,000; surplus and profits $2,065,600,000, increase $113,000,000; and individual deposits $15,907,000,000, increase $623,600,000.

MEANS MILLION FOR MINNESOTA

Payment of Death Duties on Big Estates Is Sought.

New York, Oct. 14.—George T. Simpson, attorney general of Minnesota, left last night for St. Paul after a two-days' visit here, during which he consulted attorneys representing the estates of Russell Sage, D. O. Mills, D. Willis James, Morris K. Jesup and H. O. Havemeyer, in connection with the proposed collection of inheritance taxes. It was estimated that the claims of Minnesota, based on stocks of Minnesota corporations which the deceased held, will amount to more than $1,000,000.

Attorney General Simpson expressed confidence of collecting the large sums, and said that the case of the estate of John Stewart Kennedy, which settled with Wisconsin by paying $355,000 inheritance tax on $23,000,000 worth of stock of the Northern Pacific railroad, was a precedent.

Mr. Simpson is quoted as saying that if the estates concerned decide to contest Minnesota's claim, the state will commence directly a series of suits.

RUNAWAY BOYS HAVE RETURNED.

Earl Linkem and George Etchoe, who went from Duluth to St. Paul Saturday night, returned yesterday. The former's parents were greatly worried over his disappearance and asked the police to aid in a search for him. The boys did not give any reason for their trip further than that Etchoe had told a chum that he was going to see a girl in Anoka before he left this part of the country to return to his mother in British Columbia.

BIG REFORM IN CRIMINAL CODE

California Adopts Amendment to Get Rid of Technicalities.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—Returns received from 2,944 precincts out of 3,121 in this state give:

For woman suffrage, 121,166; against 118,668; majority for suffrage, 2,498.

The remaining precincts are in remote mountain districts and their vote is small.

One of the important amendments adopted was that designed to free the criminal procedure of California from technicalities. Hereafter no judgment shall be set aside or a new trial granted in a criminal case on account of improper direction of the jury or the admission or rejection of evidence, unless, upon review of the whole case, including the evidence, the court shall be convinced that the error has resulted in a miscarriage of justice.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 14.—Strike leaders last night ordered back to work all machinists and boiler-makers on the Grand Trunk Pacific railway who quit Thursday, pending some arrangements for a wage schedule equal to that on other roads of the West. The Dominion government has appointed another member of the conciliation board and sessions will be held beginning Monday. The men have decided to await the outcome of the board's deliberations.

Several of the attorneys for the defendants, Mr. Wise explained, are engaged in formulating plans for the distintegration of the Tobacco trust.

Lighting Talks

About Service Extensions

As fast as the modern American city expands it becomes necessary for its public utilities to extend their distribution lines into the new sections in order that all the people may avail themselves of the service which it is the province of such public utilities to provide.

This City of Duluth has grown rapidly and has spread itself over an unusually large extent of territory, considering its population. It is a very roomy city, a city of "splendid distances." This fact has its undoubted advantages; but it also makes all public service extensions extremely costly.

The Duluth-Edison Electric Company has kept pace with the expansion of this City. To do so has necessitated heavy investments of capital. Our construction account for extensions made in the last ten years amounts to $804,385.

In hundreds of cases this company has had to set up anywhere from six to twenty new poles to carry the wires to a single new customer for residence lighting. Right now, for eight months in the year, we average about fifteen new connections a month requiring for each single customer two or three poles, several spans of both primary and secondary wires, a transformer, and a meter—which means that it costs this company at least $100 to get its service to such a customer, before the current can be turned on.

How long it will take to earn any return on that investment is always problematical, because the actual cost to this company of serving each residence customer in Duluth with electric light is more than $18 a year; and our receipts from all such customers for electric light average only $12 a year.

Yet this company has never asked any customer to pay for a pole-line extension necessary to reach him, and never requires any guarantee from a residence lighting customer.

If you have had any experience in obtaining water or gas extensions in Duluth YOU know that the Water and Light Department will not extend its service to any section where the mains are not already laid without a yearly guarantee of 8 per cent on the cost of such extension. If you live outside the zone of densest population you cannot have the City water or gas unless you pay not only for the quantity you use but also for the building of the pipe-line necessary to get the service to you. But electric light costs you no more than if you lived in the very heart of the City.

In the matter of service extensions can there be any doubt that the policy of a municipal electric plant would be exactly the same as that of the present municipal water and gas plant? How could such a municipal plant exist in competition with the Duluth-Edison Electric Company? BY MULCTING THE TAXPAYERS TO MAKE UP ITS LOSSES. There is no other way.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles J. A. Forell, Sr., accompanied by his son, Richard, left last Tuesday for Hansel, N. D., to investigate the accident which resulted in the death of his youngest son, Frederick. The young man was employed as a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and beyond the statement that he had fallen from the top of a car under the wheels and was killed no information is obtainable. The body was received here last Saturday morning. An examination established that Fred had been crushed at the abdomen and the fingers on the left hand were cut off.

The funeral was held from the Swedish Methodist church on Sunday and was very largely attended.

convene the legislature, he undoubtedly will be asked if the agitation continues. The people of Minnesota are in a severe mood toward the railroads, not only because they raised the passenger fare to 3 cents a mile, but because freight rates have been boosted in many instances as high as 50 per cent. Increases of 33 1-3 per cent, following the Sanborn decision in all sections of Minnesota were, in many instances, put in by all the roads. It will be remembered that the Sanborn decision not only knocked out the 2-cent passenger rate, but it also knocked out the proposed class freight rate and held confiscatory the commodity rate which had never been put in effect because of an injuction issued against it.

Just what the general freight rate increase amounts to in every part of the state, may be estimated by a comparison with freight rates to and from the Twin Cities. On first-class freight—merchandise—the rate from St. Paul, Minneapolis or the Minnesota Transfer yards midway between the two, to Northfield, for instance, was increased from 18.9 cents per hundred to 28 cents. From the same points to Rochester, the rate was increased from 32.6 to 42 cents. The rate to Faribault was increased from 21.8 to 30 cents.

Difference of Cents.

The following table shows the difference being paid from the Twin Cities since the roads boosted their rates following the Sanborn decision:

| | New Rate Cents. | Old Rate Cents. |
|---|---|---|
| Mankato | 30 | 27.7 |
| Red Wing | 28 | 19.8 |
| Olivia | 38 | 29.6 |
| Winona | 36 | 31 |
| Hastings | 18 | 14 |
| Onalaska | 40 | 36 |
| Rochester | 42 | 32.6 |
| Northfield | 28 | 18.9 |
| Albert Lea | 38 | 31.6 |
| Redwood Falls | 42 | 32.6 |
| Faribault | 30 | 21.8 |

Through the application of these rates, sugar, canned goods, meats, butter, eggs and most of the foodstuffs shipped as merchandise will cost the merchants more and necessarily, the consumer. There being no advance in the commodity rates, because an injunction preventing a reduction in them in going into effect, the cost of shipping cattle, hogs, sheep, wheat, corn, and other cereals will be no greater.

The fact that the roads take advantage of the first opportunity to raise their rates following the Sanborn decision, has been a sort of red flag waved in the face of the people, and from the Canadian line to Iowa and from Wisconsin to the Dakotas, the demand is pressing for an increase in the gross earnings tax.

Equal Taxation Demanded.

The spirit is not entirely one of retaliation but the belief that the roads as public service corporations, given rights which private concerns cannot enjoy, should pay a property tax equal to that paid by the farmer, the merchant, the professional man and the labor. The assertion frequently is made that if the roads were taxed on the ad valorem basis as carefully as other businesses are taxed, the state would never be placed in a position where it would have to borrow money to meet emergencies.

Governor Eberhart, however, has no intention of calling an extra session of the legislature to pass an increased gross earnings tax bill unless pressure is brought to bear. This much is certain. He declares there is no demand for it—that no action need be taken until the United States supreme court has passed on the rate cases. He declares that while there has been some talk going around the state about the need of convening the legislative body, no one has come to him with a plea for it. If the agitation continues and it is put squarely up to him by influential men, he may be induced to issue the call. He does not say so, but his close friends do.

CONVICTED OF MURDER, WILL BE TRIED AGAIN.

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 14.—After serving one year of a life sentence in the state prison at Waupun, John Bureguard is to be given another trial at the term of the circuit court which will convene here. A successful appeal was taken to the supreme court by his attorney. The murder for which Bureguard is to be tried a second time was considered one of the most brutal committed in Bayfield county. The victim, Louis Mitchell, was killed by having his head pounded to a pulp. Bureguard claimed the killing was in self defense.

WRECKAGE IS FOUND

Government Yacht Vidette Finds Floating Boiler House of Hopkins.

Abandoned Boat Believed to Have Sunk—Final Search Made Today.

Wreckage from the derelict lumber steamer, A. L. Hopkins which has been afloat for over a week in the course of vessels between Keweenaw point and Ashland, was yesterday discovered by Captain Brown of the government boat Vidette, which was ordered to search for the abandoned boat by John H. Darling of the local corps of United States engineers.

Mr. Darling received word from Houghton, Mich., today from Captain Brown, that yesterday afternoon the Vidette succeeded in running across considerable wreckage strewn over a large area to the eastward of the spot where the steamer Winnipeg is reported to have sighted the wreck this week.

What is believed to be the boiler house of the Hopkins or at least a part of it, was found afloat by the crew of the Vidette. The house had neither roof nor floor. A strip of canvas still adhered to its upper edge and a wire rope was attached to it. The wire is believed to have been the stays to the smoke stack. The house was painted white and constructed of one-inch lumber, so that it will not be of any danger to boats in the course should they run onto it.

Other wreckage, evidently from the Hopkins, was found, as the Vidette patroled the course to the eastward. Very little lumber was noticed. A small amount of two-inch hardwood timber was discovered. The search will be resumed by the Vidette today and will be conducted systematically as before. Capt. Brown will keep well to the eastward of where he found the floating boiler house.

According to the story which came to Mr. Darling, the Vidette was the only boat which was searching for the wreckage yesterday. Capt. Brown stated that the Gopher and the tugs did not assist yesterday as has been reported.

It is now generally believed that the main part of the wreckage has sunk. The finding of the boiler house confirms this theory, and if the search today by the Vidette does not bring out any new developments, the quest for the derelict will be abandoned.

Capt. Brown reported that no less than five boats had passed on the course between Ashland and Keweenaw point yesterday and that they might have sighted more of the wreckage.

DULUTH'S MUNICIPAL COURT JUDGE HAS IDEAL COUNTRY ESTATE WITHIN THE CITY'S LIMITS

THE ELMS AND SOME OF THE GUERNSEY CATTLE AT WYNDHAM FARM. —Photo by McKenzie.

GUERNSEY BULL, BARRAS RAYMOND OF LEWISON.

GUERNSEY COW, BLUE BELL OF HADDON.

One does not have to go outside the city limits to see one of the prettiest farms and some of the finest cattle in Northern Minnesota.

At Fond du Lac, the westernmost suburb of Duluth, Judge W. L. Windom has some acres which are a delight to the lover of fine stock, the agricultural enthusiast and the judge of fine poultry, and they are only a matter of little more than half an hour's ride from the very heart of the business district.

The judge takes special pride in his full-blooded Guernsey bulls and cows. He has been raising and breeding them for years and they have come to be in demand by breeders of fancy stock in many parts of the immediate Northwest. They are aristocrats from proud Guernsey families with family trees dating away back, and their histories are more carefully recorded than those of most persons of anything less than royal lineage. Ask the judge, and he will show you carefully ruled sheets longer than your arm, crammed with closely written names and figures of sires and dams. They tell all about the ancestors of King George of Rose Bud, or Barras Raymond of Lewiston, or Blue Bell of Hadden. However "dry" such reading might be to a layman, it holds the deepest interest for the expert, and hours and hours are spent in poring over them. Even a cursory examination will convince the veriest novice that there is more to breeding cattle than feeding, watering and brushing them.

Wyndham farm is also attractive for more than the cattle. The surroundings are beautiful, the cottages are neat and tastefully arranged, the grounds are carefully kept and the whole backs against a forest of handsome trees. The judge also goes in for farming on a fairly extensive scale and raises produce which will vie for first honors in any fair, county or state. He is a student of all things agricultural and is constantly conducting experiments which may be of value. Drop into his office during any of his spare hours, and if he isn't already talking farming or cattle raising or digging into some literature dealing with those subjects, he will be glad to exchange ideas on those lines. In fact, if you are not there strictly on business, it will be almost impossible to keep out of such a discussion whether you know volumes about it or not.

In connection with the farm he raises poultry on an extensive scale, and his knowledge along that line is not lacking. He has some of the largest hen houses in the city and has established no inconsiderable business selling chickens and eggs.

JOLIET IS A TOTAL WRECK

The steamer Joliet of the Pittsburg Steamship company, which sank in a collision with the steamer Henry Phipps in the St. Clair river, opposite Port Huron, Sept. 22, is a hopeless wreck.

Divers who have made an examination of her report that she is broken in two and that it would be impracticable to float her. It is necessary, however, that she be moved from the path of navigation, but it is not known what action will be taken. It is probable that the owners will blow her up or abandon her to the Canadian government.

From the office of the Pittsburg Steamship company, Cleveland, this warning has been sent out:

"The barge Carrington, which lies alongside the Joliet, has five anchors out with full stops of chain; the same leading to eastward as is necessary to hold her there. Pilots of vessels passing are advised to give the barge and wreck a wide range, as they are liable to get one of the anchor chains in their ship's wheel."

NEW BOAT WILL COST $500,000

Standard Oil Company to Build Three New Steamers for Lake Trade.

The Standard Oil company has closed contracts for three steamers for the oil trade, and the largest of the vessels will be built by the American Shipbuilding company. The deal has just been closed in New York by President James C. Wallace.

The new boat for the lake trade will be of Isherwood construction and will cost pretty close to $500,000. The keel will be laid at the Lorain yard. Work will be started in a few weeks and the steamer will come out at the opening of navigation next season. She will be 380 feet keel, 52 feet beam and 28 feet deep. The new boat will be the largest oil carrier on the lakes.

This contract makes eight vessels that the Standard Oil company has placed orders for with the American Shipbuilding company during the past year. The other seven vessels—two steamers and five barges—were built at the Cleveland and Lorain yards. In addition to the new boats, the barge Antrim was converted into an oil carrier at the Lorain yard. The new boat will keep a large force of men busy during the winter.

Two steamers for the coast trade that were ordered by the Standard will be built by the Newark Shipbuilding company. They will be of Isherwood construction and will be ready for business early in 1912. The steamers will be 330 feet keel, 46 feet beam and 27 feet deep. The plans for the new boats were prepared by Daniel E. Ford, superintendent of marine equipment for the Standard Oil company.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Another delay has been occasioned in the case of Capt. Alex Cunning, arrested at Amherstberg two months ago and charged with stealing freight from the wrecked steamer Wissahickon. A dispatch from Gore says that Judge Price will not hand down a decision in the case until Oct. 19.

It is expected that the Black river canal from Black river to Lake Huron will be completed next week. Dredges have been working on the job for nearly ten years.

The freight and passenger steamer Frank E. Kirby, running daily between Detroit and Sandusky, will lay up at Detroit for the winter on Nov. 5, according to her managers, Ashley & Dustin.

A section of the Cedar Point jetty, long submerged at the entrance from Lake Erie to Sandusky bay, upon which many boats have been damaged, is to be built up so that it will be visible and not a menace to navigation. The work was started this week by the Breakwater Construction company.

Arrangements have been made by the Lake Carriers' association for a fog signal at Fort Gratiot, on Lake Huron, to be sounded when the fog hands over the St. Clair river, although the weather is clear at Port Huron and above. Vessels bound down have been instructed to govern themselves accordingly.

The Graham & Morton Transportation company has announced its intention of changing from its present dock location at Benton Harbor, Mich., and will build new docks at a cost of $50,000. There will be a large two-story warehouse with all terminal facilities.

RAILROAD WILL BUILD NEW DOCKS AT TOLEDO.

The Hocking Valley railroad is contemplating extensive improvements to its lake-and-rail shipping facilities at Toledo, aggregating millions of dollars, of which amount it is proposed to spend $250,000 for the construction of great concrete docks. The work will start next spring. The new docks will be located on the east side of the Maumee river, just north of the Pennsylvania railroad bridge.

WANT A DEEPER CHANNEL TO BUFFALO.

Word came from Detroit today that marine bodies affiliated with the International Longshoremen will send a committee of three to Washington to work for the passage of appropriations for a start on the proposed twenty-six foot channel from Duluth and Chicago to Buffalo. The marine workers have been advocating this for some time.

On the committee were placed Thomas J. Dolan of Chicago, chairman, Capt. E. F. Kemmett of Cleveland and W. B. Jones of Detroit. It was decided that heads of the various marine organizations will visit the principal lake ports, including Duluth, together in November to work up interest in the deeper waterway plan.

At the meeting held yesterday at Detroit others present were T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, president of the longshoremen, John J. Sweeney of Buffalo, Albert Eagle of Detroit and H. H. Vroman of Buffalo. No Duluth men were represented at the meeting.

WILL DREDGE THE BAD RIVER.

Thee first dredging job in Bad river, a stream on the south shore of Lake Superior, will be handled by the Northern Dredge & Dock company of this city.

P. C. Hart, manager, said that if the weather permitted, the big dredge, No. 40, with scows would clear tonight for Odanah, Wis., which is six miles up stream in the Bad river. The tug Ella G. Stone will tow the dredge and scows.

The company has a contract to dredge "hot ponds" at Odanah for the Stearns Lumber company. The job will take at least two weeks and perhaps three.

Odanah is located near an Indian reservation.

Oil Barge Launched.

The oil barge No. 121, building for the Standard Oil company, was launched at the Lorain yard of the American Ship-building company at Cleveland yesterday afternoon.

The new boat is nearly completed, and will probably leave the shipyard Saturday. The barge is 258 feet long and forty feet beam.

COPPERS MAKE STRONG GAINS

Most Bullish Day Red Metal Shares Have Had for Many Weeks.

The copper stock bears had little to say about it today. The market was bullish almost continuously. There were no sky-rocket flights, but the upward creeping was so steady that it counted for a great deal before the day was over. This movement was encouraged by a similar state of affairs on the general stock market of New York. The condition of the copper metal market was not such as to cause any such movement as took place in the red metal shares. On the contrary during the present month the copper exports and domestic deliveries have been quite small, and this will probably result in quite an increase in the stocks of copper on hand by the time the month is over. There was an encouraging report, however, on general business conditions from the banks of the Southwest, to the effect that business in that section of the country had been much better of late than was expected. The bulge in both the copper stocks and the general list of New York seemed to be due merely to a normal, healthy reaction from the sagging that has been taking place. The markets were oversold and it was time for a change in favor of the bullish side.

Among the copper quotations of the day were the following: Amalgamated, yesterday's close, $51; today, $51, $51.37½, $52.25; Butte Ballaklava, yesterday, $3.75 bid, $3.87½ asked; today, $3.87½, $3.75, $3.87½; Butte Coalition, yesterday, $14.87½ bid, $15 asked; today, $14.87½, $15, $15.50; Calumet & Arizona, yesterday, $48.25 bid, $48.50 asked; today, $48.75, $49, $48, $48.75; Giroux, yesterday, $3.68¾ bid, $3.81¼ asked; today, $3.75, $3.87½, $3.93¾, $3.87½; Greene Cananea, yesterday, $5.75 bid, $5.87½ asked; today, $5.87½; North Butte, yesterday, $24.87½ bid, $25 asked; today, $24.75@25, $24.87½, $25, $25.25; Old Dominion, yesterday, $4.75 bid; $4.87½ asked; today, 4.75, $4.50; Keating, yesterday, $8.50@9; today, $8.50@9; Cactus, yesterday, 22@25c; today, 22c, 22@24c, 23c, 24c, 22c and 23c.

William A. Eaton, president of the Cactus Copper Company of Duluth, and Edward Collins, expert mining engineer, both of this city, left this morning for the Radersburg district of Montana, where they will inspect the mining tract that is owned there by the Combination Keating Mining company of Minneapolis. They expect to be gone until about next Friday, but will probably advise the other Cactus officials by wire of their findings. If they ascertain that the Combination mining properties are all that was claimed by the Combination engineers, the deal for the merger of the Combination and Cactus companies will probably be pushed to a speedy conclusion.

OBJECTS TO MAGAZINES BEING SENT BY FREIGHT.

New York, Oct. 14.—Suit has been begun in the federal court here against Postmaster General Hitchcock and Postmaster Edward M. Morgan by the Review of Reviews company, charging that the regulation relating to the carriage of periodicals by fast freight constitutes discrimination in favor of certain magazines. The Review of Reviews names as its chief competitors two periodicals which, because issued weekly, are privileged to use regular express mail trains, and alleged that because it is obliged to use the slower freight service, its business is thereby injured.

Most Wonderful Invention.

The French inventor, Dienert, has contrived an application of the microphone, by which underground water can be located. One end of a tube is inserted in the ground, another is attached to the microphone. The sound of flowing or dripping water is conveyed to the ear from great depths. It is expected that the invention will be of great benefit to miners in their operations. But no matter how great the depths at which it locates water, it will discover no liquid purer or more refreshing than golden grain belt beers, which are "pure perfection." ## EBERHART FOR DEEP CHANNEL

Governor Talks Before Waterway Meeting in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—A demand for immediate action looking toward the construction of a deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf was urged by speakers at the convention of the association here. Unanimous approval of a plan to urge a deeper channel from the lakes to Cairo than originally had been planned also was expressed. Governor Eberhart of Minnesota said:

"The construction of the Lakes-to-the Gulf waterway involves not only digging the channel not less than eighteen feet deep and wide enough to accommodate the increasing traffic, but also the equipping of docks, wharves, warehouses and boats loading and unloading facilities. That the total expense of equipment will be something more than the estimate, is conceded, but even if it should be 50 per cent greater and total more than $250,000,000, it ought to be a sound financial investment.

"The present transportation facilities will be inadequate in five years. The duty is plain. We must unite the commerce of the Americas, Mexico and Canada by a continental system of waterways in which the Great Lakes, the Mississippi river, the Gulf of Mexico, the Panama canal and the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans will be connecting portions of a great transportation system."

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED.

Fred G. Bradbury Withdraws From Zenith Music, But Firm Continues.

Full particulars will be published later.

Cloudburst at Berthold.

Berthold, N. D., Oct. 14.—A cloudburst struck Berthold vicinity Thursday morning, causing considerable damage. The heavy downpour which was one of the most terrific ever experienced by Dakotans in this section did considerable damage to grain, much of which is still in the shock. Owing to the wet weather that has prevailed up to the last ten days, there is a large amount of thrashing to be done in the vicinity of Berthold.

ALL PULLING FOR ROADS

Big Central Meeting Is Being Planned for Richmond, Va.

Will Be Held Under Auspices of Touring Club of America.

The organizing of good roads tours to a great good roads meeting by the good roads advocates comprising all of the well-known good roads organizations in the country is the novel situation in connection with the plans for the forthcoming American road congress to be held at Richmond, Va., Nov. 20 to 24, under the auspices of the American association for highway improvement, of which Logan Waller Page is president.

Under the direction of the touring Club of America, a score or more of the Good Roads associations are arranging tours from the leading cities of the country, with Richmond as the objective point. Each car will carry the Touring club pennant bearing the insignia of each road organization, also the legend, "On to Richmond."

Arrangements are well under way for a tour starting from Quebec under the direction of Howard D. Hadley, chairman of the New York committee of the Quebec-Miami road. Mr. Hadley has assurances from many prominent good roads enthusiasts in Montreal, Quebec, Plattsburgh, Saratoga Springs and Glens Falls that they will assist in the organization of such a tour. This party will be joined at Albany by the highway officials of New York and many of the New England states. State Engineer John A. Bensel of New York has signified his intention of going on the tour so as to attend the road congress at Richmond.

Leonard Tufts, president of the Capital Highway association, was in New York last week in conference with the officers of the Touring Club of America, and completed arrangements for the starting of a tour from Atlanta, Ga., on the morning of Nov. 13. A large number of good roads enthusiasts have signified their intention to participate in this tour, and motorists from Savannah will join the party at Augusta. The tentative schedule calls for visiting Augusta and Aiken on the 14th, Columbia and Camden on the 15th, Jackson Springs, Pinehurst and Southern Pines on the 16th, Raleigh and Durham on the 17th, Littleton (N. C.) and vicinity on the 18th, arriving at Richmond that night.

President Tufts of the Capital Highway association is one of the leading good roads advocates in the South and clearly indicated during the recent conference in New York that nothing would be left undone to make the tour along the route of the Capital Highway a great success.

It is planned to run a good roads scout car, under the direction of the Touring Club of America, from Atlanta, Ga., to Richmond, Va., in the near future, securing the latest available data, sign-posting the route and arranging for accommodations for those on the tour in November. This scouting party will include a representative of the United States office of public roads, President Tufts of the Capital Highway association, Frederick H. Elliott, secretary of the Touring club of America, and Colonel Henry MacNair, editor of the official Automobile Blue Book.

It is believed that this tour, passing through, as it does, some of the most progressive cities in the South, will do much to interest the highway officials in the different counties and townships in improving their roads for the caravan of automobiles which will follow this route on the way to Richmond in November.

F. M. Runnels, secretary of the Bristol to Washington Highway association, which is known as the "New York to New Orleans route," has recently been in conference with the officers of the Touring club and advises that a delegation from Birmingham and Memphis will go to Richmond over the Memphis-Bristol-Washington Highway.

DAWSON WILL DRIVE A MARMON

Famous Young Speed Enthusiast Tuning Car for Santa Monica Race.

Joe Dawson, the famous young driver of the Marmon car, winner of the Savannah Challenge trophy, the City of Atlanta trophy, the Cobe cup and who finished in fifth place in the international sweepstakes race won by his team-mate, Harroun, is tuning up his four-cylinder Marmon for the Santa Monica race on Oct. 14.

It will also be remembered that Dawson lost the 1910 Vanderbilt race by only twenty-five seconds through an unfortunate mishap caused by striking a spectator on the course. He is practicing daily with the hopes of adding the great Pacific coast event to his list of victories.

Dawson will be at the wheel of the same Marmon he drove in the big 500-mile event last Decoration day.

Dawson's car, as well as one of the other three Marmon entries in the California classic, will be distinguished by a new body style, designed by the Marmon experts. The new design is calculated to reduce wind resistance and to throw the air currents caused by the speeding car over the driver's head without interfering with his full view of the course ahead.

Harroun, who has charge of the team, and Dawson have been working for weeks in preparation for the fall racing campaign.

Advertising has made "oaks" of many businesses that were simply acorns.

POOR ROADS COST MONEY

Texas Farmers Find They Are More Expensive Than Fire Losses.

Good Roads Convention to Be Held at Washington in December.

Texas annually pays a toll of $8,000,000 because of bad roads.

Down in Shreveport, La., the other day there was a gathering of good roads enthusiasts, in which many Texans participated. One of these was Secretary Ellison of the Longview Chamber of Commerce, who, in the course of arguing for a first-class road from Shreveport to Dallas, gave these interesting facts:

"The Texas farmers last year marketed approximately 8,000,000 tons of products. It costs 43 cents per ton per mile to reach the market in Texas and the average distance hauled was only five miles. The government average is only 23 cents. Now let us figure out in dollars the loss of the Texas farmer. If the Texas farmers raised 8,000,000 tons of farm products and it cost him 43 cents per ton per mile to reach the market, and the average distance hauled was five miles, and it only cost 23 cents per ton per mile on an average throughout the United States, then the Texas farmers did lose 20 cents per ton per mile on 8,000,000 tons of products on every mile he hauled his goods; so the total loss on one mile must be $1,600,000, but the average haul was five miles, so it must be five times that amount, which would be $8,000,000 annually that the farmers of Texas lose on account of bad roads."

Incidentally attention was also called to the fact that the total fire losses in the state of Texas last year reached $4,000,000 and the losses from bad roads reached more than twice that sum.

Of course the delegates to the convention were given a ride in the cars provided by the Shreveport Automobile club, something which invariably happens nowadays at all good roads conventions. Furthermore, Shreveport will be represented at the December National convention which the American Automobile association's good roads board will hold in Washington, D. C., in conjunction with other highway bodies to amalgamate all interest involved in the federal aid plan which is close at hand. It should be mentioned that the Shreveport club is a part of the Louisiana Motor league, which recently financed the building of a model highway near New Orleans called the Chef Menteur road, supplying much of the money, and securing the balance by subscription.

ENGAGED BY THE MARMON COMPANY

Joe Likrent Will Drive Under the Management of Ray Harroun.

Joe Nikrent, the Californian who won fame at the opening of the Los Angeles motordrome, has become one of the Marmon racing team and will be seen piloting one of the Marmon cars in some of the big events of the motor racing game of this season.

Nikrent's last appearance in the speed battles was in the Kane county event at Elgin. He is carded to drive in the Santa Monica road race with Joe Dawson and two drivers yet to be named by the Nordyke & Marmon company.

The blonde pilot from over the rockies gained the right to a place among road racing drivers when he twice won the Los Anegeles-Phoenix desert road race, and he has also driven in previous Santa Monica events. The grind across the desert from Los Angeles to Phoenix measures 480 miles and a number of streams have to be forded, making it a real test of mechanical construction and the "game streak" in the driver.

Nikrent in 1910, driving in the 161-230 class, at the opening of the Los Angeles "Pie Pan" board track built by Jack Prince, set the world's speedway records for five, ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five miles run under Class B of the A. A. A. rules. Since that time no driver has been able to lower the marks set for light cars. Two days afterwards he starred when he captured the speedway records for five and ten miles under Class B in the 201 to 450 class.

With the past record and the fact that he will have a capable manager in Ray Harroun, it is confidently expected that Nikrent will make a good showing with the cars.

TALKS ON FINISH OF AUTOMOBILES

E. J. Filiatrault Says Right Process of Enameling Has Been Found.

"Enameling doesn't sound as though it had much to do with motor cars, but it has," says E. J. Filiatrault, local representative of the Chalmers Motor company. "Enameling is really one of the most important factors in the continued good appearance of a car.

"Ever notice how many cars you see with fenders worn or chipped; ever notice that the hoods of most cars do not match the body after a month or two of service? That's because the enameling isn't right. The fault hasn't been wholly with the manufacturers, because the right enameling processes weren't perfected until recently. In fact, most hoods and radiators were painted until a short time back.

"In the future, however, every well made car should have fenders and bonnet that will retain the original finish as long as the body.

"In the Chalmers plant every enameled part gets four coats and four bakings. A visit to the enameling rooms is a revelation. Each fender is rubbed and groomed for the final finish like a thoroughbred. A recently developed process has enabled the Chalmers company to enamel hoods, radiators and external gasoline tanks to match the body paint. This is an innovation and a great thing for the appearance of the car. The old-style enamel or paint could not endure the heat from the motor. A little usage soon altered its appearance. The new enamel, however, wears like iron.

"Another notable feature of Chalmers cars is the enameling of the cylinders. This operation makes the motor easier to keep clean, and certainly improves its appearance greatly.

"Enamel properly applied means wear—and a long-wearing car is a good investment always. Find out how the fenders, radiator and motor bonnet are finished before buying a car."

ELABORATE CATALOGUE OF WAVERLY ELECTRICS.

To the Waverly company, Indianapolis, Ind., must be given credit for one of the most beautiful and artistic automobile catalogues ever published by an automobile concern.

The company is the maker of the famous silent Waverly electric and the advertising department evidently did not intend to cheapen the product of the factory with inferior descriptive matter.

The 1912 catalogue is a work of art. Printed on the heaviest of gloss paper, beautifully illustrated and containing the entire tournament of Ivanhoe, done in many colors, the 1912 prospectus would be an ornament to any drawing room table.

Many new and original departures of engraving, printing and style are embodied in the heavy portfolio, which gives the appearance of containing a series of beautiful sketches.

The appearance is not deceiving either, for on the pages which follow are found wonderful examples of the cunning of the modern printer.

A glowing description is given of Waverly electrics, each part being fully described together with its construction and use in the car.

New Self Starting Motor.

More interest has been shown in the question of self-starters for automobiles during the past season than in any other new development in the industry. Three or four manufacturers have already announced the equipment of their cars with self-starters. The latest is the Hudson Motor Car company who have brought out what they claim to be the simplest of all the starters for it weighs less than four pounds, has no wires and no compressed air tank and the company claims that a child can start the motor as easily as it can press a button that rings an electric bell.

MANY POTATOES BEING MARKETED AT HINCKLEY.

Hinckley, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — Tuesday and Wednesday were record breakers for receipts of poatoes at Hinckley. A total of 3,500 bushels was brought in during these two days, 2,000 bushels being brought in Tuesday. Of this amount 3,312 bushels were weighed in over Christianson-Innes' scales. They were sold at 45 cents per bushel and brought $1,575.

COL. GOETHAL'S PREDICTION IS EXPECTED TO COME TRUE

Examination of Progress of Work on Panama Canal Shows It Will Be Completed in 1913—Even the Most Incredulous Convinced.

Colon, Panama, Oct. 14.—Magnificent is the word which might fittingly describe the progress made on the construction of the Panama canal. The statement of Col. George W. Goethal, chief engineer of the canal, that the canal would be finished in September, 1913, or over one year before the date previously announced for its inauguration, was at first received with some hesitation. Now, however, an examination of the colossal work that is being rushed to completion in Miraflorts, Pedro Miguel and Gatun, and the surprising way the Culebra cut is advanced has convinced the most incredulous that Col. Goethal's estimate of completion in 1913 will be borne out.

The point which seems to offer the greatest difficulties throughout the whole canal is the cut in the Culebra hills and this, not on account of engineering problems, but because of the many slides occurring from the loose earth. These slides confuse estimates as to the number of cubic yards to be ultimately excavated. The engineers, however, in charge of the work are confident that these difficulties are by no means insuperable and will, in no way, retard the date set for opening the canal.

An Immense Breakwater.

Even before disembarking, the stranger to the isthmus on arriving at Colon, the Atlantic terminus of the canal, will be struck by the unusual activity visible in every direction in the harbor. His attention will first be directed to the long trestle already stretching seawards for over one and a half miles in a northeast direction from Toro lighthouse point across the harbor. All along this trestle rock and stones are being dumped to form a breakwater whose ultimate length from shore will be about two miles. The estimated cost of this breakwater is $5,500,000. It is being built to reduce to a minimum the silt that may be washed into the channel of the canal, and also to protect the inner basin of the harbor, which leads to the entrance of the canal, from the northerly gales which usually obtain here from October to January and which not infrequently do much damage to the shipping and coastline.

The eye following the coastline will soon be attracted towards the massive piers which, begun about three months ago and to cost ultimately several million dollars, already stretch out for nearly half a mile into the harbor from Cristobal point.

Massive Piers.

These piers will be roomy enough to permit several large liners to dock simultaneously. Powerful tugs, each towing large barges laden with sand and rock for the locks from Porto Bello (some twenty miles from Colon along the Eastern coast and now a fairly large American settlement), may possibly be in sight on their way through the canal to Gatun, seven miles distant from Colon. If the above bespeaks activity around Colon harbor, the activity will be seen to be greater when Gatun is reached. It is here the canal ceases to be sea level and reaches the three giant locks which will lift all ships eighty-five feet and enable them to pass into the Gatun lake, artificially formed by a monster dam which impounds the waters of the River Chagres and its tributaries.

The steam shovels, of which there are several types and sizes, are eating away the dirt from the mountain slopes or digging deep down into the earth with a regularity that suggests the swing of a pendulum or the beat of a pulse. Large buckets filled with concrete are passing noiselessly overhead along the steel cables and depositing their contents at the desired spot. The whole scene is one well calculated to inspire admiration for the manner in which the work is being performed.

What applies to Gatun applies also to the other various sections along the canal, all tending to convince the observer that the possibility of opening the canal before the date officially fixed is no empty boast.

Sanitary Measures.

What the sanitary department of the canal commission has accomplished in cleansing the canal zone of yellow fever and other diseases is well known. The progressive wonders that have been attained in housing, feeding and providing amusement and instruction to the army of 40,000 workmen is less well known. The pestiferous jungle and swamp have been transformed into clean, smart-looking, healthful towns and villages to be seen throughout the canal zone, all full of hustling activity and today the pleasant rendezvous of an ever-increasing number of American and other tourists. This transformation has cost millions, but they have been well spent and the uninterrupted and successful digging of the canal ever since has been rendered possible thereby.

Throughout the whole length of the canal clean comfortable houses have been built for the married employes and their families. Eighteen big hotels were also erected for the bachelors, besides numerous barracks, messes and kitchens for the laborers. In these buildings there are under the commission's care not fewer than 65,000 people.

The white canal and railroad employes are furnished with free house, electric light, coal and water, and all laborers and employes have commissary rights which enable them to purchase in the government stores at practically cost prices, clothes, food and other necessaries, which permit them to live well and inexpensively and save a considerable part of their salaries.

The public schools of the zone are very good. The teachers are American and native. The gardens established in many of them have been such a success that the Panama government is adopting the same method in its provincial schools.

Under the management of the Y. M. C. A. there are club houses in the principal zone towns wherein employes, after a hard day's toil, may go in reading and billiard rooms, tennis courts, bowling alleys or gymnasiums.

The erection and maintenance of these clubs have added much to the welfare of the men, and in the long run it has been an excellent investment.

This regard for the social welfare of the canal workers has had its effect on the work itself for the workers seem taking a personal interest in fulfilling Col. Goethal's prediction that the great waterway will be finished ahead of time.

What ultimate economic effect the completion of the canal will have on the republic of Panama is discussed here from different standpoints, and it is generally believed that greater prosperity is in store for the republic if developments, along the line of agriculture, mining and manufactures, are seriously studied.

EVELETH ARMORY SCHEME ADVANCES

Plans Decided Upon Are Forwarded to St. Paul for Approval.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Roy M. Cornwall, James A. Robb and Alderman William G. Sutherland, the special committee appointed by the council to examine plans for the proposed armory, yesterday sent plans submitted by Architect Anthony Puck of Duluth, to the state armory board for approval. The plans call for a $17,000 auditorium-armory with a two-story front and basement.

The proposed armory for which $10,000 will be appropriated by the state will be situated on Jackson street between Adams and Grant avenues opposite the new fire hall. The new fire hall will be built this fall, bids to be opened Tuesday evening by the city council, and it is very likely the armory will also be erected this fall. The city has already appropriated $1,000 for the proposed armory-auditorium and with $10,000 from the state $6,000 will also have to be appropriated by the city.

Bids for the removal of the Johnson residence to the city ball park, where it will be used for a quarantine hospital, will be opened Tuesday.

OSBORN OUT FOR MUNICIPAL JUDGE

Virginia Attorney Will Enter Race Against Judge Carey.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis M. Osborn will file for municipal judge in the election to be held in February. Mr. Osborn was the attorney for the city charter commission two years ago.

Mr. Osborn will not be the only candidate. Judge Carey says he likes his job and wants to be re-elected, and though he has made no public announcement of his candidacy, will run again.

Special Municipal Judge J. H. Fleming is also likely to become a candidate.

W. J. Archer, secretary of the Commercial club, district court commissioner, is also mentioned as a possible candidate. He has a large number of friends who are urging him to enter the race.

BIWABIK PAVING MAKING PROGRESS

Range Village Has Received $30,000 From State for Bonds.

Biwabik, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village this week received the $30,000 from the state of Minnesota for the village bonds.

The amount came through the mail to Village Treasurer Magnus Peterson, and was in the shape of a bank draft. Mr. Peterson deposited the sum in the First National bank but quite a portion of it will remain there but a short time.

Pastoret & Lawrence are laying much paving, and their estimate for the month will be a big one. The payday meeting will be on Oct. 27 by which time Main street can almost be completed if the present very fine weather holds out.

E. A. Dahl, curb and gutter contractor, is also due to receive his pay from the same source. It was thought some time ago that quite a proportion of the money realized from the bond issue would be carried over the winter, but with the Indian summer really here it is likely that all but a few thousands will be used at once. Dahl was allowed an estimate at the last meeting of the council, to get his pay when the money arrived from the state. This will now be paid.

VIRGINIA AND HIBBING TEAMS ARE TO PLAY.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hibbing and the Virginia high school football teams will play this afternoon on Oliver field with all their oldtime rivalry. Both teams are in fine condition and the outcome of the game is in doubt.

The second team of the local high school is playing this afternoon at Buhl with the first school team of that village.

Sunday afternoon the Virginia city team will play the Jeffersons of Duluth at Oliver field.

NEW NORWEGIAN BAPTIST CHURCH.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Norwegian Baptist church, just completed in this city this week, was the scene of a convention of the United Lutheran church. Work upon the building was begun last spring. It is more than double the capacity of the old building and has a fine, high concrete basement. Back of the church, on Wyoming avenue, is the parsonage, one of the finest on the Mesaba range. Rev. J. I. Fadum has been pastor of the church for nearly six years.

The time is passed up for the taking out of these licenses and the chief has determined to prosecute all offenders who do not provide themselves with the neecssary credentials at once.

LOCOMOTIVE SKIDS; MEN JUMP SAFELY

Adams Pit at Eveleth Scene of Near Serious Accident.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—While going down a steep grade in the Adams pit yesterday afternoon locomotive No. 83 skidded and threw the ore cars in the rear from the tracks. ## FRANK KLINK MAY CONSTRUCT HOTEL

Rumored in Virginia He May Put Up Fine Hestelry Next Year.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another first-class hotel is among the probabilities for Virginia next spring. Frank Klink owner of the Fay opera house block with seventy-five feet frontage on Chestnut street and also on Central avenue, is considering the advisability of razing the old opera house building and erecting on the site a splendid hotel building.

This year he is building a three-story brick block fronting fifty feet upon Chestnut street next to the opera house. This building would make a good annex to the proposed hotel and would give a frontage of 125 feet on Chestnut street. It is not probable that the hotel will be built this year.

BUSY COURT TERM.

Will Begin at Grand Rapids Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fall term of court which will convene here Tuesday, Oct. will be an unusually heavy one, there being beside a great grist of civil cases, three murder cases and a large calendar of other criminal cases.

The murder cases are: the State vs. Vincent Woods for the murder of V. Murphy last spring; State vs. Al Kennedy for the murder of Al Kennedy last month near Nashwauk, and the State against Bill Yorkovick, Steve Milkovich and Kusman Sorich, for the murder of J. Skorich near Taconite last June.

The grand jury has a big job cut out for the number of actions to come before that body, numbering well toward twenty-five.

Spirits for Rheumatism.

The increased use of spirits for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is a wonderful cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following is the formula: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris compound and one ounce of syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring." Any druggist has these ingredients or will quickly get them. Any one can mix them. This formula was published here last winter and thousands were promptly benefited. It gives immediate relief.

DIAMOND DRILLING FOR THE ALMAR

Formation Identical With Ely Group of Mines—Work on Lucky Boy.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The drift in the Almar iron mine, midway between here and Tower, continues in the graphitic rock, which is highly colored with iron. The company contemplates installing diamond drills at the southern limit of their property near the greenstone wall to establish the limits of the ore body. The company has been figuring on this work for some time, and it is known that definite arrangements are being made to this end.

Captain Kelley, the new superintendent of the Almar, who has had many years' experience on the Vermilion range, in the Chandler, Zenith, Savoy and Pioneer mines of the Ely group, says that the Almar, for the same distance in its development work, has identically the same formation as was found in the great mines aforementioned, and he is sanguine that the Almar will be a big iron mine.

Work on the Almar is progressing in satisfactory fashion. The company will either continue with the sinking of the shaft or install diamond drills, and it may conduct both operations at the same time. The company's engineers advise drilling before much more drifting is done, to make doubly sure the drift is running toward the ore body.

The Anderson shaft on the Lucky Boy property, one mile from here, is down 160 feet, and today men are working in the drift thirty-five feet from the shaft. They are in the decomposing green rock wall, and soapstone will be encountered before the drift is in ore. The company figures it is within sixty feet of the ore body, and is making about twenty feet a week. The Camp shaft on the same property, 750 feet away from the Anderson, is down 140 feet and to the same level as the Anderson. The two shafts will be connected up. E. S. Kennedy, president of the Vermilion & Mesaba Iron company, who is here from Duluth, told the writer today the Lucky Boy would be lifting ore before Jan. 1.

ONE FEATURE OF THE WAR

Distressing Outlook for Europeans in the Interior of Turkey.

Arabs Eager to Fight Anyone Who Is Not a Moslem.

New York, Oct. 14.—No man can surely forecast the outcome of the present situation in Turkey. More potent forces than the official acts of governments are at work there. The two major passions of the Turkish empire have been aroused—religious fanaticism and zeal for the territorial integrity of the nation.

On this latter issue the Young Turk party has staked its existence. The advent of the constitution deeply stirred this feeling for the integrity of the empire among all Ottomans. Even British control of Egypt over which the Sultan exercises nominal sway became at once a sensitive subject. Now the loss of Tripoli to Italy is a rankling wound that will not heal so long as Turkey remains a nation—which may not be for long.

America and Europe take their religion so casually, and tolerance is so thoroughly ingrained in the Western character, that it is difficult for dwellers in this part of the world to realize the intensity and bitterness of the religious bigotry that exists in the Turkish empire. Religion is the first consideration to Orientals. Especially is this so in the case of Moslems. Mohammed himself taught enmity to other religions as a cardinal article of the faith. The shortest prescribed route to Paradise was by the slaughter of unbelievers. Islam made its first and greatest conquests by the sword; and the devout and orthodox among the faithful believe that program cannot be improved upon.

Religious Line of Cleavage.

The one sharpest line of cleavage between the people of the Turkish empire is religion. Fundamentally there are only two classes in the Sultan's domains, Moslems and non-Moslems. The color line is practically non-existent; the black and white go to the mosques as brethren and unite in common worship at Mecca. Racial lines mean little and the most commopolitan gathering on earth is probably that about the Kaaba at Mecca. The Moslem's religion is all in all to him.

It is always possible to make a religious appeal in the affairs of Turkey. A holy war is a grim possibility in its largest relation to world politics; but what is more tangible it is a dreadful reality to the Christians in many parts of Turkey. The Adana massacres of only three years ago show that these feats of blood are possible even under a constitutional form of government. Asia Minor is sprinkled with Armenian orphans whose parents have been slain because they were Christians. The fact that the present war has broken out during Ramadan, the Moslem Lent, when the people are most fanatical, increases the delicacy of the present situation. A terrible powder magazine is very close today to the fire of Near Eastern politics.

The Moslem is not a dreamer; he believes in the argument of the sword, and in the Turkish empire two out of three Moslems habitually carry a sword, a gun or a pistol. When aroused the result will not be protracted argument, but swift blows. Close students of the Islamic problem know that the two militant and orthodox wings of the faithful are both desert peoples, the Wahabis of Arabia and the Senussi of North Africa. These desert rangers hold to the holy law in its simplicity. They scorn the tolerance and compromise of city Moslems. They would make no peace with unbelievers, and they still cherish the ancient dream of world conquest by the sword.

A Desert Arsenal.

What makes Tripoli a special danger point at the present time is that it is the home of the Senussi movement. This organization, modeled somewhat on the lines of a secret society, has existed for nearly 100 years and its center has been an oasis called Jerabub in the desert of Tripoli. From this remote spot its emissaries have reached out to the bounds of the Islamic world. High and low, statesmen and dervishes have been enrolled in its membership. It has wealth and power beyond the imagination of those who look upon its as a mere aggregation of fanatical Arabs.

For several years past the Senussi have been gathering a great store of modern weapons at Jerubub. These have come in from Europe through the port of Tripoli and their number and character are known to no white man by actual sight, for no Christian has ever gone to Jerubub and come out alive. The secret service, however, of the French, Italian and British governments are well aware of this desert arsenal. Latterly the aggressions of France have caused the removal of the Senussi quartersq from Jerabub to Kufra, an oasis in the Sahara desert under the Egyptian flag.

This ominous fact lets a flood of light in upon the news dispatches that hosts of Arabs whose delight is blood letting, have gathered in the hinterland of Tripoli. These care little for the peace pacts of nations. Italy is a Christian power; it has affronted the sultan, who is the caliph of all the faithful; therefore they will fight. Woe unto any European caught in the interior of Tripoli.

Fanaticism Stirred Up.

The fires of religious hatred are being assiduously fanned by Turkish leaders. The people have been gathering in the mosques for their mass meetings, which is a dangerous sign. Even the Mohammedans of India have been stirred to the point of appealing to the British government to come to the help of Turkey. This deep religious fanaticism may break out upon travelers, missionaries and consuls scattered throughout the remoter portions of the Turkish empire. For bigotry is unreasoning and the average Moslem is ignorant beyond the understanding of the West. The first to feel this Mohammedan fury, especially in Asia Minor and Syria, will be the Christians known as Latins, so-called to distinguish them from the Greek Catholics who are even more numerous in Turkey. Italy is the capital of the Latin church. The Roman Catholic orders have a long chain of successful missions and schools in the empire; especially in the Holy Land. The danger to these is very real at the present time.

While these distinctions between Christian bodies are sometimes made by Moslems as a whole, the one broad and sufficient classification is Christian. All Christians in the Turkish empire are in more or less danger at the present time, whether they be Latins, Greeks, Protestants, Armenians, Maronites, Syriaca, Copts, Chaldeans or Abyssinians. In such a critical time as the present all who hold to the cross as a symbol are menaced.

As is well known, American missions are the most widely scattered in Turkey, especially in Asia Minor, where the American board has a series of important stations. In Syria the Northern Presbyterians are the dominant Protestant missions, with one Quaker mission at Ramleh. In Arabia the Reformed Church in America is the leading mission agency, while the United Presbyterians hold the field in Egypt. Other smaller missions are at work—thirteen American agencies in all and eighteen British. The latter concentrate in the Holy Land. Out of a total of 387 missionaries in all Turkey except Syria, 246 are Americans, but of the 264 missionaries in the Holy Land only 127 are Americans.

American Colleges.

It has been freely said that the principal agency in the awakening of Turkey has been the American institutions of learning. At Beirut, the principal city of Syria, is the Syrian Protestant College, an American institution managed by a board of directors in New York and numbering nearly a thousand students from all parts of the Levant. This is the largest modern institution of learning in the Near East. Next to it comes the famous Robert college on the Bosphorus with about 500 students. Both institutions have large staffs of American teachers and splendid modern equipment, and their graduates are found in positions of leadership all over the empire.

The American College for Women, which is just removing from Scutari to a site on the heights near Robert college on the European side of the Bosphorus, is the greatest educational institution for women in the Levant. These are leaders in a great array of missionary educational enterprises.

The number of such is almost incredible to the average reader. The total of Protestant colleges and universities in all Turkey supported by the missions of both Europe and America is 1,369. Below the college grade, but above the grade of village schools and including academies, high schools, industrial schools and institutes, are 6,585 institutions; while of village schools maintained by the missions there is the immense total of 43,159. The hope of Turkey, or of the new lands that will emerge from a dismembered Turkey, lies in the graduates of these schools who are assumed to be possessed of something of the modern spirit of progress, tolerance and religious liberty.

The holy cities of the Christian faith and of the Moslem religion are all within the Turkish empire, and it is not strange that any political strife should quickly be transformed into a religious struggle.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

NEW VESSEL LINE MAY PRECIPITATE RATE WAR

as follows: Minneapolis to Duluth, 5 cents; Duluth to Buffalo, 6 cents; Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents.

The old rate from Duluth to New York was 18 cents, made up as follows: Duluth to Buffalo, 8.8 cents; Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents.

The new rate from Duluth to New York will be 15.2 cents, made up as follows: Duluth to Buffalo, 6 cents; Buffalo to New York, 9.2 cents.

Thus it will be seen that Duluth maintains its differential of five cents over Minneapolis, and this is all the local traffic men were fighting for.

Recognition Important.

The fact that the new line of steamers has been given the recognition of the interstate commerce commission is of importance because of the fact it can now get the through rate proportional from Buffalo to New York. If it had not been recognized by the commission, it would have been compelled to pay the local rate of 11 cents for this haul, but with the recognition it gets the through rate of 9.2 cents.

The reduction in the flour rate is of vital interest not only to Minneapolis, but to the entire Northwest. The great milling industry of the Northwest was threatened by the rate situation and Buffalo had an advantage that seemed likely to cause the removal of all the great mills to that city. The rate on wheat is something over 1 cent a bushel, varying slightly from time to time. With this rate enough wheat to make a barrel of flour could be laid down in Buffalo for 5 cents. The rate to New York on the flour was 11 cents a hundred, or 22 cents a barrel, making the total cost from Duluth to New York for the flour, of 27 cents a barrel. If that same wheat were milled in Minneapolis, however, Minneapolis millers had to pay a rate of 23 cents to New York, or a total cost of 46 cents a barrel. This gave the Buffalo millers an advantage of 19 cents a barrel over the Minneapolis millers.

The new rate established by the independent line is a reduction of about 6 cents a barrel, so the importance to the Minneapolis milling interests can readily be seen.

Save $400,000.

If the milling interests of Minneapolis can save 6 cents a barrel on all flour shipped to the East it means an annual saving of approximately $400,000 for them. This would be sufficient to purchase an entire line of package freighters and throw it away each year.

Duluth traffic men are pleased with the opening of the new line. The differential between Minneapolis and Duluth is retained, and that is what they were fighting for.

But the new line promises further complications in the fight for return freight. It promises to go after business on the basis of 75 cents per 100 pounds for first-class freight to the Twin Cities. This may open up a very wide field, in which Duluth is vitally interested, and not only Duluth but the entire state of Minnesota.

The present rate is 68 cents to Duluth and 83 cents to the Twin Cities. But the Twin Cities have a big advantage over other towns in Minnesota. The rate to St. Cloud, for example, is $1.17. St. Cloud is 140 miles from Duluth and the Twin Cities, 150, yet Twin City jobbers can import freight and reship it to St. Cloud cheaper than St. Cloud can get it. St. Cloud is in the same boat with practically every small community in Minnesota, and if the new independent line cuts the rate to the Twin Cities to 75 cents, then it will be up to all the small communities in the state to join hands with Duluth in what the local traffic commission is after, a complete revision of the lake and rail schedule, for a 75-cent rate to the Twin Cities, without a corresponding reduction in other towns, and to Duluth also, would give the Twin Cities an advantage from a jobbing standpoint that could hardly be overcome.

The Duluth traffic commission is far from being idle at the present time, and it is watching the situation with these facts in view.

Only a Beginning.

The steamers secured for the new line, as announced in The Herald last evening, are the Scranton and the Lackawanna, but it is believed that this is but a beginning. These boats were secured in order that the Minneapolis men might go before the interstate commerce commission and "show" it that the boats were ready to begin transporting freight. The commission could not then very well refuse it recognition. It is believed that by next spring the Minneapolis men will have secured larger boats to add to the fleet, and that it will become quite a decided factor in lake transportation.

The boats will go into service at once. The Lackawanna will leave Buffalo today, and will load out of Duluth not later than Oct. 21, it is stated, while the Scranton will leave Buffalo for Duluth next Thursday. Each boat is expected to make four round trips before the close of navigation. R. M. Welvin will handle the business from Duluth, with a branch soliciting office in Minneapolis.

as a juror in the trial of James B. McNamara, indicted for the murder of Charles Haggerty, a victim of the Times explosion, occupied a brief session of court today. From behind a battery of law books, attorneys for the prosecution and defense wrangled as to Nelson's eligibility, delving deep into the realms of precedent cases on the bias of talesmen.

On Monday Judge Walter Bordwell will render a decision as to whether bias or perjury is contained in Nelson's admissions on the stand that he had formed certain opinions concerning the blowing up of the Times building, which caused the death of a score of men and upon which indictments for murder against James B. McNamara and his brother, John J., are based.

For and Against Him.

Attorney G. Ray Horton concluded the argument of the state that Nelson, though admitting he held opinions about the case, had shown his impartiality by announcing that he would waive these opinions in lieu of the evidence introduced.

Attorney Cyrus McNutt of Indiana finished the discussion for the defense, citing numerous cases where preconceived impressions admitted by a talesman had been regarded by the courts as sufficient to disqualify him.

"Any one can see that Nelson is prejudiced against McNamara," remarked Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defendant. "He has his own theories, too, by personal investigation, that the Times building was blown up by dynamite."

Deny Dynamite Theory.

The defense considers the question of the cause of the explosion a moot point and will argue that it was due to gas.

"Nelson has said he would set aside his own opinions and receive the evidence impartially," was the expressed attitude of District Attorney Fredericks. "I don't see how we ever will get an intelligent jury if we bar every man who has some opinion on the case."

The defense in this connection cited the answer of Nelson that it would take "strong evidence" to change his opinion concerning the explosion as sufficient proof or bias.

It was intimated by Mr. Darrow before court opened today that should the court disallow the challenge for cause against Nelson, a peremptory challenge at any rate would be exercised against him by the defense.

Keen Interest in Opinion.

With keen interest the ruling of the court will be awaited, and it was said today that an elaborate opinion from Judge Bordwell will be forthcoming on Monday. The weight of the opinion, it is considered, will be felt throughout the preliminary stages of the trial in the empanelling of a jury. It is expected to define how far newspaper reports or preconceived notions as to the manner in which the building was destroyed, formed by personal observation or gossip in the town, may prejudice a juryman.

Judge Bordwell, though not required to explain his decision, the categorical announcement of acceptance or rejection of the talesman being regarded as sufficient, it is predicted will go forth at length the limitations which counsel can reach in future interrogation of talesmen. The range that may be traversed by the attorneys in seeking to learn a talesman's views on labor warfare also is likely to be settled by the ruling of Judge Bordwell.

Decision on Monday.

"I intend to study the transcript of Nelson's answers very carefully," said Judge Bordwell early today, "and will announce my decision on Monday."

Few people were in the courtroom today, the automobile races at Santa Monica attracting the curious. As a matter of fact, however, the audience in the chamber has been comparatively sparse since the trial began. The great length to which the case is expected to drag is thought to be influencing the public to await more interesting moments of the trial. It generally is expected here that it will be several months before the trial is ended.

Both James B. McNamara and his brother, John J., secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, have prepared for a long siege. James B., who is on trial, is looked upon enviously by his older brother, whose chance for a daily airing on the way to and from the courtroom will not come for some time, as his trial is not likely to begin for many months.

John Envies McManigal.

"Ortie McManigal gets out auto riding, in fact, 'joy' riding, nearly every day," protested John J., in his cell today.

"Why is that?" he was asked.

"He's supposed to be going to conference with the district attorney, and I understand they take him around the parks and boulevards, too."

The brothers live on the second floor of the jail, in separate cells, across a narrow corridor, that bisects a steel cage enclosing four cells. Besides the McNamaras, a man charged with wife murder occupies a third cell, while the fourth is vacant. Barred windows face the street and the Hall of Records, where the trial is being conducted.

Talesmen Are Confined.

The twelve talesmen who are being examined also are getting a taste of confinement. They went to breakfast, however, today, in a big, sight-seeing automobile, the only conveyance available in which they could be kept together as required.

Extensive preparations are being made for the bringing of several hundred witnesses to Los Angeles. Both sides have informed those whom they wish to testify that at least a week's notice will be given each before they are called. Some who lived in Los Angeles at the time of the explosion have scattered to various parts of the country. Many witnesses are expected to be brought from Indiana, as well as other sections, to testify to the character of the McNamaras.

"We are not going to call witnesses for some time yet," said Mr. Darrow, chief council for the defense, today. "It costs a lot of money to get them here, and we are going to try not to call a man until we are sure of the time we need him, as keeping the witnesses also will be a considerable sum."

Nearly 500 Witnesses.

Nearly 500 witnesses, it is estimated, will be sworn during the trial. More than 200 were examined by the grand jury which brought in the indictments, and the defense alone expects to produce about 250.

HUSBAND CATCHING BY FAT WOMEN

Many a too plump lady is groaning in spirit, at this moment, as she lolls back with a lollipop between finger and thumb, at the thought of her matrimonial chances.

She tells herself she can never give up her lolling and her lollipops and go in for exercising and dieting instead. Not even for a husband. Yet one glance over her bulging breasts, at her equally well advertised hips, tells her all hope is vain unless she reduces.

Now, such girls are simply behind the times, or they would not worry about their reducing. They would reduce—and do it without disturbance of their appetite for candy or luxurious ease. All that is needed to take off twelve to sixteen ounces a day, and rapidly reduce the hips, chin, abdomen, etc. (where fat is most objectionable) is one pleasant, elegant Marmola Prescription Tablet, after meals and at bedtime.

Get the fat off where it jellies most and see what that change will do toward attracting the men. The tablets are not injurious in any way (being made after the famous Marmola Prescription—viz: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fl. ex. Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Peppermint Water); and they are not expensive, the Marmola Co., 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and all druggists asking only seventy-five cents for a large case.

it will be preserved among the historical mementoes of the state.

The president, Governor Johnson and Mayor McCarthy spoke at the stadium, and Mme. Lillian Nordica sang, the chorus of the Pacific Coast Saengerbund assisting. At the conclusion of the ceremony all present united in singing the national anthem.

A feature of the celebration was the setting free of a hundred or more carrier pigeons, gathered from all parts of the Pacific coast, when the president lifted the earth laden spade from the ground. The birds, bearing tiny notes of announcement, and fluttering ribbons, will carry the news up and down the coast. Daylight fireworks supplied by San Francisco Chinese ended the celebration.

Met By Governor Johnson.

President Taft found what may prove to be the heartiest welcome of his trip awaiting him here last night. He had spent the entire day in the state, traveling down from the northern border, where Governor Hiram W. Johnson and a party of officials met him. Governor Johnson, who is the insurgent Republican leader of the state, used but few words, and invariably referred to Mr. Taft as "the president of the United States."

Governor Johnson did not attend the banquet in honor of the president last night, pleading a previous engagement.

In his speeches Mr. Taft often referred to the coming exposition, and said he was sure it would be another exemplification of the manner in which California and San Francisco "do big things."

Mr. Taft will remain here until Sunday night. Yesterday afternoon at Oakland the president attended the laying of the cornerstone of the new municipal building. He also passed in review several thousand bluejackets and marines from the Pacific fleet.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

FAIR

The present northeaster is not expected to last.

The expected fair weather did not come today, but the weather man predicts generally fair weather tomorrow, after rain this afternoon and tonight.

A year ago today it was cold and rainy.

The sun rose this morning at 6:25 and will set at 5:23, making ten hours and fifty-eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"A disturbance that has developed over the upper Mississippi valley during the last twenty-four hours has caused light to heavy rains over the lower Ohio, lower Missouri, upper Mississippi and Red River valleys, Western Lake region and Gulf states. Other depressions centered over Alberta and Arizona have caused warmer weather throughout the Rocky Mountain region and rains in North Pacific districts. Conditions favor unsettled weather and more or less rain at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

summer of 1910 was also a great shock to the venerable jurist, but Justice Harlan continued to perform his share of the work for the court.

Third Longest Service.

His great ambition was to serve until next June, when he would have exceeded the service of any other man who ever sat on that bench. As it was, his service was longer than that of any other justice except Chief Justice Marshall and Associate Justice Stephen J. Field. Field's was the longest service —34 years 6 months and 10 days; Marshall's, 34 years 5 months and 5 days; Harlan's, 33 years 10 months and 25 days. His service exceeded that of Justice Story, who was on the bench just 33 years 9 months and 22 days. These are the only justices who have served their country on the bench for more than a generation.

It was while sitting on the bench Monday that Justice Harlan first felt the attack of bronchitis. He asked then for such simple remedies as were at hand, but he remained on the bench. By Tuesday considerable fever was manifest. On Wednesday he was markedly weaker and his condition grew worse, although it was not understood at the supreme court that his condition was so alarming.

Seemed Somewhat Better.

Yesterday he seemed a little better. His son, John M. Harlan of Chicago, a lawyer, was summoned here, however, and another son, Dr. Richard C. Harlan, traveling in Europe, was notified. Last night he grew worse and death came at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

An Opinion of Harlan.

The mention of Justice Harlan as a suitable presidential candidate to lead the so-called anti-imperialism campaign in 1904 aroused considerable interest at the national capital. The Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript then commented on the suggestion as follows:

"Justice Harlan has come to be regarded as an ideal exponent of the anti-imperialist program. The opinion is a ringing one, and the sentiments expressed in it will no doubt be freely quoted in congress and on the stump. Harlan has, moreover, always been on the 'popular side' of the great questions that have come before the supreme court. He was in favor of the income tax and is a strong believer in federal control of the trusts. He is, of course, a Republican, and was appointed to the supreme court by President Hayes; but in many of the issues of the day he is out of touch with the present Republican policy. That is to say, he is a moderate protectionist and a sound money adherent.

"Although born and reared in Kentucky, Justice Harlan can hardly be regarded as representing any particular section of the country. During the war he commanded a regiment of Union volunteers.

The Workingman's Friend."

"If a search were to be made of Justice Harlan's opinions during his long service on the supreme bench, the number of occasions upon which he has decided in favor of 'the undercrust of society' would be found to be surprising ly large. It is recalled that in the case of deserting sailors from the barkentine Arargo he was alone in his dissenting opinion sustaining the appeal taken by the seamen, and in doing this he had to make a very broad interpretation of the thirteenth amendment. These sailors had under private contract, agreed to service for a certain term, but when their vessel reached Astoria they deserted. They were arrested and given over to the shipmaster, but on the way to San Francisco they refused to work, for which they were brought to trial in that city. Mr. Harlan sustained their appeal for relief from the decision of the California court on the ground that slavery existed wherever the law recognized a right of property in a human being. 'A condition of enforced service,' he said, 'even for a limited period in a private business of another is a condition of involuntary servitude.' He said in conclusion that it seemed to him that the court read the thirteenth amendment to him as containing a clause excepting seamen engaged to serve on private vessels. His opinion made good reading, but very bad law, most lawyers believed. But that citation of this sort from a great number of cases would make him a popular candidate for the presidency on the 'workingmen's friend' issue cannot be successfully denied."

Made Hayes President.

Justice Harlan received his early education in Kentucky, where he was born. In 1861 he removed to Louisville to enjoy a broader field in the practice of his chosen profession. With the outbreak of the war he raised a regiment and became a colonel. After fifteen months' service in the Union army, upon the death of his father, he returned home. In 1871 and again in 1875 he was the Republican candidate for governor of Kentucky. In 1876 he was at the head of the Kentucky delegation to the Republican national convention, and it was by his effort that Hayes was nominated for president. He caused the name of Bristow to be withdrawn and directed the vote of the Kentucky delegation to Hayes. This move caused Blaine's defeat by 17 votes. A few months after Hayes' inauguration, Justice Harlan was appointed to the supreme bench.

The justice was fond of outdoor exercise and an enthusiastic golf player.

WALSH IS PAROLED

President Ladow and the other members of the board made their secret conclusions in the cases a few days later. On Sept. 30 Mr. Ladow went East to submit his report to Attorney-General Wickersham. He would divulge none of the proceedings except to say that the treatment given Walsh was exactly the same as that accorded the other petitioners.

Improved in Spirits.

Walsh went back to work at his desk in the newspaper clipping bureau. It was stated that Walsh had improved in spirits from the time he knew definitely that he was to have an opportunity to present his petition. This spirit he maintained till his release today. Despite his age, he performed his prison duties to the last in a cheerful mood.

Walsh's son, Richard, was expected to arrive at the prison today. It was said he left Chicago last night.

When the prisoner was notified that a parole had been granted he was overwhelmed. He had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of a favorable reply. He confidently expected it would arrive by Thursday at the latest. When it failed to arrive yesterday noon, hours after he had expected it, he passively gave up all hope.

Had Given Up Hope.

"I fear the finding has not been favorable," he said, and seemed greatly depressed.

The order to parole was received by telegraph from Attorney-General Wickersham. Walsh was at once summoned into Warden McClaughrey's office and told of the favorable finding.

Although he said little, the smile that wreathed his face told plainly of his great happiness.

No arrangements had been made to provide clothing for the paroled man. It is thought that Richard Walsh is bringing them. In case the son fails to do this, the former banker probably will leave here wearing a regulation suit of prison clothing, as is customary in the case of all prisoners quitting the institution.

Relatives Almost Overcome.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Relatives of John R. Walsh here were almost overcome at the final news of the banker's parole. They had received so many previous reports from unreliable sources, that when the news came, they were unprepared to believe it.

The banker's son, Richard Walsh, for whose arrival it was said the banker would wait, was out of reach in one of the suburbs. At his home, the news was received joyously.

Mr. Walsh's wife was almost overcome by the news.

She has begun hasty preparations for her husband's homecoming.

LYCEUM THEATER

SUNDAY NIGHT, OCT. 15

EDDY AND HIS COMPANY OF MEDIUMS.

Spirit Power in the Light—London Open Light Seance

A table rises from 4 to 5 feet and floats in mid-air. Spirit hands and faces are plainly seen and recognized by friends. A guitar is played and passed around the room by an invisible power. Flowers are brought and passed to the audience by hands and plainly seen, and bells are rung, harps are played and other tests of startling nature take place in the presence of these wonderful mediums.

ALL ARE INVITED.

GHOST WILL WALK.

Interesting Spiritual Manifestations Will Be Given by Dr. Eddy.

Dr. C. M. Eddy, the renowned medium, will conduct a series of interesting spiritualistic demonstrations at the Lyceum Sunday night, Oct. 15, and the big theater promises to contain an audience that will find many things of interest in the seance given by this famous demonstrator of spiritualistic phenomena.

Dr. Eddy is known all over this country as one of the most interesting mediums that has ever appeared before an audience, and his manifestations are said to be the most bewildering in their conception.

Unlike other mediums, Dr. Eddy conducts all his experiments upon a brilliantly lighted stage, and a committee from the audience is on the stage during all his tests. He uses absolutely no trick paraphernalia, and it is said that no man has occasioned more comment in his particular line of work. Some say that he is the only legitimate successor to Mme. Blavatsky. Some of the phenomena which Dr. Eddy will present at the Lyceum Sunday night will include slate writing, spirit pictures and materializations. Questions written and retained by the interrogators will receive full and intelligent answers.

IN A NUTSHELL.

To the Editor of The Herald:
I see that The Herald favors letting women vote. It also favors the initiative, the referendum, the recall and primary elections. Is there any crazy idea The Herald does not favor? STALWART.

Yes. The Herald does not favor the crazy idea of letting a few conduct public affairs for private profit.

THE REASONS FOR IT.

The other day The Herald published a letter from Speaker Dunn of the Minnesota house of representatives, discussing the extra session idea, which he favors and for which he is working effectively.

Today another letter comes, this time from a plain citizen who has no public office but who has an ardent curiosity about some things which we shall be glad to satisfy so far as we can. His letter follows:

To the Editor of The Herald:
I have been much interested in The Herald's campaign for an extra session of the legislature, and for the life of me I can't make out why it hasn't persuaded the governor to call the legislature together. It seems to me that when The Herald says that railroads aren't taxed half as much as they should be, that their taxes ought to be increased so they will pay on the same basis as I do, that if the increase is not made at an extra session two years' increase will be lost, amounting to twenty times as much as the session would cost, and when nobody is able to deny any of these things or tries to do so, that it ought to settle it. I have been expecting to hear long before this that a session had been called. You say that the governor and his "political associates" are against the extra session. Will you kindly tell why they are against it when if they had any consideration of their duty to the people they would be for it? Very truly,
ENQUIRER.
Appleton, Minn., Oct. 13.

It is always hard to be sure about the processes of another person's mind, but The Herald is willing to hazard a guess, in answer to this question, about the workings of the gubernatorial mind regarding the extra session.

Governor Eberhart is opposed to an extra session, in the first place, because those who were instrumental in making him governor are opposed to it. He is opposed to an extra session for the very reason the people want it: because it would result in getting some tangible relief for the people out of the legislature. If he is keen about seeing that the railroads pay their full share of the taxes, and that the people are not compelled to pay a large part of what the railroads should pay, he has not shown it. If he is anxious to redeem the state from the humiliation of being the only state in the Northwest whose people must pay 3 cents a mile to travel on railroads, he has not shown it. The only way to show it and the only way to end it is to fight; and the governor has shown no evidence of having fighting blood so far. The people will be excused, therefore, if they draw from the situation the inference that he is more faithful to special interests that might suffer from an extra session than he is to the people who might gain by it.

And there are other reasons why he and his political associates are against an extra session. It would be easy to pick out a limited number of important measures and put them through at the extra session, and the chances are that railroad taxation would not be the only measure considered. Among the measures likely to be considered are the statewide primary election, which would have passed if the senate had remained in session half an hour longer; the initiative, the referendum and the recall; and the ratification of the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The governor and his official family are desperately opposed to all of these measures, and especially to the statewide primary. If that were passed at an extra session the political organization back of Eberhart would lose its control of the state.

These, it seems to us, are some of the probable reasons why Governor Eberhart has thus far refused to call an extra session of the legislature; and they may be summed up in a few words: the governor and his friends do not want an extra session because they do not want the legislation which public opinion would force through at that session.

TRYING TO BRIBE A CITY.

Congratulations to San Francisco. Its people had the courage and the public spirit to vote their convictions on a measure of vital importance in spite of the fact that they were offered a big bribe to vote the wrong way.

One of the measures adopted by the people of California Tuesday largely increased the powers of the railroad commission. The railroads, of course, were against it.

A few days before election a rumor was put forth that the Southern Pacific—which has lately lost the state of California, which it had run for years—was planning to give San Francisco a million-dollar union depot. The rumor was qualified by the statement that work would not be begun until "legislation adverse to railroads is either stopped or tempered to a degree that will give confidence to the company to proceed with various large projects involving an outlay of millions of dollars."

It was a silly piece of business, of course; but maybe the railroad man guilty of it thought it might serve to turn the tide of public sentiment and bring about the defeat of the measures giving the state greater power over the railroads.

But it didn't, and it is vastly to the credit of San Francisco that it didn't. If California gets the kind of power over the railroads it ought to have, it will be able to compel the construction of a union depot or any other necessary adjunct to railroad service, whenever and wherever it is needed.

THE PRIMARY AND CORRUPTION.

Attorney General Bancroft of Wisconsin, in his testimony before the Stephenson investigating committee, sounded a keynote to which opponents of popular government are tuning their lyres for a new attack on the primary election system.

Said he, apropos of the large smears of money that Stephenson spread over Wisconsin when he was after the senatorship: "We never had talk of corruption in this state before. It all came about since we got the primaries, and now there's nothing but political evil."

These will be welcome words to those who oppose giving the people power over their own affairs. The fat-chopped prebendiaries of Special Privilege who believe the world is lost unless they can manage public affairs for their own purposes will echo that statement the country over. There was no political corruption until the primary election came, and now there is nothing but corruption.

Fiddlesticks! That will be about enough of that sort of talk. What sort of minds and memories does Attorney General Bancroft think people have, anyway? It is true that old Mr. Stephenson, in his senile ambition to crown his career with a boughten senatorship, squandered a lot of money, most of which seems to have been absorbed by eager political "workers."

But if there were anywhere a set of books that would show how much was spent in politics in Wisconsin in the old pre-primary days when the senatorships from that state went to railroad and lumber barons and their friends, it would be easy to prove that Stephenson is a piker when it comes to spending money in politics.

When a corrupt practices act compels the publication of campaign statements it looks like a lot of money to hear that one man has spent $107,793 on a primary election campaign for the senatorship. But it must be remembered that in the old days there was no corrupt practices act, and nobody published any statements of campaign expenses. And the old gang from whose control La Follette and the people of Wisconsin won the control of the state didn't get their power and influence and offices for nothing.

The expense accounts under the primary system are open, but the expense accounts of senatorial elections under the old system were closed; and you can bet your last nickel that they were closed tightly.

If anybody could come forth with an accurate statement of the money spent on electing senators in Wisconsin and Minnesota alone for twenty years prior to five years ago, we venture to say that the showing would be so interesting that nobody would be paying attention to Uncle Ike Stephenson's penny ante profusion.

The primary election does not breed corruption. It throws political processes open to the light of day, and exposure kills corruption. If too much money was spent in a Wisconsin primary election campaign, and if the use that was made of it is obscured, that is because Wisconsin's corrupt practices act is lame. The books of the primary election campaign are open, and candidates are dealing with all the people. The books of the old convention campaigns were closed—fortunately, or penitentiary doors would have opened oftener — and candidates were dealing with a few people, many of them purchasable.

Opponents of the primary election will not be wise to invite a comparison of conditions under the old system with those under the new, on the score of corruption.

CITY EXPRESS DELIVERIES.

The Commercial club will take up the subject of city express deliveries again next Tuesday. Within reasonable limits, the express companies ought to deliver every package they receive. They are paid well enough for it, as their fat capital and fatter dividends show. The express delivery limits ought to extend to all settled portions of the city, and deliveries should be made without extra charge.

HOW LITTLE THINGS COUNT.

Too many people scorn too much the little things in life. They don't stop to think that it is the little things that the big ones depend on—big ones like safety and health and prosperity and human life and happiness. A few, here and there, recognize the relation of the little things to the big things, and these coin their wisdom into success.

The recent calamity at Black River Falls, Wis., seems to be a case in point. If you followed the stories of this casualty you will remember that the rains swelled the river, that a small dam above gave way, precipitating a flood upon the larger dam below; and that presently the pent-up waters tore a way through around the big dam and flooded the valley below. They wiped out the industries and business section of a thriving community, doing big damage. Fortunately only one life was lost; but it might easily have been otherwise.

One report of the calamity says: "At one time, engineers think, a man with a shovel and a bushel of gravel could have saved the basin, the canal and Black River Falls. The first gallon of water over the hillside west of the dam put the flood beyond the power of control."

But the man with the shovel and the bushel of gravel was not there, so the flood was not stopped and the damage prevented.

It's like the first slip in conduct, or the first drink a young man takes: little enough in itself but big in consequences.

Then there was the little boy, too, who with his finger in a leak in the dyke saved Holland. Holland, you know, was redeemed from the sea, which was kept back by a dyke. One day a little boy found the water trickling through a tiny hole in the dyke. He knew that if it was not stopped the water would wear the hole bigger and bigger until presently the sea would break through and flood the land. So he stuck his finger in the hole and held it there, in spite of his suffering, until help came. It was only a very little hole, and only a very little finger that kept it tight. But that little hole might have let in the sea, and that little finger kept it back and saved Holland.

A loose spike in a railroad track is a little thing, too. A tiny flaw in a machine upon which depend the lives of many people is a little thing. But either may kill its hundreds.

Don't get the wrong viewpoint of little things. If there had been a man at Black River Falls with a shovel and a bushel of gravel, and if he had shoveled the gravel into the place where the first gallon of water was about to break through, it would have seemed like a very little thing indeed, and few would ever have heard of it. But "the first gallon of water over the hillside west of the dam put the flood beyond the power of control;" so looking back at it it seems like a very big thing.

Big things are always made up of little things; and the mischievous part of it is that no matter how important a big thing may be, its existence and success may depend upon the character of some very little thing that is so little that few people would pay any attention to it.

The case of Black River Falls preaches a powerful sermon on the building of big things, from dams and machines and railroads to business success and personal character.

THE END OF THE MASHER.

The city council has passed an adequately vigorous ordinance against the street masher, and Chief of Police Troyer has issued instruction to his men to enforce it rigidly.

That ought to put the mashers out of business in Duluth, especially after one or two have spent a term in jail to realize that there is no room in this city for their contemptible practices.

LESSONS FROM EUROPEAN CITIES.

European cities have been in business a long time. Naturally they should be able to teach something to the younger cities of America. Now that Duluth is considering the planning of the city it is going to be, it will interest those concerned in the building of Duluth to read the suggestive list of things that European cities do to make themselves sightly, comfortable and prosperous, published elsewhere in The Herald tonight.

THE "DUTCH TREAT."

The National German-American alliance has adopted a resolution calling upon its executive committee to present to the next biennial convention a practical plan of abolishing the custom of treating at public bars.

If that can be done, and the "Dutch treat" made the rule, a very practical and very substantial move in the interests of temperance will be made.

The "Dutch treat" is the most sensible social custom that any nation every produced. The American treating habit is about the most vicious social custom that any nation ever produced.

Just how it can be arranged to abolish treating and substitute the "Dutch treat" for it we do not know, but we do know that it will be a very good thing if it can be done.

Treating has its humorous side as well as its wretched side; but mostly the humor is of a very bitter quality. Men treat their fellows openhandedly, as they line up against the bar, when their children are suffering for lack of bread and shoes at home. Custom, and the desire to appear generous and not stingy, is more powerful than the instinct of humanity toward the treater's dependent ones. It is humorous, in a way, to think of a man behaving like a prince of good fellows in a barroom with money that his wife and children need; but it isn't a pleasant sort of humor at all.

In its results, the treating habit is often tragic. A man, thinking he needs a drink, goes in to get it. A friend is there, and he must buy for him also. The friend, of necessity, must reciprocate, so he buys another drink for the two. Another friend comes in just as this is going on, and he is invited, naturally, to join the two. Having joined them it is up to him to hold his end up, so he buys another round. Whether more friends come in to keep this merry game going, or whether, discretion drowned by the three drinks, the friends keep on drinking to give the three drinks company, the result is the same: men who intended in all good faith to take one drink and go home arrive at home late or not at all, and besides being out of pocket they are more or less drunk, depending on their appetite and capacity.

This is a kind of generosity, but so fixed has the treating habit become that in a majority of cases it is the same caliber of generosity as that involved in giving a tip because you know you have to—or think you have to.

And it is a pretty wretched kind of generosity that consists in giving away your children's bread and shoes, and a pretty wretched sort of friendship that consists in drinking up the food and clothing of your friend's family.

Often the men who get entangled in this treating process are men who can't afford the expense. Yet for fear of being thought mean or stingy, and of being accused of not holding up their end, they spend money in treating and in getting themselves and their friends drunk that should be spent in the support of their families.

Anti-treating laws, though well meant and aimed at a real evil, don't seem to work. If the National German-American alliance can devise a way of abolishing the treating habit and making the Dutch treat the custom, it will do the country a great service.

A LITTLE NATION'S BIG MEN.

The Jews are powerful in the financial realms of the world, and that means that they are powerful in government as well as in commerce and finance.

But there is another race, less noted for its powers, but nonetheless powerful. Consider the Welsh. Wales is a tiny place, with an area of less than 7,500 square miles. Yet the real ruler of Britain, Lloyd-George, is a Welshman. The man whom some call the real ruler of the United States, Morgan, is of Welsh descent. It was Lloyd-George who put the House of Lords out of business, and it was Morgan who said lately that Germany couldn't fight France because he wouldn't let it have the money.

And you'll find the Joneses and the Williamses and the Robertses and their fellows prominent and substantial everywhere.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

BACHELOR'S VIEW OF PROPOSED TAX.

To the Editor of The Herald:
We read with interest in The Herald about a week or ten days ago where Mrs. Florence Lee, a visiting nurse in Duluth, made the suggestion that bachelors of our city should be taxed 50 cents per month, the money to go toward the fight that is being waged against tuberculosis.

Also, we note where the Mankato Free Press indorses her suggestion by saying: "That is right; tax the bachelors; they ought to be made pay something for their single blessedness."

From the depth of our soul we appreciate the effort in the work Mrs. Lee is doing to alleviate suffering humanity. And, also, we thank the Mankato Free Press for their hearty indorsement by saying "Tax the bachelors."

We do not wish suffering humanity, or the well and prosperous citizens of our fair city to entertain the idea that we would object to contributing a portion of our earnings to a fund to aid the suffering and for the good of society. It is not the tax that hurts; it is the principle of it, in not including the married men as well.

The Mankato Free Press might lead some of our good people to think that we bachelors—as boys—were a harum scarum bunch, the kind that make balloon ascensions at county fairs or run away to sea to the deep mortification of our respected parents.

But we beg to differ; we are a sober-minded lot. The same spirit guides us that guided a Washington across the Delaware or a Stanley or Livingstone in the jungles of Africa, or the many more explorers that are continually getting lost in the Polar regions.

And now don't pick us out as a class and be too severe, for some may not be bachelors by choice—and in regard to giving, most of us have lived long enough to know the old adage is true: "It is more blessed to give than receive."

We would be pleased to hear from some other bachelor.

The way they are doing things this day and age, we, as bachelors, may have pretty hard sledding ere the twentieth century comes to a close.
A BACHELOR.

SUGGESTION FOR ADVERTISING DULUTH.

To the Editor of The Herald:
Now that Duluth is to see a birdman who will soon be a topnotcher in his profession, why not use his appearance here as an advertisement for the city?

If a little inducement were given him by the Commercial club or other sources, he might be persuaded to fly under the now famous aerial bridge, over one of the busiest canals in the world.

It would bring him prominence, as pictures could be arranged for to appear in the leading magazines.

From the skill shown in his Superior flight, he is the one who could accomplish the feat.

The Sherman Law as It Works.

Mr. Taft is of opinion that the trust decisions have made the meaning of the Sherman law "clear." but this view is apparently not shared either by judges, lawyers, statesmen, or business men.—The Sun.

Harper's Weekly: No; not yet. So far as our observation and hearsays go, the Sherman act still has them all guessing, especially the lawyers and the business men. The business man goes to his lawyer and says, "Does the Sherman act permit me to do thus and so?" The lawyer studies the transaction and replies, "I guess not; but I am not sure. Crackerjack of New York is a greater lawyer than I, let us ask him." So they ask Lawyer Crackerjack, and he writes back, "I guess not. I am not sure, but I could not assure you that you will be within the law if you do it. Better not do it any more than you can help." So the business man, not wishing to risk a stay in jail, does it as little as possible, restricting his operations accordingly.

Our neighbor, the World, thinks that the law would be abundantly clarified, and the president as its sponsor would be vastly endeared to the people, "if the administration would send half a dozen trust magnates to jail." The World must be one of those to whom the Sherman act is clear, but there is no guarantee that the act as the World sees it is identical with the act as Mr. Taft sees it.

Perhaps the understanding of the Sherman law as now interpreted by the courts, is spiritual, rather than merely rational and mental. It may be a thing that is finally revealed to some minds after periods of anguish, and denied to others. If that is the way of it we should not wonder, perhaps, that the Sun does not understand it yet.

Mr. Wickersham seems to understand it sufficiently to prosecute, but not sufficiently to advise how to escape prosecution. When besought for for a tip how the possibly guilty may cleanse themselves of even the hazard of sin and jail sentences, he says the department of justice cannot act as counsel for the corporations. No doubt that is true. The pity is that so much business should be in a situation where it yearns so heartily and so vainly for responsible counsel. The man up the tree inquires of the department, "If I come down, shall I be tossed by that bull?" The department replies: "We cannot advise you in advance, but the bull has been let out to toss wicked people, and if it turns out that you are wicked he will probably toss you. We cannot tell at this distance whether you are wicked or not, but the bull will know, and his behavior to you will help us and others to understand him, and the principles on which he bases his judgment."

Isn't that about it?

And Mr. Taft says: "I understand the bull; he is all right; give him his head."

And the World says:
"The only trouble about the bull is that there haven't been enough fellows shaken down for him to toss. Let him toss a few, just to encourage the rest."

And Mr. Bryan and his co-operators say: "The bull was all right before the supreme court sawed the tips off his horns.

He Saw the Joke.

Housekeeper: A prominent Englishman was entertaining several Americans. On one of their drives they came to a crossroad sign post that read: "Five miles to Plymouth and fifteen miles to Exeter." Under these directions was another sign board that read, "If you can't read ask the blacksmith across the road."

The Americans laughed at the absurdity of the signs. The Englishman looked for the cause of the merriment, and was referred to the wording of the signs. He read them thoughtfully and then joined in the laughter.

"You see the point?" asked one of the Americans.

"Oh, yes," replied their host, "the blacksmith might not be at home, you know."

The Truth About Broadway.

New York World: There is, in fact, no greater popular misconception than that of Broadway as a region of sheer delight. Its pleasures are sordid and its lights have a cheerless glitter to those who look at them with unemotional view. There is more true radiance to a single argand burner where companionship and good fellowship are than in all their million candle power.

WE VOTE WITH THE GLOBE.

Don't Be a Gorilla.

New York World: A nature-story deserving of passing comment is presented in the contrast between the gorilla that starved itself to death in the "Zoo" last week and the newly arrived orang-outang that comes to town happy in captivity and addicted to the use of whisky and tobacco.

From the first the gorilla showed a stubborn defiance of its captors and an utter unwillingness to accept favors. Whether it mourned for its lost land and its lost liberty or was merely vicious and ugly does not appear. One thing is certain: it would not eat. It could not be tempted by the best dainties our civilization could find at home or import.

Very different is the conduct of the orang-outang. He showed himself friendly from the first and displayed a willingness to adapt himself to circumstances that argues a high degree of intelligence. Clearly he is not one of those that bewail fortune, cry over spilled milk or seek to recall the irrevocable past. His liberty gone, his land gone, his old companions gone, he accepts with cheerfulness the cage, the foreign clime and the association of men. He even goes further: he consents to share their food, their stimulants and their joys. So while the gorilla, dead, will be but a stuffed curio in a museum, the orang-outang, alive and well, will be petted and pampered for many a year.

And the moral is plain. Accept what fortune sends; don't be a gorilla.

Don't Be an Orang-Outang.

New York Globe: Between the gorilla who died last week, because he hated his cage, refused food and starved, and the orang-outang who is a model and submissive captive, making friends with his keepers, taking all the good things he can get, doing his best to forget his lost liberty, the World chooses the gorilla as a moral guide. "Don't be a gorilla," says the World.

Is the choice quite so plain? Did the orang-outang really choose the better part?

The orang-outang arrives out of private life. He finds that he can get neither aid nor comfort unless he does as he is told. Unless he votes as he is ordered to vote no bill that his constituents care about has the ghost of a show. If he is docile and abject, never thinks for himself, goes to his keepers to learn their commands, does their will without question, then he is certain to get his share of the good things of legislative life. His keepers are kind to him. They will "pet and pamper him for many a year."

The gorilla is devoted to an idea. He hates his cage. He doesn't believe in cages. He thinks an independent creature has no need of keepers. They give him nothing. He starves, to be sure, but hasn't he set a pretty good example to the other animals? Isn't there something fine in his preference of death to slavery?

The moral is fairly plain. Too high a price may be paid for comfort. Don't be an orang-outang.

Bill Casey at the Bridge.

How well Horatius kept the bridge in the brave days of old
I'm sure you know, but I know well another deed as bold.
'Twas on the day the game was played whose issue was to say
Which nine should win the pennant race and bear the flag away.
At noon James Murphy bared his arm —his pitching arm—that all
The Blues might see those mighty cords that were to pitch the ball,
And bear the Blues to victory—no team could hope to stand
Against the dazzling curves that sped from Jimmy Murphy's hand.

'Twas 1 o'clock that day of days. The Blues wer gathered there
At Jimmy's home, whence they would march, and, ah, the day was fair!
The game was set for 3 o'clock. What steals and double plays
They'd dare and do, those valiant Blues, to humble those proud Grays!
'Twas one-fifteen—they were to march —when from the porch they heard
Some words that made each heart stand still till scarce a pulsebeat stirred:
"James Murphy!" said his Mother's voice, "not one step from this door, Until the garden has been hoed, as I told you before!"

He was to do it yesterday, but he forgot somehow:
Alas! When so much hung on him, how could he do it now?
It meant three hours of good, hard work—It meant he could not play!
It meant the death knell of the Blues on that eventful day.
No boy of all the Blues but stood quite palsied with his fear;
Their doom was in those fatal words—the hour was drawing near,
When Billy Casey broke the spell. "Quick, boys!" he shouted, "go
Each one back home—run like the wind—and bring you back a hoe!"

A wondrous sight in their back yard was to be seen right soon:
Nine Blues, nine hoes, nine boy backs bent that summer afternoon.
Nine rows of garden hoed as one—and when 'twas done they filed
To the back door and left their hoes, and Mrs. Murphy smiled.
Triumphantly they marched them forth, and Jimmy pitched a game
That earned for him and all the Blues the most undying fame.
They said he won it all himself, but like Horatius bold,
'Twas Billy Casey kept this bridge, from what I have been told!
—J. W. Foley in New York Times.

Taft on Taft.

Harper's Weekly: We are of opinion that the president has a pretty correct notion about himself and his administration; and it is not every president of whom so much can be said. We think, too, that his confession goes a good way toward explaining both the successes and the failures of his administration. By conviction and by temperament the president is a moderate. His administration has accordingly succeeded when wisdom lay in moderation. It has failed when moderation was unwise, when it had the effect of weakness. Perhaps the best instance of its success is his handling of the situation created by the troubles in Mexico, which would have offered to a president of a different temperament and different ideals abundant opportunities to embroil this country in our neighbor's affairs. Notwithstanding the outcome of the reciprocity pact, we account that also an instance of the success of moderation, for the attaining of an agreement with the Canadian government was a diplomatic success, and such were the difficulties of the negotiation that it would have been impossible if our demands had not been moderate. On the other hand, the president's tariff policy has been a failure, and it has failed because of his moderation. Long before he became president he had advocated a revision and lowering of the tariff rates. It is to his credit that he was one of the first Republicans to take that stand. But as president he did not reiterate the demand with sufficient insistence. He did not demand enough of his party in congress. He was too easily satisfied with what he got, too easily persuaded that it was impossible to get more. He was too moderate. In much the same way his Southern policy seems to be failing. He has shown clearly that his conscience rebels at the evil system which permits little cliques of officeholders to control with patronage his party in that quarter. He has admirably defied those machines in certain appointments. But he has not repudiated the system. He has not forbidden his manager, Hitchcock, to employ it. He has not gone far enough.

Clothes to Give Away.

Barnum Herald: A skunk got into one of O. H. Todd's chicken pens one night this week and destroyed nearly $100 worth of fowls. Todd got the skunk all right but not before it "got" him. He has got some clothes that he does not care to wear just at present.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Hold Your Tiller True.

Marcus Aurelius, emperor of Rome, had a brave pilot who had served him long and faithfully. When affairs called him to distant parts of his vast empire this trusted man was his constant companion. Once when returning to Rome they were caught in so terrible a storm on the Mediterranean that the galley and all aboard of her seemed doomed.

Up on the deck was the old pilot steering; and as he held the ship in the teeth of the gale he was muttering his prayers. In that time ancient faiths were largely passing into decay. The old pilot wasn't exactly sure that there was any Jupiter or any Neptune, but still he was praying, and here is his prayer: "Oh, Father Jupiter! Oh, Father Neptune! You may sink us if you will; you may save us if you will; but whether you sink or save us I'll hold my tiller true."

Not infrequently people get into elaborate difficulties regarding matters both of faith and of philosophy. The mysteries of human existence impress and even appal them. They cannot hold to the creeds of the churches and they cannot accept the explanations of the preachers. Some of my most valued friends have been thoughtful doubters of this kind. And to them one preliminary word of counsel has to be given.

The man in this state of mind has at least one plain duty. He should hold his tiller true. He should steer a morally straight course. Even when doubts arise like a cloud about his head there are some unchanging stars to go by.

The duty of right conduct is on us all whether or not we have satisfactorily solved all the problems of life. No man is in duty bound to evolve a complete theory of the universe. But he is in duty bound to live clean. He is not compelled to demonstrate the fact of the existence of God, nor weigh the earth in balances nor mete out heaven with a span. But he is under bonds to exhibit an honest life.

I do not know who has spoken the truth more strikingly than the great English preacher Robertson. In an address to workingmen he said: "If there be no God and no future state, yet even then it is better to be generous than selfish, better to be chaste than licentious, better to be true than false, better to be true than a coward. Blessed beyond all earthly blessedness is the man who in the tempestuous darkness of the soul has dared to hold fast to these venerable landmarks."

Many a man has reached a big, deep harbor of faith by steering just this course. Robertson did himself. I have noticed that the people who are putting the best things into life are the people who have the best philosophy of it.

The way to learn to think true thoughts is to do right deeds. The great heartening convictions that keep humanity from despair never yet came from the loafers or the bums or the profligates. It was the great Teacher of Galilee who said: "If any man willeth to do His will he shall know of the doctrine." The way to learn more is to practice what we know already. No matter how the wind blows or how the spray flies, then, hold your tiller true. THE PARSON.

Husband—I don't know. I've never heard you in one.

Toledo Blade: Jack—I can't tell you how much I love you.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Say that block of stock you sold me last week has been going down ever since."

"Well, why do you suppose I sold it to you?"

Chicago Record-Herald: "I can't for the life of me understand why anybody should wish to play chess."

"Yes, but it affords no opportunity whatever for breaking speed records."

Boston Transcript: "Now, gentlemen, said the stage manager at rehearsal, "I want you all to wear your heavy overcoats to this scene, as it is supposed to be an extremely chilly night.'

"I have no overcoat, sir," replied one of the actors—then a bright thought struck him; "but I could put on my heavy underwear."

Christian Register: "I dunno how Bill's a-goin' to vote in this election," said the campaign worker. "I've hearn tell he's on the fence."

"He wuz thar," replied the neighbor, "but one o' the candidates let fall a dollar on the off-side o' the fence, and Bill got dizzy an' fell off."

Pathfinder: Percy—Lend me five, old chap, and I'll be everlastingly indebted to you.

Reggie—That's just what I'm afraid of, old fellow.

"In my case, Bobby, it's usually the one I partake of after starting on a trip across the ocean. It hardly ever stays put."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Girls only tell fibs about their suitors so as not to have to tell bigger ones.

A woman can make herself believe her husband's politeness to her is devotion.

Sometimes a man's explaining problems to the children doesn't muddle them very much more about them.

You might impress the joys of heaven on children by making them believe it's all school in the other place.

A woman has done a big day's shopping when she has spent a tenth as much on it as on her car fare and luncheon.

His Idea of Heaven.

New York Globe: Unless William Howard Taft was unlike other babies, heaven lay about him in his infancy. A little later, unless he was unlike other children, he would now and then picture to himself this heaven that he used to know. Bit by bit he would make his picture, borrowing his colors now from the Old Testament, now from Bunyan, now from the Revelation of St. John the Divine. Later still, when his occupations in this world left him scant leisure to imagine the next, perhaps a "sunset touch," a glimpse of the land between the clouds, would give him a sudden vision of the celestial city.

So long as his thoughts of heaven were after this kind, they differed little from most men's thoughts. Now, however, in Mr. Taft's mature years, his notion of heaven has become idiosyncratic. He sees heaven as a court of justice—perhaps as the United States supreme court. "I love judges and I love courts," he said yesterday. "They are my ideals that typify on earth what we shall meet afterward in heaven under a just God." The earthly imitation, we may suppose, is not exact. In the next world there will be no agitation for the recall of judges, no decisions by a divided court, no concurring in part and dissenting in part by Harlan, J.

Whenever Mr. Taft talks about courts, and talks emotionally, the utmost passion of his heart is revealed. There lay the ambition he has renounced and buried. A sense of duty made him renounce it. If there are courts in the next world, which does not seem quite certain, we hope he will be allowed to preside over one of them.

BEN TILLMAN, EX-RADICAL

By SAVOYARD.

The Hon. Benjamin R. Tillman is announced as a candidate for a fourth term in the United States senate, beginning March 4, 1913, which leads folks to conclude that the senator has not been as sick a man as common report published him to be. We hear that he is remarkably spry for a paralytic, and quite active in the management of his farm and other material interests, without removing his finger from the public pluse of South Carolina, "the cock of the South."

I do not know whether the Tillman clan is patrician or plebelan; but I do know that Senator Tillman is the most turbulent, the most daring, the most sensational, and the most successful leader of the "cracker" element of the South. He is the Cleon of the American agrarian movement, and when contemplating this man's aggressive career and pondering his radical preachments, one cannot but revert to that wonderful address of another son of South Carolina, William L. Yancey, in which he contrasted the Northern and Southern ideas, so radically different, and yet not necessarily antagonistic. I don't suppose that Tillman himself denies that he is a demagogue, but I am sure that he classes himself as of the school of demagogy Alexander H. Stephens applauded and which certainly is admirable, while his adversaries would have him an ollapodrida made of a stew of Jack Cade, John Wilkes, Dennis Kearney and Jerry Simpson.

SENATOR TILLMAN.

It was my fortune to be present when Tillman made his maiden speech in the United States senate. It was a full house. The man had been heralded. He was the representative of the state that had made radiant the Continental congress with the galaxy of Bee, Butler, Gadsden, Izard, Laurens, Motte, Pinckey and Rutledge, the state that had sent Butlers, Gaillard, Hayne, Calhoun, Preston, McDuffie, Hammond, and Hampton to brighten the luster of the United States senate.

As Ben Tillman that day brought his pitchfork in play, the senate sat in manifest amazement. Never did I see two faces more grave than those of George F. Hoar and John Sherman, and never was there face that expressed more serene disdain than that of John T. Morgan, and I thought of another senate that was rapt in the very sublimity of grandeur when the barbarian Gaul profaned its precincts. Never was the bully better exploited than the successor of John C. Calhoun played him that day, and one looked in vain for a Yancey, or a Wigfall, to develop that streak of yaller that one was sure was hid away in the man's moral and political fiber.

With a countenance severe if not sinister, with a deliberately graceless and ungainly, with a voice harsh and provocative, the man yet seemed to fascinate. The matter of his speech was extraordinary and contemptible. He assumed to be a paragon, and like the vulgar herd the senate took the man at his own valuation. He uncorked the vials of his impotent wrath and invincible prejudice to pour his venom on the head of the greatest American then living, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States. And it is to the everlasting shame and scandal of the national legislature that no senator present had the decency and the courage to call him to order. His theme was honesty and his argument that Ben Tillman is the honestest man in the world and the only honest man in the senate. The president was a knave because he disagreed with Tillman; the secretary of the treasury was a fool because Tillman could not approve his course. The only man present who enjoyed the speech was Bill Chandler, and from that day they were par nobile fratrum.

But Tillman made a hit. The next morn he woke up to find himself the most notorious public man in America, a place he held until some two years ago. Fierce as was Tillman—in the index—the octopus came to fellowship with him and made him grand huntsman of the chase along with William E. Chandler and Joseph W. Bailey. Aldrich, Spooner and Lodge all admired Tillman and flattered him. For long weeks that summer Bill Chandler, mischievous as a monkey, patient as a spider, active as a cat, fetched and carried between Roosevelt in the White house and Tillman and Bailey in the senate. The sham battle grew lurid when Teddy hurled the lie, soon after which Aldrich concluded he wanted to go to Europe, drafted an amendment, gave it to the old Smoothing-Iron Allison, the senate accepted it, the octopus chase was over, and, as usual, humbug was blissful and triumphant.

But before the grand octopus chase by Teddy and Tillman, Chandler and Bailey, was pulled off, Tillman had delivered himself of the most vicious sentiment ever uttered by Southern statesman. He is a protectionist. He believes that good can issue out of evil. Representing South Carolina, he was bound to herd with the Democrats, and he was classed as a tariff reformer; but the trail of the serpent was over him, and he was bold enough to announce it this way: "As long as the stealing is going on I want my share for South Carolina."

Just think of the atrocity of that declaration! A state can no more afford to profit by knavery than an individual. Put that heresy to the citizen, man or woman, and honesty, and chastity would vanish and our republic become what the Roman empire was the immediate centuries before the destruction of the Roman civilization. But I greatly fear that many communities of the South have embraced this heresy of grabbing for a share of the stealings. If the South is to have protection for what she produces, is she base enough to deny to the North protection for what she produces? I hope not. But the protection sentiment at the South makes genuine tariff reform impossible until the manufacturer shall come to see his true interest, free trade.

One of the very entertaining chapters in English history is that treating of "Wilkes and Liberty." John Wilkes was about the most disreputable public man of his day, as brilliant a scamp as any country ever produced, and a resourceful demagogue from skin to core. He was one of the notorious "Hellfire Club," whose monstrous orgies sent the mind back to the Rome of Heliogabalus. He was editor of the North Briton, and utterly without belief or principle, he was yet a trenchant writer, incapable of a single dull line. He had the impudence of a devil and was as valiant in turmoil as Moloch. He stood for parliament and the Middlesex constituency returned him. He was denied his seat, and the cry of "Wilkes and Liberty" went up from every constituency of the realm. Again and again he was returned, and again and again he was rejected by the house of commons because of his infamous personal character and unspeakable personal conduct. The whole country was in turmoil and to be a "Wilkite" was to be a patriot. Finally he prevailed and got the seat.

Some years ago war Wilkes was invited to dine with the king, old George III. Considerable attention was paid him, and the king asked: "What has become of Sergeant Glynn, who upheld your cause so ably and so steadfastly?" Impudent in the abstract and in the concrete, the brilliant knave answered: "O, Glynn? Your majesty. I cut his acquaintance long ago. He was a Wilkite, something I never was."

And now, Ben Tillman, he of the pitchfork, the only honest man in American public life, and the honestest man in the world, is classed as a conservative, along with Martin, Bailey, Maryland Smith and the rest of 'em. He voted to retain Lorimer, even, and the octopus fears him not.

Can it be possible that Tillman was never a Tillmanite?

KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM

Stops Falling Hair—Others Imitate and Make Similar Claims, but the Genuine and Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer is Newbro's Herpicide.

The discovery of the dandruff germ as the cause of all hair troubles is not a recent event. Prof. Unna gave the germ theory to the world in 1887 and two years later Sabourand by his experiments with a rabbit proved beyond a doubt the actual existence of this germ.

On the heels of this establishment of the germ theory came the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. This was the first and only remedy for the destruction of the dandruff germ.

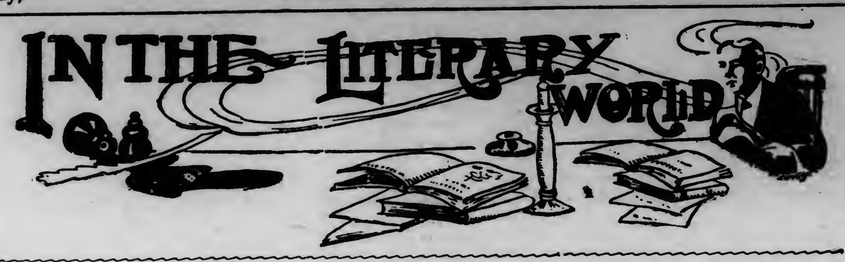

There have been other preparations alleged to kill this germ, stop falling hair and itching of the scalp. But Newbro's Herpicide really does these things. For this reason it has long been known as the original remedy and the only one that is genuine.

Don't be fooled by preparations which are trading upon the marvelous success of Herpicide. Remember you take no chances with Newbro's Herpicide. It is absolutely guaranteed.

For sale by all druggists.

Applications at good barber shops.

The Herpicide Company, of Detroit, Mich., Dept. R., will send a sample bottle and booklet upon receipt of 10c in postage. Lyceum pharmacy, special agents for Duluth.

THE IRON WOMAN. By Margaret Deland, author of "The Awakening of Helena Richie." New York: Harper & Bros. $1.35 net.

Mrs. Deland has become so adept at psychological analyses that at times there is danger that we shall overlook the human specimens whose souls are being analyzed. But not after we get into the tremendous sweep of the story. This romance is a sequel to "The Awakening of Helena Richie," and a book by Mrs. Deland is an important event, especially as Helena Richie herself is in it—a shy, unobtrusive character who rises supreme in the climax of the story.

We liked the book, and those who read it will follow the fortunes of its people with intent interest. It is a good story; and if not great, it is close to it. We liked Elizabeth Ferguson, who was gay, kind, hot-tempered and quickly sorry for it but doing dreadful things between and having to repent them afterward. You will be sorry, too, for Mrs. Maitland, who was so busy being "the iron woman"—which means running the iron works so that Blair Maitland might be rich—that she didn't know how to make her children love her, or really know how it was with them. So it was Helena Richie's adopted son David, and not hers, that Elizabeth loved; and it was not her daughter but another's that David wanted. Nor did she know how to let them know—Blair least of all—that her unlovely exterior covered a warm heart that ached for love denied her.

So she ruined Blair with kindness, and so made him the worthless but beauty-loving young man who betrayed his friend and all but ruined the life of the girl he loved. Peculiarly distressing is the abyss between the yearning iron woman and her artist son with his love of the beautiful and his repugnance to all that was ugly—including his mother with palpitating Nannie trying to offer herself as a buffer and mixing things dreadfully. Her business was her passion, for Blair's sake; and after getting him out of a scrape, almost in the same breath with her decision in his case was: "Now how about the Duluth order?" She tried to span the gulf with money, and thus ruined him so that he took poor Elizabeth, in a passion of fury because David's pride wouldn't let him marry on her money, and swept her into marrying himself—Blair, whose god, he said, was honor.

The development of these characters, from the childhood of the young people to the tempestuous climax when Elizabeth, reckless of all but her love, fled to David, only to be rescued from the fate of an unlawful alliance by the revelation of Helena Richie's story, is finely done; and the story itself rushes, once started, logically and irresistibly to the tensely dramatic culmination.

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL. By Rex Beach, author of "The Spoilers," "The Silver Horde," etc. New York: Harper & Bros. $1.25 net.

As was to be expected, Mr. Beach has produced an exceedingly entertaining romance, and one that does him credit. If it is a story that must sound startlingly familiar to Richard Harding Davis, that is solely because of the virile, picturesque atmosphere which Davis has bathed his heroes and heroines in so much, and not at all because this story is an imitation. Mr. Beach, besides writing an exceedingly interesting tale, has given it the background and atmosphere of the Canadian and Latin-America as effectually as he provided the Alaskan background and atmosphere for "The Spoilers" and "The Silver Horde."

The story is about Kirk Anthony, wastrel son of a great American railroad chieftain. Celebrating a football victory in New York with a party of hilarious associates, he falls in with one Locke, a stranger with an abundance of yellow-backed bills of large denominations who takes advantage of their overflowing good spirits to become one of them. Locke, however, is not all that he should be, and a distressing encounter with a detective, in which the latter has his skull broken by one of the irresponsible young drunkards in Anthony's company, brings them all into danger. Locke's subtle contrivance brings it about that the next evening, after a dozen hours' stupor from drink and "knock-out" drops, Anthony finds himself, penniless, on a steamer bound for the isthmus. On the boat he meets Mrs. Edith Cortlandt, a wonderful woman considerably his senior but highly attractive, who is mixed mysteriously in big politics and who uses Cortlandt largely as an instrument to carry on her plans. With the Cortlandts Anthony is to have much to do later. Meanwhile he lands, falls in with an American consul whose hope is not in the type, gets into trouble with the little brown people of Panama, leaps light-heartedly from this trouble to others, and finally buckles down to work on the Panama railroad with the firm intention of "making good" and showing Anthony, Sr., that he is not such a ne'er-do-well as he thinks. The situation grows greatly complicated when Anthony falls in love with a dainty Latin-American beauty, and when Mrs. Cortlandt shamelessly falls in love with Anthony. There is plenty of excitement and not a little humor, and it is needless to say that it is all well done.

REBELLION. By Joseph Medill Patterson, author of "A Little Brother of the Rich." Chicago: Reilly & Britton. $1.25 net.

Crudeness and power—not seldom associated, by the way—marked Mr. Patterson's earnest, purposeful and sometimes effective work in "A Little Brother of the Rich." Less crudeness and more power are apparent in this latest volume, which is in every way superior to the first. It is real life, with no attempt to soften its sordidness—quite the contrary, in fact. The theme is divorce. Jim Connor is an idle and drunken husband who has been ruined by politics and idleness—perhaps by an inborn yellow streak beyond his power to overcome; it is hard to judge in such cases, and safer not to. His wife Georgia is a trim, efficient, industrious and comely woman, a stenographer who keeps at work while Jim idles. The situation became unbearable, and she chucked him out—as she should have done. What then? She was pretty, attractive, desirable. A man worth while desired her. She loved him. Should she get a divorce and remarry? Her church forbade it. She believed in her church, and feared its anathema. When Jim, thrown on his own resources and forced to work for his bread, straightened up and came back, she took the priest's advice and took him in. A child came—such a child as is to be expected from a drunkard father whose father was a drunkard. The child died, happily, and as death came the father was brought home reeling drunk. Then came her Rebellion—against the tie that bound her to this sodden hulk, against the church that bade her cling to him and cast love and hope out of her life.

There is still crudeness in Mr. Patterson's work, but there is reality, power and purpose enough to outweigh it—and more.

PANDORA'S BOX. By John Ames Mitchell, author of "Amos Judd," "The Pines of Lory," "Dr. Thorne's Idea," etc. New York: Frederick A. Stokes company. $1.30 net.

This is a brilliantly entertaining story, but lest that repel let it be added that it is also warmly human: for brilliancy is often neither warm nor human. It is a delightful romance of perfect charm, with two heroes, a man and a dog—a baseborn dog who is much more of a gentleman than some of his human associates of noble birth.

Sally Pindar declared with some heat that the Lady Octavia, daughter of Drumworth castle, was no snob; an opinion which Ethan Lovejoy, an American architect of whimsical humor, stout heart and homely exterior, tentatively disputed. Yet, thanks to the Lady Georgiana, Octavia even as a child "realized that a benevolent Creator had established two classes of humans, distinct and far asunder—people of birth and others." Presumptuous indeed, therefore, was it for a gardener's daughter. But he was cool enough not to betray his excitement, and to pique the lady's interest by chaffing her about adored ancestors and her absurd devotion to the accident of birth. Octavia was shocked and indignant but impressed by his reflection that her most venerated ancestor wasn't so very gallant when he slaughtered unarmored commoners from the safe shelter of an iron suit through which no sword or spear could penetrate. It was a great victory when he got this daughter of a hundred earls thinking of those unarmored common soldiers. A gulfed youth was Ethan, who pretended he didn't know that he was entertaining aristocracy when he chaffed her, but who knew that if he admitted knowing her she would not come again.

But come again she did, and that started the story—a very admirably entertaining romance.

The author, who is editor of Life, contributes four good pictures.

THE FLYING GIRL. By Edith Van Dyne. Chicago: The Reilly & Britton company. $1.

Few stories have ever come from the press at a more opportune time than did "The Flying Girl," by Edith Van Dyne, author of "The Aunt Jane's Nieces" books, which have been read and loved by so many thousand girl readers. Almost coincident with the publication of the book came the great Chicago aviation meet at which time several ladies made ascensions.

The scene of the story is laid in California near a suburb of Los Angeles, where climatic conditions are very favorable to the art of flying. Stephen Kane, with his sister, Orissa, is the sole support of a blind mother, but Steve has invented such a wonderful biplane that it is deemed wise for him to abandon his work in an automobile repair shop and make ready to enter his machine in a coming aviation meet. The brother and sister have to endure many hardships in order to do this, but through skillful manipulation of their scanty finances the good mother is allowed to feel none of the privation. Steve and Orissa work like Trojans to perfect and complete their machine and after one or two hazardous flights made by Steve in the early morning hours, everything works to his satisfaction. The road to glory, however, is attended by many mishaps, not the least of which is the breaking of Steve's leg a short time prior to the great meet, through the duplicity of the men hired to guard the hangar containing the machine. Every effort is made to secure an aviator, but to no avail, and as a last resort Orissa volunteers to take Steve's place. Many doubts are entertained as to the capabilities of the young aviator, but she finally prevails, makes the ascension and wins the big event; also performing a most daring feat in the rescue of the aviator who has tried to demolish her machine.

Throughout the story Miss Van Dyne has kept the character of Orissa sweet and girlish, and though the thrilling adventures are many and varied, the story is as clean and wholesome as her "Aunt Jane" series, though differing widely.

THE YOUNG TIMBER-CRUISERS, or Fighting the Spruce Pirates. By Hugh Pendexter. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.20.

This story deals with the adventures of two boys, Stanley Malcolm and Bub Thomas of Northern Maine. Stanley is a city boy and when the reader first meets him, he is just "learning the ropes," so to speak, among the lumbermen. He and Bub go off on a timber-cruising expedition with Abner Whitten, the oldest timber-cruiser of the Maine woods, and Noisy Charlie, a most interesting Indian; in an endeavor to thwart the efforts of a rival operator who is seeking to steal a vast tract of timber land. Stanley's experiences in learning woodcraft and the adventures of the whole party with Big Nick, a half-breed, in the employ of the rival operator, as well as with other scalawags, make an exciting story, teeming with interest for the red-blooded boy, and throughout giving him a vast store of actual knowledge of woodcraft. No book could be more fascinating reading than "The Young Timber-Cruisers."

THE SEA FAIRIES. By L. Frank Baum. Chicago: The Reilly & Britton company. $1.25.

L. Frank Baum, the children's favorite author, master of the extravaganza and fairy story art, has turned from his narratives of the fanciful and eccentric people of "Oz," and in his new book "The Sea Fairies" takes his children on a most delightful expedition through the ocean depths. Fairies are everywhere, as every child knows. Mr. Baum has found them above the clouds, in far away Oz land, among the enchanted islands of the unchartered seas, and now he finds them in Mermaid land.

In "Sea Fairies," the first book of a new series, Mr. Baum has introduced Trot, a childish character equally as sweet and lovable as "Little Dorothy" in his Oz stories. The amazing adventures of this small maid in her trip through the waters with Queen Aquareine and the fairy mermaids, who protect her from all harm by their magic powers, are as astonishing as they are interesting. In the story of this fairyland under the sea there is something to be learned of the fish family and its habits, all clothed, however, in the garb of the fairy tale, but very funny, as fish fairies are just as foolish and ludicrous as those endowed with human form. Trot's constant companion, old Cap'n Bill, is a unique character. He follows her everywhere. He is a grizzly old sea dog who stumps around on a wooden leg, and while he loves the water he would rather be above than below it. Zog, the Terrible, whose magic powers coupled with his natural tendency to do mean things, and whose smile conceals his wickedness, is always held in check by the beautiful Queen Aquareine. Sacho, the slave of Zog, the Terrible, is found to be the exact opposite of his master, for it is he who constantly teaches the children the futility of hatred and bad temper, and that laughter, joy and song are the real requisites of a happy life.

The "Sea Fairies" is wonderfully illustrated. Twelve paintings by John R. Neill are reproduced in colors and set within wonderful bronze borders, while in addition thereto are nearly 150 other illustrations.

It had been a wonderful Christmas for Tommy. Everything he had asked Santa Claus for had come, and more, too. There was a railroad that ran by electricity; a steam engine; a complete circus with a tent, animals, and the funniest clown named Whoop-la; but the best of all was a little aeroplane.

With the nursery filled to overflowing with toys of the most up-to-date type and the childish mind intensely interested and alert to grasp to the fullest possible extent of its comprehension, the wonderful things father and grandfather and uncle had been saying about the big aeroplanes that carry people up into the skies is it any wonder that, when Tommy fell asleep before the grate, he too should soar away in the tiny craft which Santa Claus had brought him? "It's a real live aer'plane," said Tommy, "and I'll run it jus' like big men do, and go way up to the sky and—and—I'll play with stars if I want to." So Helen and her kitty, his pet dove, Fly, and Whoop-la, the clown, all went up in the aeroplane with him on a visit to the sun, the moon, Mars, and to visit Santa Claus himself, in Toyland. Such wonderful adventures, such speed that kitty had to hang on tight with her claws, as on and on they went away up beyond the fleecy white clouds that Helen had always supposed were made of white cotton, but instead found to be like a thick fog.

"Twinkle, twinkle little star,
We'll find out just what you are."

Few of the present day books will incite to greater imagination or prove more instructive reading for the little folk than "The Magic Aeroplane" by Mrs. L. R. S. Henderson. The story is charmingly told and is one which the little tots will undoubtedly want to read or have read over and over again, with always new questions for mother and father to answer as each succeeding reading stimulates new thought. The book is profusely interspersed with colored and black-and-white illustrations.

In addition, he has a cousin, an uncle, and two great-uncles in the newspaper business. Mr. Patterson's first book was "A Little Brother of the Rich," which created a profound sensation at the time of its publication in 1908. Since that time he has turned his attention to playwriting and is the author of several plays.

Of Books and Writers.

Apropos of the publication of Mr. Justin H. Smith's "The Annexation of Texas," by the Baker & Taylor company, the author has given out the following statement:

"The annexation of Texas, it can justly be said, was a very interesting, important, complicated and critical affair. It involved issues and consequences of no little moment in our domestic politics. It gave us an area greater than England and France together, with a port that ranks very near the head of our list, and paved the way for the acquisition of San Francisco and our far southwest. It led to our greatest and most brilliant foreign war. It extinguished a nation that might have become a strong and unfriendly rival and might have caused the disruption of the Union. It removed an excellent opportunity for certain leading European powers to interpose in the affairs of this continent and in particular to embarrass the development of the United States. It presented a field of battle on which our diplomats and those of England, France, Mexico and Texas waged a long and intricate struggle with all their skill and with a full determination to succeed; and it brought these five nations to the verge of war. Such an episode would appear to merit a detailed study, especially since very different opinions regarding it still prevail; and as the author while gathering data for a history of our Mexican war, found many essential materials for a thorough treatment of the subject, he has felt under obligation to complete and present them."

Despite the fact that Morley's "Life of Gladstone" published in three volumes, sold for more than $10, there never was written a biography which enjoyed such wide popularity as this one, or of which so many copies were disposed. It is undoubtedly true that many people who would like to own this great work have found the price prohibitive. It is to put it within the range of these people and to meet the demand for a more compact form, that the two-volume edition has been prepared by the Macmillans. This new edition contains all of the material in the three-volume work without change.

Originally issued by Little, Brown & Co., seven years ago, this story of a Vermont cripple whom a friend induced to take up wood-carving was some time in attaining its popularity. A 28th printing (10,000 copies) is now announced. When "Octave Thanet" leaves her writing desk she leaves that name behind her and puts on her real name—Alice French. Mis French has always taken a keen interest in the business, and it is through this familiarity with practical affairs that she is able to write so sanely of work and workers in her new book, "Stories That End Well," (Bobbs-Merrill.)

Among the Magazines.

"Flashes From a Dark Lantern," by W. J. Wintle, which is the opening article in Short Stories for November, is the first of a series of short, vivid stories of his crimes by an expert cracksman. They are said to be true stories, though they read like fiction. "Miss Rosenbloom" is an amusing story by Ellis Parker Butler, who is regarded by many as America's foremost humorist. Other notable features are: "A Dish of Chilli con Carne," by Crede Haskins Calhoun; "J. Hollister, Canvasser," said to be the freshest ever as a salesman, by Freeman Tilden; "The Meanness of Myrtle," by Frank Condon. And there are many others, bright, fresh humor predominating.

In the first November Popular, George Patullo continues his series of short stories telling of the adventures of the sheriff of Badger. Other good things in the current issue of this vigorous magazine are complete novels by Robert Welles Ritchie and Grant Overton, and Francis Lynde; serials by Burton E. Stevenson and A. M. Chisholm; and short stories by Clarence L. Cullen, Charles E. Van Loan, Donal Hamilton Haines, Ralph D. Paine, Charles R. Barnes, W. T. Davant, Michael Williams and Jackson Chase.

Every number of St. Nicholas, from November to April, it is announced, is to have the beginning of a new serial, or series of articles. In the November issue are the first chapters of "Crofton Chums," the new serial by that favorite writer, Ralph Henry Barbour. These first chapters promise a serial along rather new lines for Mr. Barbour; but a narrative full of the fresh and wholesome interest which characterizes all his stories. Another beginning of good things in this number is the first of a story, "The Knights of the Golden Spur," by Rupert Sargent Hughes, author of "Historic Boyhoods," "Historic Girlhoods," etc., promising a novel and delightful treatment of famous old legends. Of many short sketches and stories, one of special interest to the older readers of St. Nicholas is Day Allen Willey's "The Little Brothers of the Y. M. C. A.," a sympathetic account, with many pictures, of the splendid work among boys being done by the Young Men's Christian Associations of this country. It is good news that Hildegarde Hawthorne's splendid series of talks to boys and girls on "Books and Reading" will continue through the new magazine year. These talks are helpful and inspiring essays, opening a new world of enjoyment and profit to boys and girls who read them.

Other articles in this number are: "The Musical Laughter of Italy," by Charles Johnston; "A Hero of the Confederacy," by Lafayette McLaws; "England's Peril—Starvation," by Sydney Brooks; "The War Spirit in Germany," by Edward T. One of the Ashland papers printed an account of the wedding of which the following is a part:

"Miss Alice Joyce of this city, and Charles D. Rodman of Louisville, Ky., were united in marriage at 11 o'clock this forenoon. The wedding ceremony was performed by Father Fahlan, at St. Agnes church. Nuptial high mass was celebrated, and standing in the sanctuary, behind the altar bedecked with lilies and palms, the couple was made one, passing out through a pathway of ferns, to receive the congratulations of friends. The bride and groom departed on the Omaha train, at 3:45 this afternoon, for a short bridal trip, and will take up their residence in Louisville, Ky, where Mr. Rodman is general agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company.

"About sixty people were invited to the wedding breakfast, which took place at noon, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Joyce. Southern smilax, and American beauties were the decorations at the home. The bridal party marched from the residence to the street, under a large covered archway, flower girls strewing their pathway with flowers.

"Miss Mae Joyce, a sister of the bride, and William Neumann of Louisville, were the attending couple, and the ushers at the church were John Maher, Thomas Sullivan and Frank Martin. The bridal presents covered a wide range of articles, including a solid silver tea set from the groom, a chest of linen from Mrs. Joyce, and many beautiful cut glass dishes.

"The party was preceded by Miss May Joyce, the maid of honor. She was dressed in white embroidered chiffon, and wore a white beaver hat and carried American Beauty roses. Following came the bride, on her father's arm. She looked very beautiful, in a gown of white satin and Duchess lace, and bridal veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet, and wore as her only ornament, a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. The bride's mother wore black chiffon, over blue silk. At the altar, the party was met by the groom and the best man."

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

SOCIAL PURITY AND SUFFRAGE

Club Women Hear Two Interesting Talks at Afternoon Tea.

DR. FLORA L. S. Aldrich who has been a guest in the city for the week read a splendidly prepared paper on "Social Purity" yesterday afternoon at a tea given by Mrs. R. Spiegel at her home 1912 East Fifth street. The guests were club women of the city and to them Dr. Aldrich made a special appeal for a careful study of the problem and for earnest work in eradicating social evil.

She said in part:

"Sleep not in the tents of your fathers. The world advances. Advance with it.

"Educators, clergymen, parents, municipal bodies, physicians and boards of health, should all be solicited by club women, to do their best respecting the work and do it as quickly as possible.

"A continuation of the social evil is most disastrous to the body social, and it must go the way of infanticide and poligamy. It is a blot upon our otherwise humane advanced civilization.

She Likened It to Typhoid Fly.

She likened individuals carrying social infections to the typhoid fly and the malarial laden mosquito, and stated that when people are fully awakened to the dangers of these infections, that a movement fully as strong and effective as the anti-tuberculosis movement will be inaugurated.

Dr. Aldrich especially advised club women to not specialize upon this subject until they were prepared, and mentioned many topics for consideration as leading up to this social uplift.

There exists the densest ignorance she stated, among the laity in regard to this subject, and too much impractical prudery.

She said it was a delicate question, and one which no class of women could handle so effectually as intelligent women and that among such, club women were pre-eminently the ones to do this.

She called attention to the fact that much of life's work along any line was underground, dark and disagreeable, but when the rising walls and sunshine appeared, one felt repaid.

Talk on Suffrage.

Miss Mary D. McFadden also gave an informal talk on the subject of Woman's Suffrage. "Every one of you women here," she said, "is an argument for suffrage. In fact you are our strongest argument in favor of it. Whether you are a suffragist or not the fact that when women's clubs were first organized not many years ago they were considered most out of place and that the women who joined them were sexless beings, doing things entirely out of their sphere, and that now the viewpoint in regard to these same women and their clubs has entirely changed, is used as a parallel for the woman suffragist."

She also spoke of the case in Seattle where the mayor of the city was recalled from office by the women of the city for the farming out of the vice privileges of the city, and that only a few months after they had been granted the ballot. The fact that the women were willing to express themselves by ballot so soon after being granted the privilege was also a point in favor of the cause.

Miss McFadden also spoke of the Biblical case to be found in Numbers, where three daughters wished to have the privilege of taking their father's name because there was no son to carry the name down. This, she said, was even more advanced than anything which the woman of today are trying to do.

Little Miss Hortense Spiegel and Miss Clara Fiebiger charmed the audience with two pretty duet numbers and Miss Fiebiger also played some solo numbers which were enjoyed. The rooms were pretty with autumn foliage and in the dining room a huge bouquet of daisies was used on the table. Mrs. A. H. Brocklehurst and Mrs. G. L. LaRue presided in the dining room assisted by Mrs. E. W. Kaltenbach, Miss Frances Earhart, Miss Irene Keyes, Miss Clara Fiebiger and Miss Hortense Spiegel.

MRS. ROBERT MORRIS SEYMOUR will conduct a class here in "The Art of Reading a Play" beginning Friday morning, Oct. 20 at 10 o'clock in the parlors of the Endion Methodist church. The plays studied will be those to be put on in New York this season by Ethel Barrymore, Mrs. Fisk and other prominent actors and the plays to be given by the company of Irish Players who are playing here this year. The lessons will give a practical application to the art of the theater and the plays from the actual theatrical standpoint instead of from an entirely literary standpoint.

Abingdon, Va.—Mrs. Jennie McCall, of this place, says: "I had been troubled with female complaints, for over ten years. I could not walk or stand on my feet, and had been almost confined to the house, for a long time. I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and now I can walk anywhere I want to go. Cardui is worth its weight in gold." This is a high estimate on a plain, herb medicine, yet there are thousands of women who would gladly pay this price for a remedy to relieve their suffering. Cardui has helped others. Why not you? Try it. Your druggist sells it, in $1 bottles.

both a financial and artistic success, and with the stimulous of success already achieved the club is starting rehearsals for the coming concert with determination to make it surpass all former efforts.

The principal work of the concert will be the beautiful "Swan and Skylark," written by A. Gosing Thomas. It is scored for four solo voices and chorus. A number of Duluth's finest artists will be chosen to interpret these beautiful parts. The choral club, however, will be the principal attraction for the concert with its well trained ensemble work, both in the chorus of the "Swan and Skylark" and in other short numbers which they are now preparing. There will be several unaccompanied part songs, many of them well-known favorites.

The first rehearsal will be held at the Temple building, corner Second avenue east and Superior street, next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. There are a few vacancies in the membership of the club and those who wish to apply for admission should communicate at once with W. C. Robinson, or attend the rehearsal next Thursday evening.

Opening Banquet.

A BANQUET at the Spalding hotel will be the opening feature of the year's work of the Greysolon du Lhut chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Thursday, Oct. 19, is the day set for the function, for which the committee in charge is composed of Mrs. George Elder, Mrs. N. F. Hugo and Mrs. A. D. Goodman.

Notices were received in the city yesterday by members of the Greysolon du Luth chapter and the Liberty chapter of the D. A. R. for the seventeenth annual conference of the Minnesota Daughters of the Revolution and the quarterly meeting of the Sibley House association to be held in Minneapolis, Thursday, Oct. 26 at 9:45 o'clock at the First Congregational church, corner Fifth street and Eighth avenue southeast. Gifts from individuals or chapters for the Sibley house will be received at this time. Lunches will be served at 1 o'clock by the ladies of the church. A large number of local delegates are making preparations to attend.

Mme. Nordica.

HAVING arrived at the top round of fame and fortune, Mme. Nordica often has been asked why she continues to endure the discomfort of concert tours when she might be enjoying with her husband, George W. Young, the New York banker, the several homes which are hers all the months of the year. "Because art is to every artist the breath of life," is her answer.

From beginning to end of her seven months' trip she travels and lives in her own private car, which has been specially arranged for her and is a veritable little palace on wheels. The car contains a fairly large music room, where Mme. Nordica can practice daily; a charming little salon, three bedrooms, besides bathroom, kitchen and servants' quarters. Mme. Nordica's suite on tour consists of a lady companion, a secretary and accompanist; her one veteran cook, who is a past master of the art; two men servants and two maids. When she arrives at the town where a concert is to be given, her car is shunted to a siding and there she lives until the time comes for the continuation of her journey to the next town.

In her intervals of idleness Mme Nordica has three beautiful homes in America at her disposal—a large country house at Ardsley on the Hudson river, a bungalow of enormous proportions at Deal Beach on Long Island, and a picturesque little farmhouse at Martha's Vineyard in Maine, which has become a kind of Nordica museum, since it contains the costumes she has worn in her famous roles, photographs of her at all ages and in all her operatic parts, pictures of her English ancestors who went over to America in the seventeenth century, and antique furniture which she inherited.

The date of Mme. Nordica's Duluth concert is Friday evening, Nov. 17, and her appearance at the Lyceum will be one of the most important musical events of the winter.

Theosophical.

THE Theosophical society holds its regular meetings for members on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 8 o'clock, in the lodgerooms, 28 Winthrop block, First street and Fourth avenue west. Public study classes for Sunday afternoons will begin in November, subjects to be announced later.

THE OPENING meeting of the year of the Liberty chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be a basket luncheon at the home of Mrs. J. L. Washburn at 1 o'clock Wednesday of next week. The Greysolon Literary society held a meeting Friday afternoon in the assembly room. The following program was given. "Greeting," Betsy Duclett; "Greysolon," Clara Renz; vocal solo with guitar accompaniment, "Juanita," Betsy Duclett; one-act comedy, "The Burglar." The cast for the play was as follows:

Mrs. John Burton, the hostess.....
..... Anna Einsweiler
Mrs. Valerie Armsby, a young widow
.....Maybelle Whiteside
Mrs. Charles Dover, a bride.....
..... Elizabeth Buckbee
Mrs. Freda Dixon.....Edna Savage
Miss Edith Brent, young and timid..
..... Anna McDougall

The parts were all ably taken, and the members of the society were much pleased with the excellent work of those who acted. The plot of the play is amusing. Five young women are left alone at night in a country house. The home of the nearest neighbor has recently been visited by burglars, so the members of the house party are very nervous. They hear mysterious noises in another room, and arm themselves with revolvers to resist the invader. Their attempts to shoot are laughable. Finally the suspense becomes unbearable, and one of the girls leaves the room to investigate, and returns with a cat, the innocent cause of all the trouble.

After the play Helen Nelson rendered a piano solo.

GREAT ECCLESIASTIC GATHERING

Rev. Dr. Forbes on the Coming of the Methodist General Conference to Minnesota--About 800 Delegates Will Be in Attendance.

Rev. Robert Forbes, D. D., corresponding secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, with head offices at Philadelphia, Pa., for many years pastor and district superintendent at Duluth, when asked for his impression of the coming of the general conference to Minnesota and Minneapolis, said:

"The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will meet in Minneapolis on the first Wednesday in the month of May, 1912. This conference is composed of an equal number of ministerial and lay delegates elected by the respective annual and lay-electoral conferences. Probably about 800 delegates will be in attendance. The general conference will most likely remain in session for about a month. Part of the business of the conference is to elect bishops, editors, secretaries and publishing agents. There is always more or less discussion concerning questions of polity. In the main, however, the body is conservative, and but comparatively few of the proposed reforms will be carried through.

"The polity of Methodism has been thoroughly tested and proved successful. The church is so cosmopolitan in character that it is at home on a fashionable avenue in the city, and equally at home among the poor and lowly. The church adapts itself to the demands of the city or country. It represents every phase of religious activity and is always on the right side of every great moral question. The clergyman may use a ritual and may without embarrassment assist a Salvation Army on the street. It is liberal in doctrine, the most liberal among churches. It refuses to debate the mode of baptism. In all non-essentials it says 'let every man be persuaded fully in his own mind.'

Largest Publishing House.

"It has the largest publishing house in the world. It is at the front in the great Prohibition movement. It is and always has been the friend of higher education. Its founders were among the learned men of their time. The Wesleys were scholars of Oxford, and Thomas Coke, our first bishop, crossed the sea with the wreath of scholarship on his brow. Some of the clergy have been scholars without the schools, and have reached a height 'where a diploma might be scorned.'

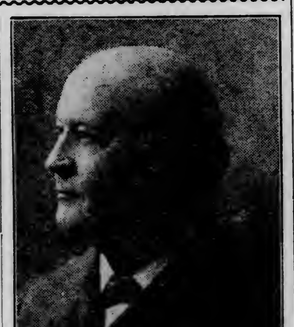

"Methodism is catholic in its spirit. Mr. Wesley said: 'I desire to have a league offensive and defensive with every soldier of Jesus Christ.' It is a force in the United States for morals and religion and good government. It offers no apology for either its doctrines nor its discipline. Standing upon the magnificent record for nearly one hundred and fifty years in this country it asks no quarters. Mr. Lincoln said 'the Methodist church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospitals and more prayers to heaven than any of the churches.'

"This great delegated body meets once in four years, not simply to elect the officers, but to gird itself for new achievements and greater conquests. Delegates will be present from Europe, Asia, Africa, and South America, as well as from the United States. Mr. Wesley said: 'The world is my parish.' The church has won illustrious triumphs in every land where it has unfurled its banner.

First Service in America.

"The first Methodist service on this continent was held in a room in a private house in what was then the little town of New York, in 1776. Without reckoning the membership in other Methodist communities, the Methodist Episcopal church has a membership of 3,500,000, the Sunday school enrollment being about the same. It has over 30,000 church buildings worth $175,000,000, and nearly 14,000 parsonages worth about $30,000,000.

"Possibly the greatest benevolent organization in connection with the church is the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, with headquarters at 1026 Arch street, Philadelphia.

REV. ROBERT FORBES, D. D.

This board is helping now in the support of 4,000 missionaries. These missionaries are giving their lives to the evangelizing of America. Their work is all done 'under one flag.' They are preaching in more languages than was used 'when the day of Pentecost was fully come.' The Board of Home Missions and Church Extension helps to build a church every day in the year. Every sunset tells of another church brought into existence through the aid of the board.

"Delegates to the general conference will return to their homes inspired with a new zeal, new courage and stronger faith.

"Since we last assembled as a general conference many of the mighty men of the church have fallen, men who carried glorious banners over hard-fought battlefields. As these banners fell from their trembling hands they have been caught up by worthy successors, and the cry is still, onward. We shall probably always hear the cry of the pessimist, but the optimist has the right-of-way, and will have the final hearing. The church moves and the world moves. Religion and science are in full partnership. The church is simply girding itself for greater conquests.

"It is no small matter for the city of Minneapolis to be the host of such a body of distinguished delegates. Minneapolis will be advertised to the world. The commercial and business profit to the city of Minneapolis will far outweigh the incidental cost of the entertainment of the general conference. Eight hundred delegates and thousands of visitors and friends will be in attendance. They will return to their homes in this and other lands and tell the wonders and glories of the far Western city.

"Minnesota was called a Western state when I entered the ministry forty years ago. We have scarcely started for the West when we leave Philadelphia and reach Minneapolis. Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Twin Cities, are not far from the geographical center of the continent—midway between the oceans. Many Eastern people have but a faint idea of the magnificence of that portion of our country called the West—'the fresh and fruitful West.' The vast region beyond the Mississippi is but in its infancy. The commercial possibilities of the three great cities, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, will be more fully appreciated by a large number of intelligent and influential people after the general conference of 1912."

The mock trial which was held by the Freshman-Sophomore Literary society at its regular meeting Thursday, was a pronounced success. This trial was in the nature of an experiment, although several have been held before, but the way the students handled the case showed very careful preparation, and they were accorded rounds of applause. The case was tried under the name of Lewis vs. Hoopes. The charge preferred by Mr. Lewis was assault and battery. Mr. Brackett acted in the capacity of judge. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty after a few minnues' deliberation.

ALLEN DENIES ALL WOMAN'S CHARGES

Kenosha Man Will Fight Suit Brought By Mrs. Jenkins.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Nathan Allen of Kenosha, Wis., leather merchant, against whom suit was filed in New York by Helen Dwelle Jenkins, has announced his intention of fighting every phase of the suit against him. This is the first public statement he has made since he came into the limelight on a charge of aiding Mrs. Jenkins in smuggling jewels into this country, for which he was indicted and fined a week ago. The statement was issued by W. S. Forrest, for Mr. Allen, and denied a recently published statement that the woman's suit would be compromised. He said:

"The case will be contested until a judgment is entered. Mr. Allen's defense is that the woman never owned the property specified in her bill of complaint; that Mr. Allen never took anything from any deposit box or any other place, or from any person, and that all the statements made by the woman Jenkins are false. Further particulars of Mr. Allen's defense will be disclosed at the trial."

Chicago Man Murders Wife and Then Wounds Himself.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—James Nader, who shot and killed his wife late last night and then shot himself, is said to be at the point of death at a hospital today. Nader shot the woman in obeying her injunction that he remember her 35th birthday and following a quarrel in which he accused her of infidelity.

"Don't forget today is my birthday," she told him during the day over the telephone.

"I'll remember it," he answered. "When I come home I'll bring you a present that'll keep."

When he entered their home at 2445 Jackson boulevard, he shot her.

They were married May 10, a month after she had obtained a divorce from her former husband. Neighbors said that Nader was jealous without cause.

WEST END NEWS

IMPROVEMENTS FOR WEST END

Sixth Ward Business Club Reorganized and Plans Work.

A long list of improvements for the West end and for which the support of the Commercial club and the Hillside Improvement club is asked, were among the matters discussed last evening at a meeting of the Sixth Ward Business club. The members met at 1902 West Third street and suggested the following improvements: The paving of West Third street, improving Central park, the extension of the street railway to Proctor, the building of sewer and drainage systems and bettering the lighting system in the Piedmont avenue district. The campaign for the paving of Third street will be started at once, say the members.

The club will work for a street railway extension to Proctor along the Piedmont avenue line. The plans at present are to run the new road out the Hutchinson thoroughfare, thus taking in a large part of the farming community, and then extending over to Proctor by way of the Morris Thomas road.

The club will petition the park board to improve Central park, Fourteenth avenue west and Fifth street, according to the plans now on file with the park commissioners. The members say that this could easily be made a beauty spot which would become a popular place for picnics and playgrounds, at a very low cost.

A large number of sewer extensions were also suggested for this section of the city. The secretary made a report showing what has been done the past few months and what the city is doing at present with regard to street improvements. Better lighting was also advocated at the meeting. The plan suggested by the Twenty-seventh avenue property owners at their meeting the other night that street improvements be paid by yearly installments, was highly favored by the members of the club.

PLEDGE SUPPORT TO MAYOR CULLUM

Seventh Ward Democrats Also Indorse Alderman William Bernard.

At a meeting of the Seventh ward Democrats last evening the administration of Mayor Cullum and the work of Alderman William Bernard were indorsed and they were promised support in the coming election. About thirty voters attended the meeting held in the voting place at Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street. Former Alderman M. J. Fillatrault acted as chairman of the meeting and Alderman James Gibson, secretary. Among those who gave addresses were: Charles Mork, Lucien Merritt, August Hagberg, M. J. Fillatrault, Alderman Gibson, Otto Johnson, Edward Nickerson, Judge J. D. Morgan, Carl Hagberg, Richard Flynn, J. B. Reaneault and W. L. Bernard.

The members of the organization are planning an active campaign in the near future and will endeavor to reelect the present alderman in that ward. They have also promised their support to Mayor Cullum and will attempt to carry the Seventh ward for him if he has opposition. Another meeting will be held in a few weeks when the regular work will be started and a general campaign mapped out.

SODALITY TEAM TAKEN INTO LEAGUE.

The Young Men's sodality has been taken in by the Twin Ports Indoor Baseball league, which was organized Thursday evening. The team represents the St. Clement's church and has had a strong representation in the past. Father Raymond of the church attended the meeting of the delegates held at Y. M. C. A. and was also appointed to the executive committee, which will arrange the schedule and secure halls for the games.

The teams that are at present in the new circuit are as follows: Big Duluth, Kenney-Anker, Jeffersons, Y. M. C. A., Young Men's sodality, Catholic Athletic club, Cathedral high school, Marshall-Wells and Company I of Superior.

The other members of the committee to serve with Father Raymond are Cal Lingwall and Chairman H. R. Swenson.

The mater of the Amateur Athletic federation for the Head of the Lakes was discussed and received much favorable comment. It is proposed to patern the local organization after the one in Chicago and will have jurisdiction over all amateur athletics. The matter will be discussed at a later meeting.

REPUBLICANS WILL REORGANIZE.

The West end Republicans will organize a West End Republican club at a meeting to be held early next week. The action is taken because the Republicans have been unable to decide on a good man for the coming campaign. There was a club at one time known as the West End Republican club but it has not been in existence for the past three years, and it is the plan now to reorganize.

A campaign will be started as soon as the club is organized for a large membership, so that there will be about 500 members by the presidential election time next year. The Republicans are also determined to elect one of their number as alderman and feel that it is possible if an organization is formed.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — In a decision handed down by the supreme court the verdict for over $5,000 against W. L. It was based on alleged misappropriation of public funds by the former state official, and the action was the outgrowth of an investigation made by the legislative assembly in its 1909 session. ## GRAIN ELEVATOR CASES ARGUED

Supreme Court Hears Government's Side of Controversy.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Forewarned that the interstate commerce commission had found the problem so difficult that it had changed its position thereon three or four times, the supreme court of the United States has undertaken the task of deciding the so-called "grain elevator cases," hearing P. J. Farrell, solicitor for the interstate commerce commission, explain the controversy from the government's point of view. On Monday the court will hear the other side of the question.

The cases challenge the power of the interstate commerce commission to prohibit railroads from paying to operators of elevators ali compensation for "elevating grain in transit."

The outcome of the controversy is said to concern the bulk of grain transported through the Mississippi basin. According to Mr. Farrell, grain elevator allowances are made by railroads only when the elevation takes place at Missouri river points.

Lurton Makes Comment.

"That would seem in itself like a discrimination against other points," suggested Justice Lurton.

"It is an undue discrimination," added Mr. Farrell.

Mr. Farrell explained to the court that shippers of grain from Kansas and other Western states to points on the Mississippi pay exactly the same rate of freight whether their grain is 'elevated' at Missouri river points or not. He contended that with rates the same, the allowance to shippers having elevation service performed was a discrimination against those not having it performed.

Denial was made that the Hepburn rate law authorized the payment for the service.

SOLD GRAIN WITHOUT PAYING SEED LIEN.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 14.—George Nixon of Ryder was arrested this week on a charge of selling grain raised from seed furnished by the county, without having paid the seed lien. This is one of the first cases of this nature to be tried.

QUARTER CENTURY CONFERENCE OF NORTH DAKOTA METHODISTS

Organization First Took Place in City of Grand Forks.

REV. S. A. DANFORD,
Superintendent of Bismarck District.

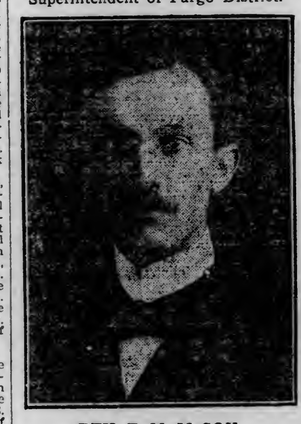

DR. J. G. MOORE,
Superintendent of Grand Forks District.

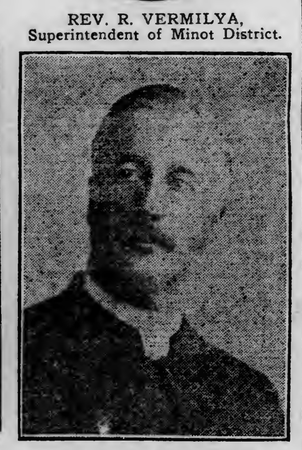

REV. CHARLES MACNAMARA,
Superintendent of Fargo District.

REV. R. VERMILYA,
Superintendent of Minot District.

REV. F. M. McCOY,

REV. H. P. COOPER,

REV. Z. BROWN,
Rolla, N. D.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-five years of work will be celebrated by the North Dakota conference of Methodists when the annual meeting is opened in this city next Tuesday. Incident to the conference session there also is the state laymen's conference, at which delegates to the general conference in Minneapolis will be elected, and which act lends greatly to the interest that surrounds the deliberations of the body.

No service that will be held during the week will be so interesting as that of the evening of the opening day. It will be devoted to the five Methodist ministers in the state who were members of the conference when it was launched in Grand Forks a quarter of a century ago, and each of them has been given a prominent place on the program.

This year's quarter century conference was brought to Grand Forks by reason of the fact that it was in this city that the organization took place, and it is a peculiar coincidence that the Methodist church of that day stood on lots adjoining the site of the present church. It was previous to that time the North Dakota mission.

Rev. Frank Doran, now of Winona, Minn., was then the pastor of the Methodist church in Grand Forks, while Bishop William L. Harris presided over the session and witnessed its inception.

The First Session.

From the minutes of the first session some interesting facts, remarkable by contrast with present day conditions, are gleaned. There were forty-two pastoral charges reported, with a total of 2,810 members. The last annual report showed 151 pastoral charges and a total membership of 9,875. The conference roll contained only twenty names.

Thirty-one church buildings were reported in the state, all of them being valued at only $30,000. Last year there were 189 churches and they had a total valuation of $698,905. There were seventy-one Sunday schools with a membership of 2,876 scholars, while today there are nearly 300 Sunday schools with a membership of 15,000 scholars. Since then eighty-one Epworth Leagues have been organized with a membership of 2,249. In the first conference year $20,500 was paid for pastoral support, $16,420 for building and improving of church property, and $2,610 for current expenses. The amount of the benevolence work in the first year was $2,076.

The first meeting was held Oct. 15, 1886, although it was two years previous to that time that the general conference had authorized the organization of the North Dakota body. It was created out of a part of the Red River valley district that was then a part of the Minnesota conference, and out of the North Dakota mission. Two sub districts were created at the first conference, with Rev. D. C. Planette as the presiding elder for the Grand Forks district, and with Rev. H. C. Bilbie as the presiding elder of the Fargo district.

Pioneer Pastors.

Of the five pastors who say service in North Dakota at the time the conference was launched, four have been in the work continuously, only one being out of it for a time. Rev. H. E. Cooper of Casselton, Rev. Z. James of Rolla, Rev. W. R. Morrison of Sheldon and Rev. Charles A. MacNamara of Fargo, are the men who have seen continuous service over the quarter century period, while Rev. S. A. Danford of Bismarck, also here when the work was launched, has been engaged continuously with the exception of four years.

Rev. Mr. Cooper, who was recently made a doctor of divinity by Wesley college, was ordained into the ministry at Hamilton, Ont., and preached his first sermon in North Dakota at Drayton, twenty-eight years ago. He has been pastor at Drayton on four different occasions. He has also served at Grafton, Park River, Larimore and Casselton, and at one time he was the presiding elder of the Grand Forks district.

Rev. Mr. Morrison of Sheldon took up his work in Cooksville, Ont., when only 21 years of age, and came to North Dakota in 1885 after having spent eleven years in Manitoba. Originally he was accepted into the Minnesota conference but came to the North Dakota conference when it was launched. He has seen twenty-six years of continuous work.

The present presiding elder of the Bismarck district, Rev. S. A. Danford, came to North Dakota twenty-nine years ago from Ohio, and has been here constantly, although four years were spent out of the ministry. He attended mission conferences previous to the organization of the state conference.

Rev. Z. Jones of Rolla has been in North Dakota since 1886 and has been in the ministry continuously, serving in charges at Steele, Dickinson, Tower City, Hope, Grafton, Crystal, Devils Lake, Mandan and Rolla.

The fifth of the pioneers, Rev. Charles Macnamara, is the present superintendent of the Fargo district, having held the position two years. He has occupied a number of charges in different sections of the state. Wahalla was his first pastorate.

Four Districts.

The North Dakota conference is divided into four districts, the Grand Forks, Fargo, Minot and Bismarck district. Dr. J. G. Moore is the head of the Grand Forks district; Rev. Charles Macnamara is the head of the Fargo district; Rev. S. A. Danforth heads the Bismarck district, and Rev. C. E. Vermilya is the head of the Minot district. The following are the cities represented in the several districts:

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES

On Sunday, Oct. 15, the subject provided for the study of the Christian Endeavorers is "Why I Believe in the Bible," and the lesson reference given: Romans x, 17 and xv, 4. All of the local societies will use this session, and meetings will be held as shown below:

First Presbyterian society will hold regular meeting at 6:45 p. m. The meeting will be leaderless.

Lakeside Presbyterian society will meet at 6 p. m. in the Endeavor room of the church. Miss Annie M. Hicken will be the leader.

Union Church Disciples society will meet at 7 p. m. in the Knights of Pythias' hall. A. L. Sturgis will have charge of the meeting.

Westminster Presbyterian society will meet at 6:45 p. m. in the church parlors. John L. Kerr will preside.

On account of other religious organizations attending, there will be no Christian Endeavor service at the poor farm, Sunday, Oct. 15. The regular meeting will be held however, Oct. 22. C. J. Hockin, who has been re-elected as president of the local union for the coming year, states that interest in these meetings is continually increasing, especially since the pleasant fall weather commenced. Last week the Union Church Disciples were in charge of the meeting and attended twenty-one strong, headed by their pastor, Mr. Black. The previous Sunday the Second Presbyterian society attended, led by Rev. J. A. McGauhey. Thirteen members of this society made the trip. It is expected that a large number of Christian Endeavorers will attend each Sunday during the fall and winter.

Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, the regular meetings of the executive committee of the Duluth Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the First Presbyterian church parlors. All members of the committee should be on hand.

Last Sunday as per announcement in these columns the local societies exchanged leaders. Several of the societies report that the exchange was satisfactory and helpful in many ways. The subject for the evening was one that was especially adapted to an idea of this kind and the exchange of new ideas resulting should be valuable.

The Westminster Presbyterian society at West Duluth is making plans for their annual Hallowe'en party, to be held in the parlors of the church, Oct. 31. If, as is claimed by the social committee of this society, this event is as much better than last year's entertainment, as that was better than all previous attempts, a most enjoyable evening will be the result.

The formation of a new "Christian Endeavor Union" in West Duluth, an event which has been expected and discussed for some time, was completed Monday evening, Oct. 9, when William Ritchie, president of the Westminster Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society, and Miss Ethel Jamieson, who was at one time president of the same society, were married by Rev. J. G. Leitch. Both of the young people are well known to most of the Christian Endeavorers of the city.

THINK AMERICANS HAVE NO RESPECT FOR LAW.

In a talk given yesterday afternoon before the children of the higher grades of the Salter school, Attorney Andrew Nelson stated that Canada repudiated reciprocity because they believe that Americans have no respect for law.

The speaker said in part:

"In Canada, if a citizen reads that a certain act has been promulgated, he does not wait for it to be enforced. The simple passage of the law is sufficient evidence to him that it is the will of his fellow citizens and he immediately changes his plans to conform to the law and respects it.

"Many and many a time I have seen a sign ordering the public to refrain from spitting under penalty of the law, and yet men who would resent with blows the insinuation that they were not law-abiding citizens, would split in all directions under the very shadow of the prohibitory placard.

"The very wording of the signs themselves shows clearly the attitude of the Americans toward law and order. There is nothing that so amuses a foreigner as to read, 'Smoking Positively Forbidden,' or 'Entrance Positively Prohibited, Keep Out—This Means You.' The first thing a Britisher asks is, 'Why the word positively, certainly the injunction forbidden is sufficient, is it not?' It would be to him, because he has been reared in an atmosphere where every man has a wholesome respect for the laws of God and man.

"We are, I trust, improving in this regard in this country. The work of our teachers, and the general influence of the schools is instructing the youth in the proper respect for authority, but we still have a long way to go."

Owen Wister Not Ill.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 14.—Owen Wister, the novelist, who came to Wyoming to be present at the dedication of a new hotel at Medicine Bow, named for a book written by him, departed immediately after the event for Philadelphia. The report that he is ill at a ranch in Wyoming is not true.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Robert Jaques Leaves for Law Department at Michigan University.

Charles Evans Is Chosen on the Sophomore Debating Team.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert Jaques, a senior law, one of the Duluth students at the university, left last Tuesday for the University of Michigan, where he will complete his law course. A year ago last spring Bob received a degree in the engineering department but aspired for more in the professional course so decided to take law. He is the second senior law from Duluth who left Minnesota this year for Michigan, Casey Cant leaving last week. Bob is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, was active in college affairs, and his many friends feel his loss from Minnesota.

William Eklund, Duluth Central high, '09, has pledged to the Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity. Bill is taking the six-year medic course.

Thursday night the Tillicum club, a junior class inter-fraternity society, held its first meeting and elected officers for this year. Lawrence Jaques of Duluth, a member of Sigma club, was chosen vice president of the society. Plans were made for a banquet to be held Nov. 2 and a dancing party to be held Nov. 10.

The annual cane rush between the freshmen and sophomore academic classes takes place this afternoon. An attempt is being made to have the medic rush at the same time. The rush will consist of two halves of not more than five minutes each, with not more than ten minutes rest between halves. In case of a tie an extra rush of three minutes' duration will take place.

There will also be three boxing events, viz., light, middle and heavyweight. The four wrestling events will be the special, light, middle and heavyweight. The boxing will consist of three rounds, two minutes in length and one minute between rounds. The wrestling events will be the best two out of three falls and the bouts will be six minutes in length.

The following is a list of officials: Jim Walker, Harry Powers and Charles Knox chief of marshals; W. K. Foster, score keeper; Henry Doermann and Tom Crocker, counters; Akers and McKean, rush officials. The sophomore committee consists of Ralph Johnson, '09 of Duluth; E. H. Chords and Louis Iverson.

The freshman and sophomore debating teams were chosen Thursday afternoon. Among those chosen on the sophomore team is Charles Evans, who is now considered one of the best debaters in the university. Evans was a member of the 1910 Duluth class and was captain of the Central high team during his senior year. The others on the team are Donald Pomeroy and Ruel Wiji, with Hymen Mendowitz as alternate. The freshmen will be represented by Carl Painter, Dean Campbell and Earl Hassel.

The tryout question was "Resolved, that the federal government should establish a parcels post." This question will most likely be used in the final contest, which comes the latter part of December. The Maurice L. Rothschild prize of $100, to be awarded the winning team, will be divided among its members.

The prospects for the university team this year are bright, according to the debate and oratory department. About twenty-five men tried out for the freshmen and sophomore teams and it was hard to pick the best.

Dick Grant's lacrosse proteges held their first meeting of the year this week. A number of old men were present as well as a lot of promising new material.

Jim Walker, last year's all-American tackle is unable to keep out of the outdoor life entirely and as a result has been elected captain of this year's lacrosse team. Dick Grant will be assisted in coaching by several old lacrosse men in college and by Captain Murphy of the St. Paul Mohawks.

The Gopher board of managers have elected the staff for the annual and are now beginning active work on the annual publication. Leonard McHugh, law, and Myrna Pressnell, academic, both of Duluth, are members of the board who selected the staff and upon whom the bulk of the work will fall.

Plans are nearly completed for the big inter-fraternity banquet on Oct. 27, and according to present indications its success seems assured. Last year, on account of the inadequate facilities, the number of men from each fraternity was limited to fourteen, but Donaldson's tea rooms have been engaged for this year's banquet and no limit will be placed on the attendance.

Prof. Nicholson, president of the inter-fraternity council, will act as toastmaster and President Vincent, members of the board of regents, and Governor Eberhart have been asked to speak.

New membership of the Y. W. C. A. has reached the desired 250 mark. The membership of the Y. M. C. A. is now 742, the largest in the history of the association. Kirk Hillman was the winner in the contest in getting the largest number of new members with Tom Crocker a close second. Mr. Hillman succeeded in getting 208, and Tom Crocker 166. Both of these men will be offered a trip to Madison with the football team.

The registration this year shows a slight decrease. The freshmen registration in all the departments shows an increase of nine over that up to Oct. 5 last year. The total number is 1,170 as against 1,161 for last year. The chief gains have been in agriculture, dentistry, mines, and chemistry. The noteworthy loss has been sixty-nine in law. This reduction of numbers was expected and is due directly to the increased requirements for admission into the college of law, two years of college work being prerequisite to registration in the law department. The total registration on Oct. 6 in the colleges and professionals schools is 175 less than it was a year ago. There are 5,400 in residence as compared with 3,576 at the same time last year.

The members of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity have moved into their new home at 820 University avenue southeast. The house has been remodeled to suit the needs of the chapter and the Phi Sigs are now comfortably situated.

Wednesday morning, Oct. 18, is the day on which comes off the great football game between the Beta Theta Pi and Phi Kappa Psi fraternitys' freshmen. Much interest is being taken and there will be something doing when the young "Greeks" meet.

CALUMET & HECLA STILL IN CONTROL OF PROPERTIES

Subsidiaries to Be Operated Independently, Merger Being Abandoned.

Hancock Consolidated Making Excellent Progress in Its Big Shaft.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet & Hecla Mining company abandoned its consolidation plans in which it was proposed to merge the several subsidiary companies with the parent company, because of the uncertainty of litigation growing out of the proposed merger. The vote of the several companies was favorable to the proposed consolidation, but was almost immediately followed by a number of suits brought by individual stockholders in opposition. Victory in the courts was first with one side and then with the other and the litigation promised to be both prolonged and expensive. Final steps to wind up the present litigation have been taken. The Calumet & Hecla company remains in control of the various subsidiaries, and will continue to operate them independently as in the past and promises to secure the best results obtainable. There is no better management in this district and no opposition on this point.

Hancock.

The Hancock Consolidated Mining company is making excellent progress in the big shaft which is sinking to intercept the Quincy-Pewabic lode at about 3,600 feet. A depth of 2,950 feet has been attained. Development work is being prosecuted with commendable vigor in the No. 3 lode, and similar work is in progress in the No. 2 lode. Activity extends from the tenth to eighteenth levels. Production continues at the rate of 250 tons rock daily yielding an average of nineteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock milled, the yield seldom falling below eighteen pounds. The Quincy-Pewabic lode is the master formation in this acreage and the effort made to reach it will, if uninterrupted, result in its disclosure about July next. It has been mined to the boundary limits in the adjoining No. 7 Quincy shaft and is there of exceptional richness, according to miners who have worked there.

Mohawk.

The Mohawk Mining company is developing exceptional copper ground in shafts 4 and 5. The No. 6 shaft is down to the eighth level and slowly improving. The No. 1 shaft holds a number of excellent stopes in several of its north laterals and is showing material improvement at depth. Shafts 2 and 3 continue to show poorly, and the latter has been permanently bottomed at the fourteenth level to save re-equipping. This ground will be mined through the adjoining shafts. The yield of the mine has slowly increased to around 3,000 tons rock daily, and the copper content is also higher. The average recovery since the first of the year was 15.12 pounds fine copper or nearly one pound greater than for the corresponding period of last year.

Oneco.

The Oneco Copper Mining company continues to center attention in shaft work in the Oneco lode. At intervals of 100 feet short crosscuts are run into the lode and in several have good showings of copper been obtained. The shaft is 850 feet deep and driving for the 1,200-foot level from which depth a drill core of much promise was taken during the recent exploratory campaign. The property is equipped with all necessary development machinery.

Mass.

The Mass Consolidated Mining company has encountered heavy copper ground in what presumably is the Evergreen lode. The disclosure was made in the crosscut sent out on the fifth level in the "C" shaft and in the territory recently acquired from the old Evergreen Bluff Mining company. Operations in "B" shaft confined to drifting and stopping reveal excellent ground at most points of attack and the general situation here as in "C" shaft is a great improvement over the past. Careful and entirely proper selection in the ground broken down in the course of development work is eliminating much rock of no value, saving cost of hoisting, milling and transportation, and operates to keep the average recovery wel lover eighteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock milled. The yield has recently been as high as twenty-three pounds, but is more frequently under twenty pounds refined.

Wolverine.

The Wolverine Copper Mining company is conducting exploratory work at two points. In the Osceola formation a shaft is sinking steadily and has reached a depth of 300 feet, disclosing a little copper near its present depth. On the first level in this shaft a diamond drill is searching for copper ground thought to exist somewhere between the drift in which it is operating and the foot wall of the formation. The work in the eastern portion of the Wolverine tract consists of a crosscut driving eastward on the twenty-eighth level and having for its object the intersection of a series of copper bearing lodes previously disclosed by the Old Colony company in the adjoining tract.

Adventure.

The Adventure Consolidated Copper company is preparing to send a crosscut out to lodes 2 and 3 at a depth of 1,525 feet in the No. 5 shaft. These formations were previously disclosed in diamond drilling and are considered exceptionally promising, the No. 2 lode in particular being so held. About 450 feet of crosscutting will be required to reach No. 2 lode. The Noll 3 lode lies nearly 350 feet beyond. In the course of shaft sinking two copper bearing lodes were intersected, the first at a depth of 930 feet and the Second at about 1,028 feet. Both yielded showings warranting further attention and are being drifted upon with varying success.

New Baltic.

The New Baltic Copper company continues to obtain excellent showings of copper in the so-called east vein, and there is little doubt now that in this vein the company has found the northerly extension of the Baltic lode, which has given the district such mines as the Champion, Baltic, Trimountain and Superior. Progress in the New Baltic acreage has been slow owing to its isolated position and the difficulty in keeping labor without adequate accommodations, and the many other conveniences that other points offer. Recent developments, however, have been such that the construction of proper dwellings and bunkhouses will not be delayed much longer, and with proper facilities will come greater progress. The New Baltic offers great possibilities and merits better attention.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Dredging Work By Castle Creek Company Proving Profitable.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 14.—That the dredging work of the Castle Creek Hydraulic Placer Mining company is profitable is shown by the statement of one of the stockholders. This declares that the company, which is financed by Colorado men, is clearing above $25,000 per month by dredging Castle Creek. Last spring the company erected a large hydraulic plant with a dredge which generates its own electricity and has been steadily operating during the summer. This dredge and the cost of installing it originally represented about $130,000. During the operations a number of rich pockets of gold have been worked, one of which yielded $28,000 gross in twelve days and another $8,000 in three days. Part of the dredging will have to be done over, as an accumulation of clay in one spot prevented proper sluicing and caused 40 per cent of the values to pass into the tailings. The placer diggings are becoming richer as the dredge proceeds and it is expected that four months' profits will entirely pay for the original cost.

This success has so stimulated placer mining in the central and northern Black Hills that three or four more big dredges are to be installed and operated next summer.

A party of stockholders in the Golden West Mining company visited the property at Rochford last week. The Golden West operated several years ago with success and owns a large acreage of excellent ground. The diamond drill was extensively used and showed a large ore body below the present workings in a vertical formation. Extensive assays are now being made.

A plan is on foot for English capital to take hold of the Hidden Fortune Gold Mining company's property, which was recently sold for taxes to Kirk G. Phillips, the former receiver, in trust for the bondholders. R. Bunce of London, England, who floated the Black Hills Development and Financial Corporation, which is now operating in the Carbonate camp near here, represents English capital which is trying to get hold of the Hidden Fortune. Many of the bondholders have turned over their holdings to Bunce to further his plan.

The Columbus Consolidated property, which adjoins the Hidden Fortune and is a similar proposition, is to be sold on Oct. 10 under different conditions and other interests are expected to take it up.

The Black Hills Development and Financial Corporation continues to take out high grade from its property in Carbonate and is to make another shipment to Denver this week. The company is also working in the Iron Hill mine, where it recently discovered a large body of high grade lead-silver ore.

WASHINGTON MINE BONDED BY GRANBY

Property Is Known as the Copper Queen at Chewalah.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 14. — The Granby Mining & Smelting company has taken a bond for $50,000 on the Copper Queen mine at Chewalah, Stevens county, Wash. The development will be under the supervision of E. E. Campbell, engineer for the Granby company, and work will begin as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. Buildings for quarters will be erected at once. The long tunnel will be completed and the work backed up with thorough prospecting with a diamond drill. A large force of men will be kept at work as it is the company's intention to put the mine on a shipping basis as quickly as possible, the ore, which is self-fluxing, being valuable for blending with other ores.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company, limited, it was stated that during the past year the company put in sight from 200,000 to 300,000 tons more ore than was extracted. The plant is now closed down.

The question of bringing the Hidden Creek mine up to the point of producing, it was said, depends almost entirely upon how rapidly the property is developed, and upon how large a scale it is operated. It was the opinon, however, that before the end of 1912 the company could be producing about 2,000 tons a day. President Luther has stated that in his opinoin about $1,000,000 would be necessary for the erection of a smelter, houses, docks and for other operating purposes. At the present time the company has about $400,000 in the treasury over and above the amount required to make final payment on the purchase of the Hidden Creek property. By next spring it is estimated that the company will be in a position to produce 2,000 tons a day, which will be handled by some outside smelting plant, perhaps that of the American Smelters Securities company at Tacoma, 500 miles away, by water, pending the erection of the company's own smelting plant.

OUTPUT IS DECREASED

September Copper Production of Anaconda Less Than in August.

Work on Butte & Superior Concentrator Starts Within Few Weeks.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The official figures of the copper production of the Anaconda Copper Mining company for the month of September show a decrease of 1,200,000 as compared with August. The figures for the past month are: Washoe smelter, 15,900,000 pounds; Great Falls smelter, 5,400,000 pounds. The figures for August were: Washoe smelter, 16,000,000 pounds; Great Falls smelter, 6,500,000 pounds. In these figures are included the output each month of the North Butte and Tuolumne mines. During the past month the North Butte company produced 2,100,000 pounds and the Tuolumne 500,000 pounds, which would bring the actual amount of copper turned out by the Anaconda company down to 18,700,000 pounds. The East Butte production, which includes the Butte-Alex Scott and the Butte-Ballaklava companies, was around 1,000,000 pounds. The production during August was the heaviest during the present year, while September is the smallest during the year, except during the months of February and July. In the former month the production was 20,000,000 pounds and in July it was 21,052,000. The Anaconda company is keeping well within the 15 per cent curtailment agreement every month, and even during the month of August, when the production was 22,500,000 pounds, this amount was well within the limit. During the present month there is every indication that the production will be around the September figures, for the reason that the High Ore, which is being prepared to be operated by compressed air, will be down all month, and so will be the Never Sweat, which is undergoing extensive repairs.

Failed to Take Option.

The Barnes-King company has not got an option on the Success company property in the Coeur d'Alene district, as has been announced. There was an opportunity to secure an option on a controlling interest in the stock, but just about the time the papers were to be signed the experts of the Barnes-King company took exception to certain conditions imposed, and the whole thing fell through. The Success mine is a very fine property, and mining men who are interested in the Barnes-King company believe that a deal such as had been proposed would have been a profitable investment.

East Butte.

President Robert H. Gross of the East Butte Copper Mining company has been in the city on one of his regular visits of inspection. "No manufacturing industry in the world is in such good condition as the copper industry," remarked Mr. Gross when asked what he thought of the metal situation. "The copper situation is bound to improve," he continued, "and in a few years there will be as great a famine as there is now a surplus of copper. More is being sold than is produced and than can not be said of any other industry." Speaking of the East Butte properties he said they were never in better physicial condition. The company, owing to market conditions, is not making any effort to increase its production beyond an average of 1,000,000 pounds a month and he said that this came from the East Butte ores and the output of the Butte-Alex Scott which is about fifty tons a day. The East Butte is mining about 200 tons a day of first class ore and about 100 tons of second class ore. The first class runs around 6 to 7 per cent copper and the second class about 3 per cent. All the ore being shipped is being taken from the 800-foot level, where the rich body of ore was discovered some time ago and which continues to hold out as well as ever. There is a large amount of development work being done on the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels where five faces are in ore. Speaking of the improvements under way. Mr. Gross said that work had just been started on a cinerating plant which is expected to be in operation inside of sixty days. He explained that it was a new scheme for the incineration of flue dust and fine concentrates. The system consists of a chain of pans into which the flue dust and concentrates are dumped, and they are then passed through heat which ignites the coke in the flue dust and the sulphur in the concentrates, the product being converted into cinders which is then sent to the smelter. The cinerated product makes an especially fine smelter material. The system is successfully used at the East Helena smelter and at the Garfield smelter.

Mr. Gross said that another improvement to be inaugurated is a basic converter lining of manganese brick in place of the old silica lining. It has been tested in other places and is working most successfully. It adds economy to smelting operations.

North Butte.

A story published in some Eastern papers to the effect that the North Butte company, in cross-cutting on the vein from the 2,800-foot level, had struck the Jessie vein, is absolutely without foundation. It will be in the vicinity of a week yet before the station is completed on the 2,800-foot level, and those who are figuring very closely on the subject estimate that it will be at least a week and possibly two weeks after the cross-cutting is started before the vein is encountered.

Butte & Superior.

It is now definitely stated that work on the Butte & Superior concentrator on the company's proverty will be commenced within a few weeks. All that is delaying the work now is the approval of the plans by D. C. Jackling to whom they have been submitted. He may suggest some slight changes, but inasmuch as Mr. Jackling's engineer has supervised the drawing of the plans and as he has made his ideas known to the company some time ago, it is not believed that the changes will be of consequence. The plans contemplate a first unit of 500 tons capacity. It will be built on the gravity plan as far as posible and will be operated by electricity. The machinery will be largely taken from the Basin concentrator as it is of the latest and most modern typo and was installed by the Butte & Superior company. During his recent visit here President A. B. Wolvin arranged for the installation of a crushing plant at the property. This will allow of all the ore being crushed at the mine before shipment to the concentrator and will result in the reduction of ore treatment difficulties at Basin. The shipments to the Basin concentrator amount to 450 tons a day and the returns for the past few weeks are better than at any time in the history of the property. The company estimates that with the new concentrator equipped with every known modern piece of machinery and the saving in the cost of railway haul to Basin the earnings will be considerably increased and dividends made possible inside of a year.

Pilot Butte.

The cross-cutting from the Black Rock mine to directly underneath the Pilot Butte shaft at a depth of 1,300 feet will be completed by the first of next month. Then upraising will start and Supt. Sheehan is satisfied that the sinking party and the upraising party will meet before the first of the year.

Butte Central.

Solid ground has at last been encountered at a depth of about forty feet below the 1,000 point and a station is now being cut in the Ophir mine of the Butte Central Copper company. It will require several weeks for this work and when it is completed a large electric pump will be installed. Crosscutting will be started just as soon as the pump is installed and Supt. McConnell expects to uncover ore much richer than that found on the 300-foot level.

IDITAROD GOOD FOR $5,000,000

Flat Creek Producing $3,000,000 of This Amount in 1911.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 14.—The Iditarod will show a yield of about $5,000,000 for 1911, with Flat Creek producing perhaps $3,500,000 of this amount. The Guggenheim operators in the district did not exercise their options because of the high prices put upon the claims and the further fact that Iditarod is not a winter camp in any sense. The ground is nearly all worked by the open cut method, requiring power scrapers with boilers and engines. It is not a poor man's camp either, for the same reason. It is producing handsomely, however, but requires operators with capital. Gaines Creek, in the nearby but more inaccessible Innkoo, is the same sort of proposition. Gaines will produce more this season than the entire Innoko has any other year since its discovery.

Ruby City promises to be the great interior winter camp, and a strong movement is on from all parts of the interior and from Yukon territory as well. Ruby is on the south bank of the Yukon river below Fort Gibbon. The new creeks are just over the low range of hills flanking the river and some twenty-five miles distant. These creeks flow into the Solatna, which in turn curves to the north and east and enters the Yukon above Ruby. Over the divide the country to the south extends to the Innoko several hundred miles and is a perfect network of creeks and gulches, offering a most attractive region for prospecting. The ground is frozen and can be mined in winter, as the Klondike was mined in its early days.

CLARK PLANS WORK ON BIG BUG GROUP

Mining Men Say That the Galena Outcrop Is Very Rich.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 14. — Systematic development in the Sunset and Big Bug properties in the Coeur d'Alenes will begin early next spring, according to Charles W. Clark, son of ex-United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, who owns the group. Mr. Clark is in Spokane with the Clark stable, which has several horses at the Alan track. The Clark interests have contemplated opening this property for several years, but so far little has been done. Mining men say the ground is the richest in the district, adding that the outcrop of galena can be traced 1,500 feet.

Extensive development work is planned for the Amazon-Manhattan group of claims near Wallace, Idaho, recently bonded by Denver interests to William T. Tracey of Galesburg, Ill. The owners have expended more than $100,000. The lower tunnel shows an ore body 140 feet in length, with a width of from six to eight feet, averaging 13 per cent in both lead and zinc and containing fair silver values. The face of this drift shows a foot of high-grade zinc ore. The ore shoot in the upper level shows a length of 100 feet. Albert E. Goodell has been retained as consulting engineer. Patrick Burke is manager.

Progress is reported on the new tunnel in the Stewart mine, Wallace, Idaho, where 400 feet were drilled in August. At the present rate the bore will be completed on Oct. 27. This is a feat many residents of Wallace do not think possible, as there is much bad ground at a depth of 200 feet below the starting point.

STANDARD MINE IS VERY RICH

Leads All Other Silver-Lead Producers in British Columbia.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 14.—Alexander McKenzie of Bismarck, N. D.; A. B. Cook of Helena, Mont., and James McNaught of New York, who have just completed an inspection of the great Standard mine of Silverton, B. C., now owned and operated by J. A. Finch of Spokane, say the Standard easily leads all other mines of the province as a silver-lead property. The big tram and mill are completed and the entire mine and plant will be in full operation before the end of October.

Charles F. Soderling of Spokane has just closed a deal with W. C. Williams of Hope B. C., for the purchase of three groups of claims near Hope for a consideration of $100,000. The claims included in the purchase were owned by Andrew Larson and company of Vancouver, and Frank Fritz and company of Grand Forks, Mich. Mr. Soderling has named the new mining camp Twenty-three Mile Comp.

A small laboratory plant is under construction on the Granite Poorman to thoroughly test the platinum group metals recently found in the ores of that property.

The old Marvel Gold Mining company's property, situated on Siwash creek, Yale mining division, is again having attention. Work was commenced last April on the trail to the property, which has since been repaired. Then during the summer the work of repairing and renewing where necessary in the mill has been in progress. The mill has six stamps, each in its own mortar. Latterly there has been an occasional run with the mill to test small lots of ore, but last month the mill has been shut down to admit of new amalgamating plates being put in. It is proposed to add two vanners to the equipment. Besides repairing the mill the aerial tramway has had attention; some 800 feet of the tram has been repaired and put in working order. Some cleaning up has also been done at the mine and it is expected that mining and milling ore will shortly be done. T. H. Kerrnish has been in charge of the work of both mine and mill.

MANY MINES ARE CLOSED

Curtailment of Output Most Pronounced on Marquette Range.

Fear That Winter Production Will Be Much More Restricted.

With the shipping season nearing its close and with the ore market showing no improvement, there is being developed in the Lake Superior iron region a tendency to curtail a production already much below the capacity of the mines. This movement at this time is customary on the Mesaba range, where the bulk of the tonnage comes from open pits, but it is exceptional in the other and older districts, with their deep underground workings, capable of being wrought the year around, and is experienced only in periods of trade depression. The Mesaba excepted, the slacking up already noted is most pronounced on the Marquette range. There is apprehension that the curtailment will become almost general and ore production during the winter will be much restricted. Basis for this fear is seen in many stockpiles still on hand.

The Cleveland Cliffs company has stopped all work at the Imperial mine, the westernmost property in the Marquete district. The Imperial is the chief support of the village of Michigamme and naturally its suspension has caused a feeling of deep depression there. However, as the mine produces an ore of low grade for which there is very little demand at present, and as there is a considerable stock stored on surface, the action of the company is not surprising. Although not operated on a normal basis, the Imperial has been employing 125 men.

Barnes Now Idle.

The Cleveland Cliffs also has relegated the Barnes property at Dexter to the idle list. The Barnes was just being brought to the point of production after more than a year devoted to development work. It was employing fifty men, most of whom have been transferred to the new North Lake mine, two miles east. In the Negaunee field of the Marquette range, the company has placed its Negaunee mine on a single shift basis, thus dispensing with the services of nearly 200 men. In the Swanzy field, some twenty miles south of Negaunee, the Cleveland Cliffs has ceased all operations at the Northwestern property. The Northwestern was in course of development. A concrete shaft had been sunk through the sandy overburden and the work of penetrating the rock formation to open the ore body beneath was about to be started. The Cleveland Cliffs has some large stockpiles in the Swanzy country and while only the Northwestern has been closed the forces at other properties have been scaled down.

The Independent Iron company, organized last year by Detroit and Chicago men, has suspended work at the old Erie mine near Republic, Marquette range, presumably because of straitened financial circumstances. Creditors have, at least, attached the machinery and other equipment. The future of the company appears uncertain.

Traders Also Closed.

The Traders mine of the Antoine Ore company, in which a number of leading iron and steel concerns are interested, also has been closed. The property is at Iron Mountain, Menominee range, and had been operated only a few months. As it is an open pit, wrought on the milling plan, and as it had produced its quota of ore for the season, its suspension at this time possesses little significance. The plt is to be enlarged by additional stripping, but just when this work will be done is indefinite. The work will be done by contract. A considerable number of the 150 men laid off at the Traders have procured employment at the Florence mine, in the Wisconsin portion of the Menominee range, this property having resumed operations, after having been shut down the past four months. The Florence is controlled by the Laden-Thalman interests of New York. It has sold 60,000 tons of ore, the amount in stock, and this is now being forwarded. For the time being at least the mine will be wrought only on the day shift. It will give employment to 100 men. The underground pumps had been continued in commission throughout the period of suspension and there was no delay in resuming work, once the orders were received. The mine will be active all during the winter.

Exploratory Work Brisk.

While the production of ore is at low ebb in the Lake Superior iron country as a whole, exploratory work continues brisk. It is in fact likely that fully as many diamond drills are in service as at any time heretofore. One encouraging feature of the times is the proposed exploration of a number of large tracts in the Sagola and Felch districts of the Menominee range. Considerable work of a crude nature was carried on there years ago, but it is proposed now to employ diamond drills and put down a series of deep holes. Work at the Huron Mining company's Groveland property has established that the ore improves with depth and that the deposits enlarge. The Breitung interests of Marquette already have proved up a large body of ore adjoining the Groveland and conditions appear very favorable to the discovery of other deposits in that part of the range. In the Amasa field of the Menominee, the United States Steel corporation again has a diamond drill in commission at the Michigan mine. The Florence Iron company has a drill at work in section 27, 43-35, a mile west of the village of Iron River. In section 14, 43-35, one and one-half miles north of Iron River, the Jones & Laughlin steel interests of Pittsburg are preparing to open a mine. Drilling has been in progress a number of months and a large body of ore has been located. A plant of machinery has been ordered and ground has been cleared for the erection of buildings, the construction of which will be under way shortly. It is expected the property will enter the shipping list next season.

In the same section 14 the New York State Steel company is opening a mine. The John T. Jones furnace interests of Iron Mountain, Mich., which are erecting furnaces and developing an ore deposit at the old Kloman mine, are prepering to enlarge their operations in that part of the Marquette range. They have under option the Tredo farm tract, west of Michagamme, and are about to give it a systematic test with the diamond drill. In the same locality the Catherine Mining company of Pittsburg has opened a run of ore and is now engaged in demonstrating its probable size and quality.

INSPIRATION'S CONCENTRATOR

May Be Located in the Cordova Group of Claims.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 14.—It is reported that the Inspiration Copper company will locate its proposed new concentrator upon the Cordova group of claims, in the Miami district. A survey is being made.

The Live Oaks Copper company recently let a contract to J. L. Hoopes to haul 1,000 tons of ore from the mine to the railroad shipping point for the smelter at El Paso. The mine is in the Miami district.

J. Fred Nottbosch is shipping three carloads of silver-lead ore a day from his claims, eighteen miles north of Mohawk, Yuma county. The ore averages 500 ounces silver to the ton. It is shipped to the smelter at El Paso.

Emerson Gee and associates, who recently took over under option the Royal Flush mine, near Wallapai Springs, report encountering a body of ore in the property that runs $500 gold and about 500 ounces silver to the ton. The vein is now being cross cut.

A large body of rich ore was recently uncovered in the IXL mine, in Mohave county, on the 120-foot level. The ore is heavy in iron and carries high values in gold and silver. The property was formerly a large producer of silver ore.

The recent strike of a ledge of high grade ore that averages about $500 a ton in the mine of the Calzona Mines company, sixteen miles southwest of Parker, has attracted much attention to that section. The ore body was encountered in the crosscut on the 100-foot level. The shaft is down 300 feet.

It is authoritatively announced that there is no prospects of operations being resumed soon upon the mine of the Helvetia Copper company, situated in the Tucson district.

HEAVIEST OUTPUT IN ITS HISTORY

Greene-Cananea Now Costs Less Than 9 Cents a Pound.

Cananea, Mex., Oct. 14.—The output of the Cananea smelter for the month of September was over 5,500,000 pounds of blister copper, a gain over any other month during the operation of the company. The large output is caused to some extent by the Miami concentrates which the Greene-Cananea company is handling, and has been for the past six or eight months. At this rate the average daily output is a litle over ninety-one tons daily, but on some days there has been over 116 tons poured from the converters.

This output is the result of only six or seven furnaces operating, the Miami concentrates being handled direct to the converters. At the present time the Cananea company is making coper cheaper than at any time in its history, it being generally known that it costs a litle less than 9 cents a pound.

All department of the company are in excellent condition and no new construction work is now being done at present.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE LYCEUM

"Regeneration" is a play written from that remarkable document "My Mamie Rose," which attracted the attention of America a few years ago. As will be remembered, "My Mamie Rose" was the true story of the life of Owen Kildare, a man who lived his entire life until he was 30 on the Bowery of New York. "The Highway of the Foolish" is what Mr. Kildare called the district. In fact he states that a large percentake of the people who are born here go through life with the very vaguest ideas of the world beyond, many living and dying without ever having left the district. It is a strange world of strange people who live only from day to day and unto their daily needs.

It is of these people and especially of the life of one of them that "Regeneration tells. The story of Owen Kildare is true to life. In the play only the names are changed. In essentials the truth is presented. And this is the play Mr. Forbes has chosen for the third week of his special engagement at the Lyceum. The first performance will be given Monday night.

Owen Conway is the hero of the play which opens in the first act in a disreputable cellar in the Bowery. Here are gathered a number of the habitues of the place, the leader of whom is Conway. They plan a special entertainment for the party of people on a slumming expedition. The plans go as arranged until the men are in the act of robbing the visitors a young girl is dragged into the cellar, and here takes place the first meeting between Conway and Marie Deering. Miss Deering had been accosted on the street and when she cried for the police she was dragged into the room to avoid the police. They both feel the thrill of the meeting and before she departs the girl secures Conway's promise to come to her house for instruction. The next act shows the man who is 30 years of age receiving his first lesson in the rudiments of formal education

In the real story of Owen Kildare this is one of the most remarkable features, that a man of 30, unable to read or write, should learn both after reaching 30 years of age, so well, in fact, that he earns his living from writing. The lighter touches of the play occur in this second act.

In the third act Conway has secured a position in a settlement house on the Bowery. "Skinny," one of his old-time companions, murders his "girl" and flies to Conway for protection from the police. Conway at first refuses to harbor the murderer, but is taunted by his former associates as a disloyal friend to turn from them in their hour of need. In desperation Conway hides the fugitive and when the police come, tells them that no one is there.

Marie Deering, who has helped and encouraged Conway, shrinks from him in disappointment and dismay and he is miserable at having offended her and seemingly proved ungrateful of her trust in him.

The fourth act, however, adjusts matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The performance by the Gus Forbes company is the first ever presented in Duluth of this play and an adequate production is promised.

Mr. Forbes will appear as Owen Conway, the character representative of the real Owen Kildare, who is charged from an uncouth ignorant product of the slum to a man with a purpose and inspiring ideals. The role is a most interesting one, quite different from anything that Mr. Forbes has done during his Duluth engagement and his appearance will be watched with interest.

Miss Corinne Cantwell, who has established herself in the good graces of the theatergoers, will play the role of Marie Deering, whose influence stimulates and reforms Conway. Miss Eileen Errol will play the role of Nellie, Conway's girl of the underworld who would keep him from the new life opening before him. Mr. Cotton will play the role of "Skinny," for whose sake Conway runs the risk of permanently disgracing himself. The remaining members of the company have been well cast and "Regeneration" should be an interesting bill. The first performance will be given Monday evening and the play will be continued all of next week with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

HORACE V. NOBLE,
With the Gus A. Forbes Company at the Lyceum Next Week in "The Regeneration."

JOHN AND EMMA RAY,
At the Orpheum Next Week.

AT THE ORPHEUM

It will be another double headline bill that the Orpheum will present next week. The two headliners are John and Emma Ray and Miss Grace Cameron.

There are few better known exponents of broad comedy on the vaudeville stage than the Rays. This famous team is now making their farewell appearance over the Orpheum circuit. They have made enough people laugh, in their lives, to acquire a theater of their own, and they now propose to give their attention to it. This is said to be their farewell appearance as performers. It is by no means the first trip over Orpheum time, but it is the first visit to Duluth.

The Rays probably made their biggest hit in their act "A Hot Old Time." Their new farce is said to strongly resemble their former success, and is called "The Band Master." Johnny Ray appears in the role of the Irish leader of a Hungarian band, who has come to play at Mrs. Piker's musicale. He meets a great musician at the musicale in the person of a German violinist. Ray is also a salesman for a vacuum cleaner, and brings the act to a hilarious close with a demonstration of the possibilities of the cleaner to Mrs. Piker and the German violinist.

The act is said to be built for laughing purposes only, and the fun is of the broad, free and easy type that appeals to a vaudeville audience.

The second headline act on the bill will be presented by a former musical star, Miss Grace Cameron. Miss Cameron is probably best known for her work in "Little Dolly Dimples," in which musical success she starred several years ago. During the last two or three years she has been in vaudeville and has become a New York favorite in the line of a singer of character songs. Here is what the Kansas City Post said of her on her recent appearance in that city, where vaudeville performers fare none too well at the hands of the critics:

"A strong bill headed by Miss Grace Cameron, former prima donna of the Bostonians and later at the head of several most successful musical comedies, is presented at the Orpheum this week. Miss Cameron's success lies in her wonderful versality, her songs differing widely in both style and rendition.

"Miss Cameron's audience yesterday did not seem to warm up to her first two numbers, 'Yankee Land,' and 'The Miller's Daughter.' When she gave 'Funny Little Boy,' in which she is extremely clever in the use of child dialect, there was more enthusiasm. But the audience fairly went wild over her comedy work while singing 'Help, Help, Help!' 'Adam and Eve,' and 'The Working Girl.'"

Orpheum patrons will have pleasant recollections of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGreevy, who appeared here last season, in their charming comedy act, "The Village Fiddler and the Country Maid." It was one of the biggest comedy hits that ever played the theater. It will return next week. Mr. McGreevy's fiddling, and Mrs. McGreevy's placid, full round face kept the audience in an uproar last season, and this was one of the few acts booked for a return engagement this year.

"Rousby's Scenic Review" of "London by Day and Night" is billed as a big novel, scenic spectacle. The electrical apparatus is claimed to be the same as that used in the famous Richard Wagner theater in Bayreuth, and the scene of London is copied from a photograph taken by "The Graphic" and executed by the famous scenic artist, Markwell Davis. The performance is divided into three parts, showing Leicester Square, a panorama view from the famous "Star and Garter" hotel in Richmond, and the evening festival during exhibition time at the Court of Honors. The act is said to cause no small amount of speculation as to how the effects are produced, and it has been a decidedly popular novelty in other cities on the circuit.

Gordon and Marx are accounted two of the best German comedians in vaudeville at the present time. They call themselves "The Real Germans" and they will appear on next week's bill in a dialogue that is promised to be a big comedy hit.

Paulinetti and Piquo are a team of European athletes who are said to know the value of comedy in an act of this type, and to be able to furnish it. They introduce travesty, burlesque and eccentric comedy, and in addition perform what is said to be a sensational "strong man" act. Paulinetti introduces a novelty in what he calls "The Mysterious Big Lady" and Piquo is a clever tumbler.

"Skatorial Follies" is what Marcus and Gartelle call their act. They are trick roller skaters, and also trained clog dancers, and they combine their two accomplishments. They open with an attempt by Gartelle to teach his colored servant to skate, and close with a clog dance on the rollers.

The Kinodrome will present a new set of pictures for the week, and the usual concert by the Orpheum orchestra will be given. The bill will continue all week with a daily matinee.

The last performance of this week's bill with Brown, Harris & Brown, Mazie King, The Bergere Players, Kenny Nobody & Platt, Mlle. De Fallieres, Brent Hayes and Albertus the First and Jessie Millar will be given this evening. For the week of Oct. 22, the bill will consist of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane, Charles F. Semon, Genero & Bailey, Cunningham & Marion, Marcel & Bores, Knute Erickson and Keith & Kernan.

McIntyre & Heath will play the Orpheum circuit, opening at the Columbia theater, Cincinnati, early in December.

Martin Beck has secured from Richard Harding Davis a one-act play called "Blackmail." The piece is Mr. Davis' first vaudeville contribution and was written exclusively for presentation over the Orpheum circuit.

The most serious as well as most pretentious dramatic playlet seen in vaudeville in a decade is Blanche Walsh's present vehicle, "The Thunder God." Miss Walsh has scored a genuine triumph in the role of Blue Jay, a Sioux Indian. Critical comment says in the half hour's work done in Arthur Hopkins' sketch, the capable actress brings into play more emotion than was required in any of the four-act pieces in which she has ever been seen.

Eva Tanguay, the cyclonic and inimitable comedienne, will shortly begin a tour on the Orpheum circuit. Miss Tanguay recently returned from England, where she was a sensation in the London music halls.

George Broadhurst, a playwright of distinction, has contributed a playlet called "The Coward," to vaudeville. It will serve as the medium for Robert T. Haines' present tour. Martin Beck induced Mr. Haines, a most popular leading man, to forsake the legitimate drama. His present tour began at the Majestic theater, Chicago, Oct. 10.

AT THE EMPRESS

Nat Fields in "The Girl Behind the Counter," will be the feature attraction of what is claimed to be the biggest and best bill of vaudeville ever presented at the Empress theater commencing Sunday afternoon.

In announcing the engagement of Nat Fields & Co. in a condensed version of Lew Fields' "The Girl Behind the Counter," the management of the Empress takes pride. By the payment of one of the largest salaries in the history of popular priced vaudeville, this production was secured to tour the Sullivan & Considine circuit. "The Girl Behind the Counter" was produced of Lew Fields' Broadway theater and ran for over a year and by everyone it was voted the most triumphant success of many seasons. After this piece closed its run in New York City, Mr. Fields got the idea of condensing the piece and trying it in vaudeville. This he did and immediately after its first presentation, all the booking managers of the big vaudeville circuit immediately tried to secure it for their respective circuits but Sullivan & Considine were the fortunate bidders and in consequence Duluthians will have an opportunity of witnessing one of the biggest musical comedy acts in vaudeville. In concocting the vaudeville version of "The Girl Behind the Counter," the authors have eliminated only scene and dialogue, which are not essential to the plot of the piece. All of the musical numbers which fascinated Broadway, all the comedy lines, and the gorgeous scenic effects are intact. The production includes the noted show girl sextette, the English pony ballet, catchy songs, dashing dances, laughable comedy and several clever specialties. A distinguished critic, commenting on the engagement of "The Girl Behind the Counter" for the Sullivan & Considine circuit, said in part: "We must reckon with the Sullivan & Considine circuit whenever we consider the question of important twentieth century vaudeville. This circuit is a leader among those that are doing notable things to uplift the standard of twentieth century vaudeville." Nat Fields, who is the bright star of this production, recently appeared in his brother's musical comedy, "The Henpecks," and later in the original production of "The Girl Behind the Counter." In both these pieces his success was phenomenal and these successes give him prestige. In the principal role, he appears with an ease and grace characteristic of a finished star. Lew Fields has staged his production most beautifully and has surrounded the principals with a bevy of Broadway's daintiest beauties. Reports from Cincinnati, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul confirm all that has been predicted for "The Girl Behind the Counter" and Manager Lee of Chicago, in particular, states that his patrons could not get enough of it and that it stopped the show on several occasions.

"One of vaudeville's rarest gems," says the press agent, "will also be found in the program of Rawson & Clare." These charming artists have achieved much success in their pretty episode of youth, 'Yesterday.' There are twenty minutes of the most refreshing sort of entertainment which has a charm that is beyond explanation. There is nothing pretentious about the offering of Rawson & Clare, but rather a homely plainness which cannot help but please. Miss Clare is said to be a vivacious comedienne and her songs and dances are classic. Mr. Rawson is also said to be a clever performer. In speaking of their offering a Milwaukee critic said: "Another delightful number on this very good bill was 'Yesterday,' presented by Rawson & Clare. Simple in the extreme, it brings a whisper of youthful cheer and fond reflections of the joys of days gone by. Their offering also includes some song surprises and pretty ideas and is staged with a wealth of beautiful scenery and clever costuming.

Children are always lovers of animals. Not only the younger ones but the grown-up children as well, and for the amusement of all, Anna Buckley has drawn together an aggregation of sagacious canines that will contribute to the Empress bill one of the most amusing animal acts in vaudeville which she styles, "A Dog in Dogville." Her animals seem to enjoy their work as much as their audience. "The dogs portray their characters with a delightful intelligence and go through their performance with a precision seldom witnessed in acts of this nature," says a St. Paul critic. To Miss Buckley great credit is due for she has trained them patiently, tenderly and scientifically and with rare persistence, she has developed their talents until they stand as marvels of the animal world, it is said.

Whenever a musical act is announced, the vaudeville patron is inclined to think that it follows in the beaten track of the conventional musical act, but a visit to the Empress next week will undoubtedly prove the contention that there is something new to this style of entertainment. luth next week after a tour of Europe, contribute to vaudeville a brilliant musical offering. Saxophones and xylophones are the only instruments used but on these they are artists. This turn is different from the average musical act in that Newell & Niblo do not try to play a dozen different instruments but they confine themselves to the saxophone and xylophone exclusively. Both are trained musicians and have spent the greater part of their life mastering these difficult instruments and they now stand capable of offering a real musical treat, it is claimed. The repertoire includes both classic and popular music.

A comedy hit is the offering of Harry Thomson, who is known far and wide as "His Honor, the Mayor of the Bowery." Mr. Thomson is making another visit to Duluth and will unquestionably receive a great reception. On his former visit to Duluth he scored a genuine success and in all probability he will live up to his past record. Mr. Thomson's fun-making includes a variance of characters, his style is entirely his own and he is thoroughly imbued with a spirit of humor and has an unlimited supply of stories, witticisms and satire. Many will remember with delight Mr. Thomson's giving imitations of the different characters seen at a night police court and since his last visit he has replenished his stock with an abundant supply of these laugh producing imitations.

The motion pictures will be up to their usual high standard. A matinee is given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance by either 'phone. A bargain matinee will be given Saturday afternoon. Special attention is paid to the comfort and entertainment of women and children at all times.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

The Irish players in the new Plymouth theater in Boston, last week gave the first American production of Bernard Shaw's "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet." The Irish players first performed this play in Dublin. The English Censor suppressed the piece in London. His objection to it was its alleged blasphemous nature. Shaw himself called it "A sermon in crude melo-drama."

Frank Keenan, it is said, has withdrawn from the cast of "The Million," which Henry W. Savage presented in Washington recently. Further report has it that Mr. Keenan will return to vaudeville, and that T. Daniel Frawley, Mr. Savage's general stage director, is rehearsing the Keenan role.

Edna Goodrich and G. P. Huntley want to go together in vaudeville. The managers approached have expressed a willingness to deliver $2,000 weekly for a period of fifteen weeks to the newly formed partnership of Goodrich & Huntley. Six months ago it was announced that Miss Goodrich would appear in the Percy G. Williams theaters. Then Miss Goodrich decided she perferred a trip to Europe. Huntley's comedy bit in support of Hattie Williams also caused him to receive vaudeville offers some time ago. At the time he stated a preference for remaining in productions.

Frederic Thompson has announced for early production a four-act drama entitled "Graft," by William Brown Meloney, a newspaper man and magazine writer, and who formerly was an executive secretary to Mayor Gaynor.

"The Lady of Coventry" is the title selected for the new Louis N. Parker play for Viola Allen. This is the love romance on which Mr. Parker has been putting in his time all summer, and which is associated with the affairs of Lady Godiva. The period is 1069 A. D., and the action concerns itself with the antagonism between the Normans and the Saxons in England. Lady Godiva is a Norman and the hero, Leofric, a Saxon. To some extent the play is historical, but the love romance paramount. The ending is happy. Miss Allen will begin rehearsals as soon as her managers, Liebler & Co., have engaged the supporting company.

"Bob" Fitzsimmons has accepted a new vaudeville playlet from Jack London, the novelist, which the ex-champion of the prize ring will produce in vaudeville, with Magda Dahl, of the Hippodrome, as a side partner. The title of the piece is "Her Birth Mark," and Bob says that his role requires him to be a regular actor.

Lew Fields anounces the engagement of Emma Carus for the principal feminine comedy role in his forthcoming production of "The Wife Hunters," which is soon to be seen on Broadway, probably by the middle of October. In this production Miss Carus and Fannie Thompson will be jointly featured, while the other members of the cast are composed of players almost equally well known. "The Wife Hunters" is a musical comedy, book by Edgar Allan Woolf, music by Anatol Friedland and Malvin Franklin, and lyrics by David Kempner.

Liebler & Co. have completed the cast for the support of Mme. Simone, who will make her American debut in "The Thief" at Daly's theater on Oct. 16. In the company are Edwin Arden, Albert Grau, Sydney Herbert, Charles Francis and Grace Halsey.

Frances Cameron has been engaged for the prima donna role in one of the "Madame Sherry" companies. Miss Cameron for a long time sang the title role in "The Merry Widow."

Some time this week Martha Morton will arrive in this city from Europe. She brings with her the manuscript of a new play written for William H. Crane, and also a dramatization of one of Harold McGrath's stories which is to be submitted to Henry B. Harris.

The headline attraction at B. F. Keith's theater for the week of Oct. 15 will be James O'Neill and company of eleven people in three scenes from Monte Cristo. The last scene will show the duel in the woods.

One of Frederick Thompson's first new offerings is to be a play entitled "Elizabeth's Chauffeur," by John McIntyre. The author is not as yet known to Broadway fame, although he is not a novice in play-writing. Mr. Thompson's second venture will be George Barr McCutcheon's own dramatization of "The Flyers," which is likely to be presented under a different title.

"The Poor Rich" is the tile selected by Paul Wilstach, author of the dramatic version of "Thais," for the new comedy which he has written for Tim Murphy. It is in rehearsal and Mr. Murphy will play it occasionally on his present Southern tour before making it his exclusive offering about Thanksgiving.

Word comes from London that Forbes-Robertson and the company of players to appear with him for the third consecutive season in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will sail from England on Oct. 14. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's niece, Maud Buchanan, will this year play the role of Stacia, the slavey, in place of Mollie Pearson. Otherwise the company will be practically unchanged.

Billie Burke intends to close her season in America early in the spring in order to enable her to go to Paris where she contemplates appearing in a new play by Caillaver and de Flers, the authors who wrote "Love Watches." In this new play Miss Burke would assume the part of an American girl who speaks French with an American accent.

Lucien Guitry, creator of the title role of "Chantecler," will appear before Christmas at the Gymnase in a Bernstein play. It was at first reported that it would be "Apres Mor," the piece which caused the trouble last spring at the Comedie Francaise, but this has since been denied.

For some time past rumor has been persistent that Mabel Taliaferro, who in private life is the wife of Frederic Thompson, intends to procure a divorce. She is living at present in Chicago in order to establish her residence there, according to these same rumors. In the meantime she is appearing in a series of tabloid dramas for a moving picture concern. She emphatically denies that she is contemplating a legal separation from her husband, and says she is in Chicago merely to prepare for a new production in which she is to star.

A play has been made of Dicken's "Pickwick Papers" by the French dramatists, Robert Charvey and C. Duval. In his arrangement five scenes are presented, Pickwick's parlor, the courtyard of the Bull Inn, Dingley Dell on Christmas eve, the Law Court during the Bardell-Pickwick breach of promise suit and Fleet Prison. The play was produced in Paris last week and was only moderately successful.

Liebler & Co., yesterday announced Oct. 21 as the date of the opening of "The Garden of Allah" at the Century theater. The first performance of the wild-ly known Hichens drama will be a Saturday matinee.

Margaret Anglin, who is appearing in the comedy, "Green Stockings," received a cablegram from the author, A. E. W. Mason, congratulating her upon her successful New York opening. Mr. Mason added that he is coming over shortly to see "Green Stockings," also that he has written a new comedy, which will be produced at Christmas at the Apollo theater, London, and which he would like Miss Anglin to consider for her future use, now that she has established herself as a comedienne.

The Winter Garden Show in New York has been arranged by the Shuberts and as such is known as "The Musical Revue of 1911." It began its tour in Boston last week.

Charles Waldron, who has been at the head of the company presenting "The Fourth Estate," assumes Edwin Arden's place in "The Deep Purple," now playing in Chicago. Arden leaves the company to join the cast of Mme. Simone, the French actress. When "The Garden of Allah" has concluded its stay in New York Waldron is to be brought out at the head of a new play.

Gordon and North, who have been prominent producers in the burlesque field, are to star Charley Grapewine in the legitimate. The play is to be called "It Can Be Done."

Henrietta Crosman has formed a corporation for the purpose of exploiting her new play, "The Real Thing."

MEXICAN WOMEN.

Washington Herald: "Regarding some of the customs of the Mexican girl," said Jerome S. Horner of El Paso, Tex., "there are current many mistaken notions.

"For example, she is popularly supposed to play the guitar, to wear a mantilla and to smoke cigarettes. As a matter of fact the guitar is almost an unknown instrument among the women of the upper classes, the becoming mantilla is rarely seen in the streets save on Good Friday, having been discarded in favor of hats in atrocious taste; and the senorita never smokes. Neither does she make a habit of attending bullfights."

DULUTHIAN HAS RARE COLLECTION OF OLD LETTERS AND ANTIQUE BOOKS

PHOTOGRAPH OF OLD LETTER OWNED BY R. A. WEBSTER.

Letters dating back to the early part of the eighteenthe and nineteenth centuries and telling of early frontier life in Northern Minnesota and the Canadian boundary, are among the relics owned by R. A. Webster, 22 West Third street, superintendent of the Clyde Iron Works. Mr. Webster, one of the earliest settlers of Duluth, received these letters from his grandfather, William Webster, shortly before his death.

William Webster, a carpenter by trade, and one of the earliest Northern Minnesota settlers, arriving here in 1842, received these letters from his friend, J. Sangster, who preceded him to this country from Scotland and who told him of the many opportunities here, finally inducing him to come over. The features of the letters are the very fine writing, the absence of envelopes and stamps, the letters having been sent before stamps were made here and before the use of envelopes was know. The letters were delivered by post horses which were stationed at various intervals along different routes. It usually took four or five months for the delivery of a letter.

In one letter Mr. Webster received a full account of the Hudson Bay life from his friend James Sangster. Webster was in Canada at the time or what was then known as Upper Canada. Canada was divided in four sections, Upper and Lower, and East and West Canadas. The letter follows:

"We have been two years in this place. I belong to a local company which was formed of fifty-two pensioners and sent out for the protection of the Hudson Bay trade. And we are bound to serve them seven years on the following conditions: First, free passage and rations for the family and all our expenses to this place, for which we parade under arms every Sunday for Divine service for seven years and attend twelve days drill for the year; second, we get 7 shillings a week for three days work at anything the Governor may direct; third, we get 2£ 9s a week for which we give one week a month for extra work; fourth, twenty acres of land fit for cultivation and residence in the fort. If you wish to live on your own land you get fifty acres of land free.

"I have two of the best cows in the settlement and a very fine mare 4 years and three good pigs. Farming utensils are very dear. I have a new wooden plow cost £5 and you would laugh if you saw the things they call carts. I have two of them without an ounce of iron on them, cost £2 apiece.

He tells of the cost of everything on the farm and the fort. The letter was written July 12, 1850, and in it Sangster writes: "Barbara's love to her aunt and we will expect a letter next February by the overland mail." It being long it took mail to travel across the country. Now, however a three-day wait over that distance would worry one a great deal.

On the outside is the address, the letter being folded so that one page is left clear for the address.

To Mr. William Webster,
Carpenter, Zoan Mills,
Western District,
Upper Canada, North America.

No Stamps Used.

There was no stamps, payment being made at the station before delivery.

An invoice or bill made to William Webster by the William Forbes company is also shown. There was not much printing then, so that business stationery was unknown.

Mr. Webster also has a number of old books and pamphlets left him by his grandfather. A number of these books are hand printed, while others contain the old wood cut printing. One of the books yellow with age is "The Amusements of Leisure Hours," by Rev. John Skinner and contains all the old poems and legends of early Scotland. The book was printed in the last part of the eighteenth century. Another work by James Cock is 204 years old. "A Select Collection of Poems," containing all the old favorite pieces, was printed in 1763. One of the prizes of Mr. Webster's collection, is Dr. Johnson's English Dictionary in one of the earliest editions and is highly valued by its owner. "Seneca's Morals," written in 1722, is another of the many old books dating back almost 200 years.

Mr. Webster, being interested in mechanical lines, has among his collection the first edition of the "Art of Practical Measuring," written by John Ham in 1745. The book shows how to measure and gives a thorough description of the slide rule. The book also contains a compendium of practical geometry and plain trigonometry. The old English printing makes the work hard to read for an ordinary person.

SEVENTY-FIVE SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVING MUNICIPAL CONDITIONS

What European Cities Can Teach Americans in City Government.

Experts Instead of Politicians Are in Charge of Affairs.

"What European Cities Can Teach," is the title of a lengthy article published in a recent edition of the New York World.

It contains seventy-five suggestions, many of which might be considered seriously by Duluthians. Not the least interesting of these is the last one, which says "All those European cities, whose good government has something to teach America, are managed not by politicians but by experts." The list follows:

Streets; Billboards; Paving; Lamp Posts; Sewage Disposition.

1. In Berlin, Frankfort and many other German cities, street advertising is practically confined to corner pillars. There are no billboards erected on vacant lots to conceal refuse, shelter vagrants and lower values.

2. The German capitals require that newsstands and street booths shall contribute to rather than mar the vista.

3. Paris has numerous isles of safety in the middle of its streets, with artistic lamp posts. These light both sides of the street and reduce the number of lamps to two-thirds or one-half the number needed where the posts are at the curbs.

4. Belgium has a national society for the introduction of art in the streets. Particular attention is paid to street fixtures—lamp posts, street name signs, house numbers, tramway stations, public comfort stations, letter boxes, fire alarms, etc.

5. Practically all German cities save Hamburg have strict regulations to prevent offensive illuminated signs.

6. The sewers of Paris are also pipe galleries, carrying telegraph and telephone wires, water pipes, pneumatic tubes for letters and pipes for compressed air service.

7. Glasgow has iron bins with hinged lids sunk along the curbing and into these the street litter is brushed during the day.

8. Vienna uses covered ash-carts. Curtains attached to the frame are pushed aside while ashes are emptied, thus preventing dust from littering the streets.

9. The German cities have ordinances which suppress most of the street and waterside noises common to New York—the flat car wheel, the night long shrieking of tugboats, the blatant automobile horn, the scissors grinder's bell, the peanut vendor's steam whistle, the cries of sidewalk merchants.

10. Traffic regulations have been so skillfully drawn and firmly enforced in London that traffic now practically regulates itself.

11. Cologne, Hanover and other German cities are well provided with waste paper receptacles. They look more like vases than garbage cans, and are made of iron strips fastened to lamp posts or trolley or telegraph poles.

12. Paris is cleaned and scrubbed every day before it awakes. Between 4 and 6 a. m. all the streets and sidewalks are swept, and many of them washed and disinfected.

13. Paris fines householders who do not take in the emptied ash can by 7 o'clock.

14. Glasgow sweeps its streets at night.

15. Berlin has done best what most other European cities have done well. At a cost of $30,000,000 it has constructed a sewage-farms system covering an area almost equal to its own. Barren heath land was acquired well beyond the corporation limits and is being reclaimed by wastes which are pumped to it from central stations. The farms return a considerable revenue.

Municipal Thrift Abroad; Fuel From Street Waste.

16. Stuttgart gets a revenue from its parks and other tree-covered areas. These are under control of a forestry bureau which obtains enough money from timber and firewood to maintain lawns and paths, pay salaries and turn over 50 per cent of its gross receipts to the city.

17. Amsterdam converts street wastes into fuel briquettes. These are produced at $1.15 a ton and sold at $1.40, making a profit of over $20,000 a year. Heretofore this waste has been disposed of at an annual loss of $18,000.

18. When Frankfort lays out parks, boulevards or docks it condemns land in excess of its needs and pays for the whole enterprise by reselling the surplus and thus reaping the benefit of the new values. There is no "honest graft" from "insiders' tips" as to land to be benefited.

19. According to Frederick C. Howe in the Scribner's 1910, "there are 1,500 smaller towns and villages in Germany which derive so much revenue from the lands which they own that they are free from all local taxes. Five hundred of these communities are not only free from all local taxes but are able to declare a dividend of from $25 to $100 a year to each citizen as his share of the surplus earnings of the common lands."

20. The cities of Continental Europe consider beauty a municipal asset with a tangible cash value in that it makes life more enjoyable, elevates the public taste and brings in tourists.

Beauty in Elevated Roads; Clocks in Street Cars.

21. In Dresden and other cities surface cars do not stop at every corner. Stopping places are about 220 yards apart and are marked by a post and shield. This permits the making of much better time.

22. In Berlin and most other German cities if you jump on a street car in motion you are required to alight at the next stopping place.

23. Berlin's elevated roads are so designed as not greatly to detract from the sightliness of streets. The posts and girders almost realize Russell Sage's dream of an "ornamental iron structure" and the most uncompromising parts are masked by trees.

24. Berlin has so deadened the noise of passing elevated trains by flooring the structure with masonry that in concert halls underneath, one can listen with enjoyment to orchestral music.

25. Bremen does not permit the street cars to carry passengers in their aisles and strictly limits the number on platforms.

26. Hildesheim and many other German cities have clocks in all street cars.

Politics and Administration; Policemen Who Are Trusted.

27. Such is the dignity of London's county council, such is British public spirit, that cabinet ministers do not disdain to sit in it.

28. The police of Plauen inspect the moving picture theaters twice a week and a majority of the school teachers assist them.

29. When a policeman brings a prisoner before a London magistrate, "the judge treats him as an impartial, honest and fearless personification of the law of the land—practically consults him as to what he thinks should be done with the defendant in minor cases.

Here the policeman is the man on trial." The words are those of William McAdoo, former New York police commissioner, now head of the board of city magistrates.

30. London largely separates the detectives from the uniformed force. As Mr. McAdoo says: "They are not even known by name and cannot be located by the uniformed policeman, and their names are certainly not bandied about by crooks as common property."

31. "The honesty and good character of an ordinary London constable," says Mr. McAdoo, "is taken to be as sure as that of the Prime Minister."

32. Berlin and other German cities have bureaus of statistics which enable citizens to obtain an up-to-date view of local affairs.

33. The floating population of all British cities—"the lodging-house vote"—is practically disfranchised for municipal purposes by the slight property qualifications required.

34. Glasgow has made street-sweeping, street-sprinkling and garbage disposal part of its sanitary government and put them under one jurisdiction.

35. Paris has placed under one department the care of the parks and of the tree-shaded streets, the lighting of thoroughfares and the erection and supervision of booths and kiosks.

"Advanced" Social Laws; the Care of Public Wards.

36. Berlin has drafted nearly 4,000 citizens for poor relief. These are divided into upward of 250 local committees and every member is sponsor for specified families, with authority to attend to their wants. No compensation is given to these committees. Refusal to serve may be punished by tax increases or the suspension of civil and political privileges.

37. Glasgow has women as domiciliary visitors, known as "lady inspectors," who make suggestions as to cleanliness and household reform to poor families.

38. After child-birth Swiss cities require a six weeks' cessation from work by women wage-earners.

39. Cologne has official visitors of the poor, one of whom calls on every wage-earning woman who has given birth to a child. If the mother needs to go out to work, the fact is reported and a grant of money is made on condition that she say at home and nurse her infant.

40. The general death-rate of illegitimate infants is twice that of legitimate ones. Leipsic constitutes every illegitimate child a ward of the municipality and its condition is inspected. The death-rate of such infants is now even less than that of legitimate ones.

41. Paris has nearly a hundred classes de garde for small children whose parents are employed away from home. The children are kept until their parents have returned from work.

42. Charlottenburg has established a hospital school in a pine forest near the city for physically weak children under medical treatment. Tables and benches are set out under the fir trees and meals are served as well as lessons taught. "I marveled," said Sir John Gorst, "at the administrative ability which had at so small a cost provided such a great portion of health and happiness."

43. Glasgow maintains municipal wash-houses where for four cents an hour a woman may use a stall with fixed tubs for hot and cold water and appliances for steam boiling and drying.

44. Paris, like many other cities, has municipal pawnshops—the Mont de Piete—with three large auxiliaries and above a score of branches. These loan on an average $5 a year to every man, woman and child.

Railway Stations With Beautiful Surroundings.

45. Paris has a belt railroad following the perimeter of the city. This connects the various railroad stations, and both freight and passenger traffic are facilitated.

46. The railway stations in German cities give upon plazas of grass and flowers surrounded by hotels and municipal buildings so designed as to produce a single architectural effect.

47. Berlin, Dresden and other German cities study the winds and refuse to let factories locate in outlying districts where their smoke or odors might be blown into the city.

48. Dusseldorf has provided or regulated the designs for factories, office buildings and department stores, and these are ornamented with statutes, frescoes and mosaics.

49. Paris and Brussels have improved advertising signs by offering prizes for the most artistic.

50. Germany has developed a school of commercial architecture headed by Alfred Messel. Wertheim's department store and the Rheingold restaurant in Berlin and the offices of the Allgemeine Zeitung in Munich are accounted in as good taste as the best public buildings.

Beautiful River Banks Within European Cities.

51. Instead of using their rivers to carry off sewage, instead of permitting unsightly commercial structures to occupy their shores, European cities have treated the rivers as assets of beauty and enjoyment. London has the Victoria embankment upon the Thames—a downtown riverside park. Paris has lined the Seine with stone quays and faced it with public buildings and palaces. Cologne has occupied nearly all the Rhine river-front with stone embankments and tree-bordered avenues. Budapest has its river-front streets higher than the quays of the Danube and these are lined with fine public and private buildings. In the Bruhl terrace overlooking the Elbe, Dresden has the "Balcony of Europe." Berlin has built stone quays along the Spree and planted the banks with trees. It has made stone and cement walls for its canals.

52. The maritime cities of Europe insist that commerce shall make terms with beauty on their harbor-fronts. Hamburg and Bremen have handsome warehouses in a modified mediaeval style. The water-front of Antwerp and Stockholm is walled with cement and stone. The quays of Havre are recreation centers and the buildings must conform to a general architectural plan.

53. Hamburg gets its drinking-water from the Elbe. In 1892, following the cholera outbreak of 1892, it installed the greatest filtration plant in the world, a system of subsidence basins and filters. Water which before entering these basins contained millions of cholera germs to the cubic inch emerged as clear as a mountain stream.

54. Stockholm, Paris, Liege and Budapest have bridges with architecturally imposing plaza approaches.

55. Dresden, Vienna and Amsterdam have introduced sculpture into their bridges with a monumental effect.

56. Instead of making is show island an asylum for paupers and criminals, Paris has on the Ile de la Cite its tallest cathedral, its central courts of Justice, a great hospital, the Tribunal of Commerce, the Prefecture of Police, etc.

Grouped Buildings; New Streets; Vines and Flowers; the City Beautiful.

57. European cities are discarding the checkerboard street plan. Paris led the way in Napoleon III.'s time when Baron Hussmann, Prefect of the Seine, built great boulevards and avenues by the hundred, laid out diagonal avenues between important points and constructed engirdling boulevards. The sum of $240,000,000 was spent in this work, and last year it was decided to devote $175,000,000 more thereto.

58. London has done a similar but smaller work in King's-Way. The German cities are following neither the checkerboard nor the radial avenue, ring-boulevard plan. Their new streets wind perceptibly so as to open fresh vistas and permit of collateral effects of parking and statuary.

59. Instead of locating their public buildings at random, the capitals of Europe arrange them with relation to each other and to some park, open space or boulevard, so that they contribute to one central effect. The finest is the Ringstrasse of Vienna, and other notable examples are Berlin's Unter den Linden and Lustgarten, Moscow's Kremlin, Dresden's Zwinger, the Louvre region of Paris and the Grande Place of Brussels.

60. In Dresden citizens have undertaken to induce every landlord and tenant to decorate yards, buildings and casements with plants, vines, shrubs and window-boxes. The authorities have co-operated by decorating municipal buildings, and at a small expenditure the summer aspect of the city has been transformed.

61. The color sense has been indulged in all Russian cities. Building exteriors are of plaster to protect the brick from the frost, and every year these are repaired and repainted, and red, blue, buff, green, white and gilt diversified with mosaics are successfully employed.

62. Every important European city has regulations restricting the height of buildings, the width of balconies, the projection of cornices, the size of windows, and the character of lamps, signs, awnings, fences and doorways.

63. Ancient Athens and Rome set us an example of civic centers in the Acropolis and the Forum.

64. Frankfort purchased a number of mediaeval buildings near the city hall and restored them to the original style, that they should be in harmony with it.

65. Berlin has a school of town-planning.

66. Germany has experts like Stuben, Fischer, Gurlett, Henrici and Baumeister, who give advice on town-planning and travel from city to city. It is a new profession—"Stadtebau."

67. Frankfort has built an exposition hall about the size of Madison Square garden.

68. Munich has a group of exposition buildings comprising an auditorium a theater, a hall for exhibits and a summer concert garden.

69. When a new street is opened in Brussels or Paris prizes running as high as $4,000 in Brussels and equal to one-half the street tax in Paris are offered by the authorities for the most artistic facades.

70. Vienna remits a percentage of taxes to landlords who will tear down an old building and put up a bigger and better one.

71. Copenhagen gives a prize every year to the architect who designs the most sightly building that harmonizes it with older buildings about it.

72. Paris requires that all office and house fronts shall be periodically repaired or repainted, so that the street shall appear neat and fresh.

73. All wide Paris streets are in effect parks. They have rows of shade trees. Many of them have a central park strip planted with trees, grass and flowers, and benches are placed here. Along the chief streets are perhaps 100,000 trees, a large number for a city so compactly built.

74. In practically all European cities pavements are kept constantly in good repair.

75. All those European cities whose good government has something to teach America are managed not by politicians but by experts.

POLICE ADMINISTRATION

Long Term for Police Commissioners Recommended—Evils of Kaleidoscopic Changes—Certainty of Policy Needed.

By LEONARD FELIX FULD,
Examiner, Municipal Civil Service Commission, New York City, Author of "Police Administration."

(Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

"Whenever I do my duty I make enemies and only by neglecting my duty can I make friends." This was not the wail of a dyspeptc pessimist but the frank statement of a clean-cut, intelligent and out-spoken lieutenant of police. The novelty of the remark caused me to ponder over it.

In every walk of life the man who does his duty conscientiously makes enemies. A man who makes no enemeis in life is a moral coward, who has no purpose in life and accomplishes no results. Only women who are 99.75 per cent whole-hearted goodness can go through life making only friends and no enemies. The policeman's life is one in which a man doubtless makes more enemies than in any other walk of life. No man likes the hand that jails him and deprives him of his liberty. Further conversation with this lieutenant of police, however, convinced me that he was proud of the enmities which he made among the criminal class. He was not referring to that class of enemies. What he dreaded and what discouraged him at times was the fact that by doing his duty he incurred the enmity of his superiors.

He told me that even this class of enemies would not cause him any annoyance if he could be certain of the attitude of his superiors with reference to any particular statute. Changes of official policy, however, are the bane of the policeman's life. If he could only be certain that the police commissioner of today will be the police commissioner tomorrow and next year and five years from today, he could carry out the administrative policy of his commissioner conscientiously and with devotion. Under present condition, however, every prudent police officer must take care that he does not carry out the policy of the police commissioner of today with such devotion as to incur the enmty of the new commissioner who may be at the head of the police department tomorrow. Nor is this reference to a kaleidoscopic change in administration metaphorical. In New York city in particular and also in other American cities changes in administration take place as suddenly as this statement would imply. It is believed that much of our American police problems would be solved if the head of the police force had a term of at least ten years and a tenure during good behavior. At present the police commissioner's term is either two years or four years and his tenure is at the pleasure of the mayor.

If the police commissioner is given a long term and a definite tenure he is not only enabled to carry out a definite administrative policy and to secure and retain the loyalty of his subordinates by possessing the ability to reward efficient service and to punish inefficient service, but there is also secured a competent direction of the police department. Under present-day conditions in America the head of the police department is never a police expert. He is selected from civil life for business, social, or political reasons. He seldom has any peculiar fitness for the position, excepting in the mind of the man who appoints him and he never has any expert knowledge of police administration. The excellent German system of promoting an experienced police officer of a smaller city to the police commissionership of a larger city has never been tried in this country. If the police commissioner were give a long term and a definite tenure this would at least remedy the present day condition that the police commissioner has no knowledge of police administration when he assumes the duties of his office and that he is turned out of office as soon as he has learned the details of the business. With a long term and a definite tenure the city would at least enjoy the services of an experienced police commissioner during the latter half of his term.

Every American municipality ought to improve its system of police administration so that the remark of the lieutenant whom we have quoted may be changed to read: "Whenever I do my duty I make enemies among the citizens and friends among my superior officers, and by neglecting my duty I may make friends among the citizens but I shall incur the enmity of my superior officers." If efficient police protection is desired, every municipality must not only strive for this result but it must also see to it that the police officer's official friends and official enemies have as much power and as much influence over his actions as his friends and his enemies in private life wield today.

According to a report from Washington, Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, who has announced that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself in the United States senate, is going to open a law office in New York on his retirement from official life on March 3, 1913. The report is not at all surprising; on the contrary, it serves only to call attention to the fact that New York acts like a magnet on men who have gained distinction in public life in Washington and elsewhere. If Senator Bailey, after having made a national reputation for forensic ability and capacity in dealing with public affairs, proceeds now to establish himself in New York, he will simply be following precedents that go back to the time of President Monroe, and have been confirmed by the careers of some other presidents and by those of many cabinet officers, members of congress and holders of administrative positions in the federal government who have retired from public office only to enter upon business or professional careers in New York

Monroe was the first of our public men of national reputation to feel the lure of New York. He practiced law in New York from the time he left the White House until shortly before his death. After retiring from the presidency General Grant became a special partner in a New York brokerage house, and Mr. Cleveland, during the interval between his first and second administrations, was a member of a prominent New York law firm. Col. Roosevelt is a native New Yorker, although his home for a good many years has been in one of the rural counties of Long Island. Still, it may be said that an attraction similar to that which operated in the cases of Monroe, Grant and Cleveland has made him an editor in New York city. So much for the precedents as far as the presidents are concerned. A list of all the public men of lesser degree who have felt the lure of New York would be a long one, and today, among the most distinguished New Yorkers in business and professional life, there are many men from other parts of the country who have been men of mark in Washington and who have stepped from high public station in the nation's capital to leading positions in the nation's metropolis.

Ex-Congressman Littlefield Seeks Fortune in New York.

One of the most recent accessions to the ranks of this brilliant coterie is that of former Congressman Charles B. Littlefield of Maine, who is now engaged in the practice of the law in New York. Mr. Littlefield had already held high offices in his native state, and had made a more than local reputation as a public speaker and a leader in Republican councils, when he was elected to congress as the successor of the late Nelson Dingley. He attained national prominence during his first term in congress, and he remained one of the leading figures in the house for nearly a decade. One of his campaigns for re-election excited extraordinary and nation-wide interest on account of the efforts made by certain labor interests whose displeasure he had incurred to bring about his defeat, and it was due very largely to his exercise of his remarkable powers as a public speaker in that campaign that he was able to triumph over what seemed to be forbidding odds.

Since establishing himself in New York, Mr. Littlefield has had many opportunities to enter politics, but he has rejected all of them. He has made it plain that he intends to devote all his energies to his profession. Public men with brilliant records have not invariably made good when they have tried their fortunes in the metropolis, but it is understood that Mr. Littlefield is very decidedly making good as a lawyer in New York. Report has it that he has already acquired a very valuable clientage, and is assured of a leading position at the New York bar.

James M. Beck's Remarkable Success.

Probably the most striking instance of great professional success in New York made by a man from another part of the country who had already gained great prominence in the public service is presented by the career of James M. Beck. Mr. Beck has made probably the most conspicuous success of any lawyer of his age,—he is still a young man—in the country. A native of Philadelphia, he began the practice of the law there. He was a Democrat until the Democratic party accepted the leadership of Bryan, and made free silver an issue. On that issue Mr. Beck went over to the Republican party. Mr. Beck early made a reputation as a brilliant advocate and he added to that reputation during the four years in which he served as United States district attorney for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania. It was his success in that office that lead to his appointment in 1900 as assistant United States attorney-general and the assignment to him of the great Northern Securities case. Mr. Beck argued that and other important government cases before the supreme court of the United States, and won them all.

Those victories gave him a national reputation, and forthwith he was made to feel the lure of New York. In 1903 he retired from office and became a member of a prominent New York law firm and personal counsel to several of the greatest business men in the metropolis.

Since taking up the practice of the law in New York city, Mr. Beck has had several tempting opportunities to employ his legal talents in federal and state matters of great interest and importance, but for various reasons of a professional nature he could not avail himself of them. He was offered by the federal government the post of special counsel to prosecute the Standard Oil case and declined. He was offered the post of special counsel to prosecute the Tobacco trust case. He declined that. He was the first lawyer to whom the Armstrong committee, which was appointed by the New York state legislature to investigate the life insurance companies, offered the appointment as its counsel. Mr. Beck declined that, and the post was given to Charles E. Hughes.

Mr. Beck is now general counsel for the American Sugar company, and his clientage includes many important business interests. His professional income is understood to be one of the largest in the country.

Ex-Senator Spooner's Successful Transplantation.

Ex-Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin is as much at home in New York as though he had been practicing law in the metropolis all his life instead of only during the past four years of it. Mr. Spooner is one of the very few men—of whom George F. Edmunds was also one—who resigned a seat in the United States senate to resume the practice of the law. Like Senator Edmunds of Vermont Mr. Spooner felt obliged to relinquish office in order to set about acquiring a competence for himself and his family in his old age. He was getting past 60 and had been in public life for thirty years, during sixteen of which he had been a member of the senate. New York had held out attractions to him before, but he had put them by, but when in 1907 prospects of a valuable professional clientage in New York were held out to him he said, "It is now or never," and betook himself to the metropolis.

His experience in New York is understood to have fully justified him in taking the step he did. He is understood to have built up a large practice of a very desirable sort although it is not of the kind that brings him much notoriety in the limelight of publicity. He is engaged very largely as a consulting lawyer, whose work rarely brings him into court and consists in advising on the conduct of specially difficult and important cases. Lawyers whose opinions are valuable enough to be sought in such cases are among those who command the largest fees.

A Virginian Who "Made Good" in New York.

John S. Wise, who has been for a good many years a prominent and very successful member of the bar in New York, settled in that city in 1888, after having gained national prominence through the influential part he played in Virginia politics, and after having made a reputation as a federal district attorney in that state and as a member of congress. He served as an officer in the army of the Confederacy during the last two years of the Civil war. He became a Republican at the time of the Mahone movement in Virginia. On his advent to New York he was received with open arms by the young Republicans and entered actively into the political life of the city and state, and became very prominent as a public speaker and campaign orator. He very quickly built up a lucrative law practice.

Mr. Wise, during President McKinley's administration, had every expectation of being appointed United States district attorney for the Southern district of New York, and he undoubtedly would have been appointed to that post but for the opposition of Senator Thomas C. Platt. It is an interesting fact that the present incumbent of that post is his son, Henry A. Wise, who has become widely known through his activity in the prosecution of trusts. Mr. Wise's health failed him not very long ago, and he has since been living in retirement on his farm in Virginia.

Two Western Lawyers Now Domiciled in New York.

Another prominent man who has been lured recently from public station to professional life in New York is Ormsby McHarg, who has been a conspicuous national figure as the prosecutor of important cases in the West for the United States department of justice and in connection with the controversy over the conservation of national resources. Before he attained celebrity in public life, Mr. McHarg practiced law in Jamestown, N. D., and in Seattle, Wash. He was appointed assistant secretary of the department of commerce and labor in March, 1909, and resigned in November of that year to become a member of a prominent New York law firm.

Reuben D. Silliman is another young lawyer to whom a brilliant professional opening in New York has come as a sequence to success in public life. Mr. Silliman has practiced law in Honolulu and in San Francisco. He served for some time as judge of the United States circuit court in the Hawaiian Islands by appointment of President McKinley, resigning that position to resume the practice of the law. For a number of years past he has been a member of the well known New York law firm of Choate & Laroque.

The Case of Charles D. Norton.

If New York has attraction for the lawyer who has made a reputation in public office, either elective or appointive, it has even more for the man who has demonstrated in official life that he has unusual financial or business ability. The case of Charles Dyer Norton, who is in a fair way to become one of the most prominent and influential of New York bankers, is a recent and a very striking instance of this. Mr. Norton was taken out of public life in Washington because he was just the man that a great financial institution in New York wanted for a certain position.

Mr. Norton's successful career is due to a combination of very engaging personal qualities with uncommon executive and financial ability. Of these personal qualities there are two that are especially remarkable in him, his tact and his pleasing manner of address. It is said of him that he has an instinctive knowledge of the way to deal with men of the most varied types. Undoubtedly it was these personal qualities as well as his business energy and ability, that made him for a number of years one of the phenomenally successful life insurance agents in the country.

While he was managing an insurance agency in Chicago he became acquainted with Franklin MacVeagh, and Mr. MacVeagh was so struck with young Norton's business ability that, on becoming secretary of the treasury, he made him assistant secretary of the department. Mr. Norton was called from that post to assume the duties of secretary to the president. Within the present year he resigned from that position to become one of the vice-presidents of the First National bank in New York, one of the greatest banking institutions in the country.

The duties of Mr. Norton's present position are such that not every banker of ability could fill them. They require banking ability, but something more than that also, since they involve personal dealing with the many persons with whom the institution has relations.

Frank A. Vanderlip, who is today one of the leading bankers of the country, president of the National City bank of New York, the biggest banking institution in the United States, was brought to New York from Washington ten years ago in just the same way that Mr. Norton was this year As a financial reporter in Chicago Mr. Vanderlip became acquainted with Lyman J. Gage. When Mr. Gage became secretary of the treasury he made Mr. Vanderlip his private secretary and very shortly after that assistant secretary of the department. Mr. Vanderlip resigned from that position in 1901 to become vice-president of the City bank in New York. He became president of the City bank three years ago.

Mr. Vanderlip's financial and business interests are numerous and various. He is a director in many railroad corporations, and is associated with Edwin Hawley in a number of Mr. Hawley's railroad enterprises. He is one of the most strikingly successful of the men who have gone from public office to high positions in the commercial metropolis.

The Big Proposition Open to Cortelyou.

George Bruce Cortelyou is a native of New York, but his career really began in Washington and he was for years regarded as a Washington man. He would naturally have returned to New York when he retired from public service, even if he had had no especially great business inducement to do so. But he would undoubtedly have gone from Washington to New York when he did, even if he had hailed from any other part of the country, for New York wanted him.

Mr. Cortelyou, on his retirement from the secretaryship of the treasury, could have had any one of several high business positions in New York. It is the impression that he could have had a partnership in the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. although this cannot be stated as a fact. It is understood, however, that Mr. Morgan was greatly impressed by the way that Mr. Cortelyou as secretary of the treasury handled the panic situation in 1907. Mr. Cortelyou might have had the presidency of the Equitable Life Assurance society, before that position was offered to the late Paul Morton, who retired from the secretaryship of the navy to accept it. Mr. Cortelyou accepted the offer of the presidency of the Consolidated Gas company of New York because the job appealed to him.

As president of that great corporation, his policy has been to eliminate friction between the corporation and the public, and thus to make easier the extension of the use of gas, especially for purposes other than lighting. When Mr. Cortelyou became head of the company, there was litigation of long standing between the city and the company over the question of franchise taxes. He had not been president of the company long before this was all settled by agreement on the amount due the city, and amicable relations between the company and the municipality were restored. The Consolidated Gas company was formerly bitterly attacked for its dealings with the public. It was easy to stir up public sentiment against it, and it received many hard knocks. Since Mr. Cortelyou has been president of it, the knocking has practically ceased. It will be said doubtless that the 80-cent gas law and the public service commission have been responsible for this. But some of the credit is justly due to the quiet, kindly yet forceful man who now directs the policy of the corporation. It is worthy of note that during the recent panicky conditions in the securities market, the shares of the Consolidated Gas company were very little affected.

Henry W. Cannon, who was a banker in Minnesota until he went to Washington in 1884 to take the post of United States comptroller of the currency, found important banking positions in New York open to him when he retired from public office. He left Washington to become vice president of the Bank of the Republic in New York, but had held that position only a few months when the presidency of the Chase National bank was offered to him. He held that position twenty years, retiring five years ago on account of his health and assuming the less onerous duties of chairman of the board of directors of the bank. Mr. Cannon developed the Chase National bank into one of the great financial institutions of the metropolis. He became an officer or director in many other institutions, and for many years has been one of the best known of New York bankers.

Mr. Cannon's successor as president of the Chase National was A. Barton Hepburn, who was a lawyer in the western part of New York state until he held public office as state superintendent of banking, United States bank examiner, and controller of the currency. Mr. Hepburn is today one of the best known and most influential of New York bankers.

From Porto Rico to New York.

Charles Herbert Allen, who was Theodore Roosevelt's successor as assistant secretary of the navy, and who was for two years governor of Porto Rico, has made his business headquarters in New York since his retirement from public station, although his home is in Lowell, Mass. He is vice president of the Morton Trust company in New York and a director in several of the largest New York banks. He was formerly prominent in Massachusetts politics, and was the Republican candidate for governor of that state in 1891.

Lyman J. Gage, who for nearly thirty years was a banker in Chicago, settled in New York on retiring from the post of secretary of the treasury, in 1902. He became president of the United States Trust company in New York and held that position until the time of his retirement from business, in 1906.

Leslie M. Shaw, when he gave up the treasury portfolio in 1907, accepted the presidency of the Carnegie Trust company in New York. He gave up that position two years later to accept the presidency of a trust company in Philadelphia, where he now resides.

The late John G. Carlisle, opened a law office in New York when he retired from the secretaryship of the treasury in 1897. It has always been understood that Mr. Carlisle's experience in New York was rather disappointing to him.

Two other men, who like Mr. Carlisle, held the position of speaker of the house of representatives, practiced law in New York when they retired from public life, namely, the late Thomas B. Reed of Maine and the late David B. Henderson of Iowa. Although he had some important cases, Mr. Reed, in the opinion of some, hardly sustained as a lawyer in New York the brilliant reputation he had made in public life. His career at the New York bar, was, however, brief.

Roscoe Conkling, on the other hand was brilliantly successful as a lawyer in New York city. He was a resident of the western part of New York state, and when he resigned his seat in the United States senate seven years later he left a fortune of about $800,000.

A NOTABLE INDIAN WOMAN.

Kansas City Star: Mrs. Narcissa Owen, 80 years old, mother of United States Senator Robert L. Owen, died at Guthrie July 11, as the result of injuries received some weeks before in a fall. She was a Cherokee Indian, a native of Webbers Falls, in old Indian Territory, and had achieved fame as an author and artist. Her principal book was a history of the Cherokee Indians.

Mrs. Owen's history was full of interest from the time her father, Chief Robert Chisholm, died until she had educated herself and was self-sustaining, having a position in the Masonic high school at Fort Smith, Ark. It was there that she first met Dr. Robert Latham Owen of Virginia, who became her husband. With 500 other women from her section during the Civil war she made uniforms and gave her all to cheer the southern army when evil days fell upon it. After her widowhood Mrs. Owen returned to teaching. An artist of more than ordinary boldness and talent and a musician of unusual attainments, she made an excellent living. She taught in one of the schools until after her son, Robert Latham Owen, the senator from Oklahoma, became Indian agent and a lawyer of fair promise.

Mrs. Owen, until three years ago, was as sturdy and erect as one of the warriors of her race, but she then suffered a stroke of paralysis. Her home was full of fascinating trophies of the heroic days of her line and she could tell as thrilling a story as Cooper could pen. It was Mrs. Owen's father who received from Thomas Jefferson the famous peace medal which marked the perfect harmony of the United States government and the Cherokee tribe.

Mrs. Owen was directly descended from Queen Quatsis, lineal successor of the seven original chiefs of Cherokee blood of many years ago, and was herself one-sixteenth Cherokee. Practically all along the line Mrs. Owen boasted an unusual ancestry. One of the intimate traits of the members of the Owen family, a characteristic which by the way had much to do with their worldly success, was their indomitable will. This came through Mrs. Narcissa Owen and her ancestors.

CIGARETTE PAPER.

Scientific American: Of the great army of cigarette smokers there is probably not more than one in a hundred who knows that rice paper, in which the tobacco is wrapped, has nothing to do with rice, but is made from the membranes of the breadfruit tree or more commonly of fine new trimmings of flax and hemp.

So light is this paper that 500 of the tiny sheets go to make an ounce. They are perfectly combustible and give off the minimum of smoke. Before being rolled with tobacco they are analyzed to prove that they are free from all deleterious ingredients and that they contain nothing but the purest paper fiber. Only new material—flax and hemp trimmings—is used, and these are thoroughly purified.

Chopped by machinery into minute particles, they are well mixed by a revolving fan and then reduced to a dust, which is placed in a solution of lime and soda. After remaining in this solution for some time in order that all foreign substances may be eliminated it undergoes a thorough washing process, the water being the purest kind coming from artesian wells especially for the purpose.

Then the pulp is rolled out into paper. At first it is of a grayish tinge, the pure white of the finished product being obtained by an electric process, which in bleaching also cleans it of whatever impurities might have escaped the bath.

The French manufacturers of cigarette paper practically supply the entire world, the output of Austria and Italy being insignificant.

HANGING THE CLOTHES ON THE SPORTING LINE

The World Waits the Coming of a Great White Heavyweight Fighter—Baseball Series Starts.

(BY BRUCE.)

IT MIGHT be said that the sporting world is in the attitude of waiting. After all the useless "white hopes" have been relegated to their proper spheres, be it the plowfield, the sewer or the dear old farm, the fans of the boxing game will again look with sanity upon a situation that has been rendered somewhat ridiculous by the desire of some managers to build a financial mountain out of the hulks of battered beef.

The call of the age has been one fervent desire to see a large colored man beaten. To the faithful fists of the lowbrow who can accomplish this end, will come rolling in the golden stream of dollars, greater far than could be earned by the intellectual effort of the pale browed student or even by the student at the shrine of high finance, unless he were a very successful student.

There are fads in every age—they have come down from the time of our fathers. It was once the fashion to cut off peoples' heads. By degrees of development we have come to less vicious fads. The harem skirt, suffragettes and the desire to see the championship of the world held by a white man, are three of the most prominent fads of the day, if the latter can really be called a fad.

But if the intense desire to see Arthur dethroned is not a fad, then the developing of "white hopes" has surely become a fad in the fullest sense of the word. And it might be added that most of the hopes have been quite as harmless as most of the fads of the present age.

If boxing is permitted to live in this country, some day a great heavyweight fighter will rise up among us. His rise will be sudden and unexpected. He won't be heralded by the blare of trumpet, as some of the punk hopes of recent explosion. He will be a natural fighter and not some human tub, depending upon his meals from the mere size of his body. Until that time it seems foolish and rather senseless to the man with intelligence to witness all this tomfoolery about a lot of big stiffs, if you will pardon for the moment the harshness of the expression.

In his day little Joe Wolcott, standing but the very smallest fraction of an inch over five feet, could have licked in one room all the foolish, fatuous, posing, ignorant and weakly grinning "white hopes" that they might throw into the enclosure.

We might ask what has become of Miles McCleod and about fourteen other species of the scream brand of pugilistic pills that were foisted upon the public when the craze was at its wildest flight. They will never be heard of again, unless it be that they be allowed to speak at some huskin' bee or plumbers' convention and mention the fact of their start on the glory path.

We are waiting allright, waiting for some champion, and until that time the mere mention of a heavyweight fighter, outside of Johnson and Langford, is to cause a grin of derision to cross the countenance of most men who know. The poorest lot of big men are fighting today in the history of the ring, and one would not be surprised if Kid McCoy, a derelict of the great white way, should lick most of the dubs playing hookey from heavy labor.

ERE these lines have been read by some of you the first game in the world's series will have been played. Two great teams meet today with the eyes of the entire baseball world centered upon their every move, waiting eagerly for the thousands of wires to pour their flying message out upon this land that is literally in the clutch of the contagious grip of the virulent baseball fever.

Do you dimly realize what this world's series means? It means, of course, that two of the greatest teams in the world are fighting for the highest honors in the baseball world. But more significant than this is the fact that millions of people are vitally interested not only in the outcome, but also in every detail of the play.

There is hardly a big paper in the country but has some special writer giving its readers some particular angle of the game. The romantic side of the game, the spectacular side of the game, the feminine viewpoint, the psychological side of the game, the mental attitude of the players, and a hundred other details will be eagerly read by thousands of people in different parts of the country.

Rex Beach, William Lampton and other writers of fame, as well as about every prominent baseball player in the country, have been engaged to write for some paper or some syndicate of papers. It all means that we Americans are vitally and enthusiastically interested in the great national game, and desire this interest satisfied.

Do you realize that so many expert writers and keen and clever newspapermen have applied for seats to cover the game in one capacity or another, that it is very probable that many of these applicants will have to be turned away? Reno for one bright and burning day, out there under the scorching sun of Nevada, on the sands of the American desert, focused the attention of the reading world. The coronation of an English monarch caused a bustling world to stop and listen. But when two great baseball teams meet the American, be he plebian or aristocrat, casts business aside for the moment and eagerly inquires, "What's the score?"

From the club in New York city, where some men may sit and follow the struggle inning by inning, to the last sand station along the Sante Fe trail, down there in the sand country of the Southwest, there will be a mighty sweep of interest, intense and human. For a moment men are boys again. The spirit of the corner lot has hurried and scurried back through the long lane of the years. The eager enthusiasm of youth may be seen on the faces of many men, and you might even see some ordinarily dignified man throw his hat into the air and give loud voice to a resounding yell. While baseball continues on its throne, wielding its scepter with bold and mighty hand, who will say that we are not a nation of boys?

REDS WIN AGAIN FROM CLEVELAND

Benton Proves Mystery to Members of American League Team.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Cincinnati won the second game of the state championship series with Cleveland yesterday, the victory being the second scored by the National leaguers. Benton held Cleveland safe all the way while Kaler, as long as he was in the box, pitched good ball. In the seventh inning, however, Manager Stovall of Cleveland put himself in to bat for Kaler, and when Cincinnati came to bat in the eighth they found W. Mitchell facing them. They immediately fell on the left-hander for five hits, which, with a hit batsman, two passes and two errors, netted eight runs and the game.

Outfielder Jackson of Cleveland had a bad day, he making two wild throws that netted Cincinnati several runs. The fielding feature was a throw from deep center by Mike Mitchell in the second inning on Turner's fly, which doubled Birmingham at the plate.

FANS GIVE TEAM GREAT SEND-OFF

Hundreds Cheer the World's Champions as They Leave to Defend Title.

Philadelphia, Oct. 14.—The American league champions received a rousing send-off yesterday when the team left for New York to defend their title of champions of the world.

Of even greater interest than the departure of the local team was the question which has arisen among the local fans as to how they are going to get admittance to the games. In spite of the fact that only four seats were announced to be sold to each applicant and that the great majority of intending purchasers were denied the privilige in the advance sale by the club, speculators appear to have an almost unlimited supply. The regular ticket offices in the big hotels today were offering seats not only for the local games, but for the contests in New York. The prevailing price was $10 a seat for each game.

President Shibe of the Philadelphia club emphatically denied that there had been any collusion with speculators in the sale of tickets. He offered to open the books to public inspection in order that anyone can see just who received the club's allotment.

GOPHERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Minnesota Rooters Beginning to Feel Much More Confident.

Shevlin, Brooks and McGovern All Helping With Coaching.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After the first open practice last Wednesday Dr. Williams announced himself as well pleased. "We had a nice crowd out, but they didn't do enough yelling," he said.

The 400 rooters who attended open practice were treated to a fine article of football. The second team surprised every one by its strength on defense and offense. A rooters' club was organized Tuesday and they expect to make things hum in the rooting line during the coming games.

With Tom Shevlin coaching the ends, Springer Brooks, another old Yale star, the other linesmen, and Johnny McGovern the backfield, the gruelling pace set by Dr. Williams during the early part of the week is being kept up.

Shevlin is giving the linemen, especially the ends, very close attention. He knows more about the way the wing positions should be played than any man in the country, and every man on the squad as well as Dr. Williams, appreciates his help.

Johnny McGovern, who is now a fixture on the assistant staff for the remainder of the season, and Springer Brooks of the Yale alumni coaching staff, are also of great service. "Johnny Mac" is giving particular attention to the quarterback position where the Gophers seem weak. Frequently he jumps in and runs the team for several plays to show how the plays should work. When asked what he thought of the team Johnny said: "I think Doc Williams is getting along nicely. The new men are green and have a lot to learn, but I think we will have a strong team before the big games are played."

Working on the Line.

Brooks is paying a great deal of attention to the line along with Shevlin. The line is not very strong yet but the coaches all declare that this is due to inexperience. It is practically a new line but with practice should develop into a strong charging machine.

Thursday night Hanson was added to the hospital list with a sprained ankle. Rosenwald is still out of the game, and Shaughnessy, Lawler and Harrison complete the list. Hanson's injury is not serious.

There have been several changes in the lineup since last Saturday. McEwen has been taken from center and is now holding down right tackle. Hanson seems to be a fixture at left guard. "Tubby" Morrell, who was declared eligible last Saturday, is back at his old center position. The big fellow is out of condition but will be in good trim for the Nebraska game. His work was quit; satisfactory last year and he will prove a more valuable man this year. Powers is settled at right guard. Frank is playing a steady game at right tackle and Shaugnessy and Wallinder are fighting it out for the wing position.

Hayward is a new man in the varsity back field. He was put into the game during the last quarter of the Coyote game and showed excellent judgment in running the team. Dr. Williams is giving the little 1910 freshman quarter much attention and he will undoubtedly be heard from. Capron, Pickering and Stevens are the other backfield men not on the sick list.

The work of McAlmond and Rube Johnson deserve much credit.

With only one more week before the first big game, the coaches are confident, the team is determined, and the students very hopeful. Next week will be one of the most strenuous weeks of practice this season. The coaches have the material and are going to have a team to be proud of, is the feeling around school. The two small scores so far were at first discouraging but in these games material was only limited. "Watch Minnesota from now on," say the rooters. "She is going to show the big Western colleges one of the best teams ever turned out in the West."

SOX TAKE FIRST OF THE SERIES

Brilliant Ninth Inning Rally Wins Game for American League Team.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Scoring three runs in a brilliant ninth inning rally, the Chicago American league club defeated the Chicago National team in the initial game of the city championship series yesterday, 4 to 3. Holding a lead of two runs at the start of the ninth inning, the National team seemingly had the game won until singles by Bodie, Callahan and Zeider evened the score. Then Kreitz, a recruit catcher, who replaced Sullivan behind the bat, lined a single deep into left field and Zeider raced home with the winning tally.

The first American team score came in the eighth inning. With Zeider and Dougherty, who batted for Sullivan, out of the way, Walsh tripled to center and tallied a moment later when McConnell drove a clean single over second base. Lord then retired the side with a pop fly to Evers.

The Nationals started to score in the fourth when Evers started the inning with a double down the right foul line. Sheckard sacrificed, sending Evers to third and Tinker singled to center, scoring the Nationals' second baseman. In the sixth the National leaguers scored two more runs. With Brown and Evers out on infield grounders, Sheckard singled and Tinker was passed. Schulte hit safely into deep short and Tannehill, in an effort to catch Sheckard at third, threw wild, allowing Sheckard and Tinker to score. Walsh then fanned Doyle, ending the inning.

Today the teams are scheduled to

WINNIPEG AND BRANDON QUIT

Two Good Towns Are Through With Western Canada League.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 14.—The season of the Western Canada league is once more at an end, and an end that cannot be called successful in the true sense, as two of the teams found it necessary to throw up the sponge before the finish. Strange as it might seem, too, it was none other than Winnipeg and Brandon that flopped first, though these were the two that did most of the talking at the opening of the season as to what they would do and as to what the other clubs would have to do in order to please them. However, they found before the season was many weeks old that they were in trouble, and the poor crowds that turned out in both of these cities were a disgrace to the great game, especially in Winnipeg, a city that boasts of a population of 175,000 and lays claim to being a good sporting town.

The trouble in Winnipeg lies with the club ownership more than the people, and if new men were to take hold of the club in that city, and would open their purse strings a wee bit that town would easily be one of the best cities in the West for baseball. There are thousands of fans in Winnipeg, but they must be encouraged a little bit, something that has not been done in the past few years. On the other hand it seems that the club owners have done nothing to encourage the fans to turn out, yet then they stand up and cry about poor crowds. They have no one to blame but themselves and their tight-wad policy.

Dog in Manger Policy.

It is rumored that Ted Sullivan offered to put some money into the Winnipeg club and make things come around, but there was nothing stirring and it is also known that offers have been made from different sources for the Winnipeg franchise, but it was not to be. The present owners want to hold on, but they will not spend money to improve conditions.

The latest rumor afloat is that the Brown brothers, who own the Vancouver club, want to take over the Winnipeg club and make it a farm for their club in the Northwestern league; a fine state of affairs again in a city of Vaucouver's size making Winnipeg a farm. It is to be hoped that something or somebody will come along during the winter season and induce the present men in control of the Winnipeg club to let go and give some real live men a chance to make Winnipeg a good ball town, something that would not be hard to do.

The team in Winnipeg this season was formed at the eleventh hour, and the manager, Eddie Taylor, had but three or four days to gather up a team. He was fairly successful, however, and made a very creditable showing the first part of the season, but the club forced him to part with some of the players that were drawing too much money, and killed off any chance he might have had to finish in the running. It was a joke to watch the team's efforts in the last few days of play, and no one that understood the real conditions could blames them for their 'ndifference.

Schedule Plan Killed Interest.

The players in this league this year were only of average class with few exceptions, yet they played good ball. One draw-back was that the schedule was arranged so that two clubs must play together for most of the season For instance Brandon and Winnipeg were paired off, then Moose Jaw and Saskatoon and Edmonton and Calgary, and while it had the effect of cutting down traveling expenses, it also cut the gate receipts, for who wanted to go and see the same two clubs battling together day after day, especially in the case of Winnipeg and Brandon where Winnipeg could always whale the life out of Brandon? The same was to be expected in Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, but both those towns turned out fairly good crowds, although Moose Jaw did trim Saskatoon pretty regularly. Edmonton and Calgary also drew pretty well, but it is doubtful if any of the clubs made much money.

It is not likely Winnipeg and Brandon will be in the Western Canada another year. There are whispers that Regina will take Winnipeg's place and that Medicine Hat will be slipped in where Brandon fell out. This would make a neat little circuit and should be a money-maker. Regina is big enough to support a ball team, and it is time for some one to come to the front with the necessary coin to put the town on the map.

ENDS WORK AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 14.—"I am through with the American association so far as Kansas City is concerned," was the statement made by Daniel Shay, owner of the team which took second place this year. The statement was made when he was questioned regarding a story to the effect that two major league clubs are angling for his services.

Further than what he said, he did not want to discuss his plans for the future.

CONFESSIONS OF A HALFBACK

Being the More or Less True Life Story of a Gridiron Hero, From Barnyard to Campus, Written Conclusively and Exclusively for The Herald By Chassey Bolton— The Shame of the Colleges Revealed, Nothing Concealed.

CONFESH No. 2.

(By Chassey Bolton.)

Have you ever felt so doggone lonely, that it seemed that everybody had some business in the world but you? As I sat by the car window and watching the miles of Dakota prairie sweep by, once in a while the blaze of a straw stack shooting light, clear and fine out through the darkness, I thought of Pa and Ma and the pigs, back at home, and just felt miserable and without a friend in the whole big world.

I didn't take one of them sleeper things, for I wasn't going to take no unnecessary risks a riding on them trains. Anyhow Hank just give me a plain red ticket and I just sat down in the first seat I come to, and just felt miserable until them early hour habits of mine got the best of me, when I dozed off to sleep and dreamed I was back on the farm a feeding that new lamb.

It was kind of late, figuring the time by our country folks, when I kind of started and then saw where I was. We were passing a lot of little farms so doggone close together that you could heave a rock from one farm to another. Then the houses began to get closer together and we passes a big house, bigger than any barn in the whole state of North Dakota, and a man with chin whiskers and a brand new suit of store clothes, come over and looked out of the window and told me that that was where they made the binders that we farmers used.

When that young fellow with the blue suit and brass buttons came a walking through the car saying "Next stop Minneapolis, my heart come right up into my mouth and the goose chills came out all over me. I felt just like the time Ma washed my face and made me speak a piece in the town hall of Medina. I was sure scared all over, for I was going to be alone in a big city and meet education, face to face.

The train stopped right in a big dark shed and I seen a man with the chin whiskers grabbed his new valise and a sack he had tied up, and said here we was in the big city. He also asked me if I was going to take in the state fair. I was so uncertain that I would go along unsuspicious like, just as if I was feeling my way through the dark old cow barn back at home.

Too Doggone Late.

I would have given them new pair of shoes and my roan mare if I had been right back at Medina, watching the train pull out and waiting for Miss Kribs to sort out the mail. But it was too doggone late; Hank had said education needed me, and I thought to myself if a fellow was to see life in a big city, he'd got to be brave and keep his spirits up.

Most everybody was hurrying off, just like they was coming in from the early morning chores to breakfast. Seemed to me as if everyone was meeting someone. Women was grabbing other women and kissing them and carrying on, and men was shaking hands and standing around passing the time of day, and standing on one foot and looking funny; but none in that whole doggone crowd seemed to look at me.

All of a sudden I saw three men, dressed all up funny, a staring at me, looking at me, up and down, and then passing on remarks to each other. One little fellow had funny specs on, different from what I had ever seed before, and he had a little cap set right on the back of his head, with a yellow letter on it.

One of the fellows was smoking a big pipe. One fellow was pretty nigh as big as me and he had a thick red shirt on with a big yellow M right on the front. He had a little cap and long hair, and he had his hands in the pockets of his pants and kept his coat wide open.

I thought them must be some show troupe, for I had seen some show people at Medina, and I remembered how funny they was dressed up. The little fellow had his pants rolled clean up like we used to roll up our jeans in road grading time, and he had on little yellow shoes without no tops.

Here I was a-staring at them fellows, a-thinking how funny they was and wishing that Ole Knuteson was here to get off that yaw haw laugh of his, when some fellow with a little wagon he was a-pushing along the platform, yells at me, fit to burst, a-telling me to get out of the way. I must have jumped clear across them tracks backwards, I was so taken out of my wits.

That little fellow yanks that pipe out of his mouth and points it at me. "That's him! That's him," he yells to the others; "That's Chassey Bolton."

Well sir, I was just that taken back. Them three comes a-walking over to me and the big one with the red shirt and big yellow letter sticks out his hand, saying, "Are you Mr. Bolton?" I was clean taken back; I just hawed off a little and felt funny, and then this fellow with the red shirt, he says, "Put her there old man, your our man, all-right, I can tell by your shoulders; you got football a stickin' out all over you."

Well, sir, they made themselves acquainted with me. One was named Heaver. That was the little fellow with the specs with the funny little black string. I don't just remember the name of that other fellow, for he'd quit school, but he was a good fellow, and they told me that he took a big interest in education and often see'd that young fellows got jobs. That big guy with the red shirt hit me between the shoulders and asked me right away what my line was.

"Have you any bags with you?" that little fellow asked. I felt awfully foolish for a minute. I wondered if they thought I was so mighty green as to wrap my stuff up in a bundle like the men with the chin whiskers. Then all of a sudden I remembered Hank's valise and I bolts for that car, with them three right after me.

First Glimpse of City.

They helps me locate that valise and then they takes me out a little gate and up some stairs. Then my eyes lit on a big city, and I stopped a minute and stares right up at the biggest clock I ever see'd, up on the top of the depot. It was a doggone busy watching them funny wagons, and them omnibuses and them street cars, and watching people a-running up and down, that before I knew it they had pulled me right into one of them horseless wagons and the little fellow in front and turned on the steam.

Right on the corner I saw a lot of fellows in overalls and jumpers. One lump came right up in my throat. One of 'em was Bert Finger and Pete Hopkins. For one minute I had a darn good notion to buck the traces and give this education the go by. Then I remembered how hurt Hank would be, thought of how dear old Hank Wheatraiser loved his alma mater. Then that noisy buggy gave a couple of jumps and we was a whizzing up the street and I was so busy holding on to my old black Stetson that I never did get a look at those fellows who looked as if they sure was from North Dakota.

We stopped in front of a place that had funny birds in the windows and funny red fish. "This is Schlek's," said the little fellow with the specs. "This place, Chassey, is endowed by U. of M. students. In writing up on the Minnesota games George Ade once mentioned it. Football nights have made it both prosperous and pleasant. Come in and meet Oscar. We will eat and then view the campus."

They brought us eggs in cups so doggone small that I got twisted all up and spilled my egg. We had a lot things, something boiling on a funny little stove that they brought right in on the table. I was kind of shy at first, but them things tasted pretty good and then I just waded in.

"There is nothing the matter with your appetite, Chassey," said that fellow with the red shirt. Then he hit me on the back and called me "old man." I was just turning 20. "When you get halter broke I can see that you are going to be a good scout," he said.

That fellow with the red shirt gave me a fine segar and then we all goes out and gets into that buggy. Off we goes a whizzing along, over a big river, and the little fellow tells me to gaze with rapturous eyes at the noble Father of Waters. Then I see a lot of big buildings, and that man who didn't say much, but who gave the orders and paid for the breakfast, said: "Mr. Bolton that is the University of Minnesota. It is one of the leading educational institutions in the West, ranking, I believe, third in the country. But its football team ranks second to none in the West. We hold in sacred trust the reputation of our football eleven. We look to you, Mr. Bolton, to hold dear that honor. There is the armory and the gymnasium, there is Northrup field, where many a glorious victory has been won. There is Pillsbury hall, where as a matter of form, Mr. Bolton, we would ask you to report at least once a week. Remember, above everything, that Minnesota wants revenge for that beating from Michigan."

Then this fellow piled us out of the car and said he had to go to work and help support his family and his college team. But he was real nice and shook hands with me and said I ought to make a great plunging back. "Ta ta, fellows," said he, "show Mr. Bolton around and give him the spirit."

Team at the Lake.

That man with the red shirt told me the football team was out to the lake and would be in on the early train the next day. They took me through one of them big gates and showed me the spot where some fellow named Harris had stopped a fellow named Heston, right near one of them cross bar things, and like a swinging sate in the country, only bigger. "Here, Chassey," said that big fellow, "is where Mose Strathern carried three Wisconsin men across the line for a touchdown. He was one of the few centers who ever scored a touchdown. The field has been changed since then, but the medical class marked the spot with a black cat's skull bone."

"And here, Chassey, old man," said that little fellow with the squinty eyes, walking over to a place near the end of the field, "is where Charley Fee came near putting Curtis in the clear. He would, too, Chassey, if one of them Wrenn boys hadn't put Charley out of the game."

"Ten thousand people watched that game," said that big fellow, and he came over and put his hand on my shoulder "and they all stood up and cheered Fee when he walked, almost bawlin' to the sidelines."

I seemed to see them big steps, a running up from that nice green field, all filled with people; men and boys, and maybe pretty women, and something swelled up in my chest, and all to once I wondered if they would ever stand up and cheer and yell for Chassey Bolton. I felt all excited, like the time they was going to lynch the prohibition sheriff in Medina, and I turns around before I knew what I was doing, and says:

"I won't to play on this here team, by gosh, and I ain't afraid of no thrastin', neither."

They both catches me by my hands, and that little fellow takes that funny little cap off and throws it on the ground. "You're all right, Chassey, says he; "You've got the right spirit. Come on, we'll all three go to the Dewey this afternoon."

(This is the second of a series of articles that Mr. Chassey Bolton, Minnesota's most eminent football expert, is writting for The Herald. Mr. Bolton is writing several stories and the next one will appear exclusively in The Herald.)

CHASSEY BOLTON.

NEW PROFESSION IS NOW OPEN TO YOUNG MEN, IN TEACHING CARE OF THE BODY

(By Albert B. Wegener, B. S.-B. P. E. Physical Director Y. M. C. A.)

Men wanted!

Pick up your daily paper and look at the want ads for men, collectors, solicitors, bookkeepers, teamsters, roustabouts, cooks, etc.

If you need a job take your pick.

Some of these are good enough in a way for the fellow who has little ambition and who "wants but little here below nor wants that little long," but these jobs are uncertain and unsatisfactory. The only way to have a certainty is to get a good trade, get your own business, or get into a profession. But even here the places are crowded. We are informed that half of the graduates in law and medicine do not follow their profession because the places are filled, whereas the industrial worker knows all too well how overcrowded their particular trades are, of men who are waiting about ready to step in job the moment he gets an accident or sickness or any other calamity that will throw him out of a job temporarily.

It is really refreshing to learn of a line of work that is comparatively new, not overcrowded, and in which the demand is greater than the supply.

This, however, is true of one of the most important professions, "director of physical education." Formerly there were no directors of physical education. There were "instructors in gymnastics," "coaches in athletics," "boxing professors," etc.

That days, the days when brawn but not brains were magnified, when anyone who had big muscles or could do circus tricks, or could pound the hardest, was the leader of public sentiment in physical matters.

New Profession.

But brains saw the possibilities in bodily culture and took a hand in it, and out of it has produced a new science, a new profession—the care and culture of the body. As in other professions, schools have been established to train men for this profession; schools whose requirements are as high as any of the other professions, for no matter how simple the job may be, it does require at least a high school course before they can enter and in some of them men who are college graduates are studying.

The Y. M. C. A. movement has been a leader in this as in many other aggressive things. It first saw the necessity of a strong body harboring a well developed brain and spirit; in other words, a cultured educated man.

The first physical director of the Y. M. C. A. was employed in New York City 1869, forty-two years ago. For a few years the Y. M. C. A.s had to employ "Gym instructors" from any place they could pick them up, men of the same type used to taught in athletic clubs, or ex-circus men; but they found out in time that if there was to be any dignity to the work, any permanency and any real lasting good, it would be necessary to train men specially in harmony with its high conceptions. Accordingly, in the last half of the eighties, two training schools were organized, one at Springfield, Mass., and the other at Chicago. These two schools have had a steady growth in attendance and scholarship so that today they rank with any professional school. In addition there are summer schools conducted for a month each summer, at Silver Bay, N. Y., Lake Geneva, Wis., and one in Canada.

The necessity for these schools in maintaining a high standard of excellence is shown by the rapid development of the professional needs. A glance at a catalog of these schools reveals the following studies taught: Anatomy, physiology, physiology of exercise, bacteriology, hygiene, medechano-therapy, physical examinations, first aid to the injured, history and literature of physical education, philosophy and pedagogy of physical education, organization and administration of athletic, playground and gymnasium, Bible study, church history, association management, and in addition the technical side of all kinds of gymnastics, athletics, games and play. The course requires three years to complete.

There are still a large number of young men employed in smaller places who have not had the technical training at one of these schools. Many have gone from larger places where they have served as volunteer instructors under the supervision of the physical director. Every year there is a great demand for such men for the small fields. These men usually attend one of the summer schools to get a touch of the school training.

As in every other business and profession the salary and position depends upon the man, adaptability, training, personality and a hundred other things that go to make up success in general, but in the Y. M. C. A. movement the position is considered one of Christian service. None but Christian men are employed as directors, the object being to help place the question of health and recreation in association with spiritual culture. There is a recognition that a man may be healthy, strong, powerful, efficient, etc., and yet be an animal only: whereas man was intended to be a good animal that he might become "a man" in the highest sense of the word, with elevating motives and actions, pure, self-controlled, with a touch of the beautiful in his nature and a recognition of the divine in him, in short, a cultured soul.

Standard High.

Naturally the standard is rather high and the technical requirements many, but the man with an altruistic spirit who has the other qualifications will find in this movement a challenge to his abilities like few other opportunities. Two teachers in this line must not only be expert in many lines of sport but must know the intricate rules of them all. They must be organizers and administrators, so as to keep a large membership busy and give them what they need, to promote the cause of health and recreation in the community, to be an expert upon whom others may call for advice and help in social and physical work, in playgrounds, clubs, societies, schools, industrial and commercial clubs, etc. They must have brains enough to enjoy art, music, literature and indeed be able to do something creditable in each of them. They must be public speakers, not only in his specific line but also in Bible study and Christian topics. They must be familiar with much medical knowledge. There is scarcely any other profession that requires such an all-round versatile man as the physical directorship in our large associations. Naturally the field is limited, but not overcrowded. But there is also a demand for many average directors who have capabilities.

Of course, the association is only one field of work in physical training. There is scarcely a school or college without a physical director. Besides these are scores of cities where playgrounds are conducted, numerous athletic clubs. These do not require as varied a training as the Y. M. C. A., but here again the big places are held by the best all round men. There are many medically trained men in these fields, as well as in many Y. M. C. A.s, and the tendency in colleges, schools and public institutions is to incline toward medical men, especially for men in the most responsible positions. There are, however, specialists in this profession as in all others and even though a man may not have the education by which he could get to the top, many are needed in the lesser fields and for the young man who is a vital, vigorous being with a good heart and a cheerful disposition, there is enough opportunity in some branch of this profession to challenge his best.

Every director is constantly besieged by presidents of normal schools of physical training to keep an eye open for likely young men for this profession.

Duluth ought to have several young men who ought to see the opportunity of this as a life work. It is, of course, impossible in this brief space to give a clear idea of the possibilities and requirements, but the writer covets the privilege of personally talking with any young men who are interested.

It is hoped that something may be done here this winter to start several young men in a satisfying life work. To this end the management of the physical section of the local association has planned to start a class for prospective physical directors. This class will meet one or two nights a week for theory and practice, studying some of the most important subjects mentioned above, while all the young man who is working to "try out." The writer will be glad to meet any such young men.

THE LOSS OF STAR PLAYERS WILL MAKE SEASON'S FOOTBALL CLOSER

This is no ordinary year on the football field for the colleges and universities. More games are to be played than have been in some other seasons. Those in charge of the football situation are satisfied that players can take part more frequently in contests than they have in the past, owing to the general openness of the game. For that reason the schedules in some places have been extended with the sanction of experts and teachers.

An unusual condition exists in the Eastern college circuit, owing to the fact that Harvard and Princeton are to meet for the first time in fourteen years. There will be a three-cornered basis of comparison between three Eastern universities, something which the football enthusiasts have not been able to make for years.

The last time that Harvard and Princeton played together the Tigers won from their Cambridge rivals. It was quite a game, for most of the contests which were played in those days were filled with spirit and determination. Some of the old Princeton men like to recall it, when they meet their Harvard friends, and the chances are good that when the crimson faces the orange and black in the first game after the "resumption of hostilities," Princeton will be represented by one of the largest crowds of college men which will see any contest during the year, except that between Princeton and Yale.

Michigan's Variety.

Michigan will play Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania this year, which will add to the interest in intersectional football. The games of Michigan with Pennsylvania and Syracuse have become features which are looked forward to with a great deal of interest, and there would probably be twice the attendance were it not for the fact that these games happen to be scheduled on dates which there are important matches between Eastern teams. It is the first time that Michigan has visited Cornell and there is some ground to believe that Cornell will have a better eleven than that with which it finished last year.

Interest in the preliminary season promises to be greater than it was last year, but when, on Nov. 4, Harvard and Princeton play at Princeton, the real football of the year will begin, and from that time until the end of the season the crowds will probably be larger at all games than they have been in any year.

It is well known that there were not so many spectators present in general at football in 1910 as in 1909. No one seems to be able to account for it except that the new game bothered the old-timers or that there was a little reaction after the thrills of other years.

Harvard's Team.

Harvard lost seven of its players in 1910. They are Capt. Withington and McKay, tackles; Minot, guard; Perkins and P. D. Smith, centers; Corbett, halfback, and Leslie, fullback.

At one time and another all of these players distinguished themselves on the field for the crimson. McKay was one of the great tackles of the year. Withington was a steady, sure and reliable player, and while Minot was a converted back he was a strong and active player and filled in well at guard.

This year's team has some good material, and with Percy Haughton to handle it there is reason to believe that it will be almost on a par with the team of 1910. At quarterback, which is a pretty important place with Harvard, there are Wigglesworth, Potter and Gardner, of the team of 1910, to try for the position, and the chances are that all three of them will be played at one time or another.

The material in the back field seems very promising, and if Harvard is not supplied with a fast back field it will be a bigger surprise than the outcome of the games last season between Yale and Harvard. With Wendell, Campbell, Morrison, Graustein, who, by the way, may be one of the great back field players of the season; Frothingham, Pierce and Tryon to work upon, no coach is better equipped with back field candidates than Haughton.

Line Hit Hardest.

In the line the hardest blow was hit by graduation. While the center position was well filled in 1910, the tackles were exceptionally well filled, and there will be the hardest fight for Harvard to make. Usually they are able to get good material for the ends at Harvard, and coach it well by the time the important games begin, so that Harvard should not lack strength in those positions.

Wendell's work in the game last year against Yale brought him to the mention of the All-American jury. He is certainly a wonderful ground gainer, and if he makes the eleven this year, and is able to utilize his strength as well as he did in 1910, or perhaps better, he may be one of the season's sensations.

Smith, who played end in 1910, is eligible to play this year. Peabody probably will slip from the freshman team into the varsity, and if he improves will be a hard man to elude.

Beebe, Goodie and Willets are players who are likely to make the line at one position or another. Willetts is especially promising.

Some of the experts are inclined to believe that the chances of the team are not as good, as a whole, as they were in 1910, because the team of last year was largely composed of veteran material, and knew the game thoroughly.

That may be. The strength of the back field is such, however, and the probable strength of the ends and quarterback good enough to warrant the belief that Harvard is likely to play almost as trying a game—trying for the other fellows—as in 1910.

It will take the strongest of defense to beat it.

Yale's Good Fortune.

Much of the Yale team returns this season. That means a great deal. Paul and Scully, both players of a high standard in 1910, will be back, and so will Tomlinson.

McDevitt, who gave promise of being a sensational guard, is certain to make the team. Childs will probably be the other guard. The hardest task before the coaches is to fill the position of center at which Morris shone through all last fall. He was one of the very best centers who have been developed under the new rules. Wolfe, Cooney and Ketchum are three players who are coming from the freshman team to try to make the varsity this year.

They are worth keeping an eye on. All three are good. Ketchum was a star with the freshmen, and Wolfe is one of those long, rangy fellows with a lot of freedom in action, something like Goebel, who was one of Yale's best guards.

Kilpatrick, of course, is lost from the end and he was perhaps the player who stood above all others in 1910. Brooks is gone, but there are Bomeisler and Vaughan to try for the positions and both are players of speed. All they need is the regular work of varsity to see if they are fitted for the more important games.

Carpenter, Young Roweyn and Munsil are exceptionally promising football players; so are Foss, Dunn and Gatins.

The team will have the service of one of the very best generals on the football field at the present time. He is Howe, captain and quarterback. He handled his team superbly last year. He was not active in the game at the start of the season because of slight indisposition and the fact that he was tried at fullback, but once he took the command, Yale began to play with the fighting spirit for which the college is famous, and while not able to beat Harvard, the fact that the score was tied was considered to be almost equivalent to victory for Yale, as Harvard was unable to cross the goal line of her old rival.

Indications are abundant that Yale will play more of a running and kicking game than in 1910. The material is not bulky and the coaches will plan to take advantage of the speed of their charges in preference to trying to develop their attack from the standpoint of strength.

Like every other Yale eleven, it is a team which will bear watching all of the year. Owing to the fact that some of its system of play is likely to be new, there may be a few surprises sprung on the rivals of the Elis.

Good Men at Princeton.

Princeton will have nine of the younger class men who started the game against Yale, as only MacGregor and Sparks graduated last June. There are three of the present senior class among these and six juniors. The freshman team has also splendid material. The freshmen lost only one game during its season.

Princeton's envious rivals say that it is always a "next year team." This season it may be more of a "next year team" than some would prefer to have it. It appears to be an eleven which will play better football, if the coaching system works satisfactorily, than any Tiger team of the last two or three years.

The freshmen who go into the Princeton eleven are perhaps as high class as any football players of the junior grade in 1910. After watching them carefully in their games, the impression was gained that they would be a very hard lot for any eleven to encounter in 1911, and so, if they develop and improve as they can be expected to develop and improve, they should be a wonderfully clever aid to their varsity this season.

The chances are that the game will be changed at Princeton this year. It was the impression last fall that they had not worked out the right theory to try to win. Too much of their attack was played with only one man to advance the ball. There seemed to be an idea that concentrated assistance for one back would accomplish more than a diversity of plays. The result was that Princeton's game was quickly diagnosed by those who watched it, and possibly that is one reason why the Tigers were no more successful than they proved to be.

Another fault with Princeton was in the system of using the ends, who were so far away from the defense that they were repeatedly boxed and turned when they should have been helping the line.

Baker and Pendleton, with Vaughn to assist, will be a dangerous backfield from the start of the season, and will make trouble for Yale and Harvard. The indications are that the orange and black will be a harder team for Yale to beat than it was last season, and it will give Harvard a very stiff argument.

Pennsylvania Lost Star Center.

Although Pennsylvania lost rather heavily by graduation, the team appears as if it will have a prosperous season this year. Pennsylvania has been clamoring loudly for a team of the old-fashioned type, but it looks now as if there will never be any more teams of the old fashioned type.

The hardest blow which Pennsylvania received was the graduation of Cozens, who played center. With Morris of Yale he easily led all centers one year ago. Marks is out of the line and that includes about all of the changes in the line for this season.

The new players are to be be drawn from the freshman tea mand it is certain the Quakers will not lack for men for the backfield, all of them somewhat promising players. Barr, Harrington and Minds will try for the back field and there are Crawford, Rogers and Patterson to be considered for the line.

As usual, the Pennsylvania eleven will be schooled to meet Michigan and Cornell. Conklin, Wells, McMillan, Quinn, Bogle and Thompson seem to be about all that is left of the veteran forces of the Michigan eleven.

Cornell and Its Coaches.

Cornell, which is also to meet Michigan this year, will start with a coaching system which, it is believed, will bear some result. The great trouble with Cornell is that lack of system on the part of the coaches has been sending a good eleven out year after year which seems to have all the possibilities of winning, and on the field appears to lack just enough in the game to be successful.

Last season there was strength in the eleven, and there were moments when it played football up to the standard of the larger universities, only to make some simple blunder which lost for the team all the distance which it had gained.

However, last year showed progress, and as this season the same staff of coaches will have the players in charge there is hope that Cornell will come through with a team which will make a record that will cause Ithacans to look up and be proud.

BONESETTER REESE IS A HELP TO BALL PLAYERS

Who is Bonesetter Reese of Youngstown?

The name appears more often than any other of the professions on the sporting pages and yet few people are aware of the "who," "where" and "whyfore" of the same.

Bonesetter Reese is an institution. He is the last noise in his line, and his line is contributing first aid to the peeved arms and exasperated joints that befall the pitchers and batsman of the big leagues. John D. Reese, M. D., is his entire monicker, and for ten years he has been the balm of Gilead to the mound demons whose wings have become afflicted with symtoms of anything from neurasthenia to common everyday soreness.

He has removed the lurking ills from the wing of almost every big league star and he has helped win more than one pennant for more than one team. Among the distinguished visitors who have made haste to the Bonesetter for assistance are Chance, Reulbach and Bransfield of the Cubs. A majority of the Pirates have stormed his doors—O'Toole, Wilson, Camnitz, Gibson, Leach, Clarke and the mighty Hans Wagner.

Bresnahan and Golden of the Cardinals have hied them to Youngstown for repairs.

Looks After the Giants.

The ravaging Giants, Marquard, Drucke, Wiltse, and Ames, have beat it thither for drydock attendance. Magee and Moore of the Phillies, Scanlon and Bergen of Brooklyn, and Cy Young and Flaherty of the Boston Rustlers complete the roll call of the National league diamond pastimers who have at one time or another called upon the subtile wisdom of the celebrated Bonesetter to mend their shattered wings and paws, fins, mitts, pins and kicks.

The American league players who have been treated by Reese include Lange, Sullivan, Walsh and Dougherty of the White Sox, Wallace and Pelty of the Browns, Hemphill of the Yanks, Lajoie and Turner of the Naps, McBride, Elberfeld, Gessler and Hughes of the Senators, Mullin of Detroit and Lord of the omnipotent Athletics.

From this extended list it may be seen at one slant that Bonesetter Reese is not a jest of the irresponsible sport scribe, but a real and sometimes very, very vital element in the game. The bonesetter has in his decade of practice made his name one synonomous with hope and more hope among the managers of the league. The owner who squanders buckets of gold on some preceious pitching expert and then discovers that his tinsel-lined bargain has been nursing a family skeleton, smile for sore arm, does not surround himself with a blue funk until he has dispatched his gold brick to Dr. John D. Reese for a verdict.

This is exampled in the recent ailing of Marty O'Toole. Barney Dreyfus after detaching himself from the well-known vast quantity of money must have been a happy man when Marty told him that there was a disturbance among the tendons of his, Mart's, diamond-studded twirling arm. Dreyfuss lost no time in sending his new pitcher to the bonesetter and the bonesetter swept Marty's splendid wing with one sweep and pronounced it O. K.—bill to follow.

Some times the bonesetter has been beset with a clamoring manager just before a world series was going to be pulled off. The manager had a pitcher in tow an dthe pitcher's arm was on the brink and the manager explained that if the pitcher's arm wasn't revived and absolutely mended in three days—bloole—they'd lose the pennant. Whereat Bonesetter Reese summoned his trusty hands and—presto—the pitcher was sound again and the manager won the pennant. This is a sort of synopsis of the agitated life the Youngstown bone repairer has lived since he became a last resort and final straw in the eyes of the big league magnates.

It might be supposed, with all these statements, that Dr. Reese attended a college of medicine and graduated with honors, later went to Deutschland and gathered more learning. No. Twenty years ago the bonesetter worked in a mill and earned enough by the discharge of such duties as befell him, in this capacity, to scantily clothe and feed a wife and five children.

Reese was born in Wales fifty-six years ago. When 2 2years old he migrated to Youngstown and followed the vocation of a mill hand. In those days safety appliances were not very numerous. The result was that accidents often overtook workingmen, especially in such a place as the one in which the bonesetter labored. Reese, the mill hand, became interested in anatomy and studied the art on the sly. He was allowed to witness operations and soon became rather expert as a surgeon.

Watches Doctors at Work.

He was made understudy to many physicians hastily summoned in times of stress and he burned midnight oil trying to acquire enough wisdom to become a real doctor. Later he did. The bonesetter affirms that from the beginning he had a sort of a knack for placing his expert forefinger on the ailing spot of his client or locating his patient's trouble at the first poke. People began calling on Reese to straighten out kinks and unite knots in their system and at length the "doctor" focused his attention on the baseball end of his profession.

Gradually his reputation burst the borders of Youngstown and citizens with all manner of dislocated joints applied for the wizard's touch. Injured people of every description called and were treated.

Just as the bonesetter was getting for himself a great name the medical profession made one of its dictatory moves and pronounced Reese as an impostor because he couldn't produce a college diploma as an alibi. The bonesetter said sticks and stones may dislocate my bones, but allegations and innuendos as showered upon me by the medical profesh will never discommode me, and continued his practices as an "impostor." Revenge was his ere long. The bonesetter "showed up" scores of licensed doctor by making good where they had failed, and Youngstown began to figure on the map other than a geographical point. Then he put in a bid for the necessary diploma and went through the examinations thrust at him with great fluency. He was given the document and now he is a genuine M. D. and the most renowned bonesetter in the country.

SOME OF THE BALL PLAYERS ON WHOM THE EYES OF THE COUNTRY ARE FOCUSED

JOHN McGRAW A BORN GENERAL OF BASEBALL

New York, Oct. 14.—John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, is one of the foremost exponents of baseball at this moment, as he has been for many years. He is, without a doubt, one of the brainiest and best managers the game ever produced, being a born leader of men and having besides, a knowledge of baseball possessed by few, if any, of his contemporaries.

To "Muggsy" McGraw, more than to anyone else, belongs the credit for giving the national game the great popularity it now enjoys in New York. Three pennants, emblematic of the National League championship, will have been brought to New York at the close of this season by the clever lads under McGraw's leadership, and no one in New York would attempt to deny him any of the honors which have come to him as a result of this achievement.

Born of a fighting race, McGraw has fought his way to the top and has held on to a place among the top-notchers many times through sheer grit. His own aggressiveness, a strong feature of his personality as shown on the diamond, inspires his soldiers of the ash and horsehide to greater deeds than they thought themselves capable of. Seldom has the little leader of the Giants given up a game or retired—of his own volition—from the coaching lines until the last man was out in the ninth inning.

McGraw a Close Student.

But, with all his aggressiveness and fighting qualities, McGraw, on and off the diamond, is a close student of the American national game. Though he, perhaps, knows more of the fine points of baseball than any other manager, he devotes the same energy to learning more about the great game that the philosopher devotes to his favorite science. Active and spirited as he appears on the field, the Giants' manager is really studying every play and every player, even during the hottest inning of the game.

The team with which McGraw fought his way to the pennant of the National league this season was built up by himself. A rare judge of ball players, he inspires each man as does the ideal teacher, and through his instruction many a star has developed, who, without "Muggsy's" careful tutoring, might have plodded his way through history a mediocre ball player, whose potentialities would never have become known.

McGraw knows the value of every ball player in the league. Seldom it can be said, has he got the worst of a trade of players, and frequently the astute leader is credited with having "put over one" on the club with which he traded. Quick at seeing what natural gifts a ball player has, McGraw estimates rapidly in what ways the player can be improved and made more valuable and then begins his training.

Several ball players on the Giants' pay roll could have proved disappointments to other managers and it is likely that several of those men now preparing to go into a series for baseball's highest honors would have been turned loose by other leaders as worthless.

Witness in this connection the case of Marquard. Marquard had gone through the minor leagues—the Central and the American association—like a streak of lightning. His last year with Indianapolis focused the attention of the managers, but McGraw induced the New York club to buy him, $11,000 being paid for the southpaw, it was said. For two years Marquard failed to come up to expectations and many a fan and manager scoffed at the New York club, which they, said, had been stung in the purchase of the "$11,000 beauty."

But McGraw, with his insight into a player's ability, knew he had a ball pitcher and never loosened his grip upon Marquard. The southpaw's work this year showed that McGraw was right and that Marquard was not "through" when Indianapolis sold him.

Ever since McGraw has had charge of the Giants they have been a great attraction from the viewpoint of the man who looks through the box office. Crowds follow the Giants. In New York the fans look upon the club as one of the city's institutions with a capital "I," and on the road New York's team has played to "big money" probably more than any other club in the National league, with the possible exception of the Cubs, during the last few years. And McGraw himself is one of the attractions the fans come to see in every town on the circuit.

McGraw took his higher education in baseball under Ned Hanlon, one of the game's greatest professors, at Baltimore. Hanlon turned a collection of stars into a machine the like of which has seldom been seen in the history of the game. McGraw studied his own part every day with Hanlon as tutor, but all the time he was studying his tutor's part, and it may be said that now the pupil is better than his teacher ever was.

McGraw is 38 years of age. He was born at Truxton, N. Y., and played his first professional baseball when but 17 years old. He entered the game with the Olean club of the New York-Pennsylvania league, then—1890—and the next year played shortstop on the Cedar Rapids club of the Illinois-Iowa league. It was then and there that Hanlon discovered him and brought him East to Baltimore, where he became the country's star third baseman.

McGraw was made manager of the St. Louis Nationals just before the war that gave birth to the expanded American league. From St. Louis he went to Baltimore to take charge of the American's club in that city. Soon, however, he left the Maryland metropolis and was appointed leader of the Giants.

HOW EVERS VIEWS THE GAME FROM THE BENCH

(By Johnny Evers.)

If the average American youth were to be asked what he desired to be in baseball it is a safe bet that a big majority of them would answer, "I would like to be a big leaguer." Such is the ambition of nearly every boy or young man who has ever handled a baseball and, in these days when baseball has reached its present high standard, it is an ambition not to be sneered at.

After playing professional baseball for nearly a decade and all but a few months with the same club, the Chicago Cubs of the National league, I find there are many interesting incidents that I could recall; little things that have occurred on the ball field that are interesting to me as I recount them and which I know would be of interest to the fans. But there is one period of my connection with baseball, which to me seems the most interesting, and that period dates back to the time before I entered professional baseball as a means of livelihood, "When I sat on the bleachers."

To many this may sound strange, but when I say it I do not forget the many notable contests that I have participated in, nor do I forget the fact that the team I have always been associated with has been a top-notcher, a four-time pennant winner in the National league and the winner of two world's championships. With all the success that has come to me in my baseball career I have never lost sight of the fact that I was once only one of the thousands of fans, who have made baseball the game it is.

From the Bleachers.

There is a great deal more in viewing a ball game from the bleachers than from the grandstand or the choicest box seat of a great stadium. In the boxes or the grandstand you will usually find the fans who take in the ball games as a diversion from business or other cares or those who may be interested in a certain player or team. But when you sit on the bleachers you cannot help touching elbows with that rabid bunch of fans, who pick apart every play that is made, who condemn the home or visiting players for not doing this or that, who, from baseball instinct, can tell almost what every player of either team has done at the bat without the aid of a score card, and who invariably know the batting average of any player you chance to mention. If all the baseball sense of the bleachers at any big league game could be centered in the brains of a baseball team I think that club would be the best thinking aggregation ever put together. In my opinion, if half the people who have never had the pleasure of occupying a seat on the bleachers knew what they were missing, they would abandon their grandstand or box seats occasionally and mingle with the bleacherites. On the bleachers every play that is made in a game is replayed and replayed many different ways, not only as it was executed, but as it should have been according to the way of thinking of the bleacherites. And don't think for a minute that these bleacherites do not have the right dope many a time.

Since becoming a big league player I have sat on the bleachers, although not a great many times, but I have been there, and only a few weeks ago, upon the occasion of a visit to my home in Troy, I found just as much pleasure and felt just as much at home on the bleachers as formerly. Lately I have also viewed a great many games from the grandstand, and, after playing in so many championship contests, I have learned new lessons from my experiences as a spectator both in the grandstand and bleachers. From these points of vantage the games look much easier. From the side lines many more openings can be seen than when actually playing a game. This arises from the fact that when engaged in a game a player has but one chance on a single play, an opportunity, so to speak. He must grasp that opportunity in an instant, he must have thought beforehand, for if he waits to think, when the opportunity presents itself his chance is gone before he gets through thinking. Did you ever stop to consider the time it takes to make one play in a game? Try it and you will not only be surprised, but the game will become more interesting. It will show you that a player has not much time to think once a play is started and what thinking must be done must be done beforehand and quickly, because the wrong think may change the entire complexion of the game.

From the sidelines the spectators are not subjected to this nerve-wrecking experience. They may figure out what play is going to be made, but if it does not turn out that way what difference does it make to the fan? On the other hand, if a player makes a mistake in his play it is at once apparent to the player as well as to every spectator, but the latter without considering what might have happened to him or any one else had he been in the player's place, starts condemning the player, and I have seen many games where a player would make one mistake and because it proved fatal a chorus of "Take him out" would immediately burst forth.

Different Viewpoints.

Thus, from my experience, both as a player and a spectator, I can now readily see why so much criticism is handed out by the press and the public. Playing baseball and looking at it are two vastly different things. If the player succeeds, all well and good. He is a hero. If he miscues or fails to take advantage of the chances that come his way, why then it is a different thing and all sorts of names are applied to him. And in a majority of these cases the player is not deserving of all the things said to him and about him, for there is nothing that hurts a player more than to make an error, either of execution or judgment, at a critical time. That is one reason why the bleacherites should not be hasty to get after a player when he takes chances and fails. Instead of ridiculing him words of encouragement ought to be given him. When a player feels that the fans have confidence in him, the confidence in himself will be increased.

I was especially interested in the last world's series between the Athletics and the Cubs, not merely because the Cubs were playing, but because I had an opportunity for the first time in my life of seeing the two best teams in the country battle for honors. It was the first world's series the Cubs played in that I was unable to get into the games, due to the accident which befell me near the close of the National league season. However, I watched those games with more than ordinary interest, for it gave me a chance of studying the plays of two great baseball machines, just as I had studied the minor league players "When I Sat on the Bleachers." In those world's series games I saw numerous plays and openings that, perhaps, would not have been apparent to me had I been playing. This only went to strengthen my belief that more can be seen in a baseball game from the side lines than when one is actually engaged in the game. These lessons I have learned from being a spectator have been valuable, and hardly a day has gone by that I have not used some play or other that I had learned or figured out from the side lines. The more I studied the game the more I liked it, and when I had an opportunity of using a play I had planned I felt as though I was well repaid.

Another incident that has been of intense interest to be while watching the games from the side lines has been to see other fellows in action. I have carefully watched Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and all the other great players of the present day and, in my opinion, Cobb is so far ahead of them all that it would be useless for me to try to make comparisons. I know it will cause some surprise, and to many it may sound like a friendly boost, but candidly, in my estimation, Frank Chance was the only real rival Cobb ever had, all things considered, for being the greatest player of them all.

VASTLY DIFFERENT ARE J. McGRAW AND C. MACK

The dashing, fighting, quick-thinking leader of the Giants against the cool, crafty and deliberate chief of the Athletics——

In this comparison we come to another problem almost as vital, if not quite so, as any other one factor in the series.

It would be almost impossible to find any two types more widely separated than the two great commanders who will direct the attack and defense of Giants and Athletics.

Upon the generalship and directive ability of these two leaders the issue of battle may swing more than once. Should either fail at a critical spot and the other be keen enough to take instant advantage of the situation, the tide could easily be turned then and there, and with such force that a heavy handicap might be swept away or a short lead converted into a certainty of victory.

On the Firing Line.

McGraw leads in person. He will be in the front of every charge, leading each attack. He will be in the rear of any impending rout, covering up his retreating forces. He believes in framing his plan of battle as the game goes along. He hopes to be ready for any turn that might come up, ready to shift his attack or defense at a moment's notice. For this reason he doesn't care to obtain any advance line upon Athletic play.

It will be snap judgment with him straight through. He has faith in his ability to detect opposing weakness or strength after the game gets under way, and thereafter will direct his campaign in this direction.

Mack directs from his tent. He is not to be seen while the fight is in progress, largely in advance—maps out his battle plans before the engagement begins—and stands for the greater part upon this preparation.

For several weeks his aids or lieutenants have been watching Giant play, while he came in person to see McGraw's team at work against the Phillies. From these reports and his own judgment he will frame his program, or the most of it, before the first contest begins.

Two Types Explained.

McGraw is the more rushing fighter of the two. In giving commands or in administering reproof, his eyes fairly snap and flash, while his voice cuts and slashes like a whip. When his people are at bat he is the first coach upon the line, either at first or at third, as the occasion demands; and, from that point on he is master of ceremonies, not only signalling and directing baserunner and batsman, but close at hand to praise or blame his player after the play.

Mack, watching from the cover of the bench, leaves more to his lieutenant, and reserves comment until after the inning is over. He has but little to say, and then issues his orders as quietly as if he were ordering a bowl of soup or requesting a glass of water. His leadership is all repressive, held within.

OFFICIAL PROGRAM IS ISSUED FOR OLYMPIAD

New York, Oct. 14.—The official program of the Olympic games at Stockholm next year has just been issued and no more detailed publication of its kind could well be imagined. It covers every branch of sport that will be handled by the Swedes, and along with giving the event, the date of closing of the entries, the rules of competition are also included, as well as a statement about the nature of the prizes.

The section of the program which concerns America most is that which touches on the track and field competitions which are scheduled to start on Saturday, July 8, and continue till July 15, the Sundays included. Entries for these contests must be made before July 6 by European countries, but outsiders such as America, Australia, South Africa, Canada, and China will have till June 14 to send in the names of their teams. No telegraphed entries will be accepted and those sent in writing must be very plain. The dates of closing for the gymnastics, swimming, wrestling and fencing will be the same as for the athletics, but the entries for the cycle road race around Lake Malar close on June 7. The modern pentahlon or all-round competition will take place on July 7 to 11 and the entries for that close on June 1 or June 9 for America and the other countries outside of Europe.

The most peculiar thing about the program is the dimensions given of the running track. Reports had it here at one time that it would be a full third of a mile and correspondingly big otherwise. Such is not the case. It measures 418 yards in circumference and will be 32 feet at the broadest point, which will be the finish of all races. The narrowest point on the back stretch will be 22 feet wide, and the curves, which will be easy, will be banked up about 18 inches. On the infield there will be plenty of room for the weights and jumping, as it will be 178 yards long by 73 broad.

Though the prizes are limited to first, second and third in the different events, it is evident that the Swedes are not going to let exceptional all around merit go unrewarded even though a man should not happen to land in the money. If any competitor should do well in two or three competitions he will receive a diploma. It is said that the referee will decide on the men's merits and in most cases the referees will be Swedes. Here and there, though, in odd events, there may be a few officials drafted from the outside nations. Of course, a commissioner from each nation will be on the ground, and he will have a voice in the international jury in case of disputes and objections. With regard to objection over contests the protest must be lodged not more than an hour after it takes place and each objection must be accompanied by 20 Swedish kroner.

The Events.

Since the first athletic program was issued it met with some changes, but the following is the final list sanctioned by the international Olympic committee:

ST. PAUL CLUBS CONSOLIDATE

Capitol City and Nushka Curling Rinks Form One Organization.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—The two big St. Paul curling organizations, the Capitol City and the Nushka clubs, have decided to merge. The new club is to be known as the St. Paul Curling club and will have a magnificent new clubhouse to be erected on the site of the present Nushka club.

It is improbable that the new rink will be completed in time for occupation this winter, but it is hoped to have it finished in time for the opening of the 1913 season and if possible the official opening will be celebrated with the Northwestern bonspiel which is to be held at Duluth this year. The club intends sending a strong delegation to compete in the Duluth meet and they will be selected from the best curlers in the clubs.

EVERS THINKS THIRD BASE JOB IS HARD

Johnny Evers had the following to say in the Chicago American the other day about the relative difficulty of playing second and third base.

"Right now it strikes me that there is more luck in playing third base. You get them or you don't. I mean by that the hot shots. When one of those line drives or swift bounders come at you there isn't time to play the ball. You leap and knock the ball down if you can. If it isn't right at you it is past you so quickly that you can't get a square crack at it.

"Playing the third base is pretty much of a gamble. If the balls happens to be hit right at you, then you get it. Otherwise there is nothing doing.

"Down on second it is different. There you have to play the ball, come in or go back. That's one condition which makes the play at third more difficult than at second.

Inside Stuff at Second.

"There is a whole lot more inside baseball at second than there is at third. You play in for a bunt or you play deep. There is no moving to right or left. When you are at second you have more opportunities. You study the batter and you play him accordingly. Maybe you take a step or two nearer second or a step or two nearer first.

"Nothing like that at third. You play in for a bunt or you play back for a clout.

"When it comes to throwing, third base is by far more difficult than second. That is where you take the ball and return it on the double steal. You have the same throw, or rather a throw from the same distance, every time that you handle a ball at third.

"And the difficulty is not in making the throw so much as it is that a man scarcely has enough to do to keep his arm in shape. Now, take that recent game between the Cubs and the Cardinals. I did not have a chance all afternoon.

Hard on Arm.

"It is this which makes it so much easier for a man to injure his arm playing third. We'll say that he goes six or seven innings without a ball being hit at him. In the eighth or ninth he grabs the ball and chucks to first. The chances of injuring his arm on a play like that are greater, for the reason that his arm has become cold and the muscles have had time to stiffen since the practice.

"Down at second base a man probably has handled the ball twenty times. He hasn't had that number of assists, of course, but he has relayed the ball from the outfield and has handled it in other plays until there is no comparison between the times that a man handles the sphere at second and third. The result is that the man at second has kept his arm in shape throughout the game.

"After playing both positions, it is my opinion that second base overshadows third as a place for inside baseball. There is where a man has opportunities of applying his knowledge of batteries. It is the position where he can play the ball as well as the batter. At third a man attempts to stab a fierce drive. If he succeeds, all well and good, and if he doesn't, he can turn and watch the outfielder chase it. It's hit or miss."

FAIR WEATHER FOR FIRST GAME OF SERIES

New York, Oct. 14.—Cool and slightly cloudy weather is the prospect this afternoon for the opening game of the world's baseball series. Early this morning a thin veil of clouds tempered the brilliance of the sun. It was superb football weather but a trifle too cold for ideal baseball. The temperature at 8 o'clock was 51 degrees.

The rival managers, McGraw of the New York Nationals and Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans had their word to say early today:

McGraw never predicts and seldom makes any claims before hand. "It looks to me as if it were going to be a nice day," was his cautious comment this morning. "You want to know about the Giants?" he inquired politely. A pause and then he said: "Well, they are ready. Every man on my team is fit and I am satisfied with them. I don't predict a victory in the series. It is a bad habit, and besides, I am superstitious."

Connie Mack was likewise pleased with the weather. "A fine day," he declared, "and that augurs good luck for Philadelphia. My team is prepared for the world's championship series except for one man, but I am making no excuses. If we are beaten it will be because the Giants are better."

MATHEWSON HAS NEVER LOST A POST-SEASON GAME

"Christy" Mathewson, familiarly known as "Big Six," has pitched in six post-season championship games and has won them all—a remarkable record, indeed.

In 1905 the Giants and Athletics fought for the world's championship. Five games were played, and every one of them was a shutout. Mathewson won three of the four games that went to the Giants by scores of 3 to 0, 9 to 0 and 2 to 0.

In the series last fall between the Giants and Yankees, "Christy" also won three games, thereby once again proving himself one of the greatest pitchers in all the history of baseball.

Mathewson loves to tell of how he broke into the game. He was born in Fractorville, Pa., thirty years ago. From his early boyhood days he loved baseball.

"And in those days," said "Christy" in a recent interview, "I would cheerfully walk six or seven miles to earn a dollar by pitching a game of ball."

Fractorville had another point of distinction other than being the birthplace of "Christy" Mathewson. It was and is the home of Keystone academy, a preparatory school affiliated with Bucknell college.

Mathewson's great pitching helped him to get through Keystone academy, thence into Bucknell college, and from there, by slow degress, into the ranks of the major league.

"Addie" Joss once said of Mathewson: "I care not what anybody may say, 'Christy' is the greatest pitcher that the game has ever known."

"I'll never forget the day I went up to New York to join the team," said "Christy" recently. "It was July 17, 1900, and when I arrived at the grounds Fred Knowles met me and introduced me to George Davis, who then was the manager. My salary was to remain at $90 a month, and I was to be returned to Norfolk if I failed to make good.

"Well, I waited around on the bench for several days. Then one day we were playing Brooklyn, and McGinnity was pitching for them. Win Mercer, our pitcher, weakened and they sent me in. I made a poor showing as a pitcher, but I figured that when I came to bat I would open their eyes. Down at Norfolk I had played in the outfield when not pitching, and I considered myself a great hitter. I went up to the plate and McGinnnity threw me one of those underhand up-shoots. I nearly broke my back trying to connect with it. All told, he threw me three of those balls and then I walked back with my bat in my hand and my heart in my throat. And I want to tell you right here that no pitcher ever lived who had a ball as wonderful as that one of McGinnity's.

"A few days later I was given my first trial at a full game and lost. Clark Griffith of Chicago beat me, 6 to 5. That wasn't so bad, but still some way I was a failure as a big league pitcher.

"That fall I went back to college, and when New York's reserve list was published I failed to find my name in it.

"Then I knew I was a failure. I had not made good and was completely discouraged.

The Rusie "Trade."

"One day that winter a friend told me that he had seen my name in the Cincinnati reserve list. Later on New York took me back on its reserve list and Rusie was transferred to the list of reserves held by Cincinnati, and that's how the old story originated that I had once been traded to New York for Rusie.

"But in the meantime, while I still thought I had been cast off by New York, I went down to Philadelphia and signed a contract with Connie Mack to pitch with the Athletics the next season for $1,200. And this unintentional blunder got me in the worst trouble of my life. Those were the days when the new American league was raiding all the old National clubs. Two weeks later New York heard of what I had done and sent for me. When I got to the office Andrew Friedman told me that he would get out an injunction, blacklist me for life and put me out of baseball forever.

"Completely discouraged and disheartened, I wrote Connie Mack a letter asking if he would personally guarantee me half of my salary which would of course, make me sure of my next year's schooling. But he never answered my letter, and then I felt more out of heart than ever.

"Not knowing what else to do, I went back to Friedman, and much to my surprise, got a contract for the 1901 season at $1,500, the difference in the price being due to the fact that the National league's season was longer than the American's. "I'll never forget the opening of that season.

"Brooklyn had won the pennant the year before and we were to open the season with them. Late in the afternoon of the day before the first game I was told that I was to pitch. I had come far from making good the year before and I really felt that I was not fast enough for the big league. I was so nervous and worried that I could scarcely sleep that night. The next day it rained. There was no game, so my agency was extended twenty-four hours longer. Well, it rained for four successive days and by the end of that time I was just about a wreck. But I went in and pitched against Wild Bill Donovan, and was lucky enough to win, 5 to 3. Then I had a fine run of luck, winning ten straight games between the opening of the season and Decoration day.

"Then for the first time I felt that I had really made good as a big leaguer. I went back to school that fall and finished my junior year. The next season New York gave me a $3,500 contract and I felt that I could afford to devote all my time to baseball. So I gave up my school days and decided to stick to the diamond."

ZBYSZKO IS NOW AT BAT

Manager Herman Sounds Gun of Pole's Campaign for World's Title.

Gotch to Be Guaranteed Big Sum for His End of Purse.

Stanislaus Cyganiewicz Zbyszko, the big Polish wrestler, will land in America for his third visit the last of October. The Galician champion is easily the most formidable challenger now confronting World's Champion Frank Gotch, and his manager, J. H. Herman of Buffalo, is now making active plans for a campaign which he expects with every confidence will culminate in his protege having a chance at the world's title during the season of 1911-12.

According to a letter which Herman has just issued, in anticipation of the arrival of the burly European, there is to be no delay in making an attack on the American, with the idea of engaging him in a finish tussle at the earliest possible date.

Zbyszko's Right to Recognition.

Herman declares boldly, in the belief that the public will sustain his position, that Gotch, having swept all challengers before him, having given Georges Hackenschmidt his second chance, can no longer refuse the claims of the Pole to further recognition, if the champion is to remain active on the mat. In the event of his retirement, which is thought highly improbable, Zbyszko will undoubtedly claim the title by default and prepare for its defense against all comers.

Zbyszko challenges Gotch to a finish match and to substantiate his claims and his faith in the value of the match from a financial viewpoint, to both champion and promoters, he stands ready to guarantee the champion that his reward for the bout, win, lose, draw or wrangle, will be $10,000, "an amount," says Herman, "larger than that received by Gotch for his 1910 match with Zbyszko, larger than he has received for any match in which he has engaged during his career, barring only the last match with the Russian Lion, when Gotch received $21,000."

Ready to Post Forfeit for $10,000.

In support of his promises, Herman declares that upon notification by any paper that Gotch has formally signified his willingness to accept terms for a match, he will immediately forward to his informant a check for $1,000 as forfeit for the promised $10,000, the remaining $9,000 to be posted immediately upon the signing of articles, and "in the event of his failure to do so, the $1,000 up to be bestowed upon charity as the stakeholder may elect."

"This $10,000 proposition," said Herman yesterday, "is made solely to convince the skeptical, who may include the champion, of our earnestness of purpose, and our confidence in the eagerness of the sporting public to support such a match as proposed. As a matter of fact, we do not anticipate any financial risk in such an offer, for there is no question in our minds that a finish match between Gotch and the Pole will draw one of the greatest houses of wrestling, whether held in New York city, Chicago or any other point in the West. Buffalo itself could afford to make a fine offer for such a match, and I am assured that in the event that it can be made, the Buffalo Athletic association will be one of the most active bidders for the bout."

Prominence of Zbyszko in 1911.

There is little question of the prominence of Zbyszko on the mat today. He is easily the most dangerous challenger now confronting Gotch.

During the last two years he has picked up a world of knowledge of catch-as-catch-can wrestling and has wonderfully improved a previously magnificent physique, all of which may be taken as assurance that he will perform far more creditably, if he gets another chance at the titleholder, than he did on the occasion of their first meeting. On that occasion Zbyszko lost two falls inside half an hour, the first in record time, a fraction over six seconds. But in that match, as has been pointed out, he was caught napping on both occasions and his friends have always contested the merit of the defeat.

Gotch, of Course, the Favorite.

Gotch, of course, will be an overwhelming favorite for victory against the Pole, or any other challenger at this time, but, even conceding the defeat of the Pole, there is every reason to believe that Zbyszko will be able to give the champion the best argument of any of his many challengers.

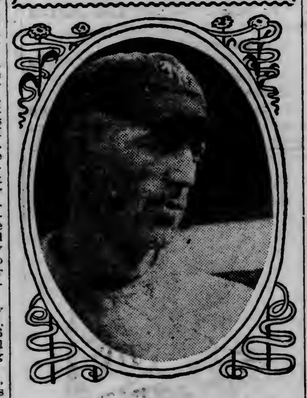

To date the Pole has satisfactorily answered every question asked of him on the mat, his defeat by Gotch being the only blot on an otherwise perfect record in America and Europe. He has triumphed on two occasions in handicaps with Hackenschmidt, and there is little doubt in any well-posted mind that he would accomplish the further downfall of the Russian Lion were it possible to couple them for a finish match.

Open to Any Challenger.

For that matter, Herman adds to his challenge to the champion that Zbyszko, although he has already defeated all comers, barring the champion, stands ready to meet any and all men whom the public regards as having a right to bar his approach to another championship match.

And there is much at this time to lend encouragement to the views and ambitions of the Pole. He can no longer be regarded simply as the "fat man of Europe" of days gone by. Perseverance in application to catch-as-catch-can wrestling has resulted in Zbyszko becoming a splendidly conditioned athlete of tremendous natural powers, a man now well versed in the tactical knowledge of the sport in which he hopes to prove supremacy.

FRED MERKLE HAS RETRIEVED HIMSELF

MERKLE
Of the Giants.

Fred Merkle has probably done more than any other player to bring the pennant to New York. He is 23 years old and is one of the youngest members of the Giants. He has been with the Giants since 1907 and was purchased from Tecumseh, Mich., for $2,500. He has few superiors as base runners and is counted one of the best first basemen in the National league. He is particularly famous for his failure to touch second base in 1908, which cost the Giants the pennant.

MAN WHO PLAYED FOR TAFT IS DROWNED.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—Run down by a gasoline launch last night, a cutter from the flagship California, of the Pacific fleet, which was returning to the ship with the thirty-five members of the band aboard, was upset in the bay and J. R. Charlie, one of the band men, was drowned. The band took part in the reception to President Taft at Oakland.

TEAMS NEED STAR BACKS

New York, Oct. 14.—There is nothing on the football field so attractive, to my way of thinking, as high-class quarterback play, and there will be plenty of it this season, says Right Wing of the Evening Post. Yale has in Arthur Howe, the captain, one of the best quarters since De Saulles; Harvard has a promising man in Potter, the baseball player; Brown has a star of the first magnitude in Sprackling, and there are many others who will get the most out of the position. It is too early to tell who will handle the leather for the Tigers, but they usually find a good quarter at Princeton. Before the season opened last year there were many followers of the game, and some of them were old 'varsity men, who said that the day of the quarter has passed, and that all plays thereafter would be made from the direct pass from center. Most of the men who took this view were forwards, for any back knows that he cannot hit the line or pick a quick opening with the ball slammed at him from the center. It has been tried and it has failed dismally. The quarter, as it turned out, was just as important last season as he ever was in the history of the game. The same will be true this season.

While in many plays it is necessary that the quarter handle the ball, and while his forward passing and sometimes his kicking are brilliant features of his play, it is his generalship that makes him indispensable, that makes him the real key to the game. Football requires that the man who has todo the most daring things with the ball must also be the brains of the game. His responsibilities are heavy—all other things being equal, he wins or loses the game.

Dangerous Tampering.

Now, every good quarter goes into a game with definite instructions. If he follows these instructions and wins he is a perfect man for the place—if he violates them and wins he is a genius; if he violates them and loses, no censure is too severe. Certain plays are forbidden in certain zones, and if the quarter disregards the generalship laid out for him he must "get away with it." Hyatt, the army quarter violated instructions in the Yale game last year and "made it go." Later the cadets tackled Harvard, and as Hyatt had been injured, the team was run by another man from the full back position. Things promptly went wrong. The same system of generalship was in force, the same plays forbidden in certain zones. One of thtse plays was a particularly clever onside kick that had worried Yale, and the new field general was overanxious to use it. He called for it in the forbidden zone. The army coaches on the side groaned, but they could do nothing.

The passing was done just as sharply and accurately as in the Yale game, but the crimson team was on the lookout, the kick was blocked, and Harvard scored the only touchdown of the game. If the play had been made in the zone provided for it, it might have been effective, and the kick might have been blocked, as Harvard had made special preparation for it, but it is improbable that the crimson would have scored a touchdown. It was a plain case of violation of generalship, resulting in disaster. The man who gave the signals had not the genius of Hyatt and could not afford to tamper with the scheme of play.

Exceptional Plays.

The quarters I have named, who will be on the fteld this year, are not the type that fool with the business end of the generalship without "making it go, and for that reason their play in the big games will be of absorbing interest. The new game gives the quarter every opportunity to handle the ball and to make the pretty open plays that delight the big crowds, but the generalship, after all, is the thing on which the critic bases his final judgment.

With exceptional me exceptional plays are possible. For instance, last year Yale had Howe a man who could kick with less protection than any other player on the gridiron, and it was this special aptitude of his that, as much as anything else, held Harvard off in the final game. It was possible for the Elis to revise their defensive generalship by robbing Howe of his protection and sending so many men down the field that the fast crimson backs could not run back kicks. With any other man but Howe at quarter the result might have been vastly different.

King's Pass.

In the matter of simple passing to the back I never saw a better man than Phil King, but he was playing behind a remarkable center and the understanding between them was perfect. The ball came back on the bound, King tossed it to the spot where the back ought to be, and when he got there the ball almost seemed to hang in the air, in absolutely the right position. In those days most centers passed the ball back by rolling it along the ground on its shorter axles. The quarters gave the signal by pinching the center's leg. Now centers are usually built pretty solidly, and it took a pretty severe pinch at times to get the ball from them. That accounts for some of the plays that went wrong, the backs starting before the ball was snapped because the center had not felt the quarter's pinch. I remember one center in particular, who shall be nameless here, who was a particular hard man to get into action. Pinching his leg was like pinching the bole of a tree.

One of the substitute quarters, tired of being scolded for not getting the play under way, solemnly stalked to the side lines, picked up a piece of board, returned to his position behind the center, and when he gave the signal used the board in a manner calculated to produce results. Not only did the play get under way quickly, but the center swept the opposing center and the two guards back as though they had been sacks of meal.

Faster Handling.

The game has progressed since those days, and the starting signal has made mistakes of that sort all but impossible. The men who play the game today handle the ball better and handle it faster, although few old-timers are willing to admit it. The quarter has the ball handed to him nowadays and he is also relieved of the dangerous duty of making the long pass to the fullback for a kick. His long passing is almost forward, and it is a radically different sort of pass. It requires great strength in the hands, and I know one man who took up the piano so as to strengthen his fingers and thus be assured of getting a firm grip of the ball. Howe of Yale has a remarkable grip, and I defy the ordinary man to bat the ball out of his hand even when he has seized it by the end preparatory to making a forward pass. This firm grip is invaluable in the new game.

But after all the generalship is the thing, and it often happens that a quarter who is doing beautiful passing is using poor judgment in selecting his plays, while the humble plodder on the opposing team is getting the last ounce out of his men and applying it where it counts. If the average man in the stands will go in for diagrams and try to plot the field, watching the sequence of the plays, he will get some idea of the generalship and find a keener pleasure in watching the work of the quarter.

JOHNNY ON THE FLYERS.

MY dear teacher has asked me to write a composition on the flying-machines, and so I will say:

Flying is called the sport of kings because kings never indulge in it.

An aviator is one who flies like a bird and comes down like a stone.

A balloon is lighter than the air, and an aeroplane heavier, but you hit the ground just as hard from one as the other.

Air-ships will never be a success until they are sold on the installment plan.

An aviator has been known to make as much money in one hour as Henry Ward Beecher used to make in five years, but when he dies he won't go to the same place Henry did.

It is said to be very cold after getting up two miles high, and no one can blame an aviator from coming down occasionally.

In the last year seventy-five aviators have been killed and over one hundred badly injured, but that don't count. They would probably have been run over by autos if they hadn't taken to flying.

In war time a flying-machine can hover over the camp of the enemy and see what he is doing. If he is playing poker he should and will be attacked at once.

The Wright Brothers were the first to fly, and the first to let the other fellers take the tumbles.

This is all I know about flying.

WHEN he entered the street car there was not a passenger who didn't feel that he would have something to say. He had the look of a man with something important on his mind, and there was suspense as he settled himself and got ready to say to the man opposite:

"Sir, Admiral Togo, of the Japanese navy, has been touring this country."

"Yes?"

"He was permitted to go everywhere."

"Yes?"

"He saw and he made notes."

"He did?"

"He was taken to the New York navy yard."

"I remember."

"But that wasn't all sir. No, sir, that wasn't all."

"Wasn't it?"

"Not by a long shot, sir. Admiral Togo was permitted to run out nights without being followed!"

"You don't tell me!"

"But I do, sir, and without doubt, sir—without the slightest doubt——"

"He made photographs?"

"That's it, sir—that's it, and one of them was of the spire of the Methodist church, and in case of a war with Japan one of their men-of-war will come here and knock that spire galley west at the first shot. Yes, sir—galley west—galley west!"

For a minute no one spoke. Then everybody called out: "Good gracious!" in chorus, and the alarmist took a chew of fine-cut and settled back in his seat and went to sleep.

"Twenty pounds?"

"Hardly."

"Not quite, eh? Shall we say fifteen?"

"N-o-o."

"Ought to have made it fifteen. Must be ten, anyhow."

"I don't think it's ten."

"Bless my soul, but you know best. Let's see? Gone three weeks and you must certainly have gained five pounds."

"I doubt it."

"Hear the man! He doubts that he gained five pounds! Shall we call it four?"

"I don't think I gained a single ounce," said the come-homer as he scratched his ear.

"Ho-ho. Not an ounce! Just think of it! But say, some one must have gained. Yes, some one must."

"I think some one did. The railroad gained $12 for my fare; the farmer $24 for my board; a teamster $2 for taking me to and from the station; the cook the same for tips; the doctor $8 for paying four visits, the druggist $2 for curing me of poison ivy, and the farmer's hired man——"

"But where did he come in?"

"Why, he won $30 off me at poker! Yes, I think there was a gain somewhere!"

THE MODERN HERO.

THERE were 560 girls working in the big shirt-waist factory when one with red hair smelled smoke and started to scream.

"Shut your face!" commanded Orzoff Rolinsky, foreman, as he scented the smoke at the same instant.

The girl shut, and after going on with his work for a few minutes Rolinsky tapped the gong and said to the wondering girls who crowded about him:

"The bosses' nephew gets married today."

"Hurrah for him!"

"In his happiness he wants others to be happy."

"Hurrah! Hurrah!"

"In the basement are ice-cream and cake. Go down and be pigs, but go orderly. If you don't go orderly it means broken necks and two shillings from your pay!"

"No, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Not interested in the games, then?"

"Only indirectly."

"Ah! What does indirectly mean, please?"

"In this case it means that I am in love with the widow of a pitcher and am going to ask her to marry me a little later on."

"I shall only be interested in my own."

HELP BEHAN TO NEW JOB

State Officials Will Seek Work for Dumas Witness.

Says He Was Down and Out When He Joined Yeggmen.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dressed in a neat but well worn suit of clothing, a small, black, bow tie about his collar, his face tanned from exposure to the weather, Martin Behan, captured as a yeggman at Puposky, sat in the office of Fre Marshal Keller and told how he got in with the gang that drew him into trouble.

Martin Behan is not a yeggman. He is a farmer 33 years old, who drifted away from his home in Wisconsin some years ago, and like many lads who follow the path of least resistance, ended in a saloon as a bartender. There he formed associates who turned out to be crooks, who talked to him of their escapades and told of their booty.

His First "Job."

And when a time came that Martin was out of a job, with no money, no place to go, a wife whom he married three years ago depending upon him, and when Mike Davis—"Manchester Mike" they call him—came to him and told him how the gang was preparing to blow the postoffice sate a Puposky, he fell. It was his first step—his first real wrong, and deputy marshals and Pinkerton detectives got him.

By turning state's evidence in the Dumas case the former Wisconsin farmer boy got immunity. He has acted so "square" with the officers and appears so sincere in his desire to get back to earning an honest living—earning it as he did back in Wisconsin—that state officers are preparing to help him.

"You can just say for me," remarked Fire Marshal Keller this morning, "that I believe in Martin Behan, and I'm going to do what I can to get him a job. We'll bank on him."

Assistant Fire Marshall Fullerton, too, proposes to help.

"Was Down and Out."

Behan is reticent when reference is made to East Frand Forks and his old life there.

"I was just down and out, no job, no money, nothing to do," he said, "and I tell you it's trying to a man who has a wife dependent upon him. I didn't want to go in on the deal, but I was up against it so hard I did. I learned my lesson."

"Who told you or came to you when the Puposky affair was planned?" he was asked.

"Davis," he replied. "He was the leader of the work. I think he's skipped the country now."

Behan was thoughtful a moment, then added:

"It's a hard life those fellows live."

Officials Will Help Him.

Just what work he can get into, just what he can do, Behan does not know. He has left the matter entirely in the hands of Fire Marshal Keller and his assistant, Mr. Fullerton. He never worked at anything except farming until he drifted to the place behind the bar. But he will never take a bartender's job again, he says. He wants to get away from such work and begin all over again. He will get the chance, Mr. Keller says, although he does not know yet where he will seek employment for him.

Behan is about five feet, six inches in height, will weigh probably 135 or 140 pounds, has a clear blue eye that looks one squarely in the face as he speaks, and there is nothing about him that would indicate a crook.

CROSSING TRAGEDY AT COLUMBIA, WIS.

Father, Son, Daughter and Another Woman Killed By Cars.

Nellsville, Wis., Oct. 14.—Another railroad crossing tragedy along the lines of the Neenah disaster was enacted at Columbia, seven miles west of here, yesterday afternoon when a freight train struck the vehicle on a grade crossing and killed four.

USING DECOYS HAS APPROVAL OF COURT

Judge Landis Upholds Using of Indians to Catch Saloon Keepers.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 14.—Judge K. M. Landis of the United States court, who recently sent three Ashland saloon keepers to jail for selling liquor to Indians, has sent a statement to Indian Agent Campbell here commenting upon the methods of capturing saloon keepers who break the law and the best punishment to be imposed. The judge plainly says that the imposition of a fine is not sufficient punishment. He also says that the use of decoys, Indians with money to buy liquor, is legitimate to trap delinquent saloon keepers. In the course of his statement Judge Landis says:

"The saloon keeper who habitually traffics with the Indians knows this fact (the debauchery of the Indians) and for white men who are willing to put money into their pockets as profit in this species of crime, a fine would be an absurdity. Their open contempt for and wilful defiance of the law in the past imperatively require the court to impose a penalty that will take them out of their present environment and give the man opportunity, amid more salutary surroundings, to reflect upon the proposition whether further defiance of this law would be altogether wise.

As to Use of Decoys.

"Counsel for some of these defendants have severely denounced the methods used by the government agents in obtaining evidence by sending decoy Indians to saloons to buy whisky. Of course it would be reprehensible for a government officer by these means to procure a saloon keeper to commit his virgin offense, but where, as here, an old offender happens to get caught in this way, it does not lie in his mouth to complain that the methods employed are not ethical. The court is convinced that in such case the decoy process is just as legitimate as it is to catch a chronic postal thief by the same process."

HANNA WILL RUN ON HIS RECORD

North Dakota Congressman Announces His Candidacy for Governor.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Upon my record in the state legislature and in congress and as a business man and citizen, I ask the support of the people of North Dakota," is the concluding paragraph of the announcement of Congressman L. L. B. HANNA.

Dakota, his wide public experience and his business record.

The announcement was not unexpected. Mr. Hanna has been urged by his friends to enter the race and has been so busy on personal and official matters that he did not get around to the public announcement until today.

Mr. Hanna is a Stalwart in his affiliations and will undoubtedly receive the unanimous support of the Stalwart Republicans of the state. He also probably will have a large following among the conservative element of the Insurgents.

Mr. Hanna is a Pennsylvanian by birth, 50 years old, and thirty years of his life has been spent in North Dakota. He has been a merchant, druggist and banker. At present he is president of the largest bank in the state and is owner of a number of farms. He is married and has two daughters and a son. In addition to being a member of both branches of the state legislature for several terms he has been a member of congress for four years and was chairman of the state Republican central committee for six years.

WIFE THREW PLATE

One Morning When Husband Kicked on Food's Quality.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 14.—"All went well and we were the best of friends, until we got to the breakfast table one morning. I passed a remark about the meals, were not being cooked as well as they might, when she suddenly threw a heavy dinner plate at me."

H. C. Alcox of this city who is suing his wife, Florence Alcox, in Judge Pollock's court for divorce, made this statement in response to a question as to how the marital trouble began. He also said his wife whipped his two girls every night before sending them to bed for a period of six years, that she threw plates at him, and bit him severely, and that he was frequently forced to take his meals down town at a restaurant, for fear that his wife would poison his coffee.

When asked by his attorney whether his wife had at any time called him vile names, Mr. Alcox asked permission to write them down instead of repeating them.

How English Beauties Peal Their Faces

(From Society World.)

"While abroad recently I could not help observing that the average Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average woman of our country," says Mrs. Scott, secretary of the National Health-Culture Society. "Making inquiries, several intimate friends in London confided to me that they regularly used on their faces what is commercially known as mercolized wax. I do not know whether the habit is general there, but I do know that this wax has wonderful rejuvenating properties, for I've tried it myself.

"If you will get an ounce of this mercolized wax at your drug store and apply it like cold cream, you will soon behold in your glowing cheeks their first resemblance to the remarkable transparent beauty of the Englishwoman's complexion. This wax gradually peels off the lifeless scarf skin in tiny, almost imperceptible flakes, revealing the fresh new skin underneath, pinky white, with the bloom of youth and health."

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another Methodist college may be established in North Dakota, the proposition of bringing about such a condition being one of those for consideration at the hands of the Methodist conference in this city next week. Bismarck is looked upon as the most ardent aspirant for the institution, and it is the delegation from that city that will press the matter to the attention of the conference.

For some time there has been more or less action in the Missouri slope district favorable to the creation of such an institution, and the result has been the formation of a distinctive movement in the city of Bismarck, as well as in the city of Mandan, for the purpose of gaining the selection of one or the other of the cities for the college.

A Simple Way To Reduce Wrinkles

(From The Home-Maker.)

Bear in mind that wrinkles, as well as bagginess of cheek or chin, are due to the muscular tissue losing its strength and shrinking. The skin is then too large in area to fit such tissue smoothly. It wrinkles or sags.

To remedy this conditon there's nothing so effective, so quick-acting, as a simple wash lotion you can easily make at home. Get an ounce of powdered saxolite at your druggist's, and a half pint witch hazel, mix the two and bathe your face in the liquid. This treatment at once tightens the skin and solidifies the underlying tissue—which of course smoothes out the lines and draws in the sagging skin. It also stimulates circulation, bringing natural color to faded cheeks.

Y. M. C. A. IS FOR ALL.

Watson S. Moore Makes Statement at Meeting of the Officers.

At a dinner and informal gathering of Y. M. C. A. officers at the building last night, Watson S. Moore in an informal talk said that the institution is not for any one particular class of people but for all classes of men.

"We do not want to overlook the fact that this is a religious institution," said Mr. Moore. "That is what it was founded for, and that is its chief ideal. Religion is the brightest thing in the world. If it is not, it is a counterfeit. Everything we have in this building in that respect is religious. A religious person, who is really religious, is the most attractive in the world. The greatest drawing card for men is a real man.

"This institution aims to furnish those things that will draw the interest of men. We want to help those with small means. That is part of its purpose. This institution aims to administer to men not only of one class, but of all classes, and it is simply incidental that the man, who rooms here, helps to support the institution. I hope that it will continue to grow as it has in the past."

A telegram was received today by the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company of Duluth from the Baker Importing company of Minneapolis and New York, stating that certain high grade coffees handled by that company had just been advanced three cents a pound. One grade, for example, that has been selling at 31 cents a pound wholesale will now bring 34 cents. This grade has been retailing at 35 cents and it will now retail at about 40 cents.

Was Carrying Gun.

Henry O'Donnell, 23 years of age, who has been arrested several times before, was again taken into custody last evening on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. When arraigned in police court this morning he entered a plea of not guilty and his trial was set for Tuesday afternoon. It is claimed that he went to his home at Sixteenth avenue east while in an intoxicated condition and threatened to shoot his father because of some alleged grievance. It is said that he armed himself with a gun and intended to look for his parent when he was placed under arrest.

Gets Jail Sentence.

Erick Lundberg, a cripple minus a leg, got a suspended sentence in police court several days ago after he had promised to get out of town. The police reported that he had been hanging about saloons and making a general nuisance of himself. He was arrested again last night on a charge of drunkenness. He entered a plea of guilty and got $15 and costs or fifteen days in the county jail. He went over the hill.

SUPERIOR THIRD CRIME CONFESSED

Without the quiver of an eyelash and with a satirical smile on his lips, Jim Dygart yesterday confessed to the cold-blooded murder of Supervisor John Hefsteadt on his farm near Poplar, Wis., on June 27 last.

With the same chilling calm he went on to state that he had planned to kill Hefsteadt's wife and son, but was afraid to attempt it while they were together and he could not find them separately.

Dygart made his confession to Sheriff McKinnon and District Attorney McKay of Douglas county in the Minneapolis jail, where he had already admitted the murder of Mrs. Amelia Bolton and her cousin, Frank Rhodes, while employed on the Bolton farm in Anoka county. The latter were committed after Dygart had fled from Poplar.

The murderer's only reason for the killing of Hefsteadt was that he had made an indecent proposal to Hefsteadt's wife, and that he feared Hefsteadt might kill him for it. He said that he killed Mrs. Bolton because she refused to elope with him, and that he had later shot Rhodes to death to conceal traces of the woman's murder.

The authorities believe that the man is insane, with a lust for killing, his particular frenzy being for women who refuse to have indecent relations with him and any one who might learn of his proposals.

When asked what he thought might become of him, it is said that Dygart replied that he would just as soon be hung, and that if they did not hang him he supposed that he would be imprisoned for life.

Dygart stated that he shot Hefsteadt from ambush after lying in wait for him for several days with a loaded rifle. After he had shot him he said that he crushed in his skull with an ax and then threw the body into a nearby well. He made his way across the country to Superior, hearing people discussing the crime. From Superior he said that he went to Minneapolis, where he got a job on the Bolton farm through an employment agency.

Broke His Pledge.

Because Adolph Delaire broke his pledge with Judge Parker to keep away from the grain cars, he was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse. He was arrested before and had promised to keep away from the cars if he would be released after the thirty-day sentence had been given.

Contract Let.

The contract for the paving of Main street from Lamborn avenue to the Interstate bridge approach was let yesterday afternoon by the board of public works, despite the appeals made by the interested taxpayers. The contractors who were successful in their bid have been ordered to go right ahead with their work.

Give Theater Party.

Segal brothers, proprietors of the new Golden Rule store here, gave a theater party last evening to all their employes, numbering about 100. The officers of the company occupied boxes at the Grand theater and the employes took up the entire front of the parquet.

GIANTS WIN FIRST CONTEST IN WORLD BASEBALL SERIES

lators. They were turned away by the police.

First page—Game ET

First inning—Athletics: Lord struck out. Mathewson's control was perfect and Oldring fanned. Collins flied out to Devore. Athletics, no runs.

Giants: Devore out, Bender to Davis; Doyle got a hit to right. Snodgrass struck out. Doyle stole second, Thomas throwing low. Murray struck out. No runs.

Second inning—Philadelphia: Baker singled to right. Murphy sacrificed Mathewson to Merkle. On passed ball, Baker took third. Baker scored on Davis' single to left. Barry out, Mathewson to Merkle, Davis taking second. Thomas out, Herzog to Merkle. Athletics, 1 run.

New York: Merkle out, Collins to Davis. Herzog, who took Fletcher's position in batting order, went out when Barry threw him out, short to first. Fletcher struck out. No runs.

Third Inning—Philadelphia: Bender out, Mathewson to Merkle; Lord flied out to Murray; Oldring doubled to left. Collins walked. Baker struck out. No runs.

New York: It was Indian against Indian when Meyers faced Bender. Meyers flied out to Oldring. Mathewson fanned. The Indian's pitching was beautiful to see, his curves breaking over the edges of the plate. Devore walked. Doyle flied out to Lord. No runs.

Fourth inning—Philadelphia: The game so far resolved itself into a pitching duel, and while the play was in progress there were long moments of intense silence. Only when a hit was made or there was some brilliant fielding play did the crowd vent its enthusiasm. Murphy fouled out to Meyers. Davis went out, Fletcher to Merkle. Mathewson worked his famous fadeaway and mixed it up with a big drop and a high fast one. Barry popped up to Fletcher. Athletics, no runs.

New York: Snodgrass took a base on balls after Bender had got two strikes on him. The fourth ball hit Snodgrass on the wrist. The crowd now let loose and there was a pandemonium of sound. Murray out, Collins to Davis. Snodgrass took second on the play. It was an attempt at a hit and run play. Bender's blinding speed was too much for Merkle and he struck out. Collins made a muss of Herzog's grounder and Snodgrass scored. Collins tried to nail Snodgrass at the plate but the throw was a trifle wide and on the play Herzog took second. Fletcher struck out. One run.

Fifth Inning—Philadelphia: Thomas drove a long fly to left which Devore caught after a smart run. Beder struggled to center. Merkle took Lord's grounder and threw to Fletcher, forcing out the Indian, Oldring doubled to right, Lord taking third. It was Oldring's second two-base smash. With Collins at the bat the Philadelphia crowd in the stand went wild. Merkle took Collin's grounder and touched him out. It was a close play and saved a couple of runs being scored. No runs.

New York—Collins took Meyers' grazer and shot it to first. Mathewson singled to center. It was the second hit made against Bender. Devore couldn't see Bender's fast ones and fanned out. It was Bender's seventh strike-out. Thomas made a beautiful stop of what would have been a wild pitch by Bender. Doyle was out by the Collins-Davis route. No runs.

Sixth Inning. Philadelphia—Baker caught a fadeaway on the end of his bat and sent it to center for a single. It was the sixth hit made against Mathewson. Baker started to steal but Murphy spoiled the play by fouling into the grandstand. Murphy sent a high fly to Snodgrass. Baker out stealing, Meyers to Doyle. Herzog threw out Davis. No runs.

New York—Bender hit Snodgrass on the arm, the batter taking first. Murray sacrificed Snodgrass to second. Murray's bunt was caught. Merkle struck out, while Snodgrass stole third, Baker dropping Thomas' throw. Baker was spiked on the arm in the play. The game was delayed while Baker's hurt was attended to. The official score gives Baker an error and does not give Snodgrass credit for a stolen base. Thomas getting an assist. Herzog walked on four wide ones. On an attempted double steal Snodgrass was out at the plate. Thomas threw to Collins who snapped the ball back to Thomas, who touched out Snodgrass as he slid into the plate. No runs.

Seventh Inning. Philadelphia—Barry struck out. Thomas flied to Snodgrass. Bender went out Fletcher to Merkle. No runs.

New York—Fletcher grounded out to Davis; Meyers doubled to left, Mathewson struck out. Meyers scored on Devore's double to left. Doyle walked. Snodgrass fanned. One run.

Eighth Inning—Philadelphia—Lord fanned. Oldring flied to Devore. Collins out, Mathewson to Merkle. No runs.

New York: Murray flied to Lord. Merkle beat out a bunt. Herzog fanned and Fletcher flied to Murphy. No runs.

Ninth Inning—Philadelphia—Baker grounded to Merkle. Murphy flied to Meyers. Davis out, Fletcher to Merkle. No runs.

Final score—New York, 2; Philadelphia, 1.

WHEAT LOSES HALF A CENT

Bearish Day in All Leading Wheat Markets of North America.

Flax a Little Higher—Crop Is Very Late—Demand Increasing.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 14.—There was a strong reaction today from the bullish trend of yesterday in the wheat market. Wheat has been bulled of late by reports of frosts in Argentina. There have been better weather reports from that country, however, and there seems to be less apprehension of spring frosts damaging the wheat there. This is the spring season in Argentina, that country being on the other side of the equator.

The Liverpool market closed dull, wheat being ¼d higher to ¼d lower. The demand for wheat in the United Kingdom was quiet. Today Chicago reported that the Continental demand on the other side of the water was even less than that of the United Kingdom. There was a bearish trend in the prices of wheat in all the markets of North America and all the leading markets made lower closes. At Duluth both December and May closed ½c lower.

The flax market was inclined to be bullish, though receipts were large compared with what they have been heretofore during this season. Today the number of cars of inspected flax on the track at Duluth was 31, against 12 on the corresponding day last year. But the fact remains that the crop is exceedingly late, forty days late, some of the brokers declare. Although the receipts of flax are now gaining on the receipts of last year, day by day, those of last year up to the present date are still far ahead of those of this year. There is far more flax in the fields than there was at any time last fall, but the trouble is that the weather has been such as to prevent it from being brought to the market.

Many of the brokers are afraid that a great deal of this year's crop will never be thrashed at all, and although the receipts of today were large, they were not what they ought to be, if the bulk of the crop is to be brought to the market. One broker declared today that Duluth ought to be getting 100 to 150 cars a day. To make matters look worse, there were reports of rains over a large part of the Northwest today, and that means more delay in cutting and thrashing the flax. The several successive days of fine weather that the Northwest has recently had are now showing their natural effect on the flax receipts, increasing them enormously, but the flax buyers are eager to see the seed come in four or five times as fast as it is coming. Today cash flax closed a cent higher at $2.43.

Durum, rye and barley closed unchanged. Oats closed at a loss of an eighth of a cent.

The same flour is sold to Duluth wholesalers at $5.60 a barrel. There has been no increase in the price at Duluth.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Inclined to Sag on Visible Supply Outlook.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—With another good sized increase expected in the visible supply this week, the wheat market today seemed inclined to sag. The tendency was emphasized on account of warmer weather in the Argentine and because of liberal shipments being scheduled to go to the United Kingdom. Bearish sentiment grew also as a result of shorts having covered freely and local bulls being generally long. Besides, there was an announcement from Washington that the European wheat crop this year is the third largest on record. The opening was ⅛@¼c lower to ⅛@¼c up. December started at 99¼c to 99¼@¼c, a loss of a shade to ¼c, and fell slightly lower.

Satisfactory reports in regard to thrashing in the Canadian Northwest kept the market depressed. The close was ⅜c net lower for December at 98⅞c.

Corn eased off despite wet weather. Cables were lower and the market here appeared to be overbought. December opened unchanged to ⅛c down to 64½@⅝c to 64⅝@¾c, and declined to 64½c.

The weakness continued and the market closed ½@⅝c net lower for December at 64⅛@¼c.

A little speculative buying gave oats an upturn. The weakness of other grain was ignored. December started the same as last night at 47⅞c, and advanced to 47⅞@48c.

Lightness of offerings made provisions firm. Initial sales were at last night's elevel to 7½c higher, with January deliveries $13.30 for pork, $8.80 for lard and $7.95 for ribs.

MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Easier on Lack of Support and Profit-Taking.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—Weekend profit-taking and lack of support resulted in an easier wheat market today. December closed ½@⅝c lower than yesterday and May ¾@⅞c lower. # STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Bull Operations Bid Up Prices in an Aggressive Fashion.

Speculative Issues One to Two Points Above Friday's Close.

New York, Oct. 14.—An active buying movement advanced prices generally in the early trading in stocks today. The demand was well distributed and gains were quite general. Canadian Pacific rose 1¼, Wabash preferred, Anaconda, National Railways of Mexico second preferred, 1; Northern Pacific ¾ and Union Pacific ⅝.

Speculation broadened and trading took on a more cheerful tone than for weeks. All of the recognized leaders were in eager demand and the'r strength was diffused throughout the market. Union Pacific, Reading and Lehigh Valley were among those of the active issues which gained a point, while the improvement elsewhere extended to 3 points. The Tobacco bonds sold off fractionally on the publication of what purported to be the official terms of reorganization.

The market closed strong. Bull operators bid up prices in an aggressive fashion and the shorts showed increasing nervousness as prices ascended. Round amounts of all the speculative issues were brought at figures from 1 to 2 points above yesterday's final range.

REAL ESTATE

WEEKLY SURVEY OF REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENTS

Local Architects "Mean Business" in the "Do It for Duluth" Movement—The North Shore Road—Homecrofting.

DULUTH has been blessed with bright and capable architects, who have contributed much to raise the standard of architecture in this part of the country. It is a fact, peculiar, but nevertheless true, that Duluth has a larger percentage of highly educated architects, men who have had years of training in the Eastern schools of the art, than the average Western city.

A few years ago all that was necessary for a man to set himself up as an architect was to have a fair knowledge of mathematics and a boxfull of drawing instruments. He started on small buildings, factories and cottages, where but little architectural knowledge or skill is required. He made mistakes—mistakes that the owners had to pay for and it is not long since the time that even every contractor professed to be an expert in architecture.

In the technical schools, young architects are now taught to disregard any hodgepodge of styles, classic, Gothic, mission and others, and are leaning to a distinctly American style, of which utility is the first essential, fire resisting qualities second, and finally beauty. In nearly every architects office in this city will be found men from this new school of thought, who are as capable as in any other city and when good jobs are taken out of the city outside architects by people who underrate the capacity of the local talent, it not only shows poor judgment, but displays a spirit of disloyalness to the best interests of the city it is claimed by men who have had experience in building.

Partly to encourage the training of a better type of architects and partly to correct some mistakes which Duluthians are making along building lines, the Duluth Architectural club has sprung into existence. Practically every architect, draftsman and material man in the city now belongs to it and the organization "means business."

Edward P. Schurlck, architect, and secretary of the new organization, in an interview published in today's real estate pages, says Duluthians do not practice what they preach when it comes to architectural and building matters. He declares that within the last five years over $6,000,000 has been taken out of Duluth by outside firms, including architects and builders.

Mr. Shurlck thinks that The Herald's "Do It For Duluth" slogan is excellent, provided that it is lived up to. Merely having the slogan put on your stationery is not carrying the idea into practice, he says. In past years, he claims, building operations in Duluth have netted but little to local men.

The new Architectural club has a mission before it. It has organized a publicity club to carry this message to the home of every public spirited Duluthian. It purposes to educate erring citizens to the fact that Duluth will never be the Greater Duluth until her good people learn some more things about buying and trading at home and patronizing home industries, whenever possible.

REAL estate men are always interested in good roads and the campaign which N. G. Neal, industrial commissioner of Port Arthur plans for a proposed boulevard and scenic roadway between this city and Port Arthur has attracted attention in local realty circles.

Mr. Neal, who was a visitor in Duluth this week is working for a plan for an automobile driveway between the American Head of the Lakes and the Canadian Head of the Lakes. He firmly believes that the new boulevard would make Duluth and north shore points as famous to tourists as the well known White mountains.

It is of interest to know that the project is already started from the Canadian end. From Port Arthur to the boundary line at Pigeon River, $20,000 has already been spent and the first leg of the road completed.

The building of this road to Duluth would mean more summer hotels. The propect would be a boon to Duluth and the real estate men are in accord with it.

WEST end property owners, who live on Twenty-seventh avenue west held a mass meeting this week for the purpose of taking action to secure an amendment to the city charter that would enable them to secure paving and similar street improvements on the 15-year payment plan. County Commissioner J. W. Cummings, James Preston and William Bernard are a committee to investigate the matter before it is placed before the council.

This plan is in operation in a number of large cities, particularly in the West, and is meeting with much success. Not only will the committee take the matter up with the council, but the attention of the charter commission will also be called to the proposition.

GEORGE H. MAXWELL, the homecrofter, is still in Duluth and during the past week, he has done much to advance the homecroft movement. For the most part his work the past week was confined to the suburbs. He delivered one lecture at Duluth Heights and another at the Irving school, West Duluth.

"Get an Acre and Live on It" said Mr. Maxwell in his talk to the school children. He declared that if they would follow his advice, it would do them more good than if they had taken a four-year course in the high school.

TURKEY'S war with Italy recalls to the mind of D. V. Case, a local architect of the firm of Case & Broomhall, the time when the local firm prepared plans for a $160,000 structure in Asiatic Turkey. The Women's Board of Foreign Missions of Boston, Mass., has built a handsome high school for girls and hospital building there and at the time the commissions were awarded, the Duluth architects were successful among the many who submitted competitive plans. The firm formerly was located at Hibbing.

The exterior of this design is also very attractive, with its simple, broad, low lines and large spacious front porch. The outside walls will be covered with wide siding, while the foundation will be made of select cobblestones.

Three bedrooms have been provided for with bathroom opening off from hall and within easy reach of the three chambers. The large living room has an open fireplace on one side and on the end there is a seat with book cases on each side of same.

The kitchen opening off from the living room has all the conveniences of a modern up-to-date kitchen, having, besides a sink, stove and cupboards, two laundry tubs and an ice box in the rear vestibule.

The size of the building, including porches, is 40 feet by 37 feet.

This house could be built within Duluth or vicinity for about $3,000 complete, including heating and plumbing.

These plans can be altered or reversed to suit owner's wishes.

ARCHITECTS PLAN "DO IT FOR DULUTH" CAMPAIGN

Claim $6,000,000 Worth of Work Has Been Lost to City.

Building News and Gossip of the Last Week.

Edward P. Shurick, architect and secretary of the Duluth Architectural club thinks that Duluth people in many cases are not practicing what they are preaching. He asserts that some who claim to be in accord with the "Do It For Duluth" movement do not live up to the slogan.

Mr. Shurick says: "The people of Duluth do not live up to the 'Do It For Duluth' policy. If they did Duluth would be a far greater city than it is today. Foreign industries do not have to come to Duluth; they can stay where they are and still obtain our business.

"Take for example the court house, the Kitchi Gammi club's proposed new building, the new St. Paul's church, Endion M. E. church, the Alworth building, the proposed new Duluth Telephone exchange and numerous large buildings; outside architects, contractors, labor and material were employed. This is not carrying out the 'Do It For Duluth' slogan.

"The above represents over $6,000,000 worth of work and every dollar of that amount went or will go to boost some Eastern city and not a cent will help build up our own community.

"Here for instance, is the Duluth Telephone company, a firm that depends upon local people to support it. If every citizen of Duluth would remove his phone here, would they conduct business? Now they contemplate the erection of a new building to cost over $100,000 and the first move they made was to receive the services of a St. Paul architect. Though the public may not realize it, it is a fact that almost every piece of material that will go to complete that building will be purchased directly or indirectly in St. Paul, and helps build up that city. As it was, with other buildings erected by local people, the contractors and even the labor itself was secured from outside cities and no doubt will be in this case, and yet this firm asks and expects the support of Duluth. They cannot say that they did not think of this, because a committee from the Duluth Architectural club called on the local manager and asked him to leave this work in Duluth.

Another Case.

"Another case is the Kitchi Gammi club. Here is a club composed of local businessmen—men who have made their money in Duluth—and men who no doubt are firm believers in the Herald's slogan 'Do It for Duluth,' but it seems apparent that they do not apply the slogan.

"The Kitchi Gammi club never went so far as to even invite, in open competition, any of our local architects to compete on their new building but went right over our heads and gave their work and Duluth's money to help build up New York City. Was that fair? Will that help the city of Duluth to prosper? The architects they have secured are very capable men and worthy of the work—if this was New York—but it is not—it is Duluth, and the men in the profession here are just as capable as the men they engaged. Perhaps the building committee did not believe this, but they did not take trouble enough to find out and at least give local men a chance. No doubt the building will be erected by foreign contractors and foreign material will be used in its erection and another $250,000 in good Duluth money will be gone and gone for good. They surely cannot say in defense that they did not think local men were capable—because they never even gave them a chance.

"Then how about our courthouse, St. Paul's church, the Alworth building? Did not the people of Duluth help toward the erection of these buildings? Would it not have been a far better policy for the men responsible for this work to have left this $6,000,000 in Duluth. Every dollar kept at home will do a thousand things and all of them directly or indirectly to your own personal profit. If we cannot make our living here we must go somewhere where we can and this means a decrease in Duluth's population.

"There is a certain man here in Duluth who is at the head of a large business house. His representative came up to our office some time ago and seemed hurt because we had specified a foreign article, and he said, 'I should think you would push Duluth material first.' The reason why we specified the foreign article was because, not two months previous to this, this same man went to Minneapolis architects and had them prepare plans for his new residence. A week later he let the contract to an outside contractor. Why should we, under these conditions, use his material? This 'Do it for Duluth' kick was all right, but it would be a good idea for him to carry out its practice a little himself.

"Minneapolis realty values increased so fast simply because they learned the little trick of 'buying at home.' The slogan of Minneapolis is 'Minneapolis Makes Good,' and they have made good—made good by boosting their own city and giving the local men a chance.

"The Public Affairs committee of the Duluth Architectural club is going to do its best to keep all work at home—to help boost for Duluth—in other words, to 'Do it for Duluth,' and every man who feels that outside architects should have his work, no doubt will meet this committee personally some time.

"I think, for my part, if the business men of Duluth, men engaged in retail lines, would organize under one large publicity club and push and boost for The Herald's slogan, 'Do it for Duluth,' work would stay here, and in less than five years the city of Duluth would almost double its population.

"I believe in Duluth—and I believe in making it a city to be proud of—but to do this we must learn to patronize our local men who have a right to that consideration. 'Do it for Duluth.'"

The contract for the erection of an addition to the office building of the Duluth Brewing & Malting company at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Helm street, plans for which were drawn by J. J. Wangenstein, has been let to Otto Johnson.

J. J. Wangenstein, architect, has prepared plans for the erection of a two-story hotel building of modern type to be erected at Federal Dam, Minn., for M. L. Toole. Federal Dam is one of the stations on the new Minneapolis, St. Paul-Duluth short line, which the Soo is now building and promises to be a lively town, when the new railroad opens its station there. The new hotel will have thirty rooms, will be stam heated and will have every modern convenience. The plans were out today. Figures will be taken as soon as possible and the contract will be let. The building will be 75 by 80.

Plans have been prepared by Ellerbe, Round & Sullivan for a new fire hall to be erected at Eveleth, Minn. The building will be contructed of brick and will cost $15,000. Figures will be taken as soon as possible.

Bids for the construction of the new $20,000 library at West Duluth, plans for which were drawn by Ellerbe, Round & Sullivan, will not be opened until Saturday, Oct. 21, a week later than originally planned.

Ellerbe, Round & Sullivan are taking figures for the plumbing and heating system, which will be installed in the new grade school which has just been erected at Barnum, Minn. The job will cost about $4,000.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein has prepared plans for the erection of a $4,000 dwelling house for William Grettum in Homewood addition, above the boulevard between Seventh and Ninth avenues east.

* * *

V. J. Price, architect, has prepared plans for the erection of a five-room bungalow to be erected on Fifth avenue east near Seventh street for Mrs. A. H. Bawden. Figures will be taken next week. The structure will cost $4,000.

* * *

Rumors are persistent that a new business block to be used mainly for hotel purposes will soon occupy the northwest corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, but it is denied by the owners. The corner was purchased by the present owners about two years ago at a price of $23,500 for 100 feet.

No less than twelve houses are now in course of construction at Gary and as many more are springing up at New Duluth.

The new buildings which have just been finished there are of a substantial sort. At New Duluth, there are no less than five store buildings under construction. A clothing firm will occupy one of them, two will be used for grocery stores and the remainder used for other business purposes.

A. C. Volk & Co. report that there is very noticeable scarcity of houses at Gary, and the company has six now in course of construction. All desirable houses are now occupied and the new ones are snapped up as soon as they are finished.

* * *

The International hotel at New Duluth, which was recently remodeled and put in first-class shape, has been rented by Henry Brouillette. The house is a twenty-two-room affair. Electric lights have been installed and new furnishings have been put in.

* * *

Work is progressing on the new retail furniture house, which is being erected at New Duluth for H. J. Thompson & Co. When completed it will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Other improvements noted at New Duluth recently are the construction of two new business blocks, both brick and of two stories. One will be put up by an investor from Gary, Ind., and the other by a Calumet man. It is understood that the New Duluth Land company has plans out for the erection of six new frame houses on its lots near the center of the townsite.

At a cost of about $4,000, the old building at 1202-1204 West Michigan street, owned by the Soo railroad, and leased by the local Salvation army, has been remodeled and put into shape for a relief store and workingmen's hotel. It will be opened Nov. 1.

* * *

During the week, A. Baker took out a building permit for the erection of a brick apartment building to be erected on East Seventh street between Lake and First avenues. It will cost $5,000.

* * *

E. B. Merrill has started the construction of a $12,000 residence in Crescent View park. It will be a frame dwelling and will be erected on East Fourth street between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh avenues.

Kelley & Lignell have prepared plans for a $5,000 jail building to be erected at Grand Marais for Cook county.

ARMY REQUIRED TO BUILD SKYSCRAPER

It takes a small army to build a sky-scrapper these days, and in point of training and discipline this army will compare favorably with other armies engaged in less peaceful duties.

The sky-scraper of today employes men who are skilled in all lines of building art. There is the common labor used to dig the basement, to mix mortar, and handle the heavy timber. Unskilled though this labor is, still it is trained labor, every man knowing his work and doing it without any knowledge of what is going on above or below him. There are steel workers, stone masons and artisians in stone, brick layers, concrete workers, and carpenters by the score.

With such persistance does the work go on that by the time the steel is done at the eighteen floor of a modern building, the floor workers have concreted the floors right onto their heels.

The carpenters have divided the interiors, and the walls are creeping slowly from the bottom to top. So far apart are the men that a shout from those in the air is drowned by the diabolical batter of the riveting machine before it reached the ground, and more than a hundred men work on and on totally oblivious of the presence or progress of what goes on above or below them.

The payroll on a building of this character is large. So great is it that for a breakage to occur in the engines that raise the material to the top floors means a loss of practically $200 for every hour of delay or idleness. A practical joke that causes a two minute laugh entails a loss of $2, a pretty hat coming down the street may be rubbered at $2 worth, a funeral is worth $4 worth of time and a runaway is rated at about $9.

The carpenters might not be able to erect the steel structure, and the steel workers might not be able to drive a nail or saw a board straight, and both might lack the hardiness to mix concrete, but between them all, every man knowing his place, what to do and when to do it, and above all having the knack of keeping out of the other fellow's way is part of the training necessary to build a sky-scraper.

A GOOD INVESTMENT!

1526, 1526½, 1528 East Third Street, being three houses with brick basement and having every convenience, on a lot 50x140 feet.

These houses are in good condition and have a rental value of $102.50 per month; are located in the best of neighborhoods and have always had good tenants.

This is a good investment as it pays a high rate of interest on the purchase price and requires but a moderate amount of cash to handle it.

It is a particularly good investment for a party looking for a comfortable home in a good neighborhood, as he can rent the other two houses for enough money to pay on the whole investment a higher rate of interest than the ordinary investment pays, besides getting his rent for nothing.

These houses are owned by a non-resident and as it is all the Duluth property he owns, wishes to close it out, which accounts for the cheapness of the price, which is $7,500.00.
